Bridge columnist dies

James Jacoby, bridge columnist for the Sanford Herald, died on Feb. 8 at Doctors' Hospital in Dallas after a sudden and brief fight against lung cancer. He was 57 years old.

Jacoby was the ninth-ranked Grand Master of the World Bridge Federation and the fifth-ranked Life Master in the American Contract Bridge League, with more than 25,000 points. In 1988, he won the Top 500 title for the most master points collected during the calendar year, with a total of 2,223.15.

Jacoby took over the column from his father, bridge pioneer Oswald Jacoby, who died in 1984. It is syndicated by NEA to several hundred daily newspapers.

Away from the bridge table, he was an expert backgammon player, had a love of sports, and was an aficionado of opera.

Jacoby, who lived in Dallas, is survived by his wife, Judy; a son, Jim Jr., of New York; and a brother, Jon, of Little Rock, Ark.

For the next several weeks, the Sanford Herald will continue to publish bridge columns that James Jacoby wrote before his death. Thereafter, the column will be written by noted bridge writer and player Phillip Alder, who worked with James Jacoby before his death.

SANFORD — While the Seminole County School Board considers the site for a future Seminole County high school in Lake Mary, some people are worried that the construction of a new school in that area will serve only to make Seminole High School a segregated minority school.

"I don't think that will happen," said Joe Williams, chairman of the school board.

The land, located west of Interstate 4 and just south of Sanford near the site where Heathrow Elementary School is being built, is being considered for a site of a high school to be built six to 10 years down the road.

Arvida Corporation, developer of the Heathrow communities, has offered to sell 40 acres of land to the district and donate the remaining 20 acres needed to fulfill state requirements of 60 acres for a high school site.

According to Arvida representatives, 60-acre tracts of land are becoming more and more scarce

This will not have an adverse affect on Seminole High School

-Joe Williams, school board chairman in Seminole County as developers buy the land for homes.

While the next high school to be built in the district will be in the Winter Springs area, Williams said, it would be imprudent for the board not to consider the proposed site now.

Another west county site will also be considered in the near future, but the board agreed to allow the finance division to order an appraisal of the Arvida site to determine the fair market value of the land.

The Winter Springs area school will be constructed by 1995.

Williams believes that the likelihood of the new school causing the decline of Seminole High School, 2701 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, is not strong.

"We can not use Interstate 4 as an artificial barrier when it comes to rezoning," Williams emphasized. "We will be able to draw students from both sides of I-4 to fill the new school. It will not affect Seminole only."

Board member Sandy Robinson was the first to express concern that the proposed school would harm Seminole High School.

"I'd hate to see this school that we have just spent $11 million on be run down," she noted.

The Justice Department, which has been called to Seminole County in the past to keep tabs on the racial balance and curriculum offerings of Seminole High School, will keep watch over the equity issues raised when the new school is built in the future.

"This will not have an adverse affect on Seminole High School," Williams said.

In the meantime, $2,500 will be spent on the appraisal of the Arvida site.

Board members pointed out that they have to consider Arvida's offer to donate a third of the land for the proposed site when they make their final decision later this year.

Landscaping proposal thrown a curve

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Zing!

The Lake Mary Boulevard landscaping proposal is back in Lake Mary commissioner's court. Tuesday, Seminole County commissioners approved a boulevard landscaping agreement that requires the city to straighten out a sharp curve in Country Club Road within five years or to obtain state approval to turn full responsibility of the road over to the city.

"That's something we could live with," said Lake Mary City Manager John Litton after the meeting Tuesday.

Commissioner Pat Warren was the only county commissioner to oppose the agreement, saying similar amounts of landscaping has not been appropriated for other roads.

"I strongly believe we are trading safety for 10,000 to 13,000 people for the highest degree of aesthetics in the county," Warren said.

If approved by Lake Mary commissioners, the county would pay $230,507 and the city would pay $522,701. Lake Mary's share is higher, in part, because it has previously agreed to install the landscaping irrigation and pay water connection fees for the irrigation system.

Jan. 10, Lake Mary commissioners approved a landscaping deal that agreed to take over maintenance and control of Country Club Road to help the financially-strapped county pay for the boulevard landscaping project but refused to straighten out a curb on the road as sought by county commissioners in a similar agreement they approved Jan. 8.

Lake Mary officials refused to straighten the curb, a $180,000 cost, saying it wasn't needed. The county needed the curb project money and another $70,000 allocated for the Grant Line Road project west of I-4 to pay for the Lake Mary Boulevard landscaping project.

County officials insisted the curb be straightened, saying three lives have been lost there in the last five years. They said the state regulates which agency regulates the road and as long as the county has any liability for accidents that occur in the curve, it should be straightened.

Tuesday, county commissioners offered the compromise that the curb be straightened within five years unless the state grants the city full responsibility for the road. City Planner Matt West said he did not anticipate objections from the state for the request. City commissioners must now approve the agreement.

Other provisions of the agreement include landscaping Lake Mary Boulevard from Interstate 4 to Country Club Road. The landscaping of the I-4 to Markham Woods Road section was dropped from the agreement, a savings of about $552,000 from the project. County commissioner Bob Sturm said he has discussed sharing the landscaping expense of the western section with Heathrow developers Arvida Corp. He said they are willing to share the costs, although no commitments have been made.

The county would pay all costs of landscaping the I-4 to Country Club Road section, although the city would contribute about $40,000 worth of oak trees. The county would have to pay the city $40,000 for the drainage area beside City Hall. The city had previously waived the drainage pond payment.

Penny sales tax goes to voting table

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners may ask voters to approve a 15-year penny sales tax in July that could look similar to the "Copper Penny" voted down by voters in November.

Commissioners will offer to share a portion of the first year's revenues from the tax with those cities who state specific needs for it. If the cities don't agree to the plan, commissioners said countywide taxes will increase to pay for the needs.

The commissioners will also consider using the county's first year's share of the taxes to expand the county jail, which would still be full within five years, and to build a new sheriff's administration building to replace the dilapidated headquarters at the city airport.

If approved by commissioners, the referendum will be held July 9. Commissioners will decide whether to hold the referendum May 7.

Last Nov. 6, voters turned down a proposal for a one-year, one-cent increase by a 69-31 margin. The revenues would have been used to expand the jail and build a new sheriff's administration. Nearly $9 million of the revenues would have been shared with the cities, many of which declared no use for the money.

The proposal by commission chairman Fred Streetman raised concerns by two commissioners.

"Don't you think funding the jail and administration building might diminish the chances of passage?," asked commissioner Pat Warren.

"I think it will diminish it greatly," added commissioner Larry Furlong.

Furlong suggested a jail impact fee for new homes, but commissioners rejected the proposal.

"We'll have to leave it to the public to understand," Streetman answered. "It's either this or raise the revenues elsewhere. A tax for jail expansion has been passed by the voters before. It may be an inaccurate assumption that inclusion of the jail would lead to defeat."

Mayor's life threatened

BOYNTON BEACH — The mayor of Boynton Beach says he is keeping a gun handy and has hired security guards to protect him after a woman repeatedly called his office with threats to "blow his head off."

Gene Moore, a lawyer, said his secretaries received about a half-dozen calls from a woman. None of the calls were put through to him.

The threats cited Moore's public criticism last week of the city's Fire Department for hiring a Peruvian citizen as a firefighter.

Moore said he could not understand why a U.S. citizen was not hired to fill the job opening, one of 17 that drew a total of 700 applicants. Moore cited the war and the recession as his reasons for wanting "Americana first."

Man killed after lunging at officers

WEST PALM BEACH — Three police officers shot and killed a man who lunged at them with a knife, less than 12 hours after another officer talked him out of suicide.

The officers tried to knock the knife out of the man's hand before they fired, police said.

"They were literally backed up against the wall when this guy came at them," said police Sgt. John English. "He just went right after them. They didn't have anywhere else to go."

Police on Tuesday identified the man as 27-year-old David Edward May.

The night before the shooting, May turned on the gas and threatened to blow up his house in the Flamingo Park neighborhood, but he calmed down after talking to a police negotiator.

Man ordered to pay ex-lover's children

MIAMI — A 52-year-old man who gunned down his ex-lover outside the Dade County Auditorium owes the woman's two children $19 million, a jury decided.

Six jurors took only 50 minutes Monday to decide that Gerardo Balmasada owes the money to the son and daughter of the woman who killed him. Balmasada stalked and then gunned down 46-year-old Celsina Montenegro.

"At least he won't be laughing in prison now," said Joanne Montenegro, 23. "We took him to the limit."

Abducted parrot is back

ORLANDO — The double yellow-headed Amazon parrot named Kulkul is back in his cage, after being abducted from a Winter Park pet store and taken for a cross-country ride by the kidnapper.

Kulkul (pronounced kee-kee) was sitting in his cage imitating a ringing telephone Monday when a customer told the clerk at Pet Arcade that he wanted to buy the bird. The price was $900.

As the clerk, Delmarie Martinez, went to get a box to the rear of the store, the man and the bird disappeared.

Several hours later, a man tried to sell the bird for $300 to manager Melvin Farris at Noah's Ark Pet Shop in Orlando.

"The price tells me that the gentleman was either very hard up for money or the bird was not legal," Farris said.

Farris called the cops and tried to stall the man.

Sheriff's deputy Joe Solis stopped Jose Dias, 38, as he tried to drive away from the store. He was arrested on a charge of grand theft-bird. He told deputies he lived in his car and was desperate for money.

Park service rejects plan

BISCAYNE NATIONAL PARK — The National Park Service has rejected a plan to turn Higg, Soldier Key, the northernmost island in Biscayne National Park, into a Caribbean-style getaway for up to 800 tourists a day.

The proposal by Robert F. Lambert, who has an option to buy the privately owned 3.5-acre island, included construction of a saltwater swimming pool ringed with palm trees, a boardwalk, bathrooms and a bar.

Lambert is a Fort Lauderdale party boat operator with plans to offer trips twice a day for "a sumptuous island luau" and limbo contest.

Power station cited as one of the best

HUTCHINSON ISLAND — The St. Lucie nuclear power station, operated by Florida Power & Light Co., has been cited as one of the nation's three best operating nuclear facilities.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission cited the Florida facility as one of the nation's best during a recent meeting to discuss the annual performance of nuclear power plants, according to an FPL news release Tuesday.

FPL also operates the Turkey Point nuclear power station in Miami, which once was identified as one of the worst facilities in the country by the NRC. Turkey Point has steadily improved, however, and last year was taken off the agency's "watch list." Both of Turkey Point's reactors are currently shutdown for safety improvements.

Former victim, 10, saves classmate from choking

Associated Press

CLERMONT — When he was 8, Jason Finser was saved from choking to death by his aunt. Two years later, Jason put his first-hand knowledge to use to help a 9-year-old classmate.

While dozens of other children looked on and screamed, Jason sprinted across the lunchroom at Minneola Elementary School to where Abby Mulick was choking on a chocolate treat. Jason grabbed her from behind and applied the Heimlich maneuver.

"I was red, and then instead of turning blue I was turning purple," Abby said. "My best friends were standing by me screaming" for the teacher's aide in the lunchroom.

Jason applied the approved technique used when a person is unable to breathe because the windpipe is blocked by an object, such as a piece of food. He applied pressure to the abdomen just below the rib cage, forcing air upward into the windpipe and expelling the food.

"It seemed to me it lasted about five minutes, but I know it wasn't really that long," Abby said Monday of the Friday incident.

Jason learned the technique from his aunt, Danielle Bonvento, a registered nurse. During dinner at her West Palm Beach home two years ago, Jason was choking on a roll when she applied the Heimlich maneuver.

"I just remembered how she did it," Jason said.

"We're just happy that kids like that have the training" to save lives, said Abby's stepfather, Dave Brown, a Clermont High School teacher. "Everyone should have that kind of training."

Jason has been nominated for this week's "Principal's Pals" program, in which students are treated to lunch at McDonald's with the principal or vice principal. The school also plans some kind of recognition event.

"I didn't know who he was at first," Abby said. "But luckily, he was close."

Leader of Legislature proposes no more fees than did Chiles

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles wants government to do more with less in his $28.5 billion proposed state budget, and Senate President Gwen Margolis is setting some limits of her own.

At a Tuesday meeting with key senators, Margolis said she will go no higher than the $391 million in tax and fee increases Chiles recommended to balance his 1991-92 spending plan.

Margolis, D-North Miami, cautioned lawmakers not to see Chiles' call for higher revenue as a signal that the tax floodgates have been opened.

"Until we talk about major tax reform, I'm not willing to go any farther than $400 million," she said. "Neither (House Speaker T.K. Wetherell) nor myself want to take Band-Aids and put them on, and then have the same problem next year."

Margolis has called for a special session later this year to consider recommendations from the Tax and Budget Reform Commission. Wetherell, however, is not eager to hold such a session.

Two of the major fee hikes would pay for poor people's health care: an increase from 1.5 percent to 3.5 percent on hospital net revenue if they do no charity work, and a flat $500 fee on physicians who don't treat the poor.

Both the doctors and hospitals could lessen the impact based on the number of indigent patients they treat.

Sen. Ken Jenne, a Fort Lauderdale Democrat who chairs the Finance, Taxation and Claims Committee, said the governor's estimates that the two taxes could raise some $198 million are reasonable at best.

The $27.3 million figure for physicians, he said, is based on about 12,000 active doctors and more than 34,000 physicians who are inactive and from other states but still have Florida medical licenses.

"We're questioning the addition," Jenne said. "This number to us does not make good sense."

Hospitals have already begun gearing up their formidable opposition to the fee increase, and Wetherell has said he opposes the 20 percent tuition hike for in-state university students that Chiles has recommended.

Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Winston "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, warned that every time a tax or fee increase is dropped, another will have to be found or already strapped services will suffer further cuts.

"I don't think you can take them in isolation," Gardner said. "If you're not willing to accept the tuition fees, and you're not willing to find replacement fees, are you willing to cut?"

Bakker's wife sees vindication

Court rejects tough sentence

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Jim Bakker eventually will be acquitted of his mail, fraud and conspiracy convictions, his wife predicted after a federal appeals court overturned the former televangelist's 45-year prison term.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday upheld Bakker's 1989 convictions but said the trial judge was influenced by his religious beliefs when he sentenced Bakker to 45 years and fined him $500,000 in October 1989. The three-judge panel ordered that Bakker be resentenced by a different judge.

"Everyone is excited and we're deeply grateful," Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye, said at her New Covenant Ministry Church near Orlando, Fla. "And I believe that before this is over, Jim is going to be totally exonerated of all wrongdoing."

Sex probe: No 'rubber stamp,' no 'lynching' vowed

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The House will not try to sweep under the rug a scandal over the payoff to silence a former House staffer's sexual harassment complaints, said the chairwoman of a committee investigating the case.

But the panel won't simply find someone to blame and then end the controversy, said Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach.

"I want to assure everybody that this committee is not a rubber-stamp committee. It's not a lynching party," she said Tuesday. "Our duty here is to the Florida Constitution."

The committee was appointed last week by House Speaker T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, to examine the 1988 payment to Kathie Jennings that prevented her from bringing sexual harassment complaints against

Rep. Fred Lippman and a former House staff director.

Wetherell wants the panel to recommend by Feb. 28 how to best handle such complaints in the future and to determine whether Lippman, D-Hollywood, violated the House code of conduct in the case. The committee intends to meet again today.

Lippman, a 12-year House veteran, has denied Ms. Jennings' claims of sexual harassment but stepped aside as majority leader temporarily.

Under separation of powers doctrine, the House is the sole judge of its members' conduct. If Lippman is found to have violated House rules, he could be censured, reprimanded or perhaps removed from office.

The committee came under harsh criticism from Ms. Jennings' attorney, Rick Johnson, who charged Monday that it would not conduct a fair investigation.

Man charged in retail theft

Richard Bernard Gordon, 35, of 1621 Strawberry Ave. in Sanford, was arrested on Monday and charged with retail theft. Gordon was arrested, the report states, after managers at the Scotty's Hardware Store on 17-92 in Sanford, allegedly spotted him putting assorted tools into his pants and leaving the store. He allegedly walked around the store and placed various tools in the legs of his pants as he moved from aisle to aisle. When he by-passed the checkout counter and walked to the parking lot, he was stopped by managers and detained. He supposedly told police that he wanted to go to jail. Gordon got his wish. He was arrested and taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. A computer check showed that there was an active warrant for his arrest on a previous charge of failing to appear in court to answer to a charge of trespassing. He is being held on a $100 bond in connection with the retail theft charge and on $2,000 bond on the failure to appear charge.

DUI arrest

James Hoyt Brodie, 33, of 116 W. Alma Ave. in Lake Mary was arrested Thursday and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. Brodie, returning home from the Orlando Magic game, said he had consumed several beers beginning at 6 p.m. Wednesday evening, according to the arrest report. He was arrested on 8th Street in Lake Mary when he ran his vehicle off the road, according to the report. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where bond was set at $100 bond.

Tag, license violations cited

Cheryl Ann Courtwright, 33, of 701 Upsala Rd. in Sanford, was arrested on Monday and charged with driving with a suspended drivers license and with attaching an unassigned tag to her vehicle. According to the Sanford Police Department arrest report, Courtwright was arrested at the parking lot in front of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave. in Sanford, when a standard check of her drivers license revealed that the license had been suspended four times and was currently under suspension. The unassigned tag was attached to a trailer that was being hauled behind her pick up truck. She is currently in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in lieu of $100 bond.

Man charged with prowling

Charles Dean Kane, 32, of 1119 Locust Drive in Sanford, was arrested on Monday morning and charged with loitering and prowling. According to the arrest report, Kane was arrested in the aftermath of a call to a broken window at 2473 Park Ave. in Sanford. When Sanford police responded to that alarm, a witness told them that he had seen a white male in a dark shirt and dark pants running from the scene. Police officers found Kane, also known as Charles Dean Cain, at the corner of Magnolia and 22nd St. in Sanford. He was arrested and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was being held on $100 bond.

SANFORD — City Commissioner Bob Thomas, who suffered from chest pains at Monday night's City Commission meeting, was to be released from the hospital today, following a day and a half of tests and rest at the Florida Hospital in Altamonte Springs.

From his room at the hospital this morning, Thomas, 65, said that as far as he knew, all of the tests had been completed and that he was told his blood pressure was good again. "They've recommended that I see a cardiologist and that I'll have to take it easy for quite some time," he said, "but I'm feeling fine."

Thomas said that the doctor told him he apparently began to be better as soon as he left city hall and got outdoors into the cooler temperature.

As far as he knew this morning, the exact cause of the chest pains has not yet been determined, Thomas said. "That will be determined from the results of further testing in the near future by the cardiologist."

School band director suspended for 5 days

Talks about sex deemed wrong

SANFORD — Steve Paterson, the band director at Lakeview Middle School in Sanford has been suspended from his job for five days without pay.

The school board made its decision to suspend Paterson as part of their categorical consent agenda yesterday evening.

Accused of misconduct in office, Paterson will take the days beginning immediately.

Parents complained to the school administration that Paterson had spoken openly with their youngsters about sexual topics and an internal investigation was conducted leading to the decision to suspend him.

An investigation continues at the school and state levels, officials said.

According to Joe Williams, chairman of the school board, Paterson's case will be reviewed by the Professional Practices Committee and appropriate action will be taken at that time.

"So far, we don't have the facts," he said. "We can not hang someone without the facts."

Williams noted that Paterson is being punished only for the inappropriate comments at this time. Further findings will produce other punishments if necessary.

"I understand that parents want to be sure that their youngsters are learning in a safe environment," Williams said. "I have two daughters so I understand that. But we can not do anything until we have all the facts."

The Seminole Education Association (the teachers' union) is not involved in this case, as they often are, because Paterson is not a member of SEA.

Paterson was not available for comment.

Airport signs contract for removing fuel tanks

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport Authority Tuesday approved an agreement with the state Department of Transportation to replace underground fuel tanks at the airport.

The state Department of Environmental Regulation has ordered Central Florida Regional Airport to remove all underground fuel tanks by December 1992, airport director Steve Cooke said. The airport authority Tuesday approved an agreement providing for the airport to share the $500,000 cost of the project with DOT.

The fuel farm adjacent to the airport terminal and a 50,000-gallon fuel tank would be moved to an aboveground facility on the southeast portion of the 2,000-acre airport grounds, Cooke said. The tanks would be placed in a special container to prevent any possible spill into groundwater, he said.

The authority Tuesday also approved a joint agreement with DOT to share the $400,000 cost of building a firestation at the airport.

The airport authority also turned its attention to the future in authorizing Cooke to request the Federal Aviation Administration to help pay for a comprehensive planning study. The airport's current master plan, completed in 1985, is already "grossly outdated," Cooke said.

For example, Cooke said, the master plan projects that annual airport operations, or takeoffs and landings, would reach 154,000 in 2005. Annual operations in 1990 reached 243,000, he said.

The comprehensive planning approach the airport authority would like to take would focus on all elements of the airport, including aviation, industry, land acquisition and noise. That kind of approach is unique for airports, Cooke said.

One portion of the study would examine current and future noise levels at the airport, and would make recommendations on minimizing noise. The study would call for public comment on noise levels in areas surrounding the airport, Cooke said.

The planning study could cost between $300,000 and $500,000, Cooke estimated.

Accident

Seminole County firefighters treat the driver of a truck for the Sanford Housing Authority before he was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital yesterday following an accident in the Lake Monroes area. The collision apparently occurred when another pickup truck crossed the SHA driver's path on Church Street at C-15. After the collision, drivers John Middlebrook and Freddie Brown were treated and released in good condition at the hospital, CFRW officials said.

Cost of fuel slides down

Despite the conflict in the Persian Gulf, crude oil prices have dropped to around $21 a barrel, from a high of nearly $40 last year after the crisis erupted.

More than anything, the downward trend in fuel prices should put to rest the twin fallacies that the market does not correct itself during volatile periods and that energy prices will always remain artificially high unless suppliers are limited to how much they may charge.

Regrettably, however, the biggest threat to price equilibrium at the moment is the policy of some oil companies to freeze gasoline prices amid the tumult in the Gulf. Leaving aside the fact that pump prices are falling without this magnanimous gesture any action that sets prices at an artificial level ultimately will produce an imbalance in supply and demand.

The price mechanism remains the most equitable, most efficient way to allocate whatever supply of fuel is available. At the moment, the supply of oil on the world market far exceeds demand. This factor, more than developments in the Gulf, is what is driving energy prices down at this time.

There remains a danger, though, that Congress may enact legislation to regulate oil prices and profits. In fact, a bill to restore the windfall profits tax was among the first pieces of legislation introduced in the new Congress.

Lawmakers may become even more resolute about punishing the oil companies in the wake of reports of substantial fourth-quarter profits by the leading producers.

For instance, Phillips Petroleum Co. chalked up profits of $237 million for the final quarter of 1990. A year earlier, however, it absorbed a fourth-quarter loss of $255 million. Unocal Corp. recorded fourth-quarter profits of $38 million, compared with losses of $28 million a year earlier. And Pennzoil reported quarterly profits of $29 million, versus a $102 million loss the previous year.

It hardly seems fair to penalize oil companies with windfall profit taxes because of their net income in a single quarter when no federal assistance is extended to them during losing quarters.

Like consumers, oil companies are subject to the vagaries of the global market. While they may reap huge short-term profits when oil prices escalate suddenly, as during the Gulf crisis last year, this is usually balanced out by slack periods when the energy market is soft, competition fierce, prices low and profit margins small.

Teen drinking a problem

A survey indicating a continuing decline in the use of cocaine and crack among U.S. high school seniors should be encouraging to those who have fought the war on drugs. It suggests that more success is possible.

Cocaine use has been declining for four years, the annual survey indicated. The use of crack, a less expensive cocaine product, was down for the second straight year. The federally financed survey is conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

About 5 percent of the high school seniors in the survey said they used cocaine at least once during the previous year, down from 13 percent in 1986. The percentage who indicated that they had used crack in the previous year fell to 1.0 percent from 3.1 percent a year earlier. Those saying they had used crack within the previous month dropped by 50 percent.

Also encouraging was the fact that for the first time since the annual surveys began in 1975, a majority of students said they had never used an illegal drug.

On the downside, the survey indicated a distressingly high incidence of alcohol abuse among young people. While overall liquor consumption dropped slightly, nearly one-third of the students said they had taken five or more drinks on one occasion within the previous two weeks. And for the seventh straight year, there was virtually no change in tobacco smoking. About 19 percent of the students in the survey indicated that they smoked every day.

The decline in cocaine and crack usage should be welcomed. Cocaine, crack and other illegal narcotics are associated with gang activity, prostitution, truancy and a loss of motivation. Unfortunately, the abuse of alcohol can cause many of the same problems. Thus the more progress that is made against cocaine and crack, the more the problem of adolescent drinking stands out as a national tragedy.

Media's war undermines U.S. effort

It is now as plain as the birthmark on Gorbachev's head that the coalition forces in the Persian Gulf will shortly commence ground operations against the Iraqi troops in Kuwait. This is a good moment, therefore, to pause and reflect on the role of the American media in covering the battle that is about to begin.

A good deal has been written — much of it true, I am sure — about the hostility of high American military officers to the media. They are supposed to believe that the media seriously undermined home-front support for the Vietnam war, and to be determined not to give them a similar opportunity this time if they can help it. If that is indeed their attitude, all I can say is, I share it.

We have heard much less, however, about the hostility of many representatives of the media toward the military. Any reader who supposes that the reporters covering the Gulf war are simply bloodless technicians neutrally reporting the facts can stop reading this column now.

The truth is that the vast majority of these reporters not only know that military mistakes and/or incompetence make a better news story than military efficiency and success, but — being the ripe spawn of a very different tradition — affirmatively detest the military mind-set and will exert themselves mightily to discredit it.

You can bet your bottom dollar, therefore, that most of our reporters in the Gulf will zero in on and emphasize every negative aspect of the war that they can uncover. Even in the recent pathetic little skirmish in Khafji, it took far longer to root our media out of their effort to make it look like a defeat for the coalition than it took to root the Iraqis out of Khafji. And nobody who watched CNN's obscene coverage of "dying" babies in a Baghdad hospital, to whom the reporters had been led by their Iraqi friends and concerning whom no American response was allowed, can doubt the message being delivered.

In the weeks ahead the American media will dwell lovingly on the casualties — the American dead and wounded, of course, but also the inevitable civilian victims as well. ("Was this really necessary?")

Thanks to the miracle of modern television, it may even be possible to switch effortlessly, in "real time" or nearly so, from a battlefield in Kuwait, where an American soldier can be seen lying dead or mortally injured, to the little frame house somewhere in Middle America where his mother, wife and children sit, puffy-eyed from weeping.

Above all, we must be on our guard against the sort of sheer distortion whereby a military victory can be twisted, by dishonest reportage, into an apparent defeat. That was the media's triumphant achievement in the case of the Vietnamese communists' guerrilla attacks on central Saigon (including, briefly, the American embassy) in the so-called "Tet offensive" of February 1968.

In the days ahead, we would do well to think of the ground war in Kuwait as having not two but three major participants: the Iraqis, the U.S.-led coalition, and — perched on the latter's shoulders like some hostile incubus — the American media.

Was this really necessary?

TOM TIEDE

What's Saudi life really like?

WASHINGTON — Ever since the Persian Gulf crisis began, President Bush has argued that Americans must respond to the criminal activity in the region. He's said all along that Iraq has committed crimes against Arab peace, crimes against Arab people, and crimes against what he calls the "new world order."

Meantime, a weathered and elderly man has issued an argument of his own from a sidewalk across the way from the White House. He is one of the demonstrators who gather there regularly to condemn the use of force in the Middle East. "We know about the crimes of our enemies," he shouts, "what about the crimes of our friends?"

The protester also shouts other things in this respect. Some of them unprintable. But he has a point.

Saudi Arabia, the nation that is hosting the war against Iraqi brutalities, has been repeatedly accused of being brutal in its own right. The watch group Amnesty International has issued several reports that charge the Saudi kingdom with human rights violations that rival some of the odious practices of Saddam Hussein.

"We don't say the Saudis are as bad as the Iraqis," an Amnesty official explains. "We do say that both sides have mistreated people. Our last report on Saudi Arabia was published in October, for example. That report indicates the Saudis, like the Iraqis, condone false arrest, political repression and torture."

Amnesty International is an organization formed to assist people imprisoned for their political or religious beliefs. It was awarded the Nobel Prize for peace in 1977. The group's officers do not like to be quoted by name concerning their investigations, and instead refer questions to their country-by-country reports.

Generally, the reports on Saudi Arabia suggest that it's not a healthy idea to cross the royal regime. The nation has no penal code, no constitution, and it does not permit political opposition. Amnesty says the king rules according to Islamic law, which he interprets in concert with the government's interests.

So Amnesty thinks the Saudis often arrest their opponents without charge, and hold them for months and even years without trial. The group adds that many of the victims belong to Arab reform movements, others have only been suspected of anti-government conduct, and some of them die each year while incarcerated.

A few of the victims have been Americans. Amnesty says they are usually targeted for questioning Saudi authority. One U.S. citizen was arrested a few years ago for making accusations against Riyadh hospital administrators. He says he was thrown in jail, beaten, and released only after "both of my knees were broken."

Amnesty says the torture of Westerners is the exception, however. The Saudis normally reserve their harshest treatment for Arabs. Amnesty's October report, for instance, alludes to the mass arrest and outrageous treatment of Yemen Arabs who were working in Saudi Arabia when Iraq precipitated the Gulf quandary.

Yemen is an impoverished and perpetually troubled nation that borders the Saudi kingdom to the south. Many of its residents belong to a Muslim sect that is sympathetic to Iraqi politics. The Yemeni workers were ordered to leave Saudi Arabia when Iraq invaded Kuwait, and "hundreds" were arrested before they were deported.

Two cases: Amin Ahmad Al-Shawaf, 25, has told Amnesty International that he was held with 400 other captives near Mecca. He says he was questioned about his political views and continuously beaten over the head and body. A doctor interviewed by Amnesty says the man was beaten with a sharp object, and now suffers from paranoia.

Said Abdo Ibrahim al-Shami, 25, claims that a taxi driver turned him in for criticizing the government. This followed a dispute over a fare. Al-Shami says Saudi's General Intelligence agents submerged him in water until he almost suffocated, and then forced him to stand on one foot over a period of four hours.

The October Amnesty report says that Saudi executives have denied the Yemeni charges of brutality. The officials insist it never happened. Quote: "It is the firm policy of ... Saudi Arabia to treat our brother Yemenis with affection and dignity. ... We do not believe that any widespread violation of that policy occurred."

Saudi diplomats in Washington also hold to that line. But one representative does leave room for error. "I'm sure we have made mistakes," he says. "It's possible we have done some things that are unfair. But the world is changing, my country is changing, and I think we will be able to satisfy most people in due time." Until then, Amnesty International says it will keep a close account of the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia. The group believes 16 political prisoners were executed just last year. A spokesman notes that the only thing that can be said about such savagery is that the White House protester is correct: It's not always easy to separate friends in the Persian Gulf from enemies.

Saudi Arabia repeatedly has been accused of being brutal in its own right.

U.S. forces show determination

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — They're dirty. They're homebick. They have been baked by the sun and chilled to the bone. Some would dearly love a drink. They've seen precious few homemade cookies since Christmas. But the allied voices at the front, from the high command to the lowly private, tell a story of determination that has been enhanced instead of suppressed by six months of waiting out Saddam Hussein in the desert.

From a lance corporal: "I hope this is Armageddon so we can get it all over with."

Lt. Gen. Chuck Horner, the man in charge of the air campaign: "This attack on Khafji — that's stupid! That's the stupidest thing he could do. Now, why is he doing that? To me it occurs one of the answers is that he's desperate, and he sees that he's getting chewed up. Maybe he sees the sand running out on them."

Pvt. First Class Kenneth Johns of Chico, Calif., an Army engineer: "This is one big cat box. Nothing more, nothing less."

A staff sergeant with a tank division: "We've got a personal vendetta. It's all because of one man. There is not a doubt in our minds this guy's history."

Lt. Col. Dick "Snake" White of Arkansas, commander of a squadron of Harriers flying over the Khafji battle: "My biggest danger was running into another U.S. aircraft. It was almost like trying to get into the checkout during a close-out sale on lady's lingerie." Speaking of the Iraqis coming out of their defensive positions to fight, he added, "Now, it's almost like you flipped on the light in the kitchen late at night and the cockroaches start scurrying, and we're killing them. They're moving in columns, they're moving in small groups and convoys. It's exactly what we've been looking for, and it sounds to me like he's lost his marbles."

Staff Sgt. Rick Taylor of the Marine Corps combat engineers, lecturing the Marines on the job of the troops who search for mines: "When they disappear into that big pink mist with body parts flying, you'll know what to do."

Staff Sgt. Benjamin Hoover of Oklahoma: "We've got to attack the Iraqi forces unless Saddam gives up. But he's like a tick on a dog. He won't leave."

Maj. Frank Timmons, who gets supplies for his troops, when asked what gave him the courage to go straight to the top, to a major general, demanding tens: "What was he going to do, send me to Saudi Arabia? The worst he could do was say no."

A Marine major speaking of the ground offensive: "I expect we're going to expel them rather violently. ... We're going to spank them pretty hard."

Lance Corporal Harlow Fisher, who converted to Islam a year ago and came to the Gulf in spite of his reluctance to fight a Muslim brother: "Islam says honor your contracts."

BERLITZ ARABIC — Allied forces in the Persian Gulf haven't lost their sense of humor. They are passing around a list of helpful Arabic phrases to know in case they encounter an enemy with a sense of humor: "Thank you for showing me your marvelous gun." "I am delighted to accept your kind invitation to lie down on the floor with my arms apart and my legs apart." "I agree with everything you have ever said or thought in your life." "It is exceptionally kind of you to allow me to travel in the trunk of your car." "The water-soaked bread was delicious, thank you. May I have the recipe?" And our personal favorite: "I will tell you the names of many spies traveling as reporters."

That's the stupidest thing he could do.

Genius may die for 'perfect crime'

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

BARTOW. — Days after Peggy Carr slipped from a poisoned eight-pack of Coca-Cola she found in her home, her hair began to fall out, her feet felt like fire and she could no longer walk.

Before lapsing into a three-month coma from which she would never awake, she kept asking — "Why?"

It's a question investigators spent more than two years trying to answer and prosecutors a month trying to prove. Last week a jury convicted the meek, self-styled genius who lived next door — George James Trepal.

The panel was so convinced it recommended death in the electric chair for the 42-year-old computer programmer, chemistry buff and MENSEA high-IQ club member who prosecutors said tried to pull off the "perfect crime."

"Here's a man who thought he was so smart he could literally get away with murder," said prosecutor John Agüero. "I think he actually believed — because of his intellectual level — he would never be found out." Authorities maintained Trepal was fed up with his neighbors' loud music, noisy off-road bikes, their dogs chasing his cats and other aggravations that built up over eight years in the orange-grave-dotted community of Alturas.

So in October 1988, he spiked seven, 16-ounce bottles of Coca-Cola Classic with thallium nitrate — a highly toxic heavy metal — and somehow sneaked them into his neighbor's kitchen, according to the state.

Peggy Carr, a slight 41-year-old waitress, at first didn't know what was causing her nausea, and the pain in her feet and legs. A week went by before her husband Parearlyn carried her like a baby into Winter Haven Hospital.

"She complained to me of a burning in her feet as if her feet were actually set on fire," said neurologist Dr. Richard Hostler.

The poison left Mrs. Carr unable to speak, but she knew sign language because both of her parents were deaf mutes. Through her sister, she attempted to communicate.

"She asked why," her sister, Shirley Martin, testified. "She kept wanting to know why." Just before Mrs. Carr lapsed into a coma, a lab test confirmed she had been poisoned with thallium, an element so deadly that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency banned it as a rat poison in the early 1970s.

Four other members of Mrs. Carr's family were poisoned, but not fatally. Son, Duane Dubberly, 19, and stepson, Travis, 18, underwent extensive physical therapy and recovered. Husband Parearlyn and a 2-year-old girl were not hospitalized.

Trepal first became a suspect about two months after the poisonings during routine community interviews. Most friends and neighbors had no clue why the Carrs would be poisoned, but Trepal was quick to volunteer his theory.

"Somebody wanted them to move out," Polk County Detective Ernie Mincey quoted Trepal as saying. "That was the reason they were poisoned."

"He appeared to be extremely nervous," the detective said. "He was visibly shaking."

Detectives said Trepal's response bore a resemblance to threatening a type-written note the Carrs received a few months before they were poisoned: "You and all your so-called family have two weeks to move out of Florida forever or else you all die. This is no joke."

In an unusual move, a female agent was assigned to befriend Trepal while posing as a member of his MENSEA group.

"Once I got to know him, I found him very funny and witty," said Polk County Special Agent Susan Goreck. "But what also came out was how he backed away from people he had a problem with. That fits the profile of the poisoner perfectly, someone who is going to do something underhanded because it's non-confrontational."

During MENSEA's murder mystery weekends, Trepal organized fantasy scenarios that were eerily similar to the reality that befell his neighbors.

"When a death threat appears on the doorstep, prudent people throw out all their food and watch what they eat," Trepal wrote in a booklet presented at the April 1989 event. "Most items on the doorstep are just a neighbor's way of saying, 'I don't like you. Move out or else.'"

The undercover agent developed a seven-month friendship with Trepal and even rented the Alturas home he and his wife moved from soon after the poisonings.

In the garage of Trepal's house, authorities found a small vial containing trace amounts of thallium nitrate. That key piece of evidence led to Trepal's arrest last spring.

Further searches of Trepal's homes turned other chemicals and literally thousands of journals and books.

One tattered, homemade journal had the scrawled title "General Poisoning Guides." In it, thallium is described as the choice of "criminal poisoners" and its fatal doses and effects are clearly spelled out.

A background check showed Trepal served two years in federal prison in the mid-1970s for his role in an illegal methamphetamine lab in North Carolina. Thallium is used in the production of such drugs.

"To believe Mr. Trepal to be innocent," Agüero said in his closing arguments, "you would have to believe all of these things to just be pure coincidences."

That's precisely what defense attorneys argued. Since the state presented a circumstantial case — with no physical evidence — that created enough reasonable doubt, Trepal's defense team presented no case.

After six hours of deliberations, jurors convicted Trepal of first-degree murder, six counts of attempted first-degree murder and product tampering charges.

Circuit Judge Dennis Maloney is set to decide March 6 whether to follow the jury's recommendation for the death penalty or impose a sentence of life behind bars.

"There are still a lot of unanswered questions," said Agüero. "Some questions Mr. Trepal is the only person who can answer, and of course he hasn't spoken."

"What we do know is that he was an extremely vindictive person. He had very few friends, wasn't an outgoing person. He was a person who spent an awful lot of his time alone — thinking."

Man owes children millions

By Associated Press

MIAMI. — A 52-year-old man who gunned down his ex-lover outside the Dade County Auditorium owes the woman's two children $19 million, a jury decided.

Six jurors took only 50 minutes Monday to decide that Gerardo Balmaseda owes the money to the son and daughter of the woman who killed him. Balmaseda stalked and then gunned down 46-year-old Celdina Montenegro.

"At least he won't be laughing in prison now," said Joanne Montenegro, 23. "We took him to the limit."

Joanne and her brother Rene split the award from the jury.

Her attorney, J.B. Spence, thinks the formerly well-to-do Balmaseda who drove a white Mercedes and carried 80 credit cards, may have hidden assets or may have transferred them to his family. Spence said the search for the assets is just beginning.

Balmaseda's attorney, Julio Gutierrez, said his client is broke.

"He still owes me $5,000 in legal fees," said Gutierrez, who also represented Balmaseda in his criminal trial last fall. "But I'll never see it."

His client, who once paid $37,000 to obtain the noble title of marquis, was full of grandiose delusions, one of them that he was worth millions, Gutierrez said. In reality, Balmaseda owes $100,000 to credit card companies, Gutierrez said.

Balmaseda, who was not in court Monday, is serving three consecutive prison terms totaling 7 1/2 years for killing Montenegro and wounding a Metro Dade officer during a shootout March 31, 1990.

Last November, Balmaseda was convicted in the death of Montenegro, who had broken up with him after she found out he was married. But he continued to harass and pursue her — even after she obtained a court order telling him to stay away.

Jurors awarded $2 million in damages to each child and $7.5 million apiece in punitive damages after hearing a morning of emotional testimony.

Bombing

casualties in the Iraqi capital but was "aggressively looking into it."

The deaths occurred during a 12-hour bombardment of Baghdad. One of the buildings hit — the Palace of Conferences — is across the street from the al-Rashid Hotel, where a Soviet envoy on a peace mission is staying. The diplomat met Tuesday with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

As the Persian Gulf War turned 4 weeks old, the Soviet diplomatic efforts to end it picked up with the announcement today of plans for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to meet in Moscow with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Sunday's trip would be a followup to envoy Yevgeny Primakov's trip, the Kremlin said.

After meeting with Primakov, Saddam announced Iraq might be willing to talk. However, the White House noted he said nothing about the central issue in the conflict — ending the occupation of Kuwait.

U.S. military officials, meanwhile, said Iraq has managed to rig makeshift military communications and supply links despite allied bombing aimed at smashing them. They said Iraqi was drawing on battlefield experience in its 1980-88 war with Iran.

The bomb shelter hit today also was a legacy of the Iran-Iraq war: It was one of five big shelters built in the capital during that conflict.

Witnesses said the shelter in the middle-class residential al-Ameriah district took direct hits from at least two missiles fired by allied warplanes. The missiles pierced 9 feet of concrete.

Rescuers clawing through the debris found eight survivors immediately after the bombing. AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the scene. The rescuers later said they retrieved more than 200 bodies, most of them charred and mutilated beyond recognition, Nasrawi reported. Iraqi civil defense officials said lists compiled from residents indicated there were more than 500 people inside the shelter when the warplanes struck before dawn. A senior civil defense official said scores of people remained buried in the rubble but there was no hope of finding anyone alive.

Residents crowded around the wrecked shelter, looking for relatives and friends. Men beat on their chests and yelled "Allahu Akbar," Arabic for "God is Great," and women cried hysterically, Nasrawi said.

At a Baghdad hospital where the injured were taken, 17-year-old Omar Adnan, badly burned, said he was the only survivor of his family of six.

"I was sleeping and suddenly I felt heat and the blanket was burning," Adnan said. "I turned to try and touch my mother who was next to me but grabbed nothing but a piece of flesh."

Also hit in the raids were telecommunications centers in the al-Jadrieh and al-Jamila districts, and the government's Palace of Conferences.

Iraq previously had claimed thousands of civilian casualties in the allied air raids. U.S. officials have said the Iraqi figures were probably inflated.

President Bush, speaking with reporters in Washington on Tuesday, described Iraqi statements on civilian casualties as a "one-sided propaganda mission cranking out myths and falsehoods."

However, the U.S. command has said civilian casualties are an inevitable byproduct of the strikes aimed at military and strategic targets.

With the war thundering ahead, Baghdad radio reported early today that Saddam told Primakov he is prepared to cooperate with the Soviet Union and other nations in a peace effort.

But there was no sign Saddam is willing to relinquish Kuwait as the United States has demanded.

Bundles of $100 bills found in miner's fireplace

By Associated Press

LEESBURG. — An elderly former coal miner now living in a nursing home had more than old clothes and furnishings in a house he and his wife lived in for many years.

Someone had stashed away bundles of cash — $100 bills stuffed in three metal boxes — in a fireplace. The discovery was made last weekend by a 16-year-old boy, Donnie Ivey, who was visiting the now-uninhabited house with his mother and sister.

The kids' curiosity about the fireplace with wooden doors led her name. Because the body was burned so badly there was little to go on in the investigation into the identity of the person. According to Earl Underwood, the public information officer for the Lake County sheriff's office, Hawkins body was so badly burned that many standard identification methods were impossible.

Though she was identified this morning using dental records, her jaw was so badly burned that parts of it had been deformed by the intense heat of the fire.

Fingerprint matching and even toxicology tests on blood samples could not be done because the damage was so extensive, according to Underwood.

Now that the positive identification has been made the investigation is expected to continue at a more rapid pace.

Underwood said the investigators have not yet determined a motive or a cause of death in the case.

"We're still calling it suspicious, but undetermined," he said.

A gas can was found on the front seat next to the body when the vehicle was discovered parked on a dirt road south of State Road 46 in Mt. Plymouth.

"We suspect that this was self-inflicted," Underwood said, "but we can not say that until all the evidence is in."

The investigators will test remaining physical evidence and conduct interviews with Hawkins' family and friends to determine the motive in the death.

"There was no suicide note or anything that would help us to explain this," Underwood said. "Investigators will have to rebuild from scratch."

to the find that bank trustees described only as a great deal of money.

It was "a lot more than you and I will ever have," said bank attorney Marybeth Pullum.

The homeowner, John Hrenyo, is now in his 80s and suffers from spells of senility, friends and neighbors said Monday. They described him as a recluse who became even more of a loner after his wife, Pauline, died of cancer last year.

Also, they said, Hrenyo didn't like banks and dealt only in cash.

Joyce Ivey, accompanied by her children, was picking up some clothes at the modest house last Saturday. The clothes had been donated to the nursing home where Mrs. Ivey works.

Also in the house at the time was Delbert Copeland, who was supervising the sale of some of Hrenyo's belongings. He worked for Citizens National Bank of Leesburg, which had been designated by the court as guardian of the widower's finances.

Donnie and his 12-year-old sister, Cathi, were alone in the den when he noticed the unusual fireplace, opened the doors and peered inside. He pulled down three metal boxes and a stack of papers. His eyes popped when he snapped one of the boxes open.

"When I first saw the bills, I thought they were ones," Donnie said Monday. "Then I flipped through them. They were all hundreds."

He opened the other boxes. Same thing: $100 bills galore. Cathi said, "Oh my God" and ran into the next room to fetch her mother.

Copeland heard the commotion and hurried over. He took the money and turned it over to the bank.

Donnie, who works parttime as a 24-hour busboy, admitted to having fought some temptation.

Commissioners need the nearly $25 million the sales tax could produce to climb out of a $100 million, five-year deficit largely created by state growth management requirements. Without the sales tax, a countywide property tax increase of about $3.86 per $1,000 of taxable property would be needed, a 56 percent increase in the current $5.54 rate.

Although the cities are entitled to share the sales tax under state law, Streetman said he believes city commissioners will understand property taxes would have to increase for every homeowner in the county if they don't allow the county to keep all of the tax revenues.

"Their goal should be the same as our goal," Streetman said, "reducing the need for ad valorem tax increases."

In other revenue decisions, commissioners decided against pursuing a countywide parks impact fee because population growth impacts on county parks would be difficult to quantify and cities might be reluctant to support the fee because they offer their residents municipal parks.

Cracks evident in Iraqi military

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — Each morning, Iraqi deserters show up at allied border posts in increasing numbers. Each night, the anti-aircraft fire from Iraqi forces is less coordinated. After four weeks of intense, day-and-night bombing, there are subtle signs of cracks in the Iraqi military's resolve. "They have stopped operating as a national army (pursuing) theater objectives," said Capt. Jessie Morimoto, an Air Force intelligence officer. "What they're doing now is trying to defend themselves as people." Sporadic artillery duels along the border hint at that. While Marines and other units have peppered enemy positions with artillery and rocket fire, the Iraqis' response has been light and poorly aimed, despite the fearsome reputation of their South African-made 155mm howitzers. It is estimated the Iraqis have deployed 3,100 artillery pieces in the Kuwait area. Yet few have fired at allied positions. "Enemy artillery has not endangered friendly artillery yet," said Col. Ron Richard, operations officer for the 2nd Marine Division. Morimoto said the nature of Iraqi anti-aircraft fire has changed. "Right at the beginning we saw the Iraqis responding as any scared Army would do," firing large numbers of missiles at attacking planes, Morimoto said. Now, she said, the Iraqis operate in small pockets, working independently of each other. "The pilots can't believe they're doing this and nobody's fighting back," she said. There are signs that many more Iraqis are willing to give up as the slow leak of deserters grows to a stream. Along Saudi Arabia's northern border, clusters of up to 10 Iraqi soldiers show up at desert outposts each day, waving leaflets dropped by allied aircraft that tell them how to surrender. Officers say the official figure of 1,000 Iraqi prisoners is low. Marines report an increasing number of tired and hungry soldiers walking toward the border, hands in the air, eager for the food and cigarettes the Marines hand out.

Valentines galore for troops in Gulf

By TRUDY TYMAN
Associated Press Writer

Whether via song, videotape or crayon and construction paper, valentines of love, longing and support poured out across the country for American soldiers at war. Thousands of messages came from children in the quiet New England valley around Westover Air Force Base, the last sight of home for thousands airlifted to the Persian Gulf. And the children who have watched the big planes come and go for six months responded with more than 32,000 construction paper hearts, sometimes decorated with paper lace, flags, and peace symbols and sealed with "lots of XXX's." "The word got out and it just exploded," said Col. Joseph Curley, who gives valentines to troops shipping out.

City reviews military reemployment

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While there are already laws established by the Federal Government pertaining to employees who are called to active duty in the military services, the City of Sanford took steps Monday night to be certain that the provisions of the law were all part of the city's personnel rules and regulations.

According to a report to the Sanford City Commissioners from the city hall's Office of Personnel, several employees who are currently in the Reserve and National Guard have sought to find out about returning to employment and associated benefits in the event they are called up for active duty.

Although none of the city's employees have been called into the military service so far, Personnel Director Tim McCauley said, "I've received a number of inquiries, not many though, probably less than five have asked for details."

The Veteran's Reemployment Rights Act says any business must grant a leave of absence for the necessary length of time specified, and while a temporary replacement may be hired to take over the job while a person is in the service, the regular employee must be allowed to return to the regular job providing he or she applies for it within 90 days following release from active duty.

When an employee returns to the job, all seniority, status, pay, vacation, sick leave and other benefits are to be reinstated. As for sick leave or vacation time that has not been used at the time of a military call-up, the city voted to give such an employee the option of either keeping the time on the books until returning to the job, or being paid for it.

Dependent health insurance would eventually be carried by the military service, but there is a waiting period of 30 days before it becomes effective. City Commissioners elected to have Sanford cover such insurance for the 30 days to be certain that appropriate coverage is given to personnel who may have to leave.

Placement of the information into the city's Personnel Rules and Regulations information and that addition of the 30 day coverage of dependent health insurance was approved unanimously by the members of the commission.

Supply drive slowing mail delivery

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The need to move combat-related supplies and equipment is slowing mail deliveries to American troops in the Middle East, military officials say.

It takes an average of 13 to 17 days from the time a letter is mailed to the time it's delivered, Air Force Maj. Mark Rader said Tuesday. "Competing priorities have caused less mail to be moved," said Rader, a spokesman for the Military Postal Service Agency. "You have a lot of units moving around," he said. "Any time you pick up a whole unit from one part of Saudi Arabia and move it to another part, it's going to take some time to catch up."

Military, media wrestle over access to information

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — The media and the military, never the best of friends, are engaged in an escalating battle over the journalists' rights to cover the war and the military's concerns over security. In the past two weeks at least a dozen reporters and photographers have been detained by military personnel after trying to gather stories outside the official press pools, groups of reporters traveling under military escort.

These incidents range from the whimsical to the terrifying. In one case, an Associated Press writer and photographer were held six hours by a unit of the 1st Cavalry Division. They were given dinner, shown flashes from B-52 air strikes from over the horizon, and provided with other glimpses of camp life that generated a story.

In a grimmer incident, Wesley Bocze, a photographer on assignment for Time magazine, was held for 30 hours by members of the Alabama National Guard. At times during his captivity, Bocze was blindfolded and interrogated.

"They were very, very scared soldiers and they didn't recognize my press credential," said the 30-year-old New Yorker.

On Sunday, New York Times reporter Chris Hedges was detained for six hours and his credentials were temporarily lifted after he tried to ask officials at a military hospital for permission to conduct an interview.

"I was told I could lose my credentials, have my visa revoked and be asked to leave the kingdom," he said. His credentials were returned the next day.

Hedges' case is more typical of incidents reported during the past week in the areas of Khafji and Haf al Batin, where reporters, chafing under the tight controls of the pool system, have begun to venture out unescorted in search of stories.

CBS newsmen Bob Simon and three crew members disappeared two weeks ago while traveling unescorted near the Kuwaiti border. They have not been seen since.

Hedges said he was in an area to interview Saudi shopkeepers before he was taken into custody by a military policeman from the Alabama National Guard.

"I was told I violated the agreement (the military ground rules) by coming into a front line area unescorted," said Hedges. "It's true I talked to soldiers. But I was in a civilian area doing a story about the local economy."

"They took it upon themselves to detain me when I was working in a civilian area, on Saudi soil and tried to revoke a Saudi-issued card," he said.

The Hedges case isn't likely to be the last incident. With nearly 800 journalists vying for a mere 128 spots on the various press pools, many reporters and photographers have struck off on their own to find something to photograph or write about.

The alternative is to rely on reports written by the pools. In the developing jargon of the conflict, these independents are known as "unilaterals," a name that is a badge of courage or shame depending on your point of view.

The military contends that according to ground rules set by U.S. authorities, reporters and photographers cannot interview military personnel unless escorted by a public affairs officer.

Officials say that without these controls, reporters would be wandering around in unsecure areas at a time when fear of terrorism is high.

Yugoslav republics meet to talk

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Secessionist Croatia and Slovenia say they will seek U.N. mediation if talks fail to settle the nation's political crisis.

Presidents of Yugoslavia's six fractious states were to meet today for a fourth round of talks on the future of the country, which is torn by ethnic and religious rivalries and by ideological rifts between Communist and non-Communist republics.

The leaders of Slovenia and Croatia met on Tuesday to coordinate strategy ahead of the talks.

Afterward, the two republics said in a statement that a future Yugoslavia is possible only "as a community of independent republics, which recognize each other's sovereignty and territorial integrity."

Caribbean tourism hobbled

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Fears of terrorist attacks linked to the Persian Gulf War, along with a slowdown in the U.S. economy, are wreaking havoc on the Caribbean's multibillion-dollar tourist industry.

Tour operators and airlines estimate a 20 percent to 30 percent drop in business since the war broke out, the Caribbean Tourism Organization says.

"It started slowing down in the middle of December when the war talk started, and then it went dead," said Nick Pourzal, managing director of the Frenchmen's Reef Beach Resort on St. Thomas.

Troop reduction talks opening

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The United States will open talks Thursday with the Soviet Union on the withdrawal of tens of thousands of NATO and Warsaw Pact troops from Europe, even while squabbling with Moscow over weapons cutbacks.

The outlook is so cloudy on the eve of the talks in Vienna, Austria, that State Department spokeswoman Margaret D. Tutwiler said Tuesday "they could proceed not to proceed. I don't know."

The problem lies with a treaty signed by the same 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization and six Warsaw Pact nations in Paris last November. There are disputes over how to carry out its provisions for reductions in tanks, aircraft and other non-nuclear weapons.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III has taken the Soviets to task for trying to exempt three motorized infantry divisions from the cutbacks by assigning them to naval units. The shifting of thousands of Soviet tanks east of the Ural Mountains and the figures Moscow has provided on current weapons levels also have been questioned by the Bush administration.

Some independent analysts consider the Soviet fulfillment of treaty obligations continues to be a problem. We and our NATO allies agree that we cannot proceed with business as usual.

—Margaret D. Tutwiler, U.S. spokeswoman disagreements to be minor and solvable. But the administration has labeled them important, and Baker said they go to the heart of "trust."

The two sides gave themselves 90 days, or until Sunday, to settle the compliance questions. However, Ms. Tutwiler said the deadline could be extended.

Meanwhile, negotiations to move beyond the treaty to reduce the size of armies across Europe will at least begin Thursday as scheduled, she said.

A major U.S. goal is to compel Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to implement his pledge to withdraw Soviet troops from East Germany and Poland.

Last February, the United States and the Soviet Union set 195,000 as a projected ceiling for Soviet troops in Eastern and Central Europe and 225,000 for U.S. troops based in NATO countries.

The actual ceilings may be lower, however. Gorbachev is under pressure from within the Warsaw Pact to pull Soviet forces back to Soviet territory. For economic and other reasons he is committed to a big pullback.

But the negotiators are unlikely to make much headway until the disputes over the Conventional Forces in Europe treaty are resolved.

Baker told Congress last week he had recommended to President Bush that the treaty not be submitted to the Senate for ratification until the disputes are settled. "Soviet fulfillment of CFE treaty obligations continues to be a problem," Ms. Tutwiler said Tuesday.

"Under these circumstances, we and our NATO allies agree that we cannot proceed with business as usual" in the negotiations, she said.

"We are currently consulting with our allies on the specific approach that we should take."

Asked how far the negotiations would get, the spokeswoman said: "The first meeting will take place, and I can't tell you where they will go from there."

China still cannot put '89 behind it

By KATHY WILHELM
AP News Analysis

BEIJING — Sentencing the alleged masterminds of China's 1989 democracy movement completes a government-planned ritual intended to exorcise the ghost of protests past. But Western observers don't believe the crackdown will be forgotten that easily.

In quick succession over five weeks, the government held closed, carefully scripted trials for 31 leading participants in the movement, many of them well-known students and scholars.

In the final climactic trials, it put much of the blame for the largely spontaneous, unplanned movement on the shoulders of two intellectuals, Wang Juntao and Chen Ziming, and sentenced them on Tuesday to 13 years in prison.

That done, authorities hope the nation and the world will finally forget about 1989's seven weeks of marches and hunger strikes, followed by a two-day bloody army attack on protesters in Beijing in which hundreds and possibly thousands of people were killed.

In what may have been more than coincidence, the trials wrapped up just before the Spring Festival, which marks the lunar new year and is China's biggest holiday.

But the crushing of the democracy movement and jailing of its leaders is likely to remain on the minds of many Chinese and continue to be an irritant in China's foreign relations.

"They've created two martyrs now," Robin Munro, a researcher for the New York-based human rights group Asia Watch, said after Chen and Wang were sentenced.

Troubled winter for E. Germany; Bonn offers aid

By KEVIN COSTELLO
Associated Press Writer

LEIPZIG, Germany — The heady days of revolution have given way to a winter of hardship in eastern Germany, forcing Bonn to step up a cash infusion of billions of dollars to keep the former Communist land afloat.

In Leipzig, there is resentment to the hard times among those who set in motion the mass street protests that toppled the Communist regime of former East German leader Erich Honecker and set in motion the path to German unification.

"We didn't take to the streets in October 1989 to get this," said Pastor Christian Fuehrer, a leader of the peaceful uprising. He said more than 120,000 city residents have been affected by job cuts.

"We wanted to improve the system. We wanted more humane conditions for the people in our country. Now we have another emergency to contend with," said Fuehrer, the pastor of Leipzig's St. Nicholas Lutheran Church.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl's government said Tuesday it was sending about $6 billion to the east this month to help cities and towns cope with financial crises. That's up from $3.8 billion in January.

ABC wins Nielsen derby again

LOS ANGELES — For the first time in a decade, ABC has remained the No. 1 network for three consecutive weeks. Aided by Barbara Walters and a heavy dose of comedy, half of television's top 10 shows for the week of Feb. 4-10 belonged to ABC.

According to A.C. Nielsen Co. figures released Tuesday, ABC's highest-rated show was Sunday's installment of "America's Funniest Home Videos," which placed third.

Of the many TV and feature films shown last week to attract more viewers, CBS' controversial movie about Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz ranked the highest at No. 17. "Lucy and Desi: Before the Laughter," which chronicled the early years of the couple's marriage, was criticized by daughter Lucie Arnaz as inaccurate and one-sided.

Irreverence, patriotism mark Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS — It was party time with a vengeance — against Saddam Hussein — and red, white and blue vied with traditional purple, yellow and green as the predominant colors at this year's Mardi Gras.

An estimated 1 million people jammed New Orleans streets Tuesday for the annual blowout that precedes Ash Wednesday and the beginning of the Lenten season, a time of penitence for many Christians.

War in the Persian Gulf turned much of this year's Mardi Gras celebration into a patriotic affair. Dozens of Statues of Liberty, Betsy Rosses and make-believe soldiers marched in a dozen parades. Hussein's effigy hung from New Orleans' huge oak trees and from lamp posts, ladders and balconies along the parade route. A small effigy of the Iraqi leader also hung from the back of Mary West's Arab-style robes, where "Operation Desert Storm" was written.

Remove 'Marlboro' from video games

NEW YORK — Philip Morris says it is considering legal action to force the video-game maker Sega and video arcade owners to remove Marlboro logos from children's video games.

"We are going to go after the retailers, and we are going to consider our legal options concerning Sega," said Leslie Zuke, a spokesman for Philip Morris Cos. Inc. in New York.

Zuke commented Tuesday on a spot check by Associated Press reporters who found the Marlboro logos in arcades in Denver, Miami, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Nashville, Tenn. and New York in mid-January.

The games were manufactured by Sega of South San Francisco, Calif., which last year negotiated an agreement with Philip Morris under which Sega was supposed to have the logos removed.

Diabetic women can reduce risk

CHICAGO — Diabetic women who receive a refresher course on how to manage their disease before they become pregnant can dramatically reduce their likelihood of bearing defective babies, said a study released today.

"Diabetes care has to begin before pregnancy," said the study's principal author, Dr. John L. Kitzmiller, a professor at the University of California, San Francisco.

Oscar nominations due in pre-dawn ceremony

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — The epic western "Dances With Wolves" and the gangster movie "GoodFellas" led the pack of favorites for this year's Oscar nominations today.

The nominees for best cinematic achievements of 1990 were to be announced in a ceremony at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences headquarters.

Nominees in such categories as best picture, best director, best actress and best actor were determined in voting by the academy's 4,800 members. Awards will be presented March 25.

Based on previous awards, early favorites for best picture were "Dances With Wolves" and "GoodFellas."

The best actor contenders were Kevin Costner in "Dances With Wolves" and Al Pacino in "The Godfather Part III."

Actresses who received other awards going into the Oscar nominations included Anjelica Huston for "The Grifters" and Joanne Woodward for "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge."

Officials from the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse delivered the nominations to the Academy headquarters on Tuesday. To ensure secrecy, the Academy sequestered its staff in the building all night to assemble the list of nominated films and performers.

Analysts estimate that just being nominated in a top category can bring a film an extra $10 million in box-office business, while winning can mean as much as $20 million.

Last year, Warner Bros. used a leading nine Oscar nominations to revitalize "Driving Miss Daisy" at the box office.

The studio was hoping to do the same this year with the critically acclaimed "GoodFellas," which has done only moderate business so far. Warner Bros. plans to re-release the film on about 1,000 screens on Friday.

"GoodFellas" was previously named best movie of the year by the National Society of Film Critics, as well as by film critic organizations in New York, Los Angeles and Boston.

The National Board of Review selected "Dances With Wolves" as 1990's best film and "Cyrano de Bergerac" as the top foreign-language film.

At the Golden Globes, awarded in January, the top winning films were "Dances With Wolves" and "Green Card."

Each of the Academy's branches votes for its peers, meaning actors nominate actors, directors nominate directors, and so on. All members vote for best picture. Two hundred and twenty-three feature-length films were eligible this year.

Comedian Billy Crystal will be host of the March 25 Academy Awards ceremony at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles.

Actress Myrna Loy will receive an honorary Oscar for lifetime achievement

Bush plan would improve mass transit systems and highways

Five-year program would involve private enterprise

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush is pushing a $105 billion, five-year program to improve the nation's highways and mass transit systems while reshaping transportation financing.

He wants to get private enterprise involved in refurbishing roads and bridges and use tolls and user fees to help pay the costs. He also wants to give states and cities more flexibility in spending transportation dollars.

Bush and Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner were to give the proposed legislation a ceremonial send-off at the White House today. It is the first concrete effort to implement the highway and mass transit portions of the national transportation policy announced last year.

But even before the bill was formally released, many state transportation officials were expressing reservations. They fear the proposed changes would increase their costs and provide inadequate federal financing to meet transportation needs such as the repair of deteriorating bridges and roads.

They expect much of the Bush bill to be rewritten by Congress.

"It is not dead on arrival but it will not pass as arrived," said Frank Francois, executive director of the Association of State Highway Transportation Officials.

Hal Rives, the association's president, called the bill a good start and added: "On a scale of 1 to 10 we give the administration bill a 6."

"The concept is good," said Rives, who also is Georgia's transportation commissioner. "It streamlines the entire program. But the funding is clearly inadequate to meet our national transportation needs. And what money is there is not fairly distributed."

"However, we hope that Congress will correct these shortcomings and pass new landmark legislation as soon as possible," Rives said.

The administration bill calls for a two-tier approach to highway spending.

It would designate a national highway system of roads of special significance to the federal government. These would include the 42,000-mile Interstate Highway System and other key roads for a total federal network of some 150,000 miles.

White House team being overhauled

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush is overhauling his White House staff at a time when his popularity in public opinion polls is sky high and political attention is focused on the Persian Gulf War.

The shuffle, directed by chief of staff John Sununu, is reshaping Bush's speech-writing, congressional liaison and political teams.

Although Bush is riding high in the polls, his strategists are mindful that popularity can evaporate quickly if casualties mount sharply in a prolonged ground offensive.

And, even when the war is over, the president must contend with the recession and with a federal deficit his own budget office predicts will reach a stratospheric $318 billion this year.

Some of the staff changes are designed to overcome trouble spots and ease frictions that developed last year.

The rearranging also comes as Sununu casts an eye toward the 1992 presidential election, said officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Suburb rich in gold, prospector says

Associated Press

McLEAN, Va. — Just a few miles from downtown Washington, in a wooded ravine below lavish suburban mansions, John D'Agostino wades through an icy creek panning for gold.

Yes, he says, there's gold in the hills above Washington.

"We're sitting on one of the world's greatest gold belts," says D'Agostino, a government geologist and longtime gold prospector.

"Most people don't believe the East Coast has any gold," he says. "They think it's all out West, but it's just as rich here. Gold could be all over the place. It's wide open."

Standing in rubber boots in the middle of Bull Neck Run, which rushes through exclusive McLean into the Potomac River, D'Agostino bends down and slashes sparkling water through a metal pan full of sand and pebbles shoveled from the muddy banks.

He squints at the silt through a magnifying glass, searching for tiny flakes of gold. "You can hear a nugget before you see it — clunk, clunk, clunk," he whispers.

Nearby are the ruins of an abandoned gold mine.

Magic win streak grows to four

ORLANDO — Scott Skiles scored 33 points while Jerry Reynolds and Otis Smith had 26 each Tuesday night as Orlando defeated the Denver Nuggets 129-122 for the first four-game winning streak in the Magic's two-year history.

Skiles, who had an NBA record 30 assists in his last game against the Nuggets on Dec. 30, scored 12 points in the fourth quarter, while Reynolds had 14.

The Nuggets led 110-106 on a hook shot by Joe Wolf with 6:18 remaining, but the Magic outscored Denver 23-12 the rest of the way.

The Magic have won five of their last six games, while the Nuggets lost for only the second time in eight games.

Cavs halt skid against Heat

MIAMI — Brad Daugherty had 25 points and 15 rebounds, as the Cleveland Cavaliers overcame 19 first-half turnovers and snapped a three-game losing streak with a 94-78 win over the Miami Heat Tuesday.

Neither team played well in the first half, which ended with Cleveland on top 41-39.

The Cavaliers' problem was the 19 turnovers, one short of a team record for a half and setting a new Heat opponent record in that category. Cleveland came into the contest averaging 15.5 turnovers per game.

The Heat had only two points from the bench in the first half, as only five Miami players did the scoring.

Sherman Douglas led Miami with 29 points, while Grant Long added 18. Douglas has now averaged 25.5 points in his last four outings. The 78 points were a season low for the Heat.

COLLEGE HOOPS

Davis, Poole lead Gators

GAINESVILLE — Dwayne Davis scored 22 points and Stacey Poole added 20 to give Florida a 90-75 victory over Georgia Tuesday night.

Davis was perfect from the field, hitting eight-of-eight shots and grabbing 11 rebounds for the Gators (10-12, 6-7 in the Southeastern Conference).

Georgia (12-10, 5-8), led by Litteral Green's game-high 35 points, had a rough night shooting, making only 44 percent (27-of-60) from the field and only nine of 23 3-pointers.

Florida made 59 percent (27-of-46) from the field and took advantage of 31 Georgia fouls to go 33-of-42, including 19-of-22 in the last three minutes from the free-throw line.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Miami has big 'Day' vs. Tampa

CORAL GABLES — Senior righthander Steve Day pitched five perfect innings and had a career-high 10 strikeouts Tuesday, leading Miami to a 6-1 victory over Tampa.

Juan Llanea went 2-for-3, singling home Chris Anderson with two outs in the bottom of the first inning to give Miami (5-2) an early 1-0 lead.

Day and reliever Ryan Karp held the Tampa Spartans (2-3) to only two hits.

Tampa's Glen Finnerty homered to open the top of the sixth inning to break up the perfect game.

Tribe, Rams bow out

Justin Walker (No. 13, left) assisted on a goal for Lake Mary while Geordie Davison (No. 9, right) scored a goal for Seminole Tuesday night. But both the Rams and Seminole came up a goal short, dropping 2-1 decisions in their regional championship games. Seminole lost to New Port Richey-Gulf while Winter Park beat Lake Mary.

Buccaneers too much for Tribe

By TONY DeBORNER
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — For nearly 10 minutes, Seminole had its hands on the 3A-District IV boys' soccer championship.

But the New Port Richey-Gulf Buccaneers scored a pair of goals in the final eight minutes to pull out a 2-1 win Tuesday night at Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

"I am so proud of everybody," said Seminole Coach Carlos Merlino, who was uncharacteristically moved to tears by the emotional effort his over-matched team gave against Gulf. "We played really well. Even I was surprised. The kids apparently got some confidence going."

"The game plan was get on top of them early before they got their legs under them after the long bus ride. And we came out flying. We had a couple of scoring opportunities. But both goalkeepers were outstanding."

Seminole sophomore 'keeper Jon Williams was exceptionally tough, leaping this way and that to parry point-blank shots by the Buccaneers. His play lifted that of his teammates, who locked up with Gulf in a stare-down contest and forced the Buca to blink first.

Just when it was starting to look like Williams and Gulf goalkeeper Paul Evans would send the game to overtime, Seminole's Geordie Davison scored on a beautiful shot. After taking a pass from Marcus Egan in the Gulf penalty area, Davison turned and fired a quick shot that beat Evans and found the far post with just under 17 minutes to play.

But the Buccaneers, who came into the game with a 20-2-1 record that included wins over a pair of state-ranked teams, kept coming. It took nine minutes before Tom Chestnutt netted the equalizer, nodding home a corner kick from Todd Shaw.

Winter Park disappoints Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — For the fifth time in eight years, the Winter Park Wildcats captured the 4A-Region V boys' soccer championship as they defeated the Lake Mary Rams 2-1 Tuesday evening at Lake Mary's Don T. Reynolds Stadium, advancing to the 4A-Section III finals.

The Wildcats, now 21-4-4, scored off of the opening kickoff when Dan McNamara connected with Matt Biggs on a long pass. Biggs then rocketed a shot from just outside the Lake Mary penalty box into the net, giving Winter Park a 1-0 lead only 0:07 into the match.

"That goal helped us to relax," said Winter Park Coach Terry Offner. "And it created some pressure on Lake Mary."

The Wildcats continued to put the pressure on during the first half as Wolde Harris and McNamara executed a great give-and-go. Harris' shot hit the crossbar and the rebound came right to McNamara, whose shot was saved by Ram goalkeeper Jason Redditt.

A few minutes later, Winter Park was awarded an indirect free kick inside the Lake Mary penalty box. The ball was tapped to Harris but his shot went just over the crossbar.

The Rams, who finish the season at 12-7-7, finally got the offense on track late in the first half. They nearly tied the match when Steve Heidt sent a throw-in into the Wildcat goal box where Brian Coduto took a shot from point-blank range. Winter Park goalkeeper Quinn O'Sullivan made a great save to send the Wildcats into halftime holding a 1-0 lead.

In the second half, Winter Park picked up where it left off. The Wildcats finally scored again when Ryan Welch played in the rebound of Brad Hoppman's shot with 24:55 remaining.

Down 2-0, the Rams then started to take control of the match.

Mary's only goal Tuesday night. The Rams fell to Winter Park 2-1 in the 4A-Region I title game.

Lake Mary scored less than two minutes later. Heidt sent a throw-in into the Wildcat goal box where Justin Walker headed a shot on goal. O'Sullivan made the save but the Josh Arnold got to the rebound and cut the margin to 2-1 with 23:04 remaining.

The Rams continued to put pressure on the Winter Park defense, looking for the equalizer. With only 5:00 remaining, Lake Mary got its best chance when Scott Clavins took a shot from just outside the Wildcat penalty box. The ball rebounded off of a wall of players and came right to John Hodak who was all alone on the goalkeeper. But O'Sullivan made the save of the match, preserving the victory for the Wildcats.

"We have a very young ball club with nine starters returning next year," said Lake Mary Coach Larry McCorkle. "This playoff experience will prove to be very beneficial to us next year."

Defense

The Tribe, now 20-1 overall and 11-0 in the Seminole Athletic Conference, raced out to a 20-14 lead in the first quarter and increased the lead to 35-23 at halftime despite having starters Kennon, Washington, Alexander and Julie Francis all on bench in foul trouble for the last three minutes of the half.

"Fortunately, we have a bench to go to when we need to," said McNamara. "Everyone played tonight and played very well."

The Seminoles increased their lead in the third quarter to 50-31 before the Greyhounds, now 11-9 and 6-4 in the SAC, mounted their comeback bid.

Tournament

Two-out double was the big hit for the Lions in the second.

Stuckey then came in to relieve starter Jason Oodpastor and shut down Oviedo the rest of the way.

But the Greyhounds were not doing much against the Lions' Darcy Garrett, who took over for starter David Blanton in the second after Blanton came down with a sore arm.

Lyman finally broke through in the sixth. Andy Spolski reached on an error and Frank Harmer doubled to deep left-center to score Spolski. Shane Odum then singled to left and Kevin Scott singled to right to score Harmer.

After a force out, Jared Soto walked to load the bases and Shawn Stuckey walked to force in a run. Jump followed with his single to score two runs. A third run scored on the play when the Lion catcher tossed the ball into left field trying to get Soto at third.

Doing the hitting for Lyman were Scott (2 for 3, double, RBI), Harmer (1 for 3, double, RBI), Jump (1 for 4, 2 RBI) and Odum (1 for 2).

Calapa went 1 for 1 with a double, two RBI and three walks to pace the Oviedo offense. Also getting hits were Garrett (2 for 3, RBI) and Blanton (1 for 1). Chris Huff and Ryan Alkire also scored for the Lions.

In Tuesday's first game, Seminole scored single runs in each of the first four innings to beat the Warriors.

Four walks in the top of the first scored the first Tribe run. Jeremy Churnat scored the run with Chris Dowling getting the RBI. W.L. Gracy led off the second with a walk, stole second, advanced to third on a Ray Adcock single and scored on a hit-and-run ground out by David Eckstein.

In the third inning, Rich Eckstein walked and later scored led the score. The Buccaneers then moved in for the kill and, five minutes later, scored the game winner when Jeff Starkey took an indirect kick and ripped it past the Tribe defensive wall.

Davison came close to tying the score for Seminole in the final seconds, but his header went over the cross bar.

"What I'm most proud of is that there was an excellent soccer game played at Seminole High School that involved Seminole," said Merlino. "That's something they're not used to seeing here."

"It felt like we were in a boxing match. We were up against the ropes, protecting ourselves and not really getting hit hard. Kind of like Muhammad Ali's rope-a-dope. Eventually, at the end, they got us."

doctor to attempt to play wearing a brace.

Against Eustis, Morris played just a few minutes, scoring two points.

Luckily for the Rams, they didn't need her to make a large offensive contribution against Eustis. Melissa Mau also scored 14 points (all in the first half) while Dawn Judd added 12.

"It was a good, all-out team effort, especially in the second half," said Lake Mary Coach Anna Van Lindingham of her team. "I was impressed with their intensity in the third quarter. They came out ready to play after halftime."

Defensively, Citarella led Lake Mary with seven steals. Mau added a game-high 16 rebounds.

The Lake Mary Junior varsity were also victorious, beating

Eustis 44-7.

Lake Mary will wrap up its regular seasons on Thursday night at Seminole.

Mainland drops Oviedo

OVIDEO — The normally sure-handed Oviedo Lions suddenly had trouble handling the ball Tuesday night, fumbling away a 60-56 loss to the visiting Mainland Buccaneers in a high school girls' basketball game.

It was Oviedo's third loss in a row after winning seven straight. "What killed us was our ball handling," said Oviedo Coach John Thomas. "And it wasn't pressure ball handling. We just threw the ball away."

Even with the generous way Oviedo was turning the ball over, the Lions still led by four at one point late in the game. Oviedo led 36-24 at halftime before Mainland turned that around by outscoring the Lions 21-9 in the third period.

Christa Vaughn and Jessica Castro led the offense for Oviedo, Vaughn scoring 18 points while Castro contributed 11.

In the junior varsity preliminary contest, Mainland topped Oviedo 51-49.

The Lions will cap their regular season when they play at Lake Highland Prep on Thursday night.

Three-point field goals — Mainland 5 (Nicklas 1, Sanders 2, Wharthen 1), Total fouls — Mainland 12, Oviedo 12. Fouled out — None. Technicals — None. Records — Oviedo 12-12, Mainland 19-7.

Seminole Coach Mike Powers was pleased with performance of Eltonhead.

"He did a good job of pitching of several jams," said Powers. "He pitched a real nice game."

Lake Howell at Evans
ORLANDO — Mervyl Melendez drove in four runs with three home runs and Bobby Coleman added a solo shot as Lake Howell opened its baseball season with a 5-4 triumph over the Evans Trojans Tuesday.

Andre Johnson scattered four hits as the Silver Hawks outlived Evans 8-4.

inning and Collins' 3-run shot in the second inning.

SCC answered with single runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Blane Barroso reached on an error and later scored on Rich Knisner's single in the fourth. Niles walked and scored on Chad Epperson's sacrifice fly in the fifth inning.

But the Patriots countered each run with a run of their own. Collins singled and later scored on Rojas' sacrifice fly in the fifth while Chuck Reasonover singled and scored on Ray Parrish's double in the sixth.

Wyman's solo home run in the seventh increased the lead to 8-2.

The Raiders tried to come back in the bottom of the ninth when Knisner walked and later scored on Scott Cursi ground out. But Evans grounded into a double play to end the game.

"We have to play better if we expect to compete in this league," said SCC coach Jack Pantelias. "But I think we will get better and we'll be there in the end."

The Raiders will try to snap their five-game losing streak on Thursday afternoon when they travel to face Mid-Florida Conference for Valencia Community College.

Say 'I love you' with chicken

Heart-smart fowl low in fat, calories

Valentine's is a day for romance and what more appropriate way to celebrate than with a candlelight dinner for two.

For the nutrition-conscious, this day of hearts and flowers will take on added appeal when low fat, low calorie, low cholesterol chicken is the entree.

There are numerous easy and tasty ways to prepare chicken which highlight its natural goodness and nutritional benefits without the addition of rich, high calorie and fat laden sauces. The National Broiler Council developed two (below) with busy romantics in mind. Both of these dishes can be prepared and served in no time at all by even a novice cook.

Chicken in Tomato Marsala Sauce keeps sodium, oil and cholesterol at a minimum. Served on linguine, it needs only a green salad to complete a meal which can be ready to enjoy in less than an hour.

Ginger Chicken with Carrots and Fruit is another heart-smart dish that says "I love you and I want to take care of you." It is an unusual combination of tender chicken strips with carrots, pineapple and cherries seasoned with soy and ginger — no salt or oil added. Serve it on rice for a complete meal.

To make the occasion even more festive, set the table with hearts and flowers. Then leave the rest to Cupid!

CHICKEN IN TOMATO MARSALA SAUCE

2 large boneless, skinless broiler-fryer chicken breast pieces
1/4 tsp. oregano
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/4 tsp. onion powder

1/4 tsp. fresh ground pepper
Vegetable cooking spray
4 oz. fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/4 cup Marsala wine

In small bowl, mix together oregano, garlic powder onion powder and pepper; sprinkle generously over all sides of chicken using all of mixture. Heat non-stick frypan over medium temperature about 1 minute; then spray with vegetable cooking spray. Add chicken and cook about 5 minutes more. Push chicken to side and add tomato sauce and wine, stirring with mushrooms to mix well. Arrange chicken in sauce and simmer about 12 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Simple gift of yourself is best Valentine

DEAR READERS: Don't tell me that tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day already — we just finished with Christmas. Well, it is, so be a sweetheart and call someone and say, "Hi, I love you." Make two or three calls — who said you can't love more than one person? In different ways, of course.

Be a sweetheart and go through your closets and part with all those clothes you've been saving until you lose 10 pounds. Your favorite charity can turn those good-as-new garments into cash.

Be a sweetheart and call someone who's lonely and say, "I'm thinking about you." Or better yet, say, "I'll be over tomorrow and take you to lunch, run some errands or give you a ride."

Arrange a date for some nice person who doesn't get many. Be a sweetheart and forgive an enemy, quit smoking, count your calories, return that book (and everything else) you've borrowed. Update your will, donate your eyes, your kidneys and all usable organs to someone who can use them after you're gone. Spray your dog, neuter your cat, toss some bread crumbs out for the birds, pay your doctor and your dentist. If you can't pay all your bills — pay part of it to show good faith. Buy your teen-ager, niece or a best friend a new sweater, shoes or a book.

Promise yourself to drive carefully, and if you're walking, thank God you're able to, and watch where you're going. Pray for the safety of all our men and women who are serving their country in all four corners of the world, and pray for their families at home who are doing without them. And don't wait until next St. Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again.

LOVE, ABBY

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a wonderful man, and we are talking about getting married.

We are both mature people and have been on several trips together, so we are not exactly strangers — ahem, I think you get my drift. There is one problem:

I find it impossible to sleep in the same bed with him. I am a very light sleeper and need my full eight hours' sleep, but this man is not only a snorer, he constantly tosses and turns, and he talks in his sleep!

The idea of separate beds had entered my mind, but is not a possibility for me because I love to fall asleep in his arms.

Is there a solution to this problem?

DEAR INDOLENT: Go ahead and fall asleep in his arms, and when he starts to snore and thrash around, take your pillow and move to a quieter place.

DEAR ABBY: Last year, a woman (unmarried) who works in our office received flowers, candy and several valentines — all from imaginary "admirers." Everyone knew she had sent them to herself, but nobody let on, of course. She will probably be "remembered" by these same gentlemen friends whom nobody has ever met tomorrow when St. Valentine's Day rolls around again.

What do you think of a grown woman who would pull such a childish stunt? And how should we — who are not fooled — react?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: I think she's pathetic and sadly in need of attention. React as if she had put one over the home plate, and it won't cost you anything.

DEAR ABBY: I am a mother and grandmother, and I am very upset because our president is sending young mothers to the Persian Gulf. I know there have always been women in the armed services, but when it comes to the possibility of getting killed, it's a different matter.

We should do what we did during World War II. All the single people go first, then the married ones with no children, then those with only one child, etc. How do you tell 3- and 4-year-olds that Mama has to go to war?

With women's lib, everything has changed. I think it's terrible to break up families this way. I hope you think this is important enough to put in your column.

FLORENCE GOODWIN, MELBOURNE, FLA.

DEAR FLORENCE: I agree with you; it is indeed terrible to break up families. But women are in the armed services voluntarily. They are not "drafted" as were men during World War II and Vietnam. Every woman who joined should have been fully aware that she could be called upon for combat duty.

And you tell 3- and 4-year-olds that Mama has to go to war the same way you tell them that Daddy has to go.

Italian Night

FAMILY DINNER

Friday, Feb. 15 5-8 P.M.
Sanford Civic Center

Spaghetti dinner and all the trimmings prepared by Carl Dietrich. Sponsored by The Woman's Club of Sanford

Adult $2.50 Children Under 12 $1.50

Cook majority of week's food on weekends, freeze for later

Many women and men have become "weekend cooks" because the busy week-day schedules do not allow enough time (even using the microwave) to prepare and cook many family favorites. And often our schedules do not allow all of us to be at the table at once. For more flexibility, try doing the majority of your cooking on the weekend when you have the time and freeze foods for later serving.

Try preparing a little extra meat, then combine the extra cooked meat with sauces or gravy, freeze for another meal. The microwave will do a great job defrosting and heating these already-prepared dishes.

BARBECUED PORK SANDWICHES

4 C. catsup
1 1/2 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 1/2 Tbsp. vinegar
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. celery seed
1/2 tsp. liquid smoke, optional
Dash of pepper
2 C. thinly-sliced cooked pork
8 hamburger buns, split

Combine all ingredients except pork and buns in 1-qt. microwave/freezer container. Add cooked pork. Seal and freeze up to 3 months.

To heat: Open container; add 1/4 cup water. Microwave on 100% power, uncovered, 7-8 minutes or until boiling, stirring once or twice. Spoon about 1/4 cup mixture into each bun.

Make lasagna in two smaller sizes and freeze for later use.

LASAGNA

1 clove garlic, minced
1 medium onion, chopped

MICROWAVE BASIC
MIDGE MYCOFF

2 Tbsp. water
1 lb. ground beef
1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes, undrained
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
2 tsp. sugar
1 1/2 tsp. basil leaves
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. oregano leaves
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 C. Ricotta cheese
2 eggs, slightly beaten
8 lasagna noodles, cooked
1 pkg. (10 oz.) sliced Mozzarella cheese

Combine garlic, onion and water in 2-qt. casserole. Microwave on 100% power uncovered, 5-8 minutes or until tender. Crumble ground beef. Microwave (100%), uncovered, 5-6 minutes or until no longer pink, stirring once. Stir to break meat into pieces; drain. Stir in tomatoes, tomato paste, sugar, basil, salt, oregano and pepper. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100% power, 10-15 minutes or until thickened and flavors blended, stirring once. Mix together Ricotta cheese and eggs.

Spoon about 3 Tbsp. meat sauce into two 8-inch square baking dishes. Layer 3 lasagna noodles or sauce. Divide Ricotta cheese mixture evenly between dishes; spread evenly. Arrange a layer of Mozzarella cheese over Ricotta cheese. Spoon 1/4 meat sauce into each dish; spread evenly. Top with remaining noodles, Mozzarella cheese and meat sauce. Cover, label and freeze up to 1 month.

To heat: Microwave on 100% power one dish at a time, covered with plastic wrap, 10 minutes. Then, microwave on 50% power for 20-25 minutes. Let stand 5-10 minutes before cutting into squares and serving.

The last time I ate at the French restaurant at Epcot, I had this wonderful French stew. Try it at home and serve it with crusty French bread.

BEEF BOURGIGNON

2 medium carrots, peeled
2 C. cooked beef cubes
1 C. beef cooking juices or broth
1/2 C. halved fresh mushrooms
1 jar (16 oz.) whole onions, undrained
1 clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
3 Tbsp. dry red wine
1 tsp. parsley flakes
1 Tbsp. flour

Cut carrots in half lengthwise, then into 1-inch pieces. Combine all ingredients in 2-qt. casserole; mix until smooth. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100% power, 15-17 minutes, or until tender, stirring once or twice. Cool. Freeze in casserole or 2-qt. freezer container up to 3 months.

To heat: Microwave on 100% power covered with lid or plastic wrap, 15-17 minutes or until hot, stirring twice.

Acne, eczema need separate treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a history of acne and eczema. Most recently I've been plagued with "dishpan hands." I wear latex gloves in the shower and try not to get too much water on my skin. My dermatologist treats this with injections and cream after the rash breaks out. However, I am interested in a pill or medication to prevent the attacks. Help!

DEAR READER: Acne and eczema, two common skin diseases of unknown cause, are extremely difficult to treat when they co-exist. Acne is marked by plugging and infection of pores. Treatment consists of scrupulous washing with medicated soap, antibiotics (notably tetracycline) and Accutane (isotretinoin), an analog of vitamin A. These treatments are ineffective against eczema. Also, Accutane has many serious side effects (such as birth defects, increased blood fats, bowel and liver inflammation, and impaired night vision), which have caused the manufacturer to recommend its use only for severe acne.

On the other hand, eczema, which may be an allergic reaction, is usually treated with cortisone, a drug best avoided in acne because it can aggravate infection.

DEAR DR. GOTT: After having open heart surgery three years ago, I enlisted in a local wellness group for rehabilitation. While lifting weights one day, I suffered severe upper arm pain, which forbade any future attempts at the exercise. My doctor suggested physical therapy, which I have followed enthusiastically; however, there's no improvement after one year. Why would bilateral arm pain remain?

DEAR READER: Weightlifting often leads to tendon inflammation that can be chronically painful and difficult to cure. I know several people who developed bicipital tendinitis (inflammation of the arms' biceps tendons) from weight training and, in some cases, the pain lasted more than a year, despite physical therapy. I suggest you ask for a referral to an orthopedic surgeon for diagnosis and advice. The specialist may prescribe ultrasound with cortisone cream, a method I have found successful

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

In treating bicipital tendinitis. While you await resolution of your arm problem, don't forget to continue a regular exercise program.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

North overtraded on his diamond void to jump to three spades. Since South was looking at the deck, he was quick to ask for aces. In North-South's Blackwood methods, five spades by North showed not only his two aces but also the queen of trumps. South thought that was enough to go for the grand slam, but the contract was far from laydown. Declarer won West's trump lead in hand and ruffed a diamond. He came back to his hand with a second high trump, gratefully noting that everyone followed, and ruffed another low diamond. He then came to his hand with the club king and cashed another high spade, throwing a heart from dummy. On this third spade play, West stuffed would make declarer's diamonds all winners, a club discard would make dummy's clubs all good, and West could not really tell that it was safe to blank the king of hearts. He finally did unguard the heart king, assuming that South held a hidden diamond suit for his aggressive grand slam bid, but that only postponed the day of reckoning. Declarer now cashed A-K of diamonds, and West was glad that he had held all his diamonds when East showed out. But the last spade was too much for West. If he threw the queen of diamonds, declarer's jack would be high; if he threw a club, the rest of the tricks would be taken by dummy's remaining A-Q-9 of clubs. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
