Phil predicts extended winter

ALASKA (AP) — Unseasonably dry weather, a lack of snow and a warm spell are making the winter season appear to be an unusually dry one, according to Phil, a meteorologist and reported as groundhog, that he had seen the shadow meaning six more weeks of winter weather.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Officers won't be disciplined

TALLAHASSEE — A group of off-duty Tallahassee police officers who celebrated a recent killer's execution did not violate departmental conduct regulations, an internal investigation showed.

A report released Tuesday said although some of the 20 officers were drinking, none violated policies against being drunk in public or conducting themselves in a manner that would discredit the department.

The report also said an officer who identified himself to reporters as Tallahassee Police Chief Melvin Tucker did not do so maliciously.

Officer Bob Dula "was directing his comments to other employees and not to the media," said Phil Kiracofe, spokesman for the Tallahassee Police Department.

The officers, including some who were on the force when Bundy murdered two Florida State University students in January 1978, had a picnic and cheered outside the Florida State Prison where Bundy was executed Jan. 24.

Officers sang "On Top of Old Sparky" — a reference to Florida's electric chair — to death penalty opponents outside Florida State Prison during the execution and cheered when Bundy's death was announced.

But the investigation, which included interviews with seven officers and five civilian employees, showed none of the participants actually became drunk, said Kiracofe.

Investigator Ray Crew said he thought reporters overplayed the incident.

Kidnapped baby found alive and well

MIAMI — A 9-month-old child with epilepsy who was kidnapped from the Little Havana section home of a doctor was found alive and well in a city park today and two suspects were arrested, police said.

The baby's parents — Dr. Luis Cruz and his wife Claribel — said the baby is fine after his 17-hour ordeal, although he apparently had not been given epilepsy medication that he requires twice a day.

"Our baby's fine, thank God," Claribel Cruz said. "It's been a terrible day. We prayed to the Lord and he answered us."

Luis Cruz Jr. was kidnapped at 11 a.m. Wednesday and found alone near a trash can at Bryant Park at 4 a.m. today. The suspects were arrested about an hour later.

The child was found after the parents received a phone call from the kidnapper, police said. He was dressed in the same t-shirt and diaper he was wearing when he was abducted.

"We want to thank the FBI, the local police and the state attorney's office for their cooperation," the father said. "They all have been very helpful and thanks to them we have our child back."

Former commissioner reports to prison

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — Former Walton County commissioner Raymond Hall has reported to a federal prison in northwest Florida to begin serving a three-year sentence, prison officials said Wednesday.

Hall and a co-defendant, Lloyd Dean Junger of Junger Utility & Paving Co., were convicted in 1987 of mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud for billing the county for $8,000 worth of asphalt that it never received.

Junger was sentenced to three years on probation, but Hall was sentenced to serve time at the minimum-security prison located at Eglin Air Force Base, near Fort Walton Beach.

Hall will spend a few days going through admission procedures at the prison, then will later be assigned to a job.

Man sues firearms company

PENSACOLA — An Okaloosa County man has filed suit against the manufacturer of a shotgun that allegedly discharged when he dropped it, his lawyer said Wednesday.

Pensacola lawyer William Rankin filed suit in Escambia County Circuit Court on behalf of John H. Williams Jr., claiming New England Firearms Co. was negligent by failing to warn consumers about alleged defects in its 12-gauge shotgun.

Williams said he was shot in the foot last March when the shotgun fell on the floor and discharged. The suit seeks more than $5,000 in damages and a jury trial.

Gulf Power's PAC 2 may not be legal

PENSACOLA — A political fund organized by Gulf Power workers may be violating state law by not registering as a political action committee, but a state official said Wednesday potential violations are only investigated if someone files a complaint.

The Pensacola News Journal Wednesday said Gulf Power officials have confirmed that about 100 upper-management workers at the utility contribute to a fund for candidates. The so-called PAC 2 is not registered as a political action committee.

State law requires groups to file a statement of organization if members work for a candidate or issue, accept money or spend more than $500 a year.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Tampa arrest leads to unrest

United Press International

TAMPA — A scuffle between a white police officer and black drug suspect who later died at a hospital triggered rocks and bottle throwing Wednesday night in a mostly black Tampa neighborhood.

There was some gunfire and reports of at least one fire and some looting in the predominantly black College Hill neighborhood, but four hours after the incident the area was quiet, police said.

A white undercover officer along with uniformed police tried to arrest a black man described as a known drug dealer after a cocaine purchase about 7:30 p.m. EST and had trouble subduing him, police said.

A crowd gathered and began throwing rocks and bottles at the arresting officers, police spokesman Steve Cole said. The suspect was taken to a nearby school, an ambulance was called, and the suspected cocaine dealer later died at St. Joseph's Hospital of an unknown cause, Cole said.

Police Chief A.C. McLane said the suspect hit his head on the ground several times during the scuffle with police.

A derringer, a small, two-shot pistol, was found in the suspect's back pocket, but there were no shots fired by police or the suspect, Cole said.

Four officers suffered minor injuries, including one white officer who was injured during the scuffle with the suspect.

Gustafson: Road plans need money

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — House Speaker Tom Gustafson said Wednesday state gasoline taxes will have to be increased to 40 cents per gallon if Gov. Bob Martinez wants to complete his 10-year strategic transportation plan.

"If those are the needs of Florida, then we need a 40-cent gas tax or its equivalent to fund it," Gustafson said of the governor's plan.

But he said some of the projects in the plan unveiled last year by Martinez and Transportation Secretary Kaye Henderson might not be absolutely necessary, especially when weighed against other state needs.

The state gas tax currently is 9.7 cents per gallon. Various local gas taxes apply in different areas.

Gustafson spoke at the inaugural meeting of a House select committee formed to reconcile the state's comprehensive plan for roads, social services, prisons and other needs to the available resources.

Gustafson earlier had complained he was hearing "mixed signals" from the administration, with Martinez publicly firmly opposed to any tax increase and Henderson pushing through intermediaries for a modest increase.

Patty Woodworth, the governor's top budget aide, said the recommended budget due Feb. 18 will include no new taxes.

Gustafson said although there are "not mixed signals anymore" from the Department of Transportation, officials there have been talking at length about the need for new roads and bridges.

The agency also has a six-year, $900 million budget shortfall that is delaying projects.

Phosphates threaten water

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Waste from Central Florida phosphate plants — some of it accumulating for 60 years — is threatening the aquifer that supplies 90 percent of the state's drinking water, according to a Department of Environmental Regulation report.

Fifteen of the 16 plants listed in the report as potential trouble spots are in three counties — Hillsborough, Polk and Manatee — and three of those plants already are leaking hazardous chemicals into the underground water supply, the report says.

Waste from another eight plants on the list has tainted a secondary aquifer above the primary water supply, the report says.

The report is the first attempt by the state to detail the amount of waste involved in phosphate production and its effects on groundwater.

Tom Reese, an attorney for an environmental group, told the St. Petersburg Times Wednesday the violations noted in the report were "outrageous."

"And if you check the numbers within the violations, they don't just exceed the state's pollution standards, they exceed them by an order of magnitude over the standard."

Most of the waste created comes from the manufacturing of phosphate, an agricultural fertilizer.

The waste products are placed in huge piles called gypsum stacks and contain sulfuric and phosphoric acids that work down through the soil to the aquifer.

Reese said the acids "eat holes under the piles and actually dissolve the aquifer below."

Clemency hearing requested

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Citing new evidence in one of Florida's most notorious murder cases, Gov. Bob Martinez on Wednesday asked Cabinet members to join him in granting a clemency hearing to convicted child killer James Richardson.

Richardson, 53, was convicted of killing his eight-year-old stepdaughter Betty Jean Bryant in 1967. Bryant was one of seven Richardson children who died after eating a meal laced with deadly parathion.

Martinez said new evidence has surfaced that suggests Richardson did not commit those killings. He assigned Dade County State Attorney Janet Reno to investigate the case, already under review by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and the governor's office.

"It's time we assigned someone that has the full force of law, the ability to issue subpoenas, take sworn testimony and make sure that all those who are making statements are consistent in their statements or if they have purged themselves in their statements then the law can take effect," Martinez said.

Later in the day, Reno would not say how long she thought her investigation would take, but she said it began immediately. She said she would take into consideration information from sources which indicate another person actually poisoned the children.

"Those questions have been raised and it will be our responsibility to conduct as thorough, objective and fair an investigation as possible to make sure that justice is obtained."

Graham critical of proposed fund cut

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bob Graham said Wednesday a proposal that would cut federal refugee funds in Florida was "unconscionable."

"I want this ill-advised proposal reversed," said Graham, D-Fla. "It would put Florida in double jeopardy. On the one hand, more undocumented aliens are headed to Florida as a result of federal policies. On the other hand, the administration wants to wipe out federal refugee assistance funds for four Florida counties."

In a letter to Wayne Stanton, administrator of the Family Support Administration of the Department of Health and Human Services, Graham said the current formula used to determine the eligibility of counties for targeted assistance funds counts refugees who arrived between fiscal years 1980-1982. During that time, Florida received about 140,000 refugees.

A proposed revision would count only those refugees who arrived between calendar year 1983 and fiscal year 1988.

During the last fiscal year, four Florida counties — Dade, Broward, Palm Beach and Hillsborough — got $16,771,521 in targeted assistance money.

"The effect of the proposed formula is an immediate $3,326,694 cut in Florida's share of these dollars during the current fiscal year and its total elimination from the program in ensuing years," Graham said.

As a reason for maintaining funds, Graham cited an influx of aliens in south Florida during the last six months — about 6,600 — and an estimated 100,000 aliens from Nicaragua alone over the next several months.

Graham said immigration control is a federal responsibility.

Officials fear delay in preserve project

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County officials hope to convince the state to buy enough additional property to complete the Spring Hammock land-purchase project, stalled at about 80 percent of completion.

The Florida Department of Natural Resources, which oversees the state Conservation and Recreation Land (CARL) acquisition program, is considering a land-purchase policy change this month. County officials fear the change will further delay completion of the eight-year program to protect the 1,500-acre nature preserve. It is south of Sanford and Lake Mary, between County Road 427 on the west and Lake Jesup on the east.

To counter the state move, Seminole County officials have asked the Senate Natural Resources and Conservation Committee to consider a law dedicating a portion of CARL dollars to nearly-completed projects. Those projects would be placed on a second list separate from the priority list. Projects on the second list of partially-completed purchases would not be removed until all of the land

'We've basically done everything they've asked us to'

—Tony Vanderworp, Seminole County planning director has been bought.

Wayne Voigt, staff director of the committee, said Tuesday the county's proposal may be discussed at their meeting next Wednesday. He had no opinion on the idea.

County officials are frustrated to be close to ending the Spring Hammock purchase, and now be stalled. They point to more than $460,000 in county bond money spent in the early 1970s to start the purchases and more than $300,000 a year spent for the education center and park maintenance at Big Tree Park and Soldier's Creek Park in Spring Hammock.

"We've basically done everything they've asked us to," said Tony Vanderworp, Seminole County planning director. "But it's not done until it's over with."

Don Duden, assistant executive director of DNR, said the department will ask the governor and Cabinet on Feb. 16 to adopt a policy that would allow CARL staff to concentrate on only the top 30 projects in the 60-item CARL list unless the panel approves staff time to work on projects in the lower 30 projects on the list.

Projects eligible for state purchase under CARL are ranked twice a year from one to 60. Projects under the top dozen rarely are pursued due to limited appropriations from the Legislature. The program receives about $40 million to $50 million a year, but the top 30 projects are valued at about $200 million.

Previously, only the top 15 projects were worked on for purchases by CARL staff, Duden said. But there were exceptions, such as lands in the Save Our Everglades program and other projects more than 70 percent complete.

Although Spring Hammock reached a position of 57 on the list last year, CARL staff continued to work on acquisitions last year because the project was about 84 percent complete. Spring Hammock's ranking was later increased to 36, but work on three appraisals on about half the remaining 241 acres to be bought has been stalled until the new policy is adopted.

Duden said the governor and Cabinet don't have to approve the policy, but it will be presented to them for their review and suggestions.

Duden denies DNR officials want to ignore projects when they're nearly complete.

"If there's reason to work on it, then certainly, let's work on it," Duden said. "Projects almost purchased should be completed."

Duden said if any low-ranked CARL project has landowners willing to sell and the land is valuable to preserve, then it is one they would consider asking the governor and Cabinet to allow them to work on.

Colleen Logan, county senior strategic planner, said at least two of the three owners with the largest land tracts remaining are interested in selling their land for preservation and are waiting for the state to complete its surveys. Logan said all three parcels are important because one is in the center of the Spring Hammock area and two are adjacent to Soldier's Creek.

Police to investigate Hess' death

UPI report

LONDON — British police, on the trail of Nazi intrigue that includes British nobility, said Wednesday they will investigate allegations that the man who died in West Berlin's Spandau Prison in 1987 was an impostor, not Nazi war criminal Rudolf Hess.

British officials said Hess hanged himself but a book, "Hess: The Tale of Two Murders," claims the man who died at Spandau was a fake and the real Nazi lieutenant to Adolph Hitler died in 1941. The book also claims the Hess impostor was murdered at Spandau and did not commit suicide.

The book was written by Hugh Thomas, a former consultant surgeon at Spandau, which held Nazi war criminals. Hess, known as "prisoner No. 7," was the last prisoner at the facility.

"The Director of Public Prosecutions has asked Scotland Yard to investigate information which they have received suggesting Rudolf Hess did not die by his own hand," a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

He said an investigation into Thomas's allegations will be launched but declined to provide any more details of the case. The announcement came after a senior police officer met with Thomas.

Thomas said British authorities knew the man they had captured was not Hess.

Clouser Cottage perhaps sold to family

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The 100-year-old Clouser Cottage may end up as the property of descendants of its original owner.

John A. Bistline and his brother Fred, Longwood natives, have made an offer to Freedom Savings bank, Tampa, for the property located on West Church Avenue adjacent to city hall in the center of Longwood's historic district.

They are the great-grandsons of Josiah B. Clouser, a master carpenter from Pennsylvania who built the cottage as a temporary home in the 1800s. Clouser came to Longwood because he was commissioned to build the Longwood Hotel by E.W. Henck, an affluent attorney who named Longwood after his hometown in Massachusetts.

John Bistline said the home was owned by his grandmother, Frances Niemeyer, when they were children, but she sold it.

Bistline did not reveal the details of their offer made to the bank which acquired the house through foreclosure. "I don't want to pass out that information. We think it's signed, sealed and delivered. We should know by the end of the week. We don't have a signed agreement," Bistline said Wednesday. He said the deal should be closed in about 30 days but that they won't own the property for about one month.

The city was the first potential client of a deal offered by Freedom Savings bank to purchase the house and property for $50,000. At a special meeting on Jan. 23, the commissioners were divided in a 2-2 vote on the purchase of the Clouser Cottage. Two of the commissioners felt the house had historical value and the property would be a good investment, while the other two felt it was an unwise expenditure of city money.

Mayor Hank Hardy was not present at the meeting, but he indicated Wednesday that he was not in favor of the purchase. "I inspected the place. I think that's a better use for it, if the historic commission and the Bistlines want to restore it. The only reason I would have considered it in the beginning is if we (the city) could have used it for additional parking space," Hardy said.

The house, which needs extensive renovation, is situated on a 100-by-100-foot parcel of land.

Bistline said that if their offer is accepted by the bank, he and his brother plan to restore the cottage "to some configuration it was originally." That would probably mean removal of some of the additions, which would return it to the smaller version it was when it was built, he said.

Because it is located in the historic district, Bistline said that in order to make any improvements to the outside of the structure, they must have approval from the Longwood Historic Commission.

He said that after it is restored, they may use it as a one-man office or rent it to be used as a shop.

Footling Congress' re-election bills

Members of Congress, savoring the $45,000 per member pay raise they will automatically receive if they do not vote it down by Feb. 8, are seeking a boost in one of their biggest benefits — free mailing to voters.

Congress is budgeting $60.9 million to pay for their free mailings to voters for the fiscal year that will end next Sept. 30. Congress plans to spend a record $114 million for mailings for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 30, 1990.

Do the congressmen believe that problems will be so complex in 1990 that they will need to explain them in more detail to help their constituents?

Well, no. But there is an election coming up in 1990 and all 535 members of the House of Representatives will have their jobs on the line, as will a third of the Senate members.

Some cynical people might think that Congress members just want to have the taxpayers help foot their re-election bills. But that couldn't be. Could it?

His was a weird life

Somewhere on earth, there ought to be a museum devoted to artists with a special gift for the outrageous; artists who would stoop to anything — even the outright disgusting — to make us see the absurdity of the commonplace.

If such a museum were built, surely the Spanish surrealist Salvador Dali would deserve a pre-eminent place of honor. Dali, who died the other day at the age of 84, made a livelihood out of shocking sensibilities. He may be best remembered for his stark painting of melting clocks and nightmarish landscapes that seemed to echo the brutality of civil and global war.

He and fellow Spaniard, Luis Bunuel, also will go down in the annals of filmmaking for the 1929 classic of absurdity, "Un Chien Andalou," with an eyeball-slashing episode that send squeamish viewers racing for theater exits.

Critics found fault with Dali, particularly in his later life, for commercializing his art and turning to more readily acceptable religious themes. But Dali never apologized. He openly, perhaps even mischievously, flouted critics' expectations.

Dali, with his rolling eyes and waxed, curving moustache, was a surrealist in his life as well as in his art. He delighted in mocking the rituals of his native region, Catalonia. Once in 1966, when he attended a bullfight in his hometown, Figueras, a bullfighter decided to honor the artist. He offered Dali the bull's ear, the traditional prize for having fought and killed well.

Dali startled the crowd by demanding a lowly hoof, not even awarded as a booby prize. Said the artist, "I want to take it home and turn it into an ink well."

As the giant of the surrealist movement, Dali leaves a legacy that some find troubling. But he and his fellow artists worked against the backdrop of unsettling times, when a pall of violence and political madness fell over Europe. In his own disconcerting way, Dali's art helped chronicle that surrealistic era.

Enforce the law, not racial quotas

The U.S. Supreme Court, like some mad builder who cannot make up his mind, continues to tear down and then reconstruct affirmative-action policy.

Even in its latest ruling involving the city of Richmond, the court could not bring itself to enunciate a clear, morally enduring constitutional principle (although one justice, in a concurring opinion, did). Once again, the court hedged.

Yes, the court said, a "set-aside program" funneling a fixed percentage of public works funds to minority contractors is unconstitutional when it's created without proof of past discrimination and when the quotas bear no relationship to the available pool of minority-owned businesses.

But, no, not all racially-based policies are necessarily illegal.

In other words, Richmond cannot casually set aside 30 percent of its contracts for minorities. But the city can, apparently, target an unspecified (and undoubtedly smaller) percentage of contracts for disadvantaged groups so long as it dots its "i's" and crosses its "t's" with a little fact-finding first.

How? By taking three steps. First, count the minority businesses in the community. Then document any difference between the percentage of city contracts awarded minorities and the percentage of minority businesses that can handle the work, offering this as "proof" of discrimination. Finally, link the scope of any new affirmative action program to the number of minority contractors.

Voilà! Racial preference in awarding contracts will pass constitutional muster once more.

At least that's one way to interpret Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's opinion for the court. No doubt we'll find out in the near future whether it's the correct view, too, because some such narrow set-aside plan is sure to be reviewed by the court.

Fortunately, one justice has already managed to escape his colleagues' habit of confused hedging. In a concurring opinion, Antonin Scalia zeroed in on a morally persuasive principle that the entire court would do well to adopt: "I do not agree ... (that) state and local governments may in some circumstances discriminate on the basis of race in order (in a broad sense) to ameliorate the effects of past discrimination."

He went on: "Those who believe that racial preferences can help to 'even the score' display, and reinforce, a manner of thinking by race that was the source of the injustice and that will, if it endures within our society, be the source of more injustice still."

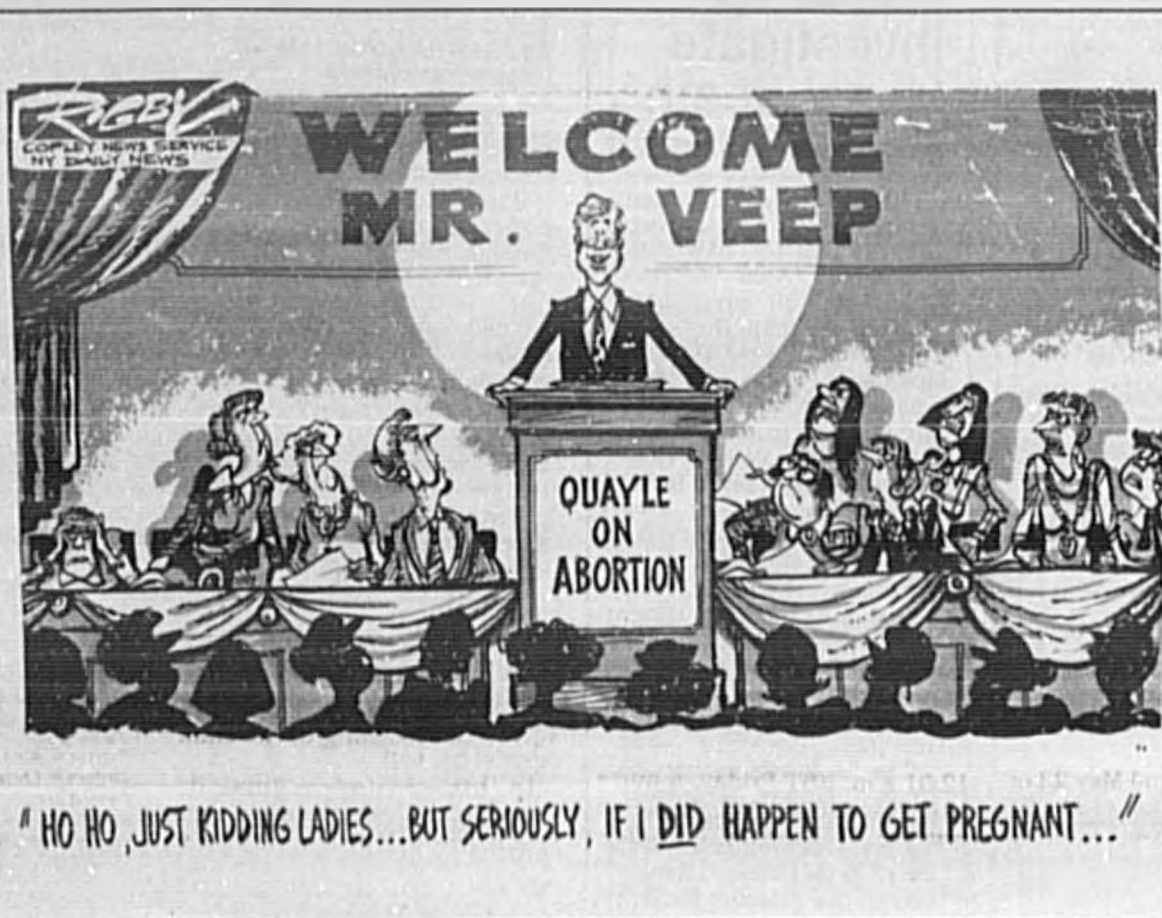

Scalia's sentiments are hardly novel. They were most famously stated many years ago by the first Justice Harlan, who upbraided his colleagues for failing to see that "our Constitution is colorblind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens...."

There is indeed a proper governmental remedy for discrimination, but it isn't to dish out benefits to an entire class of people based solely upon their race. It is, instead, to punish the bigots who break civil-rights law and come to the aid of actual victims.

In its recent ruling, the Supreme Court has gone a long way toward banning the worst excesses of government-sanctioned racial preference.

Racial preference in awarding contracts will pass constitutional muster once more.

Sullivan could be a relief

BOSTON — In a mere five weeks, Louis Sullivan has done more flip-flops on the subject of abortion than George Bush did in a lifetime.

First, the man chosen to head the department of Health and Human Services said he supported a woman's right to abortion. Then he said he didn't. Next, he said he wouldn't want to see Roe v. Wade overturned. Then he said he would.

George Bush's response to this sounded like an exercise in political math. "He has supported my position 100 percent," said the President.

But the most intriguing question is not where the real Sullivan stands on legal abortion, but what difference it makes. From the furor over his opinions, you would think that Dr. Sullivan had been nominated for the Supreme Court. But that hematologist from Georgia was chosen for HHS. And for those in and out of the Senate confirmation hearing who have forgotten: HHS is out of the abortion business.

There is almost no federal money going to abortions. No money for poor women unless their lives are endangered. No money for women in prisons, or in the military or in the federal employ. Now they do not even fund the Centers for Disease Control's program that monitored abortion safety.

The only role that the head of HHS could play in the reproductive drama is in pregnancy prevention. The secretary does head up Title X, the program set up under the old libertine, Richard Nixon, to help the poor and young prevent unwanted pregnancies. A modest $130 million from the megabudget of more than $350 billion goes to that purpose.

During the Reagan administration, the New Right homesteaded on HHS's turf. They staked out the agency for their own social agenda. Title X was the prime target of those who were not only anti-abortion but also anti-birth control.

They began their eight-year attack by trying to eliminate Title X altogether. Having failed that, they launched the squeal rule, primarily to limit the independent access of teen-agers to birth control. Having failed that, they tried to regulate it to death. Using a cover of anti-abortion rhetoric, they went on the offensive against family planning — especially against their arch-enemy, Planned Parenthood.

The Reagan HHS ruled that no provider could give information about abortion — not even to say the A-word — without losing federal funds. On the other hand, no clinic could legally misinform or disinform a patient that treatment without risking malpractice. They had a choice of losing funds or being sued for malpractice.

The same rule-writers said that family-planning clinics couldn't be in the same building as abortion facilities. As of now, three federal courts have enjoined these regulations. But, if instituted, the regulations would limit access to birth control. Which would, ironically, increase the demand for abortion.

After this sort of barrage, eight years during which conservative insiders lobbed grenades from HHS, Dr. Sullivan may well be a relief. Family planners may be able to use their energy in providing services instead of practicing self-defense.

Dr. Sullivan can have an effect on the abortion rate in one way. He comes out of a tradition of progressive medicine. He would head an agency that is acutely conscious of the troubles of teen-age pregnancy. From the bully pulpit and from the administrator's office, he can expand both birth-control availability and birth-control choices.

The President has placed himself squarely in the anti-abortion camp. But the nomination of Dr. Sullivan is an early signal that there's some attempt to balance ideology and reality. It's unlikely that his crowd would be hostile to birth control. And that is a modicum of good news for those who believe that birth control should be a tool and not a target in the attempt to reduce the need for abortion.

There is almost no federal money going to abortions.

Some proposals to bail out everything

WASHINGTON — Our savings and loans are in trouble, we are told, and it is up to us to bail them out. The latest idea is to charge a 25 or 30 cent insurance or service fee for every $100 we have on deposit.

Aside from the initial reaction that we must have missed the announcement that Jonathan Swift had been appointed chairman of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., the idea has broad possibilities for solving more than the S&L crisis.

Now, it is clear that President Bush won't permit a tax increase and that the federal government either has to raise more money or go out of business. So here are some modest proposals to enhance federal revenues that may pass Budget Director Richard Darman's "duck test" — "If it quacks, it's a tax."

First, it should be realized that the federal government has been giving away a lot of goods and services that citizens could be paying for.

Income tax forms, for example. Charging people $1 for Form 1040 would raise $100 million right off the bat and another buck service fee to the IRS to process each one would bring in almost as much. You can't get a bargain like that from H & R Block.

Furthermore, millions of people use the Treasury like a bank, paying too much in withholding and then withdrawing the extra payments as refunds. Why shouldn't the government get 25 or 30 cents per $100 on tax refunds?

Speaking of which, there are millions of people who not only are getting money every month from the government but have it delivered to their homes free.

Why can't Social Security require the old folks to send 12 stamped, self-addressed envelopes every year for mailing out their benefits. Vets, farmers getting crop subsidies, welfare queens and retired presidents could be included in that little money-saver.

Right now, anyone can write a letter to the president for the same 25 cents it costs to send a greeting card to Aunt Matilda or return a sweepstakes entry. We probably could pay Mr. Bush's salary just by requiring everyone who sends him a letter to enclose $1 in currency or stamps as a reading fee.

In that same line, it doesn't cost a penny to picket the White House? That's a privilege that ought to be worth at least $10 a day. We also could sell a $50 season pass for folks with really big causes.

In addition, we've been letting people hold marches on Washington free. The government ought to charge mileage, say $10 per person for every block between the Washington Monument and the U.S. Capitol used by protest marches. If they march the other direction, from the Monument toward the Lincoln Memorial, we could add a $1 towel fee for demonstrators who wade in the Reflecting Pool.

Some might say that these suggestions would have a chilling effect on the free speech guaranteed in the Constitution. That would be a matter for the Rehnquist Supreme Court to decide, but in the meantime we could charge people 50 cents or so to get into the National Archives to read the First Amendment for themselves.

Bush outlawed raising taxes, but said nothing about the other inevitability, death. Simply installing coin-operated turntables at Arlington National Cemetery would pay for a lot of lawn mowing now charged to the Treasury.

Anti-nuisance fees also should be considered. For $100, the Postal Service could promise not to deliver junk mail for a full year.

That's a privilege that ought to be worth at least $10 per day.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly higher Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 4.11 Wednesday, was up 3.58 to 2341.79 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 427-311 among the 1,237 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 10,760,000 shares.

Stock prices ended mixed in heavy trading Wednesday as the impact of renewed buying activity was dampened by downward pressure caused by profit taking in the wake of the market's recent advance.

Analysts said profit taking weakened stock prices as investors conducted minor sell-offs in order to capitalize on steady gains won since mid-November.

They noted, however, that lower prices in recent sessions have served as an entry point for investors who have not yet taken part in the rally. And that trend was expected to continue as buying interest, which has driven the market up to levels not seen since the Oct. 19, 1987 crash, remained strong.

Dollar slightly lower

United Press International

The dollar was slightly lower Thursday in light trading on major foreign currency markets ahead of the Group of Seven industrialized nations meeting in Washington. Gold was slightly higher.

Traders in New York said the market was also awaiting the release Friday of January's employment report.

Market watchers said with uncertainties about the finance ministers' meeting, and various forecasts about January's employment data, traders were backing off from their long positions in the dollar.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed lower against the Japanese yen at 129.75 yen, down 0.85 from 130.40 yen on Wednesday.

Dealers said market players engaged in position-adjustment trading ahead of Friday's Group of Seven meeting and the U.S. jobless figures.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.8645 West German marks, down from 1.8675 marks on Wednesday.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.5885 Swiss francs, down from 1.5915 francs on Wednesday.

nesday. In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.353 French francs, down from 6.375 francs the day before.

The dollar started the day in Brussels at 39.24 Belgian francs, down from 39.28 francs and opened in Italy at 1,365.75 Italian lire, down from 1,368.60 lire Wednesday.

In London, the British pound began the day at $1.7495 compared with $1.7545 on Wednesday.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly lower against key foreign currencies in narrow, thin trading.

Schools

Greenwood Lakes Middle in 1986, and Lake Mary High in 1981 prompted past action.

"It makes it a somewhat harder pill to swallow," Hughes said. "Students aren't going to brand new schools, they're going to different schools."

This time overcrowding is to blame. While some areas of the county are experiencing only moderate growth, the cities of Oviedo and Lake Mary are booming with new homes, and new students for Seminole schools. The rezoning is an effort to relieve overcrowding and balance enrollments.

Not all believe it is necessary. Namely Jackson Heights Middle School principal Bob Rainey and a strong following of that school's parents. Seventeen classroom portables are used to house students on the Oviedo campus, but Rainey says it is not a problem, and would rather not see young people moved unless absolutely necessary. He cited letters from educators, and journal articles as proof that moving students at this age could be harmful in terms of a loss of self-esteem. Rainey asks that only incoming students be moved. Fewer students would be affected this way. It also means the school is less likely to lose teachers and programs that are determined by enrollment figures.

Programs are also of concern to parents of Seminole High School students. In particular, they want more gifted, vocational and advanced placement courses. Seminole parents say other schools have an abundance of these courses, and they would like to see their fair share. Some even question if the school's 39 percent minority ratio — the highest in the district — is causing what they call inequities. A representative from the NAACP addressed this matter, as did Velma Williams, a parent at that school.

Board chairman Ann Neiswender responded that the board could handle the problem through other funds and that was being studied.

"It's a first step," parent Bill Royster, said. "Whether it will meet our needs remains to be seen."

The following is the proposed plan for middle school rezoning:

- 92 Jackson Heights Middle School students would attend Tuskawilla Middle. This would include students living in Sunrise, Amherst and Lafayette Woods subdivisions.
- 124 Jackson Heights students living in the Oak Forest subdivision would move to Tuskawilla Middle.
- 229 Tuskawilla Middle School students would attend South Seminole Middle. This would include students living in English Estates, Dommerich Woods, and Lake of the Woods subdivisions.
- 64 South Seminole students living in Prairie Lake would attend Milwee Middle School.
- 10 Milwee Middle students would move to Teague Middle. This would include students living west of the south end of Montgomery Road, and would include Spring Oaks Woods and Heatherton Village.
- 150 Greenwood Lakes Middle School students would go to Milwee Middle. These students live in Longwood between General Hutchinson on the north and S.R. 434 on the south and Route 417 on the west and U.S. 17-92 on the east.

- 78 Greenwood Lakes students would attend Rock Lake Middle. These students live in Longwood, bordered on the north by Longwood Hills Road and on the south by S.R. 434 and the west by Range Line Road and to the east by Route 427.
- 94 Greenwood Lakes students living in the Highlands would move to Lakeview.

The following are considerations for rezoning, which did not receive unanimous approval by task force members:

- 61 Lake Mary High student would attend Lyman High. The north boundary is Longwood Hills Road from Range Line Road on west boundary and Route 427 on east boundary and S.R. 434 on the south boundary.
- 48 Lake Mary High School student would attend Seminole High. This includes students living in the Evansdale, Cardinal Oaks, Cardinal Oaks II, Lake Bingham Woods, Cardinal Oaks Estates, Country Downs, Hampton Park and Lake Mary Woods subdivisions.

McGoldrick guilty of lewd and lascivious acts upon a child, to find him guilty of a lesser offense of battery, or innocent. He explained that battery involved the touching of the child against her will.

In his closing argument, Assistant State Attorney Jeff Deen contested McGoldrick's testimony that if he did touch the girls improperly it was inadvertent and a mistake.

"The children who testified didn't think it was a mistake or inadvertent," Deen said. "They knew that he knew what he was doing."

Deen told the jury to consider "what kind of effort it takes for a man who is 5 feet 11 inches tall to stoop down and touch the crotch of a 3-foot-high girl who is bent over a water fountain." One of the girls testified this happened to her five or six times.

Saltzgraver argued that McGoldrick's touching of the girls was in the category of "innocent encouragement." He said, "I don't see the line between innocent encouragement and molestation as clearly as Mr. Deen does."

Deen contested that remark, telling the jury "It's too bad this has to get mixed up with a hug on a shoulder for a reward. The kids didn't do that — McGoldrick and his attorney did." Deen told the jury, "This is separate paranoia to get you to identify with that touching. You can't identify with the type of touching he did. It's just not the same."

McGoldrick was a teacher at Goldboro Elementary School, where the acts were charged to have taken place. He was suspended without pay after his arrest.

Eight girls testified Monday and Tuesday that he touched them in improper places last spring.

Launch

pump failure and the destruction of a shuttle.

After a cross-country teleconference Wednesday, NASA managers decided to proceed with the replacement of all three pumps at the launch pad. The replacement pumps are thought to be immune to the cracking phenomenon.

NASA must launch Discovery by around March 18 to avoid delaying the next flight on the schedule, the April 28 liftoff of Atlantis to carry the $530 million Magellan Venus radar mapper into orbit.

Because of the positions of Earth and Venus, Magellan must be fired toward Venus between April 28 and May 23 or the high-priority probe will be grounded for two years. For that reason, NASA is under enormous pressure to make sure nothing interferes with the launch of Atlantis.

Sources said if Discovery's launch processing falls further behind schedule, and if managers determine it cannot be ready for flight by March 18 or shortly thereafter, consideration will be given to hauling the ship back to the Vehicle Assembly Building in order to proceed with the Magellan mission.

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center, meanwhile, are readying Discovery for the trip from the assembly building to launch pad 39B starting at 12:01 a.m. EST Friday, a move already running five days late because of a series of minor problems.

If all goes well, Discovery's crew — commander Michael Coats, co-pilot John Blaha, James Baglan, Robert Springer and James Buchli — will fly to the spaceport next Tuesday for a traditional practice countdown Thursday that will set the stage for blastoff of the third post-Challenger shuttle flight.

The pumps will be replaced at the launch pad and while engineers have never tried such shuttle surgery with the orbiter in a vertical position, they have been rehearsing the complex procedure for several days.

DEA agents arrested on drug charges

LOS ANGELES — Three former narcotics agents already charged with money-laundering were indicted Wednesday on charges of selling cocaine and heroin while they worked for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

A superseding indictment against Darnell Garcia, Wayne Countryman and John Jackson accuses all three of conspiracy to distribute "hundreds of kilograms" of heroin and cocaine in Los Angeles, New York, Detroit and Chicago and possessing the drugs for sale since 1984.

Jackson and Garcia also were accused of stealing 2.2 pounds of heroin on Oct. 5, 1984, that they had checked into the DEA's evidence vault for "safekeeping" three days earlier.

Jackson is charged with stealing another three pounds of the drug from DEA custody on Jan. 30, 1985. The indictment said he seized 15 pounds of heroin from two Thai drug traffickers while on duty that day, but gave only 12 pounds of it to the DEA.

Plane crash investigation hampered

AHILENE, Texas — A military investigation into the fiery crash of an Air Force tanker that killed all 19 people aboard will be hampered by the lack of a flight data recorder on the craft, a spokesman said.

"It usually takes 30 to 60 days to determine the cause, and it will be released when the investigation is completed," Airman Lois Morrell, a spokeswoman for Dyess Air Force Base, said of the probe of Tuesday's crash of the KC-35 tanker.

The report will be issued through the Air Force Inspection and Safety Center at Norton Air Force Base in California, she said.

Earthquake rattles ocean floor

LOS ANGELES — A minor earthquake on the ocean floor off Malibu rattled coastal areas Wednesday night, but caused no reported damage or injuries, officials said.

The quake, measuring 3.8 on the Richter scale, struck at 8:51 p.m. and was centered in the ocean 5 miles southwest of the Point Dume peninsula, said Robert Finn at the Caltech Seismology Laboratory in Pasadena.

A 5.0 quake hit the same area on Jan. 18, but was centered 15 miles further east.

People reported feeling the quake from Manhattan Beach north to the San Fernando Valley.

Arctic express rolls through U.S.

United Press International

The supercold arctic air that forced hearty Alaskans into hibernation barreled through the heart of the nation Thursday, leaving snow, ice and misery in its wake.

Snow carved a frosty swath early Thursday from the upper Mississippi Valley, the northern Plains, the northern Rockies and Wyoming to the Pacific Northwest, the National Weather Service said.

Below zero temperatures and winds up to 40 mph produced wind chills over Montana and the Dakotas from 60 below to 90 below zero Thursday morning, forecasters said. Missoula, Mont., recorded one of the coldest wind chill readings of the day when it registered 78 degrees below zero.

The lower 48 began to feel the brunt of the cold air mass Wednesday, when the mercury plunged and snow accumulated along northern states.

"This is the worst of the winter but we knew it was coming down from Alaska so we are ready," said Virginia Hull in

Williams, Minn. "It was 31 below this morning and we are expecting wind chills of 50 to 60 below. But we are warm and we have plenty of wood for the fire and a freezer full of food."

Alaska's vicious cold eased 20- to 30-degrees Wednesday, but the phenomenally high air pressure forced federal officials to ground all air traffic requiring instrument approaches.

The 60- to 80-below-zero temperatures experienced the day before eased into the minus-40s and minus-50s Wednesday, a warming trend that brought many Alaskans out of virtual hibernation. But the troubles were only beginning for many points south.

Snow and high winds prompted forecasters to issue a winter weather advisory Thursday for the entire state of Montana. The temperatures overnight were dipping under 30 degrees below zero.

Strong winds were causing blowing snow conditions over the Dakotas and much of Minnesota Thursday, reducing visibilities to less than a mile over much of the area.

Committee set to vote on Tower nomination

United Press International

WASHINGTON — After four days of sometimes highly personal hearings, the Senate Armed Services Committee was prepared Thursday to vote on former Texas Sen. John Tower's nomination as defense secretary.

Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said that barring last-minute complications he expected to summon the panel for a vote on the nominee, perhaps the most controversial one proposed by President Bush.

The full Senate is not expected to vote on Tower's confirmation until next week.

The four days of hearings saw Tower, 63, grilled closely on his work as a defense consultant after he left the Senate four years ago, allegations that he was a womanizer and heavy drinker, and a public declaration by Tower that he has no alcohol problem.

"I feel like I'm glad it's the end of the hearings," Tower said after his final appearance before the panel.

House member charged with abusing a minor

United Press International

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Franklin County officials are investigating charges that Rep. Donald Lukens, R-Ohio, had sexual relations with a 13-year-old girl, officials said Wednesday.

"Police have been involved in an investigation concerning Mr. Lukens and a minor for a couple of months," Franklin County Prosecutor Michael Miller said.

Miller said he expected to have "some sort of announcement within a week." He declined to elaborate, but the investigation is believed to cover a period beginning in 1985 — when Lukens, 57, was a state senator — and continuing to last year.

Columbus television station WBNS broke the story Tuesday, saying the complainant was a Columbus woman who wore a hidden microphone when she confronted Lukens in a Columbus fast-food restaurant about his alleged affair with her daughter beginning when the girl was 13. The girl is now 17.

She told the station Lukens admitted spending time with her daughter and with other girls and that he offered the woman a government job as a bribe.

On Wednesday a second Columbus TV station, WSYX, identified the complainant as Anna Coffman and played the tape made while she was confronting Lukens.

"He has destroyed a family," the woman told WSYX, "and not only this family (but) God knows how many others."

ABC News may draw contempt charge from judge in North trial

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The federal judge overseeing the Iran-Contra case said Wednesday he was considering a contempt action against ABC News for a report about the start of Oliver North's trial using his immunized testimony.

As the second day of the trial and the painstakingly slow process of selecting a jury recessed for the day, 18 people had been selected for the final jury pool, a group of about 50 people from which the ultimate panel of 12 jurors and six alternates will be selected.

That process was complicated by U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell's reaction to ABC's Tuesday evening news broadcast carrying a portion of North's 1987 testimony to Congress about the foreign policy affair. ABC reporter Tim O'Brien said in his report that anyone seeing that testimony would be excused as a juror.

Gesell said O'Brien "took pains to advise the public that if they looked at this report with North's testimony, they'd be excused from jury service."

"I have not decided whether or not this is the appropriate basis for a contempt action," the judge said sternly, and he told prosecution and defense lawyers to question potential jurors intensely about their recall of North's appearance before Congress.

However, by the end of the day, Gesell had said nothing further about contempt action.

The judge is dismissing as a juror anyone who acknowledges reading about, watching or listening to North's testimony to Congress about the 1985-86 U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News, defended the report

as fair and accurate.

"The public's right to be informed need not conflict with the fair administration of justice. Last night's World News segment informed our viewers about events already having taken place in public arenas. They cannot now be erased," he said in a written statement.

North, 45, faces 12 felony charges, including lying to Congress, destroying documents and accepting an illegal gratuity. If convicted on all charges, the former White House aide and retired Marine lieutenant colonel faces 60 years in prison and $3 million in fines.

The defense asked Gesell late Tuesday that he sequester the jury once it is empaneled to shield its members from further publicity. A sequestered jury would be kept together, probably at a hotel, away from television, radio and newspapers, for the entire trial — expected to last as long as five months.

One older man deemed qualified for the jury pool served with the Army in Vietnam during the 1968 Tet offensive. He said he did not see any of the congressional hearings in 1987 because "I had too much trouble with my car."

A young woman also added to the jury pool Wednesday said she could not recognize North, seated in the courtroom with his lawyers.

"I don't know what he looks like at all," she said, and chief prosecutor John Kecker replied, "You may get a chance to."

When North appeared in July 1987 before the two congressional committees that investigated the Iran-Contra scandal, he was granted limited immunity.

Guerrillas ambushed, three dead

HASBAYA, Lebanon — The Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army ambushed guerrillas attempting to sneak into Israel early Thursday, killing three gunmen, an SLA spokesman said.

The guerrillas were spotted before dawn trying to infiltrate Israeli territory near the Lebanese village of Srobine, 6 miles north of Israel's borders, the spokesman said.

"Our troops engaged the guerrillas in a 30-minute clash with automatic weapons and rockets. At sunrise, when our troops and Israeli soldiers combed the region, three dead guerrillas were found where the fighting occurred in the darkness," the spokesman said.

Automatic rifles and ammunition were found near the bodies, said the spokesman in a statement broadcast on the SLA-run Voice of the South radio station.

Other guerrillas fled to territory under Syrian military and Moslem militia control to the north, the spokesman said.

The SLA spokesman said the army suspected the guerrillas were Palestinians. But a spokesman of the Lebanese Shiite Amal militia said his group was responsible for the attack.

Manila, IMF reach credit agreement

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippines and the International Monetary Fund announced Thursday they have agreed in principle on a $1.3 billion standby credit that is expected to spur economic development and open new financing for the debt-strapped country.

The announcement was made after negotiators from both sides met for 40 minutes with President Corazon Aquino, who was reported doing well after a spell of dizziness Wednesday from an ear infection.

"The president was informed the talks were progressing satisfactorily and have covered the main policy issues involved," a joint statement said. "A timetable for completion of all policy and program details has also been generally agreed upon."

Aquino expressed satisfaction with the progress made after three days of talks between Philippine Finance Secretary Vicente Jayme and Central Bank Gov. Jose Fernandez and the IMF team headed by Asian department director Prabhakar Narvekar.

Riots rock Jamaica after supporter killed

KINGSTON, Jamaica — Hundreds of police fired warning shots and lobbed tear gas canisters Wednesday to quell rioters who torched several houses apparently to avenge the killing of a supporter of the ruling Jamaica Labor Party, officials said.

Several homes in Spanish Town, 11 miles west of Kingston, were burned to the ground by the rioters, apparently supporters of the JLP, in retaliation for the shooting death of a party supporter Tuesday night, police said.

At least eight people have died and hundreds others have been wounded in campaign violence since Prime Minister Edward Seaga announced in mid-January that the island's first contested general election since 1980 would be Feb. 9.

Several businesses and at least two schools and the district court in Spanish Town closed early Wednesday because of the violence, police said.

Filipino vice president to visit Marcos

MANILA, Philippines — Vice President Salvador Laurel left Thursday for Honolulu to meet with Ferdinand Marcos at the request of his wife, Imelda, who said the exiled ruler was dying and wanted to talk to him.

Laurel said in a statement he had advised President Corazon Aquino about his departure.

Imelda Marcos said her husband "has been advised by his doctors that he hasn't much time left to live and since he cannot communicate with Cory, he is asking me to help communicate with Cory and the Filipino people," Laurel said. Cory is Aquino's nickname.

Aquino's spokesman, Teodoro Benigno, said Laurel talked to Executive Secretary Catalino Macaraig and asked for instructions from Aquino. Benigno said Macaraig told him "there was no instruction to give him and that he was entirely on his own."

Benigno said Aquino recalled that Laurel had issued a statement declaring himself the leader of the opposition.

German firm sent India nuclear material

BONN, West Germany — In another possible embarrassment for the Bonn government, a West German company has acknowledged it transferred to India material obtained from the United States that is used to boost the power of nuclear weapons.

Degussa Co. of Frankfurt made the admission in a statement Wednesday and said the transfer of the sensitive material to a third country may have required U.S. authorization.

The revelation came after the West German news magazine Spiegel reported the transaction in an article about the country's controversial military exports. It is the latest in a string of recent reports of West German involvement in the supply of nuclear and chemical technology to Libya and other countries.

The Degussa statement said the West German government authorized the chemical and metals firm to export 200 pounds of the beryllium obtained from the United States to India's Atomic Energy Authority in 1985.

Shevardnadze opens talks with Chinese

BEIJING — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze described stepped-up talks with China as "significant" as he began talks Thursday preparing for the first summit between the two communist giants in three decades.

"The very fact that we are holding these meetings for the fifth time is already significant," Shevardnadze told Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen as the two sat down in the Great Hall of the People.

The two ministers held private talks for more than 20 minutes before joining their delegations for the first of two scheduled meetings.

The three-day official visit by Shevardnadze, the first Soviet foreign minister to visit China since the 1950s, is expected to produce agreement for Deng to meet with Gorbachev in Beijing to normalize relations between the two communist powers.

The summit would be the first since Nikita Khrushchev met Mao Tse-tung in Beijing in 1959 before relations between the two former allies collapsed over political and territorial disputes and the rival neighbors fought a border clash in 1969.

During his visit, which includes a trip to Shanghai for a meeting with Deng, Shevardnadze will discuss a political settlement in Cambodia with Chinese leaders. He also is expected to meet with Chinese Premier Li Peng and Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang.

According to informed East Bloc diplomats, Shevardnadze will show new flexibility on Cambodia, which has been occupied by Vietnam since 1978 and is now the chief remaining dispute between Moscow and Beijing.

Botha quits ruling party post

South African leader slowed by stroke, will retain presidency

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Pieter W. Botha, recovering from a stroke, resigned as head of the ruling white National Party Thursday but will remain head of state, a party spokesman said.

In a letter delivered to a National Party caucus meeting at the Cape Town parliament, Botha asked party managers to separate the traditionally overlapping posts of party and government leader, spokesman Boet Botma said.

Botha has been party leader for 10 years.

National Party lawmakers who form the caucus elected National Education Minister Frederik de Klerk as new party leader. De Klerk is widely deemed the most likely candidate to succeed Botha as president.

Botha designated Constitutional Affairs Minister Chris Heunis — his most senior Cabinet lieutenant — as stand-in on Jan. 18, a day after he suffered what officials and doctors described as a mild stroke.

Asked if Botha's resignation from the party leadership would affect the presidency, spokesman Botma said: "Quite the opposite."

The stroke, a week after Botha celebrated his 73rd birthday, weakened muscles in his left arm and leg but left no other lasting effects, doctors said. But news of the stroke triggered speculation that Botha may step down after 10 years as leader of the white minority government.

Europe ready to fire first shots in meat war

United Press International

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The so-called "meat war" between the European Community and the United States began Wednesday with the implementation of the Community ban on imports of hormone-bred meat and U.S. retaliatory measures against some imports from Europe.

"The Community had asked the American government to postpone the implementation of its retaliation measures," a Community spokesman said.

Bush streamlines policy apparatus

United Press International

NEW YORK — The White House national security adviser will be squarely at the center of U.S. foreign policy-making under a political reorganization approved by President Bush. The New York Times reported Thursday.

The national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, and his deputy, Robert Gates, will serve as chairmen of the government's two key panels involving national security officials — including Secretary of State James Baker III and the designated defense secretary, John Tower, the report said.

Officials in the Bush administration described the overhaul as a streamlining of the burgeoning national security staff apparatus. Since the 1940s, the National Security Council staff has mushroomed in size and complexity, steadily increasing its influence and often competing with the State Department for the president's ear.

The Times said the changes likely would enhance the role of the National Security Council staff, but administration officials said the change should not be interpreted as coming at the expense of Baker or the State Department.

Baker, one of the president's closest friends and advisers, has virtually unimpeded access to the Oval Office.

Aides have said Baker intends to focus his attention on several key areas, particularly East-West relations and the Middle East, and possibly Latin America, and is content to leave other matters to the security council.

The proposals, put forward by Scowcroft and Gates and endorsed by the president, simply eliminate many of the 80 or 90 senior-level interagency groups set up under President Reagan to deal with specific national security issues.

One official said a new group of senior-level government officials will be created and will meet on a daily basis with Gates, a career intelligence officer and former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The new group will be central to all national security decision-making, aiming to give "coherence and compatibility to the process," the official said. The change addresses a gap said to exist between the highest foreign policy meetings — the cabinet and top policy aides — and mid-level experts.

Salvadoran rebels vow to halt attacks on Americans

United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Salvadoran leftist rebels have held out an olive branch to President Bush, making an unprecedented pledge to suspend attacks on Americans and U.S. installations.

But a statement Wednesday from the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front, or FMLN, warned that the guerrillas would continue to attack U.S. military advisers found on Salvadoran army bases, or personnel who travel with Salvadoran army air or land transports.

Analysts interpreted the pledge as a goodwill gesture toward President Bush and as a means of generating support in the United States for the rebels' recent proposal to postpone national elections scheduled for March so they could take part at a later date.

"Our plan has had different reactions in American society," the FMLN statement, which was sent to a local radio station, said. "We hope for a change in U.S. policy toward our country with the arrival of the new administration."

There was no immediate reaction to the offer from the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador or from the State Department in Washington.

The rebels pledged to "suspend attacks against personnel and military, civilian and diplomatic installations of the United States within our country."

It was the first such offer by the leftist rebels, who have been fighting the U.S.-backed Salvadoran government for nearly nine years in a civil war that has killed an estimated 70,000 people, most of them civilians.

There are no permanent U.S. military installations in El Salvador, but Washington says there are 56 American military advisers in addition to diplomats, economists and agricultural experts.

The rebel offer came hours after the ultra-conservative National Republican Alliance said it will seek temporary amnesty for five FMLN rebels so they can explain their proposal to postpone the elections.

Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson, the founder and leading force behind the alliance known by its Spanish initials ARENA, said on a nationally televised broadcast Tuesday night that his party will introduce a bill in the National Assembly on Thursday calling for a 72-hour amnesty for the five guerrillas.

ARENA, with 31 of the 60 seats in the legislature, can ensure the bill's passage.

Canadians stand behind missile test agreement

United Press International

OTTAWA — Peace groups condemned a Canadian government decision to allow U.S. testing of a new generation of "stealth" cruise missiles over the arctic, saying the move violates a superpower arms agreement.

But Defense Minister Bill McKnight said Wednesday that the testing was vital to the defense of the West.

"This testing is an important Canadian contribution to the effectiveness of NATO's strategic deterrent," said McKnight, who was appointed to the defense post Monday.

He said Canada made the decision after a request from the United States, which has been testing air-launched cruise missiles over the arctic since March 1984.

A spokesman for the External Affairs Ministry said he was uncertain whether the tests would begin this year. The United States is allowed up to six tests each year, but so far has completed only one in 1989.

Peace groups said agreement to test the "stealth" missiles violates last year's U.S.-Soviet agreement to eliminate all ground-based intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe and noted it followed a recent decision by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to withdraw 50,000 men and six tank divisions from East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

"This was a stealth announcement, coming out of the blue. The decision was made without any sort of public consultation," said Rob Cottingham, a spokesman for Operation Dismantle, the country's leading peace group representing several thousand Canadians.

Cottingham said the advanced cruise missile was not being developed as a deterrent, but as a first-strike weapon for fighting World War III.

"Canada has missed a real opportunity to exert its influence in winding down the arms race," Cottingham said, adding his group would decide by Thursday whether to demonstrate.

McKnight said the Warsaw Pact already has a significant and improving cruise missile capability.

Experts go to Antarctica amid report of fuel spill

United Press International

HUENOS AIRES, Argentina — A team of experts from the United States was on its way to Antarctica Thursday where an abandoned Argentine ship ran aground last weekend and sank, reportedly with a load of diesel fuel that could pollute the continent's waters.

The U.S. National Science Foundation, which has a research base about 2 miles from the site, said the Bahia Paraiso had only capsize and the diesel fuel spill was spreading, killing some key marine life and coating feathers of some Antarctic sea birds.

The NSF said a U.S. Air Force C-5B transport plane left Wednesday morning from Norfolk Naval Air Station in Virginia carrying 15 experts and 52 tons of equipment to contain the spill.

The team and equipment were to arrive in Chile Thursday, then travel by ship to the spill site 600 miles from the tip of South America.

Team members included experts from the federal NSF, the U.S. Navy, the Coast Guard, the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, and private contractors. The equipment shipped as part of the more than $250,000 mission included a 36-foot boat for skimming floating fuel, a tugboat and inflatable booms.

The environmental group Greenpeace, meanwhile, said the shipwreck highlighted the need to forbid Antarctic mining and oil drilling that could lead to similar problems, and reiterated its call to make the continent a world park.

"We cannot afford to risk the last pristine frontier on Earth just to squeeze out dwindling fossil fuels," Sue Sabella of Greenpeace said in Washington, calling for nations to reject the proposed Antarctic Treaty allowing such development.

The 39 treaty nations, including the United States, could ratify the treaty this year.

Argentine navy personnel tried to save the Bahia Paraiso, or Paradise Bay, by trying to repair a gash in its hull, but weather conditions worsened and the ship sank at 10 p.m. Tuesday, a navy spokesman said.

The vessel operated by the National Antarctic Board of Argentina and run by navy personnel went aground Saturday 2 miles from the U.S. Palmer Station.

Some 350 people aboard, among them about 130 U.S. and European tourists, were evacuated by Monday and taken to Buenos Aires, where they were reported in good health.

Officials of the NSF, which manages the Palmer Station, said the ship capsized Tuesday night and was 80 percent under water. They said it carried 250,000 gallons of diesel fuel in drums.

Jack Renirie, NSF spokesman in Washington, said when the ship rolled over on its side, it threw "several hundred drums of oil" into the water along with "several hundred tanks of compressed gas."

Renirie said there were no figures on how much oil had spilled, but said, "Our people down there are scientists and they are saying there's a lot of oil around the ship and it appears to be still flowing from the ship."

The NSF station, home to 26 scientists and staff, is a biological research facility.

But Argentine navy spokesman asserted the claim about the diesel load was "nonsense."

"The Bahia Paraiso didn't carry any more fuel than what was needed for its engines," he said. "It is not a gasoline tanker, nor a cargo ship to carry that amount of fuel. It is a ship for tourism."

The NSF said the Bahia Paraiso was a "supply ship" taking the fuel to an Argentine station near the tip of the peninsula.

Biologists at the Palmer station said leaking oil was killing shrimplike krill and had coated the feathers of a few birds such as penguins, gulls and giant petrels.

Celtics teach Hornets a lesson

Despite their losing record and the absence of Larry Bird, the Boston Celtics can still give a lesson in power basketball.

Boston ended a five-game losing streak on the road with a 107-94 victory Wednesday night over the smaller Charlotte Hornets. Seven-foot Robert Parish scored 24 points and grabbed a season-high 24 rebounds and 6-10 Kevin McHale added 21 points.

Boston, 21-22, took advantage of the expansion Hornets for a 61-47 rebounding advantage and repeatedly worked the ball inside to Parish and McHale.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Philadelphia edged Washington 114-110 in overtime. Atlanta edged Utah 94-93. Phoenix defeated the LA Lakers 114-97 and Portland triumphed 108-107 over the LA Clippers.

Boggs says he was 'diseased'

BOSTON — American League batting champion Wade Boggs, embroiled in a $12 million palimony suit with a former lover, said Wednesday a recent TV show about oversexed people made him realize he suffered from the same "disease" for four years.

But Boggs insisted in an apologetic broadcast interview that he was cured and has "made peace with myself, made peace with my family and gone on with my life." He promised Boston fans he would "do everything in my power" to bring the Red Sox another pennant.

"I was watching Geraldo Rivera a couple of weeks ago and there was a show on about oversexed people and things like this. Geraldo had a psychologist on there ... and they were calling it a disease," Boggs said, speaking from Plant, Fla.

Capitals try to turn fate around

The Washington Capitals' tradition of patience has appeared noble at times and pitiful at others as the franchise trademarks have been selfless defense and playoff collapses.

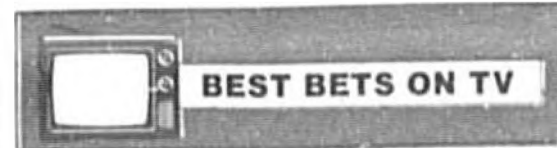

The Capitals lost a bit of cool and won a big game Wednesday night — could change he coming from the team many in NHL circles thought would play well and lose heartbreakers forever?

Mike Ridley scored at 1:51 of overtime to salvage Washington's 4-3 victory over the New York Rangers after the Capitals untypically blew a two-goal lead in the third period.

"In previous years, we played more veterans, who knew how to shut it down," Capitals Coach Bryan Murray said. "Now, we seem to make one mistake and it opens it up."

Lady Rams eliminate Lyman with shutout

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's Lady Rams soccer team used a spirited effort and upended Lyman 2-0 in a 4A-District 3 semifinal confrontation before 501 fans at Lake Mary High School.

The Lady Rams improved to 21-2-2 and will host Lake Howell, a 2-1 overtime upset winner, on Friday night at 7 for the championship. The Lady Greyhounds finished their season with a 12-7-5 record.

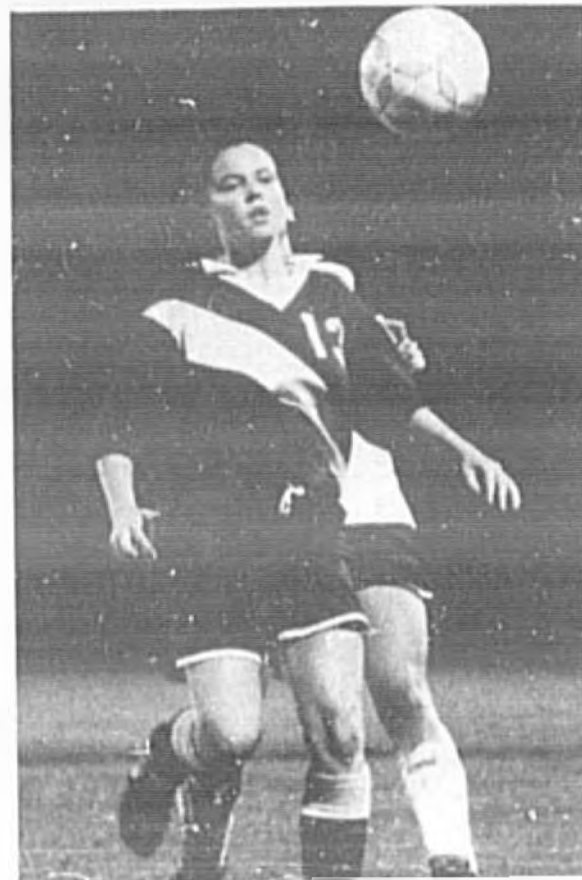

"We knew they (Lyman) had a tough defense and that we had to keep pressuring them," Lake Mary coach Bill Elsle said. "They have a good keeper in Becky Carr and Julia Callarman is always tough at sweeper. We knew, though, if we kept pressuring them we'd come up with a goal."

The Lady Rams managed to stay on the attack for most of the game and put the ball in the net on its better opportunities to pick up the victory. Lake Mary was led again by the play of Donna Rohr, Michelle Mattingly, Crissie Snow and keeper Tammy Scott.

Scott came up with a pair of saves late in the game to help insure the victory and prevent the Lady Greyhounds from picking up any momentum. Lyman managed just seven shots on the night, compared to Lake Mary's 16, but pumped four shots on goal in the final eight minutes of play with three of them being saved by Scott.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Wednesday night's game between the Lake Howell and Lake Brantley girls soccer teams in the semifinals of the 4A-District 3 tournament is destined to be remembered as a classic.

The reasons it will be remembered are many: It took 100 minutes of soccer before Lake Howell came away with a 2-1 win; all three goals were scored in overtime; Lake Brantley scored first on an own goal, then saw Lake Howell come back with goals by Beverly Dickenson and Nicole Compton in the last 10 minutes.

And that's just the highlights.

"This is one of those classic games," said Lake Howell coach Gerhard Tauscher, whose team advances to play Lake Mary (2-0 winners over Lyman Wednesday) on Friday for the district championship.

"This tells you something about our conference. Every team is just tremendous."

Wolfgang Halbig, the Lake Brantley coach, couldn't agree more.

"Lake Howell has been in it all year long," Halbig said. "They've been right there with Lake Mary, Lyman, us and the rest. It was just who would make the mistakes and who would make the good plays. They made the good plays."

Up until the game went into overtime, the person making most of the good plays was Lake Howell goalie Heather Braun. For most of the ORLANDO — Terrell Barnes came off the bench to score 20 points and grab 13 rebounds, both game highs, as the Raiders of Seminole Community College broke a three-game losing streak with a 75-55 thrashing of Valencia Community College in Orlando before 211 fans Wednesday.

The win moves the Raiders to 18-8 overall and 6-3 in Mid-Florida Conference play. Seminole returns home after a three-game road trip to take on St. John's River Community College Saturday night starting at 7:30 p.m.

By virtue of the win, Seminole moves back into a second place tie in the conference with Lake City, a 98-90 loser to Central Florida Community College. The win also allowed the Raiders to creep back to within two games of Daytona Beach Community College which lost its first conference game, 99-85, to Florida Community College-Jacksonville.

In addition to Barnes, also in double figures for Seminole was T.J. Scaletta, who hit all four of his field goal attempts and ended the night with 13 points in only 13 minutes of play, and Terry Acox who scored 11 points. Acox also grabbed eight rebounds and got three steals.

Also playing well for the Raiders was "Wimpy" Woods, who scored seven points, dished out nine assists, grabbed six rebounds and had three steals; Robert Thomas with seven points and three assists; and Vincent Emerson, who returned to the lineup after a week's absence, to score six points, grab three rebounds, and hand out three assists.

Valencia falls to 5-17 overall and 1-8 in the Conference, but this was far and away their worst conference loss. The Matadors were led by Lamar Smith, an Apopka graduate, who scored 16 points. The only other Valencia player in double figures was Alphonso Jefferson with 11.

Tars pay for Eckerd

BY JIM RICKENBACKER
 Herald Correspondent

LAKELAND — Written in large bold letters across the blackboard in Florida Southern's lockerroom was the word Eckerd. That's the team that toppled Florida Southern at home last week, sending the Mocs tumbling into an unaccustomed spot in the lower echelon of the Sunshine State Conference standings.

Eckerd's also the team that motivated the Mocs to trounce the Rollins Tars, 89-69, in a conference encounter Wednesday night at Jenkins Memorial Fieldhouse.

"Florida Southern losing to Eckerd the last conference game at home certainly didn't help us," said Rollins Coach Tom Klusman, upset with his team's lack of toughness. "(Center Kris) Kearney had a field day inside, but we're the kind of team that doesn't have a lot of margin for error."

"We cut it to six points early in the second half. Then we took some bad shots and they got it back to 13 points. That was the game."

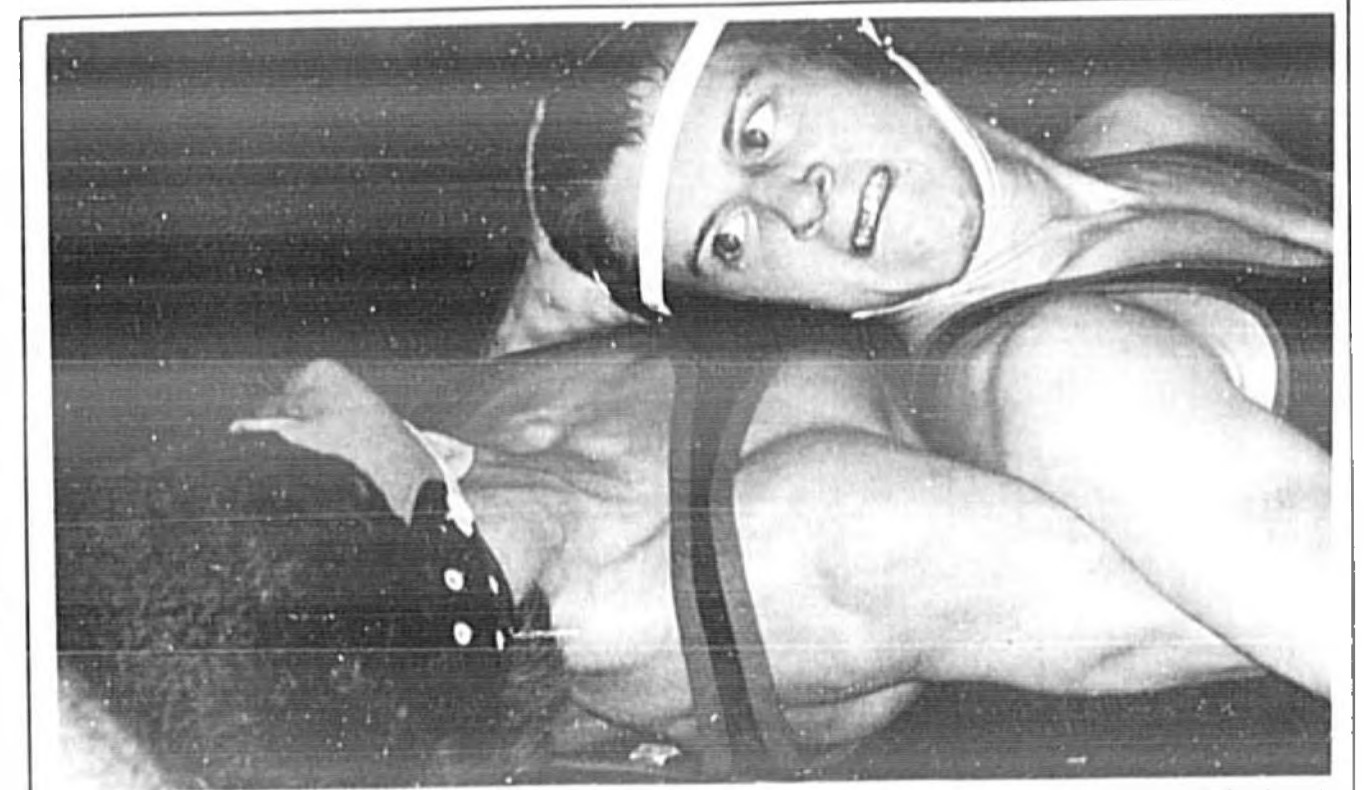

Klusman said the Tars' game plan was get a body on Kearney, prevent him from getting the bucketful of layups that totaled 33 points and enabled him to move into third place on the Mocs' all-time scoring list. Kearney, at 6-foot-7, 235 pounds, also ripped down six of a game-high 10 rebounds off the offensive boards.

Florida Southern (16-5, 3-3), leading 39-25 at halftime, watched as their cushion was deflated to 43-37 when Mike Reeves made a strong move inside with 17:27 left. Dan Wolf, who finished with a team-high 19 points and nine rebounds, connected on the Tars' third three-pointer of the half to leave Rollins trailing, 50-42.

Next thing anyone knew Kearney was capping off a three-point play to propel the Mocs to a 58-45 advantage.

"We knew we had to go baseline, but give all the credit in the world to the Buckleys (John and Bill)," Kearney said. "They got the ball to me time and time again."

Turning it on

Lake Mary was down 13-0 in its dual match with Orlando Colonial on Wednesday night when Ram 130-pounder Adam Vandiver pinned Scott Say in 5:12. Propelled by that win and wins from Jose Carbia, Shane Stanley, Justin Naumovitz, Ori Kantor and Chris Israel, the Rams edged Colonial 28-25, snapping their four-year unbeaten streak. Now 9-4, Lake Mary wrestles at Winter Park tonight.

Lyman boys frustrate Rams; Jackson, Lady Rams win big

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — With Mike Whittington leading the way with 23 points, 10 in the fourth quarter, the Lyman Greyhounds continued their homecourt mastery of Lake Mary on Wednesday night with a 63-62 win.

Earlier in the evening, the Lake Mary girls had three players score in double figures as they whipped Lyman 60-36.

This makes the third year in a row that the Lake Mary boys have gone to Lyman and lost by one point.

Lake Mary held a slim 30-28 lead at halftime, then saw Lyman tie the score at 45-45 after three quarters.

The Rams had their opportunities to win the game. With Lyman up by one, Lake Mary had the ball with about 55 seconds left. They held the ball until there was 27 seconds left and called time out.

After holding the ball until there was 10 seconds left, shot and missed, Lyman rebounded the ball and moved it up the floor before having the ball knocked out of bounds by the Rams.

Lake Mary almost kept Lyman from inbounding the ball, but the Hounds called a time out. Lyman finally got the ball into play, only to have the Rams force a turnover. Lake Mary managed one last shot, but it also missed the mark.

To go with Whittington's game-high 23 points (which included four three-point goals), Lyman received 14 points from Mike Harden (12 in the second half) and nine from J. J. Miller (all in the second half).

Bernard Mitchell led the Rams with 19 while Chris Davidson contributed 14.

Now 11-8 overall and 6-2 in Seminole Athletic Conference play, Lyman next plays on Friday when Seminole pays a visit. Lake Mary, 9-9 and 5-3 in the SAC, is also at home on Friday against Oviedo.

In the girls game played prior to the boys, Lake Mary used a balanced attack, placing three players in double digits, to whip Lyman, 60-36, and register its ninth Rollins (9-10, 2-4) started quickly, taking a 9-4 lead before Florida Southern countered with runs of 16-2 and 9-0 to blow things open. After the initial run, the Tars retaliated with six unanswered points.

The Mocs' second run, buoyed by seldom-used guard Shaun Fitzmorris' seven points, insured Florida Southern of a 33-21 bulge.

The Tars, who play UCF Saturday at the Orlando Arena on the heels of the Florida-Seminole matchup, have one conference road game remaining (FIT, next Wednesday). They close out the season with five consecutive conference games at home.

Abnormal heart beat not sign of disease

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a physically active female, 38, recently diagnosed with paroxysmal atrial tachycardia (PAT). It terrifies me but my doctor says it's benign. Am I right to worry?

DEAR READER: Paroxysmal atrial tachycardia is a common disorder of heart beat in which the pulse speeds up (tachycardia) because of electrical impulses generated in one of the heart's low pressure chambers (atria) in a paroxysmal or cyclic pattern. Ordinarily, the ailment is not serious, but it can be terrifying — sort of like having a stuck accelerator in your car.

The attacks usually last only a few minutes and can usually be stopped by performing the Valsalva maneuver: taking a deep breath and straining hard for a moment or two. This produces an increase in pressure in the chest that stimulates the heart to slow down and reset at a more normal rate.

PAT is not a sign of heart disease. It may be triggered by caffeine or stress and is a common accompaniment of mitral valve prolapse, a floppy valve in the heart. In people with repeated episodes of PAT, certain medicines can be prescribed to prevent the runaway rhythm.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 70 and had a total hip replacement six months ago. I didn't expect it to be perfect, but I never imagined it would be so painful. I'm unable to walk freely. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER: Usually, hip replacement surgery is successful; sometimes it is not. Patients may continue to experience pain for a variety of reasons. I've found that reoperation, although difficult, can improve the situation. You need a second opinion to determine what went wrong and what can be done about it. You do not

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Trading on his eight-card diamond suit and favorable vulnerability, South jumped right to five diamonds over East's opening one-spade bid. When everyone passed, South suspected he might have caught a decent dummy. Sure enough, two aces are nothing to sneeze at when you've made an aggressive bid. Prospects looked quite good when he ruffed West's spade ace, since East, the opening bidder, could be played for the remaining high cards. But South should also be capable of making a table decision based upon human psychology. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, discarding a club and a heart from dummy, and then played a heart to the eight. East won the king and returned the nine of clubs. South put up the 10 and won dummy's ace when West played the jack. Declarer then ruffed a spade, played a few more rounds of trump, eventually played a heart to the ace (he hadn't been fooled by the falsecard of the king), and a club toward his queen. West took the king and eight of clubs, and the contract was one away. Nothing declarer did was really wrong, but I can't help feeling that my late father and many other experts I have known would have figured out at the table that East had no club honors. So when the nine of clubs was covered with the 10 and jack, they would have played low from dummy, letting West hold the trick. Then, whatever happened, they would play the heart ace and ruff out the heart queen. Of course, should West continue clubs, they would know to duck around to their queen. Be extremely cautious about involving yourself in business arrangements today that are not in your field of expertise. Errors in judgment could prove costly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Seniors can reenter work force

Program brings out marketable skills, aptitudes

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Four years ago, at the age of 55, Beverly Parks arrived in Seminole County from Pennsylvania. A business deal that was to have provided her with money for her retirement had fallen through. She had no money and no job.

"In spite of my years in the workplace (she'd been with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Pennsylvania for many years) every place I went, I'd get the run-around because of my age," she mused.

Desperate, she let her fingers do the walking through the phone book and she discovered the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP). She made the call and was invited in for an interview.

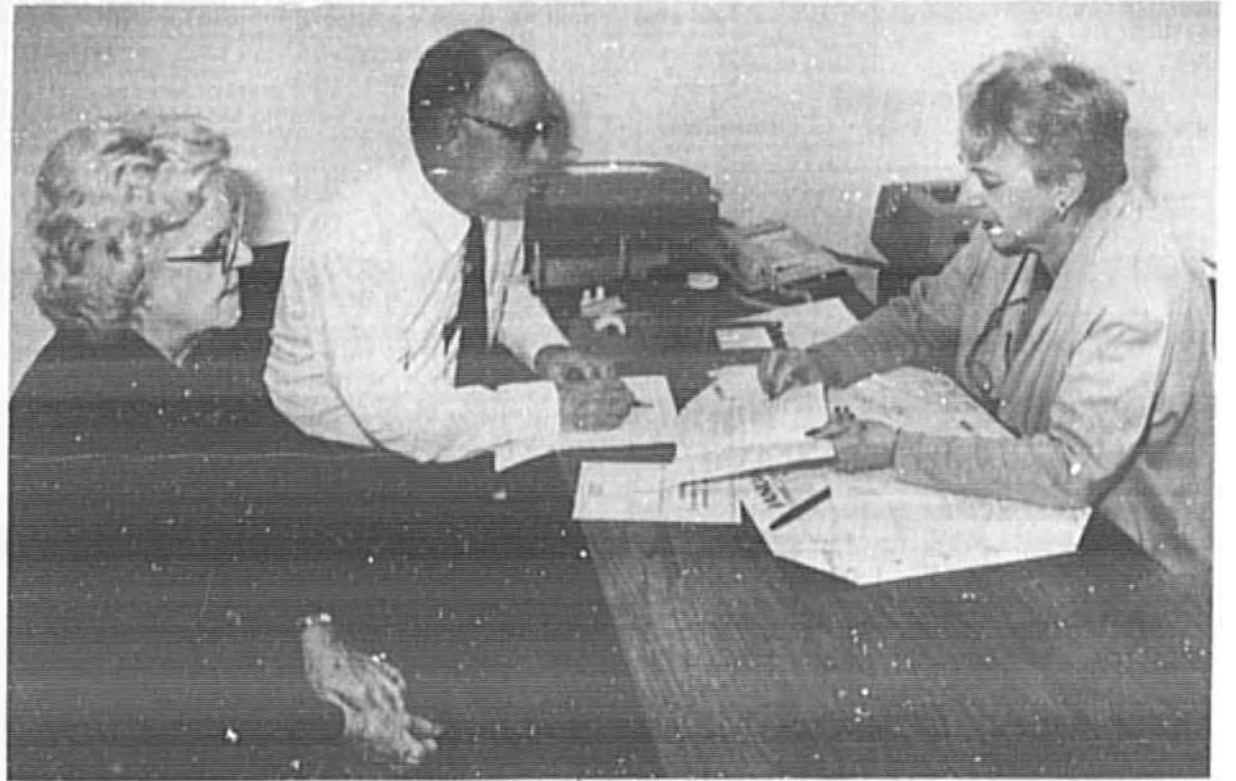

"It was a real God-send," Parks can now say as payroll clerk for the Sanford office.

Various criteria must be met before someone will be admitted into the program. Of course, one must be a senior citizen—at least 55 years old.

"There is no upper end of that scale," added Calvin Miller, project director of the Orlando and Sanford offices. "They can be 85, 95...as long as they are able to work."

Secondly, one must fall below the nationally specified income level that makes one eligible for public assistance. Currently, that level is $7,000 per annum.

Those accepted into SCSEP are placed into temporary minimum-wage jobs with "host organizations," which are non-profit organizations, such as Prevent Blindness or United Cerebral Palsy. Enrollees usually work 20 hours a week.

"We keep them in minimum-wage jobs to discourage them from hanging onto us for too long," Miller said. "It gives them that added incentive to go out to find a higher paying job."

The second phase of the placement program involves helping enrollees sharpen their work skills, which leads to permanent jobs either in the private sector or with host agencies.

SCSEP offers 142 host organi-good for people who have been out of the work force for a while or, maybe, were never in it," Miller said.

He used the example of a woman who is suddenly on her own after spending her life as a homemaker. She may think she has no marketable skills, but through she has no business experience, the skills are there, Miller said.

A homemaker knows how to plan and utilize a budget. (This may lead to a bookkeeping position.) She organized a household of children. (The program may direct her toward the administrative area.) Her possibilities go on.

The program also assists those who wish to improve their chances in the marketplace by helping them earn their GED, the equivalent of a high school diploma.

"We want to offer them as much as possible," Miller said.

Parks said the program also gives participants the feeling of accomplishment.

"When you get all that wonderful training and get back into the work force," she beamed, "it makes you feel great. It makes you feel like you're wanted again."

All the employees, except for director Miller, are former client enrollees in the program. Parks said that gives them a special understanding to help those new people who come in seeking assistance.

"We've all been there ourselves," she said.

SCSEP can help anyone who meets their simple requirements and is willing to work. For the person who wants to steer clear of public assistance but who is running into age barriers in the work force, the program lends a much-needed helping hand.

For more information on SCSEP or to enroll, call 323-3154 in the mornings. Locally, the program is based in the Sanford Housing Authority building on Castle Brewer Court.

zation positions currently. Miller said he likes to move people through to independence as quickly as possible.

He proudly said there are always openings in the training area because the program's job placement rate is so high.

Prior to their jobs, enrollees receive training from the Senior Community Service Employment Program in basic job-seeking skills. They learn how to write an effective resume, how to conduct themselves in an interview, and even how to appropriately quit a job if they find it is not the proper one for them.

Once they have completed their training, enrollees are given assistance in finding a job. Sometimes, they are hired by the host organization at a higher salary.

"We try to place people in jobs that fit their talents and their likes," Miller noted.

The project is sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and administered under the federal government's Title 5 (Aid to Senior Citizens) regulations.

SCSEP charges no fee for the service; instead, it pays the minimum-wage salaries in behalf of the host agencies.

Any housing or food stamp eligibility enrollees may already receive is not disturbed because of SCSEP.

Participants are covered by workman's compensation, and receive paid holidays but no paid vacations.

DEAR ABBY: I have another point of view concerning whether or not to tell a person that he or she has a terminal illness. I have been an ambulance operator for 14 years and have transported hundreds of patients to clinics for their appointments.

Quite often I have been met at the door by family members who will confide that the patient has a terminal illness, then they instruct me to please not mention it because they do not want the patient to know.

Then when the patient and I are alone for a few minutes, the patient will say, "Please don't tell my family that I know I have a terminal illness."

Stink of former renter lingers on

DEAR ABBY: I rented my spare room to a college student in the fall of '87. Last May she gave me one day's notice and moved out, leaving behind some clothing, books, a bookshelf and her washer and dryer. (She also left her dog with me, but that's another story.)

Anyway, I wanted to rent the room to someone else, so I told her to get her stuff out by August. She came and took the stuff out of the room, but she left her washer and dryer in my basement. She said she was moving to an apartment, but she didn't give me an address or telephone number.

It is now January and I have no way of reaching this girl, Abby. I am not a storage company! Can I sell her washer and dryer? Or are they mine to keep? I want to make an office in my basement, but her washer and dryer are taking up space. I have no use for them as I have my own.

I should not have to place an ad in the paper to locate this girl. What are my legal rights? Going to a lawyer will cost me, and since she already owes me money, which I will probably never get, I don't want to spend any more. Although she paid me for keeping her dog, she still owes me for back rent. Her checks always bounce, and she is very irresponsible. What should I do?

STUCK IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR STUCK: Call your state and county local bar association. Someone there should be able to tell you what your "rights" are. You may also be referred to a low-cost attorney.

If the girl is still a student, you can locate her through the college. Then send her a registered letter advising her that if she doesn't remove her property from your basement within 30 days, you will dispose of it. That may jar her into action. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband drinks too much. I love this man, and hate to see him drink because I know what it's doing to him and I don't want to lose him. So, of course, I nag him.

He hates for me to nag him, so he tells me that he drinks because I am such a terrible nag. Is there any hope for us?

NORTH DAKOTA NAGGER

DEAR NAGGER: Yes. Alcoholics Anonymous for him. And Al-Anon for you. If he refuses to go to A.A., you go to Al-Anon and learn how to deal with a man who refuses to go to A.A.

Your predicament reminds me of this Ogden Nash ditty:

"He drinks because she scolds, she thinks she scolds because he drinks."

"But neither will admit what's true."
