Local cops join torch run

SANFORD — Runners involved in the third annual Alamo Torch Run came through the Sanford area this morning. Heading south on U.S. Highway 17-92, they were about one hour behind.

A number of local runners joined the regulars during their travels through the Sanford area, including members of the Sanford Police Department. The local runners were Lt. Bill Hasson, Lt. Ralph Russell and Sgt. Ray Bronson.

The run started in Miami last Friday, with a route that took it north to Daytona Beach, and is now taking it southwest to Bradenton. At that point, the torch carried by the runners will light the flames dedicating the start of the 1991 Sunshine State Games. The run, based on ancient Roman tradition, went from the site of last year's games, to this year's location at Manatee High School's Hawkins Stadium. The total trip for the runners was estimated at 480 miles.

Snake amazes zoo visitors

SAN DIEGO — Thelma and Louise are being held at the San Diego Zoo.

But they're being well cared for; they get four mice a month — and plenty of visitors.

Thelma and Louise are the names given to a rare two-headed female corn snake at the zoo's Klauber-Shaw Reptile House. The 3½-foot-long snake is connected just behind the heads to only one body.

The heads have identical markings. The right head is the one with the appetite. It seems to be the only one to eat the twice-monthly meals of two full-grown mice.

"We have not seen the left head eat, but the fellow we got it from says it also eats on occasion," zoo spokeswoman Georgeanne Irvine said Monday.

The 4½-year-old non-poisonous snake was acquired in late March from a breeder on the East Coast, where corn snakes are native, Irvine said. It is rare to find snakes with two heads, however, and it is doubtful Thelma and Louise could survive in the wild.

Escaped ape invades home

LARGO, Fla. — An escaped ape got into a neighbor's house, terrorized the homeowners, ran after their dogs and left the place a mess.

The 3-foot Celebes ape named Roscoe escaped Sunday from its cage a few streets away and entered Shirley and Norton Craig's home.

"It just blew by me," said Craig. "He was a mean-looking thing. He looked like King Kong in miniature."

By the time police arrived, Roscoe was racing from the mantle to chairtops to behind the TV and to any other place that seemed safe.

Wildlife Rescue director Vernon Yates corralled the ape behind an aquarium.

"I just walked over, grabbed him by the arm and walked him out of the house," Yates said. "Then I said, 'OK, guy, you're under arrest.'"

Owner Rosemarie Dinardi, who has a license for the ape, said he's never gotten away before.

"He's such a nice little guy," she said. "He's not vicious at all."

1-cent road tax OK'd

Seminole County officials were elated that the sales tax won voters approval. Commissioners Jennifer Kelley and Fred Streetman, county manager Ron Rabun, and commissioner Bob Sturm express their sentiment during the vote count last night.

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — The widening of Sanford Avenue, County Road 46-A, Rinehart Road and other county roads can begin on time during the next five years with the nearly $30 million per year generated by a seventh cent added to Seminole County's sales tax by voters Tuesday.

Seminole County officials were pleased with the resounding support voters gave the 10-year sales tax increase, which will begin Oct. 1. With all 95 precincts reporting, 12,436 people voted for the tax and 8,260 people voted against it, for a 60.1 to 39.9 percent winning edge.

The margin held fairly close to a 60-40 split throughout the evening after polls closed at 7 p.m. and ballots began arriving at the county elections office in Sanford, suggesting all areas of the county supported the tax by a 20 percent margin.

County commission chairman Fred Streetman, a tax supporter, said voters responded both to the need for road improvements and the knowledge the county had few options except the tax or property taxes.

"Any intelligent person would have to recognize that we have an enormous transportation problem in Seminole County," Streetman said. "And those persons would also have to recognize the tremendous cost to accomplish the improvements needed to solve those problems and that we have exhausted all other available revenues except property taxes."

Commissioner Larry Furlong, who opposed the tax, agreed with Streetman.

"The voters obviously believed there would be a property tax increase if they didn't vote for it," Furlong said. "When people vote under duress, See Tax, Page 5A"

Lone bandit strikes bank in Longwood

By NICK PFIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The First F.A. Bank, 2491 S.R. 434 in the Springs Plaza of Longwood was robbed yesterday. A lone bandit struck the bank during daylight hours and got away with an undetermined amount of money.

According to a report from bank branch manager Debra Carpenter, the robber was described as a white male, wearing black pants, a green raincoat, and white tennis shoes. He was said to be wearing a tan ski mask which covered his face.

Zed Layson, Director of Security for the First F.A. said, according to what he has determined, "The man came into the bank from the rear door, on the north. He jumped over the counter and told the teller to give him the money." Layson said the man did not appear angry, and was relatively calm during the robbery.

Layson was not in the bank building during the actual robbery. He said however that as far as he knew, there were no other customers in the bank at the time of the incident.

Carpenter told officers the man was carrying a semi-automatic handgun during the entire robbery.

Layson continued, "He didn't ask to be given the money, he took it himself, just demanding that the teller drawers be opened." He said, "He took money from three places, two tellers and the drive-in teller area."

After obtaining the money, the man reportedly jumped back over

LONGWOOD — Longwood's first work session on next year's budget ended with very little changes from the present year. The second session is set for tomorrow night.

The main budget areas brought up for discussion among Longwood City Commissioners and the various department heads Monday night were presentations by the fire department, police department, city administrator and city clerk. Also added at the last minute was the suggested budgetary requirements for the City Commissioners. According to City Clerk Geri Zambri, "The only area where some cuts were made in the budget involved the actual commissioners' budget." She said one of these involved the SANFORD — There was a day when the guys in the vocational classes were hidden in the back of the school in dirty clothes, reconstructing an old car and everyone everyone was surprised if they graduated.

Today, not only are they able to rebuild an engine, they're well-versed in computer technology and they can write English papers as well.

And, many of them go on to study at post-secondary institutions.

"Vocational students are well-rounded," said Joe Williams, chairman of the Seminole County school board and a home furnishings/reupholstery instructor at Seminole Community College.

"Starting in the elementary schools, youngsters who want to pursue a vocational career are going to be prepared for their careers with classes in their job area and in academics."

Williams said that the Blueprint for Career Education, developed by Betty Castor, commissioner of education and a committee of vocational experts, is being implemented on a pilot basis in several Florida counties, including Seminole and at some junior colleges statewide, including SCC.

Students at Altamonte Elementary School, Milwee Middle School and Lyman High School in Altamonte Springs who are interested in a vocational career are encouraged to pursue a course of study that integrates both the career path that SANFORD — The highly touted flying trips from Sanford to Paradise Island in the Bahamas have stopped. There are hopes however that problems which caused the cancellation will soon be overcome.

The hold-up on the flights reportedly is caused by a lack of a sufficient rate of return to persons financing the operation of the aircraft.

Airport Director Steve Cooke said today: "It costs approximately $6,000 per day to operate that particular 4-engine aircraft." Cooke said

Battery warrant served

Tracy Loretta Major, 23, of 1212 Randolph St., in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday morning. She was charged on an outstanding battery warrant.

Major turned herself in to Sanford Police officers at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. She was being held on $1,000 bond.

Cocaine possession charged

Rodney Allen Waters, 24, 409 Tangelo Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Seminole County deputies Monday and charged with possession of cocaine.

Deputies report seeing Waters near Airport Boulevard and Hughey Street at about 8 p.m. Reports state he fled when deputies approached him. They caught him once but he fled again, reports state. When they caught him a second time, deputies report finding four pieces of rock cocaine. Waters was charged with possession of cocaine, loitering in a known drug area and resisting arrest.

He was taken to the Seminole County jail.

Man transported to jail for loitering

Paul Thomas Province, 26, 301 Oakland Ave., Sanford, was charged with drug-related loitering and resisting arrest by Seminole County deputies Monday night.

Deputies report seeing Province standing by a car talking to another man when they approached. When they approached, Province got in his car and drove a distance with his headlights off, deputies report. When he was stopped, Province acted nervous and gave deputies false name, they reported. He was taken to the Seminole County jail.

DUI arrest

William Berkley Nicholson, 23, 1285 S. Eastlake, Longwood, was charged with drunken driving by Lake Mary police Monday morning.

A policeman reports seeing Nicholson weaving and speeding up to 85 m.p.h. on Rinehart Road in a 40 m.p.h. zone. Nicholson was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, speeding and failure to maintain a single lane.

Outstanding warrant arrests

The following fugitives have been taken into custody:

Kirk family gives land to Sanford

By MARK FERRARI
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The amount of property owned by the city has increased. The City Commission has accepted a gift of land in the South Pinecrest subdivision area, donated by the W.L. Kirk family.

The land, a total of 16.812 acres, is located south of and adjacent to the presently owned Jenkins Circle Park. It will eventually front on the expressway when it is constructed.

In offering the land to the city, W.L. Kirk Jr. wrote that his family members have been long-time supporters of Sanford and Seminole County. "Both of us received all our elementary and secondary schooling in Sanford, and our parents are still supporters and residents of Sanford," Kirk, an attorney, is with the firm of Rumberger, Kirk, Caldwell, Cabanis, Burke & Wechsler, with offices in Orlando, Miami and Tallahassee.

Parks Director Jim Jernigan said no specific use has been determined for the area at the present time. "Because of its location right next to Jenkins Circle Park," he said, "it will probably be used in our park system." Jernigan said however that because the land was naturally low, it would not be suitable for any construction. "We might put some nature trails up, or use it in some other way," he said.

Jenkins Circle Park, adjacent to the Kirk property, contains a tennis court, basketball court and children's swings. "We consider it a neighborhood park," Jernigan said.

Phony $20 at taco stand nets suspect

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — An allegedly phony $20 bill passed at a taco stand in a Florida mall led to the arrest of a Richmond-area man on counterfeit charges, federal officials said.

Federal agents Tuesday arrested Robert C. "Chris" Behr, 25, of Mechanicsville, and charged him with the transfer of counterfeit currency.

According to authorities, a teen-age clerk at a Jacksonville mall became suspicious of a $20 bill used by a customer to pay for her food Friday. The clerk alerted police who arrested the woman.

When police looked inside Pamela Boshers' purse, they found $1,000 in allegedly counterfeit bills. Ma. Boshers said she had gotten the money from her brother, Jeffrey Boshers of Jacksonville.

Secret Service agents raided Boshers' apartment where they found $165,000 in allegedly bogus bills. Boshers then led agents to where he had buried another $350,000 to $400,000 of the bills. Another $75,000 was recovered from a public storage facility.

Boshers told agents that all the money came from Behr, his cousin.

According to federal officials, Behr printed the bogus bills at his parents' Henrico County printing shop, Fidelity Printing Inc., without his parents' knowledge. Agents said in court documents that Behr was assisted by his brother, Ed.

According to court documents, Robert Behr brought about $650,000 in bills to Florida in January where he gave them to Boshers to distribute. Boshers told the agents that he agreed to split the profits 50-50 with Robert Behr.

Robert Behr was released on his own recognizance Tuesday. If convicted, he faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Area prepares to see eclipse

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

While we may not be able to observe the total eclipse of the sun tomorrow afternoon here in Seminole County, there are at least a few people who will be making preparations to see as much of it as possible.

Youngsters who are involved in summer classes at the Environmental Study Center in Longwood will be converting shoe boxes into primitive observation devices.

"We won't be in session during the time of the eclipse," said Pat Burkette, a coordinator at the center, "but we want to make sure the students have a safe way of looking at the sun."

The eclipse is expected to begin at about 2:40 p.m. and will end by 4:51 p.m.

In Seminole County, there will be only about 43 percent coverage of the sun by the moon.

"It is still a pretty rare sight," Burkette said, noting that the youngsters will learn about the astronomical phenomenon during their morning classes tomorrow.

None of the branches of the Seminole County library are planning observation parties, according to spokesmen for the branches, but they have set aside reading material about the eclipse for patrons to learn about it before they set out on their celestial observations.

The libraries are unable to provide the materials needed to construct safe viewing devices for the eclipse and they suggest that potential viewers construct a pinhole projector before attempting to look toward the sun.

Mexico-U.S. team to view total eclipse with a rocket

By LEON S. LAZAROFF
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY — Scientists from Mexico and Florida plan to send a 12-foot rocket 50 miles above the earth in the midst of Thursday's total eclipse of the sun in order to better study that fiery star.

Instruments aboard the rocket are designed to record information about the sun's size and intensity and the mysterious particles that surround it, regardless of weather conditions on earth.

The eclipse gives scientists a chance to study activity on the sun's edges that is normally difficult to see due to the sun's overpowering rays.

Guillermo Falcon, director of the Nayarit Eclipse Commission, said that when the rocket blasts off at 12:04 p.m. Thursday, the sun will be at a 90 degree angle above the town of Santiago Ixcuintla, the spot on earth where the eclipse will last longest.

While no formal presentations are being planned at Seminole Community College's recently-opened planetarium during the eclipse, the facility has talked about the phenomenon in recent Lighthearted Astronomer presentations.

The Lighthearted Astronomer is a guide to the constellations that is presented each Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the planetarium.

"For six minutes and 58 seconds, we will be at the geographical center of the eclipse," he said. "It's an extraordinary opportunity to view this magnificent event."

The launch site is about 3 miles outside Santiago Ixcuintla, some 450 miles northwest of Mexico City.

Aboard the rocket, an imaging radiometer will transmit data on what scientists call the "dust" surrounding the sun. Falcon said scientists are not sure why these particles appear to be neither attracted nor repelled by the sun.

The rocket, initially propelled at more than 3,600 mph, will drop its spent motor after the first mile and the instrument payload will continue unassisted to an elevation more than 50 miles above sea level.

The payload will then float to the sea by parachute and be picked up by one of two frigates that will await its return.

For formal instruction on how to safely view the eclipse and for discussions on the phenomenon with astronomers, Seminole County residents will have to travel into Orange County to the John Young Planetarium in the Loch Haven complex in Orlando.

"I think a lot of people just have always gone over there for this sort of thing," Burkett noted. "It's not that far."

First deadly case of encephalitis reported

ATLANTIC BEACH — A 70-year-old Atlantic Beach man who died of mosquito-borne equine encephalitis was one of only two people in the state known to be infected by the disease in Florida this year.

The man, whose name was not released, is the first human to die of Eastern equine encephalitis since last summer when a Massachusetts man died, said Duane Gubler of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The disease usually affects horses. It has been diagnosed in about 100 horses in Florida and Georgia this year and is usually fatal in horses.

The disease is unrelated to St. Louis encephalitis, a mosquito-carried disease that killed 11 people in Florida last year.

The man was diagnosed with the disease between June 18 and June 20 and died Tuesday afternoon, said Delores Unsicker, a spokeswoman for the Duval County Health Unit.

She said officials don't know if the man contracted the disease in Atlantic Beach or elsewhere. Confidentiality rules, she said, prevented her from releasing the man's name or where he was hospitalized.

"People should be concerned about mosquitoes no matter where they are," she said.

Health officials issued a medical alert in Duval County last week after learning a 70-year-old Bradford County man had the disease. That man is recovering.

Symptoms include acute headaches, stiff neck, high fever and drowsiness. All age groups are vulnerable, Gubler said.

"When humans get infected, they become seriously ill, and fatalities are not uncommon," Gubler said.

Health officials have suggested people wear protective clothing and insect repellent to keep mosquitoes away. The mosquitoes are most active at dawn and dusk around wooded and swampy areas.

Changing face, lingering stigma of voc-ed

EDITOR'S NOTE - American vocational education has moved far beyond auto shop. The best schools prepare students for high-tech careers - and college - but deep-seated image problems remain. This story details the changing face of voc-ed, and a sweeping federal mandate for change that takes effect this week.

Law aims at voc-ed schools

Associated Press

Here are highlights of the $957 million Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Act Amendments of 1990, which took effect July 1.

• Bigger federal grants to fewer schools. Raises minimum federal vocational grants from $6,000 to $15,000 for secondary schools, and $60,000 for higher education.

• More money to the poorest schools. Boosts the share of money for schools with large numbers of handicapped, poor, and students with limited English. Seventy-five percent of the federal grants will go to such schools, up from 57 percent in the original 1984 Perkins Act.

• New accountability. Requires states to implement new performance standards in basic and advanced vocational skills or risk losing federal grants. Requires states to assess existing vo-tech programs to ensure that they include solid academics along with vocational training. Earmarks $64 million to fund "Tech Prep" programs aimed at preparing vo-tech students with enough liberal arts and basic academics to enable them to succeed in either college or the job market.

Denise Stearns, a 9th grade English teacher, instructs students including Darion White in computer skills at Seminole High School.

have chosen and practical applications of academic pursuits. "Some vocational students don't see the point in analyzing Shakespeare," Sylvester Chang, owner of Sanford Mobile and an ardent supporter of the Blueprint concept. "They have to learn to write well, though. They can learn how they must use writing even in a vocational career."

Ellis King, an auto mechanics instructor at Lyman, said that his students have evolved over the years. "They walk around with computer software instead of wrenches," he said recently, with a laugh.

Auto mechanics must understand computer technology to repair the complicated computerized engines of today's cars. The Blueprint encourages students to not only finish high school, but to go on to post-secondary studies at the community college or trade school level.

These students must be prepared for the real world. And that includes more than just learning auto mechanics.

-Instructor Mark Davis

The decision was made to eliminate the courses. "That certainly does not mean that we are abandoning our vocational programs." Indeed, vocational programs in auto and boat mechanics, criminal sciences and firefighting techniques remain staples of the school's curriculum.

The auto mechanics program, sponsored by the Ford Motor Company, provides students with training on factory-new vehicles and helps place them in jobs at local auto dealerships or on-the-job training while they are still in school.

The aspiring mechanics are required to take courses in written communication, computers and mathematics in order to complete their associates degree. "These students must be prepared for the real world," instructor Mark Davis said of his students. "And that includes more than just learning auto mechanics."

Williams has been a strong proponent of Castor's Blueprint since its inception two years ago and has encouraged all Seminole County schools, not just those involved in the pilot programs to encourage the basic skills of reading and writing and mathematics for all their vocational students.

"I think we need to do this in our schools," he noted. The face of vocational studies is changing in another respect: more and more females are choosing careers formerly reserved for males.

"I'd say that in traditionally male careers like auto mechanics only about 10 percent of the students are girls, but that is a big change," said Betty Hogle, director of vocational education for the school district noted.

The vocational classes are changing in Seminole County and many agree it is for the best. "I like what is happening," Chang said. "It's going well."

basic academic and occupational skills.

Perhaps most notably, the law earmarks $64 million to encourage further development of "tech-prep" collaborative programs - already under way in some 40 states - aimed at encouraging vocational schools to improve the academic preparation of pupils and develop partnerships with community and four-year colleges. "In Western Civilization, too often there is a separation between how you use your mind and your body," Perkins could go a long way toward making these schools meaningful, by showing how what you learn can be useful," said John Wirt, a former director of the National Assessment of Vocational Education, who now works for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Vocational enrollments dropped in 31 states from 1982 to 1989, according to unpublished new data from the National Center for Research in Vocational Education, a research arm of the U.S. Education Department. More significantly, enrollments in 18 of those states have dropped faster than high school enrollments as a whole. Central to the decline is a debilitating image problem, vocational educators themselves admit. In the decade-long voc-ed enrollment slide, it's hard to say which state fared worst because of differences in the way states keep data. But Pennsylvania certainly was among them, plunging 37.8 percent from 1984-89.

What's happened in Pennsylvania mirrors the challenges facing vocational schools everywhere, said Ferman Moody, director of the state's bureau of vocational, technical and adult education. The half-day arrangement forces voc-ed students to attend academic high schools, where they feel stigmatized, Moody said. "A lot of guidance counselors still see voc schools as schools for 'dummies,' or for kids who are somehow handicapped. Fifty-four percent of students in our 87 schools are considered 'special needs,' with either mental, physical impairment, or economically or educationally disadvantaged, or reading below grade level," Moody said.

"But 91 percent of our graduates either get jobs, go to college or enter the military service. The public never really understood that," he said. And students themselves seem to agree: Enrollments in many districts have been slumping for nearly a decade. This month, a federal law takes effect that some say offers the best hope in years of encouraging the spread of desperately needed reforms in voc-ed. The $956 million Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Act Amendments give states two years to devise performance measures of vo-tech schools in areas including graduation rates and mastery of

Schooling at home: a controversial trend gains favor

By MARY ESCH
Associated Press

EAST CHATHAM, N.Y. - School is never out for Ben Rockmuller and Emily Houk.

"They keep right on going. Learning is a way of life for them," says Katharine Houk, the children's mother. Houk and her husband, Seth Rockmuller, are among a small but fast-growing group of parents who have decided to teach their children at home rather than send them to public or private schools.

"I don't think it's a major trend in society," Rockmuller says. "But there are a lot of people who just really like their kids and want to spend time with them. They feel they know what's best for them."

By some estimates, the number of children being taught by their parents at home has increased as much as fivefold in the past five years. It's a trend that home schoolers welcome, saying they're gaining credibility and expanding their support network.

But groups representing schools and teachers say it's a dangerous trend for the children involved and for society in general. About 46 million students are enrolled in the nation's public schools, but there are varying estimates of how many are educated at home. Catholic University Professor Patricia Lines, in research for the U.S. Department of Education, estimated that roughly 250,000 to 360,000 children were home-schooled in the 1990-91 school year. That compares to about 10,000 to 15,000 in the late 1970s and about 122,000 to 244,000 in 1985, she says.

Home-schooling advocacy groups put the number closer to 500,000 for the past school year. Thomas A. Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association, calls the trend, "a giant step backward into the 17th century."

"We are very concerned that many parents who think they are qualified to teach their youngsters, simply are not," Shannon says. "The youngsters are getting shortchanged. ... Society ultimately has to pay for any mistakes, not to mention the loss of a child who might otherwise have made a maximum contribution."

But home schoolers say the quality of education they provide is often better than that available from schools. They list benefits such as instruction styles tailored to the child's needs; a strong family bond; lack of negative peer influences and avoidance of the "burnout" often seen in later elementary grades.

As for academic achievement, they point to high test scores and home schoolers who have gone on to college, such as the sons of David and Micki Colfax. The Colfax's, authors of "Home schooling for Excellence," taught their children at their Northern California ranch. Their three oldest sons went on to Harvard University, and one is now in Harvard Medical School.

State affiliates of the National School Boards Association and the National Education Association, a teachers' group, have lobbied for laws to restrict home schooling.

Zoo to host Black Tie on the Wild Side

By NICK PFERLAUF
Herald Staff Writer

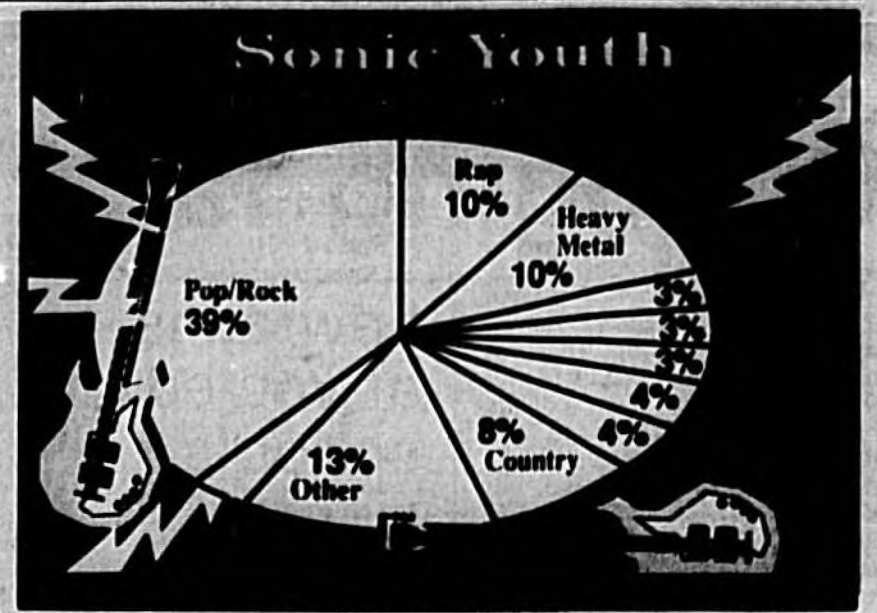

SANFORD — Officials from the Central Florida Zoological Society in Sanford, will be having a ball this Saturday. It's the second annual Black Tie on the Wild Side affair, at Walt Disney World's Dolphin Hotel.

Special guest of the event for the second consecutive year, is Jack Hanna, a long time friend and former director of the Central Florida Zoo. Hanna, who has made guest appearances on many nationally televised talk shows, is presently director of the Columbus Zoological Gardens in Ohio.

Entertainment during this second annual fundraising event will include cocktails, a silent auction, dinner and dancing.

Dress for the occasion is formal, but guests are encouraged to accentuate their formal attire with safari and animal related themes.

The cost for the Black Tie on the Wild Side event is $100 per person. Corporate table sponsorships are available for $1500. For information, contact the Central Florida Zoological Park, 323-4450.

Free bus outings scheduled for area disadvantaged youth

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Disadvantaged youth from Goldsboro and Midway may have an exciting summer thanks to Tri-County Transit.

Beginning July 13, Tri-County Transit will begin "Super Saturday" every weekend throughout the summer. Each Saturday, 30 kids from Midway and Goldsboro, along with 30 children from Winwood, will be taken, without charge, to area attractions.

This week, the kids will be taken to Discovery Island at Walt Disney World, said Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley, the county's representative on the Tri-County governing board. The students, selected from the Boys and Girls Club of Seminole County, will also receive free lunches, courtesy of Burger King, Kelley said.

Kelley said future Super Saturday trips will include the Central Florida Zoological Park and Loch Haven Park.

Southern Bell wants to keep overpayment

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet agreed Tuesday that Attorney General Bob Butterworth should intervene in a case before state utility regulators involving an $80 million overpayment to Southern Bell.

In the case before the Public Service Commission, Southern Bell wants to use the $80 million overpayment to improve its fiber optic network, the attorney general said.

Butterworth said the money should be returned to customers. Failing that, its fate should be decided by the Legislature, which is the branch of government that appropriates money, he said.

"This is not ... Southern Bell's money; it's not the PSC's money," Butterworth said. "It's the ratepayers' money."

Spero Canton, a Miami spokesman for Southern Bell, agreed that the money did not belong to the telephone company, which has some 3.7 million customers along Florida's Atlantic coast, in parts of Central Florida and the Panhandle.

Canton, however, said he thought Butterworth's opposition was premature since the utility has yet to propose specific programs it wants to spend the money on.

FPL scraps eight percent of workforce

Associated Press

MIAMI — Florida Power & Light Co. said Tuesday it has eliminated 1,500 positions, or about 8 percent of its workforce, as part of a sweeping corporate restructuring.

FPL, the state's largest electric utility, is offering employees affected by the cutbacks a severance package that includes up to one-year's pay and career counseling. Some employees have been offered other jobs within the company.

About 1,400 workers have received voluntary severance packages.

"The total number of employees leaving the company will not be known until the internal job placement is completed," FPL President Stephen Frank said in a statement.

Miami-based FPL eliminated the slots after a review of about half of its positions beginning in October 1990, company spokesman Bill Swank said. A review of the remainder of the company's workforce will be completed by early 1992.

The company had 19,600 workers when the review began.

Swank said the reductions affected the company's workforce throughout the 35 counties it serves, primarily in South Florida.

The company said the job reductions were not the primary objective in its corporate reorganization.

"We are taking these actions to better enable us to anticipate and satisfy our customers' needs," company chief executive James Broadhead said in a news release.

Versatile dried beans source of protein, mix well with rice

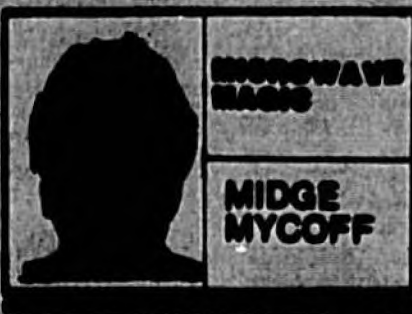

Dried beans are a mainstay of many regional and ethnic cuisines. The beans are a source of protein and mix well with rice and other vegetables. Soups, salads and main dishes can be made from this versatile food stuff.

The microwave hastens the preparation time if the beans have not been pre-soaked. This rule will generally reconstitute the dried beans and pre-cook them for most recipes.

One cup dried beans (black, pinto, kidney, lima) placed in a 3 qt. casserole, add 2 cups water. Cover tightly. Microwave on 100% power 8 minutes or until boiling. Stir. Reduce power to 50%, microwave for 2-3 minutes. Allow to stand for 1 hour, covered. Drain. The beans are ready to be used in recipes.

When it comes to complementary proteins, beans and rice are about as good as one can get. This simple, spicy dish is the perfect reason to keep both on hand. There is no fat in this recipe. This is a traditional Monday supper in New Orleans.

RED BEANS AND RICE
 2 cups chopped onions
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 1 bay leaf
 1/4 C. ground red pepper
 2 medium tomatoes, diced, or 1 (14 oz.) can tomatoes, drained and chopped
 1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
 1/4 tsp. Tabasco sauce, or to taste
 3 cups cooked red kidney beans
 Water, if needed
 Salt to taste
 3 cups hot cooked rice
 3 Tbsp. chopped cilantro
 Chopped red onion
 Olive oil

MIDGE MYCOFF
 MICROWAVE RECIPE

Red pepper vinegar (optional)
 In a 5 qt. microwave casserole, combine the onions, garlic, bay leaf, red pepper, tomatoes, Worcestershire and Tabasco sauces. Cover tightly with lid or vented plastic wrap. Microwave on 100% power 4-6 minutes. Stir in the beans. Recover and microwave on 50% power for 18-24 minutes, stirring after 10 minutes, or until the beans are soft and the mixture has thickened. Add more water if necessary. Let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. Remove bay leaf.

Serve the beans on a bed of rice. Garnish with chopped cilantro. A small bowl of chopped onion and cruet of olive oil and red pepper vinegar may be passed to be added to taste, if desired.

Steaming bowls of bean soup are welcome anytime. The kind of beans you use, I suppose, depends on your ethnic background or the region from which you came. My mother made wonderful bean soup using large limas and ham.

Use dried, reconstituted beans or the canned ones for this bean soup.

GARBANZO BEAN SOUP
 2 1-pound cans garbanzo beans (chick peas), drained
 1 1/4 qts. water

4 onions, finely chopped
 1 ham hock
 4 med. baking potatoes, cut into cubes
 2 pieces saffron, crumbled
 1 tsp. salt
 1 tsp. pepper
 Place water in a 4-quart casserole with a lid. Add ham hock, onions, potatoes, salt and pepper. Microwave on 100% power for 20 minutes. Reduce to 50% power and microwave for 10-15 minutes or until potatoes can be pierced with a fork easily. Stir in garbanzo beans and allow to stand covered. 15-20 minutes before serving. Flavora are enhanced if allowed to stand overnight in the refrigerator.

A marinated bean salad is ideal for a light lunch entree or for part of a picnic.

KEY LIME SPECKLED BUTTER BEANS
 1 cup dried speckled butter beans, cooked
 1/2 cup chopped red onion
 1/4 cup bottled Key Lime juice or fresh lime juice
 3 Tbsp. olive oil
 3 Tbsp. chopped parsley
 1 tsp. dried thyme
 1 tsp. salt
 1/4 tsp. crushed red pepper

In a medium mixing bowl, combine all the ingredients, stirring well to blend. Cover and refrigerate for at least 3 hours. Stir again before serving. Adjust the seasoning if necessary.

Red kidney beans or white beans can also be used or a mixture of the beans.

Barbecued ribs made for summer

By Aileen Claire
 NEA Food Editor

What is one of America's favorite summer meals? You guessed it, barbecued ribs.

In fact, nearly 70 percent of all ribs prepared during the summer months are barbecued, according to the Barbecue Industry Association. It's a toss-up between pork or beef ribs, but either selection provides a crispy, crusty treat when grilled over the coals.

Beef ribs may be marinated 15 minutes to two hours before grilling, but this is not really necessary. The marinade is also succulent when it is brushed on the meaty ribs during cooking.

If the sauce has a high sugar content (with use of honey or brown sugar) or contains other ingredients that might burn easily, brush the sauce on only during the last 20 minutes of grilling. And for safer eating, always reheat leftover sauce to boiling before serving.

Ribs may be partially cooked inside heavy aluminum foil packets on the grill (to render out fat) and then finished directly over the coals.

Since the coals remain hot for some time, a good way to save money is to grill other meats and chicken, bake potatoes and roast ears of corn (to be refrigerated or frozen and reheated or microwaved for future meals).

BARBECUED BEEF BACK RIBS

7 pounds beef back ribs
 1 large onion, minced
 1 clove garlic, minced
 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
 3/4 cup ketchup
 1/4 cup each brown sugar, chili sauce, vinegar and water
 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika

1 teaspoon salt
 1/2-3/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
 To cook beef back ribs in a covered grill using indirect heat, arrange coals on either side of grill. Place a drip pan between the coals. When coals are ash gray (after about 30 minutes), place ribs, meat side up, on grid above the drip pan. Cover cooker. Cook ribs 45 to 60 minutes or until tender.

Meanwhile, cook onion and garlic in oil in medium saucepan 3 to 4 minutes. Add ketchup, brown sugar, chili sauce, vinegar, water, Worcestershire sauce, paprika, salt and hot pepper sauce. Bring to a boil; reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, 30 to 40 minutes or until thickened, stirring occasionally. Brush meat side of ribs generously with sauce the last 20 minutes of cooking time, and continue cooking ribs for 10 minutes, covered. Reheat sauce to boiling and serve with ribs. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 to 10 servings.

Direct Heat Method: Place each slab of ribs, meat side down, in center of a double-thick rectangle of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons water over each slab. To form packets, bring two opposite sides of foil together over top of ribs. Fold edges over 3 to 4 times, pressing crease in tightly each time. (Allow some air space.) Flatten foil at one end, crease to form triangle and fold edge over several times toward triangle and fold edge over several times toward triangle on other end. Place packets on grid directly over low to medium coals.

Place cover on cooker or cook on open grill 1 1/2 hours, turning packets every 1/2 hour. Remove ribs from foil packets. Place on grid over low to medium coals. Broil 30 minutes, turning occasionally. Brush sauce over ribs generously and continue broiling 10 to 12 minutes, turning several times and using all of the sauce.

White cell count signals infection

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about lymphocytosis and leukocytosis?

DEAR READER: Lymphocytes and leukocytes are the white blood cells whose primary role is fighting infection. Therefore, in the presence of infection the number of these cells increases in the bloodstream. Lymphocytosis is a lymphocyte count that exceeds the normal range (3,000 cells per cubic milliliter of blood). This is commonly seen in viral infections, such as flu and mononucleosis. Once the infection disappears, so does the lymphocytosis.

Leukocytosis is a leukocyte count that is higher than normal (about 10,000 cells per cubic millimeter of blood). Leukocytosis usually accompanies bacterial infections, such as strep or staph. When the infection is brought under control, the leukocyte count falls to normal.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 53 and haven't experienced a menstrual cycle in about a year. I'm plagued with hot flashes, some worse than others. Will they fade in time, or should I go for the treatment that I can't afford so I can function better during this inconvenient time?

DEAR READER: You seem to be experiencing menopause. Hot flashes (due to vascular instability) may be only part of your symptoms, which can also include moodiness, emotional swings, vaginal dryness and other physical changes. There is no hard and fast rule about how long the symptoms of menopause will last. Some women are troubled for a few weeks (if at all), while other women suffer disabling symptoms for years. Whether you should see a doctor for your hot flashes — or wait them out — depends on

WIN A

By Phillip Alder
In addition to card sense, an attribute that sets an expert apart from lesser mortals is visualization. In his mind's eye, an expert can see where the other cards must lie. For example, he can make things difficult for a declarer in an apparently easy contract.
Mask the East-West cards in today's diagram, and decide how you would play in four spades against the lead of the club king.
There are two obvious losers: a club and a diamond. The only problem, therefore, revolves around the trump suit. You can afford one loser, but not two.
Clearly, if the spades are dividing 3-2, you will have no trouble. You can cash out the ace, king and another spade, and claim. But what if the trumps are 4-1? Then some care is required. If West has four, in-

HOROSCOPES

By Bernice Bede Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 11, 1991
Several new acquaintances will help expand your range of interests in the year ahead. Consequently, there are indications you may get involved in exciting areas where you never previously ventured.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone with whom you're closely involved might be very difficult to motivate today. It's best you proceed alone rather than wait for this individual to get into gear. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your chances for achieving your objectives look good today. But the desired results could be late in coming, thanks to the roundabout way you'll do things.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone who doesn't fit in with the rest of your friends may be on the list for an activity you've planned today. It may be best for all concerned not to include this individual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ambition is likely to permeate your being today, and you may reach out for something you previously felt was beyond your grasp. It isn't — if you're bold enough to try.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you'll be able to handle weighty matters with relative ease today, your companions may not. Don't make them feel uneasy; allow them time to sort things out.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may have an opportunity to profit through another today — if you don't get cold feet just because the endeavor is more complex than what you're accustomed to.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to make a sound decision today, you must have adequate time to carefully weigh and balance all your alternatives. If you move too hastily, you could be sorry.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may have to deal with someone today who you feel has treated you a bit shabbily in the past. Operate in accordance with your standards, not this individual's.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're reasonably safe today in taking chances on things that have been carefully thought out. However, shot-in-the-dark gambles should be avoided at all cost.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do what you believe is right today, and don't be overly sensitive regarding what another may think about your actions. It's only important that you know your motives are pure.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll receive the type of cooperation necessary to execute your plans today, provided you present them in a straightforward, easy-to-understand manner. Don't embellish facts.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're prepared to earn what you get, you should be able to find ways to add to your resources today. Don't waste time thinking about dividends to which you're not entitled.
