DOES Set Fund *Drive For Salk Institute

The Sanford Does Drove No 160, has accepted the sponsorship of the Seminole campaign to raise funds to build and equip the Salk Institute for Biological Studies. The Institute will be directed by Dr. Jonas Salk.

The appointment was announced by John Sauls, chairman of the Seminole chapter of the National Foundation-March of Dimes which is sponsoring a nationwide appeal for the Institute from June 1-15.

The Institute is being built at San Diego, Calif., on a site donated by vote of the city residents. It will provide facilities in which many of the world's most eminent scientists will study the elemental processes of life.

Coming from many different parts of the world, these scientists will be working in a laboratory of life from which can come knowledge and discoveries pointing the way to better health and fuller lives for men, women and children everywhere.

Mrs. Richard Mapes, president of the Does, stated: "In developing the polio vaccine we had a magnificent example of what could be done for health through teamwork between the American people and our scientists.

"This is another great op portunity for us to work shoulder-to-shoulder with Dr. Salk and his colleagues to achieve benefits for mankind that may be of even greater importance than the vaccine."

The Boom In Ignorance

(Reprinted from The Saturday Evening Post)

The most fearful sound of our continuing population explosion could, within the decade, be a big boom in ignorance. American education, once a legitimate source of national pride because it provided a chance at learning for almost everybody, may wind up offering less and less for anybody. Right now, alongside the old three R's, almost every school system in the United States would have to chalk the four U'a: Understaffed, Underequipped, Underfinanced and Under par. With each passing semester the situation gets Almost one and a half years ago, in a special message to Congress, President Kennedy asked Congress for a $5,600,000,000 aid-to-education bill. Impaled on a side issue concerning whether additional Federal assistance would be extended to parochial and private schools, the legislation died ingloriously in the House of Representatives. This year Mr. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, repeated his plea for school legislation and once again omitted government aid to parochial schools on Constitutional grounds. Realizing that he may have to settle for half a loaf, the President has sliced his program into separate sections and has assigned highest priority to the less controversial features: funds for college construction; expanded training and more scholarships for teachers; adult education to eradicate the nearly 8,000,000 "functional illiterates" in the United States. Already this year the House and Senate committees have spent more than three months tinkering with the machinery of the collegeaid bill alone.

Behind the heated congressional conferences on aid to education lie these cold statistics:

This year about 4,000,000 Amerfcans are attending college; by 1970, 6,000,000 will be qualified to attend if funds and facilities are available.

To accommodate those 6,000,000 will require almost $15,000,000,000 worth of new facilities and repairs to existing facilities. (Kennedy has asked that the Government make available $1,500,000,000 of those construction funds.)

Nearly 100,000 of the country's public-school teachers either have not been certified to teach or have not graduated from college. (We have no minimum national standard for education, let alone for teachers' credentials.)

Today American public schools are awesomely crowded because we have a shortage of 127,000 classrooms; to meet the population demands of 1970, we require 600,000

Every day that legislators continue their debates, 11,000 Americans are born to be fed into the school system.

The argument that Federal aid to education is reprehensible is not impressive. School systems have beenand will continue to be-supported primarily by local community property taxes and controlled by states and communities. These taxes have already ballooned more than 200 percent across the country since the end of World War II. It is cruel truth that many American communities simply cannot afford anything approaching an adequate school system given today's costs and tomorrow's popula-

Federal aid in some form is an old fact of American education life. In 1785 parcels of Federal land were set aside in every township for public-school use. In the middle of the nineteenth century Government land grants began for agricultural schools: today there are sixty-eight landgrant colleges. World War I prompted the Government to finance vocational training. World War II produced the famous GI Bills of Rights. After Sputnik, we enacted the National Defense Education Act which. this year alone, provides about $200,-000,000 for training engineers and scientists. In short, we have always extended some Federal aid to education. But never has education required aid the way it does right now.

Those who would still argue that any Government assistance must at the same time include aid to parochial and private schools should immediately consider some basic arithmetic. Today there are 43,000,000 Americans in elementary and high schools. About one in seven of those students attends a private or church institution. Without prejudice as to how the debate will finally be resolved, it seems not only unfair but unconscionable to keep an entire nation wanting for education while the church-state arguments continue interminably. Eventually the issue appears certain to wind up in the Supreme Court

Several portions of President Ken- year. nedy's educational program now stand a chance of passage during the present Congress: loans for college construction; competitive Federal college scholarships for deserving students, aid to medical and dental schools, expansion of the Defense Education Act. His program for expanded teacher training might pass. But aid to public schools, surely the primary problem of them all, remains ensuarled and entangled on the same old hook: the question of aid to parochial and private institutions. If we are not smart enough to solve that controversy - and soon-then we cannot expect our children to be smart enough to assert American leadership for the years to come.

A common practice in television, that of lip syncing, may at times be a bit disconcerting to the viewer, but it is a break for the performer. You may have noticed a per-former wind up a fast, tiring dance routine which would leave an Olympic distance runner gasping for air like a land-locked flounder, only to go into a closing song without miss-ing a breath. Actually this song was pre-taped and the performer has only to go through the motions. Often this word-mouthing is something less than per-fect, but it does provide necessary music where vocal effort would otherwise be impossible.

once, but three times.

AT THIS TIME of the year everyone is either coming or going, getting married, graduating or engaging in a mad whirl of parties and school activities.

Two local couples, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McAlexander, took the ocean cruise to Nassau aboard the S. S. Bahama Star, to get away from it all for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were celebrating their 14th wedding anniversary, which gave the tropical cruise the air of a second honeymoon.

The two couples did not go together, and did not even know there was anyone else from Sanford aboard until they returned.

But both enjoyed all the fun of the sea voyage, the fun aboard ship and ashore, with shopping, sightseeing and "touristing" on the islands.

HONORS are being accorded a number of Sanford students and Mrs. Russell DeWitt tells us that her son, Nathan DeWitt, was one of 12 pledges from the freshman class at Florida State to be selected for the National Honor Society of Pershing Rifles, Company M-6, an affiliate of the ROTC.

Nathan, a 1961 graduate of Seminole High was recently initiated into the society at a formal banquet.

The Pershing Rifles have a crack drill team which has for several years been invited to participate at the New Orleans Mardi Gras.

Nathan has received two decoration ribbons, one for being in the top flight of 18 flights of the AF ROTC and one for member of the best squadron. He is majoring in chemistry at Florida State.

LOCAL TALENT GALORE was evident at the very successful Roaring 20's Party held at the Capri Thursday night. Just about everyone in the dining-out-evening-socialcrowd came in the costume of the period.

QUEEN OF THE LONG BRANCH saloon at the roaring Dodge City Night staged at the NAS Ballroom, Norma Beverly asks "Chester" Derryberry "What's next on the program?" as the Navy squadrons put on a real old Western style show for the officers, their wives and their guests Friday night for the benefit of Navy Relief. Over 300 people attended the benefit show, including Miss Myrtle James and Miss Barbara Blair, Navy Relief Directors. This was the first time both ladies have ever attended a Navy Relief Benefit show at the same time.
