Sanford to get new signs

A new welcome sign design was approved by the Sanford City Commission last night. The design was one of nine submitted for consideration.

Petition irks board

School official: Personal gain may be behind ousting attempt

By VICKI BOGGERMAN

While one man is circulating a petition aimed at having three school board members replaced, those members are not worried.
Chris Mylott of Longwood has gathered about 1,500 signatures on the petition in which he asks the governor to remove board chairman Nancy Warren, vice chairman Jeanne Morris and board member Sandy Robinson from office.
Mylott said that board members Joe Williams

Morris said that she is pursuing possible legal action against Mylott.

Strip mall postponed indefinitely

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City of Sanford is one step closer to purchasing land across from Sanford Middle School after a developer's proposal for rezoning to build a strip mall was postponed indefinitely Monday night.

During the commission workshop meeting yesterday afternoon, City Manager Bill Simmons revealed he had obtained a communication from Rick Hardwick, president of Tidewater Enterprises, which had planned to purchase the property if the rezoning were approved.

"Mr. Hardwick has sent us an agreement for assignment of the purchase order from the school board to the City of Sanford," he said.

Simmons added, "But in order for us to facilitate the purchase of the property, we will have to get the School Board to agree on some method of time payment other than a straight mortgage."

Simmons recommended that the rezoning request scheduled for the regular commission meeting be tabled for no specific time period. "If we agree to purchase the property," he said, "there won't be any need to rezone the land."

The request for rezoning was on last night's City Commission agenda for the third time. Each of the previous times, the matter was tabled.

The property contains slightly less than 10 acres of land, and is located immediately across French Avenue from Sanford Middle School. Hardwick had requested the rezoning to allow him to build a strip mall on the property.

School Board seeks nod to begin bidding on clinics

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — At tonight's Seminole County School Board meeting, the board will be asked to approve the basic documents and allow the bidding process to begin for the health clinics at Midway Elementary in Sanford and Geneva Elementary in Geneva.

The clinics are a part of the full service school program which is designed to make the school the focal point of the community in areas that are low income and have special needs regarding health care and social services.

Geneva and Midway elementary and Seminole high schools are the pilot schools for the full-service schools program. Midway Elementary periodically brings medical and dental professionals to the school to provide services for those who need them.

The clinics, each 1,200 square feet, will be built at a cost of $125,000 apiece. The money to be used comes from a federal Full Service Schools grant that was awarded to the district last year.

According to David Spear, the school district's staff architect, the clinics will be identical at each school. Each will contain a reception area, an

Award-winning Sanford cop K-9 retires

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Yocha is now officially retired from the Sanford Police department. The nine-year old member of the K-9 division has served faithfully since 1987.

The Sanford City Commission approved a recommendation from Police Chief Steve Harriett to place the dog in retirement and allow Yocha's handler, officer Ned Golden, to purchase him for $1.

During a City Commission workshop meeting, Harriett explained, "Yocha has been a valuable member of our force. He has been instrumental in many arrests and seizures, and has done much to support our officers' safety factor."

The K-9 has been diagnosed by veterinarians as having a disease which results in periods of stiffness and weakness in the hindlegs after exercise.

"While it could be corrected with surgery for a cost of about $1,400," Harriett said, "it would require the dog to be out of service for an extended period of time; and the veterinarian and we believe it would be best to place the dog in retirement."

Family of AIDS victim unveils project

PORT PIERCE — The family of Kimberly Bergalis, the first American to die as a result of contracting the HIV virus during a dental visit, unveiled an AIDS-awareness project.

"Remember My Words" is a public service announcement, unveiled Monday, that will soon appear in newspapers and broadcast outlets in the Treasure Coast area of Florida, said her father, George Bergalis.

Miss Bergalis, who died last year at her Port Pierce home, was the first of five patients believed to have contracted the virus during dental visits to an AIDS-infected Stuart dentist, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"The epidemic's not over. In fact, it's worse than it ever was," her father said. "The misdirected policies of this country are promoting its progression and its succession. It will succeed unless we do something about it."

Americans need to understand that the public health system is not working for their best interests, Bergalis said.

"That's the bottom line folks. Kimberly Bergalis thought it was ... and we know where she's at today."

Disaster victim charged with fraud

MIAMI — A man who allegedly lied to get a new mobile home from disaster relief officials was arrested after the renter he evicted reported him to authorities.

Victorino Soto, 62, was charged with filing a fraudulent application for federal disaster help. He was released Monday on $10,000 bond pending a hearing Nov. 5.

Soto was the second person arrested on that charge since Hurricane Andrew battered south Florida on Aug. 24, authorities said.

According to Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Marvin Davis, Soto owned a mobile home in Homestead that he rented out until Hurricane Andrew damaged it.

"He evicted the renter and claimed the damaged mobile home was his primary residence" so he would qualify — falsely — for a new FEMA mobile home, Davis said.

"Then the evicted renter drove by and saw the new (mobile home), and he brought it to our attention."

Court documents show that Soto and his wife live in Aquadilla, Puerto Rico.

If convicted, Soto could face up to five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Mary Beggs, 32, of Fort Lauderdale was arrested on the same charge Sept. 30 after she filed an $11,500 claim with FEMA for damage to a non-existent house at a fictitious address in Dade County.

Marilyn Quayle blasts Bill Clinton

ORLANDO — Marilyn Quayle swung through Florida, branding Bill Clinton "the blow-dried Jimmy Carter of the 1990s."

The wife of Vice President Dan Quayle made stops in Boca Raton, Fort Myers and Orlando on Monday, where she pitched George Bush as the women's candidate.

"President Bush has appointed more women to high level positions in government than any president before him," said Mrs. Quayle. "He's working for women; he doesn't just talk about women."

Mrs. Quayle touted Bush's record and criticized Clinton for not appointing enough women in Arkansas. She also criticized Clinton's lack of business experience.

FORT LAUDERDALE — The drug possession and child molestation case against South Florida radio personality Bill Tanner collapsed after a judge ruled the evidence was obtained with an illegal search warrant.

Governor's aging conference

Alzheimer's poses a future medical problem in state

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — Florida's elderly want universal health care, increased use of volunteers for at-home assistance and expanded support services for Alzheimer's victims.

Those were among the topics receiving general agreement among some 350 participants at a governor's conference on aging Monday.

"With 3.3 million elders, Florida is unique," Gov. Lawton Chiles told the activists. But the large number of aging residents is creating special problems that not only require more money but creativity in determining solutions, he said.

The conference, one of a series being held around the state, was designed to come up with recommendations to help guide Chiles and the new Department of Elder Affairs.

Information also will be used in developing a national agenda for a prospective White House Conference on Aging.

"You're our primary resource," Chiles told the participants. "We're never going to do it all from Tallahassee."

One of the issues of greatest concern is Alzheimer's disease, which the department says affects 268,000 Floridians, has no cure and is projected to increase twofold by the year 2000.

"Compared to the rest of the country, Alzheimer's disease and related dementias are epidemic in Florida," according to a department report.

A five-member panel on health issues spent much of its time discussing adult day-care programs and respite care, which provides relief for caregivers for Alzheimer's patients, most of whom are family members.

"The only way to address respite care is through volunteers," said Pat Jimlinson who founded the Alzheimer Resource Center in Winter Park and whose husband has Alzheimer's.

She recommended that respite care programs — providing volunteers to relieve caregivers for a few hours or a day at a time — draw in more retired professionals such as doctors and nurses. Corporations also should be called upon to provide funding for training programs and volunteers, she said.

But respite care should not be limited to Alzheimer's patients, said Sister Margaret Freeman of the Medical Mission Sisters religious order. Volunteers should be recruited for patients suffering from other major medical problems "in order to help and help people at home for as long as possible," she said.

Race relations poll gives City Hall poor marks

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — A poll of residents about racial relations in this North Florida city shows that most see a need for improvement and that City Hall should shoulder much of the blame for the bad ones.

The poll, conducted by Jacksonville University students, surveyed 693 residents Oct. 16 to Oct. 20.

When asked how Jacksonville's race relations compared with other parts of the country, 53.8 percent said they were about the same, 26 percent said they were worse, 15.9 percent said they were better and 4.3 percent were undecided.

The same survey showed that 53.4 percent of those questioned were not satisfied with how city government has handled race relations. That includes 35.2 percent who said they were somewhat dissatisfied and 18.2 percent who said they were dissatisfied.

Of the remainder questioned, 34.3 percent said they were somewhat satisfied with City Hall's performance and 3.8 percent were very satisfied and 8.5 percent were undecided.

City Council President Warren Jones said he was somewhat surprised that Jacksonville did as well as it did, compared with other cities.

"With what we have been through and what we are going through now, I would have thought it (the number of people unfavorably comparing Jacksonville) would have been higher," Jones said.

Jones and Mayor Ed Austin have been locked in an impasse over competing minority set-aside plans, which has resulted in angry outbursts at City Council meetings.

Also, earlier this year, Chief Circuit Judge John E. Santora made some remarks that stirred up weeks of racial protests, including two visits by the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Santora was stripped of his administrative post by the Florida Supreme Court.

"Given the climate and atmosphere we're operating in now, it is a very tense situation," he said.

Once the minority-business issue is resolved, tensions should ease and the city's race relations should improve, said Councilman Matt Carlucci.

"People are tired of it. No matter where I go, all some point in the day ... people say, 'When are y'all going to get this problem solved?'"

Teen charged with plotting to kill family

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — A 17-year-old charged with trying to hire a hitman to kill her family remained in custody Monday while authorities decide whether to prosecute her as an adult, authorities said.

Andrea Best was being held at the Broward Regional Juvenile Detention Center after her arrest Friday on four counts of solicitation to commit murder.

"The state attorney's office has to make a determination as to whether she'll be tried as an adult," said Broward County sheriff's spokesman Al Gordon.

If convicted of the charges, the teen would face up to 30 years in prison, he said.

The Fort Lauderdale-area teen had plotted her family's murder for a month before offering a supposed hitman $350 to murder her father, stepmother and two half-brothers, according to a sheriff's department statement.

Best told police she was unhappy at home and claimed both her father and stepmother were heavy drinkers. She also said she was neglected and allegedly subjected to sexual harassment by her father, sheriff's deputies said.

"She just said she didn't like the rules and the rules were very strict," said Broward County Sheriff's detective Gary Ciletti. "She feels she needed to get even for her life."

Ciletti said it is still unclear why the girl wanted to murder her two young brothers, ages 2 and 5.

The man with whom Best is accused of arranging the murder contract was a former police informant who notified authorities of the girl's plan. The informant, whose name was withheld, secretly recorded several meetings with the teen-ager before her arrest, according to the statement.

"Never in my life would I imagine that she would do this," said Sharon Fisher, Best's friend and co-worker. She described Best as a "sweet, but mixed-up kid" whose home life was less than perfect.

The commission approved retiring Yoscha from active duty, and authorized Harriett to put bids out for a replacement.

Harriett also explained a situation with Jammer, the other K-9 on the force. Jammer is six years old and has been in service since 1989.

"Jammer hasn't been performing to his full potential lately," Harriett said. "The vet has revealed that he has a degenerative joint disease in his left elbow, similar to arthritis, and is recommending we consider retiring Jammer in the near future."

Harriett proposed that Jammer not be replaced until Yoscha's replacement is obtained, trained and placed in service.

The estimated cost for the replacement by an imported Schutzhund Level III German Shepherd general purpose K-9 is approximately $7,000.

LAKE MARY — While construction continues on Lake Mary Boulevard in front of Lake Mary Elementary School, it may soon begin inside the walls of the school as well.

For over two years, the school has been wrestling with ways to add art and music suites, as well as classrooms for exceptional education students, to the school.

At this time there is little room for the exceptional education students and the other students do not have special classrooms in which to study visual and performing arts, as students at other schools have.

There had been some discussion about purchasing land adjacent to the school, but the cost of that land was prohibitive and it was never done.

Last week, in preparation for the construction, the school district staff went before the Lake Mary City Commission to seek permit approval.

"With the addition of the ESE suites," Diane Kramer, the school district's facilities planner explained, "we will actually be lowering the capacity of the school so the additional building will be of no greater impact on the city."

Kramer said that the district hopes to begin construction as soon as possible at Lake Mary Elementary, but the city is in less of a hurry.

City Commissioner David Meador said that he hoped city officials would take the time to walk through the site with school district officials before making a decision.

The commission decided to table the district's request until Nov. 5.

"We would like to start construction as soon as possible so that we can get the work done before the end of the school year if possible," Kramer said. "We will wait for the commission's decision, but we are ready to go."

Kramer added that the school, without the additions is not equal to the other elementary facilities in the district.

Barkett's views color decisions

Opponents of Supreme Court Justice Rosemary Barkett have charged that, at best, she has a rather creative way of interpreting the Constitution - an affliction that has stricken more than one state and federal judge. At worst, her decisions reflect liberal looniness, her critics say.

Her supporters say she is well within the mainstream of the Florida Supreme Court which, itself, is a rather moderate institution.

Floridians, of course, have some interest in the matter since they will vote on the merit retention of Justice Barkett in November.

In her latest decision, Barkett certainly did not strike a blow for common sense or judicial moderation.

In a dissent, Barkett wrote that a Tampa murder defendant should be allowed to argue for "indirect discrimination" in his case. Discrimination, whether unconscious or conscious, cannot be allowed in Florida courts, she wrote.

If a judge believes there is some evidence of unconscious or indirect discrimination - and the prosecutors can't prove otherwise - the judge could prohibit them from seeking the death penalty, her opinion states.

How, pray tell, does one defend against a charge of "unconscious discrimination?" Prosecutors would have to become psychotherapists.

Barkett was impressed by the fact that the defendant's lawyers charged prosecutors sought the death penalty more often when the victim of murder was white than when the victim was black.

The majority of the court rejected that analysis. Figures alone do not always prove discrimination, conscious or unconscious. Does the fact that Asian-Americans dominate physics and math departments in many major universities "prove" discrimination against whites and blacks? Does a high percentage of Jewish people in the arts and entertainment industry "prove" a conspiracy against Gentiles? Nonsense.

If Barkett's dissent had won out, the result would be a step toward judicial rulings by quota, which would be a disaster for the law and for justice. Since "unconscious discrimination" is difficult to defend against, any judge could easily find it and prohibit the death penalty. This is what Barkett and her supporters seek: an extra-legal avenue to undercut the death penalty because they oppose it. This is a judicial power-grab in the name of compassion.

Opposing the death penalty may be a sound moral and legal philosophy but the case must be made and won in the court of public opinion, not on questionable interpretations of the law to block public sentiment when that sentiment is clearly constitutional.

Barkett has shown this tendency while on the bench. She interprets the law in relation to her own personal, political views. That may be a comfort to her and her supporters but it should make other Floridians uneasy. They should consider her views very carefully when they vote on her merit retention next month.

JAY D. HALL Free trade pact charts for the future

In all the talk about free trade, there remains a lot of uncertainty about why the environment is such a vital part of any deal that's finally struck.

Yes, we do have some serious environmental problems along the U.S.-Mexico border. But beyond that, for many people, the link between the environment and free trade is vague. What's all the fuss about?

Well, we've got a trade agreement that the administration has sent to Congress. It will be voted on next year. It's NAFTA, the North American Free Trade Agreement, written to pull down trade barriers between the United States, Canada and Mexico.

In the history of negotiating trade agreements, the environment has never been included. It is in NAFTA. Not perfectly, but for the first time, substantially. That's thanks to the persistence of environmental advocates. A look at the agreement's environmental provisions dispels any vagueness about why it's important to all of us that they be there.

Take standards, for instance, like those that set what traces of pesticides, if any, can be on the food you buy. In the United States our public health standards for pesticides are among the toughest in the world. But in the way trade deals have traditionally been hammered out, the money professionals who wrote them have had but one dominating concern: maximizing, in their jargon, the efficient flow of products and capital. In this scheme, enormous incentives exist for a nation with high standards to shove them back to the lowest common denominator among its free trade partners.

NAFTA sets a precedent. Its language explicitly requires that harmonizing environmental standards among nations will be done "without reducing the level of protection of human, animal or plant life" already adopted by any one of the trading partners. Simply put, this means under NAFTA, adjustments will have to go upward toward the highest existing standard, not the other way around.

For many people, the link between the environment and free trade is vague.

Another point on standards. Trade agreements invariably give one country the right to challenge another country's environmental legislation as a protectionist restraint on trade. Prohibiting the export of raw logs from the Pacific Northwest, for example, might be viewed abroad as illegal under a trade pact. Again, NAFTA breaks new ground. The agreement specifically recognizes each nation's right to adopt scientifically based environmental standards that are tougher than those of its trading partners. Further, a nation that challenges another's standards bears the burden of proving its case. The presumption, in short, is in favor of tough standards.

LETTERS

Thoughts on election

I offer herewith some thoughts on the coming presidential election.

We should keep in mind that at this time the world is going through a period of extensive adjustments. In the former Soviet Union it appears that democratic concepts are winning out over communist dogma, and that the threat of military conflict with that land is (under its present leadership) over. Democracy won! The Warsaw Pact is a thing of the past! Germany has been reunited. In the Middle East, Kuwait has been freed; Saddam Hussein has been discredited.

Hence, the U.S. public has cried out for the peace dividend. This meant reducing the Armed Forces and canceling contracts for military armaments and other supplies. The administration has started giving the public what it wanted in that democracy has won out. However, this has meant that jobs have been lost and people are out of work; an adjustment is in progress. The unification of Germany has caused Germany to raise its interest rates, creating havoc in the European Common Market, with ripple effects upon the U.S. financial markets. So what would we rather have, lost the struggle against communism or be going through a period of adjustment? President George Bush is being blamed for many things beyond his purview to control.

As for the election I will not vote for either Perot or for Clinton. Perot is a "no-win" candidate. A vote for him is a vote for another candidate I do not want. If the public really knew what makes Clinton tick he could not win either. Three indications of what Clinton is like stand out!

First, is the content of a letter written by Col(Ret) Eugene Holmes, who in 1989 was the commander of the ROTC Department at the University of Arkansas. Holmes states that when Clinton discussed his desire to enroll in the ROTC, he did not "...inform me of his involvement, participation and actually organizing protests against United States involvement in Southeast Asia...He was shrewd enough to realize that had I been aware of his activities, he would not have been accepted..." Holmes says in his letter that "...Mr. Clinton had no intention of following through...to join the ROTC...or to attend the University of Arkansas..." Holmes says Fulbright's office exerted pressure on the Draft Board. On Dec. 3, 1989 Clinton wrote a letter to Holmes saying why he did not follow through. Reasons were sympathy for the anti-war movement and a loathing for the military. Some qualifications for a commander-in-chief of the U.S. Armed Forces!

Second, is a speech by Representative Dornan in Congress indicating how Clinton while enrolled at Oxford participated abroad in demonstrations against U.S. Government policy. Dornan's reliable sources include a book by a leftist guest who met Bill Clinton at the station. Sources indicate that Clinton made a trip to Moscow where he was received in a friendly manner - this while Soviet supplied weapons were shooting down our pilots and other military personnel in Southeast Asia. I say "shame on him"! An aircraft I was in was nearly shot down by such a weapon.

Third, is a report by a student who attended a yearly course held by Gov. Clinton for many of the state's best students (Human Events, Sept. 26, 1992). The student reported that Hillary Rodham, Clinton's wife using her own maiden name, gave a speech saying she trusted "big government" over "big business." The student also reported that one speaker proclaimed "Science is the antithesis of religion," and "man created God." Another attendee was reported to have said that "humanistic philosophy permeates many aspects of the school..."

Well now, is smiling slick Willie Clinton qualified to be commander-in-chief? What an insult that would be to our military people, past, present and future! Who would he bring to office? Someone who dodged the draft to Canada? Perhaps one of the Jane Fonda type? Could he command the respect of the military? In case of a crisis what would he say to those who did not want to defend their country. "Just do your thing, boys?"

By contrast, George Bush sprang to the service of his country as a pilot in WWII. He has proven his abilities in foreign policy as a commander-in-chief in troubled times. With a supportive Congress, instead of the gang that is in there, he would do real well. I will vote for George Bush and I would hope he is given a supportive Congress.

Making a choice

...and to the Republic for which it once stood....

At 68 years of age I remember the United States of America as it once stood. The unquestioned World leader in all things.

Now, with a week to go to Election '92 I look at the leadership choices offered to us and wonder if the America I remember can "rise from the ashes."

In Gainesville not too long ago Clinton said that he was not promising to restore America to what it once was. Hell, he is too young (as is Gore) to know the greatness that once was America's. (Gore might be able to get an answer from his father.)

Then the Republicans revel in Bush's greatness as a "War Hero." He had nothing to do with his getting shot down and then his raw animal instinct for survival took over. Hero hell, the real American heroes are those who risked their lives to save their buddies.

What do I know about it? Well I was there on "D-day" at Normandy and "did my duty" but that does not a hero make.

Do I love my country? You damn right I do! Would I fight again for my country? The answer is a resounding "yes." But would I oppose a politically motivated "Viet Nam" type conflict? You can bet on it!

Clinton had every right to oppose Viet Nam. Had more people done so there would be fewer of our dead and missing left over there.

Enough of that. As we approach Election '92 I believe that almost all Americans know "The Problems" which face our country and a lot of them know the painful decisions which must be made and which are the solutions to these problems.

If I thought that a person could and would pursue the course of action necessary to restore America to its greatness I would not at all be concerned as to whether he avoided the draft, whether he had "inhaled," whether he had slept with other women nor how many he had slept with. Neither his race, creed, color, religion, morality, sexual preference - nothing - would matter save the fact that he could save my country. If you were drowning would you interrogate your would-be savior as to these matters? No, you would grab hold and pray to be saved.

So...do I vote? It is the only present way to make a difference and if we cannot do it by ballot, the time will come when the American people will rise in the "Second American Revolution" for the present government is no better to the Americans than was the government of King George.

So, having three choices...Bush, Clinton and Perot (listed alphabetically), I must decide on one. However, unlike some that I see and hear on television, I am not opposed to casting my vote for the person I feel is the best one to lead America notwithstanding that he might not prevail, giving consideration to the intellect of the voting public. My philosophy has always been to pursue at the course of action I believe to be right, not the course touted as popular. Particularly is that true when the "touting" comes from the media which has little regard for the truth.

So...Bush cannot do it! I'm scared to death of Clinton and would predict that while his program might have some cosmetic effect you will find in four years things are far worse than now. As between those two I would be forced to choose Bush for he will not make things too much worse.

But how about Ross Perot? He has proven his abilities in many ways and if the American people will give him a chance and a little help he can turn things around.

So I'm giving my vote to Perot whom I consider to be, perhaps, the last opportunity to turn America around short of the Second American Revolution. Join me!

School board race

On Nov. 3, 1992 Seminole County voters will choose school board candidates who will have a profound impact on our local area and county. Because the quality of our schools will determine, in a very large way, the future of our community, this year's race is vital. We have the opportunity to elect Barry Masters to the school board.

Barry represents a modern-day practical approach to education combined with good business sense. Most importantly, he has shown personal interest in issues affecting our local area. He has made a commitment to represent everyone in our county, including the lower populated areas while some current school board members have focused on certain neighborhoods in the county. Some board members have not had the courage to make difficult and sometimes unpopular decisions that will help all of our students get equitable funding and programs. This important election will affect us for many years. Barry Masters has pledged to work for Sanford area schools.

True Americans vote

I just read something that makes me upset. Commissioner Pat Warren says in a letter to Republicans "that Republicans are the only 'True Americans.'" Pat Warren says that there is a "big difference in the thinking of us Republicans and those Democrats."

Citizens of Seminole County, I thought that we were "All Americans." I thought that we were "All Different." However, Ms. Pat Warren's way is different; she says they "the Republicans" are the only true Americans. I don't believe that, do you?

Citizens of Seminole County, it doesn't make a difference who or what Ms. Pat Warren is. It does matter about who runs Seminole County, so remember Americans - Seminole County belongs to all the citizens of Seminole County - the taxpayers of Seminole County and the people of Seminole County are all Americans. Come November 3rd, remember one thing and one thing only - Vote!

Vote for our county. Remember Pat Warren and all the county commissioners work for the taxpayers and Americans of Seminole County. We don't work for them, and we are all Americans. Please vote for all Americans, not only those Republicans.

Petition

governor will not take action on Mylott's request. According to Morris and Warren, Mylott had attempted to ask for the recall of the three board members, but constitutional officers can not be recalled under Florida statutes. It was at that time that he began his petition drive to ask the governor to recall the board members.

"But it has to be 'for cause' and we have done nothing illegal and we have not been negligent in our duties," Morris said.

Warren said that in 1980, Mylott had asked for and received an evaluation of his children's bus stop, which he claimed was unsafe.

The study showed that it was safer for the bus to stop outside the Longwood Hills community, a small subdivision on Longwood Hills Road near Lake Emma Road in Longwood than to pull into the subdivision and pick up the students.

"The only way to get out of there would be to back the bus up and turn it around," Warren said this morning. "And there's nothing worse for safety than backing a bus up."

Jerry Klein, director of transportation for the district, said that he has been out to the bus stop "numerous times" since June 1980 when he arrived in Seminole County.

"You have to weigh all the risks and we have done that and it is safer, in that case, to pick up and discharge the students along Lake Emma Road rather than to back the bus up," Klein said this morning.

Mylott said that the school board members were "warned that the bus stops were unsafe, but refused to allow us (the parents) a hearing" where they would be allowed to present experts for their side.

As a result, Mylott said this morning, one youth was killed and two others were seriously injured in an accident outside the Hills of Lake Mary subdivision on Oct. 9.

"He's confusing the public," Warren said. "We have done all that we can do and we are continuing to look into the matter. We have formed a committee to look into the issue of bus stops. We have recommended that students stand as far off the road as they or their parents deem necessary and that the buses wait for them. We have changed some bus stops and reinstated some courtesy bus routes. What else does he feel we should do?"

Warren added that she was not sure of Mylott's motives.

"He is attempting to use a tragic situation for his own political gain," she said. "I don't know what his agenda is in that particular respect, but I think he is looking for some personal gain."

Kuhn, who said the board operates as a unit, said that Mylott's agenda is a mystery to her as well.

"There has to be something else behind this," she said. "but I don't know what it is."

Mylott said that he has spoken with the governor's office and has been told that this is the first time that citizens have mounted a petition drive to call for the removal of school board members from office.

He said he expects to have "an audience with the governor" within two or three weeks.

He added that he is pleased with the community response to the petition.

"It has given the community a way to do something positive about this situation," Mylott said.

Warren on the other hand believes the community would be better served by working with residences, three businesses, and 20 vehicles between Oct. 19 and 24," he said. "The damage probably amounted to thousands of dollars."

Police Lt. Mike Rotundo said, "as of late yesterday, the three have only been charged with six counts of shooting into an occupied dwelling, and two counts of criminal mischief."

He added, "But as more cases are revealed, we will be placing additional charges against them."

Harriett commented, "This case may be one of the largest number of incidents connected to a family in a long time." He added, "There is still the possibility that this could expand even beyond the numbers we not have."

Harriett said the investigation is continuing.

the school for many years. Garner applied for the position but was told he was not being considered, a decision that upset Pelham.

The decision to choose a middle school principal was postponed last week but may be made in today's school board meeting.

Pelham, who is retiring as of Oct. 30, said the final two choices of the committee were not more qualified than Garner.

"Roger is well-liked in the community, he is liked and respected by the students and he has spent a great deal of his career in middle schools. He'd be a fine choice," Pelham said.

The committee is apparently considering Terry Rabun, principal of Lawton Elementary school in Oviedo, and Bob Moore, an assistant principal at Lake Mary High School.

However, Pelham said neither man had experience in managing a middle school.

"Middle school is very unique. If we are serious about the middle school concept we need to have someone who is familiar with the middle schools, especially this school."

One parent, Harry Ellis, said he told Supt. Paul Hagarty about

Band

High schools in the county will be marching for and playing for the entertainment of the audience beginning at 8 p.m. on Oct. 31.

The event is sponsored by the Sanford Optimist Club and the Sanford Herald.

Blair, who served as the band director at Lyman High School for many years before going on to be the fine arts coordinator for the school district, has retired during the last year, but has not given up his duties as coordinator of the festival.

"I'm still in Optimists," he said, "so I might as well continue doing this."

He did not say how long he would continue to organize the festival in the future.

The festival, Blair said, is designed to benefit the music programs at each of the high schools.

Each school is given tickets to sell and they then keep the money earned from the sales.

"This is for their benefit," Blair said. "We are doing this so they can make some money for their music programs."

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Blair said that last year's festival attracted more than 2,000 spectators to Lake Brantley High School.

The festival moves between each of the six high schools in the district from year to year.

"It will be back in Sanford in six years," Blair explained.

As always, each band will receive a trophy for their participation in the event.

The bands are not ranked in any order for their performance that evening, Blair said. All the participants are honored for their performances.

flocked to commission meetings during each of the three previous public hearings, and were allowed to voice their objections to the proposal.

"The one concern I have," Simmons said last night, "is that part of the assignment provision asks that RealVest, the real estate company handling the property, wants the city to give it exclusive rights to handle the sale of any city property for a specific length of time."

The members of the commission did not support such an agreement.

"I don't know whether or not Mr. Hardwick would change his mind about signing the property over to us to purchase if we don't agree to that," Simmons said.

"but I doubt it, and I'll look into it."

During the regular commission meeting last night, the matter came up for a formal vote, but Mayor Bettye Smith and Simmons explained that the matter had been discussed, and Simmons officially suggested the matter be tabled until more details can be arranged on the possible purchase of the land by the city.

The commission agreed on a unanimous vote.

Although several citizens had attended the meeting to hear the matter being discussed, none stepped forward to voice any objections to the commission's decision, and applauded when Commissioner Lon Howell assured the citizens, "We want you to know that we do intend to look into buying the property."

GOP hopes to seize control of state Senate

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A handful of Central Florida voters holds the key to the Republican Party's hopes to seize control of the state Senate, under Democratic domination since Reconstruction.

A GOP victory Nov. 3 would undermine the chances of Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles' ambitious tax-and-government reform agenda and would shine the spotlight on Jacksonville Sen. Ander Crenshaw, the Republican choice to lead the Senate and a potential 1994 candidate for governor.

It would also make history: none of the 11 former Confederate states has had a house of the Legislature under GOP control since the post-Civil War era.

Even if the Democrats win, Republican senators may once again be able to block many proposals through an alliance with conservative Democrats. Yet Democrats are hopeful new members will work to solve the gridlock that beset the Senate last year.

The Democrats insist they'll hold their majority, even gaining on the current 21-19 margin they now hold. Most of the redistricting map required by the 1990 Census was drawn by Democrats.

"We'll have not less than 22 Democratic seats," said Sen. Pat Thomas of Quincy, the Democrats' choice for president if they win.

The Republicans are just as certain of grabbing control, claiming at least 21 seats even in a year when President Bush is actually in danger of losing Florida.

"It would be odd to see Bush lose and see Republicans win the Florida Senate, but that could happen," said Stan Smith, a consultant to Republican candidates.

Both sides agree it comes down to nine closely contested seats, all but one in high-growth Central Florida.

"It's all in the I-4 corridor," said Republican consultant Rockie Pennington. "That's the battleground."

Three Democratic and three Republican incumbents are facing tough re-election fights. First the Democrats:

—Sen. Helen Gordon Davis of Tampa, who's in a refigured district that is now mostly in Pinellas County. She's running against Republican attorney Charlie Crist of St. Petersburg.

—Sen. Patsy Kurth of Malabar, a first-term lawmaker in a GOP-leaning district. She faces Republican Gene Waddell, who owns an insurance company.

—Sen. Eleanor Weinstock of Palm Beach, who's running against Republican Rep. Mark Foley of Lake Worth.

The Republicans:

—Sen. Richard Langley of Clermont, facing a spirited challenge from Democratic Citrus County School Board member Karen Johnson.

—Sen. John Grant of Tampa, locked in a close battle with Democratic Rep. Mary Figli.

—Sen. Locke Burt of Ormond Beach, who's running against two-term Volusia County Commissioner Clay Henderson.

Three open seats also figure into the battle for Senate control. They are:

—A Brookville-area district pitting Democratic Rep. Chuck Smith against Republican Hernando County Commissioner Virginia Brown-Waite.

—An Orlando seat where attorney Buddy Dyer, a Democrat, is running against Republican Steve De Mino.

—A Brevard County seat in which Democrat Patricia Grogan, aide to Rep. Harry Goode of Melbourne, is running against Spacecoast Economic Development Council head Bob Allen.

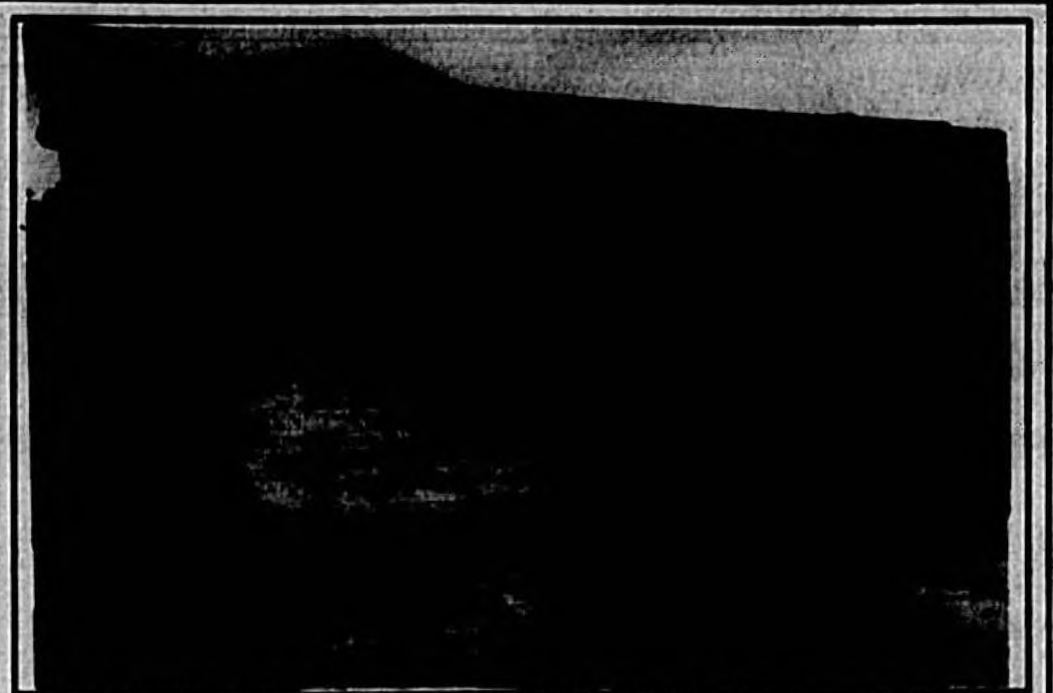

In 1990, Democrats were able to hold onto the Senate partly because Chiles easily defeated Republican former Gov. Bob Martinez. This year, it's the surprising strength of Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton that buoyed the party.

"It's damn sure better than it was four years ago (when Michael Dukakis abandoned the state)," Thomas said. "I don't know how much it helps us. It doesn't hurt us."

No matter which side has control — and particularly if there's a 20-20 tie — the intrigue that's a hallmark of Senate politics will probably mean controversy over exactly who occupies the president's office once the elections end. Sen. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor, has quietly offered himself as an alternative to Crenshaw while Sen. Ken Jenne, D-Fort Lauderdale, is often seen as a possible replacement for Thomas. A coalition of conservative Democrats and GOP senators might come up with someone else.

Both sides discount the rumors of a coup.

"That coalition thing hasn't worked to the advantage of either Democrats or Republicans," Thomas said.

Featured is Mr. Herb Barclay's new acrylic marbled driveway in Winter Park.

WOW! It's Beautiful And Easy To Clean, Too!

This is the response Wren Decking has been getting on the acrylic marbled deck finish they've been installing this summer.

Tom says, "It really is a far superior product to other acrylic based products on the market." Absolutely no paint is used to achieve coloration in this beautiful, durable, easy to maintain acrylic resurfacing system.

Wren Decking is a versatile company specializing in swimming pool and concrete restoration. They offer the latest technological products in resurfacing. Among the things they do are driveways, patios, pool decks and balconies.

Owner Tom Wren says "acrylic marblization with accent powders is especially popular with homeowners. Its color variations provide good hiding power for dirt and debris. People really love it for driveways; there are no tire marks. It's non porous, fade resistant, exhibits superior bonding to existing concrete, is slip and skid resistant, and does not crack, chip, fade or peel."

The process is available in fifteen modern colors with a life expectancy matching that of concrete on which it is installed. Most installations take two to three days. The acrylic marbled deck is ideal for commercial use and it is HHS approved.

Swim season is over and that means remodeling season is here. You won't have to drag the kids out of the pool, to make it beautiful again.

Wren Decking can work with your pool contractor on the remodeling job, or they can handle the total remodel package of pool, tile and deck.

Wren Decking stands behind all of their work. Tom Wren supervises every installation and emphasizes that all work is neat, clean and of superior quality. The company offers a two year guarantee on material and labor for most services. For a professional consultation on your needs, commercial or residential, call Wren Decking today. Perot less of a factor; Bush looks for comeback

By JAMES BROWN
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot is becoming less of a factor as the presidential race careens into its final week with Bill Clinton holding a commanding lead but President Bush hoping to generate a historic comeback.

As a roller-coaster political year begins to end, it's hard to find anyone ready to make firm predictions of what will happen in the week ahead. But some things already are clear.

Clinton enters the stretch with leads in the polls of more than 10 points in about two dozen states, and leads approaching that level in a handful more. That gives him several possible formulas for reaching the 270 electoral votes needed to win the White House.

Bush, on the other hand, leads in fewer than 10 states, many of them with small Electoral College prizes. Perot leads nowhere, and finds himself now at the center of a bizarre controversy.

Look for:

● Clinton to spend the first half of the week pressing Bush in traditional Republican territory that is now competitive or leaning Clinton's way — Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Texas and Kentucky over the next two days — before closing in on the industrial Midwest. Clinton will stress economics, strike a populist tone and try to convince Perot backers he's the only candidate who can defeat Bush and deliver change. New positive campaign ads will try to raise voters' comfort levels with the Arkansas governor and inoculate Clinton against the flurry of closing Bush attacks.

● Bush to stress character and trust, as he has for weeks, hoping repetition erodes Clinton's leads. Clinton's leads in big states forces Bush to stump through states with few electoral votes while hoping for a big breakthrough, thus Bush's campaigning in Montana, Iowa, Kentucky and Wisconsin in the final days. "Tuesday is light years away," Bush strategist Charles Black said in predicting a comeback.

● Perot to keep his unorthodox television advertising as the centerpiece of his campaign. He spent $6 million last week on TV and is spending perhaps twice that much in the final week. Like Bush, a closing Perot theme is that he's getting unfair treatment from the media. To win, Perot said Monday he needs "to stay close to people and reality."

After weeks of remarkable stability, the race's dynamics turned volatile after the three presidential debates.

Sidewalk adventures

Enjoying a beautiful fall day, Justin Smith, age 2, cruises on his miniature truck near his home in Sanford. As leaves fall around him, he and his toy big wheel tromple through a small dirt pile on the sidewalk. All in a day's fun for the young boy.

Who will be 'Education President?'

By TAMARA HENRY
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — George Bush still claims to be the education president, but suddenly he has developed a short memory on who did most of his homework — fellow Yale graduate Bill Clinton.

The third major presidential candidate, Ross Perot, who was a driving force behind a radical reform of Texas' public school system, now is not too specific about what he would do on the education front.

All three candidates agree that America's schools are in dire need of improvement. All want tougher education goals, accompanied by nationwide examinations to hold local school systems and teachers accountable for living up to them.

Each thinks parents should have more choice about where their children are educated. Bush would make it multiple choice — public, private or parochial — but has yet to explain how much that would cost the general treasury.

Bush, remember, campaigned in 1988 on a promise to be the "Education President." To date, however, most budgetary changes — more college aid money, for example, have been generated by Congress, while the president has concentrated mostly on using the bully pulpit of the Oval Office to prod educators and the private sector to greater effort.

On that score, Bush repeatedly points to the 1989 education summit that fashioned the "Education 2000" target program. As Bush put it in the second presidential debate, "It literally says to the communities, 'Reinvent the schools.' Not just the bricks and mortar, but the curriculum and everything else."

Almost as an afterthought, Bush mentioned that "I believe Gov. Clinton was in on this."

Actually, Clinton, as Arkansas governor, was a major — if not the principal — contributor to the voluntary plan, currently subscribed to by 1,700 schools across the nation. Bush has acknowledged writing Clinton a letter in September 1989 that reads, "Dear Bill ... Well done, oh so well done. You were a joy to work with on the summit and all our folks felt that way."

Now you can make heat out of thin air.

A few years back, scientists developed something that could keep you warm in winter without burning a single drop of oil or molecule of gas in your home. And keep you cool in summer without using one kilowatt of electricity more than necessary.

They called it a "heat pump," that innocent-looking thing you see at the right.

But it wasn't until today that anyone developed something to help the average homeowner afford such sophisticated technology.

We call that the "FPL Heat Pump Discount."

You don't have to understand all the technical details of how a heat pump works (and they can get pretty technical) to take advantage of its efficiency.

All you have to know is that there are scores of reliable, hard-working contractors ready to knock up to $584 off the price of qualifying equipment if you just tell them FPL sent you.

You'll save money on the cost of a heat pump system. And the system will save you every month on your energy costs.

If you'd like a list of FPL participating independent

Mice get back in win column

CASSELLBERRY — The Paddy McGee Mice softball team got back into the win column in fine fashion as they whalloped Pizza Hut 15-3 in Women's Class C Monday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League action at Red Bug Park.

The loss offset last week's defeat that ended a Mice 22-game winning streak and improved the Mice's record to 6-1 and a tie with Don Covey for the league lead. Next week, the Mice will play the Rebels at 7:30 p.m.

Pitcher Connie Thomas lobbed a five hitter and walked only one, while Karen Kohn led the offense with three hits and five RBIs.

Also contributing were, Teresa Walburger (2-for-2, triple, two runs scored, three RBIs), April Stoner (two singles, three runs), Denise "What's her name" Levinson (two runs) and Terri Mann (one single, three runs scored).

Barber remembered

TALLAHASSEE — The Boys of Summer gathered to say goodbye to former Brooklyn Dodgers broadcaster and Red Barber.

Hall of Famer Pee Wee Reese and Duke Snider, Dodgers president Peter O'Malley and Ralph Branca joined broadcasters Mel Allen and Vin Scully and scores of Barber's friends and family at a memorial service.

Barber, who graduated from Sanford High School, died last Thursday at age 84. The morning service was held in a downtown Episcopal church where Barber and his wife Lyiah had been active for the last 20 years.

Free agents declare

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds, Mark McGwire and Ruben Sierra became free agents and Toronto cleared the way for World Series hero Dave Winfield to join them as baseball's business season began.

Greg Maddux, Doug Drabek, Wade Boggs, Benito Santiago, John Smiley and Chris Bosio were among the 28 players to file for free agency on the first possible day of a 15-day window.

College grad rate up

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. — An NCAA study shows the five-year graduation rate of student-athletes at Division I schools went up 8.4 percent after Proposition 48 went into effect.

NCAA Research Report 92-01 shows the overall graduation rate jumped from 48.1 percent for student-athletes who entered in 1984 or 1985 to 56.5 percent for those who entered school in the fall of 1986.

The study also showed that graduation rates for the two major revenue sports — football and men's basketball — were lower in 1986 than in either of the preceding two years. It showed the overall graduation rate for black male student-athletes increased among 1986 entrants.

Mets acquire Fernandez

NEW YORK — Four-time All-Star shortstop Tony Fernandez was traded from the San Diego Padres to the New York Mets for right-hander Wally Whitehurst, outfielder D.J. Dozier and a minor leaguer to be identified in December.

Fernandez, a 30-year-old switch-hitter, hit .275 with four homers, 37 RBIs and 20 steals in 40 attempts last season.

Whitehurst was 3-9 with a 3.62 ERA in 11 starts and 33 relief appearances. Dozier hit .191 with two RBIs in 47 at-bats for the Mets after hitting .234 with seven homers and 25 RBIs in 64 games for Class AAA Tidewater.

TORONTO — More than 250,000 Toronto Blue Jays fans climbed on traffic lights, hung from windows and jammed traffic to catch a glimpse of Canada's newest heroes.

Traffic was thrown into gridlock for much of the afternoon as screaming fans paid tribute to the World Series champions during a victory parade that crawled to the SkyDome. More than 50,000 others — many of them teen-agers who skipped school — crammed inside the SkyDome.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Clayton's presence rewarded

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — For a half Friday night, it looked as if the Spruce Creek Hawks were going to pull off a surprise victory over the Lake Mary Rams at New Smyrna Beach's Airport Stadium as they ran up and down the field at will against the Rams' defense.

But at the halftime break, the Lake Mary coaching staff decided to put injured star linebacker Paul Clayton into the lineup and the Hawks' running game disappeared.

S.F. to submit another proposal

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — The group trying to keep the San Francisco Giants from moving to Florida said Monday it would submit a new purchase proposal within 48 hours, and baseball's ownership committee called off a meeting scheduled to discuss the situation.

The ownership committee, which reviews all proposed sales and makes recommendations, had scheduled a Tuesday meeting in Chicago, then changed its mind.

"Don't read anything into it," said Milwaukee owner Bud Selig, the chairman of baseball's executive council. "We can either do it by phone or whatever."

NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney said the group made "a further clarification of their previous proposal." Rich Chicotel, a spokesman for investor Walter Shorenstein, said the terms of the new proposal were still in flux.

"It's a very attractive proposal that we've worked with baseball to put together," Chicotel said. "We will have an amended proposal in baseball's hand within 48 hours. ... We've been conversing ever since Friday, and ever since our first offer."

Giants owner Bob Lurie announced Aug. 7 that he had signed a $115 million agreement in principle with Vincent J. Naimoli in which the team would move to the Florida Suncoast Dome in St. Petersburg. However, NL president Bill White said he would accept an offer from a Bay area buyer and present it to owners.

Any deal requires 10 approval votes from NL owners and eight from AL owners.

A group headed by Safeway Inc. chairman Peter Magowan and including Shorenstein made a $95 million counteroffer on Oct. 12. Baseball officials have hinted strongly that the Bay area group must match the Florida offer.

"It's a negotiation," Chicotel said. "They didn't give us a laundry list. It would be simple if we had a laundry list to go through. ... It's not just price. That's one of the items that we're discussing."

Chicotel said the details of the new offer were "not firm yet" and said "it's being negotiated."

"It's very much back and forth," he said, adding that the inclusion of additional investors was a possibility under consideration.

Fred Kuhmann of the St. Louis Cardinals, the ownership committee chairman, said the executive council and ownership committees intend to meet jointly by conference call, but wouldn't say when.

"Nothing should be read into it," he said of the cancellation of Tuesday's session. "Primarily, it's going to be covered in part by a telephone call of the two separate committees, so an in-person meeting will not be necessary."

How to interpret mammogram results

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain what increased density on a mammogram is all about.

DEAR READER: When X-rayed, all tissues give characteristic patterns on X-ray film. The pattern depends on the density of the tissue being examined. For example, bone is extremely dense and will, therefore, absorb more X-rays, leading to a white image on the film. On the other hand, fat is much less dense; more X-rays pass through it to expose the X-ray film and cause a darker image.

The breast is composed of tissues of varying densities: fat, glandular elements, cysts and, in some cases, calcifications. Thus, the X-ray pattern in a mammogram reflects the structures within the breast. It's the radiologist's job to interpret the shadows on the X-ray film and tell the patient's physician whether the images are normal or suspicious. In general, breast cancer is more dense than normal breast tissue -- and may contain tiny flecks of calcium that tip off the radiologist to a potential problem.

The fact that you had an "increased density" on your mammogram is not necessarily worrisome: it simply means that you have some dense tissue in the breast that is probably normal -- but should be followed up with either a repeat mammogram in a few months or a biopsy. Ask your doctor about this. Perhaps a mammogram that is focused on the area in question will give a more defined picture and spare you the need for biopsy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband had his spleen removed about a year ago, and his doctor said it was due to chewing tobacco. Now I'm worried that his kidneys and liver will be affected. What are the chances of this happening? My husband has attempted to quit his habit but has been unsuccessful so far. DEAR READER: I am not aware that chewing tobacco can affect the spleen, an abdominal organ that recycles worn-out red blood cells.

The United States Open Team in the NEC World Team Olympiad included five of the defending champions: Bob Hamman/Bobby Wolff, Jeff Meckstroth/Eric Rodwell and Seymon Deutch. The sixth player, Michael Rosenberg, had replaced the late Jim Jacoby. The American team had no trouble in reaching the final. But then they lost to a strong French quartet.

The prettiest piece of declarer-play in the final was produced by Hamman. Against four spades, West led the heart king, cashed the heart ace and switched to the club nine. Hamman seemed certain to lose four tricks: one spade, two hearts and one club. How did he make one of these losers disappear?

After winning the club switch with his ace, Hamman cashed the two top trumps. He followed by taking the heart queen, discarding a club from the dummy. Now came the key play. Realizing he needed the trick, Hamman cashed the diamond ace and then finessed dummy's diamond jack. When it won, a club was discarded from hand on the diamond king. Hamman continued with the club king. West refused to ruff, so Hamman exited with a trump.

West won, but he had to return a red-suit card, conceding a ruff-and-discard and allowing declarer to avoid a club loser: plus 420 to the USA. All that for a loss of two international matchpoints! At the other table, West didn't pass over one no-trump. In the end, he played in two hearts doubled, going two down for a loss of 500 points.
