

It is one of the penalties of an otherwise perfect tropical climate that insects and reptiles should thrive here as well as human beings. Snakes, scorpions, caterpillars, lizards, ants, mosquitoes, flies, and bugs of all kinds, while not confined entirely to warm temperatures, apparently are at their best where the chill or winter does not annually destroy their summer breeding places. Indeed, where Phoebus burns hottest, it is not unusual to find cockroaches almost as big as horses.

We were watching such a one the other night in our kitchen. The complex problems of this world were proving almost too much for him and we were interested in seeing what his reactions would be in the face of an almost inevitable defeat. He was trying to go from the kitchen into the pantry and a door slightly ajar stood across his path. He was too large to crawl under, though he tried many times, and so after investigating a few inches to the left and a few inches to the right, he returned to his starting point near a lump of sugar which had fallen on the floor several feet from the door.

After struggling vainly with the sugar for a few seconds, as if trying to drag it away with him, he gave up and returned along his former pathway to the door. It occurred to us then that he was probably going for help. Again he tried to crawl under the door. Again he investigated a few inches to the right and a few inches to the left, but still finding his way barred he turned around and went back to the hopeless task of moving the sugar alone. And all the time if he had investigated a few more inches to the right he could have gone around the door with little difficulty and made his way successfully into the pantry where no doubt some of his cohorts were awaiting him.

It struck us rather forcibly then how strangely like that cockroach so many people are. Whether they have single tracked minds or make mountains out of mole hills, their problems are too much for them. Vainly they struggle against the cross currents of existence, probably to be drowned in the very midst of their efforts, when it would be so easy to pick out a point a little farther down the shore and, making for it, taking advantage of the current, conserving their strength for the final dash, they could arrive, perhaps not so high up on the beach as stronger, more vigorous men, but at least safe and happy.

Wise frontiersmen, who often were compelled by circumstances to travel many miles a day on foot, learned early in life that it was more practical to walk a great distance around an obstruction than to try to climb over it. They found it less tiring on muscles whose energy must be saved. Yet if one of them had by magic come upon the Great Chinese Wall which extends from Szechuan to Shanhai Wan, fifteen hundred miles long and twenty-two feet high, he would not have tried to walk around; if he were as resourceful as we think he was, and not merely a human cockroach, he would have scaled it.

So many people have their noses so close to the grindstone, they cannot see how to turn the crank. In operating a grindstone it is quite as important that the crank be turned, or at least that the stone in some manner be made to revolve, as that the knife or ax be applied at the proper angle. Have you not known persons so intent upon the immediate task at hand that they neglect some other matter, less immediate, perhaps, but more important? Did you not know sergeants in the army who drilled their rookies so assiduously in the problems of "Left Face" and "Squad Right", that the very essential job of learning to shoot was completely overlooked?

We have seen people faced with some almost trivial problem for which they could not immediately find the solution. Perhaps it was one of the simplest problems of life, easy enough for many persons of even semi-intelligence; yet because the trick of solving it was not obvious at the start, sleepless nights result, weary daylight hours, fretfulness, neurasthenia, ill health; and perhaps a life lost. It would be so easy to back up, and go around, or if the distance is too far, to crawl over. Or if it cannot be done at all, to abandon the job altogether, and find something else to do.

Life at its worst is what we make it. If we have failed in solving its problems, perhaps we have not found the knack, perhaps we should try another method. Or perhaps we should give up some of these problems altogether, and let someone else solve them. If we cannot swim, we should float. It is better to drift with the current, than to sink in mid-stream.

COMPLAINTS HAVE BEEN made by citizens in the Wynnton and Benning Boulevard section of the mosquito pest. At dusk there are plenty to be found throughout Wynnton. They will breed rapidly unless oiled of water holes, branches and marshy places be carried on vigorously by the city and county, and life will be made uncomfortable and health menaced. The citizens of the Wynnton district and outlying territory, who like to garden or cultivate flowers after the day's work is finished, will be subjected to the bites of the pesky insects and perhaps become infected, unless precautions are taken at once. Property owners can do their part by clearing out weeds, burning trash, getting rid of cans or ordering the cook to make a hole in the bottom of all cans before putting them in the garbage container. —Columbia Triangler-Sun.

FLORIDA'S POSSESSIONS
PERRY HERALD

Several of our exchanges are carrying a column on Facts About Florida. These are highly interesting but unfortunately incorrect. For instance the statement that Lake Okechobee is the largest lake in the United States with one exception is just one figure wrong, as Lake Michigan, between Michigan and Wisconsin and bordering for a short distance on Illinois, and great Salt Lake in Utah are both larger, but Okechobee is the largest fresh water lake wholly within one state in the Union. Silver Springs is the largest spring in the world but the river it feeds is not the only one that is navigable to its source, as Salt Springs run, in the same county, Marion, is also navigable to its source for small boats and would accommodate large river steamers if the bay at its mouth was deepened.

It remains however, that Florida has more resources than any other state in the Union and leads in so many ways that it is a constant marvel to those who take the trouble to investigate. For the sake of such people we should be very careful to ascertain the exact facts before placing any

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

"I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills."

Ruth Bryan Owen, in a philosophy mood, once said to this writer that she was able to love Florida in spite of the professional panegyrics on its glories. Which proved all over again that she is more of a stateswoman than a politician.

In the interest of Florida's economic future, and of the civilization that will grow with it, there is every reason for regret that its beauty, its color, its wealth, its history, advertising is vitally necessary and, vastly productive. But it sacrifices something or will unless Floridians guard that something well.

What it sacrifices or threatens to sacrifice is the capacity of Floridians for loving their state for its own sake, without regard to the capital that can and will and should be made of its loveliness. It is through the habit of snobism and advertising, a Floridian comes constantly to associate the career of blue water against coral shores with the price of beach lots or the prospect of tourist trade, he loses some of his power to understand how blue that water is and how soft those shores. If the sweetness of an orange grove on a hill-top above a lake is linked in his mind's eye with a picture of the lawyer to whom he may sell that grove, its products he is robbed of some of the poetry of it. If the stateliness of live oaks and the fragile aristocracy of Australian pines are made known to him with the prosaisms of the propagandists, he loses power to love them for their own sake. It is the same of all that is beautiful in this state. Let Floridians cherish their appreciation of Florida without regard to what befalls it.

In other words, those who are always trying to please somebody else, never find their own capacity to be pleased. Those who seek a profit from what they love are robbed of some of their love.

Let the advertising go on, and the salesmanship and the effort to please the world and bring it to Florida. But in the course of all that is beautiful in this state, let Floridians cherish their appreciation of Florida without regard to what befalls it.

If no more beautiful ever came to our shores, let us love it. If the development of agriculture and industry were completely halted, if no new building permits were asked and the sound of hammer and saw were hushed forever, Florida would still be beautiful, still be a thing to love.

This is an advertising age. Advertising has revolutionized the world. Under the spell of its power we have multiplied and are multiplying the goods having, the luxuries of the world all at us as more or less engaged in the task of winning public favor for ourselves or our wares. But there is still an ancient voice to cry: "What profit is it a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" The profit of which loves, harmony for soul, the peace that is temporary, the beauty which takes the spiritual cash and lets the material goods be sold.

For all of which celebration, we dash and prod and try to us a to all men, there come weary moments when the only real gain seems to be those "dugs," unfathered caves of ocean "beats" without benefit of a single boost or acquisition of any market price. If this be true, it is temporary, it is made to be made, there are plenty of assistants to treat it.

David Kjelstrom and Halvor Pederson are two of the largest poultry owners in Lake county. Mr. Kjelstrom has about 3,000 chickens from which he ships some 6,000 eggs per week. Pederson's poultry holdings are nearly as large. —GroveLand Graphic.

CO-OPERATION
BELAND NEWS

Orderly marketing that would assure a fair profit to the grower is the crying need of not only Florida but of the entire nation. The grain farmers are confronted with a situation of a more serious nature, possibly, than the cotton growers of the South, the citrus and fern growers as well as the poultry interests of Florida.

And groping in the dark is unnecessary. The marketing problem has been solved successfully with profit to the growers. Especially in the true of products which are native to a certain section. For example today apples from Oregon and the state of Washington find a ready market in Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York where apples are raised. And eggs produced in California, bring a better price in New York state than does the local product. The growers of raisin grapes and of walnuts have been thru the mill and have emerged with flying colors. It is no new problem. Marketing dates back to the birth of civilization, to the days of bazaars and barter. And in the United States, because of the rapid means of communication, it has advanced at a greater rate than in other countries and yet some of the rules and regulations are archaic and have undergone no change since the early days of this nation.

Co-ops have proven successful providing that a majority of those engaged in any line join and help and that efficient management is executed. What has been done elsewhere can be done here. People of other sections of the country are no better than those who reside here.

And so The News is gratified to know of two movements that are now under way in this section. Climatic and soil conditions being as they are, coupled with expert advice and help from county farm agent and others, the problem of one of production has been solved. If a market is obtained, assuring a fair profit on the investment and a fair income for services, great impetus to all agricultural and kindred industries will have been given.

Ten days at Pierson the fern growers of Volusia county will assemble. They have been organized for over a year and have reached the point when they can tackle the major problem of co-operative marketing.

And next week the poultry raisers of this section are expected to affiliate with another co-op that is being formed in the central section of the state for the orderly marketing of eggs.

Here are two of the largest income producing industries of this section. Volusia leads the state in the culture of plumous fern and supplies its own needs for poultry products with a surplus to spare.

The citrus industry is, and will probably continue to be, the largest industry of this section. But the more diversified are the products of farm, grove and garden

His Poker Debt Became a Title Flaw

More than 60 years ago, on a Mississippi packet, a poker debt was paid by a deed in property in Bayville, New York. A clause specified that the property could be redeemed at any time by payment of the principal of the debt with compound interest.

Years later, when this real estate was about to be sold, our title search revealed this forgotten defect, saving our client a substantial loss.

Whenever you buy or lend on real estate, a New York Title policy is always your best policy.

Woman's Club Has Luncheon Last Saturday For Its State Officers

A reception and luncheon was held last Saturday at the Woman's Club in honor of state officers who came here following the state federation meeting at Daytona Beach last week. The reception was held at 11:00 A. M. and the guests were met at the door by Mrs. Walter L. Morgan who introduced them to the following: Mrs. D. P. Drummond, president of the Sanford Woman's Club; Mrs. E. M. Galloway, state day chairman; Mrs. M. L. Stanley, Daytona Beach, president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. W. L. Wilson, of Panama City, first vice-president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs; Music was furnished by Miss Pearl Robinson who played several selections on the piano.
Following the reception a program with Mrs. Drummond presiding was presented and addresses were made by Mrs. M. L. Stanley, Mrs. W. L. Wilson, Mrs. Meade A. Love, chairman of home demonstration work and Mrs. R. L. Fletcher, president of the Semole County Federation.
The musical part of the program was as follows:
Mrs. A. M. Phillips—vocal selections.
Mrs. Arthur Branham—vocal selections.
Miss Virginia McDaniel—Violin numbers.
Mrs. Frances Woodruff—Accompaniment.
At 1 o'clock luncheon was served to about 60 people. The honor guests were seated at one long table, over which Mrs. E. M. Galloway presided, while other guests were seated at small tables. A color scheme of lavender and gold intervals along the table. Each of the smaller tables held a bowl of flowers in lavender and gold while the stage was adorned with large baskets of garden flowers arranged with fern and other greenery.
Introduced as the main speaker of the day was Mrs. W. W. Lewis of Fort Pierce, past president of the Florida Federation, and present superintendent of public instruction of St. Lucie County. Each past president of the Sanford Woman's Club gave a brief review of federation work done during her term of office, and all paid tribute to the present federation president. Those speaking were: Mrs. R. E. Toler, Mrs. Henry Wight, Mrs. E. M. Galloway, Mrs. Walter L. Morgan, Mrs. John Leonard and Mrs. E. A. Douglass. Mrs. John Leonard also addressed the meeting and had as her subject, "Property Rights of Women under Florida Laws."
Mrs. D. P. Drummond, president of the Sanford club expressed the wish that the club establish the custom of having a State Day in the club each year.

WAR ON SHIP Prepared To Justify Seizure of Vessels On Basis Of Smuggling Pact

WASHINGTON, Apr. 1.—(INS)—Secretary of State Bland returned to his desk today after an Easter week-end spent in New York, prepared to defend the making of the Canadian Smuggling Pact Alone by the court held in the Gulf of Mexico Mar. 29 on the ground that it was a violation of the British anti-smuggling treaty.

The Treasury Department, through Secretary Mellon, justified the act under the tariff law of 1922, which gave the coast guard jurisdiction over waters to a 12 mile limit. It is understood that the State Department has not accepted the tariff act as applying to the case, but will depend on a change in the anti-smuggling treaty under which Great Britain agreed to permit search and seizure of suspected run-runners within one hour's steaming distance from shore.

Discussion over the week-end revealed the coast guard's preliminary report of the attack, and the treaty aspects of the case, and attempted to grapple with the international law principles of territorial jurisdiction which might be applicable. An international lawyer of considerable reputation, Bland finds himself in a dual role of being compelled to defend the right of the United States to extend for domestic purposes the territorial jurisdiction of the United States beyond the three-mile limit established by international law, and at the same time maintain the traditional policy of the United States concerning freedom of the seas.

The role of a run-runner, which Bland says is to fly the Canadian Smuggling Pact, is of no permanent moment to either the United States or the British Government, and a combined effort to bring about by the British Legation, the Canadian Legation, to keep from appearing in the public eye as defensible as the run smuggling pact, and the protection of the British flag.

Myron Herrick, U.S. Ambassador, Dies Suddenly In Paris

who was in Cleveland, by trans-Atlantic telephone.

To the end, Ambassador Herrick retained consciousness and appeared not to realize the seriousness of his condition. Shortly after noon yesterday, he was seized with a short, violent attack similar to the one which almost caused his death at Chagrin Falls last January. Specialists were called. Although they said he had but a fighting chance to live he fought the attack with characteristic bravery and soon was smilingly conversing with his daughter-in-law.

Shortly after four o'clock, however, while talking of arrangements for receiving Ellhu Root, who was scheduled to arrive here today, the Ambassador suddenly sank backward against his pillow and died.

France is eager to render the highest honors to the beloved envoy. She is deferring her plans, however, until word is received from the United States Government and the Ambassador's family. Parsony Herrick, his wife stated, will probably sail on a Hamilton-American liner leaving New York today.

President Poincaré and President Doumergue immediately dispatched personal representatives to the American Embassy with the sympathy of the French Government when informed of the Ambassador's death.

Among the first to call at the American Embassy were Jules Jusserand, former French Ambassador to Washington, and his wife. General Pershing came shortly after. A warm personal friend of the late Ambassador, the general appeared to be greatly moved.

France's reaction to Ambassador Herrick's death in many ways is comparable to the loss she felt when Marshal Foch died. Unstinted praise of his courage, ability, tact and human qualities are being everywhere.

His popularity which reached unbounded heights when he was the only foreign diplomat to resign to leave Paris in 1914 when the fall of the city seemed imminent later was augmented by his efforts in inspiring the Lafayette Escadrille and his labors in behalf of the Briand-Kellogg pact and the strengthening of friendly relations between France and the United States.

His talent for fostering interna-

It's a rather dubious thing to receive a dinner invitation for April Fool's Day, but it is intriguing, so send out your notes, and request that each guest come prepared to do some slight-of-hand trick, or play some prank. When all have arrived each does his stunt, and a vote determines the most clever. A Jack-in-the-box is an appropriate prize.

A Lively Conversation
This game may provide the hints for the decoration. Duplicate the dinner paper tablecloth with a note that the table may be made longer or shorter may be used to determine in the living room. On the dining-room table, have a large box in the center with ribbons running to each place. When the signal is given, the ladies give the signal and each guest pulls his or her ribbon. The hostess has here arranged in such a way that her pull releases the catch, and up comes the lid and out pops the funny object of the box.

Small, amusing prizes bought at the ten cent store are on the guests' ribbons. Afterwards, if you want to play games, the guests may write verses describing their prizes. If you prefer to play bridge, the tally cards should have pictures of Jack-in-the-box on them.

An Unusual Dinner
For the dinner itself, avoid the worn-out caterer-stuffed foods, but you can try to do things a little differently and to make the dishes a surprise. For instance, the cardina under the choice of the canny; the cheese and nut mixture under the peach salad and the fruit under the Alaskan meringue are all a little unusual and particularly appropriate to the day. The dinner menu might be:

- Sardine Casserole
- Consommé
- Radish Roast
- Celery Carle
- Creamed Chicken and Mushrooms in Tomato Sauce
- Lattice Potatoes Oven on Casserole
- Dinner Rolls
- Peach Meringue Salad
- Baked Alaska
- Rum Drops
- Salted Nuts
- Demi-tasse

Unexpected Foods
Sardine Casserole: Cut slices of bread one-fourth inch thick and cut into oblong about one and one-half inches wide and one-half inch longer than the sardines. Toast bread, and butter it slightly. Place sardines on the toast and sprinkle liberally with tomato juice. Cover top with grated American Cheddar cheese, and toast in oven until cheese is melted. Sprinkle with paprika, top with parsley and serve.

Consommé: A thin slice of lemon floating in a bowl of consommé (made from canned soup) gives a pretty touch.

Olive on Casserole: Cut olives from a number 2 can in thin slices crosswise. Make a white sauce of three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and one-half cup milk. Combine with the olive and pour into individual buttered tins or a casserole. Cover with well-buttered crumbs, and brown in a hot oven.

Both Hot and Cold
Peach Meringue Salad: Arrange a slice of pineapple on a bed of lettuce. Mix together chopped, canned ginger, chopped pecans and cream cheese to taste. Mix a liberal amount of this mixture in the center of the pineapple slice and invert over it a canned peach half. Garnish around the base of the peach with cream mayonnaise.

Baked Alaska: Freeze a can of fruit for salad in the tray of your icebox refrigerator or pack it in ice and salt and freeze it in the can. Cut a thin slice of sponge cake into rounds or squares. Beat four egg whites until stiff and add six table-

Week Of Its Action Found In England

RENO, Nov. 1—(INS)—Although barred from the courtroom in which the sensational Inman divorce trial is being heard, letters of Rene's divorce colony continued unabated today as the action moved into its third week. Walker F. Inman wealthy Dakota tobacco fortune heir, who is suing Helene Garnet Patton Inman for a divorce, was expected to close his case sometime this week. Mrs. Inman will then launch her counter battle for a divorce before the 12 jurymen hearing the case. Testimony today was expected to center about the $75,000 property settlement agreed upon by the Inmans at the time of their separation in August 1927. Inman seeks to have this agreement approved by the jury, while Mrs. Inman wants to set it aside and to be granted a quarter of a million dollars in its stead.

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Mar. 30.—(INS)—Hilberts unpublished letters of Robert Louis Stevenson in which he talks of desiring death and says it is a pity that suicide is not "the ticket" in the best circles, have been discovered here. Three of the letters were written during the last year of his life from Vallonia, in the South Sea, where he died in 1894. One dated January 30, 1894, says: "If I could die just now as in say, half a year, I should have had a splendid time of it on the whole. But it gets a little stale, and my work will begin to senesce, and I now begin to look as though I should survive to see myself important and forgotten. It's a pity that suicide is not thought the ticket in the best circles."

Prosecutor Seeks To Drop Responsibility

GENEVA, Ill., Apr. 1.—(INS)—State's Attorney George C. Cary of Kane County today went before Judge John K. Newhall in the circuit court, here and asked to be relieved of all responsibility in conducting the investigation into the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King by dry raiders in her home a week ago. In presenting his petition Cary stated "there were many angles of the case making appointment of another prosecutor imperative."

He explained that "feeling is high in Kane County over the killing" as the result of Mrs. De King's death from a shotgun in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith and because of the "recently" developed evidence the affidavit upon which the raid was made was false. Cary said at the first time in the investigation admitted the fraudulence of the affidavit.

DO THEY WHISPER ABOUT YOU?

As you walk up and down the streets of Sanford, passing stores and merchants here and there, do shopkeepers and clerks whisper as you pass? Do you avoid going in this store and that, because you owe them money?

A man that can look everyone in the eye with the knowledge that his credit is in good standing, is a man that holds the respect of his fellow man; he's a man that can do things, can get things when he wants them, because his fellowmen know his word is good.

Looking at credit from strictly a business standpoint, one will find that the man who has good credit is a successful man but let him abuse his credit privileges and his reputation is ruined; he might as well pick up and leave for the faith other people had in him will be shattered.

BIG PROFIT

Classified Ads are popular for a number of reasons, they get RESULTS quickly, they are easy to use and they cost ONLY A FEW CENTS a day.

This small cost offers big profit to advertisers. Let us say you have a house that is empty; you have been renting it for $25 a month. If it stays idle for a month you have lost $25.

The average classified ad run for a month costs less than $5.00, granting that you spent that much to get your house rented, you still have a good profit left . . . a sum you would not have had otherwise.

Does Classified Advertising Pay? Give it a test yourself, a thro test, and judge for yourself.

FISH BEFORE MEAT

WHO is responsible for the order in which we eat our meals? According to history it is Queen Elizabeth. It was in 1563 that "Queen Elizabeth" had a law enacted ordering citizens to abstain from flesh and fowl during three days of the week.

This law was promulgated by Queen Elizabeth for the maintenance of the State, and it added that on all fish-Wednesdays each fish which might be served, provided there were three fish dishes put on the table for actual consumption.

In order to show that they had no intention of abrogating the law, the British Parliament had the three fish dishes set on the dinner table, and refrained from serving the flesh until all had shown themselves great citizens by eating that which the law required.

Aquiculture vs. Agriculture
 But whether fish comes first by the canon of law or the canon of fact, the economic law is operating. Sea food can be produced more cheaply than are the agricultural crops of the present epoch. Aquaculture has been practiced for thousands of years and it is an excellent scientific method of producing food. The scientific treatment of the aquaculture which is more familiar as a part of us.

Fish, for instance, are bred from being extracted and efficient character of land products. Sea food, whereas fish can be grown commercially in ponds a large percentage per acre is raised more cheaply than the average farmland produces in the North of Ohio.

French Women Are Being Recognized For Their Merits

PARIS, Mar. 29.—(INS)—That women are gradually gaining ground in France is to be seen by the fact that, for the second time, one of them has been proposed for a seat among the Forty Immortals of the French Academy.

No woman has ever yet gained admission to any one of the five Academies of which the Institute is the parent. Every now and then one of the latter sees a fit, but up to the present moment she has always been refused. Even the celebrated Madame Curie, who with her husband discovered radium was told that the Academy of Science was only open for men.

If Madame Moll-Weiss, founder and director of the School for Mothers, were only of masculine gender, she would certainly be admitted to the Academy this year, even a few of the Immortals themselves are willing to admit that, and this marks a short step in advance.

She has long taken a very active part in all kinds of social work in France and has won many prizes.

Famed Ball Star's Son Doesn't Desire His Father's Career

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Mar. 29.—(INS)—The old adage—"Like father like son"—is all wrong in the case of Christy Mathewson Jr., son of the immortal Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants.

Christy Jr. has no desire to do great deeds on the diamond. Instead his fancy turns to airplane and aviation. When spring rolls around each year, he longs for lengthy flights in the warm, clear air.

Just recently he flew here from his home in Saratoga Lane in his biplane. He was given his license to fly after completing a course of instruction at Schenectady.

Young Mathewson was with General Electric Company when he decided to learn to fly. Once a licensed pilot he determined upon a career in commercial aviation and established the Adirondack Airways.

Germany Plans Big Concert And Opera Season For Spring

BERLIN, Mar. 30.—(INS)—The announcement of the concert and opera offerings of Berlin's planned great "season" in May and June has evoked widespread interest in many countries. In addition to the concerts and operas there will be a wealth of excellent dramatic offerings.

A special feature will be the first performance on any stage of two new pieces by Gerhard Hauptmann in the Deutsche Theatre under the direction of Max Reinhardt. The State Dramatic Theatre will present Schiller's "Piccolini" in a new setting, directed by Leopold Jessner; the Renaissance Theatre, under Gustav Hartung, will play by Kurt Hiller's "The Death of Tannhauser" and the Metropolitan Theatre will offer "Bluebeard" in a new setting. Two period plays will be given in the Foyer Theatre in the New Palace in Potsdam.

In addition to the "festival plays" the general program will include national and international sporting and athletic events, art exhibitions.

From Berlin visitors can go to Heidelberg for the festival plays in July and August, to be given in the famous Heidelberg castle under the direction of Gustav Hartung.
