BIBLES VERSE FOR TODAY

COME ALL THE WORLD
Come, and hear, all ye that fear God, And I will declare what he hath done for my soul. Psalm 66:16

We might as well be content about it the next time and admit that it is a war to end peace.

The United States paid $15, 000,000 for Louisiana, but that was some time before Huey Long

It was only another automobile accident... but a five-year old child was left without a mother.

The farm problem wouldn't be half so hard to solve if there weren't so many people trying to solve it.

To hear some people talk, if it weren't for the newspapers, and the Republicans, none of us would know how bad off we really are.

We suppose Harold Vanderbilt was just trying to get even with the people by changing all the rules of bridge.

The movie magnates say they are not kidding about moving to Florida. We're not kidding either.
We don't care if they die.

We suppose there would be more point in broadcasting the Senate proceedings if Senator
Hodge could talk like Huey Long.

One of the advantages of spending all of a country's money
on a depression is that there would be anything left to lend foreigners for war.

If the depression lasts much longer the literary legend may have to change the name of the most famous column to "Lupus
in Grief."

The final test of true statesmanship these days seems to be whether a man can cause his political opponents for everything he can think of without being cut off
the radio.

We don't see why the RFC
won't lead to either the Sanford or the Sanford operation. If it could handle eight without an adverser, it ought to be able to spare a few odd drops to aid struggling municipalities.

One of the best fights which will be seen in Tallahassee this spring will be with liquor. In that respect it will differ from the problem which has confounded previous legislators only in that they were concerned chiefly with how to get it.

If the laws being made in Washington are not to your liking, perhaps the lawyers should get the blame for there are more lawyers in Congress than any other professional group. There are 27 lawyers, five doctors,
eight insurance men, nine bankers, 40 farmers, and on forth only 45
constituents.

The United States government spends more on its various citizens and industrial enterprises of $2, 000,000,000 more in 1933 than it did in 1923, while at the same time the banks of the country lost $5,000,000,000 fewer loans than it did the year before. While it is not clear from this that the government is actually crowding
the banks out of the leading field, it is clear and clear that the banking industry is being crowded out of the leading field.

Nobody Wants War

One never knows, when a statesman is quoted, whether he is truthfully quoted, whether he means what he says or is merely talking for purposes of propaganda, or whether he has made an honest mistake, but a foreign correspondent's report of a remark made by Adolf Hitler during the recent airplane ride strikes us as having been the cold unvarnished truth, whether it ever actually happened or not.

The incident is said to have occurred just after Hitler had made his startling announcement to the world that the Versailles Treaty was no longer a binding obligation on the people of Germany. Looking down upon the peaceful Prussian countryside outside Berlin, the Reichsfuehrer most dolefully said "Everyone of those people down there approves of what I have done, but not a single one of them suspects that it may lead to war."

That it seems to us, expresses admirably the position of the world today. There is not a nation in the world which really wants war. There are almost no people in any country who want war. But many of them want those things which lead inevitably to war. And they do not realize that the simple little desires they have could possibly arouse any other nation to the point of going to war. War is such a dreadful thing! No nation would fight today unless seriously provoked!

Germany has asked for military equality with the French—man for man. Surely France could not object to that. Or if she did object, surely she could not take it so seriously as to go to war about it. France cannot afford a war. Her government is not strong. There is a depression. And beside a strong German army might some time stand between France and the powerful Soviet army bent upon commencing revolution throughout the world.

Germany wants economic union with Austria. Surely no one could object to that. After all, Austria is populated primarily by Germans anyway. They speak the same language, have the same blood ties. Even Adolf Hitler himself is an Austrian. And besides an economic union with Austria would bring prosperity to both Germany and Austria. Surely no one could object to that! A prosperous Germany and Austria would help to make the world prosperous, would greatly relieve the war tension.

Germany wants the return of some, if not all of her colonies which were taken away from her during the World War. She wants parts of Czechoslovakia and the three million Germans who live there returned to her. She wants the Polish Corridor, which now cuts directly through Germany and belongs to Poland, though before the war it was an integral part of Germany returned. She wants the German city of Memel returned, together with parts of Lithuania.

All of these demands, from the German point of view, are perfectly reasonable, to which no one, not directly concerned, should have any objection. It is simply incredible to the average German mind, that France, or England, or Italy, could possibly be aroused to the point of war by any little incident involving Memel, or Poland. And yet even an Austro-German economic union could not be gained except by the sword.

That is the most tragic feature of the German situation today. The people want the fruits of victory, want the fight. In that they are but like perfectly normal human beings everywhere. How many of us realize the ultimate consequences of our daily acts? How many of us recognize that the price of our demands is the blood of others? Nobody wants war, but everybody wants the fruits of victory.

Prison Goods

The extent to which the government already is dealing with private industry is scarcely realized by the citizens of this country unless one happens to be employed in a railroad, which have suffered from government-owned bargy lines, or in a ship which have to compete with the government-owned shipping office, or in one of the other areas of more fields of private enterprise where the government has already moved in.

The Globe Wernicke Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, is the maker of over four thousand different kinds of office supplies. Among the things which this company manufactures are steel cabinets and filing cases. For the purpose of making these things millions of dollars have been invested by the citizens of this country. Employed in the business of making these office supplies are thousands of honest workmen who because of their employment have not yet had to apply for federal relief.

At the present time the government itself is one of the biggest purchasers there is of the industrial and agricultural products of this country. Because of the enormous bureaucracy which has been set up in Washington, it is the purchaser of large quantities of office supplies. But last week the government awarded a large contract for steel transfer cases, not to one of the innumerable private concerns supplying these materials, but to the Federal Prison Bureau.

"It is extremely unfair that honest men be deprived of work in order that criminals be kept busy," says the president of the Globe Wernicke Co. "In most of our prisons the inmates are warmly clad, well fed, are allowed to participate in games, and wireless games, have moving pictures, listen to radio programs, have better hospital accommodations than the average working man in this country and have a library from which to draw. I am in accord with giving every man an opportunity to improve himself. But I cannot see the justice of improving the criminal at the expense of the honest man and when I say improving the criminal I am stretching my imagination some because there is a large percentage of them that apparently never changes its attitude toward society."

Whether the policy of awarding government jobs to prison inmates results in improving the status of the criminal or not, one thing is fairly certain, it does not help to put honest men to work outside of prisons. With some ten million honest men unemployed in the United States, it would seem to us that they and not the prison inmates should have the first claim on whatever work the government has to offer.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

BY WILLIAM COLLINS

Henry P. Long is not the first spectacular political figure to rise from obscurity to win millions of followers with plans for sharing the nation's wealth; nor is he the first to be crushed in the first winter to attract the attention of the voters to economic theories regarded by conservatives as unorthodox.

American history, and especially the second half of the nineteenth century—records a long list of picturesque political figures who came to the fore because of their temporary fame because of their novel proposals to end depression, and their vigor in presenting them.

Without benefit of the radio, or even of the press, these men, and one woman, won wide hearings for their ideas and made their names familiar in all parts of the country. Most of them were sponsors of new political organizations which sought to oust the familiar parties from power.

Financial problems which grew out of the depression after the Civil War gave birth to the Greenback party, the oldest of them, and each party, the ablest champions of which were General James B. Weaver in 1868, and General James M. Weaver in 1892, for carrying on its fight against the South.

Without benefit of the radio, or even of the press, these men, and one woman, won wide hearings for their ideas and made their names familiar in all parts of the country. Most of them were sponsors of new political organizations which sought to oust the familiar parties from power.

Chevrolet Company To Offer Contest Prizes

Every automobile driver in Seminole County will soon have an opportunity to test his skill, and also a chance to win part of the prizes totaling $30 offered by the Proctor Chevrolet Company, which is sponsoring a driving contest here all next week.

The purpose of the contest, C. F. Proctor explained, is to "determine how far a person can drive a new Chevrolet Six on one pint of gasoline." Mr. Proctor also said that a visible Mason blue pin jar will be attached to the test car, and this jar, filled with gasoline, will be connected directly with the carburetor.

Each contestant will have his choice of several kinds of gasoline and when the pin jar is empty his "run is over," the announcement continued. Each driver will also be required to travel over the same route and be accompanied by an observer.

All persons who are interested in entering the driver's contest are urged to register at the Chevrolet show rooms on Magnolia Avenue as soon as possible.

New NRA Bill Placed Before U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—A new and drastically revised NRA bill was placed hastily before the Senate yesterday after Donald R. Hays, a close adviser to President Roosevelt, warned the finance committee in secret session that such action was necessary to quell nationwide labor unrest and restore confidence in business.

The bill, drafted by committee agents, meets the wishes of Roosevelt and follows suggestions advanced by Hieberg in his appearance before the Senate group. Mr. Hieberg said it is intended to be used only as a basis for work on a more permanent measure and committee members indicated it would be stripped of many of its present features.

Century Of Progress Ride
Giving Wreckers Trouble

Work Has Stopped On Dismantling Of High Towers Until Removal Plan Is Okeyed
CHICAGO, Mar. 29. (AP)—Construction of the Century of Progress exposition was problem enough, but now engineers are battling a really tough one—that of dismantling the sky rick which spans a half-mile-wide lagoon and whose twin towers, with a combined weight of 6,000,000 pounds, stretch 625 feet into the sky. A baffling part of the problem is the 100,000-pound rocket gears at the 200-foot level, which are supported by 650,000 pounds of cable.
However, when it is decided how to let the towers and equipment down gently, the problem of dismantling it will be easy. Any number of people have offered to take the somewhat cumbersome gadget off the wreckers' hands.
There is, for instance, a man in Chautauque county, Kentucky, who wants to buy the whole thing, raise it all. He has a plan to keep it on a low mountain, let it rot and then wrecking contractors that he would like to install the towers, one on each side, to hold up the whole thing.
First plans were to begin dismantling Friday. It has been announced that the wreckers have been "left" from the job, and that they are to be dismantled in the order of 3,000,000 pounds that will be allowed to crash.
After a consideration of suggestions, however, the plan was abandoned temporarily and the wrecking postponed until a more suitable plan is developed. The cost of a 3,000,000-pound job that will be allowed to crash.
In addition to many suggestions, engineers, however, the plan was abandoned temporarily and the wrecking postponed until a more suitable plan is developed. The cost of a 3,000,000-pound job that will be allowed to crash.

Nomination Of Farm
Belts Candidate
Seems In Offing

WASHINGTON, Mar. 29.—(AP)—"Grassroot" Republicans from the Mississippi valley made a bid for party leadership Thursday with a call for a spring rally to elect the G. O. P. and passively to promote nomination of a farm belt candidate to oppose President Roosevelt in 1936.
The movement, organized by John P. M. Hamilton, Republican national committeeman from Kansas, immediately caused speculation as to a candidate. Informed Republicans mentioned the following:
Gov. Alf M. Lauder of Kansas, who led his state for the party in the Democratic landslide of 1932 and 1934.
Ed Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.
The plan calls for leaders from ten or more central and mid-western states to assemble in Kansas City or Topeka in May or June 1935. For organizing headquarters to be set up in Topeka. Plans include a national platform for 1936.
The movement did not have the support of a majority in the party. It is now in a state of flux. It is now in a state of flux. It is now in a state of flux. It is now in a state of flux.

World War Expansion
Also Credited As Contributory Cause

WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—(AP)—World War agricultural expansion and unprecedented drought are the major factors behind the dust storms which are robbing Mid-Western farmers of their top soil, the U. S. soil erosion service explained recently.
When the price of grain skyrocketed during the World War, farmers plowed under the second grazing lands and planted crops. New lands are sweeping this top soil at such a alarming rate that traffic has been halted in the great plains states and hundreds of thousands of acres have drifted over the eastern seaboard.
Some 600,000,000 acres of land are listed as susceptible to severe soil erosion. In 1934, 6,000,000 acres of the land have been denuded of top soil reports. The land has been denuded of top soil reports. The land has been denuded of top soil reports.
