they had largely been reduced to $1 to $2. The average gain was less than $2 a share. Trading continued in large volume, transfers on the stock exchange aggregating 4,600,000 shares.

The theory in some quarters was that the late profit-taking may have been inspired in part by uncertainty over President Hoover's veterans' loan veto message, which had been announced to appear after the close of the market. Wall street has taken it for granted that the measure would be passed over the president's veto. In the bond division, United States government securities again declined, in expectation of early announcement of extensive government borrowing.

Uneda Bakers HOLLAND RUSK

Breakfast eggs are doubly tempting when they adorn the brown crispness of Holland Rusk. Try them this way. Or try Holland Rusk in any way that a faintly-sweetened deliciously crisp bit of toast may appeal to you. For Holland Rusk—found only under the Red Uneda Seal—is delicious in every way.

Hero Worship

For some weeks newspaper readers have been seeing the name of Luke Lea in the headlines and it has been thought that this is just another bank bandit, chicken thief, or pole cat who got caught. But as a matter of fact, Luke Lea has been one of the most distinguished and important citizens of Tennessee. His present difficulties are but the outgrowth of a second self, in a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde affair, which the public did not know he had.

Col. Lea has been a lawyer of recognized ability as well as publisher of a number of the leading newspapers in the South. During the World War he was colonel of the 114th Field Artillery, and participated in the St. Mihiel drive and the Meuse-Argonne offensive with such credit to himself that he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He also gained considerable notoriety for himself by his courageous though somewhat visionary attempt to kidnap the Kaiser. At one time he was the youngest United States Senator, and his friends have long insisted that it was only a matter of time before he would be the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

All this is over now. Col. Lea finds himself embroiled with the law. His newspapers have been thrown into receivership. He is accused of "kiting" checks in huge amounts. Testimony also indicates that he used his political influence to obtain enormous deposits of public funds in banks which he in one way or another controlled. These funds in most cases were placed there without security and were borrowed from in generous amounts shortly after their deposit. The funds obtained by Col. Lea in this manner were used by him for further expansion of his personal interests. When the stock market went down in the Fall of 1929 and the depression began, he found himself on the brink of a lofty precipice from whose engulfing abyss there was no escape.

The final chapters in the story of Col. Lea will be told in the headlines. A long tiresome legal battle will go on in the courts. In the end he may be sent to the penitentiary, or he may be sent to prison for the purpose of the law through the shrewd employment of questionable technicalities and political influence. What happens now to Col. Lea is of not nearly so much importance as what is to happen to the thousands of young men and boys throughout the state of Tennessee who have been influenced by his example and his dominant but evidently dubious personality.

Whether he realizes it or not, every man of outstanding prominence in a community has a host of followers in the form of hero-worshippers who admire his every act and who listen to his every word as if a saint had spoken. They think that everything their hero does is right. They want to grow up and be a big man like him. So they do as he does. Thousands of boys and young men who have had Col. Lea for their idol have gotten off to a bad start in life.

Alice And Nick

The silver anniversary celebration staged recently by Alice and Nick Longworth brought back memories of the day when this couple were married in the White House some 25 years ago. The occasion when Roosevelt's daughter became the bride of the promising young Cincinnati attorney stirred the sentimental pulse of the nation and the life and activities of these two personages have been watched since with more than ordinary interest by an attentive public. In speaking of the spirit which Alice Roosevelt's personality gave to the White House and in contrasting it to others who have graced the executive mansion, the New York Evening World says:

"Mrs. Bingham had a salon, and a dining-table that was attractive, but she was always the grande dame, although she did permit some spicy talk at table. Dolly Madison was amusing and clever, and would sneak off from her domineering husband to gamble a little at cards in Georgetown. Mrs. Edward Livingston was a beauty with a brilliant mind, but she was always on the stage. Perhaps Kate Chase Sprague more nearly resembles Mrs. Longworth than the others, but she was never the rollicking tomboy that Alice has been most of her life. No one of them has touched so many angles of life."

"The day has gone when she would gather her gang together and fare forth after midnight to serenade the treat, and force them to open the house and feed the hungry; when the cronies would take possession of Archie Butt's kitchen and fry eggs after a fashion never before seen on land or sea. But when those days went, the salon came, and the lady, having put such foolishness behind her, has been playing just as unconventionally with her fingers in the political pie."

"It is a long time since she was the tomboy of the White House, but she is still, after a quarter of a century, the most fascinating feminine figure in the capital, beloved of the goaspe, and for the social history of the Republican court she will compete with her father in the number of pages required for her exploits."

"And when the golden anniversary rolls around, 100 dollars to doughnuts that the scouter will still be on her hands."

TELLING THE WORLD

By NEAL O'HARA

(Today we offer our defenseless readers the memoirs of Gwendolyn Schulte, world famous show girl and perpetual divorcee. Miss Schulte has married more times than a pig has knuckles. She is the glowing proof of the old proverb, "Never a bridesmaid, always a bride." She has married millionaires. She has also married paupers—but not if she knew it first. Gwendolyn Schulte is also an honorary member of the Society of Mining Engineers for her achievements as a gold digger. The first installment of her dashing autobiography appears today, and others are liable to follow unless something fortunate occurs.)

MY LIFE AND LOVES
By Gwendolyn Schulte
America's Favorite Gold Digger
I do not know why the public should be interested in my career but for 2 cents a word and 10 cents for materials, I am willing to bare my life and throw it in your faces.

I was born in a Western state famous for its living hog prices. My parents were poor, but I was born with a golden heart. I was a good girl, but I had a wild streak in me. I wanted to be a actress, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a singer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a dancer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a writer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a painter, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a actress, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a singer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a dancer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a writer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a painter, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a actress, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a singer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a dancer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a writer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a painter, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a actress, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a singer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a dancer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a writer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a painter, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a actress, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a singer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a dancer, but I was too poor to afford it. I wanted to be a writer, but I was too poor to afford it. Kent Entertains
With Party At Home

TO SPEAK HERE

In honor of the members of the Club, Mrs. Harry F. Kent entertained with a bridge party last night at her home on Park Avenue. Quantities of cut flowers and small bouquets were arranged in various parts of the room where tables were spread for play. The conclusion of several portions of bridge scores were read and prizes awarded. High scores for the club members, Caldwell, powder jar, went to W. W. G. Smith, while low score prize, a box of powder, was awarded to Mrs. A. J. Peterson. E. J. Routh held high score among the other guests and received novelty choker beads, while Ellen Mahoney, who had won, was the recipient of a towel.

For an hour a dozen sandwiches and ribbon sandwiches were served with hot coffee by the hostess, Mrs. Howard C. Dunn. Those present were: Mrs. W. C. Smith, Mrs. E. C. Harmer, Mrs. A. J. Peterson, Mrs. Ward C. Long, Mrs. O. E. McLean, Mrs. Laura Chittenden, Mrs. J. Routh, Mrs. J. K. Baker, Mrs. U. May, Mrs. Warren Tyree, Mrs. Eden Mahoney and E. C. Maxwell.

Spring Fashion Show Scheduled Tonight

Sadye's annual Spring fashion show which is being sponsored this season by the Sanford Women's Club will be presented tonight at the Milane Theatre at 10 o'clock in conjunction with the regular Vitaphone program. To match the street, sport, afternoon, evening and negligee modes which will be displayed by the living mannequins, will be furnished by the Modern Shoe Store.

The accompaniment for the models as they present their different costumes will be furnished by the "Stetsons' five piece orchestra, the Lake Mary Casino and is being lent by L. A. Tate, manager of the Casino. This orchestra will also play for the dance numbers which will be given by pupils of Betty Ball Brown's Dancing School.

Models who have been selected to Sadye's to present the newest in Spring fashions are Mrs. Ethelyn Richardson, Mrs. Helen Moye, and the Misses Mary Hurt, Christine Stoudermire, Mary Dighton and Katherine Symes. The numbers on the program are as follows:

"The Worrying Blues" — Joanne Azzaello.

"Ocean Waves" — the Misses Dorothy Lawson, Margaret Murff, Mrs. Elizabeth Neely, Marilee Torrance and Mary Miller.

"Song and Dance" — George Anderson.

"Spinning the Top" — Miss Anna Jackson.

"Song and Dance, 'She's So Unusual'" — Marilee Torrance and Mary Elizabeth Neely.

WORLD PAPERS PURCHASED BY CIRP'S GROUP

The 2607 employees of the morning and Sunday World voted against time and a surcharge, an impending decision to take shape a money offer for a paper which would avert its dissolution by the Scripps-Hornbeam interests.

They worked largely in the day and without legal status. It was not certain then whether George James A. Foley would carry the will of the late Mr. Hornbeam to permit the sale of the World to the Scripps-Hornbeam group had offered, and if the employees, 16 days to work from him at the price of $1,000,000, would accept it. The committee

LEA IS BLAMED FOR CALDWELL BANK FAILURE

"Yes, sir. It looks like those things have grown out of it." Congressman Alexander drew from the witness that he had received an anonymous letter threatening him if he testified before the committee but said he did not wish to dignify it with an explanation.

Carter agreed with the committee that Boggs Caldwell "slipped a fast one" over on James Brown, president of the Bank of Kentucky, in the swapping of stock between their two institutions that gave Brown 50 percent of Caldwell stock and gave Caldwell an interest in the Kentucky Banking company.

He said the trade was made without Brown ever seeing a copy of "Caldwell's Business" and when he saw the balance sheets he became disengaged and demanded an adjustment that resulted in 200,000 shares of Kentucky stock being placed in escrow. The witness also told the committee that Caldwell & Co. and the Bank of Tennessee would have been in trouble months before it did if it had not received huge deposits of state funds or like amounts from other sources.

"In other words," said Speaker Scott Fitzgerald, "the picture I get of the situation is that way back in 1928 that Caldwell & Co. was getting in bad shape. The Bank of Tennessee naturally was getting in bad shape too, being tied to Caldwell & Co. as a mere appendage or appendages and you saw that failure was inevitable and something extraordinary should be done about it. You tried to impress this on Caldwell and others and you couldn't get anywhere and these institutions kept sinking lower and lower and finally went out of sight like a rock pitched in the river!"

"That's about what happened," answered Carter.

"And all the time these institutions were sinking, the state of Tennessee was putting funds into this bank by the millions and Caldwell & Co. and the Bank of Tennessee were using these funds to pay off debts and buy issues of bonds and stocks to prevent inevitable failure."

That appears to be the truth. It would like to say this: For a good part of the time we had a very good business. In 1928 we sold $75,000,000 securities and in those years we had a large rate worth. But it was a question of cash."

E. A. Goodloe, cashier of the Bank of Tennessee, revealed that the Bank of Tennessee which went out with $3,400,000 of the state's money on deposit, didn't even have a vault and had only two employees. The bookkeeping, he said, was done by Caldwell & Co., who used it in their brokerage business and it was not a commercial bank. At one time he said, he had more stock in his name than any one in the south.

Taking longer has been a new lesson in life" observed Thomas Henry Logan, contractor, 202 1/2 St., West Tampa.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 27.—Although its location has not been decided, work on the first unit of Florida's new $100,000 soldier-home will be started within the year.

This was the assurance of government officials when Herman Dunn, chairman, and Col. Charles A. Mills, veterans' director of the Florida committee on the soldier-home, brought back from Washington yesterday. They went to Tampa and taken a position with the capital as a committee to present Florida's claim.

After the first unit is built, the home will be enlarged from time to time as conditions demand, the Floridians said they were assured.

Col. John Phelan, engineer, is now in Mississippi inspecting proposed sites for soldiers' home in that state and will come to Florida next week to inspect sites in this state, Dunn said.

Mrs. Anna flushed has returned to her home in West Palm Beach after spending some time with her sister Mrs. Georgia Hartman. Mrs. McCallum arrived Wednesday from Brooklyn, N. Y., to be the guest of her sister Mrs. A. Corry for several weeks.

The question is whether the House shall sustain the President's bill or whether the House shall pass the bill, the President's own notwithstanding.

It required a two-thirds vote to pass the measure over the President's head, but as the roll call showed, the became obvious that the House would pass the bill.

There not being a party in the treasury to meet such a demand, the President said, "the government must borrow this sum through the sale of the reserve fund securities together with further issues or we must find another fourth taxation."

The crowded galleries broke into applause when the message was received. Speaker Longworth announced the spectators when Tilson arose to offer the administration substitute proposal at the end of the reading of the message, there was a rumble from the impatient number. It is the opinion of the legislative leaders that the legislation would improve a potential cash outlay of $1,700,000,000 if all the $100,000 veterans allotted. Value of Administrator Bill, it is said, estimated, it would cost $1,000,000.
