LONGWOOD - Police Review Board hearings for suspended Police Chief Greg Manning and Capt. Terry Baker, which began Monday, are expected to conclude today following testimony from Baker and a former mayor and city administrator.

Former Mayor Ed Myers and former city administrator Ron Waller were expected to testify for the officers. Another former city administrator, David Chacey, and former commisstoners Larry Goldberg and Harvey Smerilson testified Monday that the controversial Police Benevolent Fund administered by Manning and Baker existed with the knowledge and blessing of city officials. Looks as though a tragte tornado in Madison County has officially faunched Florida into its rainy season of high winds and downpours.

The sometimes lethal fickleness of weather produced a tornado early this morning that swept through Madison County and killed four people. The twister touched ground for eight to 10 miles. In its path destroying homes and heavily damaging a church and under-construction library. The storm also hit a junior college campus and strip shopping center. Madison Sheriff Joe C. Peavy said.

Survivors were still being found in homes reduced to rubble by the tornado.

"It killed at least four people and we're finding people who are alive but buried in some of the damaged buildings." Peavy said.

Madison is about 50 miles east of Tallahassee, Fla., just south of the Georgia state line.

So what impact does the current temperment of the atmosphere have on Central Florida? The National Weather Service has issued a tornado watch in effect from 8:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. today for Seminole. Orange, Osceola and Lake counties. A watch means conditions are favorable for the formation of a severe thunderstorm or tornado. Rain, a faithful sidekick of tornadoish conditions, will likely soak your shoes, washline, dog and anything else outside. Watch out for those winds, too (despite their invisibility). Winds from the southwest will be truckin' at about 12 mph today, gusting up to 20 mph. And an overcast sky will thwart the most diligent of tanning attempts. The whole thing should blow

Strong thunderstorms developing ahead of a cold front in the South hung over Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, northwest Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina today.

Decatur County sheriff's officials in Bainbridge in the southwestern corner of Georgia said flerce winds damaged six to nine mobile homes late Monday, injuring three people. A sheriff's spokesman said the winds "scattered trailers about" and downed telephone lines.

The NWS said winds toppled trees around Cottonwood, Ala., Macon, Ga., Ellisville, Miss.

Hall the size of golf balls petted parts of Arkadelphia in western Arkansas, Bassfield and Taylorsville in southern Mississippi, Blakely in southwestern Georgia, and Millry and Eufaula in southern Alabama, the NWS said.

fell in Albany, Ga., while an inch and two-thirds was recorded at Columbus and an inch and a half doused Montgomery, Ala. Other parts of the country endured the cold. It was 20 at Fargo, N.D., early today and frost warning and freeze warnings were posted for parts of Indiana, where it was 37 in Indianapolis, the National SANFORD - An earlier dispute apparently led to a death threat and gun shots early Sunday morning at the William Clark Court projects.

According to police reports. Albert Armstrong, 20, of 1320 Williams Ave., was in the parking lot of the project at 2:05 a.m. when he was approached by three men. All three suspects pulled a handgun and threatened Armstrong.

The police report indicated that the shooting and a previous attack on Armstrong's car was the result of an earlier dispute between the suspects and

Armstrong. Armstrong told police that one of the suspects said, "Boy, I'm going to kill you." and that all three opened fire in Armstrong's direction. Armstrong said he was able to escape by running away.

Police Chief Steve Harriett said the suspects are known and warrants for their arrest have been requested.

On Saturday, 2 a.m., one of the suspects allegedly smashed every window, except the windshield, of Armstrong's Datsun with a crowbar, according to another police report. The incident occurred in the same parking lot as the gun shots.

Chamber lobbies legislators

By Wayne Mise Serald Staff Writer SANFORD — Shirley Schilke chairwoman of The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Legislative and National Affairs Committee, is in Tallahasee this week to lobby for the committee's concerns.

One of the main issues of concern to the committee is the Mandated Parental Leave bill. which is currently stalled in committee in Tallahasace. The committee opposes this legislation. "It is an unreasonable demand, especially on small businesses," Schilke said.

gnacy would be an example said Schilke. "Even the father could take leave of his job and take care of his wife," said Schilke. "This could be disastrous, for say, a small business."

Other items of particular concern to the committee are the Joint and Several Liability (Tort reform) and Medical Malpractice Insurance.

The committee would like to see a repeal of the law. Its main concern is the legislation makes all parties liable in suits that might pertain to faulty equipment: manfacturers, retailers. installers and owners, for

The committee is also opposed to the current medical malpractice bill, which allows

The committee favors the reinstating of motor vehicle inspection stations.

Besides lobbying for or against state legislation, the committee also writes congressmen in Washington explaining its positions on certain bills.

For instance, the committee opposes raising the minimum wage to $5.05 per hour as is being proposed in the U.S. Congress, and would like to see a tightening of Workmen's and Unemployment compensation rules to eliminate certain loop-

Losing the war on drugs

For all the efforts of the federal and local authorities, it has become clear enough that our present approaches are not curbing the narcotics epidemic.

The high price of cocaine and other substances leads to robbery and mayhem, and the billions of dollars involved in the drug industry have resulted in drug cartels that in such cases as Colombia and Panama are more powerful than the ostensible governments of

The narcotics industry has also corrupted the governments and even the armed forces of countries throughout the Caribbean region.

What to do?

There are two proposals on the table, both of which sound drastic by the light of conventional wisdom. They are both worth looking at.

Rudolph Guiliani is the charismatic U.S. Attorney for New York. Recently he moved to the threshold of a challenge to incumbent Senator Daniel Moynihan and then drew back, but Guiliani no doubt has a political future, perhaps a national one.

Guiliani came out for the death penalty for drug pushers, and did so at a press conference concerning the death of police officer Edward Byrne, who was shot by drug dealers. Guiliani spoke in the presence of Mayor Ed Koch, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, and Lawrence Byrne, the dead policeman's brother.

"Anybody who tells you it (the death penalty) isn't a deterrent does not know the slightest thing about law enforcement, about drug dealers," said Guiliani angrily.

drug dealers," said Guiliani angrily.
"They don't know what they're talking about, they don't understand the streets of the city."

Referring to Ralph Tutino, a big drug dealer who was convicted in New York recently. Guiliani said: "Had he been exposed to the death penalty and executed 10 years ago ... I can't possibly count for you how many people would now be alive who are dead because he was selling millions and millions of dollars worth of heroin. There are a lot of Ralph Tutinos in this city and in this country." Guiliani said the death penalty would deter dealers who are "cunning, careful businessmen" and in the drug trade to make money. If they thought they were facing execution if eaught, the drug trade would be a much less attrractive proposition for them.

One notes that Maylasia, which executes dealers and users, has almost no drug problem. Ira Glaser, head of the American Civil Liberties Union, has a different idea, again worth considering.

He believes that if we struck down all drug laws, the huge profits would drop out of the drug trade. It is the very fact that drugs are expensive that leads to the huge profits for the Ralph Tutinos. The drugs have to be smuggled in or produced here at considerable risk. In turn, it is the high price that leads addicts to robbery, prostitution, murder and other crimes. If we completely decriminalized narcotics, poof, there go the profits. The cartels in Colombia and elsewhere evaporate, and our own crime rate plummets.

If we combined the Guiliani approach with the Glaser approach, we might well win the war on drugs.

They're a lot closer to the scurritty of feels and drunkards than the nobility of the United States.

It's not my intention to impugn amokers. Some of my best friends are amokers. I wouldn't care if one moved in next door to me or married my daughter.

It is also a self-evident truth that all numbers are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain insitenable rights, that among these rights are death, tyranny and the pursuit of scabbiness. Each year, smoking contributes to 320,000 premature deaths, according to the U.S. Office on Smoking and Health. But the tobacco industry continues to con smokers with advertising designed to associate smoking with sophisticated ladies and hot fun in the summertime.

The real reason amokers such the cancerous weed with such obsessive intensity is not its addictive qualities, but the delayed fulfillment of

The good news — if you read Time magazine's recent cover story — is that we're starting to win the war against the tobacco industry:

OThirty-one states and more than 200 communities, including Beverly Hills, Calif., Cambridge, Mass., New York City, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, have passed anti-smoking ordinances in various public situations.

• Major corporations (most notably the ubiquitous and insomniac Cable News Network) are refusing to hire people who smoke. (Way to go. CNN!)

Ocongressional legislation is in the pipeline to ban all print cigarette advertising, double the federal excise tax on packs of cigarettes, and end cigarette companies' eligibility to claim advertising costs as a tax-deductible business expense. (This is known as hittin' 'em where they live).

Oin the most farsighted and courageous act of all. Northwest Airlines became the first major airline to ban smoking on all of its domestic flights. The effect on me was immediate. Planning a flight to the West Coast for a speech in July, I had three airline options. I bought my ticket from Northwest.

But the tobacco industry is fighting back. It could immobilize the anti-smoking war if the 74 percent of nonsmoking America doesn't prepare a counter-offensive.

Impotence treatment

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — A new chemical produced by a biomedical company has been shown effective in preliminary tests in Denmark as treatment for impotence in men and vaginal dryness in women.

in studies conducted since 1984 on 200 men and 50 women, the chemical—which functions as the natural sexual arousal signal—stimulated erection in men and vaginal lubrication in women.

Some 10 million American men are impotent—500,000 of them because of diabetes, others due to hormonal imbalance and deficiency, surgery, nerve damage, ortherosclerosis, penis injury, chronic liver or kidney disease, meningitis, temporal lobe epilepsy, medications such as drugs that lower high-blood pressure, alcohol and drug abuse, heavy smoking and psychological problems.

Vaginal dryness, a side effect of a ging in three-fourths of postmenopausal women, can result from too many or too few hormones, emotional or physical stress, therapeutic drugs and a variety of diseases.

The new chemical, produced by Senetek PLC, a British company with headquarters in Mountain View, is injected into the penis before each act of intercourse. Women can use it daily as a vaginal cream.

"The injection with a small, pen-like device is painless and preferable to the only other alternatives: expensive and painful prosthetic implant surgery or an abdominal pump with a saline solution." said John Bennett, president and chief executive officer of Senetek.

"The product is extremely rapid and, since it is applied locally, has no adverse side effects."

The substance, a natural protein, does not cause an immediate erection but rather enables the body to react as it normally would during sexual stimulation. Bennett said.

Senetek will present data from the Danish experiments to the federal Food and Drug Administration within the next few months and seek permission to begin testing the ...chemical in the United States, he said.

Lubricant jellies can case intercourse for postmenopausal women. Bennett said, but provide no long-term treatment of the underlying problem — something he hopes the new chemical will be able to do.

WILLIAM RUSHER

The Jackson panacea?

A week of conversations with knowledgeable politicians and politicial observers in Washington. New York and elsewhere has yielded some startling insights into the true course and probable outcome of the Democratic presidential nomination race. Remember, you heard them here first.

1. If you have been counting on the 645 "superdelegates" to ward off the threat from Jesse Jackson in Atlanta, forget it. Like just about every other recent "reform" in nominating procedures, this one is triggering consequences exactly the opposite of the intended ones.

The superdelegates are the supposed wise men of the Democratic party: 251 members of the House and Senate and 26 governors, plus assorted state chairmen, national committeemen and committeewomen, and other party officials. They were supposed to act as a sheet anchor if the convention got rocked by undesirable emotions.

But the catch is that, as elected officials and party spokesmen, they are positively petrilied by their black constituents, who represent a major segment of the Democratic vote in just about every area of the country. Superdelegates who are members of Congress, for example, are thus quite likely to cast their ballots in Atlanta for Jackson rather than face the black voters' reproach, in future years, that they weren't for Jesse when he needed them.

The conclusion: Jackson is almost certainly unstoppable, at least for the vice presidential nomination, if he insists on it.

2. The next step requires us to enter the skull of Jesse Jackson.

He is no fool, and he probably realizes that Democratic hopes of victory in November (which aren't all that robust anyway) will go down the tubes with a roar if he is on the ticket. Moreover, he would undoubtedly be assigned the lion's share of the blame for the defeat. By December this year he would be simply an ex-candidate, tagged as a loser, and what's more permanently discredited as the political leader of American blacks. It follows that Jackson does not, or at any rate logically ought not to, want to be on the ticket.

In this, however, he will find himself at odds with the vast majority of his campaign staff, as well as his millions of supporters around the country. They have whipped themselves into a frenzy of excitement in which they really believe that Jackson not only will win in Atlanta but go on to victory in November. They are certainly not lightly going to let him refuse to try.

Of course, being human, Jackson may allow himself to get swept along by their enthusiasm. But the likelier scenario is that the real (though hidden) struggle at Atlanta will be between Jesse Jackson's supporters on the one hand and the Democratic Party's white establishment, plus Jackson, on the other.

3. The only conceivable solution to the Democrats' short-term dilemma is to make Jackson the chairman of the Democratic National Committee. This is, above all symbolically, an important post. Moreover, unlike a Cabinet seat or some similar pie-in-the-sky, it is squarely within the gift of the Democratic delegates in Atlanta. Most important of all, the job would last for years beyond Election Day. whether the Democrats win or not. As chairman, Jackson would be a major spokesman - indeed, if the Republicans win in November, the principal spokesman - of the Democratic Party.

Best of all, giving the chairmanship to Jackson would enable the Democrats to nominate Michael Dukakis for president.

Remembering FDR on 43rd anniversary

By Arnold Sewiolah UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON — There is no special reason for remembering the 43rd anniversary of anything — except that the other morning the voice of Robert Trout came out of the radio announcing the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That was April 12, 1945, and Trout's familiar, authoritative voice, replayed in 1988, brought back that spring day long ago when, with no warning to us—who did not live in Washington and know of his startling decline, FDR died.

To those of us who were only dimly aware of anyone else ever being president, nothing, not even the murder of John F. Kennedy 18 years later, compared to the numbing effect of Roosevelt's death.

bing effect of Roosevelt's death.

It created a gaping hole in our lives, as if some familiar object of daily use like a bed we had slept in since childhood, suddenly vanished, leaving an empty place we could not imagine how to fill.

For us teenagers it was a nameless dread. For our parents, who had lived through the shock of the stockmarket crash, the grimy years of the Depression and the bloodsoaked horrors of World War II, it was a specific fear of a return to grim days past just when the future seemed brighter. They saw visions of Hoover and Coolidge and Harding, and they were scared.

Most of us really knew no more of Roosevell than the confident, cultured radio voice, the newspaper photographs of his face and the occasional spots of newsreel film, usually showing a seated man.

The well-informed knew he was a paraplegic, but there were puzzled looks, due as much to ignorance of his physical condition as to our own lack of sexual sophistication, when a civics teacher told us Roosevelt was such a handsome man that there would be a lot more nasty gossip about him had he been able to walk. (It would be interesting to know if she lived to learn the truth about FDR and Lucy Mercer.)

We have had only one president die in office since then, and that carried its own crushing blow. Kennedy's assistination was even more shocking than Roosevelt's death, but the added freight of anger, revulsion and suspicion about the crime occupied the public's mind. The sudden vacuum that followed Roosevelt's death was filled in the JFK case by Lee Oswald's capture and his murder by Jack Ruby.

Today, presidents come and presidents go. A 14-year-old in 1945 was born the year Roosevelt was elected and would have known no other president.

JACK ANDERSON

Jackson says what he stands for

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Of all the presidential contenders, Jesse Jackson has stirred up the most controversy. This has produced some misconceptions about his candidacy. What does he really stand for? What will he do with the power he is gaining?

A group of University of Utah professors prepared an exhaustive question naire for the Voters Caucus, a non-partisan voter education group. The questionnaire was designed to cut through the campaign rhetoric and get to the heart of a candidate's philosophy. Jackson's frank responses, reported here for the first time, reveal a consistent, deep-rooted philosophy.

Clearly, he sees himself as a champion of the downtrodden and the deprived, as a moral leader crying out against human and economic exploitation. He would like to turn the power structure upside down, giving more power to the powerless and more wealth to the impoverished. He also supports the Third World's struggle against colonialism and exploitation.

Jackson believes he can achieve his goals by working within the American political system. A determined, organized minority, he believes, can extract concessions from an apathetic majority. He has already proved this by turning out his followers in the Democratic primaries. Although blacks constitute only 12 percent of the population and he has attracted less than 15 percent of the white vote, he has placed high in the primaries because 80 percent of the eligible voters aren't bothering to vote.

Jackson's strategy, apparently, is to apply his new political clout to get the government to collect more taxes from those on the top and distribute the benefits to those on On the questionnaire, he took the most extreme position among the presidential candidates in favor of higher taxes to finance "educational programs to better train the nation's youth, welfare programs to provide for the needy, health care programs to care for the sick...etc."

Jackson wrote that he also believes fiercely that "the government should try to make the benefits of our society available to all its people on an equal basis so that everyone is assured of a reasonable standard of living, and we should raise taxes as necessary to achieve this goal."

Jackson "definitely opposes" efforts to set "mandatory targets for federal spending reductions." He is also against a balanced budget amendment and believes the country should be "allowed to go into debt to meet the real needs of our people." The way to hold down the deficit, he strongly feels, is to "cut defense spending only."

He wants to reduce nuclear arms, stop underground nuclear testing and limit all military weaponry—positions that he marked on the questionnaire as "extremely important." He also took the most extreme position against the Strategic Defense Initiative, declaring that "we cannot afford this research, and Congress should stop funding it."

It is also Jackson's "extremely important" view that "U.S. action and intervention in the affairs of recognized Third World regimes is both illegal and immoral." He feels strongly that "the U.S. should recognize the legitimate rights of Palestinian people to have some type of independent nation of their own. Israel must be pressured to recognize that the Palestinian Arabs need to be independent of Israeli control."

one second ahead of Ikangaa. Hussein fell short of the world record of 2:06:50 set in Rotterdam, Holland. Sunday by Belayneh Dinsamo of Ethiopia. He also missed the Boston Marathon mark of 2:07:51 set by Rob de Castella in 1986.

When we ran the first two miles I was feeling my muscles were tight and I thought it was going to bother me, but fortunately it didn't at the end," Hussein

Hussein and Ikangaa turned the 26mile, 385-yard race into a two-man duel over the final five miles. The Africans ran shoulder-to-shoulder until they turned onto Boylston Street, less than a half-mile from the finish.

Ikangaa, who finished 11th in last year's race, moved four strides ahead of the Kenyan and appeared to be pulling away. But Hussein's final sprint put him ahead of Ikangaa about 40 yards from the finish line.

MIAMI (UPI) - The Miami Hurricanes announced Monday they are changing their football starting times from 7:30 p.m. to more compatible with the social 4 p.m.

The change covers five of the Hurricanes' games in the Orange Bowl. The Florida State game Sept. 3 is on CBS and will start at 9 p.m.

Starting at 4 p.m. will be home games with Wisconsin Sept. 24. Missouri Oct. 1, Cincinnati Oct. 22, Tulsa Nov. 5, and Arkansas

Athlette Director Sam Jankovich said there was an outside chance the Arkansas game time could be changed because of television. "The 4 p.m. starting time is young children to attend games with their families, and will be more convenient for those traveling to Hurricane games with their families from outlying areas," he said.

The Hurricanes also announced the beginning of a corporate ticket campaign aimed at selling blocks of season tickets to corporations for their use as employee incentives and for ellents. Lynn Eilefson, associate athletic director for external affairs, also outlined a ticketselling campaign.

Two shooting incidents unrelated

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Two Sanford men remain jailed today, accused of shooting at a man from a passing car at about 9:30 p.m. Monday in Sanford. Meanwhile, an investigation continues into the wounding of a boy in a similar incident on Sunday night. Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said today there is no apparent link between the two incidents, and the victim of the 10:25 p.m. Sunday shooting, Carlos Walker, 15, of 57 Seminole Gardens, continues to refuse to cooperate with police. He was wounded in the leg by a single shot from a small-caliber weapon fired from a passing car as he stood on the corner of West

Fifth Street and Olive Avenue.

The Monday night gunplay occurred on Seventh Street at West Locust Avenue, with shots being fired at Alex Wynn, 19, of 1001 W. 10th St., as he stood on the corner, Harriett said. Wynn was not wounded. He reported the incident to police and gave a description of the ear involved.

Sanford police spotted a car on Third Street matching the description of that vehicle and pursued it to South Park Avenue, where it was stopped.

There, at about 10 p.m., after police brought Wynn to the scene to make identifications. the two occupants of the car were arrested.

Robert Rawles, 24, of 30 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, and Rodney Conquest, 26, of 107 McKay St., Sanford, have been charged with aggravated assault and were being held in lieu of $2,000 bond each. Rawles faces an added charge of resisting arrest without violence for allegedly resisting being handcuffed.

Harriett said the Monday incident is apparently linked to a feud between two groups of Sanford residents. A .44-caliber Magnum revolver was recovered from the suspects when the arrests were made, he said.

Police still don't have a motive in the Sunday shooting or Walker who was released from the hospital after treatment. There was no report of injury to Wynn in the Monday incident.

millionaire jumps, flips New lottery

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) -Friends and neighbors sent Jonathon Johnson to the Florida Lottery's $1 million jackpot drawing with a bag filled with their lucky charms.

The charms seemed to work Monday when Johnson, 30, became the game's third millionaire.

Johnson, a bachelor, said he planned to quit his job as a self-employed packing container

Johnson said part of his $1 million winnings, trimmed to about $800,000 after federal taxes, will be used to throw a big party for friends who gave him "all the lucky things that they kept during all the years.

"I was armed and dangerous when I came to Jacksonville today," he said.

"I've got a wonderful life right now, and wonderful friends," he added. "From here on out it's just going to be better."

Johnson survived an elaborate elimination process based on 1950s nostalgia in which lottery officials awarded prizes ranging from $10,000 to $50,000 to six other players who qualified for the drawing.

Johnson, wearing a checked shirt and gray slacks, ran from center stage, jumped onto a chair and a table then pounced onto the stage, where he did a somersault, sprang to his feet and ended with a jig on stage.

He hugged Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul, lifting her up and twirling her around, then shook hands with the runner-up before leaving the stage.

Asked what he sold in Sarasota, Johnson replied: "Nothing now." He is a selfemployed packaging container salesman.

James Stewart, 54, a retired Air Force officer from Valrico, east of Tampa, won the second-place prize of $50,000; Lillian Jaynes, 63, a Veterans Administration medical technician in Miami, won $25,000.

Ronald Iseminger, 41, a Florida marine patrol captain from Hobe Sound, and Jackt Whalen, 43, an account clerk from Orlando, each won $15,000, and John Graper, 26, of Jacksonville, and Leonard Clark, 32, of Mary Eather and in the Air Force, won $10,000.

All seven became finalists when their $1 lottery tickets displayed the word "ENTRY" three times, and their tickets were plucked from a drum with nearly a half-million other qualifying tickets.

The two previous millionaires. Thomas Sawyer of St. Petersburg and Joseph Hutchings of Fort Lauderdale, had expressed doubts about the game. Sawyer has refused to propriety. Manning replied.

"Sometimes we overlook the obvious."

When criticized for not having proper records and system of repayment set up for the interest-free loans and advances given to police officers, Manning said "We do a lot of things on the honor system." Asked if there is any evidence that he or others paid back the loans that were not recorded, Manning said "Nothing but my word."

Asked by Kornreich if he wasn't obligated to keep records for the Internal Revenue Service on money paid out to officers for off-duty details or working overtime on homicide reports. Manning said he told the officers "to declare the money on their own income lax report." He said he saw no difference in pay for off-duty and overtime on homicide reports. "Cash is cash," he explained.

The administrative hearing opened at 9 a.m. in city hall with William Barfield, attorney for Menning and Baker making his opening presentation to the board, which was chaired by Walt Inrael of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Other area law enforcement officers hearing the complaint included Capt. Marcus "Bill" Sanders of the Florida Highway Patrol; Capt. Charles Fagan. Sanford Police Department: Roger Webb, investigator for the state attorney's office in Sanford: and Chief Deputy Duane Harrell of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

Barfield told the board Manning's career was relatively smooth until January 1987 when he became the subject of numerous investigations instigated by Commissioner David Gunter, who is now mayor.

He said in July 1967 Gunter accused Manning of misappropriation of public funds and naked that he be fired. The FDLE declined to investigate because the problem appeared to be a dispute between Gunter and Manning, Barfield said.

Barfield said Manning addressed each one of Gunter's allegations and the commission voted 3-2 that there was no basis for charges. Barfield said Manning should be evaluated on his present management performance rather than prior to February 1985 when Manning stopped the controversial practice of depositing funds from the sale of surplus and confiscated goods and revenue from fees charged for fingerprints or traffic reports into the Police Benevolent Fund, as the city auditor recommended.

In Terry's original letter notifying the employees of suspension he cited probable cause for charges of misappropriation. misfessance and violation of the city code of conduct, but Friday he withdrew the charges of misappropriation and misfeasance.

Kornreich said the audit and subsequent suspensions have been called political, but said new commissioners have a right to go back and look at what occurred in the past. He said the audit showed "there was a lot of money (almost $100,000 over 10 years) deposited in the account and numerous errors."

Etchberger denied that the audit was politically motivated and said when the mayor told him he suspected wrongdoing. he told him he "wouldn't go on a shopping trip" with any pre-viously conceived ideas.

 The commission agreed that they were leaning toward the acceptance of an interlocal Agreement with neighboring city governments and Seminole County, with regard to the use of impact fees for road use. However, there was some discussion as to the priority of the roads during the first five years of the 20-year plan.

 A petition regarding additional signage from Seminole Centre merchants was discussed by the commission. Commissioners felt that the existing Mobile Sign Ordinance, designed to discourage temporary signs) was appropriate. "I think it's a good ordinance and a good interpretation," said Com-missaloner John Mercer.

The shopping center currently has a 600 square-foot sign in use, but not all merchants have space on the sign because sign space was filled up before the center was at full capacity. The Seminole Centre Merchants Association think the Mobile Sign Ordinance restricts members' advertising rights.

 The commission decided to take under advisement for later discussion the Sanford Airport Authority's request that its revised rules and regulations be adoption as city ordinances.

Here's a prescription to avoid wrong mix of food and drugs

DEAR ARBY: A few years ago you published a list of foods that people who are taking certain prescription drugs should avoid. At the time I was perfectly healthy, so I paid no attention to it. However, now my husband is taking three different prescribed drugs, and I am taking two, and It occurs to me that there may be certain foods in our regular diet that could change the action of the drugs we are taking.

Abby, you would be doing all of your readers, especially the senior citisens, a big favor if you reprint that information.

L.J.L., WATERLOO, 10WA

DEAR L.J.L.: Here it is: The Food and Drug Administration. in cooperation with the National Council on Patient Information and Education, has embarked on a program to inform and educate people about the medications they use.

Most people are unaware that there can be an interaction between the prescribed drugs they are taking and certain foods they eat. This interaction can cause some drugs to work faster or slower, or to become totally ineffective.

For example, people who are taking certain prescribed drugs for severe depression or high blood pressure should avoid aged cheese. Chianti wine. pickled herring, yogurt, chicken liver, bananas, avocados, sour cream, and all foods prepared with meat tenderizers.

Persons taking anti-congulants (blood thinners) should avoid liver and large amounts of leafy vegetables because the vitamin K in those foods tends to promote blood clotting.

People on thyroid medication should avoid brusecis sprouts.

turnips, cabbage, soybeans and

Dairy products should not be eaten by a person who is taking a specific kind of antibiotic.

Alcohol and even aspirin should not be combined with certain other drugs. Mixing alcohol with a high dosage of Valtum or Darvon can be fatal. The next time you are given a prescription, don't hesitate to ask your physician, or your pharmacist, the following ques-

1. What is the name of the drug, and what is is supposed to do? (Write it down so you won't

2. When do I take it, and for how long? (Does "three times a day" mean morning, noon and night? Should it be taken before meals, with meals or after meals/ If the instructions say "every four hours," should I get up during the night to take it? Should I keep taking it until it's all gone?)

3. Are there any foods, beverages, medications or activities I should avoid whie taking this drug? (Is alcohol allowed? How about aspirin and antacids? Please be aware that there is alcohol in beer, liquor and wine.) 4. Are there any side effects?

And what should I do if they do 5. Is there any written inthe drug you have prescribed for

6. la there an approved generic version of this drug? (There usually is, and it is much cheaper and no less effective.)

Readers, for a free brochure about prescription drugs, write to: RX Drugs, Consumer Information Center, Department DA. Pueblo, Colo. 81009. No. stamped, self-addressed envelope is necessary, but please allow 30 days for delivery. When this hits print, the center will be deluged.

P.S. Tomorrow: What you should tell your physician before he or she prescribes any kind of medication for you. Also, some valuable tips to help you use prescription drugs safely and effectively.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to respond to the lady who had so many holiday cookies and goodies she didn't know what to do with them. Has she ever considered arranging for an afternoon tea at a rest home for the aged? How they would enjoy some homemade goodles and the touch of the outside. She doesn't know what sweetness there is in sharing in this special

DEAR ROSIE: Obviously you do. Thanks for sharing. You're a sweetheart!

It's againg that causes baggy eyes

DEAR DR. GOTT: My grandson asked me how people get bags under their eyes. I told him I didn't know but would sak you. Do you know?

DEAR READER: People usually get bags under their eyes during the aging process, as the skin becomes less elastic and sags. In addition, the accumulation of fluid, called edema, in the tissues around the eyes can cause bagginess. Bags under the eyes usually appear concomitantly with wrinkling. However, fatigue, fluid retention and disruption of blood flow from the head (as from certain tumors and inflammation) can produce swelling of the lower lids. Bags under the eyes from aging can, if severe, be treated successfully with plastic surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you explain progressive supranuclear palsy? Is this just a more rapid form of Parkinson's?

DEAR READER: Progressive supranuclear palsy, also known as Steele-Richardson-Olszewski syndrome, is a rare neurological disease of unknown cause. It affects middle-aged patients and causes loss of voluntary eye movements, muscular rigidity. weakness, difficulty speaking and swallowing and eventual dementia. Patients show degeneration of vital nerve centers at the base of the brain. In rare cases, drugs to treat Parkinson's disease — a distinct and separate disorder — have been helpful in controlling the spastic rigidity of supranuclear palsy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In the past few months, my mother has developed a problem. She makes frequent low-level moaning sounds. She's unaware of her habit and surprised when we bring it to her attention. She's active and in good health. This started after my father had a stroke. Is this a medical matter or is it psychological?

DEAR READER: Your mother may have become hard of hearing. As people age, they develop deafness; they cannot hear their own little moans and grunts. I believe that your mother's problem is physical. Have her hearing checked.

WIN AT BRIDGE

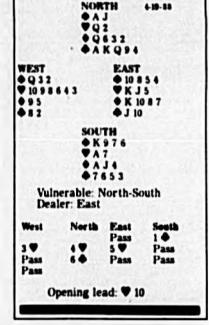

By James Jacoby

West's abourd three-heart jump into the twilight zone is not textbook bidding. West assumed the opponents had game or slam after his partner had passed as dealer. So, trading on favorable vulnerability, he got emptive jump. Then everybody got into the act - North with a random cue-bid of four hearts. East with his raise to five hearts. Probably South should have doubled with his minimum opening and poor club suit, but he passed. So North bid six clubs - not a great contract, but very makable.

When the heart 10 lead is covered with the queen, king and ace, declarer should realize his best hope is to find the spade queen with West. A spade to the jack, the A-K of clubs, then spade ace and a diamond to the ace will allow South to get rid of dummy's losing heart on his spade king. He will then have to lose only the diamond king. But this declarer was blind. After winning the opening lead, he played A-K of clubs and exited with a heart. East won the jack in their way with his pre- (better if he had let West win) and played a spade. Dummy's ace took the queen, the jack was cashed and declarer finessed to his diamond jack. He then cashed the spade king, hoping the 10 would fall, but no luck.

Even now, running the clubs would squeeze East, but instead declarer ruffed the spade nine and tried to drop the diamond king. When it did not drop, the slam was one away. No doubt the unusual success of his wild pre-empt will encourage West to make similar idiot bids in the future.
