Few problems found in school district audit

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state of Florida's Office of the Auditor General has completed its annual audit of the Seminole County school district and while it was an overall good report, there were some problems found.

The audit, which was for the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1992, was made by Ransom D.

Smith refused comment on the report, stating that he believed that the comments contained in It "spoke for themselves."

According to the report the deficiencies found within the school district's internal control structure are not "considered to be a material weakness in the district's internal control structure" the auditor suggested they should be 'addressed promptly.'

Some of the deficiencies include a lack of accountability for food service collections that 'could result in errors or irregularities that may not be detected in a timely manner;" and the lack of adequate documentation of the necessity of assigning vehicles to district personnel on a

Supt. Paul Hagerty, responding for the district. said in a letter to the auditor general's office that all food service managers have been notified that transfer reciepts must be used for any transfer of collections and procedures have been implemented to help ensure that cashiers do not have access to the cash register closeout keys.

He also noted that as of July 1, no district vehicles will be authorized to be driven home after work hours.

The school district was also cited for their mability to place into operation a computer system that was purchased in September 1989 at a cost of $145,480,

'inspiration' words replace prayers

TAMPA - After a U.S. Supreme Court ruling against ministers leading prayers at public school graduations, some Hillsborough County schools are instead planning "words of inspiration.

The nation's high court ruled last June that even non-sectarian benedictions and invocations violate the First Amendment ban against government establishment of religion. 'If the Supreme Court Rules you can't, what can you do? You don't," said Patrick Gregory, principal at Brandon High School.

But a state school official said there is a loophole in the ruling that still leaves room for prayer.

Pete Davidsen, Hillsborough's assistant superintendent for administration and operations, said the district has given schools the option of allowing a student to lead a prayer.

So when the county graduates its 6,568 seniors next month. the changing times will be reflected in some graduation programs with words such as "dedication," "words of inspiration" or "senior reflections."

Investigators said the case had strong hate-crime overtones. Before the fire, DeBerry, a member of the activist group Tampa Bay ACT-UP, reported to police that she had been receiving threatening telephone calls. She said her affiliation with the group, and her outspokenness on AIDS, were behind the calls and the fire.

Judge delays verdict announcement in cop's retrial

By IKE FLORES Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — The judge in the man-slaughter retrial of a Miami police officer who killed a black motorcyclist ordered Wednesday that public announcement of the verdict be withheld four hours.

Meanwhile, Gov. Lawton Chiles telephoned the trial judge Wednesday and issued an executive order activating the Florida National Guard in case troops are needed after the verdict.

Closing arguments in the case are set for Thursday, and a six-member jury is to begin deliberations shortly after that. The 1989 shooting in a predominantly black area of Miami set off three days of racial violence.

"This will give additional time to deploy law enforcement resources into the community (Miami) as a precautionary measure," Metro-Dade police director Fred

Taylor wrote in a letter requesting the delay.

Circuit Judge W. Thomas Spencer acted at the request of Taylor, Commissioner James T. Moore of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and Perry S. Turner, president of the Dade County Association of Chiefs of Police.

"If the verdict is reached after 5 p.m., the verdict will not be made public until 8 a.m. the following morning," Spencer said in his Turner wrote FDLE's Moore that his request was based on "the economic impact on law enforcement agencies" if they go into full readiness and a jury deliberates "several days or even longer.'

Jo Miglino, spokeswoman for Chiles, said an initial contingent of guardamen will be ordered to active duty, possibly Thursday.

All law enforcement agencies in the state were directed by Chiles to assist state law officers "in the event of any civil disturbance." The procedural court session ended after Spencer denied a renewed defense request for a directed verdict of acquittal, citing a case in which a court held that a police officer should not be held up to judgment years after an instantaneous action in the line of duty.

But Assistant State Attorney Richard Schiffrin noted the case had different circumstances and the appellate court already has ruled in William Lozano's case that "the evidence was amply sufficient to support a verdict."

Meanwhile, lawyers for the suspended officer were staking their chances for acquittal on their closing arguments before a racially mixed Orlando jury.

They negotiated and argued with prosecutors Wednesday on the exact phrasing of instructions that the judge will give to jurors before they begin deliberations.

Talks about early prison release continue

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - House and Senate negotiators were close to agreement on expanding the group of prison inmates eligible for early release, but were deadlocked on proposals to overhaul criminal sentences.

If a deal is reached today, about 5,600 more prison inmates would be eligible for early release because of overcrowding.

"We were hoping we could stop the revolving door," said Rep. Elvin Martinez, D.Tampa. "We're going to continue releasing some very dangerous people.

After six hours of discussion and counter-offers, the two sides remained at odds Wednesday over changing the habitual offender laws, scrapping mandatory sentences and judges' sentencing latitude.

"I'm more comfortable with current law than I am with the changes," said Sen. Robert Wexler, D-Boca Raton,

Some House members said the Senate had refused to move very for from its original position on criminal sentences, which would leave much of the current sentencing guidelines structure in place and require prison space for 42,000 more inmates over the next five years.

"We came here prepared to move on every issue," said Rep. Willie Logan, D-Opa-locka, "You would rather not do anything at all - you would not com-promise."

The House bill, which would scrap the current guidelines in favor of a new point system reserving prison space for the worst offenders, would require 16,500 more prison beds over five years. During the day, the House made concessions that brought its total up to about 29,000 beds.

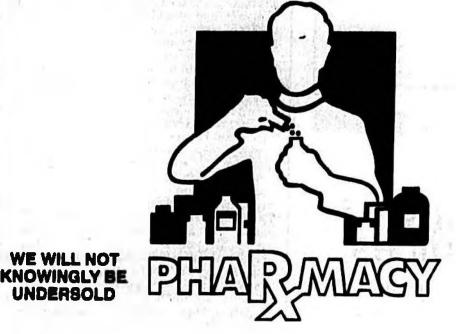

Talks were to continue today, but lawmakers were not hopeful compromise could be reached. If nothing is done on sentencing guidelines, an estimated 46,000 more prison beds will be needed

The House and Senate plan to vote tonight on a compromise prison expansion plan to add space for 10,500 inmates at a cost of $211 million — the reason Chiles called the special

But even with that expansion, criminals continue to stream into Florida's prisons, and the Department of Corrections must release inmates early to meet court-imposed population caps. And the pool of less dangerous inmutes is shrinking, which may force release of more violent offenders by fall.

House and Senate negotiators were working on a compromise that would make 5,636 more inmates eligible for early release.

Tourist council grants: good choices

The Seminole County Tourist Development Council, TDC, has submitted its list of budget recommendations for fiscal 1993-94. If approved as presented, a total of $440,000 will be spent to promote and sponsor local

The money comes from the tourist tax enacted in 1989, which draws a three percent tax from hotels, motels, camp grounds, or any other facility which houses people for periods of less than six months at a time.

All but one suggested event to be financially supported by the TDC have received similar amounts in the past.

The sole exception is the PVA U.S. Open Bass Tournament, sponsored by the Central Florida Chapter of the Paralyzed Veterans of America. This past April, the PVA held its seventh annual event on the shore of Lake Monroe.

An estimated 92 wheelchair bound veterans and their assistants, as well as several hundred onlookers suffered through rather cold weather during the event. Participants said they enjoyed their visit to Sanford.

As in past years, the numbers are expected to grow for the 6th annual tournament in 1994. With assistance in promotional efforts through the TDC, this could be one of the outstanding sporting events of its type in the southeast.

Almost everyone will be helped through the TDC grants: Seniors involved in the Golden Age Cames; sports enthusiasts in soccer and salitest syents and the Central Florida Sosp World Cup Orlando soccer tournament, the largest sports event in the world.

The selection of these recipients is not easy. Many organizations are deserving of financial assistance in their pursuit of promoting tourism in Seminole County. The grant money however, is limited.

We commend the Tourist Development Council for its choices, and urge the Seminole County Commission to approve the recommendation for the fiscal 1993-94 budget.

Tax unfair

To paraphrase a line from Shakespeare: "A tax by any name would smell just as bad." The cigarette tax proposed by Governor Chiles is a case in point.

In the first place, Chiles has not downstred state government to realize all the tax money from that source. All should oppose new taxes until that is done. In the second place it seems a bit unfair to place the entire burden of new prison beds on us smokers of the evil weed, tobacco.

All of us are in jeopardy from the criminal element. It seems to me appropriate then that all of us should pay for prisons to house them (when you can get some liberal judge to give them some real

I had planned to write about the Bosnia-Herzegovina tragedy this week, but that faraway crisis receded quickly when I read a news story that had terribly depressing implications for the future of black males.

The story brought me back 26 years to a 4 a.m. meeting in a Newark, N.J., hotel room. The second national conference on black power had just ended, only three weeks after that city's orgy in racial violence. A small group of us was sitting on the floor, trying to cobble the conference's final position paper.

Rap Brown, Maulana Karenga (the founder of Kwanza, the African-American winter celebration), Bill Strickland lone of the movement's quiet scholars), John A. Wilson (from the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee), Rev. Nathan Wright (our chairman) and I were seized with a sense of the black community's historical mission.

But one member kept demanding a deeper analysis. "We ought to be discussing the historical rationals for this conference," said Wilson. "We ought to be saking: How will this conference impact on specific agendas?"

"For crying out loud, John," exploded an exasperated Strickland. "At 4 o'clock in the morning, you suddenly decide to become a philosopher king."

'Well, if Newark doesn't elect a black mayor next time," responded Wilson, "what good will this conference have i accomplished?" "Spoken like a typ-ical politician." Karenga said with a chuckle. The rest of us laughed and kidded Wilson some more. We finally completed the agenda at 10 a.m.

Seven years after that conference. Wilson harnessed his SNICK organizing skills to get elected to Washington's City Council. Ironically. the former black power advocate would represent one

Last week, John A. Wilson, only 49, was found hanged in his home. Even as I write that tragic sentence, I can still feel an inner numbness. John Wilson's death diminishes me, not only because of a longtime friendship, but because we .. the nation's capital, this country and the black community .. have lost a rare and thoughtful humanitarian. But I anguish over his death for another painful reason. Here is a black man, who, in a moment of supreme pain, took his life, just as young black men in the ghetto are slaughtering each other with thoughtless abandon.

An endemically powerless black community cannot continue to be an impotent, silent witness to its self-annihilation. We have got to find more effective ways to reach out and bring allenated brothers living in the 'hood to productivity in the American mainstream. We must also let the troubled John Wilsons know that they are an ever-present source of comfort for our troubles.

Curing dysfunctional presidency

We don't need family counselors to point out the telltale warning signs. The evidence leaps out from our daily front pages and nightly video news.

Sadiy, we are all victims of a dysfunctional

Bill Clinton seems beset by all manner of problems: large peacekeeping problems (See: Europe Rebuils Clinton on Bosnia"); small housekeeping problems (See: "White House Fires Travel Staff, Hires Clinton's Crony Cousin"). Indeed, proof that Clinton's presidency is in big trouble is that now even the trivialities turn into tormenting headaches (See: "Presidential Haircut Produces Unflattering Headlines").

It did not have to be like this, it does not have to stay like this. But Clinton cannot cure his presidential miseries until he and his high command joit themselves out of self-denial and face the unpleasant but unmistakable facts of life at, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

There are but two real reasons why the Clinton presidency has fallen on such hard times: (1) a presidential staff that lacks maturity, savvy and discipline; (2) a maximum leader who suffers the same plaint.

Clinton's lack of political common sense comes as a surprise - this, after all, was the man who overcame all odds and obstacles to capture the presidency. Frankly, I must shoulder part of the blame. For, when Clinton's presidency was just one week old, I transformed a column into a public memo to the president's two top advisers. Chief of Staff Thomas "Mack" McLarty and Communications Director George Stephanopoulos -- but it never occurred to me to add Clinton's name to the list of officials who might embarrass the president. (From my January 1993 "memo": "Your White House has a flaw -- and it's sure to cause more problems if it lan't remedied.... The senior staff ... is woefully short on experience.... Seemingly innocuous occurrences can explode without warning.")

This time, let me make myself perfectly clear: Mr. President, you need to surround yourself with a staff that has the fortitude to just say "No!" - to you. when you suffer a recurrent spell of political tone-deafness. It happened at the 1968 Democratic Convention, when you gave that keynote address that never ended. And the other day, you suffered a relapse; you, a master of Potemkin populism, kept Air Force One idling in Los Angeles while you got a $200 hair snip. You needed a staffer to say: No. Mr. President. you'll be keeping two runways closed -- and when word gets out, it will be a political disaster. Every American will figure that a guy who stacks up a dozen jets to get a $200 haircut has a terminal case of The Big-Head.

Also, you needed a staff to just say "No!" to the notion that it was OK to fire the White House travel staff on grounds of administrative mismanagement - and then hire your own distant cousin, backed by your campaign contributor and pal, who'd pro-posed firing the old bunch to get a piece of the business. What's next? Will you be taking Air Sununu out of mothballs?

You needed a staff that just says "No!" every time you try to turn your back on the things you championed when you campaigned as a New Democrat. Such as your nomination of an unacceptably radical professor.
Lani Guinier
(Hillary's and your social friend), as attorney general for civil rights. Did your staff even dare point out to you the controversial, extraconstitutional proposals she had put in writing?

to be like this. it does not have to stay like this

It did not have

And finally, you need a staff that will just say "No!" to each other. Especially when, as in the case of your man Stephanopoulos, they figure they'd reached a pinnacle of power so grand they don't have to build a reservoir of goodwill among the White House press corps. He snubbed the regulars in ways large and

Perhaps, Mr. President, you might start by labeling us required staff reading the book written by the Arkansan who gave you your first job in Washington: J. William Fulbright's "The Arrogance of Power."

SOS, or something like that

Washington, D.C., has got to be the SOS capital of the world, and I'm not talking about distress signals.

I am thinking more of the swill we used to get for breakfast in the army, creamed meat on a slice of bread. Stuff on a shingle, we called it, or something like that. SOS for short. It also meant "same old stuff," or something like that.

Just like Washington. What you get from your government is all too often stuff on a shingle. The same old stull. With an anti-deficit tempest swirling through the land, you would think something would change. Actually, something has. We have a new president and a new Congress. But the products they're serving up is the same old stuff.

Take a guess how many times the federal budget has been balanced since the start of the Great Depression, l'Il tell you: Exactly eight. Guess how many times the budget has been balanced since 1969. None. Not once in 24 years.

Just like

Washington.

During that period, our leaders have run up $3.8 trillion in debt. The interest we have paid on the debt that has accumulated since 1969 adds up to $2.78 trillion. Just the interest. Money down the sewer. The vast bulk of that post-1969 debt - $2.52 trillion was rung up during the reign of the Red Ink. Boya, Ronald Reagan and George Bush. The accumulated interest paid on the Reagan-Bush debt came to $2.58 trillion. Comes now Bill Clinton, the New Democrat. He has proposed to slash government spending some $247 billion over the next four years. He also wants to raise our taxes by $246 billion over that period. All for the sake of reducing the deficit, you understand. Indeed, he has promised he will bring the deficit down to $145 billion by the end of his first term.

He talks fervently about it. "We've got to put our house in order, folks," he recently told a town meeting crowd in San Diego. "If we don't do it, we'll be paying for it from now

There's a catch, though, If everything goes precisely as he wants it, he will reduce the annual deficit, not eliminate it. It will still be going up at an average rate of $240 billion a year. We will thus be running up the national debt, which now stands at $4.2 trillion and will exceed $5 trillion by 1997. We will then be paying some $380 billion a year in interest on it - assuming the economy is healthy.

Same old atuff On Capitol Hill, the Old Democrats are tinkering with the New Democrat's plan. As they do this, they are hearing from every interest group in America, all of whom want the other guy to carry the burden of deficit reduction. And the lawmakers are being ably assisted by hordes of lobbyists, who are providing them with some amazing insights. By the time Clinton's tax bill got voted out of the House Ways and Means Committee, the legislators had already granted concessions to multinational corporations, the energy induatry, aluminum producers, real estate developers and a host of other special interests.

The committee had also killed Clinton's proposal for an investment tax credit, thereby saving $25 billion. Common sense would seem to dictate that since this entire exercise is dedicated to reducing the deficit, this windfall would beat be applied to it. But with the help of lobbyists, the lawmakers were able to comprehend that the nation would be better off if the $25 billion were used to reduce corporate income taxes.

Same old stuff.

Now the New Democrat wants to create a "deficit trust fund," in which he would put all new tax revenues and savings from spending cuts, thereby guaranteeing those montes will go for deficit reduction.

Clinton's tax bill prospects improved today by new deal

By ALAN FRAM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Clinton said today a new pact between Democratic leaders and conservatives on a mechanism for curbing federal spending will put "some discipline" in his budget-cutting tax bill.

Approval of the deficitreduction bill would be a crucial prize for Clinton, who based his election campaign on a pledge to revive the economy. #### From Staff Reports

CORAL SPRINGS - Another year older, another national title.

Former Seminole Community College men's basketball coach Bill Payne continued his ageless oncourt antics last weekend at the Coral Springs Civic Center as he and his Clearwater AAU teammates won the Over-45 Masters national tournament.

Two years ago, Payne was a member of the Orlando-based Lutheran Brotherhood team that won the national crown.

"I plan on playing until I'm in my 60s like a lot of those guys do," said Payne with a laugh. "It's really great fun."

And it's not a bad brand of basketball, either. Playing fullcourt 5-on-5, the eight-player Clearwater AAU squad averaged well over 100 points a contest in winning all six of its games on the the way to the national crown, including a 112-65 victory over St. Louis' Ancient Regime in the finals.

"It was a good tournament with a high level of play," said Payne, now the coach at St. Petersburg Junior College. "There were 28 former NBA players in the tournament."

Clearwater AAU's Darrell Stewart (a graduate of Florida State) was the tournament Most Valuable Player. He and Clearwater teammates Gary Keller (Florida) and Mike Campbell were All-Tournament picks.

According to Payne, Clearwater AAU "recruited" him at last year's national tournament.

"They contacted me," said Payne, who announced that he was leaving SCC for St. Petersburg last March. "They knew it (that he was taking the St. Petersburg job) when we played in last year's national tournament. We talked about my joining them when I moved over

Payne also said that he's able to mix a little business with pleasure at the tournament.

What it does is that it helps me a little in recruting players." Payne said. "I meet coaches and I hear about players. In fact, two players I recruited for SCC, Troy Bruening and Deon Gavin, I first heard about when playing at the national tournament."

U-19 Gators win fifth state title in seven years

Special to the Herald

Winning a state championship is a unique and special feat in any sport, generally cherished by those who accomplish it as a once-in-a-lifetime event.

Unless you're a member of the Seminole Gators.

Coached by Paul and Pam Vandestreek, the Under-19 women's soccer team has won five state titles in the last seven years, including the 1993 state title last weekend in Plantation.

The Gators, made up primarily of players from Seminole County high schools, also won state championships in 1987, 1989, 1990, and 1991.

Every year, the Gators compete against seven other teams from around the state in the State Challenge Round for a berth in the Final Four Tournament the following weekend.

This year, the Gators won the State Challenge Round played in Clearwater the weekend of May 15 and 16. Moving on to Plantation to play in the Final Four Tournament, the Gators blanked Clearwater-Countryside 4-0 and the Seminole Blaze 3-0 to claim the state title.

The Gators now advance to represent Florida in the Athens Cup, which will be played in Jackson, Miss., the week of June 14-20.

Also in the field will be state champions representing Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia. Louislana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, and Tennessee as well as the North Texas and South Texas champions.

Members of the Gators are Lyman High School studenta Shirley Campos and Danielle Garrett: Lake Mary's Staci Dennard, Adriane Hemmerly, Brooke Priddy, and Shayne Thomas: Nicole Delahoussaye, Alyssa O'Brien, and Tonia Torres from Lake Brantley; Lake Howell's Jenny McDonald; Sara Roberts. Amy Vanderstreck, and college players Michelle Demko and Teresa Lois (Barry), Melissa Durham (Duke), and Michelle Harris (North Carolina State).

After a flat Winston, Ponder rebounds in return of Late Models

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE - Tony Ponder of DeLand was on his way to another Winston Racing Series Late Model win at Volusia County Speedway last Saturday, May 22, when he started losing his left rear tire more than two-thirds of the way into the Volunia Performance 30-lap feature.

But after slipping back and settling for a seventh-place finish, Ponder came back to battle Orlando's David Rogers for nearly 20 laps to take the first win of the season on the return of the Late Models to Volusia's weekly program. Ponder's loss in the Winston Racing Series event, one that could cost him his lead not only at Volusia County Speedway but also in the Sunbelt Region, caused him to give more thought about racing his Late Model entry depite the Saturday night win that brought an $800 first prize check. "I'd just as soon leave it (his Late Model car) at home," said Ponder from the winner's circle. Every time I bring it out. something goes wrong.

The last time Ponder raced his Late Model was the only other time he was unable to take the checkered flag as Cam Gibson and Mike Hunter both led him around the track, only to watch Ponder race 100 laps to win the Baxley Oil 100 for Late Modela.

But for Hunter, Ponder's misfortunes last weekend helped him end a long drought of putting his 1990 Firebird in the winner's circle. "I think I bought myself

another week (in the car)," joked Hunter after winning the Winston Series event, happy to get the checkered flag for the first time in 1993 after a very successful 1992, when he claimed the track and Winston Racing Series championship and finished fourth in the Sunbelt

Region.

We're a little bit closer, but this competition is getting really tough. Hopefully, it won't be as long until we're back here again."

Hunter led a pack of close company across the finish line. Deltona's Jim Grotha taking second in his Subway of DeLand No. 4 special, his best finish of the year. Olbson was third followed by Wayne Lockett, Tony Newsom, Randy Hibbard. and Ponder.

In the Late Model return to the Saturday night program, it was looking like Rogers (winner of the division the last time the class raced at Volusia as well as the 1991 Winston Rucing Series champion both at the Volusia track and in the Sunbelt Region) was going to pick up where he lest off in 1991.

But 10 laps into the 30-lap feature, Rogers got company as Ponder pushing hard. burning off steam after his disappointing Late Model Stock finish. Ponder followed for a few laps, then the two battled doorhandle to doorhandle until Ponder charged to the front on lap 27, pushing Rogers back to second.

Following the lead pair across the finish line were Ronnie Burkett, Guy Thomas, and Kevin Dicka.

Jeff Miller, the points leader of the Budget Mobile Homes Street Stock Division, took his fourth feature win of the season to add another 10 points to his lead over Chris Lawrence, the runner-up Saturday night ahead of Steve Turner, Ray Fulford, and Shane Williams. J.D. Clark picked up his third feature win in the J.L. Hags Auto Body Hobby Stock Division, boosting his lead over runner-up Gene Menning to a 25-point spread in the points race in that division. Coming in behind Clark and Menning in the race were Jim Butler, Robert

Milam, and Mike Beliveau. For Jon Compagnone Jr., Saturday night marked his first trip to the Volusia winner's circle in 1993 after he powered his way to the front of the Pate's Drywail/Benny's Racing Tires Florida Modified Division, outdistancing Mike Loescher, Denzil Cormican, Ray Shaffer, and Bob

MacKenzie. Compagnone led from the start, sometimes getting pressure from the chasers, but eventually pulling away at the

"I kept trying to look straight ahead," said Compagnone. "But when they started getting close . . . Ray (Shaffer) gave me a real good race on the outside."

Derrick Luthe of DeLand also took his first checkered flag of the year, taking the lead on lap two of the 15-lap Ranken's Repair Mini Stock main event and running away from second-place finisher Phil Orr and the rest of the pack. "We haven't had the best of luck this year," Luthe said. "Tonight, it (his car) was hooked up . . . but (the race) wasn't no gimme."

David Ponder from DeLand was being protested and torn down late after the races Saturday night, but took the checkered flag for the fourth time in the Kinco Windows and Doors Sportsman Division. Following Ponder in the race were Mark Stevenson, Rusty Ebersole, Karl Stairs, and John Warrington.

Wife wonders if she can trust born-again husband

DEAR ABBY: 1 am 20 years old with a baby and a husband. My problem is my husband. It all started when I was six months pregnant. "George" started staying out late, saying he was with the guys which wasn't true. After I had my baby, I found out he had been seeing a young girl who lives next door to his mother. A few friends had told me this, but I didn't believe them. When I asked George if there was anything between them, he denied it.

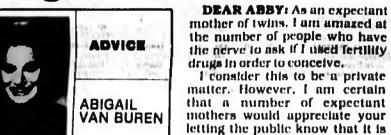

A month later, I found a letter he had written to one of his buddles in the Army and never mailed. In the letter he said he got a girl pregnant and had to rush her to an abortion clinic. That's not all. Next, George got 90 days in the county jail for shooting a gun at his girlfriend. (He missed her.)

When I visited George in jail, he broke down and told me everything. He said he was sorry for cheating on me, but he is now born-again and has learned his lesson, and wants another

GEORGE'S WIFE DEAR WIFE: Since you still love him - give him another chance. I hope his being bornagain will keep him straight and honest. But if it doesn't, say goodbye and close the door on this relationship. DEAR ABBY: The husband of a very good friend of mine regularly propositions me after he's had a few drinks. This is a recently married couple I care about. He tells me his sex life is not fulfilling and I am "his kind of woman," and he would marry me If given a second chance. Although this is somewhat flattering, it saddens me and makes me uncomfortable because his wife is a very close friend. In normal circumstances (when he isn't drinking), he does not behave this way.

What do you suggest I do or say when this happens?

FLATTERED, BUT SAD DEAR FLATTERED: Try to minimize the opportunities for such talk by keeping your distance. But should you be trapped, don't let him go on and on with that line of chatter. Tell him you don't appreciate such talk, and steer him in the direction of his wife.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, you had a letter about barbers who had trouble with male customers looking at themselves in the mirror while getting their hair cut. I have to tell you this one:

I was one of many barbers at the Fort Lewis Army camp during World War II. An Army officer came in for a trim, and insisted on having a mirror in his hand so he could supervise the barber. We had no small mirrors, bu the officer insisted. So, finally, "Curly" (the barber - who wore a toupee) took the large mirror off the wall, handed it to the officer, and left for the

What helps restless legs syndrome?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is restless legs syndrome? What can I do to stop this torture?

DEAR READER: Largely unrecognized by the medical profession, restless legs syndrome is a condition marked by irresistible leg movements associated with a painless, creeping sensation deep in the lower extremities.

The affliction primarily affects men and women over 60; more than B percent of the adult population may experience RLS. Symptoms typically occur at night or during periods of inactivity. Thus, recreational activities and sleep may be disrupted.

The intensity of the muscular jerking varies. Some people experience occasional problems loften preceded by several minutes of an "unsettled" feeling in the legs), which can be relieved by walking or rubbing the lega. Such mild symptoms rarely interfere with sleep.

On the other hand, most patients are extremely bothered by the crawling sensations and twitches, which occur with regularity, at intervals of about 30 seconds, forcing these patients to move their legs vigorously or get out of bed. This incessant sleep disruption leads to fallgue and severe emotional disturbances.

In fact, RLS is a major cause of marital difficulties (because the bed partner is affected, too) and depression. Patients with advanced manifestations of RLS may contemplate suicide.

The disorder is frequently worsened by smoking, calleine, a warm environment or prolonged exposure to cold. RLS may be associated with pregnancy, anemia, rheumatoid arthritis, diabetes, kidney failure, emphysema, leukemia, drug withdrawal (from tranquilizers, anti-depressants and sleeping pills), and a number of muscle and nerve disorders (including amyloidosis and fibromyositis).

In contrast, the majority of patients with RLS have no recognizable, underlying disease. There are no laboratory tests to confirm the diagnosis. Rather, RLS is suspected in patients who describe the characteristic

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Outside a London nightelub. there was a poster proclaiming: "Six beautiful dancing girls! Five beautiful costumes!

There is a bridge equivalent to this: the revealing pre-emptive bid. Suppose you have a twoway guess for a queen. If an opponent has opened with a high-level pre-empt, your natural reaction is to play his partner for the queen. But sometimes you don't need to guess, you can find out — as in today's deal.

West leads the heart king: four, ace, three, East returns the heart five: eight, 10, n/ne. Now West switches to the club jack: queen, ace, seven. Back comes the club six, which South carefully ruffs high.

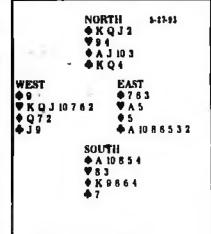

After drawing trumps, South has to find the diamond queen. The computer knows that if he has nine cards missing the queen, the a priori percentage play is to cash the acc and king. When the queen doesn't drop, he complains about bad luck.

The robot assumes that, because West pre-empted, East must have the diamond queen. He cashes dummy's ace and leads the jack, preparing to finesse, but East's diseard puts paid to the plan.

The bridge player tries to get a complete count of the hand. After drawing trumps, he cashes dummy's club king, discarding a diamond. When West falls to follow suit, South knows that West started with one spade, two clubs and at least six hearts. probably seven. This means he must have three or four diamonds.

Smilingly inwardly, South plays the diamond tack to his king and leads the diamond nine, finessing when West plays
