Yard trash fees lifted

LAKE MARY - Yard waste trash pickup fees are being waived in Lake Mary. The temporary move is in response to the March 13 storm.

During last week's city commission meeting. City Manager John Litton explained that many residents were faced with large scale clean up work following the storm, mostly with downed tree limbs in their yards. "I see this waiver of fees on a temporary basis as one way the city can help in this situation," he said.

Normally, the city charged $2.20 per month for yard trash pickups, or an individual cost of $1 for a tag to be placed on a trash bag.

"From now until April 28, the pickups will be free," Litton explained. "Of course people will have to adhere to the regular requirements of no more than 50 pounds per bag, and branches cut to no more than four feet in length."

Yard waste in Lake Mary is regularly collected on Wednesday of each week.

Shuttle launch scrubbed

CAPE CANAVERAL - Space shuttle Columbia's engines shut down and the flight was aborted three seconds before this morning's launch with seven astronauts on a research mission. -

The launch team immediately secured the 2,000-ton shuttle on the launch pad. The five Americans and two Germans inside the cockpit were in no danger.

Pilot Terence "Tom" Henricks reported that the three auxilliary power units were off. The engines had been shut down automatically by a computer.

Engineers confirmed that they saw no leaks around the main engines and that the vehicle was in a safe configuration, said NASA launch commentator Mitch Varnes.

it was only the third time that an engine shutdown occurred in 12 years of shuttle flying. The other two were in 1984 when Discovery shut down four seconds before liftoff, and in 1985 when a flight by Challenger was aborted three seconds before liftoff. Both problems were blamed on engine valves.

Residents say pit will affect drinking water

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - South Sanford Avenue area residents are preparing to face their latest battle of the borrow pits in their neighborhood.

Tommorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the County Services Building, Seminole County commissioners will consider a proposal for a 14-acre pit south of Central Florida Regional Airport. The proposed pit site is on 45 acres south of Marquette Road and about 400 feet east of Ohio Avenue owned by James and Betty Widdis. The pit proposal was approved by the St. Johns River Water Management District in January. County staff have recommended commissioners approve the request.

Last year, residents from the area protested several pit proposals for the South Sanford Avenue area. Most of the pits were located on or near the Seminole County expressway pathway. Residents said the pits could affect their drinking water which comes fom wells and create dangerous traffle and dust on their country

Their concerns are the same.

"I'm very concerned about the water," said Mary Tobin, who said she lives within 1,000 feet of the pit site. "We have very good water here. I

Courts to post new rulings

Lights, noise getting to Lake Mary neighbors

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Thursday night's Lake Mary City Commission meeting produced a lengthy discussion regarding basketball court rules and regulations.

Mayor Lowry Rockett reported receiving a number of complaints about the double courts on North Country Club Road at Lake Mary Avenue. "People are complaining about the use of lights late into the night," he said, 'then when the lights go off, they continue playing using the lights from their cars."

arks and Recreation Director John Holland had prepared a list of rules he suggested be placed on a sign, and posted at the courts.

'We would change the hours of operation from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m., to a closing time of 9 p.m.," he said. Holland also suggested imposing a fee of $5 for a permit card, to allow any non-residents to use the facility. Other suggestions included limiting play to 30 minutes if other players were waiting, and restrictions against the use of alcoholic beverages, obscene language, excessive noise and rough play.

City Manager John Litton commented, "These are common courtesy rules, and it may take some strict enforcement at first, but eventually. people who use the courts will understand that we mean business with the rules."

WINTER SPRINGS - While breast-feeding has stirred quite a bit of controversy in the state legislature this year, it doesn't seem to have caused any problems on school buses in Seminole County.

"I don't know where a student breast feeding her child on a school bus has ever caused any problems,' Jerry Klein, director of transportation for the school district, said. "It's not anything that has ever come up." Klein said that young women who are enrolled in the TAPP (Teen Age Parent Program) program at the

"But that would be an awfully expensive proposition," he said.

Some have argued that both breast and bottle-feeding poses a safety hazard to both mother and child when they are traveling on a school bus, but Klein said that is not the case.

"I can't see where it would cause any problems for anyone," he said.

Students bond through acting, drama, speaking

SANFORD - Some of the exceptional education students at Sanford Middle school have joined together to form a group that helps them plan for their futures through building their self confidence.

The CADS Guild (Communications skills through Acting. Drama and Speaking) was begun at the start of this year to help both the emotionally handicapped students and the special students and others who help with the program. "This is an extraordinary support instrument." Pazaria Smith, the teacher who developed the program, said.

Smith said there are 65 students, both emotionally handicapped and others, who are members of the guild. They take part in activities that help them develop career awareness skills through speaking exercises. Once a month the students participate in the Adopt-A-Grandparent program in which they travel to an area nursing home to help an elderly person or to just visit. They also took part in Sanford's Christmas parade and have travelled to the park for lunch.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Legislators dance with health reform

By JACKIE HALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - When the tune is health care reform, the Florida Legislature seems to move one step this way and one step that way with a lot of shuffling around thrown in.

Only two weeks remain in the regular 60-day legislative session, but Gov. Lawton Chiles has dropped several not-sovelled hints that he'll keep lawmakers in town on overtime if they don't enact his package.

No one questions the importance of reforming a $38 billion health care system that leaves nearly 19 percent of the state's population without basic care and is expected to cost $90 billion by the turn of the century if left unchecked.

Last year, in fact, the Legislature gave itself a 1995 deadline for bringing down costs and extending basic care to all Floridians. The fight over what constitutes basic care is scheduled for the 1994 session; this vear lawmakers are trying to build the framework for a system that can hold down costs, care for everyone and maintain quality.

"We can't compromise like that and we won't compromise like that," the governor said, "Floridians need health care. They don't need to watch a good plan get Gut-manned."

The last word was a reference to Sen. Alberto Gutman of Miami, a Republican who chairs the Senate Health Care Committee, where health care reform has been stalled for the last week after a pair of party-line tie votes blocked both Chiles' proposal and Outman's plan.

Gutman's plan includes the regional boards backed by Chiles but they would be open to small Chiles, however, is insisting that state government be allowed to buy its health care through the boards as well so that over 200 hospitals and 20,000 doctors are brought to the bargaining table. The state buys health care for 300,000 state workers and their dependents and 1.7 million welfare recipients on Medicaid, the joint federal-state health care plan for the some poor people.

Gutman said the 20-20 Senate doesn't want to risk the health care of so many people on an unproven plan. He's offered to try out Chiles' proposal on a limited basis — a pilot project.

"We need to feel comfortable that we're not going to take a giant bold step and fall off a cliff," Gutman said Friday.

But Chiles has been adamant against pilot projects. "The governor doesn't run a pilot project; he runs a state. said Doug Cook, director of the Agency for Health Care Administration and Chiles' top health care aide. Cook and Gutman planned to talk over the weekend. Gutman's committee was scheduled to meet Monday night and again Tuesday.

Several dozen lawmakers from both parties, most of them freshmen, gathered Thursday to call for action on health care

"We refuse to take part in the continuation of gridlock," Rep. Ron Klein, D-Boca Raton, said.

The new lawmakers held their news conference just before the House stood by Chiles' plan by a mere 12-vote margin, defeating an amendment that would have deleted state participation from the regional boards with a 63-51

Sports should be for good sports

Webster's New World Dictionary defines the word "Sportsman" in two ways. "A man who takes part in sports," and "one who plays fair and can lose without complaint or win without gloating."

Judging from discussion at the Lake Mary City Commission meeting last Thursday night, the two definitions do not go hand-in-hand when it comes to a city tennis

· The city is going to place a sign on the double courts at the intersection of Lake Mary Avenue and Country Club Road. It will contain all of the rules and regulations that are recommended for users of the facilities.

Mayor Lowry Rockett has received complaints over lights being left on too long. He also discussed the use of car lights after the court illumination has been turned off. Players apparently have no consideration for the residents in the nearby areas.

They also may not care about players who may be waiting, as the city saw fit to limit play to 30 minutes.

To urge better sportsmanship, a decision was also made to place a slogan on the sign twice, rather than once. The words will say, 'Good Sportsmanship is Contagious.

Regardless of whether a user of the facility is an expert or a novice, consideration must be given to others. It should be just as much a part of the game as any other aspect of play. . The same courtesy should also be extended in other games, especially where other players may wish to have the same opportunities to play.

Lake Mary will soon be putting up the sign. "it's a shame that some people who apparently love this sporting setivity cannot practice sportsmanship.

In tennis, golf, or any other sport, if a person cannot play fair and show considera-tion for others, he or she should give it up. Sports should be for good-sports. -

Plan for destruction

A newly-disclosed secret plan approved by Iran's highest ranking officials "provides a detailed blueprint for destroying the Baha'i community." according to American Baha'i spokesman Firus

The Iranian government's formal policy to suppress the Baha'is is detailed in a new report released in Geneva by the United Nations Special Representative for Iran. Citing the plan's specific provisions, the UN representative concludes that "one rule limits all the others, namely, that which provides the progress and development of the Baha'is shall be blocked."

The secret plan, dated Feb. 25, 1991 but first revealed last week by the UN Human Rights Commission in Geneva, "codifies and systematizes various types of repressive actions which the islamic regime has taken against Baha'is since 1979," Dr. Kazemzadeh noted.

For example, the plan states that Baha'is must be expelled from achools and universities and denied employment "if they identify themselves as Baha'is." Moreover, the document adds, "to the extent that it does not encourage them to be Baha'is, it is permissible to provide...ration booklets, passports, burial certificates, work permits, etc.

The Iranian government document also calls for a plan "to confront and destroy" the Baha'is "cultural roots" outside fran. This refers to franian actions to counteract support for the persecuted religious group by Baha is in the United States. Germany, and other countries, Kazemzadeh

He noted a recent upsurge in attacks on Baha'ia in Persian-language newspapers published outside Iran. Including one recent article frum a Los Angeles paper.

The secret Iranian policy blueprint leaves open the possibility of arrests and executions of Baha'is, subject only to judgment by Iranian authorities. More than 200 Baha'is have been executed since the Islamic regime took power in 1979.

About one third of the Altamonte Springs Baha'i community is of Iranian descent, but all are shocked by this proof of deliberate and systematic elimination of their co-religionists. It is frightening that in these modern days a government should not only be so intolerant, but so ruthless as well.

Congressman keelhauls free speech

In May of last year. Coast Guard commandant Adm. J.W. Kime invited Gary Bauer - a domestic policy adviser in the Reagan White House and now president of the Family Research Council — to speak at a National Prayer Breakfast in February of this year. The commandant told Bauer that his work on family values and needs "have been an inspiration to many people across the country."

Bauer, who is just as conservative as he was under Reagan, accepted the invitation and it was reconsirmed a few weeks before the event. Suddenly, however, the commandant canceled the invitation. He had received a call from Congressman Gerry Studds, D-Mass., objecting to Bauer's appearance. Reacting to questions about the phone call, Studds' spokesman, Steve Schwadron, told Pamela Glass of the Cape Cod Times that inviting Bauer to speak "is akin to inviting the wizard of the Ku Klux Klan."

When I asked Congressman Studds about that analogy, he did not disavow it. Studds himself was quoted by John Aloysius Farrell of the Boston Globe as saying that he tried to put pressure on the Coast Guard commandant, warning him "that the secretary of transporta-tion and the White House would be upset if they knew of Bauer's scheduled appearance.

That appearance, Studds said, would be "overt lobbying, using official means, against the position (concerning gays in the military) of the president." So much which oversees the Coast Guard. It is not wise to antagonize a chairman with oversight and funding powers.

I asked the congressman how he would have reacted if William Sloane Coffin, former chaplain at Yale, had been invited to speak at a Coast Guard prayer breakfast until Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., objected. Helms' objections, in this hypothetical case, were that Coffin had supported draft resisters during the Vietnam War. Studds chose not to deal with the hypothetical but informed me of his belief that where taxpayers' dollars are involved, the government can ban speakers with private political agendas on such occasions as Coast Guard-sponsored prayer breakfasts.

That ukase would seem to bar both the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the Rev. Jerry Falwell from such events.

In any case, said Studds, there was the matter of separation of church and state. But Bauer is not a man of the cloth. And Studds was not objecting to the concept of a Coast Guard prayer breakfast in and of itself.

But, Studds went on, there had been improper use of the Coast Guard's electronic mail in the weeks preceding the scheduled prayer breakfast. Messages had objected to the president's intention to lift the ban on gays in the armed forces.

Alcohol devouring teenagers

The war against drugs has all but vanished from public view and concern, its multibilion-dollar-a-year expenditures now more a matter of bureaucratic inertia than political and media hype. As it has receded, the continuing reality that alcohol remains the drug of destructive choice for most Americans has re-emerged from the shadows of the public dialogue. Nowhere are the figures, and their implications, more alarming than among young Americans. The evidence is both anecdotal and statistical.

On the facts and figures side, the Depart-ment of Health and Human Services reported less than two years ago that 8 million American junior and senior high school students (out of about 20.7 million who attend grades seven through 12) were weekly users of alcohol. Despite the fact that every state prohibits the sale of alcohol to anyone under 21, the HHS inspector general's report found that almost 7 million teen-agers had no trouble buying liquor as and when wanted. Another agency, the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence of New York, offered even more distressing statistics on drinking among young Americans. In a survey of 17,000 high school youths, one-third reported having five or more drinks in a row in the past two weeks. Two-thirds were current drinkers. And alcohol-related incidents kill 10,000 Americans between the ages of 16 and 24 each year, making it the No. 1 killer for this age group. Now jump from high school to college. A recent article in The New York Times Sunday magazine painted a gloomily accurate picture of the current college scene. If you drink, the name of the game is not to get high, but to get blind drunk. Partying begins on Thursday night, since for many colleges and universities the academic work week ends on Thursday afternoon. Fraternities and other selective social clubs are the center of the bingedrinking fun and games. Alcohol is the social king of the campus from huge public universities to small private colleges.

The results were documented in a recent fact sheet on campus drinking compiled by the Mercer Council on Alcoholism and Drug Addiction of Trenton, N.J. Among its findings:

"Almost all students in their first year drink alcohol, with 57.4 percent of men and 35.5 percent of women reporting five or more drinks on at least one occasion in the last two weeks. "College administrators also estimate that problems associated with alcohol consumption by students account for 69 percent of damage to residence halls, 64 percent of violent behavior on campus, 34 percent of academic problems and 25 percent of drop outs. ..." One much-remarked effect of excessive drinking is sexual abuse. Most reported rapes on campus are the result of drunkenness. It is widely believed that far more incidents go unreported because the victim as well as the perpetrator was drunk and feels complicit in

None of this has gone unnoticed on campus. A 1989 survey of college and university presidents by the Carnegie Foundation found that alcohol was the most serious problem they faced. The trouble is not lack of awareness so much as belated reaction to the problem. As recently as last year, a summit conference of leaders, of independent schools and colleges did not include a single discussion of this "most serious" problem. Until very recently, studied obliviousness was the rule. Reflecting the larger society's hysterical

Alcohol is the social king of the campus. concentration on the lesser problem of hard drugs, too many college administrators and boards tended to point with pride to declining drug use while ooking away from the ravages of alcohol. No more. The day of denial in higher education is over. It is hard to find a campus without an alcohol abuse program of greater or lesser magnitude.

But the unfortunate truth is that college administrators are trying to stuff fingers into a dike that is not so much leaking as crumbling. The problem they face has off-campus origins. as the figures on teen-age drinking reveal. They are almost literally powerless to do much more than contain or attempt to clean up behind a destructive phenomenon which is society-wide in scope.

The conclusion is inescapable. A nationwide 'war" on alcohol addiction and abuse should receive the priority once given to the war on drugs. The place to begin is with the very young. Communities should get serious about laws prohibiting alcohol sales to underage youths. Parents should get serious about their children's use of alcohol in the same way they were stirred to action by the far less menacing threat of drugs. A public education campaign such as the ones that have done so much to make kids aware of the dangers of tobacco and drugs should be constructed to deal with

One more blast before budget cuts

WASHINGTON - President Clinton's February pledge to cut 100,000 civil-service jobs. reduce administrative overhead by 14 percent and eliminate widespread government perks prompted most federal agencies to begin belt-tightening. For senior officials at the U.S. Customs Service, it prompted one

The Customs Service last week shuttled more than 80 of its senior officers from around the country and the world to an enforcement conference at a $50 million resort outside Palm Springs. Calif. Numerous customs sources estimate that the total cost for food, travel, accommodation and miuricu at the ference ran more than $100,000. Although customs spokesman Bill Anthony was unable to provide an exact budget figure for the five-day desert jaunt, he called such estimates "an exag-

For senior officials at the U.S. Customs Service, it prompted one last hurrah.

Taxpayers shelled out thousands just to fly the Washington contingent to Palm Springs round trip. Even more was spent on round-trip air fare for customs attaches, who came to the conference from some 15 different countries. including Thailand, Japan, Italy and Austria. About 45 special agents-in-charge and Aviation branch officials were also flown in from major U.S. cities on the government dollar.

Anthony says the purpose of the conference was to discuss more than a dozen important topics, including budget issues, communications security and sexual harassment. Asked by our associate Dean Boyd why a conference in Palm Springs was needed to address these issues, Anthony explained that "a lot of this stuff you just can't do over the phone."

Judging by their surroundings, some customs officials might have found it hard to concentrate on their work. The Palm Springs area — home of golf courses, swimming pools and Sonny Bono — is so exclusive that a city ordinance bans the use of the word "motel" on public signs. Ordinance or not, nobody would confuse customs' conference site at Hotel Indian Wells with a roadside inn.

The hotel sits on the 11th fairway of the host golf course for the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic and offers its guests guaranteed tee times on the 36-hole course. Customs officials were especially lucky last week, when Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Chi Chi Rodriguez came to town to kick off the PGA Senior Tour at a nearby country club.

For those not interested in golf, the hotel features a heated swimming pool, jacuzzi and sauna. Tennis, trail rides and hot-air balloon rides are available nearby. Equestrian shows and world-class polo can be found at the prestigious Empire and Eldorado polo clubs.

For those quiet evenings inside, customs officials stayed in suites that were originally built at a cost of $160,000 each. Rooms are equipped with marble baths, mini-bars and private balconies with views of the Santa Rosa mountains, golf course or pool areas. Yet, they pale in comparison to the multi-level, four-bedroom, five-bath presidential suite, which rents out for $6,000 per night and comes with a gold-plated private elevator and emerald suede chairs. Aside from full concierge service, valet parking and dry cleaning, the hotel can provide guests with Cadillac stretch limos.

Anthony says the Customs Service chose Hotel Indian Wells because it was seized by customs agents last August after an investigation into its high-rolling Japanese owner. This, he says, enabled the government to negotiate the standard government rate of $75 per night.

Jackson says Haitians at camp under martial law

By CAROL PUGH Associated Press Writer

GUANTANAMO NAVAL BASE, Cuba — The Rev. Jesse Jackson said the 256 Haitlans confined here are prisoners housed in a concentration camp, and the U.S. government could casily alleviate the suffering.

"The Haitians on Guantanamo are U.S. prisoners now under martial law," Jackson said after visiting the 17-month-old tent city Saturday with a 16-member entourage of reporters, lawyers and a doctor.

'(U.S. Attorney General) Janet Reno with a stroke of a pen or President Clinton with a wave of his hand can relieve this suffering." he said.

The civil rights leader arranged to visit the base after escape attempts, arson and rock-throwing incidents landed 30 Haitians in the brig March 13. Nineteen of the Haitians remain in a makeshift brig, said Margaret Hennessy, a lawyer visiting the camp.

"It's clear now when you look at the guard at the gate and the barb wire, they are definitely prisoners," Jackson said.

Jackson promised to report his observations to Reno and Interesting week for Seminoles

SANFORD — This weekend has been an interesting weekend for Seminole High School students as well as for the entire country. The storm effected all of us in some way.

Personally, my family lost a few tree limbs and a little power. Others lost all their power. Some lost property. Still others lost their lives.

Thursday and Friday, literally and symbolically, were the quiet before the storm.

A talent show was held at Seminole High on Thursday night. It was a chance for students to perform on stage and to "strut their stuff."

Some students sang songs such as Whitney Houton's "I Will Always Love You" and the movie Aladdin's "A Whole New World."

There was a magic act Houdini-like escape from a bag and was successful.

Some members of the Dance Team also performed. There was a rap group and entourage from Japan who came to view the show. There were parents and students and teachers as well.

The talent show was held to raise money for the 1993 Prom. which will be held on Saturday, May 15 at the new Hyatt hotel at the Orlando International Airport.

Thursday night was also the meeting informing parents about the new Health Academy which will begin operating next fall.

To the delight of the seniors at SHS it was also Senior Skip Day. Some used the day to catch up on school work. Some used it to catch up on sleep. And some students used the day to go to Disney. to the beach or to a cookout.

Early Friday morning, ten Seminole High School students, along with students at other high schools, set out for lorida A&M University (FAMU). The college was giving seminars on college life and the FAMU curriculum.

The local winner is among the 250 scholarship winners nationally to be awarded money to help finance their education.

The scholarships are being awarded to top vocational-technical students who are using the training to help them excel as top mechanics.

In all, 150 scholarships for $1,000 and 100 scholarships for $500 were awarded.

The scholarships are designed to recognize and reward qualifled students on a nationwide level in the technical fields of automotive mechanics, engineering, design and related courses of study.

Selection was based on past academic performance, future potential, school and community participation, work experience, career and education aspiration and goals, unusual personal or family circumstances and an outside appraisal.

Scientists seeking evidence of big bang

Doctors diagnose Hitler's ailments

By LEE SIEGEL AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES - Adolf Hitler's many illnesses during World War II could have been caused by an undiagnosed ailment that inflames arteries and slows the flow of blood to vital organs, according to a study published today.

The research also found documentary evidence confirming the longstanding belief that Hitler had Parkinson's disease, a de-generative nerve disorder, the report in Archives of Internal Medicine said.

Scholars knew Hitler had liver, heart and stomach troubles, took numerous drugs and displayed shaking characteristic of Parkinson's disease, Dr. Fritz C. Redlich, the study's author, said Sunday.

Symptoms cited in his doctor's records show Hitler also might have had giant cell arteritis, said Redlich, professor emeritus of psychiatry at the University of California. Los Angeles, and former dean of Yale University School of

They included headaches. impaired vision, fever, weight loss, malaise, oversensitivity to sunlight and tenderness and an enlarged artery over one temple. Inflamed arteries elsewhere in the body also might explain Hitler's heart disease, ab-dominal pain and liver troubles, Redlich said.

"It's plausible — a reasonable hypothesis." said Dr. Gene Hunder, rheumatology chairman at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Giant cell arteritis is named for enlarged cells in inflamed artery walls. It afflicts one in 500 people over age 50 and gradually goes away by itself. Hunder said. The cause is unknown.

Redlich, 82, has spent eight years compiling Hitler's health history. He interviewed people who knew Hitler and read documents at the German National Archives, including the 1941-45 letters and diary of Hitler's physician. Dr. Theodor Morell.

Redlich said Morell "was on the border of being a charlatan," treating Hitler with opiates, cocaine, barbiturates, laxatives, leeches, vitamins, tonics, useless hormones and sugar water injections.

More cult members leave Waco

By JAIME ARON Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas — More Branch Davidian cult members left their heavily armed rural enclave over the weekend, raising hopes once again for a peaceful resolution to the 3-week-old slege.

Seven people came out Sun-day, following two who left Friday night.

"The quicker it picks up, the better the situation is, and we're getting more and more out," said FBI agent Richard Swensen.

Thirty-four people, including 21 children, have left the compound since the standoff began. Seventy-nine adults and 17 children remain inside, accord-Ing to cult leader David Koresh.

The FBI says Koresh told them the slege will end soon, but he gave no timetable.

Rockett, Larsen exchange vows

On Saturday, March 13, Brittany Grace their first dance as husband and wife, bekett became the wife of Wayne Larsen. "Everything I Do, I Do For You." Rockett became the wife of Wayne Larsen. Brittany is the daughter of Lake Mary Mayor Lowry Rockett and his wife Pat.

The bride and groom were married in the Markham Woods Presbyterian Church on a day that set a record in Florida for one of the coldest and stormlest.

"Because of the storms throughout this area, the day and night before their wedding, the church had no power or lights," according to Frances Brenden, "But hardly a person knew, as the candlebra set such a romantic mood. All the attendees thought it was intended that way.

Because of the lack of power, the organist smoothly made the transition from the organ to the plano," she said.

Following the church ceremony, the, wedding party and guests arrived at the Heathrow Country Club for the reception. Music and entertainment was by the LaMotte and Cochran band. The bride and groom chose for their favorite song to dance

Their flower girl, Tamie Brenner, age 5, and her parents. Tim and Elaine Brenner, traveled from Chatham, N.J. and are relatives of the groom. The ring bearer, James Rabb, age 51/2, and his parents. John and Sandy Rabb, traveled from Atlanta and are relatives of the bride.

The guests that traveled the furthest, however, were also the highlight of the afternoon wedding. They were Mayor Rockett's Aunt Juanita Nakano and her two gorgeous daughters, Kam, 20, and Kari, 17, who came from Kailua, Hawail.

The girls each performed a Hawatian dance in honor of the bride and groom. Kari did the first dance to the song "Poliahu," which means "Come Here Sweetheart" about a young man and woman falling in love. Karl wore the ancient costume of Hawaii used for this song. The dance was extremely beautiful and graceful. Kari is a senior at Iolant High School in Honolulu.

Kam performed the polgnant and traditional "Hawaiian Wedding Song" in English. The dance was performed to perfection with grace and style. Kam wore the modern authentic costume worn today in Hawaii to do this song. It was a long, purple Hawatlan print. Kam is a student in Pomona College and will be going to International Law in Boston.

Both girls wore live flower tiaras and baby orchid leis which they presented to Brittany and Wayne at the end of their dances, along with the words, "Because We Love You." The surprise of this as well as the beauty brought tears of Joy to the bride's eyes. Both young ladies, as well as their wonderful and charismatic mother, won everyone's hearts with their brains, beauty and charm. Their dad had to remain in Hawaii on business.

After the Hawaiian entertainment the bride threw her bouquet to the throng of single women and the groom removed her garter and threw it to the single men. There were 180 guests.

Year-round school

All elementary and middle schools in Seminole County are scheduled to go on year-round education by the 1994-95 school year. Lake Mary Elementary is scheduled for the last phase

In preparation for this Lake Mary Elementary's Flipper Flash will provide information on year-round education in each issue. Hopefully this will provide answers to questions and alleviate some concerns. Many people ask what the difference is between the traditional school calendar (what we have now) and a year-round calendar. With a year-round calendar the teaching program remains the same and your child will still attend school for 180 days. A year-round education calendar involves an attendance/vacation pattern that breaks the 180 days school year into small teaching segments with more frequent. but shorter breaks. Traditional holiday breaks at Thanksgiving.

Opening Day one of the first signs of spring

First detected a month ago, it began gathering intensity and finally swept across Celery City Saturday morning.

No, not another killer storm, baseball (and softball) season.

This is not yet another effort of waxing poetic about the qualities of baseball, but a commentary on the passage of time that the start of the baseball season serves to mark.

What makes the start of the baseball season so special has little to do with the sport Itself, but Its happy coincidence with the beginning of spring. For many Americans, the first pitch of the season has the same sacred value as the season's first robin or first bloom.

It's not anything so profound as the celebration of the renewal of life. but just the opportunity to get outside and do something.

I wouldn't have thought it possible during the snowbound New England winter days of my earlier youth, but cabin fever can reach epidemic proportions here in the subtropies, where winter's are supposedly kinder and gentler. In its own way, winter's worse here. North of the Mason-Dixon Line, at least winter's occasionally snow white. Here, it's dormant grass brown. And let's not forget the physically advantageous conditions of balmy days and frigid nights that leave 95 percent of the state's residents battling a cold at one time or another. Yes, even we get to the point that enough is enough where winter's concerned.

SPORTS

The calendar says that March 20 is the first day of spring. While celebrations generally aren't planned for a change in the seasons. the Sanford Recreation Department throughtfully provided one this year, especially after that freak storm that ran roughshod over the Eastern scaboard a week ago.

Timing is everything. If you think I'm overstating the case, consider these few reflections.

Opening Day ceremonies for the Sanford Recreation's Little Major and Pee Wee baseball leagues were scheduled to start at 9 a.m. But if you drove by Fort Mellon Park at 8 a.m. Saturday, you could see several boys already in uniform.

They were racing around the field. radiating the energy that they've been storing up all winter. Those that could be corralled were walking the fields with their parents/coaches, inspecting the manicured grounds while being careful not to disturb the recentlyraked infield clay.

As I drove by on my way to my own opening day with the Sauford Church Softball league, I couldn't hear what was being said but could Imagine it only too well, having had similar conversations with my father/coach during my youth baseball career.

The sky may have been gray and the weather threatening, but nothing was going to spoil the day for these young players. It was Opening Day.

The excitement those two words generate isn't limited to children. In making the necessary preseason phone calls to my teammates on the aforementioned church softball team, our coach found out that not only was the whole team willing to play again this season, we were all looking forward to it. I thought it was just me, but during conversations during our practice game Saturday, it came out that all of us had been walking around our respective homes, tossing balls into our gloves or working on our swings in front of mirrors.

After a winter of inactivity, it's time to play ball.

It's time to get outside. It's spring.

Native trees for landscape

Florida has its trees adapted to soil and water needs

Florida is blessed with a diversity of native plant and animal species that have adapted to the existing conditions. Native plants have evolved within a particular habitat with specific soil and water needs. These plants are well suited to urban landscapes if we create site conditions similar to their natural homes.

When planted in the proper situation and cared for during an establishment period, natives tend to survive on natural rainfall and have few pest problems. Mulching, which is a natural occurrence in the wild, will protect the roots, reduce weed competition and provide a natural source of nutrients. When planted in the right place, native plants can provide natural beauty with minimal care.

Red maple (Acer rubrum) is a popular shade tree with a broad spreading crown. It grows in wet areas and has beautiful red fall color. The red seeds appear in early spring before the leaves appear. The maple will grow in sun or shade, and prefers rich, moist soils. Mature height can be 120 feet, so stay clear of the power lines when placing in the landscape.

The bright green growth is just appearing on the bald cypress (Taxodium distichum). Cypress knees are common when growing in wet areas, and rarely occur on welldrained sites. Though common in the wet areas, cypress trees are very drought tolerant and adapt to a variety of soil conditions. The cypress can be planted in sun or shade. The bald cypress is deciduous and will lose its leaves in the fall; even without leaves the cone-shaped tree remains attractive and is often decorated with Spanish moss.

Dahoon (flex cassine) is one of many native hollies. It will have an upright growth habit, reaching only 40 feet. The tree lacks the distinct spines of the traditional holly leaves, having scarce spines or lacking them completely. Male and female flowers are on separate trees as with most hollies, so some trees never have the red or yellow berries which are food for birds in the winter. The tree is native to wet areas, but will grow in moist, loamy soils in full sun or medium shade. Use as a specimen tree or group several together for maximum cross pollination and fruit set.

Other hollies are native to drier conditions. The 'East Palatka' and 'Savannah' hollies are selections of the American holly (llex opaca). They prefer drier conditions than the Dahoon. 'East Palatka' is unusual in that it may be self-fruitful, having berries even without cross pollination. 'East Palatka' has bright red berries and the leaves are dark green with a single spine at the tip. 'Savannah,' on the other hand, has spiked leaves and dark red berries.

Southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora) can grow 60 to 100 feet tall with a 30 to 50 foot spread, but slow growth prevents it from taking over the landscape. Plan its location carefully to avoid problems in the future. Magnolias prefer rich moist soils, but will tolerate drier conditions once established. Blooms of magnolia are 6 to 9 inches across, very fragrant and can be cut and used in floral arrangments. Plant in sun or partial shade and be patient, magnolias may take ten years or more to bloom.

When planting hollies and magnolias, leave the lower branches so the trees remain full to the ground. The plants are evergreen and this will avoid the aggravation of raking leaves which fall year round.

The white, fragrant flowers of Loblolly Bay (Gordonia lasianthus) are seen from May thrugh July along roadside swamps. They are smaller than those of the southern magnolia, Moist, acid soils are required to grow this bay. Mulch is helpful in managing soil mositure on drier sites. Leaves are evergreen, but turn scarlet red before falling, adding color in the landscape in the fall. The tree has upright growth which is ideal for small lots.

Many species of oaks are native to Florida. Some grow as a low shrub in sandy scrub habitat, others become majestic shade trees in upland hammocks. Quercus virginiana, our native live oak, has broad spreading branches and deeply furrowed bark. The leaves are semi-evergreen, dropping in the spring. The tree is bare for a short period of time. The leaves are leathery, oval and cupped under on the edges. Leaves of young trees may be holly-like.

Another common oak is the laurel oak (Quercus laurifolia). This oak has leaves that are more football shaped, being smooth and pointed at both ends. Laurel oaks are native of moist hammocks but will tolerate drought once established in the landscape.

If given adequate moisture and fertilizer, native oaks will grow fast with up to 6 feet of growth a year. These two make excellent shade trees, but give them room. These oaks grow quite large, over 60 feet when mature. Some consider the leaves to be a nuisance, but oak leaves make excellent mulch and can be composted. Plant shade tolerant shrubs and ground covers under them. since lawn grasses don't do well in their dense shade.

The above-mentioned trees are just a few of many worthy native trees for the landscape. For more information on native plants, drop by the Ag. Center or call 323-2500, ext. 5550.

AARP hears mayor

Dad's discipline is nobody's business

DEAR ABBY: You have had several letters about what to say when you see a parent disciplining a young child in public.

I'll tell you what to say: Nothing! Last week, on a crowded cruise ship, my 8-year-old son began acting up in public. He'd been cranky all day because he wasn't getting his way, and he'd already been given plenty of warnings. At one point, he deliberately walked away from the family. I followed him, gave him a quick swat on the butt and told him to stay with us!

I was immediately confronted by a furious woman who screamed at me. "That's no way to treat a child!" I was so startled at the intrusion, I had all I could do to keep from telling her to mind her own business.

That woman had interrupted a private family matter. Should I have thanked her for her concern and explained that the boy was taking medication for a hyperactive disorder - that he had been abandoned by his birth mother, been physically abused in two foster homes and ultimately labeled "hard to place" - a euphemism for "unadoptable"? Should I have explained that he was classified as severely emotionally disturbed?

Abby, while preparing to adopt this child, I spent months doing research, seeking advice and support about the best ways to meet his special needs, so he could have the best chance of becoming a fully independent adult. It isn't easy. He throws tantrums, gets frustrated, argumentative and stubborn, but there are times when he's bright, charming, affectionate and playful. We've had some terrific times together, and I can't imagine life without him. I love this boy.

Yes, it's disheartening to see a parent yelling at a child in public, but the last thing that parent needs is to have his or her parental authority questioned by another adult. Please sign me...

KY FATHER

DEAR LUCKY FATHER: Your son is as lucky (perhaps luckier) than you. Thank you for a wonderful letter. And lest it be said that Abby condones "child abuse" — one swat on the behind does not constitute child

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a well-established plastic surgeon with an excellent reputation and a fine practice.

The problem: Whenever we are out socially - usually at someone's home, but it has also occurred in restaurants - one of the women will get him in a corner and ask, "Doctor, what do you think I need? And approximtely how much will it

My husband is not about to give his professional opinion or quote prices under these circumstances, so he politely suggests that the person inquiring call his office and make an appointment.

Everybody reads Dear Abby. so kindly print this letter. Perhaps it will send a signal to those persons who seek a professional opinion without going to the doctor's office.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE DEAR WIFE: Here's your letter. (Do I hear thousands of readers tearing this out of their newspapers? Or is it just my imagination?)

DEAR READER: This is as close to a medical emergency as I can imagine in a column such as this. You have diabetes and without insulin therapy, you could suffer acidosis, metabolic collapse, coma, and death. The fasting blood sugar level should not exceed 110 milligrams per deciliter.

Go to a doctor immediately. You desperately need insulin injections to lower your blood augar before you experience dangerous consequences.

To give you more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Diabetes Mellitus." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, selfaddressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband's doctor prescribed 1,500 mg of niacin for control of high triglycerides and cholesterol levels. My husband questioned having his liver checked for damage from this vitamin. His doctor feels it is not necessary, stating that regular niacin has created fewer probiems than the timed-release niacin. Three pharmacists either downright disagree or have no knowledge of the doctor's theory. Do you?
DEAR READER: I'll side with the doctor; the pharmacists should know better.

Niacin effectively lowers serum cholesterol levels in some patients. It is inexpensive therapy but often causes unpleasant flushing and diarrhea. These side effects are a more common consequence of regular niacin tablets than of the timed-release capsules. However, this latter product has been implicated as a cause of liver inflammation.

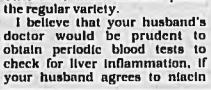

Therefore, most doctors prefer the regular variety.

I believe that your husband's doctor would be prudent to obtain periodic blood tests to check for liver inflammation, if
