Great Array Of American Golfers Leave Today For Invasion Of Great Britain

Doris J. Walsh, International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Apr. 10—A most distinguished team of golfers—professionals and amateurs—will set sail for England this afternoon on a ship of urgent business. They are the guests of friendship and honor from the very first. But it is ever so Mr. Haggen has followed himself of his customer to the popular. The British may not have much left of their golf efficiency and right to go out on the course on pick days.

In some respects, the argosy is the most impressive ever sponsored by American golf and, although Robert T. Jones will not take part, the prospect isn't altogether reassuring to a country that has seen seven of its last eight open championships settle in "the States." This record has prompted the question, what is the matter with British golf, and most of us have the answer. There is nothing the matter with British golf, except that the boys over there are not ready to do what the photographer tells them. They watch the birds. The American doesn't. No gets it.

This being the case, it would be hardly surprising if at least one of the open championships returned with the invaders. It is possible, indeed, that all three in addition to the Ryder Cup, might fall into their hands. That, of course, would be a normal development. It would be a miracle. Yet the golf is there.

First for the capture of the open by the Ryder Cup personnel and extensive professional seemed, the amateur by George Von Elm, and third, the woman's championship by Glenna Collett. Our most plausible chance really rests with the open, and a third place not only the habit of success but the men to make the habit permanent.

For example, sailing—with the Ryder Cup team today are Hagen, three-time winner of the British title and its present holder; Horton Smith, the most sensational amateur of the year; Farrell and Hugel, respective national open and P. G. A. champions, and Barasen, former champion in both of those divisions and a three-time winner in the British event last year. Al Espinosa, Ed Dudley, Johnny Golden, Joe Turnesa and Al Watrous complete an official team that probably has had no equal in point of skill and prestige. These entries ought to be enough but there are more. Macdonald Smith, who was beaten out of the title by an unruly British gallery four years ago, is always eager to get himself into a hole and the lid of a life line and Bill McWhorter, smarting under the implied slight of the Ryder Cup committee is going along to show them that mistakes will happen and do.

Yon Elm is a chump in a man's open tournament, either, and with the possibility that Tommy Armour, 1927 American champion, and John Anderson, former holder of the French title, will join the brigade at the last minute, the pilgrims might seem to be complete in all essential details.

BOGUS MONEY CHARGE IS LAID ON S. J. CATTS

(Continued From Page One) Tampa and which is said to have been set in motion by Diaz. When the indictments were returned yesterday morning deputy marshals were immediately ordered to pick up Dominguez. They got him at Tampa before noon.

It has been a general custom in grand jury cases to withhold information regarding indictments until those indicted have been arrested. No fear was expressed as to Catts, who was expected to appear voluntarily as soon as possible after he is advised that he was included in the indictments returned here.

In each count of the two indictments all those named were listed. The first count reads: "That, on or about December 15, 1928, and including Feb. 7, 1929, the exact date being to the grand jury and these grand jurors unknown, at Tampa, Florida, in said southern district of Florida, and within the jurisdiction of this court, Julian Diaz, alias J. L. Diaz, whose real and true name is to these grand jurors unknown, James Mir and Armando Dominguez, did, with intent to defraud the United States, and persons to the grand jury unknown, knowingly, willfully, unlawfully, feloniously and falsely certain obligations of the United States, and contrary to the laws of the United States, and in violation of the laws of the United States, did, with intent to defraud the United States, and persons to the grand jury unknown, knowingly, willfully and feloniously sell and place Julian Diaz, alias J. L. Diaz, alias Mr. Armando Dominguez with intent to defraud the United States, and certain persons to the grand jurors unknown, in falsifying certain obligations of the United States; the exact number of the obligations being to the grand jurors unknown; the said obligations of the following tenor, to wit:

Then follows a detailed description of the $100 counterfeit bills showing it to be a forgery of a bona fide bill. The first count of the indictment returned as of Tampa charged Diaz, Mir and Dominguez with forging bills and selling them in possession with intent to pass. The second count charged Diaz, Mir and Dominguez with keeping in their possession with intent to pass and Catts with aiding and abetting them in possession with intent to pass.

There were five counts in the indictment relating to the passing and attempting to pass counterfeit money at Miami, which led to the arrest of Diaz and the Burwell woman. The first count was on the charge of forgery, the second on possession. Catts, Mir and Dominguez were named in two and the Burwell woman, Miss Burwell, who was here in three.

yesterday, was indicted on only three counts in the Miami indictment, these dealing with the three spurious $100 bills she on a flying tour in that city. One of the shop keepers, figuring the money was bogus, called in officers who arrested the woman. She said she got it from Diaz, her employer, gave the name of the hotel at which he was stopping, and they went there, got him and locked him up. A belief has been expressed all along by those familiar with the digging in the Diaz case that Miss Burwell was used by her boss largely in passing the counterfeit's, one of which is said to have turned up in a Tampa bank. Whether she actually gave the government valuable information was not explained. The general theory here is that she turned state's evidence.

Daytona Beach will dedicate a mall next April 15-17.

Pan-American Airways Is Planning Second-Line To South American Centers

By Eomer H. Melis
NEW YORK, Apr. 10—(INR)—A second Pan-American airline between North and South America by way of the West Indies or Central America and the east coast of the southern continent to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires seems to be a result of an announcement by Pan American Airways Inc. that it is negotiating with the Argentine and Brazilian governments for the right to operate a commercial line between their capital, and the United States.

John H. Sumner, Assistant Vice President of the company, is conducting the negotiations in the Argentine, while Caesar Peretti de Sousa is representing the Pan-American interests in Rio de Janeiro. Pan-American the largest international air transport system in the world, already is operating nearly 5,000 miles of airways on which contracts are held for air mail services to Nassau, Cuba, the West Indies, Mexico, Central America and the Panama Canal Zone. Universal Aviation Corporation, operator of one of America's most extensive air transport services, will become first of the many all-volunteer subsidiaries of the Aviation Corporation, a joint venture holding and development company to the United States, if a stock transfer proposal is accepted by Universal shareholders.

An offer to exchange the Aviation Corporation stock for a 20% share of the Universal corporation in a share-for-share basis, is conveyed to individual stockholders in a letter posted recently by Louis H. Piper, Universal president. Through its subsidiaries, the Universal Corporation provides air transport services to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Louisville. It maintains flying contract and air express between Chicago and St. Louis, Omaha and St. Louis, by way of Kansas City and between Cleveland and Louisville. It maintains flying schools in Minneapolis, St. Louis and Marion, Ill.

Frank Tichenor of Aero Digest, and Earl Osborn of Aviation were elected Chairman and Vice-Chairman respectively of a general committee formed by the Publisher's Section of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce recently to investigate questionable aeronautical advertising.

A subcommittee on investigation with the following members was appointed: Ralph Duzata, Airway Age, Chairman; H. Ley W. Mitchell, Aeronautics, vice-chairman for the Middle West; Robert J. Pritchard, Western Flying, vice-chairman for the Pacific Coast; L. A. Nixon, Air Transportation, and

DRYS ARE BASING PROPAGANDA ON NEW ARGUMENTS

Seek To Show Modern Efficiency Demands Absence Of Whiskey

WASHINGTON, April 10—(INR)—The high-powered executives of the nation's leading dry organizations are attempting to evolve new and more scientific methods of carrying on a campaign of education for support of the 13th amendment.

The old-fashioned idea of painting the saloon as the chief instrument of the Devil and of displaying the flaming powers showing red and children being heated by a rumsoaked father have been tossed into the waste-basket.

Instead, there has emerged a new scheme of displaying prohibition as a necessity in an age of machinery when the average man must attain a high point of efficiency or take a place in the rear ranks of the world's procession.

Herrington Fisher
Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the Department of Education of the Anti-Saloon League of America, is regarded as the father of the new idea. The characterization by Herbert Hoover of prohibition as a "noble experiment" has been accepted, although some strong prohibitions still complain of this statement and declare that prohibition is a permanent accomplishment far beyond the experimental stage. "The imperative need for a new type of education work in harmony with the intellectual process of the present age is evident," said Cherrington in a review of the accomplishments of his department.

"Arguments that made their appeal a generation ago need to be rephrased to meet the conditions of a changing era. Much of the data upon which the older prohibition propaganda was based is antiquated.

Many problems "The increasing mechanization of industry, the steadily decreasing safety margin on our highways crowded with automobiles. The pyramid structure of installment buying which rests upon the integrity and saving capacity of the salaried worker. The extension of where a single drinker may throw a whole factory out of step, the maintenance of the enormous reservoir of liquid capital made available for modern finance by the steady accumulation of savings banks deposits by a sober people, with scores of other significant economic factors, must be fully considered in connection with any proposed solution of the alcohol problem.

Referring to prohibition as an experiment he said: "We are working out in the United States experiments whose significance is or will be, world wide. For the first time in history a great nation has attempted a social policy so far-reaching as the complete prohibition of beverages. Had it this policy is sound, as we believe it to be, we must insure its success in the United States not alone for the sake of the United States but because of the world-wide possibilities involved."

Local Nine Again Loses To Orlando By Score Of 3 To 2

Sanford bowed again to its ancient rival yesterday afternoon when the Seminole High School nine took the short end of a 3 to 2 decision with the visiting Florida Goggins, Orlando first baseman, broke on a hard-contested game with a three-base hit in the eighth, sending the winning run across the plate.

Hayne, Sanford's star hurler, V. Goggins, Orlando first baseman, in good form, the former allowing seven hits and the latter five. Hayne also was responsible for the local's two runs, smashing out a clean hit that sent them both across the plate.

Advertising Celery

The Herald has been much interested in the movement among the local growers and marketing agencies to advertise celery...

It seems almost incredible to those of us who are so familiar with celery, but it is nevertheless a fact, that there are thousands of persons in the United States who have never heard of celery...

An advertising campaign properly conducted would spread the story of celery throughout the whole country. As the Davenport Times has said, "It would put the 'sell' in celery..."

Everyone knows "Kellogg's Corn Flakes" is a healthful food and many people eat it for that reason alone. They know it is healthful because Kellogg, knowing the value of advertising, took the trouble to tell them about it...

When people come to know about celery, they will demand celery. And when there is a demand for celery, there will be no problem of over-production. Let's tell the world about celery.

Dealing With Ridicule

Marjory Stoneman Douglass, writing in the May issue of McCall's Magazine tells many interesting anecdotes in connection with the life of Ruth Bryan Owen...

She was only eleven years old when her father, a comparatively unknown lawyer in Nebraska, first became the presidential candidate of the Democratic party...

One day one of the girls pushed a magazine into her hands and pointed at a cartoon characterizing her own father as a devil with horns and a long tail...

So she sat down at her desk, looked quietly at the picture evincing some interest but without the slightest evidence of resentment. Then she looked at the next picture without the least change in the expression on her face...

How much better did Mrs. Owen as a little girl handle that situation than the southern boy who went for the first time to a northern school. He was born and raised in Georgia and had always been taught that the South won the Civil War...

AVIATION FOR THE AVERAGE MAN

Every so often you read or hear that the day of the privately owned pleasure airplane for the average man is just about at hand. Most of us, however, still have a hunch that the airplane is still a rich man's plaything...

Only four stalks of celery a piece are eaten by the people of the United States, each year and yet there are some who bumper our "over-production". If we could induce the people to eat one more stalk a year by the right kind of advertising and sales promotion, we could grow fifty million more stalks and get a better price for them than we are getting now.

Confusion worse confounded may result from documents placed last week in the coffin of Pedro Menéndez Aviles, founder of St. Augustine. This coffin, 366 years old, was recently presented to the Spanish government. It was opened last month and before re-sealing, copies of current issues of the Tallahassee Star-Advertiser, St. Augustine Record, Tampa Tribune and Tampa Times were placed in it.

Secretary Mellon thinks that for income tax purposes, it should be as legitimate to charge "depletion" in the case of individuals as in that of a mine or an oil well. Doctors, lawyers, engineers and the like "wear out" and should be allowed to pay lower and lower income taxes as their vital powers are depleted.

This is more colorful than correct. It confuses the asset with the user of the asset. As human beings wear out they earn less income and their income tax automatically becomes lower. And when death makes the depletion complete there is no longer a need of income or fear of taxes.

Harris Powers in the Ocean's Banner takes this writer deservedly to task for a recent statement that nothing is poetry unless it is expressed in "lines that really rhyme" and rhymes that really rhyme. As he points out, this would eliminate Walt Whitman, Carl Sandburg and other great writers of free verse without rhyme or meter.

We passed by the front of the Kannon theatre the other day and we found two fellows out there just dabbling paint better skelter anywhere they could reach. And we must say it helps the looks of this side of the street. It might be a good idea for a lot of folks to follow "Bobby" example and paint up a little.

FLORIDA AND BASEBALL

Another season of baseball is opening with play in the Major League under way within a few days which means that the bleachers will soon be out in full force to watch the greatest athletic race the country knows swing into motion.

Although not represented in major baseball activities Florida's position in this respect is unique for there are few teams under the big top that are not regarded as representatives of some Florida city.

A study of the citrus problem recalls to our mind two childhood traumas: that everything happens for the best and that experience is the best of all teachers. Since it shows us our mistakes and frequently reveals the utter lack of necessity for their having been made.

Much of the interest that was an evidence during the balloting of this week was generated by the latest move of unidentified interests that sought to convey the impression that the committee of fifty favored the selection of certain men to fill the office of director-at-large. While this failed of its objective the move offered further evidence of the active presence of interests that would use the industry's organization for its own purpose.

ORANGE JUICE FOR HEALTHY WINTER HAVEN CHIEF

In Florida we are so close to the citrus industry that it is not surprising if we lose sight of the facts which we are trying to establish in the minds of those who are to convert into customers.

Two groups of malnourished children between the ages of five and six, were selected for the experiment. There were twenty children in each group. One group was fed on orange juice and milk, the other on milk alone.

The body demands calcium, iodine, iron, phosphorus, sulphur, potassium and other important minerals. Common oranges usually contain in combination with the bases calcium, potassium, etc.

Tax Extension Bill Is Favored Locally

News of the passage yesterday by both houses of the state legislature of a bill, which would extend the time for paying state and county taxes to June 1, was received here today with much interest. Many saw in it an excellent means of affording taxpayers a measure of relief in meeting their tax payments.

County Tax Collector John D. Jinks hailed the measure with satisfaction and expressed the hope it would be signed by Governor Carlton. He said the extension would probably push the percentage of collections much higher than last year.

High School Notes

This week of April 8 began with many interesting and beneficial teachings. The chapel program for all this week and Monday of the following week will certainly decide our future vocation for many of us. The high school pupils are very grateful to the prominent citizens who are giving their time to us to explain their professions or positions and to influence us toward the position for which we are best suited, and in which we are interested.

The gym classes began today with Mrs. Williams' teaching and explaining the prone pressure method for rescue work. Every girl and every boy in high school will know how to conduct rescue and revive work to the smallest detail before the next few weeks have gone by. This information will always be useful and perhaps someday we may save a person's life with this knowledge.

Daily Fashion Hint

CHILD'S APRON AND HAT

The practical little outfit of apron and hat is very simple to make, and if a bright colored material is used, attractive results may be achieved at a nominal cost. For playing on the beach or in the garden this little set is ideal to protect the frock from getting soiled and the head from the hot rays of the sun. The apron buttons at the side, and if preferred, the neck may be cut V-shaped back and front. Elastic is inserted through the hem at the back of the hat to regulate the fulcrum. In printed lines or checked gingham, with contrasting binding and hat band, this set is smart, indeed.

UNIVERSITY WILL SEEK MEANS OF CURBING LIQUOR

Virginia President Is Backing Plan To Let Student Body Act

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Apr. 11—(INS)—Officials of the University of Virginia, founded by Thomas Jefferson, have no intention of becoming "prohibition snappers or spies" in attempting to curb student drinking, but they are endeavoring to work out a plan whereby the students themselves will control the drinking situation.

These statements were made to International News Service today by President E. A. Alderman in explaining the University's position in the so-called "whiskey rebellion" which broke out here in connection with the refusal of the Delta-Tau-Delta fraternity and seven other chapters of national fraternities to adopt a rigid rule against drinking in the chapter houses.

"I'm not going to snore around student gathering places to see if they drink," said President Alderman. "And neither are the deans. Our idea is not to issue any orders making spies or snappers of our students. We want to put it up to the students themselves to stop."

There are demands that we issue stringent orders. Under any such system the students would be 'getting away with something' when they drink. It would be a challenge. We are endeavoring to work out a plan whereby the action will be taken by the students themselves.

University officials are indignant over the widespread publicity that has been given to student drinking here, which started last Thanksgiving when a Fredericksburg pastor declared he saw "scores of drunken students" at the North Carolina-Virginia football game, which was attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Following the flare-up, numerous suggestions were advanced for drying up the campus. One proposal was that the fraternities here, of which there are some 30, should adopt a drastic rule against drinking within the chapter houses.

The Delta-Tau and seven others declined to adopt the rule on the ground that it could be enforced only by making "spies" and "snappers" out of the students, or by putting it under the lower system. Either way was considered "disparaging" by the dissenting chapters.

Members Suspect Ruth Has Reached Limit Of His Unusual Baseball Feats

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Apr. 11.—They are chanting the litany over an allegedly recumbent Mr. Ruth as the great man stumbles and fumbles his way over the land in pursuit of the spirit of his departed youth. Without the slightest attempt to dissemble or to disguise, they say he is slightly flail, so to speak, and proceed to discuss his "feats" in the half-ironic "that is missing in his speed," the noticeable "shortening" of his swing, and the inevitable difference of the split second in his start.

But the matter less farcical, it may be imagined, the observers suspect that the man who has become the man who was. They add that they realize this fact more poignantly than Mr. Ruth himself, which, if true, is really important. The men who have gone back usually discover the fact well after his arrival at the destination in question.

However, it really is poor taste to take liberties with Mr. Ruth's future; also execrable tactics, for the gentleman has one thing in common with John Dempsey. The only way one can assure himself of being wrong from every angle is to pass an opinion on either of them. All one has to do for Mr. Ruth is to venture timidly that he is good no longer, or that he has become bad, and all reason is converted into a powerful disservice.

There is nothing remarkable about all this. The man is 35 years old and the end can't be far away. Perhaps he is, already, perhaps not. Mr. Ruth undoubtedly is striving, for he likes to surround the popular with his feats and the office records of the game show that he is still a player. But he has not been without encouragement in this respect. The Yanks have paid to upward of 75,000 persons something of an exhibition record, and Mr. Ruth has been more than a speck on the bill. He was in the bill and, when the chumps weren't willing to get near him, they were peering through dining room doorways, listening to him at his hour.

The story is that Mr. Ruth's popularity, like Dempsey's, has increased in proportion to his disability. Personally, I think it might be wiser not to go so far with the obsequies until one meets certain of his corpse, for Mr. Ruth ever was an inept man in the Spring. Anyhow, they say the chumps have been all too ready to condone his shortcomings, thereby increasing the anguish of his failure.

Apparently, he has been doing most of his striving at the plate, and the funny thing about this is that, if he has hit two home runs all Spring, he must have got the other one in a private sitting of some kind. As for the rest of his game, there is nothing in it, he has been noted. He doesn't chase fly balls, he breaks no legs going down the first base line on taps to the infield.

The answer is that Mr. Ruth is rating himself along against the hour when a discussion of his 1930 contract is indicated. He is conserving everything to a vast, magnificent gesture and, for one, would hesitate to say that it will be in vain, nor would I attempt to call it the other way, either. Mr. Ruth is like that.

Training Camp Briefs

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11.—(INS)—While reluctant to dampen the ardor of thousands of fans who turned out today to honor their idol, Walter Johnson, in his new role of manager, the New York Giants were determined to turn the tables on the Senators in the third game of their exhibition series. After having been no-hit over twice by the American League, the Giants won a moral victory yesterday by holding the Nats to a 2 to 2 tie at Charlotte, N. C. in a game halted by rain after five innings. Ott had a perfect day at bat with three hits.

ATLANTA, Apr. 11.—(INS)—Lester Gehrig was wearing Babe Ruth's laurels today as the New York Yankees came here to play the crackers. The younger home run twin walloped a home run and a triple as the Yanks defeated Birmingham yesterday, 10 to 9, Ruth getting three disreputable singles.

MACON, Ga., Apr. 11.—(INS)—Having seen catcher Al Lopez and pitcher Max Rosenfeld get the axe at Atlanta, the Robin rookies sailed Macon, another Brooklyn farm, with fear and trembling today. Their worry appeared justified, for the Dodgers looked bad in losing to Atlanta yesterday, 4 to 2.

HOUSTON, Tex., Apr. 11.—(INS)—The Cubs were enroute to Kansas City today, following their week series against the Houston Buffs. The Brains won every game except the final which ended in a 4-4 tie after 14 innings.

NEW ORLEANS, Apr. 11.—(INS)—The Cleveland Indians spent a long and successful training session here this Spring being last night for the North. The Tribe men are to play exhibition games in Birmingham today and tomorrow and against the Cincinnati National League team in Cincinnati Saturday and Sunday. The Indians open in Cleveland Tuesday against Detroit.

Answers Prosecutor In Curt Tones

NEW YORK, Apr. 11.—(INS)—Texas Governor Clegg, who makes more money by making than a president, played the federal court room again today.

The ex-governor, charged with maintaining a nuisance in connection with the sale of liquor in the Salon Royale, mounted the witness stand again. She turned the chair toward the jury box as she crossed her silken gloved ankles and clasped her hands on her knees.

The night club hostess was a study in black and diamonds today. She was dressed in a chiffon black dress underneath her velvet coat, black at midnight, and wore a skull-fitting jet spangled turban.

DETROIT STRIVES TO GAIN LEAD IN AVIATION WORLD

Second, it has devoted itself to the task of securing for this city as many aircraft concerns as possible, knowing that Detroit will profit only to the extent that the nation advances aeronautically.

We have promoted four National Air Tours, an international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett trophy, and our second annual All-American Aircraft Show opened April 6 with the largest number of planes on exhibition that have ever been shown in this country. One hundred seven different models have been entered, the largest number shown previously was 81, comprising the entry list at the International Aircraft Show in Chicago last December.

Projects Completed

The board's aircraft bureau has completed the following projects: an air transport survey, giving reliable information on the potential business which might be expected in the Greater Detroit area by aircraft manufacturers; an air mail campaign which resulted in a heavy increase in the use of this government service; local campaigns which did much to bring about the adoption of bond issues for city and county airports; the launching of a movement for the construction of a $1,000,000 hangar and exposition building on our city airport; a survey of flying schools in this district which is now being used as the basis for the promulgation of standards of instruction that will insure proper training for prospective fliers; drafting of a set of proposed laws governing aviation in Michigan, which are now before the State Legislature.

We have conducted numerous events, such as model airplane contests, to tie up the younger ele-

Little by little, you learn that your new acquaintance possesses qualities that you admire—that it has hosts of devoted friends.
