Boy's hope for better weather

ORLANDO — Boy's soccer players from area high school hope for better playing conditions during this week's Pizza Hut Invitational than during last week's girl's soccer Burger King Invitational. Severe cold forced the cancellation of three of Saturday's games and the rescheduling of the championship game to Jan. 2. The boy's, playing at the Boone High and Bishop Moore fields in Orlando, hope for better.

Vikes, Steelers in playoffs

MINNEAPOLIS — In the last game of the NFL's regular season, the last playoff berth was decided when the Minnesota Vikings beat the Cincinnati Bengals 29-21 to clinch the NFC Central Division title. The win drove the Green Bay Packers out of the playoffs and lifted the Pittsburgh Steelers into a wild card game against the Houston Oilers next Sunday. Minnesota, 10-6, finished tied with Green Bay, but won the title based on a better division record.

Bush: Pleased with Panama

WASHINGTON — President George Bush, after having spent Christmas at the presidential Camp David retreat in Maryland, is expected to soon announce "Mission accomplished" to the troops involved in the action in Panama. The collapse of most organized resistance facing the U.S. military forces in Panama and the formation of a democratic government is said to be Bush's impetus, White House sources say.

Lotto jackpot nears $12 million

TALLAHASSEE — The LOTTO jackpot rose to $12 million this week after lottery players failed to match the six winning numbers. Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

There were 203 players who matched five of the six winning numbers to win $4,007.50 each. There were 230,375 cash winners in all.

Paul said 12,124 players managed four matches for $98 in prize money. Three matches earned $5 for 230,375 people.

The winning numbers were 9, 12, 29, 35, 39, and 47.

In the Fantasy Five game, five players matched all five numbers in Friday night's drawing to win $307,478.76 each, Paul said. The winning tickets were sold in Fort Myers, Hialeah, Kenneth City, Silver Springs and Tampa.

In addition to the first-prize winners, 1,289 players matched 4-of-5 numbers to each win $338.50 and 48,264 players matched 3-of-5 to win $4.50 each.

The winning numbers were 03-07-10-11-35.

Read about Fuzzy Navel Cake

SANFORD — Sanford resident Joanne Wheeler describes herself as a "Southern homestyle cook." She learned through trials and tribulations how to be the cook she is today. Now she whips up unusual treats like Fuzzy Navel Cake and Peanut Butter Chestnuts. Read all about Wheeler and her pet project in tomorrow's People section.

Freeze strains area

SANFORD — Bitter cold on Christmas day was to blame for broken water pipes and power outages which sent local utility personnel to work on the holiday, and for overflow crowds at area homeless shelters.

Fire departments across the county this weekend reported no fires started by kerosene heaters, but were kept busy cleaning up after water leaks caused by frozen pipes.

A 50-member repair crew for Cablevision of Central Florida spent Sunday night and Christmas day trying to keep to a minimum service interruptions for 400,000 customers in the area. Vice President of Operations David Spencer said today. Interruptions were caused mostly by power outages affecting nearly all customers in Seminole County, he said, while minor problems were caused by the cold weather.

"Nearly all of our customers were affected at one point or another," Spencer said.

Power companies serving the county voluntarily turned off power across their service areas on revolving schedules to avoid blackouts in the face of record demand for power.

Florida Power Corporation had every available maintenance crew from the Seminole County area, plus crews from St. Petersburg, Haines City and Lake Wales, working to restore power throughout the weekend. FPC Divisions Vice President Pete Dagostino said today. About 330,000 power customers in Seminole County served by FPC were affected by rotating blackouts which left them without power for 10 to 15 minutes at a time, he said.

Many customers lost power when FPC turned power lines on, picking up a greater-than-capacity

SANFORD — While many shoppers were on a last-minute hunt for the perfect Christmas gift, several families this weekend were searching for something a lot more rare: fuel to heat their homes during sub-freezing weather.

When household fuel supplies began to run low or empty this weekend, local fuel oil supply companies had little help to offer long lines of customers waiting for kerosene and diesel.

Power outages across the county this weekend also left many families struggling to keep warm.

One of the hardest hit suppliers in Seminole County this weekend was B&L Fuel Oil Company

Retailers hope warm weather spurs shoppers

By VICKI DeBORNER

SANFORD — On the first day after Christmas, many retailers say shoppers are not returning to the stores in such great numbers as they would have hoped, but they couldn't complain about the figures.

Most think, however, that as temperatures rise and workers break for lunch, there will be more shoppers coming to their stores.

"Last year, the day after Christmas was a day off for most people," Doug Hunsberger, store manager of the K Mart on Highway 17-92 in Sanford said this morning, "so we had a lot more shoppers waiting at our door when we opened that morning."

He described this year's early morning crowd as "very light," saying that he was prepared for a big increase as the day wore on.

"I'm prepared with a big staff," he said. Judy Gillis, manager of the JC Penney's

With no place to turn, Sanford mission helped family

By VICKI DeBORNER

SANFORD — During Christmases past, Jessie volunteered at homeless shelters and gave her time and energy to aid the homeless. This September, Jessie and her four children found themselves without a home.

Jessie asked that her last name not be published.

Jessie, whose lightly freckled face shows some signs of wear, is now seven months pregnant with her fifth child. She has recently gone through a divorce and her husband was paying the rent on her Orlando residence. When her husband went to jail this summer, Jessie and her family were pushed out into the streets.

"I went to the places where I'd volunteered," she said, pushing her dark hair away from her face and looking down at her shoes. "but there are so many people who need their help that they just don't have the time to help everyone like they'd like or the places to put them."

When Orange county shelters had no room to take the family in, some suggested Jessie try the Rescue Outreach Mission on 13th St. in Sanford. "I had lived in Sanford for about 10 years before we moved to Orlando," she said. "I'd heard about the mission, but I'd never been down here."

As autumn drew to a close, Jessie and her children Tiffany, 5, Charlie, who is almost 4, Marcy, 3, and Bobby, 1, made the trek into Seminole County to the mission run by Rev. Blanche Weaver of the

Don't toss your Christmas tree; have it chipped

From staff reports

SANFORD — Instead of strewing the lawn with tinsel as you drag the Christmas tree to the trash, Seminole County Urban Forester Mike Martin is asking local families to recycle their trees.

The trees may be chipped into mulch instead of stuffing the county landfill, which is already too-rapidly approaching its capacity, Martin said.

The cities of Sanford, Lake Mary and Altamonte Springs will provide city Christmas tree pick-up. Residents in other areas of the county may drop off their trees at one of seven locations across Seminole County.

The Seminole Soil and Water Conservation District will offer 7,000 pine seedlings on a first-come, first-served basis for people who drop off their trees at one of the seven sites.

Mulch chipped from trees collected in Lake Mary will be used in landscaping of the city public safety complex. City Manager John Litton said this week.

Several county cases drew national attention in 1989

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — Seminole Circuit Court came under national attention in 1989 when it tried and convicted a woman for delivering cocaine to her unborn baby. She was one of the first women in the nation to be tried and convicted on the charge.

The state attorney's office filed charges against Jennifer C. Johnson for delivery of cocaine to her unborn baby after a results of a Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services investigation were turned over for criminal prosecution.

Johnson, 23, of Altamonte Springs, admitted smoking crack on Jan. 23, 1989, the day she delivered her daughter, Jessica.

Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. ruled "The term 'delivery' includes the passage of cocaine or a derivative of it from the body of a mother into the body of her child through the umbilical cord."

The state recommended probation and drug

•Jennifer Johnson, tried and convicted of delivering cocaine to her unborn baby. One of the first such cases in the nation, it drew national attention.

•Stephanie Gardner, tried and found innocent of murdering her parents by reason of insanity.

•Robert Power Jr., sentenced to five life terms after a jury convicted him of 11 separate crimes stemming from the 1987 burglary and rape of a Longwood woman. He was the first person convicted in Seminole County on the basis of DNA sampling.

•Albert McGoldrick, a Sanford teacher tried and convicted on seven counts of performing lewd and lascivious acts on children. Before the jury announced the sentence, McGoldrick walked out of the courthouse and hasn't been seen since.

Governor targets campaign money

TAMPA — Republican Gov. Bob Martinez and his Democratic opponents in the 1990 governor's race are stockpiling money for a blitz of television commercials for air during the campaign's final hours.

Candidates and political analysts say television is the chief campaign weapon and predict that more than $25 million could be spent on TV advertisements during the governor's race. A big chunk of that money will be targeted for the stretch run. The Tampa Tribune reported Monday.

"A lot of voters are going to make up their mind on the basis of a 30-second television commercial that they're going to see in the last three weeks of the campaign," said Bill Nelson, a Democratic contender.

J.M. "Mac" Stipanovich, the governor's campaign manager, said Martinez will raise a maximum of $15 million in campaign contributions and spend 70 percent, or about $10.5 million, on television commercials.

Nelson is expected to spend a similar amount, and political strategists for Democratic candidate George Stuart Jr. of Orlando said he is budgeting a minimum of $2 million for television.

Two other candidates, Republican Marlene Woodson-Howard of Bradenton and ousted federal judge Alice Hastings, who is running as a Democrat, are not expected to spend as much on campaign commercials.

Atlanta-based pollster Clairborne Darden said, "Television has now become as necessary to politics as a baseball is to playing baseball."

Darden, who is not working for anyone in the Florida race, said candidates must get on television to win a race, but first they must prove they can win to collect the money to obtain the TV air time.

Pasture land gives way

MIAMI — The area along the Dade-Broward county line was once reserved for cattle and horses, but it is now the site of one of the biggest development booms in south Florida.

"They are buying everything, throwing everybody out," said Juan Rincon, who must fight the traffic to ride one of his four horses near his two-acre corral.

Rincon's land was sold recently to a developer who plans to erect a Bedano's supermarket.

"It's a hot location," said Ed Mogel, a real estate broker whose firm has 10,000 potential buyers on its mailing list.

The Miami Lakes development began by Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and his brother, William, in 1958 was the first attempt to turn the rural area into a residential community.

"When Miami Lakes started out, everybody said it would never work because we were on the wrong side of town," said Bill Graham, William's son. "Now they say we can't go wrong because of location."

One reason for the recent popularity of the area is the greater access provided by Interstate 75, the Florida Turnpike Extension and the Palmetto Expressway.

"With the traffic pattern, everything seems to work here," said Mogel. "Kendall is a nice place to live as long as you don't have to leave your home."

The love of the golf links has attracted many residents who now play at the Country Club of Miami, which has had an 88.7 million round.

Two 18-hole Professional Golfers' Association courses will be completed by 1991, along with a 54-hole course designed to attract pros and professional tournaments.

Migrant workers face uncertain future

PLANT CITY — Thousands of migrant farm workers face a future as uncertain as the strawberries and oranges they have come here to pick.

Citrus, strawberry and vegetable crop production has been at a standstill since a wave of arctic air barreled into Florida over the weekend, freezing about 40 percent of the crops and halting the future of the multi-million dollar industry under a blanket of ice.

Former J&J International chief dead

GLUPSTREAM — Robert J. Dixon, a retired president of Johnson & Johnson International and an official of philanthropic, professional and civic groups in New Jersey and Florida, died Saturday. He was 82.

Dixon died at his home after an undetected illness.

Dixon, a lawyer by training, played a major role in expanding the manufacturing, distribution and sale of Johnson & Johnson products around the world.

Dixon, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., earned a law degree at St. John's University and was admitted to the bar in New York in 1930, when he joined a Brooklyn law firm.

He was a member of St. John's law faculty from 1930 to 1942 and later served St. John's as a trustee and a university council member.

Joining the company in 1942, Dixon spent 31 years with J&J, rising to assistant to the chairman and chief executive of the parent company. He retired in 1973.

At his death, Dixon was a trustee of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation in Plainboro. He had also been a director and chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, a board member of the Far East-American Council of Commerce and Industry and an adviser to the Export-Import Bank of the United States.

Shrimpers rescued before boat sinks

SAVANNAH, Ga. — The Coast Guard plucked two men from a sinking shrimp boat Monday after the owner of the vessel at first refused to be rescued while furiously pumping water from the crippled craft.

The shrimpers were trawling in the 55-foot Three CEEs when the boat sprang a leak five miles from the uninhabited barrier island of St. Catherine's south of Savannah. Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Gary Gamble said.

Gamble said it was about 4:45 a.m. when the boat put out an urgent distress call to the Coast Guard and headed for the island.

When a rescue helicopter from the Coast Guard's Savannah Air Station found the boat in shallow waters about 1,000 yards offshore, crewman Hayworth Hutchinson agreed to be hoisted to safety by the chopper, Gamble said.

Capt. Dave Poppell, 30, of Eulonia refused to abandon his vessel for at least 45 minutes while he pumped water from the craft in a last-ditch effort to prevent it from sinking, Gamble said.

The crew aboard a 41-foot Coast Guard patrol boat dispatched from Tybee Island finally persuaded him to abandon the craft.

"The boat was about to sink," Gamble said. "He was ready to come off when the patrol boat arrived."

7-week-old dies of exposure after being left alone in cold

NORTH BAY VILLAGE — A 7-week-old child left unattended for nearly a day in an unheated apartment died of exposure to the cold, and his parents could face child abuse charges, police said.

Police said Ricardo Joseph never had a chance after being abandoned for 24 1/2 hours in an unheated apartment during one of the harshest cold snaps on record in south Florida.

Both parents say they thought the other parent was watching the infant, and police are not sure which story to believe.

"It is a pretty tragic thing, especially on Christmas. The child never had a chance," Carmody said.

According to police, the parents argued Saturday night and then left the apartment with the boy in his crib and the heat off.

Ricardo, born Nov. 3, had been living with his mother, a registered nurse.

The couple met Saturday at the father's two bedroom apartment. The argument started when the father, Michel Jenay, wanted to leave to see his girlfriend, police said.

Police are trying to determine which parent was the last to leave the apartment. Both parents say they left first, and assumed the other would stay and watch the child.

"We're trying to find witnesses who can confirm either side," Carmody said. "None have come forward."

Joseph returned to the apartment late Sunday night and found the boy dead in his crib.

At least seven people have died in Florida as a result of the severe cold.

uses," said Rafael Mendoza Alvarez, 23. "The phrase used for celebration is New Year's."

Christmas is no longer a legal holiday in Cuba and, Mendoza said, the traditional Nochebuena pork dinner has vanished from local custom.

During their five days at sea, the men were tossed by 10-foot waves and circled by sharks.

"The sharks looked most frightening at night because you could see their red eyes shining," said Emiliano Jose Mena Oarrill, 39.

"It is preferable to die at sea than to keep living under Castro," said Gil, who hopes to be reunited with his brother in San Francisco by New Year's.

Six rescued rafters celebrate

KEY LARGO — Six Cubans rescued by a German freighter prepared Sunday to spend their first Christmas in 30 years in south Florida after risking their lives in freezing temperatures to reach the United States.

"We planned it so we would arrive here by the end of the year," said Orlando Gil Reyes. "I haven't seen a Christmas tree in 30 years."

The men rowed a homemade raft from Cuba to Miami before the Coast Guard requested Saturday that the German freighter Santa Paula reverse its direction and pick up the forlorn raft.

Coast Guard officials said the five men probably would not have made it to south Florida for Christmas if they had been left at sea to the mercy of the cold front that has brought freezing temperatures to the usually balmy state.

"They would have been in for a nasty ride and an awful lot of cold," said Senior Chief Petty Officer Lou Parris.

The other three rafters were Armando Agustin Arrendondo Rodriguez, 23; Carlos Acosta Valdes, 33; and Eduardo Acosta Echavarriz, 30. The six men will be released from detention into the care of social service agencies.

Hugo wallaped wildlife

ATLANTA — Some of the nation's most endangered wildlife — including the American bald eagle — was dealt a severe blow by Hurricane Hugo, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says.

The government agency said preliminary results of its study in South Carolina and Puerto Rico show population losses "for some of our most endangered birds — the Puerto Rican parrot, the plain pigeon, yellow-shouldered blackbird, red-cockaded woodpecker and the bald eagle."

"The effects of the storm on some species, such as the red wolf, are not fully known," it said.

Eighteen of 19 known nesting territories between South Carolina's Cooper River and Winyah Bay have lost bald eagle nest trees. Aerial surveys show "that 11 of 19 territories have no eagles at all." Three territories still have birds, the service said, but the eagles are not nesting.

Population losses of the red-cockaded woodpecker in the Francis Marion National Forest were estimated to be as high as 75 percent with only three of 465 woodpecker sites that were surveyed still intact. Before the September hurricane which caused damage in the billions of dollars, the forest hosted 18 to 20 percent of the woodpeckers known to exist.

"This woodpecker population was the only one demonstrating growth in the last eight years," the service said. "Because most of the nesting habitats have been severely damaged or destroyed, high mortality rates are expected among the remaining birds."

Government biologists are attempting to save the birds by installing artificial nest cavities in suitable trees and by salvaging downed trees.

Fully half of the wild parrot population in Puerto Rico appears to have been wiped out by the killer hurricane. If this proves to be true, "it means that the parrot may be on the verge of extinction in the wild," the service reported.

Although all of the 124 plain pigeons in a captive population at the University of Puerto Rico survived the hurricane, 80 contracted a disease that may have been caused by bacteria in stagnant flood water. Three of the birds died, but the remainder are expected to recover, according to wildlife officials.

Rescue celebrated by pilot

TAMPA — A 27-year-old Tampa man celebrated Christmas with some extra excitement Monday following his rescue from the Atlantic Ocean after his rented plane sank.

The single-engine plane piloted by Dale Nasworthy was 14 miles east of Fort Lauderdale on Christmas Eve when it lost power and began a slow descent into the ocean.

Nasworthy managed to land the plane on the water's surface and to escape the plane. Bubbling on 12-foot seas amid 35 mph winds, Nasworthy stayed afloat in an inflatable raft until the Coast Guard arrived.

"If it (the plane) had flipped over, I could have had trouble," said Nasworthy.

Lt. Robin Kane of the Coast Guard said the plane's 30-minute descent provided Nasworthy with critical time to contact help.

The aircraft mechanic, who was returning from Freeport in the Bahamas aboard the rented Mooney plane, said the craft, which was flying at 2,500 feet, suddenly lost power and began gliding at 100 feet per minute.

"I haven't the slightest idea why," he said, noting that the fuel pumps, carburetor and instrument panel appeared to be working normally.

After the plane began gliding downward, Nasworthy said he contacted the Fort Lauderdale airport only to be directed to Miami because he was still in Miami's air space. The FAA notified the Coast Guard.

Nasworthy's descent was noted by an Aero Coach charter plane that circled over his aircraft to make it easier for the Coast Guard to find the downed plane in the rough seas.

Kane said the pilot was hoisted from the raft into a helicopter as the Mooney plane sank.

"The Coast Guard did a fine job," said Nasworthy. "It's a shame losing that plane."

TALLAHASSEE — The LOTTO jackpot numbers for Saturday, Dec. 23 were 8, 15, 20, 30, 35, and 47.

- No one won the jackpot.
- There were 253 players who matched five of the six winning numbers to win $4,007.50 each.
- There were 12,124 players who matched four for $85 each.
- There were 230,879 players who matched three for $5 each.

Due to the Christmas holidays, lottery officials said there was no Cash-3 drawing Monday.

The daily number Sunday in the Florida Lottery CASH 3 game was 968.

Local legislator says 'gift' OK

By J. BAKER SANFORD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, says he did nothing wrong when he did not report attending a party paid for by lobbyists in 1988.

"I was the recipient of a plate of fried mullet, cheese grits, some oysters and maybe a couple of beers," Gardner said. "I don't take credit for what anyone else ate."

Documents released during a Public Service Commission investigation of a Penacola utility company showed the utility's lobbyist, Karl Henderson, paid more than $175,000 during 1987 and 1988 for gifts, trips and tickets for PSC officials and legislators.

A subsequent comparison of the documents with legislator's financial disclosure forms show at least 15 legislators failed to report trips and other gifts given to them from Henderson.

Among the lawmakers named in the documents were Gardner, whose district includes portions of north Seminole County, and Rep. Frank Stone, R-Casselberry. Henderson reported the gifts and other expenditures in company expense reports turned over to the state. Financial disclosure forms filed by Gardner and Stone did not report the gifts.

State law requires donations, gifts, and purchase of admission to dinners, barbecues, fish fries and similar functions in excess of $100 must be reported annually. Failure to report the contributions could result in a 90-day jail term and a $500 fine.

Stone could not be reached. The documents show he, Rep. Ron Johnson, D-Panama City and House Sergeant-at-Arms Wayne Westmark were treated to a Dec. 1988 hunting trip in Alabama by Henderson. The trip cost $1,388 and included hunting licenses and other fees. Henderson's reports show the trip was not reported in Stone's financial disclosure reports.

Gardner said he did not have to report the 1988 party attended by Henderson because he had little to do with it. Gardner said the "Mini Redneck Party" was sponsored each year by former Rep. Gene Hodges, D-Cedar Key.

Gardner said invitations in 1988 were sent bearing both Hodges and his own name, although he had nothing to do with the organization of the function, held in St. Marks before the April 1988 legislative session began.

"(Hodges) was on a subcommittee of a committee I chaired and I think he did it to be nice," Gardner said.

Gardner said he does not know how much the fish-fry party cost, although he said he was sure it was financed by tickets sold to lobbyists, a common practice in Tallahassee state functions. Gardner said he did nothing wrong by not reporting tickets bought by lobbyists and others to the fish fry.

"I didn't consider it a gift," Gardner said. "I am absolutely not concerned. I didn't do anything wrong."

Purse allegedly snatched, kids dumped

SANFORD — City police reported catching a robbery suspect who snatched a woman's purse and tossed the shopping cart that held her purse and her two children.

The 6-year-old and 8-month old baby were caught by a bystander as they fell from the cart at the Winn-Dixie, U.S. Highway 17-82, Sanford. Police charged Mike Levant, 31, of no address, with robbery and petty theft. The incident occurred at about 10:30 p.m. Friday and the suspect was caught nearby at the State Farmer's Market, police said.

Girlfriend reports burglary suspect

SANFORD — Sheriff's deputies report the girlfriend of a Sanford man told them she had seen items he had allegedly stolen Dec. 18 in a burglary to a house at 2704 Country Club Road, rural Sanford.

Deputies recovered some items, which included Christmas presents, and the victim reportedly identified them.

Reginald Wayne Killingsworth, 31, 1697 McCarthy Ave., was charged with burglary and grand theft in the case. He was arrested at the sheriff's office at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Victim confronts burglary suspect

CASSELBERRY — The victim of a burglary to 1827 Crossbeam Drive, Casselberry, reportedly confronted the man who entered that house through a bedroom door at about 6 a.m. Saturday.

Seminole County sheriff's deputy arrived to charge Michael Albert Moeblech, 22, 1933 Hewett Lane, Matland, with attempted burglary Saturday morning.

Two arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• Willie Charles Martin, 37, 109 Mohawk Drive, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 12 a.m. Saturday after his car was in an accident on State Road 434 near Longwood.

• Jay McClure, 32, 614 Palm Way, Sanford, was arrested at 2:29 a.m. Saturday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

Cocaine sale sends two to jail

SANFORD — Two men allegedly involved in the sale of $20 worth of crack cocaine to a City County Investigative Bureau agent at a Texico food store on Celery Avenue, Sanford, have been arrested.

Luther Martin Overstreet, 25, of 951 Dunbar St., Lake Monroe, is charged with sale of cocaine. Timothy Gerard Williams, 23, of 4681 Debee St., Lake Monroe, was charged with conspiracy to sell cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia. The arrests were made after the deal at 7:34 p.m. Wednesday.

Man accused of bribery

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly offered a Longwood policeman a bribe to not arrest him on a Tampa warrant had Longwood charges of bribery and resisting arrest without violence added against him.

Barry Denard Mutcherson, 22, of Tampa, who was arrested at 8:16 p.m. Friday, was the driver of a car police were investigating as suspicious outside Let's Rent America, on State Road 434, police said. They determined he had an outstanding warrant for tampering with a vending machine, and he also reportedly at first gave Longwood police a fake name.

Girlfriend reports battery

SANFORD — A woman told Sanford police her boyfriend hit her in the face and battered her at Cesar's Palace Motel, on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

That led to a charge of battery against Allen Stuart Gardner, 33, 303 Holly Ave., Sanford. He was arrested at the motel at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Police identified the victim as Dich-Leigh Cleveland, 20.

Two arrested after cocaine find

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Two occupants of a car stopped by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Jackson Street, rural Altamonte Springs, at about 2:40 a.m. Tuesday, were arrested after cocaine was reportedly found in their possession.

Charged with possession of cocaine are: Rex Paul Warden, 32, of 800 W. State Road 434, Longwood; and James Martin Freshman, 30.

Fire brings injury, investigation

MIDWAY — Seminole County sheriff's deputies report James Preston, 75, suffered second and third degree burns to his leg when his residence behind 2331 Sipes Ave., Midway, burned at about 7 p.m. Saturday.

Seminole County Deputy Fire Marshal Troy Strader told sheriff's deputies the fire appeared to have been caused by accident. Preston was hospitalized at Central Florida Regional Medical Center in Sanford.

lead. Duganino said. Rotations stopped yesterday, and most power has been restored, he said.

Cold weather also sent area homeless searching for a warm place to stay. Mother Belle Weaver of the Rescue Outreach Mission of Sanford said extra cots were set up in the shelter's dining room to accommodate about 70 homeless men and women who sought warmth overnight, in addition to other individuals and families who regularly stay at the shelter.

About 350 homeless men, women and children yesterday ate Christmas dinner at the Rescue Outreach Mission, 1701 W. 13th St. Six turkeys, six hams and an abundance of vegetables fed a crowd lined up waiting for seats, Weaver said.

Temperatures around Florida edged upward today after the devastating holiday freeze that left at least seven people dead and much of the state's citrus and vegetable crops damaged or destroyed.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service in Miami said temperatures should warm gradually through the remainder of the week.

"The temperatures are going to be warming up a little bit everywhere," said Paul Hebert, meteorologist in charge of the service's forecast office in Miami. "Basically, we're going to stay in the really cold air all the way until Thursday, at which time I think we will have a significant warm-up."

The cold snap that sent temperatures plummeting around the state over the three-day Christmas weekend claimed at least seven lives, including that of a 7-year-old infant who was abandoned by his parents for almost a day in an unheated south Florida apartment. (See detail on Page 2A)

In Broward County, two people died on Christmas trying to stay warm.

Shirley Gottschalk, 86, died of smoke inhalation from a fire caused by a gas heating unit, while Walter London, 65, was burned to death when his clothes caught fire from a lit gas stove.

The warming trend also came too late for many citrus and vegetable farmers around the state. Agricultural workers were expected to begin tallying the damage Tuesday.

Citrus industry observers estimated 40 percent of Florida's 130 million-box citrus crop was lost in the first two days of freezing temperatures, though actual losses will not be known for several weeks.

"We have significant fruit damage in most parts of the state," said Ernie Neff, spokesman for the 12,300 member Florida Citrus Mutual, a statewide organization of growers.

Crews were expected to begin picking fruit today, so that it can be shipped to juice processing plants before it rots.

However, many growers will have to wait days or weeks until

Protection against sinkholes requested

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A Harbour Isles resident has asked the city commission for protection against further depressions in her neighborhood, where sinkholes have opened up during the past month.

"I'm very concerned that someone is going to get hurt," Phyllis Turner, 382 Harbour Isle Way, said last week at the city commission meeting. "We feel that we are sitting on a time bomb out there."

Turner's concerns center around an eight-foot sinkhole on Autumn Brook Circle where a homeowner's driveway collapsed and a sinkhole on Lambert Lane measuring 14 feet by 15 feet across and eight feet deep.

City administrator Michael Abels told Turner the city is in contact daily with Jammal and Associates, Inc., soil engineers in Winter Park who regularly conduct sonar testing of the sinkholes, and the University of Central Florida

Sinkhole Institute, whose members monitor the depressions several times weekly.

Abels said the sinkholes are isolated pockets, rather than one large cavity beneath the subdivision, located off State Road 434 east of I-4. Residents in the area will have warning before further depressions develop, he said.

But Turner said three recent water line breaks on Lambert Lane have her worried that new depressions are opening.

"I think we are having our warnings now," she said.

Richard Kornbluh, city public works director, said Wednesday he was not aware of the water line breaks. Any such breaks would have had to occur within the homeowners' lines, he said.

Turner said homeowners are concerned not only for their safety, but they are worried about property values sinking with the earth.

"A lot of people out there want to leave, but they can't sell. They are stuck," she said.

the true extent of the damage is known.

The state's winter vegetable crop also took a beating. Farmers in Immokalee estimated that the cold had destroyed more than 90 percent of the area's tomatoes, peppers and other vegetables.

Drifting toward catastrophe

Every night, an estimated 1,500 fishing trawlers from the Taiwan and South Korea ply the Pacific with enormous nets 50 miles long that are left to drift, sweeping up all the sea life that blunders into them. The evidence of the resulting devastation — not only the destruction of commercial fisheries but also the destruction of the natural habitat and millions of seabirds killed every year — is now so overwhelming that nothing less than a complete international ban on the use of drift nets will do.

Halfway measures and efforts by individual countries to stop the killing have not been effective. Most of the major fishing nations of the Pacific already prohibit the nets in their own territorial waters. Some, like New Zealand, go further and refuse to allow the trawlers to refuel or unload their catches. In response, the trawlers have simply moved their operations into international waters and brought in cargo ships to take off their catches and oil tankers to keep the killing well-stocked.

At first the trawlers concentrated on taking salmon and steelhead trout, but lately they have shifted their attention to 2-year-old tuna. At this time of year they station themselves along the narrow feeding route the young tuna follow during their annual migration from the north. The apparent impact on the Pacific already prohibits the nets in their own territorial waters. Some, like New Zealand, go further and refuse to allow the trawlers to refuel or unload their catches. In response, the trawlers have simply moved their operations into international waters and brought in cargo ships to take off their catches and oil tankers to keep the killing well-stocked.

Last July, 15 island nations of the South Pacific joined in signing the Tarawa Declaration calling for a worldwide ban on drift nets. That demand has now been joined by the International Fisheries Conference representing the North Pacific. And the Bush administration recently introduced a proposed resolution in the United Nations to implement such a ban by 1992.

The three nations that use the nets still refuse to give them up. Spokesmen for Japan have been particularly vociferous in insisting that it won't accept any new restrictions until it has more evidence of the damage the nets are doing. But as one representative for the island of Tonga pointed out, by the time Japan completes its research, all the fish may be gone.

Children's lies gain credibility

Here is one last lesson of the 1980s: Some children will lie about anything. We always knew kids told unimportant lies, since we did too when we were young. But at some point many of us came to believe that fibbing stopped when children reported sexual abuse. Then, we thought, they faithfully told the truth. In part, we believed this because we wanted to hear about kids coming up with such awful stuff? But we also were secretly deferring to experts, a legion of child psychologists, social workers and other experts who insisted it was so. As the decade ends, their claim has been stripped to a hollow core, with accumulating evidence pointing toward disturbing conclusions. As more cases of actual abuse are reported, a growing percentage fail to stand up to investigative scrutiny; the vast majority of the decade's most sensational charges, involving sexual rituals, have proved either to be total fabrications or gross exaggerations. In a few serious cases of abuse, finally, the child protection system itself is flawed, with interview techniques often so amateurish that kids are frightened into confessing fantastic stories that they themselves actually reject.

The child protection system itself is flawed.

This latter phenomenon first surfaced in the McMartin Pre-school case in Manhattan Beach, Calif. When that case exploded into the news several years ago, it involved stories of incest, sacrifice, helicopter rides, trips to cemeteries, teachers dressed in witch's garb and assorted occultic rituals. Eight preschoolers were charged with a matter of months and seven defendants (five teachers and two parents) were convicted on animal sacrifice. But by the time the lawsuit led to U.S. history finally went to a jury some weeks ago, charges against five teachers and two parents had been dropped and the remaining case was so tainted by fraudulent evidence and a confusion of hysteria and cunning or opportunistic officials, that the final verdict never had been reached. It may be, will seem anticlimactic and unpenetrative. Glenn Stevens, a prosecutor who quit the case, after two years, calls the McMartin charges a hoax. "A complete and utter waste of money... 'investigative' only begins to scratch the surface." Now is the haunting of the McMartin case over in El Paso, Texas, two innocent women accused of ritual-style abuse received horrific sentences in 1986 — one of life plus 311 years — after a trial devoid of rudimentary fairness. In a court docketed some years later, their convictions were overturned. More recently, Colorado's most notorious child-abuse case began to crumble when a 5-year-old girl received a boy portion of his testimony against a former day-care worker in the small town of Alamosa. Lying was nothing new to that case, either, since from the outset several kids described occultic rituals involving torture and rape.

Not a speck of evidence ever buttressed these bizarre charges, and no parent ever looking for a misadventure, single debate in the tariff crisis — the collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan, Gary's protégé and friend, M. Danny Wall, was forced to resign as the nation's chief savings and loan regulator earlier this month, in part because he flubbed while Lincoln burned. Wall was Gary's hand-picked candidate for the chairmanship of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1987 at a time when the thrift industry needed an enforcer. In Wall, it got a friend.

The Banking Committee hearings were not kind to Wall. He is busy defending himself and his friend, while steering clear of the fact that Gonzalez came out smelling like a rose. (For the record, Gary denies that he has made derogatory statements about Gonzalez.)

Current, in the Ethics Committee is probing the infamous "Kesting Five" — the five senators who intervened on behalf of Lincoln Savings and Loan owner Charles Kesting in all, Kesting contributed more than $2 million to their re-election campaigns. They helped to hold federal regulators at bay. And last April, after two years of epic ineptness by those regulators, Lincoln Savings was shut down. It will cost the taxpayers $3 billion to bail out the federally insured debts of Lincoln. Gary isn't one of the Kesting Five. He says Kesting is "obnoxious" and Gary has not had anything to do with him since 1981. There are two people banned from Gary's office — Kesting and consumer advocate Ralph Nader. (Nader made a tactless remark about auto safety in relation to a car accident that killed Gary's first wife.)

But when it comes to Kesting's money, that's a different matter. The Gary Institute, a private banking think tank which Gary promotes, has accepted a generous endowment from Kesting. Gary wasn't personally on Kesting's gravy train, but he greased the tracks for the savings and loan industry by protecting Wall when he should have been fired. Gary also sponsored the deregulation legislation that let the industry run wild in the first place. Senior government officials told our associate Michael Binestets that Gary's surrogate son relationship with Wall inhibited them from speaking the truth made to Gary about Wall's misdeeds. In 1985 and 1986, when regulators were fighting to rein in the high-fliers, Gary refused to help. Pleas by officials to actively support regulations to curb rapid growth and speculative investments were ignored by Gary.

Last summer, during the House-Senate conference committee sessions working out the terms of the savings and loan bailout, Gary wanted precious time. He stalled the conference committee until he got a concession from Gonzalez — Wall would not have to submit to a reconfirmation hearing in the Senate.

We are what Europe made us

WASHINGTON — A document, just come to light, depicts the "intellectual and educational decay that has characterized the culture and institutions of the United States" where school curricula reflect "deep-seated pathologies of racial hatred" and "savage starvation" on all but the elite within "arrogant parvenu" and "cultural oppression" and "invisibility" and "marginality" and "dehumanization" and "genocide." "deliberately leads students to disrespect people who are different. There is an American educational policy" of destroying "the positive aspects and attitudes" of "white supremacy" and "white nationalism." America's "policy" of "sacrificing higher ideals on the altar of materialism" is grounded in the "Conservative, meritocratic, flawed document," good primarily for "articulating and aggregating the interests of the rich and powerful." Frauds of the Constitution is, according to this document, "vulgar and revolting" because the social system has "heaped undeserved rewards on a segment of the population while oppressing the majority." Now, where do you suppose this crude agitprop comes from? Some ransacked East German propaganda office? An old Stalinist text from Hungary or Czechoslovakia? No, from the New York state education department. It is a report recommending curriculum changes for public schools.

Welcome to the world of adversarial pedagogy. Lumpen leftism with its clanging jargon ("Eurocentric conceptualization and modality") has gone to earth in the education system.

New York's proposed reforms for correcting "underrepresentation" of certain government-approved minorities in curricula are nothing if not thorough: While "mathematics do not lend themselves" to "multicultural treatment," no topic is "culture-free" and by "omitting cultural references" from science and mathematics materials, "a subtle message is given that all science and mathematics originated within Europe culture."

Garn under fire about S&L debacle

WASHINGTON — Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, is saying some unflattering things about his colleague on the Senate Banking Committee, Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas. "Gonzales doesn't have a brain in his head," Garn railed to at least one insider.

Garn is steaming over the devastating hearings that Gonzalez conducted about the most explosive, single debate in the tariff crisis — the collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan. Garn's protégé and friend, M. Danny Wall, was forced to resign as the nation's chief savings and loan regulator earlier this month, in part because he flubbed while Lincoln burned. Superior Court Judge
OFVIDO — Douglas Gonzalez, Elementary School, 1500 Alameda Blvd., has named Gary Fisher as his teacher of the year.

Mr. Fisher is a third grade teacher and heads the school's committee for the annual award and the whole language curriculum. Being named teacher of the year at OVIDO means Fisher is eligible to win the county-wide teacher of the year award. The county honors will be named at the end of March by a panel of judges. Each school's teacher of the year is chosen by a poll taken of all teachers and faculty at the school.

School board will discuss priorities

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board is enjoying a short hiatus before beginning the new year with two work sessions on Friday, Jan. 5 starting at 8 a.m.

The first session will review a general discussion of the board's and the district's annual priorities. They will wrap up these goals set for 1990 and look over their goals for the next year.

Immediately following the 9 a.m. meeting, the board will discuss the district's comprehensive plan for 1990 through 1995, including budgeting, building and growth management. The board will not make any final decisions on the matter until next Tuesday, Jan. 9, 8 a.m. but will come to positions on these key planning matters.

The board meets at the school board headquarters at 1811 Magnolia Ave. in Sanford.

Superior Court Judge
OFVIDO — Douglas Gonzalez, Elementary School, 1500 Alameda Blvd., has named Gary Fisher as his teacher of the year.

Mr. Fisher is a third grade teacher and heads the school's committee for the annual award and the whole language curriculum. Being named teacher of the year at OVIDO means Fisher is eligible to win the county-wide teacher of the year award. The county honors will be named at the end of March by a panel of judges. Each school's teacher of the year is chosen by a poll taken of all teachers and faculty at the school.

"When we opened at 8," she said, "there were about 30 or 35 people waiting for us at the door."

She added that while there had been a steady flow of customers through the door, she expected the traffic would increase once the temperatures warmed things up outside.

"I think a lot of people are waiting until it's warmer before they do their Christmas shopping," she said. "There were about 30 or 35 people waiting for us at the door."

Mission

Just before Christmas, the first Christmas in their new home, the missionaries found themselves in a bit of a predicament. "I wasn't even sure if we'd have food, much less presents," she said.

The mission came to her aid again, donating a "huge basket" of non-perishable foods as well as some clothes and toys for the children.

"They've done so much for us," she said softly. "There wouldn't have been any Christmas without these people."

Fuel

Customers who called the fuel company this weekend heard a recording apologizing for the run on oil, caused when the Sanford area's only supplier closed for the holiday weekend.

The recording, still playing this morning, said oil would be available today.

'Mission accomplished' in Panama

By WILLIAM FENNELL
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — With the collapse of most organized resistance during the U.S. military invasion in Panama and the formation of a democratic government, President Bush is expected soon to pronounce "Mission accomplished."

The president, who celebrated Christmas with his family at Camp David, kept posted on the intervention in Panama, now in its seventh day, and on legal and diplomatic maneuverings to gain custody of Gen. Manuel Noriega, who was given refuge in the Vatican's Embassy in Panama City.

Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, returning Tuesday morning from a Christmas weekend visit to Panama, is expected to report to Bush later in the day.

Also on the international front, Bush granted diplomatic recognition to the new revolutionary government in Romania one hour after Romanian national television announced that hard-line communist President Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, had been executed by the army after a secret trial.

But a White House spokesman said the U.S. government regretted that the trial of Ceausescu did not take place "in an open and public fashion."

Bush was spending one more day at the presidential retreat in the Western Maryland mountains before heading for Texas, where he will remain until New Year's Day. Before his departure from Texas, the president plans to travel to two military hospitals in San Antonio to visit soldiers wounded in Panama.

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft flew to Camp David Monday to brief Bush on military operations in Panama and to apprise him on obstacles blocking the U.S. attempt to prosecute Noriega on drug trafficking charges.

Cheney told a news conference in Panama Monday that the U.S. military "did its job and ran him to the ground. At this point, the diplomats and the lawyers are working on the problem."

The United States appeared determined to keep Noriega on target now that he has been located, and U.S. troops have surrounded the Vatican Embassy in Panama City on a round-the-clock basis.

The Vatican, in its first formal statement on Noriega since the general sought refuge Sunday, said it was "highly unlikely" he would be turned over to the United States.

Sixteen killed in fire, 50 injured

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — Fire officials blamed the lack of sprinklers inside a 10-story retirement home for the deaths of 16 people in a Christmas Eve blast, and the building's owner said Monday, "We wish we'd put in sprinklers now."

At least 50 people were injured by the fire that erupted just after dusk on the first floor of the John Sevier Center as the elderly residents of the apartment house gathered with loved ones to celebrate the holiday.

Black smoke poured up the elevator shaft throughout the 60-year-old brick building, and the residents, many using walkers, canes or crutches, crowded the stairwells to escape, officials said.

Ronald McDavid, one of the center's 145 residents, said he helped three friends flee through smoke so thick "you couldn't see a hand in front of your face."

"It worried me that there weren't sprinkler systems," he said. "A lot of my friends didn't make it. They were elderly and crippled."

House fire kills five in Atlanta

ATLANTA — A propane fire raged through a home filled with Christmas visitors Sunday, killing at least five people and leaving another missing.

The Atlanta Fire Department reported that eight people escaped from the house in southwest Atlanta before flames engulfed the two-story wooden structure. One man fled the house and ran two blocks to a nearby fire station to get help.

Three of the victims were adults and two were children, although their ages were not known, a fire department spokesman said. The missing victim was believed to be a child, the spokesman said.

David Chamberlain, deputy chief of operations for the fire department, said the house was filled with at least 14 people, and firefighters were investigating reports that up to 10 people were at the home, many of them visiting for the Christmas holidays.

Chamberlain said the occupants apparently were asleep when the fire began around 5:30 a.m.

Worker dies in tanks explosion

BATON ROUGE, La. — Firefighters battled to extinguish the burning remains of several Exxon Co. fuel storage tanks that exploded, killing one worker, injuring five others and shattering windows a mile away.

The initial blast Sunday and several smaller explosions that followed spread a column of thick, black smoke several miles long, and civil defense officials said the explosion was felt by residents as far as 50 miles away.

Police said an unidentified contract worker last seen in a pickup truck near the site of the explosion was killed in the blast, said Jan Bernard, assistant chief administrator with the mayor's office.

Bombed judge released from hospital

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A county judge injured in a bomb attack at his home has been discharged from a western Maryland hospital and has headed for an undisclosed location under tight security, officials said Monday.

"We do not know where the judge went," said Sheran White, a spokeswoman for Washington County Hospital. "He said he would grant no interviews, at least today."

Judge John Corderman, 47, was allowed to leave the hospital about 12:45 p.m. EST, after Dr. Bruce Edwards determined there were no expected complications following earlier surgery, White said.

The judge had surgery to remove shrapnel imbedded in his abdomen when the bomb exploded in his lap Friday. He also lost part of a finger and suffered damage to his ears.

Police and postal inspectors spent Christmas Eve reviewing evidence in the bomb attack, sifting through old court cases to see if a criminal he sentenced might have held a grudge.

Former New Orleans mayor dies

NEW ORLEANS — Former Mayor Ernest "Dutch" Morial, the city's first black chief executive, died early Sunday of a heart attack following an asthma attack aggravated by cold weather, authorities said. He was 60.

Dr. Joseph Allain, Morial's personal physician of 15 years, said the former city leader died of cardiac arrest at 12:50 a.m. in Mercy Hospital.

"He had bad asthma and the cold weather precipitated a bad asthma attack, resulting in coronary arrest," Orleans Parish Coroner Frank Minyard said.

Ousted Romanian president and wife reported executed

By WILLIAM FENNELL
United Press International

BUCHAREST, Romania — Romanian television, which reported the executions of deposed communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, today broadcast a video of the deposed couple sitting calmly together following their capture.

The anonymous pictures of the couple showed them being escorted from an armored personnel carrier into a room where they sat at a desk, while a commentator read a statement to the nation outlining the verdict against them.

It was not clear when the footage was taken, but the broadcast early today marked the first confirmation of reports the deposed president and his wife had been apprehended. No pictures verifying the reported executions were shown.

The announcement of the Christmas executions capped a fourth day in which secret police forces loyal to Ceausescu waged sporadic street battles in Bucharest against army troops allied with civilians backing the new provisional government.

Within an hour of the announced executions, the United States recognized the new Romanian government and established diplomatic relations with the provisional leaders, the White House said.

But a White House spokesman said the U.S. government regretted the trial of Ceausescu did not take place "in an open and public fashion."

Nicolae and Elena Ceausescu reportedly were captured Saturday in the labyrinth of secret police tunnels beneath the capital. Their son, Nicu, had been seized Friday and their daughter, Zoja, was captured Sunday. Their fates were not immediately known.

'Jason's' mask found

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The hockey mask used in the original "Friday the 13th" movie disappeared this week, but police say they were able to recover the famous prop on an anonymous tip.

Baltimore film director John Waters said he obtained the mask as a gift for a friend, but that it was stolen off the porch of his Baltimore house when it was delivered Thursday.

The mask was the original worn by the homicidal killer known as "Jason" in the first of several "Friday the 13th" films.

Waters reported the theft to police, saying its value is "priceless."

A city police officer received an anonymous call Saturday, with explicit instructions about where the mask could be found. Postal authorities recovered the mask from a mailbox.

Zsa Zsa picked top 'whiner'

CLIO, Mich. — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor, who turned a traffic court case into an international media event, was named the "Most Recognizable Whiner of 1989." Gabor's election Monday was overwhelming, said Kevin Zaborney, founder of National Whiner's Day. He said the actress beat out NBC Today host Bryant Gumbel, who finished second. Former First Lady Nancy Reagan was third, followed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Tammy Bakker. "The biggest reason why she's No. 1 is because she whined how she was wronged by the court and others," Zaborney said. "This was seen by many as a selfish way for her to get free publicity for herself." Gabor was convicted of battery for slapping an officer after he pulled over her $225,000 Rolls-Royce for having expired license tags. Zaborney said Gumbel was just behind Gabor for whining in an internal memo that weatherman Willard Scott was detracting from the seriousness of the Today show when he read birthday greetings to 100-year-old people. Mrs. Reagan made the list, he said, because "the tone of her autobiographical book was very whiny." Helms was fourth because of his whining in Congress, Zaborney said. Bakker was nominated for her continued whining about how she and her husband have been mistreated, Zaborney said.

G.I. Joe won't join Soviet army

United Press International
 PAWTUCKET, R.I. — Hasbro Inc., the world's largest toymaker, will leave G.I. Joe at home when it becomes the first Western business to mass market toys in the Soviet Union. The toy giant will start selling 30,000 of its dolls next week at Detaski Mir and GUM, two Moscow department stores. The company plans to introduce more products in 1990, including the Transformers, My Little Pony dolls and some Milton Bradley board games translated into Russian. But, perhaps because there has been military tension between the superpowers for so long, the toy store detente apparently does not extend to toy soldiers. Hasbro says its Soviet marketing plans do not include the firm's popular G.I. Joe line of U.S. troops. "At this stage, we think it's not quite right," said Alan E. Murin, Hasbro vice president for international marketing.

IN BRIEF

Spud has career day for Hawks

ATLANTA — Spud Webb proved ready when Doc Rivers went out with a bad back. Webb scored a career-high 36 points and handed out 13 assists to lead the Atlanta Hawks to a 115-104 Christmas Day victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"With Doc hurt, I knew I would have to step up and play," said Webb. "Last year, with Reggie (Thurmon) here, I was the odd man out. Now that he's gone, I'm getting more of a chance to contribute. It's nice to be in that position."

The Hawks, 16-9 moved into a tie with the Chicago Bulls in the Central Division. Cleveland, which lost its third in a row, fell to 10-14.

Webb, a 5-foot-7 guard, scored 10 points in the first and third quarters and finished by hitting 12 of 14 shots from the field.

"I'm really proud of the guys," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said. "It was a real team victory, and Spud did an outstanding job."

Moese Malone scored 24 points for the Hawks, including 11 in the fourth quarter when Atlanta took command. He also pulled down 13 rebounds.

Pizza Hut in spotlight

Kicking in the rain

It may not have been what Gene Kelly had in mind, but 16 girls' soccer teams battled the elements last week in the Burger King Classic. This week, the boys are hoping for better conditions as they play in the Pizza Hut Invitational.

By TOMMY BOGGS
Herald Sports Editor

After the high school girls' soccer teams from Seminole County braved rain and cold in the Burger King Classic last week, the boys hope to have better conditions for the Pizza Hut Invitational this week.

Last Wednesday and Friday, the girls played in worsening conditions before severe cold forced the cancellation of the three of Saturday's games and the rescheduling of the championship and third-place games for Jan. 2.

Should the weather forecast for today holds, the boys will certainly start with dryer, if not warmer conditions. Eight first-round games are on tap for today at Boone and Bishop Moore high schools in Orlando.

At Bishop Moore, play begins at 11 a.m. with Oviedo facing Winter Park. Clearwater Central Catholic, the defending Class 2A state champion, will meet defending Class 4A state champ Miami-Sunset at 1 p.m. before Lyman takes on defending Class 3A champ Boca Raton-Pope John Paul II. Bishop Moore will play Class 4A runner-up Tampa-Gaither at 5 p.m.

Meanwhile, at Boone, action starts at noon with Evans battling Miami-Killian. Lake Howell will play Tallahassee-Leon at 2 p.m. with Lake Brantley tangling with Tampa-Leto at 4 p.m. Lake Mary and Boone will cap the day's schedule at 6 p.m.

Going into the tournament, the undefeated Lyman Greyhounds would have to be considered Seminole County's best chance at bringing home the championship. The Lake Mary Rams are the defending tournament champion, having beaten Clearwater Central Catholic 2-1 on penalty kicks in last year's finale.

"It's going to be a good test for us," said Lyman head coach Ray Sandidge, whose team carries a 10-0 record into this afternoon's game against Pope John Paul II.

"We have a tough draw. We play the defending 3A champion. If we win, we may have to play the 4A runner-up. And to get to the finals, we'll play either the 2A or 4A champion. And while you can't compare teams between years, they'll have some players left over and that winning attitude."

As a matter of fact, it's that winning attitude that Sandidge hopes this tournament will reinforce in his team and help carry the Greyhounds into the state tournament.

"It's a good gauge to find out exactly where you're really at," said Sandidge. "Playing this kind of competition, you find out what your strengths and weaknesses are."

"We seem to play better when we face tougher teams. The guys were really fired up when they played Merritt Island when they were undefeated. Then we turned around and played one of our worst games against one of the weaker teams on our schedule (Spruce Creek). Hopefully, the guys will stand up and play their best."

Another reason Sandidge is hoping his team does well is the success enjoyed by past Pizza Hut champions. Last year, for example, Lake Mary made it all the way to the quarterfinals in the state tournament.

"In the history of the Pizza Hut, the teams that have made the finals have also done well in the state tournament," said Sandidge.

YOUTH BASEBALL

West Seminole sets registration

West Seminole Pony Baseball will have its final registration for the spring on Jan. 6 and 13 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the West Seminole complex off of State Road 436.

Players between the ages of 5 and 18 are eligible to participate. Birth certificates will be required.

The registration fee is $80 for the first child in each family and $50 for families with additional children. For more information call 862-2288.

Also, West Seminole is taking applications for umpiring positions for their spring leagues. Call Bob Jones at 860-0371 for more information.

Gronos helps Gray beat Blue

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Vanderbilt's John Gronos scored on a 1-yard run and threw a 48-yard touchdown pass to Wade Forest's Ricky Proehl Monday, leading the Gray to a 28-10 victory over the Blue in the 52nd annual Blue Gray Game.

Gronos completed 13 of 19 passes for 163 yards in the Christmas Day All-Star game for seniors. The other Gray quarterback, Neil O'Donnell of Maryland, was 11 of 20 for 167 yards and threw a touchdown pass to Mississippi State's Jesse Anderson.

Proehl caught five passes for 150 yards, including a 65-yarder that set up a score in the third quarter.

The nation's all-time leading rusher, Johnny Bailey of Texas A&I, was held to 34 yards on nine attempts.

Tuba's David Fucos kicked a 40-yard field goal with 11:21 left in the first quarter to put the Blue up 3-0. The Blue went ahead 10-0 with 1:35 left in the quarter on a 3-yard run by Oklahoma's Leon Furry.

Anderson a Giant bargain

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — If Otis Anderson could take a hint, he would have retired rather than come back for a 11th NFL season in 1989.

Anderson, who turned 32 in November, was left unprotected by the New York Giants during Plan B free agency last winter. No other teams were interested in him and the Giants re-signed him only after cutting his salary from $450,000 in 1988 to $250,000.

Anderson had already done just about everything an NFL running back can do. A first-round draft pick out of Miami in 1980, he rushed for 1,000 yards five times with the Cardinals, made the Pro Bowl twice, ranked 11th on the NFL career rushing list and scored a touchdown late in the Giants' Super Bowl XXI triumph three years ago.

But he had only 91 carries since joining the Giants in mid-season 1986 and never started a game for New York.

Vikings, Steelers gain playoff berths

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — Wade Wilson threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to receiver tight end Brent Newberry with 4:17 remaining Monday night to lead Minnesota to a 29-21 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals and give the Vikings their first NFC Central Division title since 1980.

The loss knocked the Bengals, 8-8, out of the playoffs. Pittsburgh gained the other AFC wild-card slot and will play at Houston next Sunday.

Minnesota, 10-6, finished tied with Green Bay, but won the title based on a better division record. The Vikings will have one week off before their first playoff opponent is decided.

The Bengals closed to within 22-21 before assisting the Vikings' final touchdown with three penalties. Cincinnati's Eric Thomas was called for roughing Hassan Jones after a 15-yard catch.

Then Bengals cornerback Lewis Billups was assessed a holding penalty and unsportsmanlike conduct call which gave Minnesota a first-and-goal at the Cincinnati 7.

After three running plays took the Vikings to the Bengals 1, Minnesota called time out. On fourth down, Wilson hit Newberry who made a diving catch in the right corner of the end zone.

Wilson finished with 19 of 45 for 303 yards and two TDs. Cincinnati's Boomer Eason was 31 of 84 for 367 yards, three TDs and three interceptions.

Viking defensive end Chris Dolesman had 3 1/2 sacks to give him the NFL title with 20 1/2 for the season.

The Bengals had pulled within 22-21 after Eason's third TD pass, an 18-yarder to Craig Taylor with 8:40 left. Eason had kept the drive alive with an 18-yard pass to Tim McGee on a third-and-15 from the Cincinnati 44. The TD toss came one play after Eason was sacked by Dolesman.

MSU's Ezor has best day in final game

United Press International

HONOLULU — Michigan State's Blake Ezor wanted his final college game to be his best and the Spartans' 33-13 Aloha Bowl victory over 19th-rated Hawaii on Christmas Day turned out to be just that.

"It was on my mind the whole game. I kept thinking I know I'll never have another college first quarter, second quarter, and all the way down," he said.

The senior tailback was probably too busy to concentrate on the movement of the clock, he carried the ball 41 times for 179 yards, both Aloha Bowl records, and scored three touchdowns.

"I kept thinking he may take me out, play it (each play) like it is your last one," Ezor said. He need not have worried, since he got the ball on all but 20 of Michigan State's running plays.

Ezor ran to the inside and to the outside scoring on a three-yard run around the left end, a two-yard plunge on the right side, and a 26-yard cutback scamper in which he made several Hawaii defenders miss tackles.

His three touchdowns, raised his season total to 19, a Michigan State record.

The Spartans ended the season at 8-4, while Hawaii finished at 9-3-1.

Hawaii's defense was ready early, stopping the Spartans on three plays in the their first possession. A fumble on the punt return gave the ball back to Michigan State, but Hawaii forced them to punt again.

"After two bad series, they had a lot of momentum. After that, we just kicked ourselves and took the ball down on the next drive and scored," said quarterback Dan Enos.

They took advantage of four other Hawaii turnovers before intermission to score 19 unanswered points.

"We haven't been a great team in terms of not turning the ball over, but we are a fairly good team. You turn it over that many times and it is difficult to win. I am disappointed because our guys hung in there through all the adversity," said a disappointed Hawaii coach Bob Wagner.

Hawaii came back in the second half and took the opening drive 74 yards for a touchdown. After an exchange of interceptions, Michigan State took the ball 67 yards to make it 26-6.

Hawaii made it 28-13 when Garrett Gabriel threw his second touchdown pass of the afternoon, a 23-yarder to Dane McArthur.

Ezor then closed the book by capping a 48-yard drive with his 26-yard scoring scamper.

Tagliabue's brother shot in Romania

United Press International

BUCHAREST, Romania — John Tagliabue, a New York Times reporter and a brother of NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue, was shot in the back and listed in stable condition during fighting in the western part of the country.

John Tagliabue and John Danasewski of The Associated Press Warsaw bureau were among four journalists wounded in separate incidents in or near the western city of Timisoara Sunday, officials said.

Danny Huwe, 42, a Belgian television journalist, was killed Monday outside the capital.

New York Times officials said Tagliabue was shot once in the lower back by a sniper shortly after he, two other reporters and a photographer entered western Romania by car. It was not clear which side the sniper was on.

"We know that he was wounded, that it is not life-threatening," Times deputy foreign editor Michael Kaufman said. "We are hoping to get him out as soon as possible."

Tagliabue and Danasewski were taken by ambulance to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, and their wives were on their way there, officials said.

Timisoara is where Romania's anti-government uprising erupted last week and has been the scene of some of the bloodiest massacres.

Former Yankee manager Martin killed in car crash

Billy Martin

United Press International

FENTON, N.Y. — Billy Martin, the brawling, combative manager who was hired and fired five times by the New York Yankees, was killed in a car accident Christmas Day on any icy road near his upstate New York home. He was 61.

Martin was a passenger in a light pickup truck driven by a friend at about 5:45 p.m. EST. The truck driver, William Reedy of Detroit, was charged with drunken driving.

The truck skidded 300 yards down an icy road into a ditch near Martin's horse farm, 6 miles north of Binghamton, said Mike Doll, a spokesman for Wilson Memorial Hospital.

The Broome County sheriff's office said the 1989 four-wheel drive Ford struck a concrete culvert underneath the driveway to Martin's home.

"It's like losing part of my own family," Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said in a statement from Tampa, Fla. "It was just with him last Wednesday when he came down to entertain 2,000 underprivileged kids in Tampa."

Martin was currently on the Yankees payroll as a special adviser and was expected to work closely with Manager Bucky Dent next season.

Martin arrived by ambulance at Wilson Hospital in Johnson City at 8:33 p.m. and rescue workers administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation. He was pronounced dead at 8:56 p.m.

Martin's wife, Jill, was at the hospital when Martin died. An autopsy is scheduled for Tuesday.

"It's been very frigid and some of the back roads are still snow covered," Doll said. "We know he suffered severe internal injuries and a possible brain injury."

Reedy, a Detroit saloon owner, was Martin's friend for more than 20 years, as in serious condition with a possible broken hip, broken ribs and cuts and bruises, but was expected to survive.

Martin had a history of alcohol trouble. Broome County Sheriff Anthony Ruffo said Reedy was charged with drunken driving. He said he did not know the alcohol level from the hospital's blood test. Reedy will be arraigned Jan. 4 in Fenton.

Players, families give outstanding efforts in cold, wet Burger King

TONY DeGROSS

Sometimes you almost give up. Family support, especially from parents, is important to the success of high school athletes, not in terms of wins and losses, but in the positive reinforcement of a constructive activity like sports. By being supportive, you tell your children that you consider them and what they do important.

And it's not always easy. Professional and personal responsibilities sometimes get in the way. There are days or nights during a particularly long week that it would be easier to sit at home and relax rather than go out in a drafty gym or on cold concrete bleachers.

Still, you do it. I see you at the games and, understanding the sacrifices that sometimes must be made, applaud your involvement. But there are times when it seems that you manage to go above and beyond the call of duty.

Last week was a perfect example. The Burger King Classic girls' soccer tournament was played at Lyman and Lake Mary high schools in weather that could be safely described as a nightmare of the Florida Department of Tourism.

Cold, wind and rain, in all their unpleasant combinations (even sightings of snow were reported), turned one of the premier high school soccer events into a test of endurance and commitment.

Yet, in the rain, in the cold, in the gathering gloom of night, when a snar person would be battling mobs at the mall for that last Christmas present, parents, siblings, friends and soccer fans gathered to watch the girls have at it.

Maybe amazing isn't quite strong enough. Rain gear and heavy jackets, rain coats and thermoses full of hot coffee, tea or cocoa were the required materials for getting through the Burger King Classic this year. Enjoying it was almost out of the question — surviving was all that mattered.

Yet you sat it out, providing muffled but inspiring support. It takes a special person to sit through these kind of conditions.

And the players — it was tough enough trying to walk across that field, never mind running full speed in shorts and short sleeves, pushing a soccer ball that would alternately roll, slip in the water or get bogged down in the mud.

It was sight to behold, players on the sidelines huddled under anything warm and/or dry that they could get their hands on while their teammates aloofed around on fields that looked like they had been the site of several tractor pulls.

Surprisingly, the quality of play didn't suffer. Those who braved the elements saw some top-notch play from some of the state's best teams and players. It's almost a shame that the championship and third-place games had to be rescheduled for next Monday due to the cold weather.

Regardless of who wins (and the coaches are pretty much in agreement that any of the final four teams could just as easily finish fourth as first), this year's Burger King has provided us with some special moments. If nothing more than to see the loving support of the girls by their friends and families.

All-tourney pick Winkler lifts Orangewood Rams

From staff reports

DAYTONA BEACH — Senior center Chris Winkler scored eight of his 12 points in the second quarter as the Orangewood Christian Rams defeated Crescent City 55-47 in the third place game of the Warner Christmas Tournament at Daytona Beach-Warner Christian School.

Winkler (6-5) also had 17 rebounds and three blocked shots against Crescent City. Later, he was named to the all-tournament team.

The Rams opened a 14-11 lead after one quarter, then outscored Crescent City 18-8 in the second quarter to take a 32-19 lead to halftime. Crescent City tried to rally in the second half, trimming two points off the lead during the third quarter and three in the fourth, but it wasn't enough.

One of the reasons was Colby Arrow, who converted five of six Steinbrenner assumed soap opera proportions. But through it all, the club owner retained a lasting affection for his feisty manager.

"He's going to be awfully hard to replace," Steinbrenner said. "There's only one Billy Martin."

Martin's rambunctious style became part of New York sports legend. As a player, he was quick to use his fists. As manager, his stormy relations extended to owners, players, umpires and reporters.

"This makes me sick to my stomach," said Cincinnati Manager Lou Piniella, who preceded and succeeded Martin as Yankees manager. "You cannot over think of Billy as anything else but alive. I am totally upset, totally shocked."

In one outburst that led to a 1978 dismissal, Martin referred to slugger Reggie Jackson as a "born liar" and to the principal owner as "convicted," in reference to Steinbrenner's conviction for illegal political campaign contributions.

In the incident leading to his last managerial dismissal June 23, 1986, Martin was found slumped outside a Texas tobacco bar with his car badly garbled.

Alfred Manuel Martin was born May 16, 1928, in Berkeley, Calif., and grew up in depression poverty. He went on to play in the majors from 1950 through 1961 and had a .257 lifetime batting average. A second baseman, he played in 100 or more games in only seven seasons and appeared in one

Readers recall past holidays

Editor's Note: These are a few of the responses we received for an "Old-Fashioned Christmas," included are the writings of students from Lakeview Middle School.

Every Christmas needs the basic ingredients of: one turkey, mashed potatoes, lots of gravy, candy, wrapping paper all over the floor, and the smell of a Christmas tree in the background. What's really great is to have bunches of kids around and new toys all over the place — the kind that really work!

To me, though, growing up meant getting old enough to attend the Christmas Eve mass at Holy Cross every year. Wow! This was the magic of Christmas and a true joy of the Christ Child and soprano singing like angels. The glow of the church mixed with the warmth of the glory of those Christmas carols would make your heart sing. I am sure that this scenario is true of churches everywhere. It seems that with the bustle and bustle of Christmas comes Christmas Eve — finally a time to sit, be quiet, and marvel at the wonder of a tiny baby in a manger. God asks each one of us — will you have room at the inn — will you find a place in your heart for my Son?

My most memorable Christmas was eight years ago. I was only four. I woke up on Christmas Eve. I opened all my presents in 15 minutes. My mother woke up and hollered at me. She told me I was supposed to wait until Christmas. But that night, mom got me more presents. Christmas was twice as good.

The following is an account of the most perfect Christmas I ever had.

First we decorated the outside of the house. There were big colored lights all around the outside of the windows and everywhere else. These lights gave the house a gingerbread look. The bushes were draped in small, colored, flashing lights.

Then we went inside. The tree was decorated in the family room. Pine boughs and candles were in the windows and garlands were wrapped around the banister.

Now for the family. Everyone on my mother's side of the family was there. This includes Wendy, Hank, Ely, Chad, Tom, Dan, Aunt Diane, Uncle Henry, Kiar, David, Andrew, Aunt Susie, Uncle Andrew, Christensen, and Gramma and Grampa Harsh. On my dad's side of the family there is my Gramma Mullins.

This was my idea of a perfect Christmas.

Lend a Hand

Christmas carolers, despite the frigid outdoors,
Bells ringing with Christmas cheer.

Santa's sleigh gliding through the air on invisible runners.
Excited ringing of the cash registers.

Delicate pine trees with fallen pine needles.
Curia of steam rising from the warmth of a cozy home.

Brisk wind whipping the outside world.
Deserted people alone.
No family to lend a hand.
Missing the joy of a Christmas spirit.

Afraid of what trials tomorrow may bring.
It cannot be a season to be jolly if we all cannot lend a helping hand.

Deidre Michels
8th grade

More than what was under the tree, Christmas meant being together as a family. As I glance back at my childhood, I can remember the warm and affectionate times my family shared together.

In particular, I remember how grandmother helped create these memories by getting grandfather and me involved in helping her prepare the fruitcake. As we scurried around the tiny kitchen, which had barely enough room for a table, grandfather whistled his usual "Amazing Grace" as we worked together.

Grandmother needed all the colored pineapples, citron, nuts and cherries, along with the dry ingredients like the flour and sugar put in front of her to measure out. Because Grandmother's arthritis was so bad in her knees, we were her "legs" while she sat at this small table dicing the mixed fruit.

She had mounds of it chopped up in neat stacks around the large bowl she used to mix everything in. Even though I sampled all of it, the cherries were the best. How was I to know that those big, fat perfectly-formed cherries she'd put aside were the ones she would use to decorate the top? She had to have been counting them because she always knew when one was missing.

While we three played an essential part in making the fruitcake, the part that I didn't want to do was to crack those stubborn pecans. Grandmother needed so many of them. Even after working diligently for hours, there were still more to crack.

I liked slipping away from the crowded, hot kitchen to the cool porch to do this challenging task. I can remember my dear grandmother hollering from the kitchen to hurry up with those nuts because she needed them for the fruitcake. To do it quickly and accurately was difficult for an 8 year old with little coordination in her hands.

Sometimes, my grandfather would help me but because his eyes were bad, I had to watch what he put into my bowl. The nice part about him helping me was that no one ever knew for sure whose piece of shell it was if they should chomp down and find this bitter part of the nut. Everyone would think it was him because he was nearly blind. They'd excuse him too, but certainly not me. Because I was so slow, I needed his help or the fruitcake would not be ready on time for Christmas.

These memories haven't faded as I've grown older. Looking back has kept them alive for me, even though those times can never be shared again in the same way. Grandfather is gone now. Grandmother still is making the fruitcakes but she buys the nuts already shelled.

I wonder if Grandmother saw the delight in my eyes when she knew where the missing cherries had gone. Maybe that's why she never acted like she was angry. I've seen the same look in my children's eyes as I've kept this annual tradition alive. As I've watched the little fingers of my little ones scramble through the nutcracking for perfection, I'll patiently wait till they finish. Grandfather's not here to help.

Guns thought unloaded can kill

DEAR ABBY: That was very sound advice you gave to "In the Sights in Syracuse," the woman whose neighbor mounted a Civil War cannon in his front yard — pointed directly at her front door. (You told her to call her local police department, which would promptly send someone from the firearms department to examine the cannon and make sure it wasn't loaded.)

This brought to mind the tragic death of Russ Columbo, a popular singer and bandleader of the early '30s. Columbo was visiting a friend who, intending to light a cigarette, struck a match on the barrel of an antique dueling pistol that was hanging on the wall. The match flame somehow set off an ancient, long-forgotten charge still in the pistol. The bullet that was fired ricocheted off a table and struck Columbo in the forehead, killing him instantly.

Cryosurgery needed to freeze abnormal cells

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently, I had cryosurgery on my cervix for mild dysplasia. No growth was detected, but my doctor says the dysplasia has returned, and he says I now need another. Why do I need surgery for a condition that is harmless and may never worsen? Can I wait out this condition and see what happens?

DEAR READER: When a woman develops abnormal cells on her cervix, the round muscular opening of the uterus, they can be identified in a Pap test — a routine scraping of the cervix. Although such cells may not be malignant, they do not look normal (dysplasia).

In this situation, gynecologists worry that, unless the cells are destroyed, they may eventually turn into cancer. Hence, the first step in treating cervical dysplasia is cryosurgery, a simple method of killing the abnormal cells by freezing them.

If, after cryosurgery, the dysplasia remains (or returns), most doctors recommend conization, a technique by which the surgeon removes the abnormal cells, along with a small cone-shaped portion of the normal cervix. This gets rid of the dysplasia, as well as enabling the doctor to determine if the underlying cells, deep in the cervix, are normal.

Your doctor advised a conization because the dysplasia persisted, and he wants to remove it in order to spare you future problems from possible malignancy in the cervix. Follow his advice. In particular, after this relatively simple procedure, you will require close medical supervision for several months to make sure the dysplasia doesn't return.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections and Disorders."

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are your views about vitamin B-12 nasal gel sprays? Are they safe to use?

DEAR READER: Intranasal vitamin B-12 gel spray is marketed under the trade name "Ezer-B." It is an alternative to vitamin B-12 injections for people who have a vitamin B-12 deficiency or cannot absorb adequate amounts of the vitamin from their diets. It does not require a prescription and, to my knowledge, is safe to use. However, I don't recommend this product, unless patients have a vitamin deficiency, and the medicine is used with a doctor's approval.

Preserving communication so that you can take enough tricks to set the contract is part of good defense. It is just as important to be aware of the times when you can disrupt the declarer's communications, causing a contract to fail. East won the ace of spades and promptly returned a spade. South won the king and played the nine of diamonds. East won the queen and returned a club. Declarer won the ace and played another diamond. East took the ace but declarer had the rest of the tricks. Was there something better that could have been done? After South's one-trump opening, East knows that his partner has little in high cards. It is unlikely that the spade lead is from a suit that will quickly take tricks to damage declarer. Instead East should plan to 'deprive' declarer of needed diamond tricks. He can do this by eliminating communication to dummy in the heart suit. So East should lead back a heart at trick two. South will go up with the king and lead a diamond. East takes the diamond and plays a second heart. East then ducks the next diamond play, and declarer is left with but eight tricks, one short of the contract. Usually it is right to attack declarer's stoppers in your suit when defending against no-trump contracts. Here it was right to attack dummy's A-Q of hearts so that declarer could never enjoy the long diamond tricks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 27, 1989

In the year ahead you'll do well working with others, but things may not go so smoothly where pure partnerships are concerned. Be thoughtful regarding your alliances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your judgment is reasonably good today regarding matters that affect you singularly. However, when you try to extend your thinking to blanket others, this might not be true. Capricorn, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You tend to count on a little more than you have coming today. This is not an especially smart approach, because you'll be severely disappointed when you don't get all for which you hoped.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't wear out your welcome if you're invited to a social affair at a friend's place today. If you were one of the early arrivals, try to be one of the first to leave.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone upon whom you have to rely today might not be there when needed. The moral of the story: count on the only one you can — yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you may get involved in an intense discussion with a person who feels as strongly about an issue as you do. Unfortunately, you'll be on opposite sides of the line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Some financial pressure may be brought to bear on you today regarding an old obligation. If it isn't attended to satisfactorily, it would worsen.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even though you're apt to solicit advice from others today, their constructive suggestions aren't likely to impress you and you may go about doing things as you first intended.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It could prove wise to be attentive to health matters today. Don't overindulge or overexert yourself, and stay away from things you know you shouldn't eat or drink.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility you may have problems handling youngsters today, but not nearly as much as you'll have if you let some outsider butt in and really gum up the works.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your judgment may be a trifle questionable today regarding matters that pertain to your career. Think your moves through carefully, because impulsiveness could create problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your schemes in realistic perspective today. Although you may think in grandiose terms, you might overlook critical details that are small, but essential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be a bit more protective than usual of your possessions today, or else you might find a stranger taking a liking to something you're especially fond of yourself.

This is just an example of the great selection of remnants available every day at MacTavish Discount Carpet. We buy distress merchandise in large quantities at a great discount—then sell them fast and cheap.

MacTavish Discount Carpets: Family owned and managed

An invitation to visit a rapidly disappearing tradition — the family owned and managed small business, where you are greeted with a smile, and a handshake is as binding as a signed contract.

MacTavish Discount Carpets specializes in bargains consisting primarily of remnants, short rolls, damaged and discontinued items. These are not left-overs from our main business — these are our main business. We buy distress merchandise in large quantities at a great discount — then sell them fast and cheap.

Our downtown location is out of the high rent areas. We have forgone central heat and air conditioning to hold down our operating costs. Our store hours, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, make it unnecessary to hire additional sales help.

From now until February 1, no item in stock will cost more than $7.50 per square yard. Most will be substantially less. These items include plush carpets and vinyl remnants that retail as high as $29.95 per square yard. Bring your measurements. Our terms are cash or credit card. Competent installers are available.

Merry Christmas from Peggy, Mary Ann and Mac.

Bring your room measurements for later service and save big while the rolls last!

The staff at Hanson's Automotive Services, 185 W. Airport Blvd.

Hanson's Automotive offers a full service facility, years of experience

Hanson's Automotive Services at 185 W. Airport Blvd. has provided many years of quality paint and body repair as well as a full service auto facility for all makes of cars and trucks. No repair or service job has ever been too small for the Hanson staff.

Hanson's has added quality used cars to their total automotive services, checking everything they sell to assure buyers that they are getting the best value for their investment.

Owner Norm Hanson has 25 years experience in the automotive field and still believes that service is most important. Co-owner Jean, his wife and full time business partner, puts in long hours keeping a close eye on the finances and scheduling.

A close family, the Hansons include their son David, who has nine years experience as an auto mechanic. Another son, Norman, is the body shop manager with 10 years experience. The elder Hanson's brother David is the service manager and has a background of over 30 years experience. He is a diagnostic specialist with a strong background in repairing electrical problems. Ann Hanson heads up the used car division's finance office. She brings five years experience to the position and will be responsible for the financing and customer relations.

Richard Evans is the general manager of the used car division. Evans has 25 years in business and sales. His approach to quality service is in keeping with Norm Hanson's rule: "Customer satisfaction is a must."

Formerly Hanson's Fina of 25th Street and French Ave., the business located to their present location next to the K-Mart at Airport Blvd. to provide larger and better facilities in which to serve their customers.

Hanson's Automotive has always guaranteed their work for 90 days or 4,000 miles.

A variety of financing is offered including a buy here-pay here plan for qualified buyers. Working on a one-on-one financial arrangement, most people can qualify for the used car they have always dreamed of.

Every car is checked for safety in their own service department to assure you a safe vehicle before it goes on the sales lot.

Hanson's Automotive Services is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday. Call 322-2116 for an appointment.

The used car division is open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.
