Florida man among remains returned

WASHINGTON - Remains of five U.S. Air Force and Navy officers, until now unaccounted for in Vietnam and Laos, have been identified. One of the men was a Floridian.

The Pentagon identified the five Tuesday as Air Force Capt. John E. Duffy, of Portland, Maine; Air Force Maj. Edward M. Hudgens, of Tulsa. Okla.: Navy Lt. Cmdr. Orland J. Pender Jr.. of Atlanta: Navy Capt. John R. Pitzen, of Stacyville, Iowa; and Air Force Capt. Robert L. Sandner, of Clearwater, Fla.

The remains will be flown from Hickam Air Force Base. Hawaii, where identification work was completed, to the mortuary at Travis Air Force Base, Calif. Families will determine burial dates.

The Pentagon said Duffy crashed in an O-2A aircraft on an April 4, 1970, mission in Quang Ngai province, South Vietnam. His remains were recovered in May 1993.

Hudgens was piloting an A-1J aircraft on a search and rescue mission March 21, 1970, over Laos when it was hit by ground fire and crashed. His remains were recovered in October 1994 and April 1995.

Pitzen and Pender were the crew of an F-4J from the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, escorting an attack mission north of Halphong, North Vietnam, on Aug. 17, 1972. The plane was believed to have been hit by a surface-to-air missile. Their remains were recovered in November 1994.

Protesters oppose pagan minister

TITUSVILLE - About 200 people jumped up and recited the Lord's Prayer to protest the invitation of a Wiccan minister to give the opening invocation of a City Council meeting.

The group opposed the council's invitation to the Rev. Jacque Zaleski, head of the Palm Bay-based Wiccan Church of the Iron Oak, a pagan sect.

Council members said nothing about the Tuesday protest. but one of their first actions was to vote 4-1 to restrict invitations to churches within Titusville's limits.

Councilwoman liene Davis, who had requested the city clerk send the invitation to Zaleski, cast the dissenting vote.

"Are you saying that might makes right?" Davis questioned. "Are you saying that because a group of taxpaying citizens does not have enough members to own a meeting hall that they have no right to be represented?" Davis asked her fellow council members.

Zaleski, who owns property in Titusville, quietly asked for the blessing of the Heavenly Father and the Holy Mother. Her church believes the deity resides in all people and in nature.

Limbaugh: a house in Palm Beach

PALM BEACH - The Kennedys are gone and Rush Limbaugh has moved in, says a builder who claims to have sold him an oceanfront house.

Michael Burrows says he sold the six-bedroom, seven-bath house last week. It went for $6.7 million, Palm Beach County records show.

The buyer is RH Trust, but Burrows says Limbaugh, the liberal-bashing television and radio talk-show host, did the negotiating and will be using the home. Limbaugh's middle name is Hudson.

The builder said he and Limbaugh spoke twice, once by phone during the NFL playoffs. "We had wonderful conversation," Burrows told The Palm Beach Post for today's editions. "It was friendly, open, fun. The negotiations were uncomplicated, like between two friends. He could not have been nicer.

Limbaugh's New York lawyer, Leonard Sciafani, declined to say if Limbaugh had any connection with RH Trust, which Sclafani also representa. Burrows said Limbaugh liked extensive landscaping offering thickets of privacy, but the plants apparently were no noise barrier Friday night.

State unemployment up

TALLAHASSEE - Florida's unemployment rate edged up to 5.6 percent in January from 5.5 percent in a month earlier and the number of jobs grew 3.5 percent over the year, a state economist said today.

The national unemployment rate for January was 5.8 percent, up from 5.6 percent in December.

The unemployment rate does not count the number of people who have dropped out of the job market because of discouragement or for other reasons.

In Florida, 6.623,000 people had full- or part-time employment in January and 390,000 people were looking for work, according to Rebecca Rust, the chief of the state's bureau of labor information.

In December, 6.616,000 held jobs and 387,000 were seeking employment. A year ago, 6,510,000 people had work and 427,000 were looking for jobs for an unemployment rate of 6.2 percent.

As well as unemployment, Rust released job growth statistics. Total non-agricultural employment in January was up 3.5 percent over the year, with 208,500 new jobs pushing the job total to 6.090,500.

Friends, family of accused spy condemn re-defection to Cuba

Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - At first, Ana Roque said she saw no sign her husband could have been living a lie, spying on his fellow Cuban exiles.

Betrayed by a man she knew for four years and married 10 months ago, Mrs. Roque has now begun to recall small details which may have foretold Juan Pablo's re-defection to Cuba.

Like the extra batteries and blades for the Norelco shaver she bought him for Christmas, even though they wouldn't be needed for at least a year.

"All these things just clicked, afterwards," she said. "I was thinking he was preparing to go some place where this stuff is not easily found."

The 40-year-old Roque stunned his wife and Miami's exile community Monday night when he appeared on television in agent who had been spying on exile groups since his celebrated defection in 1992.

Now his friends, too, have begun to remember moments when they had little doubts. small questions, about him.

"Now that I think (about it). there were a few things," said Guillermo Lares, a friend and a fellow pilot in the Brothers to the Rescue exile group. "He was always filming things. He wanted to photograph everything."

Mrs. Roque said she has been distraught since his mysterious disappearance Friday, It was four years to the day after he defected from Cuba.

"I feel betrayed simply because I don't know what the facts are," Mrs. Roque said during an interview in her living room, where pictures of their wedding were still displayed. They were married April 1, 1995

"I love him still," she said. adding that she was taking painkillers and had been crying since Friday, when he left telling her he was going to Key West on business for Brothers

Despite all the proof against him, and his televised admission, she refused to believe he was a spy.

"I don't agree with what everyone says," she said. "Because everyone was not married to this man. And everyone did not'know him like I do."

Roque, a decorated Cuban military pilot. volunteered shortly after his defection to fly for Brothers, a group formed in 1991 to help the Coast Guard rescue refugees fleeing Cuba in leaky boats and homemade rafts.

In 1994, when the Clinton administration ordered an end to the U.S. policy of welcoming all Cuban refugees, the Brothers' mission became more political. its pilots have flown over Havana at least twice to drop leaflets urging Cubans to rebel against their government. Four of its volunteers were believed dead since their two planes were shot down Saturday by Cuban MiG fighter jets.

Some have said Roque is to blame, whether or not he returned in time to give Cuba information about those specific "Roque participated by taking information to the Cuban government," said Jose Basulto, head of Brothers and someone who considered Roque a close

"I loved him as a brother," Basulto said. "I love him still. It is something so difficult to understand. ... But everything points to this: He was a plant in Brothers to the Rescue sent to destroy Brothers to the Rescue."

Group tapped to develop high speed rail

By ADAM YEOMANS

TALLAHASSEE - A group including the French makers of bullet trains that zip across Europe at 200 miles an hour has gotten the nod from state officials to build a high-speed rail linking Miami, Orlando and Tampa.

Florida Overland Express, an Orlando-based consortium that includes the makers of the French TGV, was selected over four other competitors seeking to develop and operate a 320mile system that will cost up to

State Transportation Secre-tary Ben Watt haid he hoped passengers would be boarding high-speed trains within 10 years to help telieve congested

"We cannot build enough highways to solve our transportation problems." he said at a news conference Tuesday, "We must provide Floridians with transportation options for the future."

Under Florida Overland Express' plan, riders would pay $54 for a 90-minute ride be48-minute ride from Orlando to Tampa by 2006.

A similar effort to link Florida's urban areas by highspeed rail failed five years ago when the developer who won a state franchise asked for public money to build the project. At that time, the state had no plans for taxpayer help, and the effort folded.

This time, taxpayers are putting up $70 million a year over 30 years - or $2.1 billion - to help finance the system.

"This is the first time any state has been willing to be an investor in these systems and that's a very important factor in a public-private partnership." said Eugene Skoropowski, the consortium's project director. The group, known as FOX. includes GEC Alsthorn Transport, the company that builds the 200-mile-an-hour-plus TGV electric train that has operated in Europe for 14 years.

Other partners include Fluor Daniel, an engineering and construction services company based in Irvine, Calif.; Odebrecht Contractors of Florida, a division

Bailey asks for extention of stock-or-jail order

By RON WORD Associated Press Writer

OCALA, Fla. - Just one day before defense attorney F. Lee. Batley must turn over $3 million in cash and stock worth $25 million, he returns to court seeking a three-week delay.

If U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul turns down Bailey's request, he must report Friday to begin serving a six-month prison term for contempt.

On Tuesday, during a hearing in Gainesville, Bailey's attorney Roger Zuckerman told Paul that the well-known defense attorney is working to secure the transfer of 400,000 shares stock in a Canadian firm. Blochem Pharma, which are being held in a Swiss bank.

The proceedings continued today in Ocala, where the hearing was transferred because of renovations in Gainesville's federal courthouse. But Zuckerman, in seeking the delay, said the stock cannot be transferred by the Thursday deadline imposed by Paul. On Feb. 3, the judge told

Bailey he has until Feb. 29 to turn over the cash and stock, which was once owned by convicted drug trafficker Claude

Duboe gave Balley 602,000 shares of stock in the Canadian company, which Bailey claimed was in lieu of his fee. The value of the stock has increased greatly in value, rising from about $10 a share in 1994 to $46 a share now,

The government, however, claims it should receive the stock. The stock ownership issue will not be considered by the court until the contempt case against Balley is settled.

Even if Bailey is granted the delay, he will face an uphill battle to come up with the $3 million be must pay the court, plus another $2.3 million to release a lien on a portion of the stock held by the Swiss bank.

Thank you, Mr. Hudson

On the one hand, it could not have been an easy task.

On the other hand, it couldn't have been casier.

Our hearts go out to Mary Nobles, the 50-year-old grandmother raising a second generation of children, who is out on the street after violating the Sanford Housing Authority's policy regarding residents and their guests being arrested on violence or drug charges.

However, the hard line against drugs and violence in public housing, initiated by new executive director Timothy Hudson, was well-publicized and well-documented in the community.

Nobles knew the consequences of allowing her 15-year-old grandson to live with her when he was arrested three times in a one month period for selling marijuana and co-

She said if she had known she and the other six grandchildren would be suddenly homeless she would have gotten help for the drug-dealing youngster and she would have sent him to live with other relatives.

Didn't she see a need to get him help if the housing issue was not on the line? Did she not feel the young man needed help regardless?

"It's not fair," she told Hudson.

Neither is it fair to others that her grandson was allowed to stand on a street corner and sell illegal drugs to others. He was not a young entrepreneur providing a service to the community, he was a salesman of death in a community struggling for life.

That's what is not fair.

We applaud Hudson for taking a stand against those who are dragging the community down by committing acts of violence and by dealing in or doing drugs.

Public housing is not a gift for those who do choose not to work, it is a form of assistance for those who need a hand while they get back on their feet. Those who live there should be prepared to live by the rules and they should make it their business to know the rules.

It was no easy task putting Nobles and her clan out on the street.

But, getting one more drug-dealing teen off the streets of Sanford's oppressed public housing complexes had to be easy.

Thank you, Mr. Hudson, for taking a stand for Sanford.

Thanks for tribute

I want to thank Marva Hawkins for her moving tribute to Rachel Marie Wright in the Sanford Herald's Jan. 19 edition. Ms. Wright certainly sounds as if she was a very special person. I am sure the world is a better place for her having been a part of it.

I was also very grateful that Ms. Hawkins included a mention about Hospice of Central Florida and the care Rachel received. Nurses such as Susan Morin really do such an incredible job helping people through such a difficult time. Ms. Hawkins' gentle telling of Rachel's life indicates that she was anything but a person who would waste a minute of precious consciousness.

Care is available through Hospice of Central Florida for all those who qualify regardless of their ability to pay. It is also important that people realize hospice care entitles them to not only a nurse, professional counselor, chaplain, home health aide and, after the loved one has died, bereavement counseling. The professionals at Hospice of Central Florida are assisted in their work by hundreds of dedicated volunteers who do everything from offer companionship to pick up prescriptions - almost anything that will make the family's life a little easier during this difficult

What I think is most important about Hospice of Central Florida and the care it provides is that people like Rachel are most often able to spend their final days where they are most comfortable, in their own homes surrounded by family and

Debunking the flat-tax myths

One of the reasons common folk look upon more tax filers would be using the fairly simple ashington with so much contempt is that 1040EZ. As it is, though, only 16 percent of tax Washington with so much contempt is that almost every time a good idea rears itself in the Nation's Capital -- an idea widely supported by the American people -- the Gucci-wearing lobbyists get together with their pals in Congress or that makes the flat the White House to kill it off.

So it was with the balanced budget. So it was with term limits. And so it is now with the flat tax. Foes of the flat tax have resorted to the usual modus operandi to dampen enthusiasm for the idea. That is: Bombard the public with all five rates (from 15 manner of disinformation. But the flat tax percent to 39.6 perdeserves to be judged on its merits. So let us cent) with a single separate myth from reality.

Myth: A flat-tax system would not really be eliminating the simpler.

A taxpayer would calculate 15 percent

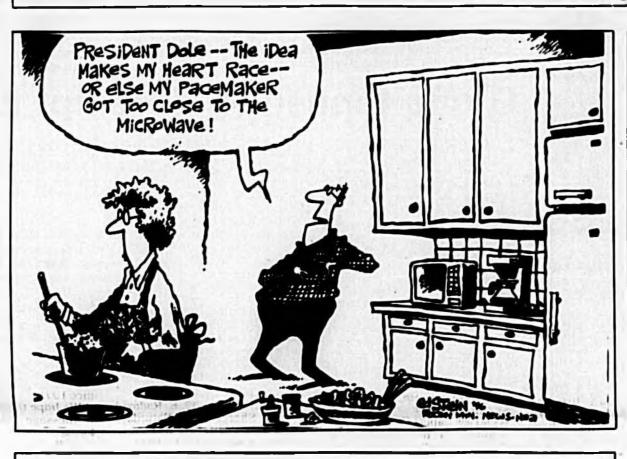

But the flat tax deserves to be judged on its merits. So let us separate myth from reality.

Myth: Real estate values will plummet. Reality: The National Association of Realtors has declared war against the flat tax because most versions -- including plans profered by Steve Forbes and Dick Armey -- would eliminate the mortgage-interest deduction. The realtors warn that ending this pet deduction will cause home prices to fall by 15 percent, which would cost homeowners $1.7 trillion in equity.

But an analysis by the National Center for Policy Analysis, a Dallas-based think tank, reveals the holes in the realtors' static projections. Indeed, if a flat tax is enacted, home mortgage interest rates are expected to fall by roughly 2 percent. And a family earning $50,000 a year would benefit more from a 6 percent nondeductible mortgage than from the current 8 percent deductible mortgage.

Myth: The rich will get richer, the poor poorer. Reality: This is just the usual class-warfare rhetoric. The fact is that under every flat-tax plan out there, a family of four would pay absolutely no income tax on their first $30,000 to $35,000. That completely knocks poor Americans off the tax rolls.

How much privacy for kids

A little-noticed clause of the Christian Coalition's "Contract With the American Family" is quietly wending its way through Congress and our state legislatures.

It's part of the very wholesome-sounding Parental Rights Act. And the language of most of the bills and amendments begins with the statement that "the right of parents to direct the upbringing and education of their children shall not be infringed."

This sounds quite reasonable, indeed downright essential. Who wants public officials breathing down their necks, telling them how to raise their children?

But the parental rights proposals have less to do with keeping meddling bureaucrats out of people's homes than it does with restricting the privacy rights of children, especially teen-agers, in the interest of striking a family-friendly pose.

Consider the laws regarding medical attention. In most instances, young people do not have the right to medical attention without a parent's permission. However, there are important exceptions - in cases such as testing for sexually transmitted diseases. treatment for drug abuse, birth control and abortion.

The exception for abortion has been successfully contested in many states, and now the social conservatives are going after the other exceptions.

On their face, they sound like reasonable propositions. What parent wouldn't want to know if their teen ager was on the pill or in drug rehab? But there are two basic problems with these proposals.

For one thing, they are based on the assumption that all parents are good parents. The deaths of Susan Smith's sons, 6-year-old Elisa Izquierdo of New York and countless other victims of child abuse affirm that this is simply not the case. Of course, child abuse is and will continue to be illegal -- not even the Christian Coalition will say it's OK to beat your children senseless. But what about the less extreme cases? The kids who may not be covered with black-and-blue marks but who are nevertheless living in homes where they are not loved and not able to communicate with their parents -- the kids who will be kicked out of their homes if they tell their parents they have a drug habit or are sexually active? (And it's these kids, after all, who are most likely to seek solace in drugs and sex.)

OK, but what about the majority of parents. the ones who will act in their child's best interest if trouble arises, and who believe they have a right to know if it does? Even these people's kids need the option of confidentiality in such matters. Because even the children of good parents will do stupid things to avoid catching heat from Mom and Dad.

In my hometown several years ago, a 15year-old boy was brutally murdered by a killer who still remains at large. When police questioned his friends, who were supposed to have met him that night, the kids were reluctant to give the police the information they so vitally needed. Were they accomplices in the murder? No. Were they afraid of retaliation by the killer? No. The kids were afraid to assist the police investigation because they didn't want their parents to know they were drinking beer that night. They could not see how this petty offense was insignificant in such a life-and-death situation. And then there is the case of Rebecca Bell, the Indiana teen-ager who died from complications created from a botched illegal abortion. She didn't want her parents to know that she was pregnant, so she risked her life rather than ask for parental consent for an abortion, which In-

Parents must ask themselves: Would I rather have my child get tested for a sexually transmitted disease without my knowledge, or would I prefer the disease to fester? Would I rather have my daughter get birth control without my knowledge, or would I rather she get pregnant? Would I rather my son have access to resources that would help him kick a drug habit, or would I prefer him to continue to take drugs in secrecy?

Obviously, these are choices between very disturbing evils. And in the best-case scenarios, kids will trust their parents enough to talk to them if they get into trouble. But this trust must be built by the parents themselves. The government can't do it for them.

No one is giving PAC money back

WASHINGTON - Republican presidential candidate Patrick J. Buchanan is not the only politician acrambling to explain his relationship with former campaign worker Larry Pratt. who allegedly consorted with white supremacists and radical militia groups.

Pratt's organization, Gun Owners of America, has bestowed campaign contributions totaling $52.159 on more than 60 congressional candidates since the 1994 election cycle. Even though Pratt has temporarily left his post as co-chairman of Buchanan's campaign because of the controversy, none of the members of Congress we conare going to return the checks they collected from the GOA's political action committee.

Buchanan's past diatribes dovetall with the views expressed by Pratt's political soulmates.

Two of the top recipients -- Reps. Steve Stockman, R-Texas, and Helen Chenoweth, R-Idaho -- have themselves been linked to militia groups. Another of the top recipients of the group's PAC money - Rep. Roscoe Burtlett, R-Md. -- had to apologize in 1993 for saying that people with Asian and Indian surnames do not "represent the normal American.'

Some of Buchanan's past diatribes dovetail with the views expressed by Pratt's political soulmates. Buchanan says he wants "to take America back," and asks "who speaks for the Euro-Americans who founded the U.S.A.?" He also believes America has failed to "assimilate" African-Americans into "our society.'

Pratt, who is executive director of the GOA. admits that he has attended meetings where various extremists were present, but he denies being a militia member or discussing any racial views with white supremacists. Just days after the infamous 1992 FBI raid at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, in which two people were killed, Pratt attended a meeting with the head of the Aryan Nations, an anti-Semitic hate group. During the meeting. Pratt allegedly attacked the 14th Amendment, which guarantees equal protection under the law for

Following the Oklahoma City bombing last April, Pratt attended a meeting of militia supporters in Missouri. He allegedly equated the bombing to the tragedy at Waco by saying. "The government behaves like a beast."

Stockman, who was harshly criticized for his own role in the bombing, was the top recipient of the GOA's largess. He accepted 86,736 in the 1994 election cycle and $1,600 in the 1996 cycle, according to federal records. The group's financial help was considered pivotal to Stockman's defeat of veteran Democratic Rep. Jack Brooks.

Just hours before the tragedy, Stockman's office received a mysterious bulletin about the bombing by fax from an associate of a militia leader in Michigan, but never alerted law enforcement officials to the ominous document until after the blast. A month earlier, Stockman had written Attorney General Janet Reno claiming he had heard from "reliable sources" that the government was planning a raid on some militia groups -a rumor that militia people had been spreading for months.

Stockman later penned an article in a gun magazine that accused the Clinton administration of staging the Waco raid in order to help push the weapons ban through Congress. Stockman's office did not return our calls seeking comment.

The GOA's spokesman, John Velleco, told us that the group contributes money to candidates who support guns. He added that Stockman is "arguably the most pro-gun member in the House. Militias are pro-gun.

GOP conservatives say political rhetoric smears legal immigrants

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Justifiable concern over stemming the flow of illegal aliens is expanding into "an ugly antipathy toward all immigrants." Republican activists William Bennett and Jack Kemp said today in a thinly veiled slap at GOP presidential candidate Pat Buchanan.

Bennett - a supporter of Buchanan rival Lamar Alexander - and Kemp said that despite today's hot political rhetoric, scaling back on legal immigration will not help the American worker.

They said they had sponsored a study on immigration by their conservative Empower America think tank "because we believe it serves as a corrective to the anti-immigrant sentiments now dominating our public discourse.

Every sovereign nation has the right and the duty to control its borders. However, legitimate concerns about illegal immigration are broadening into an ugly antipathy toward all immigrants," they said.

Among this year's presidential hopefuls. Buchanan has proposed the most severe approach on the issue, advocating a five-year moratorium on legal immigration to drive the number of immigrants down to 233,000 grounds in the yards of residents. The Crystal Lake chain has been the source of controversy for residents from Sanford to Lake Mary for more than hall a year now.

At the eastern end of the chain residents are pleased the lake has returned to the level at which it was a quarter of a century ago. They are pleased their lake is where it was and have fought to keep it at that level.

On the other end, the water is lapping over into residential communities.

The wants of some are taking priority over the rights of others," Forner said. Forner said the Crystal Ridge homeowners are being denied their right to have good resale value on their homes.

The level of the lakes are maintained by a weir in East Crystal Lake. The weir has been set to keep the lakes at a 43.5 foot level, three and a half feet above the level at which it was set when the Crystal Ridge subdivision was developed.

"That level should not have been changed to meet the wants of some at the expense of others," Forner said.

The postcard the group has been sending out warns potential buyers to beware.

"As we continue to watch Lake Mary growing at a break-neck pace, with many new complexes being built in low-lying areas, we are alarmed that the same things could soon be happening to others. Don't let it happen to you!

'We urge you to research your housing prospects carefully. Ask about Lake Mary's problems with flooding and storm water. Ask about this city's newest park. which cost taxpayers almost a quarter of a million dollars to build, but which has been unusable since last summer because of 'high water.' Ask why the city has found it necessary to assess every homeowner a monthly 'storm water' fee, whether they have a flooding problem or not. Don't fall into the same trap we did. Even though we'd love to call you 'neighbor,' we wouldn't problems like the ones we're experiencing on any-

Forner said the card is not designed to send people fleeing from the community. It is intended only to inform them of the problems.

We love Lake Mary," he said. "Lake Mary is a wonderful place to live. We just want people to put more effort into finding out about where they consider buying a home."

The Crystal Ridge residents want the city, the county and the state to take the appropriate action to do what's right.

"You almost have to go out of your way to do the wrong thing," Forner said. "And the city has gone out of their way for this. They have sacrificed our rights. You don't sacrifice someone's rights because it's too hard. You do the right thing."

Messages seeking comment from Arthur Goldberg, Bally's chief executive and chairman. and Bernie Murphy, the company's vice president, were not returned Tuesday.

Fernandez said he got the official word Monday from company lawyers for Bally, based in Chicago. He said the FLAG office in Miami was closed and the group would not turn in any more signatures for certification, although it had more than enough to qualify for the ballot.

Baily is the second casino gambling backer to withdraw.

Safe Bet for Florida, which would have allowed 21 riverboat casinos, withdrew earlier after deciding its measure would not pass. Safe Bet had collected more than 400,000 signatures but did not have state Supreme Court approval.

The drubbing taken by an earlier casino gambling initiative in 1994 hurt the chances for any other casino proposals this year. Fernandez said. A decision about whether Bally will try again in 1998 has not been made, he said.

In 1994, voters rejected Limited Casinos, which would have allowed 47 casinos ground the state, by a nearly two-to-one margin. It was the third time a casino referendum had failed since 1978.

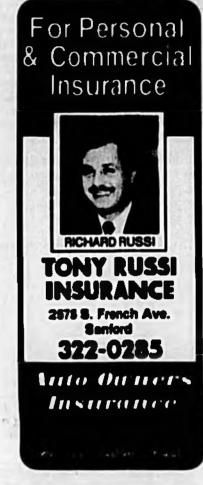

We hope that they are getting the message that the people of Florida have sent repeatedly at the polls," said John Sowinski.

Cuban sanctions toughen

WASHINGTON - Testing President Clinton's anti-Castro resolve. Congress is putting together a tough package of sanctions against the Cuban government that is sure to rankle many U.S. alltes.

House and Senate negotiators meet today to work out a final version of a bill, passed by both chambers last fall, to tighten the economic screws on Fidel Castro's government.

The bill was moved onto the legislative fast-track following the downing of two American civilian planes off the Cuban coast last weekend, and lawmakers are certain to agree on the tougher version passed by the House. The sponsors of the bill. Rep. Dan Burton, R.Ind., and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., promised quick passage of a tough bill and urged Clinton to sign it.

Clinton, in announcing new sanctions against Cuba Monday. said he would support the Helms-Burton bill. But he left open whether he would go along with a House-passed provision, that supporters say is the real teeth of the bill, allowing Cuban-Americans and others to sue foreign companies that invests in property the Cuban government has confiscated over the past

Investments in China delayed

WASHINGTON - Reacting to reports that Beijing is providing dangerous nuclear technology to Pakistan, President Clinton is delaying billions of dollars in loan guarantees for U.S. business investments in China, a senior administration

The move effectively gives China more time to make its case that it did not violate the 1994 Nonproliferation Act aimed a deterring the spread of atomic weapons. It also gives the administration more time to evaluate the Chinese claims.

If China does not make a persuasive case, Clinton still could find some sanction other than a suspension of loan guarantees, which imposes the brunt of any penalty on American busi-nessmen trying to develop a foothold in what will be the fastest growing economy of the 21st century.

Clinton is asking the Export-Import Bank to delay for several weeks up to $10 billion in such credits, which the administration official said "sends a signal to Beijing" but without making a final determination on the nuclear proliferation

Redesigned currency

WASHINGTON - The Treasury Department plans to spend millions - perhaps as much as $31.7 million - in a new public relations campaign to teach bankers, investors and businesses worldwide about the new $100 bill and other redesigned U.S. currency.

In the next few weeks the Treasury will roll out its new $100 bill with enhanced anti-counterfeiting features and a strikingly larger portrait of Ben Franklin. It's aimed at foiling forgers who wield modern copy machines and computer scanners instead of the old-fashioned engraving plate.

Seeking to avoid worldwide confusion and concern over introducing a new $100 bill, Treasury is going all out to flak the new greenback to assure the world that both the old and new U.S. currency remains valid or will not be devalued.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin appear in a new training video for bankers, now translated into Arabic, Japanese and eight other languages. Brochures in 20 different languages are circulating worldwide. Full-page ade are appearing in international newspapers, such as The Financial Times of London.

Man kills girlfriend

NEW YORK - A 3-month-old girl was left sitting on her dead mother's lap in a car for up to four hours with the body of the killer alongside her, police said.

Police officers in the city's Bronx borough discovered the bodies of Arelis Valerio and boyfriend Teofilo Cabrera - the girl's father - on Monday night, said Officer Noreen Murray. a police spokeswoman.

Cabrera, 26, shot Valerio, 35, in the head, then committed suicide, police said. A gun was found in the car.

The baby was listed in good condition at the hospital early today.

The couple were found dead just hours after Cabrera was sentenced to probation for attacking Valerio's cousin with a baseball bat. The New York Times reported today.

Consumer prices shoot up

WASHINGTON - Consumer prices shot up 0.4 percent in January, the biggest advance in more than two years, as cold weather drove up demand for energy.

The Labor Department said today the increase in its Consumer Price Index was the largest since a similar 0.4 percent gain in October 1993. It was led by a 1.9 percent jump in energy prices, steepest since a 2 percent rise also in October

Other components shared in the increase, including apparel and upkeep, transportation and housing. Food prices, on the other hand, rose a barely perceptible 0.1 percent.

Excluding the volatile food and energy component, the so-called core CPI was 0.3 percent, the biggest advance since a 0.3 percent increase last October.

Analysts had expected a 0.3 percent advance, driven by surging energy costs as consumers fought a blizzard in the East and bitter cold in the Midwest.

The government reported Tuesday that wholesale prices rose 0.3 percent in January. But excluding energy costs, it said prices fell 0.1 percent.

In the CPI report, the government said fuel oil prices jumped 8.8 percent, the biggest gain since they shot up 12.6 percent in October 1990. Natural gas costs were up 0.6 percent and gasoline prices jumped 3.7 percent. Electricity, however, was down 0.4 percent.

Analysts said in advance that energy costs appeared to be stabilizing this month. They had shot up 1.1 percent in December, also the result of cold weather.

Prices of fresh vegetables helped hold down the food component. They fell 3 percent, including a 26.6 percent drop in the cost of tomatoes, largest since a similar fall in February

Beef prices slipped 0.2 percent and the cost of pork, 0.6 percent. But poultry jumped 1.2 percent. Fresh fruit prices were down 0.8 percent.

Apparel costs were up 0.7 percent after inching up just 0.1 percent in December.

Contest scrambled anew: Forbes leads

By MIKE PEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

In another trlumph for an ti-Washington sentiment, Steve Forbes has taken a second straight primary, this time in Arizona, and now is testing his appeal in solidly conservative South Carolina. Dual wins in the Dakotas kept Bob Dole's hopes alive in a GOP presidential contest that scrambles every time the voters speak.

'Stick-to-it-iveness' won for him, Forbes beamed. A week ago, he looked like a flash in the pan, his flat-tax idea under fire as a gift to millionaires. Now, surprisingly, he leads all contenders in committed delegates.

With nine more GOP contests in the next seven days, the rivals turned immediately to South Carolina, which conducts a stand-alone primary Saturday.

The Palmetto State's mix of displaced textile workers and conservative Christians could provide a sympathetic hearing to commentator Pat Buchanan's anti-abortion and pro-tariff themes. But the entire Republican hierarchy in the state has lined up behind Dole.

Next Tuesday, the pace intensifies with eight primaries in Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia. Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts. Rhode Island and Vermont.

Dole, once the man to beat, the primaries, professed satisfaction despite his "If no one's running away professed satisfaction despite his

"My view is I'll be the "li may take a bit longer than we planned.

Lamar Alexander, who finished fourth in all three of Tuesday's contests, hoped his campaign of "new ideas" would eatch fire in some of next Tuesday's primaries in states with moderate voting traditions. Of the top four, he is the only candidate without a victory. He says he must have one soon to remain alive.

Forbes singled out his message of "hope, growth and opportunity" for his success in Arizona but his rivals credited his deep pockets. He spent $4 million of his own money on television in Artzona, nearly $40 for each vote he won.

What he does, when he spends all that money, it helps Buchanan and drives me down." grumbled Dole.

Buchanan echoed that: "Mr. Forbes has put millions and millions of dollars in the last couple of weeks in Arizona. That's very difficult to overcome.

Because the field isn't winnowing and no clear leader has emerged, some Republicans suggest the nomination will be scilled by the convention, not loss in Arizona and predicted he with it and you've got people taking turns at one-two-three in dominating the headlines over the primaries, it appears to me that there's a real chance no one would go to the convention with Republican nominee," Dole said. a majority," said Gov. Mike Leavitt of Utah, who supports

Dole. Tuesday's results were especially bitter for high-flying insurgent Buchanan, who was left empty-handed despite drawing enthusiastic Arizona crowds oves the weekend. He sounded subdued: "I believe we won the battle for Arizona's hearts and minds. We had the fire, energy, enthusiasm and momentum." But not the votes.

Forbes' showing in North Dakota was solid enough to force Buchanan into a third-place finish there. The two traded places in South Dakota.

Later, Forbes underscored his differences on trade and immigration with Buchanan.

Without mentioning Buchanan by name, the publisher criticized the "skeptics" and "nattering nativists" who would "hunker in the bunker" rather than build on the United States' position as a world leader.

Forbes, who had finished fourth in Iowa and New Hampshire, scored his first primary victory in Delaware on Saturday. His success in winner-takes-ail Arizona awarded him that state's 39 delegates, bringing his total in an Associated Press tally to 60, ahead of all rivals.

Herald Phote by Regar Harnach

Next comes Buchanan with 37 and Dole 35, while Alexander had 10 delegates.

Winning the nomination will require 996 delegates.

"It's clear that It's a wide-open race," Forbes beamed after supporters cheered his wife Sabina as "First Lady Forbes."

In seven primary or caucus contests, Dole has now won three, while the two candidates with no elective experience -Buchanan and Forbes - have each won two. .

Tuesday's voting: -In Arizona, Forbes had 33 percent, Dole 30 percent, Buchanan 27 percent and Alexander 7 percent with 96 percent of the votes counted.

-In North Dakota, Dole won 42 percent, Forbes had 20 percent, Buchanan 18 percent and Alexander 6 percent, with all votes counted.

-in South Dakota, Dole won solidly with 45 percent, Buchanan was second with 29 percent, Forbes had 13 percent and Alexander had 9 percent with all votes counted.

Far behind in single digits was the second tier of Richard Lugar, Alan Keyes and Morry Taylor. Even though he has dropped out, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas won 9 percent of the vote in North Dakota - where many voters mailed in their ballots before Tuesday - but only 1 percent in South Dakota and zero percent in Arizona.

FRA Administrator Jolene Molitoris pointed out that her agency has issued a series of emergency orders aimed at slowing down trains leaving stations and ensuring that passengers can escape in an emergency.

And Hall conceded that in the last three years under Molitoria the FRA has sharply improved its response to safety recommendations.

WASHINGTON - Governors must accept a continued federal voice in Medicald and welfare programs, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said today.

The efforts of the National Governors' Association have increased the likelihood that Republicans and Democrats will agree on changes in the programs. Shafala said in testimony prepared for a Senate Finance Committee

But, "we do have serious questions about some of the proposals they have put forward: questions about maintaining national objectives and the federal-state partnership necessary to achieve them," she said.

Shalala's testimony is the first in-depth administration response to the governors.

President Clinton vetoed earlier attempts by congressional Republicans to dramatically change welfare and Medicaid, saying the proposals were too rough on children and the poor.

The governors then went to work in a bipartisan effort and came up with a new set of proposals that were unanimously accepted at their national meeting earlier this month.

They attempted to allay the president's concerns by proposing that health care for the most vulnerable continue to be guaranteed and by acknowledging that if parents are to go from welfare to work they will need a support system that includes child care and other services.

At three congressional hearings last week, they assured members of Congress that their proposals could be revised if it would assure an overhand would be enacted.

They said the need for changes in Medicaid and welfare are crucial because the programs eat up so much of each state's budget.

Shalala, however, criticized a proposed Medleaid change that would eliminate mandatory coverage of children between 13 and 18. Under current law, children in this age group would be nancing, Shalala said.

We are concerned that narrow state definitions of disability could preclude individuals with HIV, certain physical disabilities, or mental illness from receiving critically needed services under Medicaid," she said.

Individuals who believe they should receive Medicaid but are denied it by the states can sue in federal court. Governors said this litigation is a costly burden that could be replaced with a review system in each state. Individuals could appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court only after exhausting the state appeals system. Shalala said federal court review at the start is

Clinton prefers to gain advice from an intergovernmental advisory commission before changing the way funding is shared, said Shalala. As for welfare, Shalala praised changes suggested by the governors as improvements over the welfare bill that Clinton vetoed. The plan to increase child care funding by $4 billion is a good idea, she said, but the governors did not have a plan for ensuring that the care is safe and they did not offer to help bear the cost.

"A serious concern about the NGA proposal generally is that the federal-state partnership is severely weakened," says Shalala. The administration wants the states to continue to provide benefits equivalent to 80 percent of what they provided in 1994.

Shalala also said more work needs to be done on the proposals for:

-Emergency federal spending when states fall into recessions that throw people into the Medicaid and welfare systems.

-Basic health and safety protections guaranteed under current welfare programs.

Foster care and adoption standards.

-Food stamp coverage.

But the She-Devils could not take advantage. The Sharks took a 7-1 lead in the third inning only to see the She-Devils come back to tie the game at 9-9 heading into the bottom of the sixth inning. The middle game was a dog-fight, with the Red Hots scoring a run in the bottom of the eighth inning to best the Sharks 12-11. The Red Hots had an early 10-0 lead, but the Sharks came back, eventually scoring five runs in the top of the seventh linning to tie the game at 11-11 and force extra innings.

Vegetarians have gone mainstream

By MAMALIBA GALTA NEA Food Writer

Vegetarians. Back in the 1970s they were considered slightly suspect, a ragged bunch of Earth Shoe wearers desperafely perusing the few vegetarien cookbooks that had managed to reach print: "The Enchanted Broccoli Forest," "The Vegetarian Epicure," "Laurel's Kitchen."

But the cultnary world has become much more broad. minded now, and vegetarian cooking has taken its rightful place as yet another treasured strain in the vibrant cuisines that make up "American food." Vegetarian cookery has shed its boring, tofu-and-brown-rice image and become as vibrant. exciting, healthful and tasty as any kind of cookery one can find in the home or professional kitchen. Nearly every fine restaurant offers a choice of vegetarian entrees these days, and a small avalanche of vegetarian cookbooks has emerged to give the home cook the same range of beautiful, palate-pleasing recipes to work with.

One of my favorites of the new crop is "The Occasional Vegetarian," by Karen Lee (Warner Books, 1995), a title that aptly describes my own approach to meatless cuisine. (I'm hoping for additional titles, perhaps "The Occasional Carnivore," would be appropriate.) Another is tional) "Main-Course Vegetarian Pleasures," by the wonderful Jeanne Lemlin, whose other books -- "Vegetarian Pleasures" and "Quick Vegetarian Pleasures" - have become dog-cared with use in my kitchen.

I guarantee that when you make these recipes no one will consider you even slightly and bring to a boil. suspect. They will be too busy asking for seconds.

DEAR ABBY: I am responding to the letter from "Amy in Burfordville," the young woman who had an accident when she fell asteep while driving. She was indeed very lucky. More often than not, drowsy-driver accidents are fatal. In many cases, the cause of these accidents goes unidentified.

The majority of single-vehicle accidents can be attributed to drowsy drivers - more so than to alcohol. Yet the elimination of drowsy driving has not been a national priority. Please alert your readers, Abby. It is unsafe to drive if you are not fully alert.

Also, elderly folks often weep more readily when deeply touched.

Because crying is to a large extent process. However, it is also a conselearned, it can be unlearned, as any behavior can. If you are embarrassed by your crying, I suggest that you attend more — not fewer — functions, so that you can effectively de-sensitize yourself. Over time, especially if you make an effort not to cry so readily. you will find yourself being more objective and less weepy.

As an alternative, you might consider several counseling sessions with a trained professional, such as a psychologist or trained social worker. In this therapeutic atmosphere, you can gain more control over your emotions, without becoming insensitive. Thus, you can learn ways of modifying your behavior without changing the way you feel.

I believe that this approach would be preferable to taking tranquilizers or other drugs, which can affect your thinking and personality.

This situation is analogous to anger. We all become angry at times, but we learn that striking or harming the object of our anger is not appropriate.

Therefore, we don't so much control our anger as modify our reaction to it. Similarly, you can learn that you don't always have to cry when you're happy or sad. By modifying your reactions, you will feel empowered and in better control. Thus, the act of changing your behavior has its own built-in reward.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Some of my trouble with constipation is caused by my taking pain pills for arthritis and other problems. How can I offset pain-pill effects on my digestive tract?

DEAR READER: Many analgesics cause constipation, the most notable being codeine and other narcotics. As a general rule, I advise patients who require a pain killer to use the drug with the fewest side effects. If constipation remains a problem.

the judicious use of over-the-counter laxatives may be necessary. Also, additional fluid, including hot prune juice, may help overcome constipation.

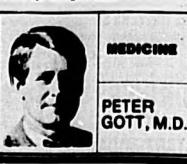

Patients with arthritis may be constipated because they are unable to exercise; such activity assists evacuation. In these instances, a mild bowel

In international bridge events, English is the official language. However, during the auction, you make your bids silently, using bidding boxes. This avoids the problem that confronted Fran Lebowitz: "No matter how politely or distinctly you ask a Parisian a question, he will persist in answering you in French.

However, Alain Levy found the lethal switch to the diamond five. West, Herve Moulel, won with the queen and returned a diamond, so the contract went one down.

At the other table, after winning the first trick, Michel Perron immediately led the diamond 10 from his hand! When West played the four, the suit was blocked. Even if East returned a low diamond to his partner's queen at trick three, declarer could ensure that West won the defenders' club trick: Perron came home with nine tricks. giving France 12 international matchpoints.
