Body Of Labor Leader Found In Nevada Mountains

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The naked and partially decomposed body of Nevada labor boss Al Bramlet, covered by rocks and weeds, has been found on a desert mountain southwest of here, almost three weeks to the hour after he vanished.

Positive identification was made through fingerprints, Sgt. Fred Anderson of the Metropolitan Police Department's Homicide and Robbery Division said late Thursday.

An autopsy was scheduled today to determine the cause of death.

Although an informant reportedly told police that Bramlet was shot to death execution-style because he failed to make a payoff in connection with two fire-bombing attempts, police said the motive has not been positively determined.

Anderson said no arrests are imminent.

Energy Proposal A Tough One

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says his proposal for a national energy policy will make his popularity rating plummet because his plan "will substantially change the lifestyle of the American people." Chattering with reporters Thursday night near the end of his first meet-the-people trip, Carter said his energy plan means "some very difficult decisions will have to be made by Congress."

Rockefeller's Portrait Will Be Second-Largest

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, who was governor of New York longer than all but one other New York chief executive, plans to put up the second-largest official portrait near the Rockefeller aides said Thursday that the former governor's official portrait will arrive at the capitol next week to be hung in the marble "hall of governors." Twenty-nine other portraits are hung in the hall.

The painting and frame — measuring 80-by-70 inches — is second in size to the picture of Gov. George Clinton, which hangs in the Capitol's Red Room, the ceremonial office of the governor.

Clinton, the state's first governor, served 18 years. Rockefeller's tenure was 15 years.

Fords Plan Hometown Holiday

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford and his wife, Betty, will spend Easter weekend in Ford's hometown of Grand Rapids after lecturing at the University of Michigan.

Larry Speaks, a Ford aide, said Thursday that preliminary plans call for Ford to arrive in Grand Rapids Good Friday afternoon. He will play some golf, visit friends and attend church Easter Sunday.

The former president will come here from Ann Arbor, where he will deliver one of a series of lectures.

Protesters Heckle Jackie O.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Kennedy Onassis bore the brunt of criticism from a group of about 20 blacks gathered at a street corner near the United Nations Building while President Carter was speaking to U.N. delegates.

As Carter spoke inside, the group chanted "Out of Africa, U.S. out of Africa, CIA" from a nearby street corner.

Suddenly Mrs. Onassis left a building in the vicinity and began crossing the street about 50 feet from the protesters. The chant immediately switched to "Kennedy killed Lumumba," a reference to Patrice Lumumba, former head of the Congolese government.

FORCED LANDING

A private plane made a forced landing in a field in southeast Seminole County around noon today, according to a Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

Passengers from the four-seater aircraft reportedly were taken to a area hospital, but details on any possible injuries were not immediately available.

The pilot reportedly escaped injury.

The plane apparently had engine trouble and came down in a field on Dyke Road, one-quarter mile west of Howell Branch Road, the spokesman said.

Fern Park Mother Identifies Trial Suspect As Rapist

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

A 24-year-old Fern Park mother of two small children stood on the witness stand this morning in circuit court at Sanford and told a six-member jury that George William Girtman, 23, of Orlando, is the man who broke into her apartment the night of Dec. 29 and raped her at knifepoint as she held her small, screaming son.

Girtman, on trial on rape and armed burglary charges, will present an alibi defense, according to defense lawyer William Carpenter, that he was home, 20 miles away, sleeping in bed with a young woman when the rape of the Fern Park woman is alleged to have occurred.

Girtman's trial, expected to extend into the night before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor, may include introduction of evidence by Assistant State Atty. Joel Dick from an earlier trial. Dick has reserved rulings that could allow the jury to hear evidence that Girtman was wearing glasses, a dark blue jacket, and carrying a flashlight on Jan. 14 when he was arrested at the same Fern Park apartment complex by sheriff's detectives.

Another jury last month convicted Girtman on charges of attempted burglary of a young woman's apartment, possession of burglary tools and resisting an officer with violence to his person. Dick said he'll seek to introduce evidence from the earlier trial to show "a common scheme, design and planning."

Today in tearful testimony the 24-year-old woman said she'd fallen asleep watching television in her living room near a Christmas tree when she was awakened by a gloved hand over her mouth and a voice from behind her saying, "Be quiet, don't make any noise." She said her small son, in her lap, began screaming and the man threatened to kill the child with a steak knife if she didn't keep the child quiet.

She said she saw the man, who she says was Girtman, when she bent over to try to put the little boy in his crib. The woman said she fought with her attacker and her clothing was ripped off as held the screaming child and she was raped.

She said after the attacker had jerked out her telephone and fled she was able to hold wires to screws on a wall terminal block and she managed to talk to a telephone operator who reported the rape to police.

The woman testified that she picked Girtman's photo from a number of pictures she was shown by sheriff's detectives about three weeks after she was raped and following Girtman's arrest in the January burglary case.

The woman testified, under cross-examination, that she's filed a $2-million civil damage lawsuit against Girtman, a lock manufacturer and insurance companies.

She said today that when she was awakened by the gloved hand she saw her front door, which had been locked, standing ajar. In the earlier trial there was testimony that Girtman, a cash register mechanic, used a slender metallic "pick-type" tool to try to gain entry to a woman's apartment.

If Girtman is found guilty in the rape and armed burglary trial he could face life imprisonment. Sentencing on the February convictions is scheduled for April 21.

three places, says Camilla, and voters will all be notified if their precinct has changed.

If a person wishes to vote but has not registered there is a form which is filled out, says Camilla, including such data as height, weight, eyes and hair color.

In addition all people who register to vote must take a brief oath. That oath, printed on the registration form, states: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will protect and defend the constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Florida, and that I am qualified to register as an elector under the constitution and laws of the State of Florida." The oath also requires a voter to say whether he has or has not ever been registered elsewhere and to specify not only where he was previously a voter but under what name.

Registered voters may anticipate only limited use of their franchise for a while, says Camilla. "As far as I know there won't be any elections next year," she says.

Camilla has been in office since 1961 and is deeply concerned about some of the changes which may be occurring during these last years prior to her retirement in 1980.

"I understand it is coming down from Jimmy Carter in about three weeks that we are going to have to allow people to register and vote at the polls on election day," says Camilla.

"The governor (Reubin Askew) is himself promoting the registration and voting at the polls," she says. "There is just no way to double check and there seems to be no way to stop people from going from precinct to precinct, voting over and over."

Pancake — Auction: $11,525 & Counting

This year's annual pancake and sausage supper and auction sponsored by the Sanford Kiwanis Club was the most successful yet, according to publicity chairman Floyd Palmer. As of today, gross proceeds from the fund-raising event totaled $11,525.

Some ticket sales are still out and bills yet to be paid and Palmer says it will be a couple of weeks before net proceeds are known. More than 2,000 hungry pancake lovers were served by the club Saturday at the Civic Center.

Chartered in December of 1921, the Sanford club uses the funds to help underprivileged children, worthy college students, and to support church and community building projects.

Zoning Change Allows Apartments

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night gave its approval to a rezoning of a tract south of W. 6th St., between Pecan and Poplar Aves., from R-1 (restricted industrial) to MR-2 (multiple family residential) for the proposed construction of three single family residences.

E.C. Harper requested the zoning. He explained he intended to sell the property to Joe Yogan of Y Enterprises, who would build the homes.

The rezoning must now be approved by the city commission.

In other actions Thursday night, the zoning board: — Approved a condition use requested by swimming pool builder Keith Abney to use his home telephone at 2102 Chase Ave. in his business.

— Approved a conditional use requested by Semmie Long of 3502 W. 7th St. to use his home telephone in his business, publishing a small newspaper.

— Approved a site plan for a new building on the northeast corner of Park Drive — ask Ave. to house Smith's Snapping Turtle lawnmower shop. The new location is across the street from the shop's present location.

— Approved a conditional use at the request of Roy Kennedy to construct and operate an automotive machine shop on a commercially-zoned lot at 21th Place and Palmetto Ave. Under terms of the zoning board's approval, the shop could operate only during the day, and no storage outside the building would be permitted.

Carter Cuts Of Water, Dam Projects Raising Eyebrows On Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — That folkay Jimmy Carter who turned up in New England the other night showed only one side of his presidential profile. On the other is a rigid, uncompromising President, challenging Congress on what, at the capitol, is almost as sacred as motherhood.

And the Carter who asked the people to help him avoid and correct his mistakes is not about to concede that he made one when he took out after dam and water projects dear to congressional hearts.

It appears that he did err, at least tactically, in the way he went about it. "He's alienating his natural allies," said a Democratic senator who counts himself among them.

To make amends, Carter wrote members of Congress on Wednesday that in the future, they will be consulted before the administration moves to drop funds for dams or similar projects in their areas.

But he hasn't yielded on the first round of cuts, despite angry protests to his face, a loquacious Senate vote against his plan and the prospect that the House will line up that way, too. "He's dead serious about this," an administration official said. "He was right."

So are some of the most powerful men in the Senate and the House, which draws the lines for the Carter administration.

The dispute began with Carter's budget decision to cut nearly $200 million earmarked for 19 dams and other water projects next year, pending a review of their environmental and economic merits, and of their safety. Carter said they all turned out to be "junk" projects. Carter ordered new hearings on the merits of the projects under stringent economic, environmental and safety standards.

The administration has since announced that 325 projects are under review. Carter said the vast majority of them will be approved. Next summer, there's to be a review of more than 1,100 smaller projects.

The cuts and the reviews are in fulfillment of two campaign promises: to balance the budget by 1981 and to change the way the government goes about building dams and diverting waterways.

Stereo Equipment Stolen From Home

Seminole sheriff's deputies today are investigating the reported theft of $1,348 in stereo and recording equipment in a burglary at the residence of Steven Florey, 1295 Hillcrest St., Altamonte Springs.

Deputy Jim Hibbard reported the equipment, apparently was taken after burglars entered the residence by prying open a window. The equipment included a stereo, a boombox, a record player and a cassette player.

Roger Smithson reported to deputies that his trailer home was burglarized at a location off Duval Road in southeast Seminole and listed as missing a rifle, a pistol, $100 cash and an amount of liquor, according to deputy H.E. Ache.

Deputies reported a $250 three-foot-tall sculpture of bronze, brass and fiberglass was reported stolen from outside the Geneva studio of Cecil D. Herring.

Deputies said William Kahn of Altamonte Springs reported a sofa, lawn edger and two driftwood wall planters, total value $470, missing after a burglary at a vacant house at 105 Northwoods Drive, Meredith Manor, west of Longwood.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Taken From Florida Hospital, 4-Year-Old Safe In Texas

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Doctors at a Galveston hospital say a 4-year-old girl, missing since Sunday when secretly taken by her father from a Florida hospital, is in good condition.

Police Lt. Edwin Goad of the nearby Pasadena, Tex., said he drove Wanda Thornton and her father, Lloyd Thornton, the 30 miles to John Sealy Hospital Thursday night after being contacted by a friend of Thornton.

"The baby was in the back seat of my car and very playful and happy all the way to Galveston," Goad said.

Hospital officials said the girl was in "very good health" after an examination and was released in the custody of her father.

Jury Finds Sex Killer Guilty

FORT MYERS (AP) — After listening to Arthur Goode's bizarre description of how he raped and murdered a 9-year-old boy, a jury granted his request and found him guilty of first-degree murder.

The eight-man, four-woman jury huddles again today to decide whether to recommend another request by the 23-year-old confessed murderer — death by the electric chair.

"I want to die in the electric chair," Goode said in his final arguments Thursday. Just 2½ hours later, the jury found him guilty of slaying Jason VerDow of Cape Coral on March 5, 1976.

5 Homes Radiated, Not 50

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — State officials say dangerous radiation levels have been found in five homes built on reclaimed phosphate land, not the 50 as reported by The Tampa Tribune.

The Tribune had reported that an interim study found that 30 out of 1,000 homes tested had radiation levels exceeding guidelines issued by the U.S. surgeon general's office.

But Wallace Johnson, director of Florida's radiological laboratory in Orlando, said Thursday that the newspaper had misinterpreted the report. He said only five homes had been pinpointed as having the high radiation levels.

Dipsy (Tipsy?) Dumpster Found

PALATKA (AP) — If you can't locate one of the giant green dumpsters that Putnam County put out for trash collections, it's probably being used to make moonshine.

Two Division of Beverage officers Thursday found one of the missing 500-gallon buses deep in a swampy area six miles west of Interlachen.

The bin had been converted into a "groundhog cooker." The top of the rectangular-shaped box had been welded shut and a hole was cut in the top with an acetylene torch. It was equipped with coil and condenser needed to convert mash to shine.

Mayor Ticketed — Again

OPA-LOCKA (AP) — "I still feel like I'm being harassed," said Opa-locka Mayor Candido Giardino after he was stopped and ticketed the second time this month for driving with a suspended license.

It was Sgt. James P. Brogan who stopped the mayor the first time, on March 5. He issued two citations — one for driving without a valid inspection sticker and another for driving with a suspended license.

Thursday it was Patrolman George Covet, 28, a four-year veteran.

Using his discretion, he decided to arrest the mayor.

Here's Legislature Number

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — You can check up on the Florida Legislature by dialing 800-342-1827.

That's the number of the tollfree telephone line provided by the legislature to answer questions from citizens.

Operating from March 28 through June 17, the service provides information on legislative committee schedules and action by the governor on bills.

Broaden Wiretap Law

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Florida's wiretapping law should be broadened to allow a person to tape record a telephone conversation without the other person's consent, an influential senator says.

Ed Dunn, chairman of the Senate Judiciary-Criminal Committee, said Thursday that investigative reporters would get the most benefits from the proposal.

The current law now requires consent from all parties before a phone call can be taped.

'Shoot-To-Kill' Backers Lack Needed Votes

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Lawmakers probably won't be able to rally enough votes this year to overcome Gov. Reubin Askew's veto of the controversial "shoot-to-kill" bill, says a major proponent of the measure.

Rep. Eric Smith said Thursday that he has heard of no major efforts to make the bill law in spite of Askew's veto last year.

"My hunch is that they won't be able to override the governor unless there is a little pressure and the same newspapers that editorialized against it last year editorialize against it this year," said Smith, D-Jacksonville.

The bill expanded the law governing the circumstances in which a homeowner could use deadly force to protect himself and his property. It allowed the use of deadly force to halt people breaking into a home or lurking in the area. It also allowed the slaying of criminals trying to escape after a forcible felony.

However, it removed a longstanding requirement that a person using deadly force must have cause to reasonably believe that such force is necessary.

The bill passed the Senate 26-11 and won its major House test 72-30, more than the two-thirds vote required to overturn a governor's veto.

Smith said lawmakers should start from scratch on a new bill, and Sen. Henry Sawyer, R-S. Petersburg, has introduced such a bill this year.

Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin, an avowed opponent of last year's bill, agreed that an override appears unlikely this year. He also said he would oppose such a move because the bill requires that the person using deadly force believe it necessary to protect his property.

However, he said he had prepared a compromise measure that includes that provision. He didn't recommend it in his legislative package because the issue was so divisive last year, he said.

"You could shoot first and ask questions later and I thought that was too loose," Shevin said.

Stronger Health Plan Laws Urged

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The legislature needs to pass more stringent laws to put teeth into the regulation of prepaid health plans, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter says.

Gunter said Thursday that the law does not give his office enough power to sufficiently regulate the relatively new industry.

"The legislature must consider amending the current law to provide more stringent guidelines to protect the public," Gunter told a Senate hearing.

Although Gunter can move against clinics which set up health maintenance organizations (HMO) by revoking their license, other clinics are running such plans and not bothering to get licensed, he said.

All that can be done in that case is refer the matter to the state attorney's office, he said.

An HMO is a pre-paid health plan which guarantees the purchaser medical care for a specified length of time.

The Florida law enabling such programs was passed in 1972, but only eight organizations have been licensed since then, Gunter said.

He said one stopped operating after experiencing serious financial difficulties and two others were currently experiencing financial trouble.

Gunter said the requirements on the amount of financing needed to set up the organization were ambiguous.

"The financial incentives in the law are contrary to what we want them to be. The sickler you are, the more money the medical system makes," he said.

Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami, said that despite slow public acceptance so far and resistance by some doctors, he believed the HMOs had the best chance of holding down health costs.

He said the current situation places little incentive on holding down medical costs since doctors and hospitals get paid for the more they do.

But in HMOs, the emphasis is on preventative medicine since the doctor receives his fee in advance and recognizes no additional payments for serious illnesses.

"The financial incentives in the law are contrary to what we want them to be. The sickler you are, the more money the medical system makes," he said.

Jax Faces Deadline On Hiring Women

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — The City of Jacksonville is under notice it must hire 2 percent of Jacksonville's police force as female and only 7.5 per cent as black.

It said the fire department is only 4.3 per cent female and 6.3 per cent black.

As for the specified goal of 41 per cent women in these two departments, Tansler said, "It's not only not going to happen, there's no way it can happen."

Joanna D. Tully, director of the federal agency, asked the city to respond within 60 days with a plan for meeting the goals of 41 per cent women and 22.3 per cent blacks in police and fire departments.

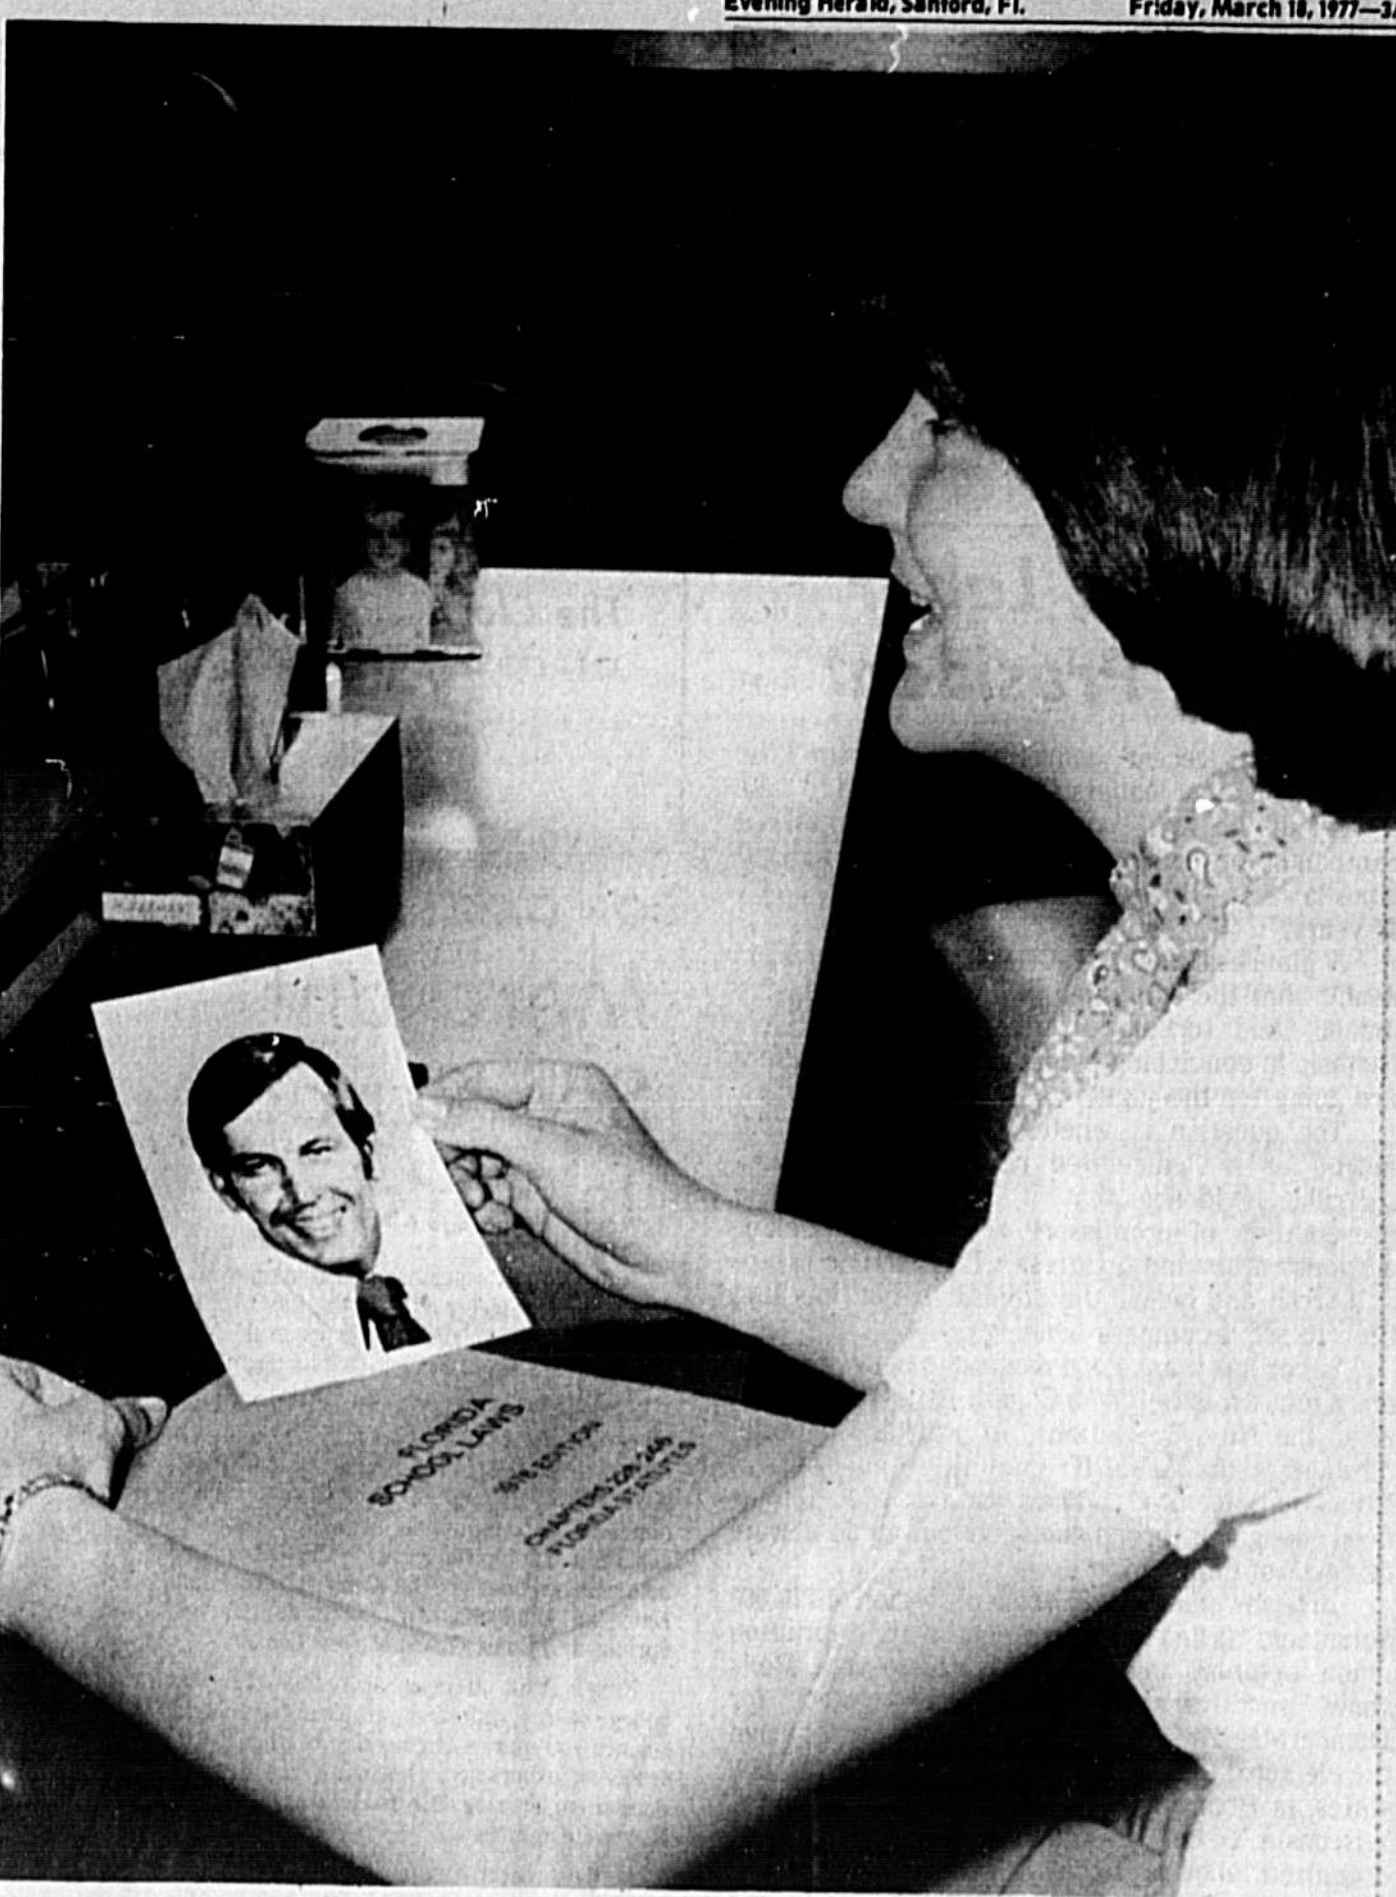

The letter said only 2 percent of Jacksonville's police force is female and only 7.5 per cent as black.

It said the fire department is only 4.3 per cent female and 6.3 per cent black.

As for the specified goal of 41 per cent women in these two departments, Tansler said, "It's not only not going to happen, there's no way it can happen."

He said most women are physically incapable of handling the jobs policemen and firemen have to do.

City Councilman Rodney Hurd said he thinks the mayor is taking the federal warning too lightly.

Seminole High School senior Sally Oyler brushes up on some of the Florida statutes she may be working with when she joins Sen. Vince Fechtel's Tallahassee office for a week next month. Sally was selected as the county's representative in the legislative internship program by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the program. She'll begin April 4 — carrying messages, sitting in on legislative sessions and researching material. Sally, daughter of Mrs. Mary Oyler of Sanford and William Oyler of Hammond, Ind., works for the Sanford law firm of Hutchison and Morris and has dreams of being a lawyer. Last fall she worked in the congressional primary campaign of Don Reynolds, Seminole High School principal.

Boop! Bulldozer, Truck Disappear Into Sewage

MIAMI (AP) — When a 45,000-pound bulldozer and a 12-wheel dump truck slowly disappeared into a reservoir of treated sewage, city workers were fishing. But they couldn't catch the big ones.

"It was just like a pie crust out there," said Charlie McCoy, who watched the bulldozer and dump truck sink into the sludge.

It started when Jim Pinkerton backed up his rig to dump a load of rock onto a trash pile. A wheel sank, so Charlie McCoy came over with his bulldozer to level a hand.

"And then all the (tires) started to go down," Pinkerton said. "The sludge is sort of like an underground river out there and it started bubbling up all over."

"I was trying to save the bulldozer," McCoy said. "Then I saw the water coming up on my seat floor, and I thought, now is the time to leave. The water came in like Niagara Falls."

"We jumped," said Pinkerton. "And then it just went 'BOOP' — just like that, and it was gone," McCoy said.

That happened last Saturday, and by Thursday the two heavy pieces of equipment valued at nearly $100,000 remained lost — submerged somewhere in the Virginia Key sewage and trash dump.

High-pressure hoses washed away at least three-feet of the silt. But no sign of the bulldozer and dump truck. The sludge was pumped out. Still no sign of the missing diesel power.

IOUs Due, Labor Testing President

At their recent convention in Miami the nation's top labor leaders said they decided to take a "calculated risk" and embark on an all-out campaign for comprehensive reform of federal labor laws. It will be the first such effort in the last 42 years.

A glance at the AFL-CIO demands leaves no doubts that the campaign will be comprehensive indeed. And turning an ear to the chieftain's rhetoric is convincing evidence that labor leaders are going for the jugular.

The question is whether the campaign will indeed be a "calculated risk." There is considerable evidence that it might be more a presentation of promissory notes to the Carter administration and Congress while memories are still fresh and before the administration has had time to set a compass heading.

Labor has many good reasons to believe that it has a harvest of IOUs in the Capitol Hill. Not too long after the Nov. 2 elections, Al Barkan, national director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, declared: "The sweetness of victory is deep enough and broad enough to put me in a state of political euphoria."

In terms of numbers, Barkan's legion of 120,000 volunteers turned out 65 per cent of the 14 million union members who are registered to vote. Polls show an overwhelming number voted for Democrats. The AFL-CIO believes that it turned the electoral tide for President Carter in such key states as Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Texas, Missouri and Ohio. Additionally, organized labor says that 70 per cent of the candidates it endorsed were elected to the House and Senate.

For its expenditure of effort and treasure, the AFL-CIO hopes to chisel into federal law such measures as compulsory union membership in organized industries, approval of secondary boycotts at construction sites, loosening of laws that proscribe political activity by federal workers, federally established collective bargaining rules for state and city employees, a federal farm labor law, greater use of U.S. ships in hauling oil, a $3 per hour minimum wage, a 35-hour workweek and various appropriations to create public jobs.

Individually, some of these measures may have merit. Collectively they would put organized labor indelibly into the political driver's seat and career the United States further toward the hopeless economic condition that is visible today in Britain. Once labor laws reach the degree of federalization asked by the AFL-CIO, future changes would be relatively easy for power-empowered labor leaders.

The decision on whether organized labor gets the whole pie rests with President Carter. While labor-backed candidates did make great inroads into the ranks of Congress, they probably could not muster enough votes to override a presidential veto.

During the first press conference after he assumed office, Mr. Carter said he was fortunate because he had a "minimum of obligations" to anybody. Soon, we shall see.

SALT Real Problem

President Jimmy Carter has obliged Americans and their allies to be a bit more specific about what they hope to achieve, and realistic about what can be achieved, in their relations with the Soviet Union. Human rights there are important. Another agreement on strategic arms limitation, and a third agreement after that, are important. But are they part of the same bundle? Is it so tough towards the Kremlin to tackle SALT at one meeting and dissidents at another meeting in another room? Must insistence—or rather, because we are not in a position to insist, steady pressure—for the Western interpretation of Helsinki's prejudice disarmament? President Carter thinks not.

A lot that is still left uncertain about American intentions on human rights may become clearer as the presidency proceeds, but in the meantime Mr. Brezhnev has acted with the instincts of the Soviet bureaucrat; when faced with something new. He has arrested four important critics of the regime and expelled the Associated Press correspondent. The test of Mr. Carter's separation of human rights from the "hard" items on the agenda, is not only whether it will work but whether it will work better than previous approaches.

BERRY'S WORLD

By ED PRICKETT

David Korreich is a bully boy. David Korreich is a self-described "hit man." David Korreich is Seminole County's labor attorney.

Ask Korreich, and he'll tell you he's tough. He'll also tell you he knows a lot about what he's doing. For a high price he works for governmental entities, and his main task is to settle labor disputes.

Korreich claims he doesn't save newspaper articles about him anymore. That's because he said they always misquote him. So, the only fair thing to do is to write a column about Korreich, not use one quote, and that way he can't claim to be misquoted. The only fair thing he could do in return is say, "Is that the way I appear to an observer?"

Okay, let's look at him. First off he tells a group of county firemen about his credentials (I won't go into them) but they include graduate degrees from several universities. Then he slips in the fact that his daddy was a union man. Get the little rapport going with the audience. Then he tells everyone how tough he is. And how it's all over if they have to face him across a negotiating table. He's done it all before, you see, and knows the rules inside and out and has no inhibitions about slipping you in the face with the rules when the occasion permits.

His delivery is straight from Speech 101, but it's good. He looks better than most men should. His clean-cut appearance is right out of Micromystical. But he coaches his language in terms unionmen can understand. Clean-cut to please management; salty language to identify with unionmen.

He's a bully-boy, alright. His message is pretty simple. Firemen should think what's going to put dollars in their pockets. Forget paternalism. It's not important. Philosophy? That's not important, either. What is important is what a union do for firemen? Management can do more. If you don't believe it, ask Korreich.

He hits you with the message that he's an individual. Doesn't need any organization taking care of him. But the truth is the organization does take care of him. County government pays people like Korreich a handsome salary to keep unions out, or try to.

And that's okay. Because Korreich, at his best, is society's paid hired man who defends the status quo. At his worst he's a "hit man," a mercenary paid to do battle against the forces of unionism. Smart people these Korreichs. They've learned a lot. Somewhere, also, they know the real bottom line is philosophical. It's who has the clout. Let a union in, and out goes paternalism. Out goes power. Whether that's good or bad depends on who's losing power—or gaining it.

He's good, Korreich. He just smotherals audiences right smackdab into believing what he wants them to. That's neat. Any way you look at it it's neat. But you've got to look past language and get into what the man is doing. And what he does is work for government. His job is to keep unions out.

He's good at it. He's the best huckster since Billy Sunday. If you don't believe it, ask him...

RONALD REAGAN Promises To Gunmen Immoral

Whoever advised President Carter last week to satisfy that Ohio gunman's demand for a telephone call from the White House should have his head examined.

But the President wasn't the only one getting bad advice last week. When those crazed fanatics who stood Washington, D.C. on its head—killing one person, injuring several others and holding 134 hostages for two days—finally surrendered, the police led the leader of the group free without a bail!

It was different in Indiana last month. When a terrorist kidnaped his real estate broker and took a shotgun to his neck, then demanded a crack at television prime time and immunity from prosecution, the authorities had a better idea. Promise him anything, but give him handcuffs, they reasoned. Only a few days later, the police led the kidnaper to a prison cell.

Immoral to break such a promise? I didn't think so. The normal rules are suspended when it's a question of capturing madmen in order to save innocent lives.

Some psychologists and psychiatrists say that we can never put a stop to these occasionally contagious outbreaks of terrorism and hostage-taking until the American people let it be known they don't like this kind of entertainment on television. Maybe so, but it is useless to argue whether the chicken or the egg came first.

If the nation's television assignment editors and radio news directors would take a collective deep breath and declare a moratorium on live coverage of terrorist events during the commission of the crime, they would be cutting off the source of inspiration for an untold number of loose nuts who harbor similar crazy ideas.

Marshall McLuhan was right. When it comes to lunatic acts of terrorism involving kidnapping, hostage-taking and outrageous demands, the medium is the message. Most people today get their headlines from television and radio. There is nothing that any but a tiny few can do about such events when they are in progress. For the rest, it amounts to entertainment—morbid as that may seem. The media are doing nothing to advance the public good by giving madmen press conferences.

Law enforcement authorities and elected officials could benefit from a deep breath on this issue, too. The time has come to make it known to one and all that terrorists' demands will not be honored. For every demand that is honored, who knows how many others are fermenting in sick minds facing television sets?

Shoot outs we don't need, and the authorities at the center of three delicate confrontations—such as the one faced in Washington last week—need all the moral support they can get, but let us not forget Entebbe. Publicly, the Israelis appeared to be ready to knuckle under to the hijackers' demands just before they pulled off their rescue operation.

The Indiana authorities didn't forget. They promised the gunman immunity. They gave him handcuffs.

WORLD IN BRIEF Moslems Kill 200 Christians To Avenge Chieftan's Death

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Enraged Druze Moslem tribesmen have killed more than 200 Christian villagers to avenge the assassination of their chieftain, leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt, police said today. Dozens more Christians were reported kidnapped by angry Moslems after Jumblatt died Wednesday in an ambush on a mountain road in his native Druze country southeast of Beirut.

MIA Remains Turned Over

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Vietnamese government today gave a U.S. presidential commission human remains it said were those of 12 American pilots killed during the Vietnam War, diplomatic sources in touch with Hanoi reported today.

The diplomats said the remains were handed over at the end of the Americans' last meeting with Vietnamese officials. The Americans will give a dinner for their hosts tonight and fly to Vientiane, Laos, on Saturday to seek information about missing American pilots who were shot down in that Indochinese country during the war.

Mine Capture Report Denied

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — President Mobutu Sese Seko's government today denied reports that invaders from Angola captured the copper mining center of Kolwezi, and diplomatic sources confirmed the denial. The diplomats said the invaders, believed to be forces of Mobutu's Zaire, were reported about 90 miles west of Kolwezi. They were advancing eastward and meeting little if any resistance.

Guatemala Rejects U.S. Aid

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Guatemala's government has become the fifth Latin American military regime to reject U.S. military aid because of attempts to link it to respect for human rights. An estimated $75 million is involved in the grants and credit programs rejected by the five countries. Guatemala gave up its aid programs Thursday, while Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay and El Salvador took the same step earlier.

Critic Urges Kickback Probe

FREDERICTON (AP) — Financial critic Joseph Daigle has challenged the New Brunswick government either to call an election or set up a full public inquiry into kickback charges by Opposition Leader Robert Higgins. Speaking in the legislature Thursday, Daigle, L-Kent North, said his party rejects a planned judicial inquiry solely into Higgins' other charges that the justice department interfered in police investigations for political purposes.

relations between the Communist regime and its former battlefield enemy. The Americans have met with Vietnamese who expected the United States to do that 30 years ago, after World War II. One was Premier Pham Van Dong. Now an erect, white-haired old man, in those days he was a wiry youthful aide to Ho Chi Minh, working with American OSS agents against the Japanese.

Another such was Phung Cong Du, now a senior official of the Foreign Ministry. At a dinner for the Americans Thursday night, he told of res-

Lake Mary Takes First Annexation Step

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Council Thursday night began legal procedures to annex 1,450 acres west of Interstate 4 and north of Lake Mary Boulevard as requested by a group of property owners, including industrialist Jeno Paulucci.

The council instructed City Attorney Gary Massey to prepare the proper ordinances and advertising for the annexation after Don Rathel, representing the owners, asked that the tract be included within Lake Mary's city bounds.

Rathel said the owners are not asking for any change of zoning from the planned unit development (PUD) and industrial already designated for the property. He said no islands will be created by the annexation and that the owners are "very much interested in becoming part of Lake Mary."

Included within the 1,450 acre parcel is the Heathrow PUD. In other business, Councilman Burt Perinchief asked colleague Lillian Griffin, chairman of the public works department, and Police Chief Harry Benson to conduct a study on the costs and feasibility of installing a traffic signal at Lake Emma Road and Lake Mary Boulevard.

Mayor Walter Sorenson read into the record a letter from the National Cash Register Co. (NCR) asking that the traffic signal be installed at the intersection. The letter said that as the plant's nearly 850 employees leave at the 4 p.m. quitting time daily, traffic jams and minor accidents occur.

The council agreed to pay employees who must use their own cars for city business at the rate of 14 cents per mile until it is determined whether to buy a city vehicle for their use.

Councilman DeLorez Lash cast the only negative vote on the issue, saying it costs 25 cents to 30 cents per mile to operate a car considering, gas, oil, maintenance, parts and insurance.

She asked Councilman Harry Terry if the city could force an employee to use his car if he does not wish to.

Terry responded that, if the city cannot acquire a vehicle at this time and the employee won't use his own car, the city would have to consider letting the employee go.

The council approved payment of $2,800 to consulting engineers, Clark, Dietz and Associates for work for various city departments including applications for federal funding for the water system.

A workshop was scheduled for April 12 at 7:30 p.m. on salary schedules for city employees and councilmen were reminded that a public hearing on the city's proposed land use plan will be held by the planning and zoning board at 6 p.m., Tuesday.

A workshop on the current year's budget was set for 7:30 p.m. March 31.

Diehard Condemned Trio Fights Clemency Procedures

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Attorneys for three men sentenced to death in the electric chair have appealed the dismissal of their suit challenging the cabinet's clemency procedures. They asked the Florida Supreme Court to delay the clemency hearings now set for March 29-29. The three prisoners are among six condemned men whose cases are to be considered by the Cabinet.

The suit had been dismissed earlier Thursday by Circuit Judge Donald Hartwell of Tallahassee.

The three are Leatrice Leo Alford, 31, of West Palm Beach, who raped and murdered a 13-year-old girl; Gary Eldon Alford, 29, of Tampa, who strangled a young Tampa woman, her mother and Homestead restaurant manager.

Hartwell said in dismissing the suit that the courts had no jurisdiction under the constitutional separation of powers to interfere in proceedings of executive-branch officials.

"This court feels that this is an unrestricted executive privilege and under the doctrine of separation of powers, it is a right and privilege to be exercised solely by the executive of this state," he said.

Denis Dean, an attorney for the condemned prisoners, argued unsuccessfully before Hartwell that the procedures violated constitutional guarantees of due process.

He said the procedures should be overturned because: —Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin would participate after urging courts to uphold death sentences.

—Prisoners whose fate was being considered by the Cabinet would not be allowed to attend the hearings.

—There were no guidelines or standards for the lawyers who would appear before the Cabinet for 30-minute arguments on whether a prisoner's death sentence should be carried out.

But Hartwell challenged Dean's assertion that the Cabinet had to establish standards on which to base its clemency decisions in order to assure fairness.

"But do they have to be fair at all? Can't mercy be totally arbitrary, not meet any standards at all?" the judge asked.

He said standards could defeat the purpose of clemency hearings by making it impossible for the attorney and Cabinet to spare a condemned prisoner's life for arbitrary or capricious reasons.

The Parole and Probation Commission has recommended sparing the life of Clifford Hallman, one of the six men involved in the first set of hearings. The commission said the life of Eleanor Jean Graves, a Tampa barmaid whose throat Hallman slashed with broken glass, could have been saved by better medical treatment.

The commission recommended carrying out the death sentences of the other five men.

It takes the vote of Gov. Reubin Askew and three Cabinet members to spare the life of a person sentenced to death.

DON OAKLEY Merchant Sea School Is Sinking

So low in the water has this country's merchant marine fleet sunk that the future of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy itself is in doubt. Critics say it has outlived its usefulness.

Established in 1938, just in time to graduate officers who shipped during World War I to U-boat-battered Britain, the King's Point, N.Y., school is one of five federal service academies, attendance at which requires congressional appointment. (The other and better known ones are the Army at West Point, Navy at Annapolis, Air Force at Colorado Springs and Coast Guard at New London.)

King's Point offers an accredited four-year college degree, with strong emphasis on nautical science and marine engineering combined with sea-going experience. Graduates are licensed deck or engineering officers and hold U.S. Naval Reserve commissions.

At the present time, education at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy is free, as it is at the other service academies. During the Ford administration, however, a bill was drafted calling for tuition and board to be paid for by the King's Point cadet corps.

Supporters of the academy point out that the $37,000 cost for four years of education at King's Point is far below what the federal government spends to maintain cadets at the other academies and that imposing this cost on the merchant marine cadets would virtually seal the fate of King's Point.

Admittedly, there are fewer than 600 U.S. flag-carrying merchant vessels afloat today. But King's Point graduates have traditionally provided administrative personnel for the nation's ports and terminals, as well as specialists in admiralty law and marine insurance and officers for the tugs and barges plying the nation's inland waterways.

It's also argued that by 1990, retirements among the post-World War II generation of merchant marine officers will create a surge of vacancies, and that there would be fewer academies at sea including oil spills, if the men at the helm had a thorough four-year training instead of one-year cram courses available through other training courses.

Since 1970, about 12 million cars and trucks have been involved in safety defect recall campaigns. Even though the cost of correcting defects is borne by the manufacturer, in a third of these cases—or about four million vehicles—the owners have never bothered to bring them in for inspection.

Fortunately, this does not necessarily mean there are that many unsafe vehicles on the road. General Motors, for example, reported 1.2 million cars and trucks in 1974 and found only 1,200 or one-tenth of one per cent, actually needed correction.

JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN Defense Yells 'Tilt' Against State Dept.

WASHINGTON — In the diplomatic backrooms along Embassy Row, the State Department has long been accused of "tilting" toward the Arab countries.

Now, the Pentagon has joined the chorus, charging that "anti-Israel bias" in the State Department has torpedoed an important sale of Israeli fighter planes to Latin America.

A bitter, confidential Pentagon briefing paper bluntly warns that the international reputation will cause the United States to lose influence to the Soviet Union.

We have pieced together the details of the highly sensitive negotiations. The Israelis, trying to repair their wounded economy, arranged to sell 24 of their sophisticated Kir fighter-bombers to Ecuador.

Because the Israeli planes contain American-made motors built by General Electric, however, the Jewish state needed U.S. approval to make the sale. But the Israelis repeatedly were assured that this would not be a problem. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger twice discussed the sale with Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres and reportedly offered his encouragement, sources said.

Yet after the Carter administration took office, the State Department, with President Carter's personal approval, promptly vetoed the sale. A spokesman said the deal "went counter to our policy against the sale of ad-

THE LONDON ECONOMIST Canada Faces Last Chance

If Canada breaks up, the United States will have a sort of Caribbean to its north as well as the Caribbean already has to the south.

If Quebec pulls out, it is unlikely that the rest of the Canadian confederation will hold together; its component parts will be more susceptible than ever to Canada's internal east-west tensions and to the gravitational pull from the south.

True, Canada has always been a triumph over geography, but not even Canadians could be expected to maintain a unity stretching 3,000 miles from Newfoundland to Vancouver if there were a gaping hole in the middle of it.

If, however, it still the key word, The separatist Parti Quebecois won a sweeping victory in the recent Quebec election and will now take over the government of the province. The party was founded eight years ago by Rene Levesque to fight for independence, and it remains committed to that goal.

But Levesque has always insisted that he wants to persuade Quebec into independence, not to hustle it; and it is not yet persuaded. Recent opinion polls have indicated that three out of five Quebecers are against independence, and in the election a similar proportion voted for parties that support continued confederation.

Levesque's party has gained ground in each election since its formation, winning 23 per cent of the votes in 1970, 31 per cent in 1973 and 41 per cent this year. But it owned some part of its latest success to the way it chose to fight this election mainly by attacking the unimpressive record of Robert Bourassa's Liberal government and to play down the question of independence.

After the election, Levesque repeated his campaign promise that he would stay his hand until he had put this question to the Quebecers in a referendum, and that if they then voted against independence he would accept their decision, reserving only the right to put the question again later if they kept him in office.

He has no wish to take the plunge and until it is clearly the will of the majority that he should do so. He said the vote would be held about halfway through his five-year term.

Two years is a long time in politics, in Canada as elsewhere. By the time the promised referendum is held, the separatists may hope to benefit from the leverage and the credibility conferred by a period in office — two factors of particular importance for a new party that has never governed before.

They may, however, have proved just as powerless as the Bourassa government to haul Quebec out of its present plight of economic stagnation and heavy unemployment. A province run by declared separatists will not attract much investment (not even from France) and can hardly count on the economic benevolence — worth well over $1 billion a year — that has been bestowed on a Liberal-run Quebec by a Liberal government in the federal capital of Ottawa.

But Carter, who has pledged to reduce American arms sales worldwide, isn't budging.

NUCLEAR PROPAGANDA: The difference between the government's energy officials and the executives they regulate often is so hazy you can't tell them apart without a scorecard.

Some energy officials are so close to the government that they have been known to launch a public relations campaign for atomic power. The taxpayers would have footed the bill for the propaganda campaign, but the giant corporations and private utilities would have reaped the profits.

The short-lived effort began in September, 1975, when Federal Energy assistant administrator Gorman Smith urged the agency to establish an office to promote nuclear power. Ostensibly, the FEA office would merely analyze and formulate policy.

But the office secretly drew up plans to brainwash the public with a strident pro-nuclear campaign. It included an all-out media blitz against opposition bills, the referendum to keep nuclear power plants out of California.

The confidential battle plan included sending government officials to influence the editorial boards of California's largest newspapers. The publicity value of radio and television appearances also was weighed.

The agency planned to provide speakers to pro-nuclear groups. It hoped to recruit supporters of former California Gov. Pat Brown and ex-California congressman to spread the nuclear message. And it devised a "Red Ball Campaign" to argue that nuclear power, the only clean alternative for the increasingly polluted West Coast.

The secret campaign, conceived under then-PEA chief Frank Zarb, also targeted Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico corporations and individuals. It included radio and speeches by top agency officials. A plan was also drawn up to persuade young children of the benefits of nuclear energy through school programs. The total bill to the taxpayers for the ad campaign would have been $200,000.

However, Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., snuffed out the funding for the office when he discovered it would be nothing but a shell for the nuclear industry. The persistent Zarb tried to revive the office, but his attempt was thwarted by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. Although the office was formally abolished, Zarb helped persuade California voters to allow nuclear development.

Footnote: An FEA spokesman told us that at the time, "an educational effort was (though) necessary to make the citizens aware of nuclear energy alternatives." Gorman Smith, who first proposed the nuclear office, now says he doesn't think the FEA should promote the nuclear industry.

Protect your Home and Family

To stop crime before it starts... You should:
Double check the identity of callers you don't know.
Install deadbolt locks on outside doors.
Avoid dark streets at night. Stay away from doorways or alley entrances. Walk purposefully.
See that your children know the ruses of molesters... and your children.
Report suspicious strangers.
Park at night in well lighted spots.
Keep valuables carried in your auto out of sight.
Lock the car when you leave it.
Always look inside your car before you enter it.
Stop deliveries when you leave for a trip.
Put the door key in a safe (not obvious) spot.
Lock the garage when the car is out.
And this is just the start.
Your police department can give you tips on preventing almost every kind of crime; tips that work. Let them help you make your home and city safe.

Oral Roberts
Question: Not long ago while shopping in a department store, I was annoyed by the indifference of one of the clerks, who obviously couldn't be bothered to wait on customers. She was so careless that she even gave me several dollars too much change. Although I noticed her mistake, I didn't correct it. At the time I felt it served her right and might make her more careful in the future. But somehow I don't feel right about this now, and I'd like your opinion.
Answer: My answer is that you were wrong not to have corrected the mistake at the time. I think honesty is an all or nothing affair, a decision a person makes to be truthful in everything, big or little.
Until we really decide to base our lives on the truth, we're continually justifying and rationalizing "harmless little white lies." We reason away our untruthful behavior by saying we're teaching someone a lesson or we've been overcharged plenty of other times. We accept credit for what we don't do and refuse blame for what we do. We find it easy to justify cheating a little on an income tax return or on an insurance claim by saying everybody else does it or the insurance company can afford it. And then we go on to talk about how this country is going to the dogs and how no one is honest today or cares about doing a good job anymore.
I think all of this is nothing more than camouflage for doing what deep down we know is less than honest. And dishonesty and eventually affects every aspect of a person's life. The dangerous thing about dishonesty is that it's contagious. It quickly gets a firm hold, and it's hard to cure. Compromising in small matters can lead to a completely dishonest way of life.
"Show a thought, reap an action."
"Show an action, reap a habit."
"Show a habit, reap a life."
"Show a life, reap a destiny."
A person who doesn't steal because he might get caught has what I call a "cheating spirit." And when the right time comes, he'll let out that spirit. A person really has to take a strong stand against any and all dishonesty, big and little. A person really has to make a firm decision to base his life on a foundation of truth. Then you won't be swayed by others or tempted by desire or influenced by circumstances. When you've made up your mind, when you've settled the issue, you'll find it easier to resist temptation.

Passages Of The Christian Life
By DAVID POLING
Gail Sheehy says that the chief virtue of middle age is experience. And the chief virtue of middle-aged Christians is the awareness that they do not have all the answers, that their lives include some major accidents in motive and behavior, that they are in constant need of recovery and renewal. The Koreans have a saying: "Pain makes men think, and thought makes men wise, and wisdom makes life endurable." But most Christians want to go beyond endurance to joy and that will be experienced in the fullness of God's kingdom.

MISSIONARIES TO SPEAK
New Tribes missionaries Bill and Nancy Moore, will speak Sunday at Sanford Bible Church, will former pastor of the church, will preach at 11 a.m. and they will give their testimonies and show slides at 7:30 p.m. Before going to Brazil they were on the Ovidio New Tribes Missionary Institute staff.

WINGWALKING WILL BE PART OF CENTRAL FLORIDA AIR SHOW

At Central Florida Air Show (Double)-Winging It

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

The last time most of us probably saw a biplane was on a late-night rerun of "King Kong," who swatted the things like flies from the top of the Empire State Building.

But the art of flying the double-winged aircraft still survives, and one of its most accomplished practitioners is Joe C. Hughes, who will perform in his 650-horsepower Super Stearman April 2 and 3 at the Central Florida Air Show at Sanford-Central Florida Airport.

Hughes will be joined by 19-year-old Donna Behrend, who will climb out of Hughes' biplane and demonstrate the dangerous and exciting skill of wing walking.

Other performers at the Saturday and Sunday air show will be the Air Force Thunderbird precision flying team, (Sunday only) the Army's Golden Knights parachute team, a Navy hot-air balloon, a Marine Harrier jet and the Holland-Hess aerobics team.

Hughes' act includes a precision aerobics demonstration, during which he takes his Stearman through a dizzying series of loops, turns and rolls, using noise and smoke to add to the thrills.

As Joe performs his seemingly impossible aerobics stunts, Miss Behrend, a ballerina and gymnast, will perform atop the plane's upper wing — standing, hanging and performing an inverted wing walk.

Hughes, who has logged more than 5,000 hours, flies helicopters, gliders, jets and even the Goodyear Blimp. He has captivated audiences nationwide and performed in last year's Central Florida Air Show.

Joe is also a television star, having appeared on such shows as "You Asked For It," "Spencer's Pilots," a CBS Smithsonian Museum special, and "ABC Wide World of Sports."

Hughes performs more than 100 times annually in air shows throughout the United States and Canada, traveling over 50,000 miles a year in his Super Stearman.

Static exhibits and a display of radio-controlled model aircraft will be on view starting at 10:30 both mornings of the air show.

Advance tickets for the air show are $2.50 for adults, $1 for children (age 6-12). At the gate, tickets will cost $3 for adults, $1 for children.

Tickets are now on sale from Sanford Rotary Club members, at all area offices of Chelsea Title and Guaranty Co., and at all area locations of First Federal Savings and Loan of Mid-Florida.

Proceeds from the show, sponsored by Sanford Rotary Club, will go to charities designated by the club.

DER Seeks Control Of Water Programs

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Department of Environmental Regulation is seeking state control of drinking-water programs despite Senate President Law Brantley's feeling that the U.S. government should do it.

The agency asked lawmakers on Thursday to pass a law that would put the state in firm control of the programs.

But Brantley had said on Wednesday that state regulation would simply add another layer to the bureaucracy.

The federal government will let states control their own fresh-water programs if the states pass laws at least as strict as federal drinking-water requirements.

"There seems no question the state should seek primary rather than defer to the federal government in this area, critical to the health of Florida residents and equally essential to the state's important tourist industry," said the department report.

The agency pointed out that a Senate Natural Resources and Conservation Committee report recommended state control. But Brantley disagreed with the committee.

"All I can determine that Florida will gain from insisting on enforcement of these federal regulations is the institution of more and more state bureaucracy," he said. "It will create an added bureaucratic layer, not to enforce state laws, but to enforce regulations directed by federal officials. Why should Floridians pay for a state agency to enforce federal regulations?"

The DER also noted that Gov. Reubin Askew has called for state control of the drinking water programs. The agency requested an additional $35,000 next year to fund its drinking water programs, seeking a total of $1.99 million.

It said the additional appropriation, plus enactment of a law complying with the federal requirements, would enable Florida to retain control of its drinking water programs.

Hughes' act includes a precision aerobics demonstration, during which he takes his Stearman through a dizzying series of loops, turns and rolls, using noise and smoke to add to the thrills.

As Joe performs his seemingly impossible aerobics stunts, Miss Behrend, a ballerina and gymnast, will perform atop the plane's upper wing — standing, hanging and performing an inverted wing walk.

Hughes, who has logged more than 5,000 hours, flies helicopters, gliders, jets and even the Goodyear Blimp. He has captivated audiences nationwide and performed in last year's Central Florida Air Show.

Joe is also a television star, having appeared on such shows as "You Asked For It," "Spencer's Pilots," a CBS Smithsonian Museum special, and "ABC Wide World of Sports."

Hughes performs more than 100 times annually in air shows throughout the United States and Canada, traveling over 50,000 miles a year in his Super Stearman.

Static exhibits and a display of radio-controlled model aircraft will be on view starting at 10:30 both mornings of the air show.

Advance tickets for the air show are $2.50 for adults, $1 for children (age 6-12). At the gate, tickets will cost $3 for adults, $1 for children.

Tickets are now on sale from Sanford Rotary Club members, at all area offices of Chelsea Title and Guaranty Co., and at all area locations of First Federal Savings and Loan of Mid-Florida.

Proceeds from the show, sponsored by Sanford Rotary Club, will go to charities designated by the club.

Kimsey Exhibits Work In Art Festival

By MARVYN TIPTON
Herald Writer

"I just can't get away from clay no matter what else I'm doing... mostly because it almost does itself," says artist and Seminole Community College instructor Grady Kimsey.

"I just happen to be there at the time," he adds modestly. "Clay builds itself for me."

Clay, however, is not Kimsey's only art form, although he is presently showing pottery at both the Creative Art Gallery, Winter Park, and Stetson University, DeLand. He has paintings at the Center Street Gallery, Winter Park — and he has wood sculpture entered in this weekend's Winter Park Art Festival.

The wood sculptures are a great pleasure to Kimsey. They are powerful, with occasional subtly whimsical touches.

"They come from people I know," says Kimsey. "They are like Goldbergs type boxes where each thing affects something else." With a smile that is astonishingly bright Kimsey seems to contemplate rubbing his hands in glee.

"I hide things in them," he admits.

"I'd little things that people don't even know are there — but I know."

Kimsey's talent came to light early — when he was still in junior high school in Knoxville, Tenn. He won a state wide art contest sponsored by the Hallmark Greeting Card company. A great deal of credit for his continued efforts at art, says Kimsey, belongs to his sister Jackie and a high school art teacher.

"They both said the right things at the right time," he recalls, "and it made a great deal of difference for me." Being "in the right place at the right time with the right people" seemed to just go on happening for Kimsey.

"My sophomore year at University of Tennessee was the first year of the fine arts department. For one year I was the only student and there were three teachers!"

During that year Kimsey studied drawing, painting and sculpture. Discovering after graduation that "in east Tennessee it is very difficult to make a living from one art Kimsey accepted a position as art director for a television station.

"Then my wife and I, in one of our we-need-a-change moods, decided spontaneously to move to Florida."

The Kimseys, Grady, Sue and son Grant, have now been in Florida for 15 years. For the first 10 of those years Kimsey taught in the Orange County school system, but he has been an instructor in drawing, painting and ceramics at Seminole Community College for almost six years.

Kimsey has a degree in fine arts from the University of Tennessee as well as a master's degree in education and counseling from Rollins. He finds the two areas of interest highly compatible.

"Any art form is the best possible way to enhance another person's self concept," says Kimsey. "I think a lot more counseling goes on in the classroom than in the counseling office. That's why I love the classroom. That's why I'm teaching right now."

When he is not teaching or creating his own works of art, Kimsey is involved with art shows and festivals — either entering them or organizing them. His latest effort is the first show to be held in the new Fine Arts building at SCC.

"I felt it was important that students from SCC, a two year college, have the opportunity to learn what form their future instructors' art might take if they should choose to go on to a four year school. So we invited 18 area art instructors to show their works. We have about 36 pieces in display. They are a very diverse and interesting group works."

Next month, says Kimsey, SCC will host the 7th annual juried art show for SCC students. "I am very, very proud of what the students at SCC are doing," says Kimsey.

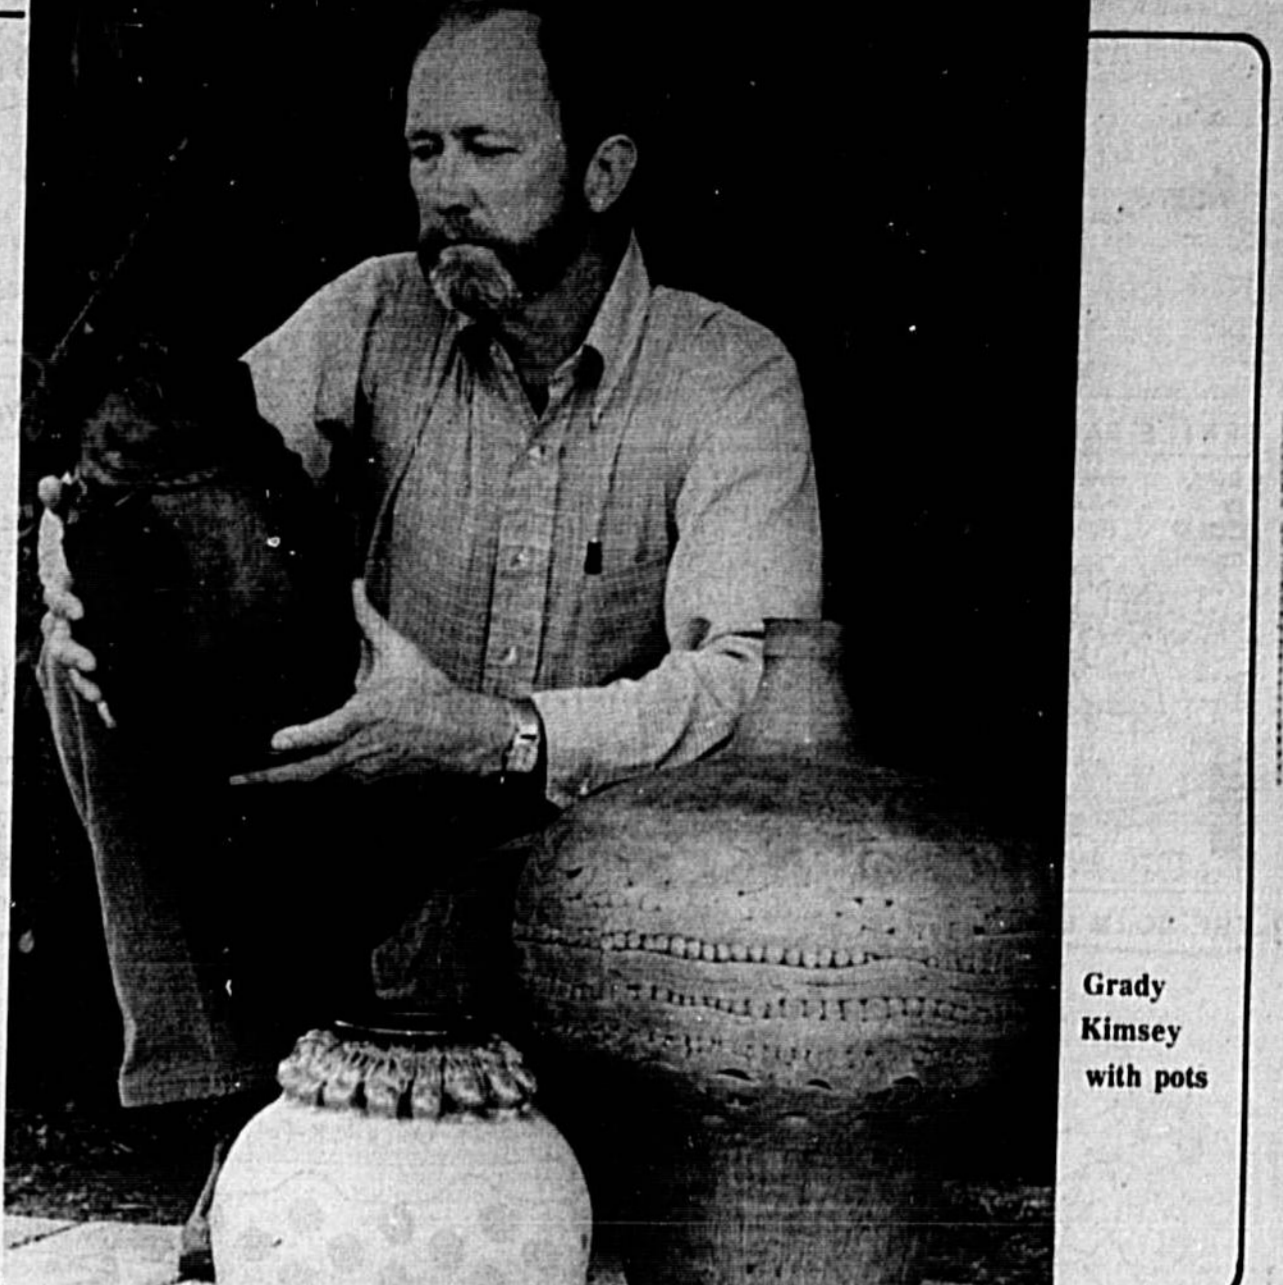

Art is not only for the young, according to the man whose works show great texture and detail. "I feel very fortunate that my life took this turn, in that I can make art till I die. Retirement will open a new door for me, just giving me more time to create."

"She's really had a remarkable recovery," says a friend. From that conversation and other walks with a cane. She has no live-in help, but her husband tests that it is unlikely to have a man in the house, a Secret Service agent sits up all night in the parlor.

Her recollection is nothing new; she strove to stay out of the public eye during her 18 years in Washington, too.

Mrs. Eisenhower, too, is hesitant to appear in public. Her love of television soap operas keeps her indoors much of the time at her farm at the edge of the Civil War battlefield in Gettysburg, Pa. She sees few people. Son John and the grandchildren visit occasionally.

Mrs. Eisenhower turned 80 last November. She often goes to church on Sunday, and in the past has made one visit a year to her husband's grave in a chapel at the Eisenhower Library and Museum in Abilene, Kan.

All The Presidents' Wives In Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — We all know the names, so well we know them. Bess, Mamie, Jackie, Lady Bird, Betty.

We talk of them like family. Bess and Harry were childhood sweethearts, you know. If Mamie knew like had an affair, she never let on. Jackie is dating.

Oh, yes, we know some intimate details. Little ones, like how Mrs. Johnson got her name from a baby nurse who proclaimed her "party as a lady bird." Romantic ones: Dick proposed to Pat on the day they met. Tragic ones: Betty had cancer and had a breast removed.

Whether they like it or not — and most of them don't — wives of Presidents achieve enduring celebrity status. Pat Nixon got a half million getwell letters after her stroke. Widows wrote Mrs. Johnson "I know what you're going through" after LBJ died. Bess Truman could count on a deluge of cards for her recent 92nd birthday.

History casts a ledger-sheet eye at Presidents: A plus here, a minus there. Their wives are remembered more kindly. Thus, Bess Truman and Mamie Eisenhower could be praised for remaining in the background, Jacqueline Kennedy for the glitter and sophistication she brought to the White House, Lady Bird Johnson for her legacy of beautification.

Pat Nixon's image is that of a devoted wife buying a beleaguered husband. Betty Ford will be noted for her outspokenness and the example she set for other women who have cancer.

The new first lady, Rosalynn Carter, set out to put her own mark on her husband's inimitable white style still remembered for her first name (Rob-sah-lin, not Raw-se-lin), taking charge of Carter's Commission on Mental Health.

Good Housekeeping Magazine's annual poll of the world's 10 most admired women placed Pat Nixon No. 1 for 1973 and 1974 — the years of Nixon's lowest popularity. She was second to Betty Ford for 1975 and No. 1 again last year.

The magazine noted that the ranking for 1975 may have reflected sympathy for Mrs. Nixon after her stroke in July. Yet Mamie Eisenhower, out of the White House since 1961 and seldom in the news, has made the list consistently.

With such continuing interest and their ranks swelling to six this year, it seemed a good idea to see how the former first ladies are faring. The tour began with Mrs. Onassis, at a luncheon in New York.

Twice-widowed, burned by gossip sheets and harried by photographers, Jacqueline is Garbo-like in her pursuit of privacy. At 47, one of the world's most elusive and intriguing women has a career as a consulting editor for Viking Books.

She was flustered by pride over completing the first book that bears her name, an illustrated treatise on life in Imperial Russia. "I don't see it as work," she said, with emphasis on the last word. But her publisher accuses that she really puts in a full schedule and that it is not just "a Hollywood type of star with a double doing the hard part of the job." With one book done, she is involved in a half dozen other publishing projects.

Mrs. Onassis skillfully deflected talk from herself to the book. But it was obvious there is a change from the young Mrs. Kennedy who set fashion styles, promoted the arts and entertained in a manner previously unknown to the White House. Today, she is the modern working woman who dashes to the corner deli when work presses, who goes to a business luncheon in black turtle-neck and slacks wearing no makeup and gold wedding band.

"It's sort of like holding your nose and jumping," she said of her first work product. And, confided the woman once married to a President and once to a in which she tries not to be committed to a chore. That's when Texas is alive with wildflowers.

And she loves travel. "I always knew I wanted to go to those far-away places," she said a while ago as she prepared for a three-week trip to Egypt. "I always wanted to go in contact with the same ancient civilizations..." and, she added, "I especially wanted to sit by the fire and laugh with my grandchildren."

Unless they choose otherwise, like Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Ford, a protective screen goes up around former first ladies; one that is difficult to penetrate. Family and friends hold their privacy as sacred, and intervene, if they are granted at all, are under a pledge of anonymity.

That is especially true for Pat Nixon.

Case in point, the Nixon estate at San Clemente, is protected on one side by a uniformed guard and on the other by cliffs, the sea and the Secret Service. Telephone calls to the small Nixon staff go unanswered.

Last July 8, just hours after the New York state appeals court disbanded her husband, word came that Mrs. Nixon had suffered a stroke. She was severely handicapped — left arm and leg paralyzed, speech impaired. A program of therapy was begun.

"She's really had a remarkable recovery," says a friend. From that conversation and other walks with a cane. She has no live-in help, but her husband tests that it is unlikely to have a man in the house, a Secret Service agent sits up all night in the parlor.

Child, 8, Is On Her Own

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About advising that an 8-year-old child should not be left alone for three hours after school: At 8, my daughter not only stayed alone, she started dinner. At 10 she could prepare any meal as well as I could. At 12 she is learning to make her own clothes. Society today is plagued with irresponsible youths who are coddled until they are 16, after which someone tries to teach them "responsibility." The result: Many healthy young adults on welfare.

Of course, there is a risk in leaving a child alone. But then again, when we send our children to school, they can be picked up, kidnapped or even murdered in broad daylight. But we don't quit sending them, do we?

If this 8-year-old has been properly taught, and if Mom calls regularly to check on her, she will be safe and responsible.

And when the time comes where she has to handle a situation and Mama is not there, she will be prepared.

Change your mind, Abby.

A RESPONSIBLE MOM

DEAR MOM: I applaud your efforts to teach your child responsibility, and wish all parents would follow your fine example, but unfortunately you are the exception — not the rule. Most 8-year-olds without supervision are not as "safe" as your lucky youngster.

DEAR ABBY: My dad takes a bath at least three times a week — but not alone. He takes MY TV into the bathroom with him. I've tried reasoning with him, but it doesn't work. (I'd like to cuss him out, but since I'm only 13 years old, that wouldn't be a good idea.)

Dear old Dad is not a dumb man, but he just won't quit taking my TV. And my mom says it won't help your husband. The only one who can help him is the one who does his eating.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURT MOTHER": Don't ask your son to make a choice between his wife and you. If you've raised him right, you'll lose.

touch the TV while he's in the tub, or he could get the shock of his life!

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say a few words in defense of us wives who are constantly being accused of "murdering" our husbands by feeding them fattening foods?

My husband is overweight, and I am sick and tired of having people tell me it's my fault — and that I should "golly" does him. After dinner he goes out to buy a dipper, and he stops for a hot fudge sundae. So, how can I help him, Abby?

A FOLKS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I could say a few words in my defense, but it won't help your husband. The only one who can help him is the one who does his eating.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURT MOTHER": Don't ask your son to make a choice between his wife and you. If you've raised him right, you'll lose.

Easter Bunnies are popping up all over Sanford, courtesy of the Sanford Pilot Club. Some of the little fellas are crammed full of candy, others sit atop boxes of candy. They may be purchased in area stores, financial institutions and the county court house. The two days before Easter, the decorative gift candy will be on sale outside Winn Dixie, 25th Street. Proceeds will benefit Pilot scholarship funds.

Vegetables Won't Hurt Arthritis

DEAR DR. LAMB - Could you comment on any relationship between ordinary garden vegetables and arthritis? There is a common opinion among some people that tomatoes, rhubarb and other vegetables may worsen an arthritic condition. Is there any basis for this belief?

DEAR READER - No basis whatsoever. Most people, including those with arthritis, would be better off to increase their vegetables and decrease their intake of fat and sweets. To give you more information on arthritis so you won't believe such misinformation I am sending you The Health Letter...

DEAR DR. LAMB - After 15 months of being told there was nothing wrong with our listless inactive daughter we look her to a medical center and they found she had an underactive thyroid. She had no teeth, had difficulty sitting up, and was unable to walk. Her bone age was 3 to 6 months. She is on a two-and-a-half grains of thyroid and in four months has lost weight, has two teeth and is walking.

Recently I read that hypothyroidism in children is very serious because it retards the physical and mental growth. I am now ready to know how we have had happened had we found out sooner. I am wrong with our baby. Her body was badly deformed and now she is just beautiful. I would appreciate any information you give me.

DEAR READER - I am glad your little girl is getting along so well. The thyroid hormone condition, as you know, will not produce normal physical and mental development.

'The Sad...Happiest Time'

MTM: 'Right For Its Time?'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"On the last day, Lou says, 'Cool it, be happy, let's not have any tears.' The writers used words that expressed our own feelings. They gave us a gift."

Gavin MacLeod was talking about the last episode of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," which airs at 8 p.m. EST Saturday on CBS.

After seven years, 168 episodes and 26 Emmy awards, this class — and classic — comedy series comes to an end. And it ends with a bang.

By now it should not be a surprise to anyone that a new owner buys WJM-TV in Minneapolis and decides that his only real asset in the newsmen is anchorman Ted Baxter, played by Ted Knight. Headed for the unemployment line are Mary Richards (Moore), Lou Grant (Edward Asner), Murray Slaughter (MacLeod) and Sue Ann Nivens (Betty White), and on the last day they need some morale boosting.

MacLeod was most noted for his vicious villains when he was asked to read for a part in the Bing Crosby special. He was just back from making "Kelly's Heroes" in Yugoslavia and had twice played murderous Big Chicken on "Hawaii Five-O."

He was asked to read for the part of Lou Grant, but MacLeod said he liked the part of Murray better. "I had always played extreme, larger-than-life characters," he said. "It was a challenge for me to play someone so unthreatening."

MacLeod said he has been offered several pilots, but he wants to spend the next year re-establishing himself as a character actor. He will guest star as the heavy in the TV pilot "The Busters," and with his wife Patti he is rehearsing his nightclub act for appearances in Minneapolis and Bermuda.

Bing Crosby celebrates his 60th year in show business with his family and old friends in 90-minute special on CBS at 9 p.m. EST Sunday. Bob Hope — on the road to just about anywhere — heads the guest list for "Bing!"

On the show, billed as a special of "family, memories and laughter," MacLeod, Nivens, Asner, a young woman's murder is witnessed by 15 neighbors who refuse cooperation with the police 9 p.m. Friday on ABC. NBC Saturday Night at the Movies, "Welcome to Arrow Beach," starring Laurence PREMIERE: Following the Bing Crosby special is the debut of a spring "tryout" series called "Lovers Me, Loves Me Not." Susan Dey, Ken Gilman and Art Metrano star in this romantic comedy series. It airs at 10:30 p.m. EST Sunday on CBS, with the remaining four episodes moving to 8:30 p.m. EST Wednesday nights on March 23.

FONZ MEETS BARD: Henry Winkler visits the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Conn., for a special for young people that includes excerpts from "Romeo and Juliet," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Hamlet" and "Henry IV." Winkler, better known as the Fonzie, talks to an actor portraying William Shakespeare, learns about stagecraft and gets an interpretation of Shakespeare's sometimes puzzling verse. It is on CBS at 9 p.m. EST Sunday.

MOVIES: ABC Friday Movie, "The Woman Who Cried Murder," starring Art Carney, Cloris Leachman and Edward Asner, a young woman's murder is witnessed by 15 neighbors who refuse cooperation with the police 9 p.m. Friday on ABC. ## Parents Must Become Modern...

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

As the rate of juvenile delinquency continues to climb in the United States — 100,000 young people will get into trouble with the law in Florida alone this year — it is obvious the old ways of bringing up children are no longer effective.

"Many have always believed in a God-given respect to a parent, but actually God gave us the resources to be good parents and wants us to develop those resources."

"It is the parents' role to reproduce the same human being as themselves?" the judge asks.

He says this idea of reproducing a very obedient, robot-like creature is one of the things that has led Americans to divorce their children and to adjust their thinking.

"Maybe a two-fold solution would be parent education coupled with the creation of a family court system," he says. "In the long run, perhaps this is the best hope for delinquents and human growth."

"More and more dealing with delinquency it becomes obvious that their problem is one within the family unit, one with communication and understanding of the relationship must be dif-

2 Hurt, Gunman Dies In Siege At Orlando

ORLANDO (AP)—A gunman who held five persons hostage overnight in an apartment was found dead today after all his captives had been freed unharmed, police said.

Authorities said Algie Simmons, 42, apparently died from smoke inhalation in a fire caused by tear-gas canisters that were hurled into the apartment in an effort to rout him.

Simmons, who shot and wounded two persons at the start of the incident Friday night, had released three child hostages after daybreak today. Two women were pulled from the apartment later in a dramatic rescue by police.

Simmons, who earlier tried at least six shots at the rescuers and fleeing women, was found dead in the fire-charged apartment about 90 minutes after the last two hostages escaped, police said.

None of the hostages or police officers was seriously injured. After the last two hostages escaped, officers at first delayed entering the apartment from fear that Simmons would shoot at them. Later, flames caused by the explosion of tear-gas canisters inside the apartment further delayed the officers' entrance.

Finally, the fire was extinguished, Simmons body was found in a hallway of the apartment and the incident ended. Much of the 12-unit apartment building was gutted by the fire. Those who believed the incident was sparked by a lovers' quarrel between Simmons and Twinity Dubose, 26, one of the women hostages, Mrs. Dubose's sister, Margolia Anderson, said the couple had broken up some time ago.

Simmons had served time in jail after being convicted of beating Mrs. Dubose, police said.

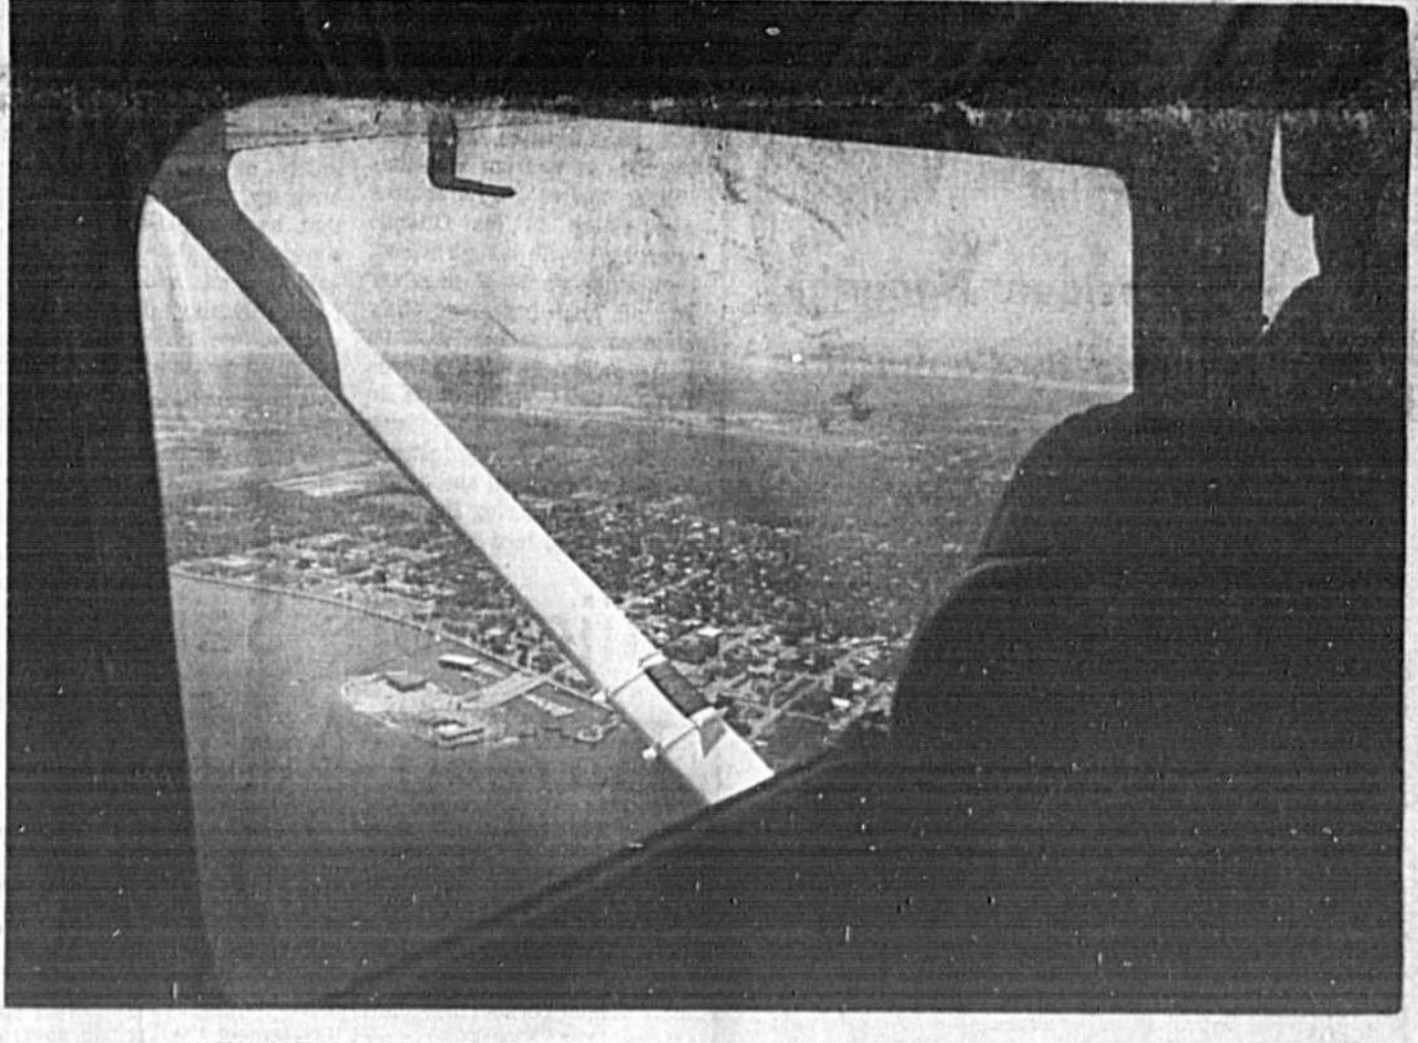

The other woman who escaped from the apartment was Pat Carson, 25, Officer Chuck Deisher, a member of the Special Weapons and Tactical (SWAT) force, managed to inch to the apartment. As he reached the door, it opened from inside and Mrs. Dubose and Mrs. Carson slipped out.

As they and the officer fled, a series of shots rang out from the apartment. A few moments later, a single shot was heard.

Earlier, Mrs. Dubose's children, Michael, 5, and Denard, 9, and Mrs. Carson's son, Hershel, 7, were released by Simmons after negotiations with officers.

SANFORD POLICE CAPT. C.B. FAGAN JR. AT SKYHAWK CONTROLS

VIEW OF SANFORD LAKEFRONT FROM NEW POLICE PATROL PLANE

Airplane Aids In Police Work Sanford's New 'Eye In The Sky'

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

A ride in the Sanford Police Department's newest patrol vehicle reveals a whole new view of the city and the surrounding Seminole County countryside.

You see it all from the top side in that famous Florida sunshine when you're skimming along in the new single-engine Cessna Skyhawk II.

Capt. C.B. Fagan Jr., was at the controls as we lifted off the runway at Sanford-Central Florida Airport minutes after fueling and check-out procedures at the hangar. Skyhawk seats four persons comfortably and has a 4½-hour cruising range without refueling.

Capt. Fagan and Sheriff's Sgt. Jerry Capshaw are piloting the plane to be used under a cooperative agreement. Sanford Patrolman Joe Dillard is now in training to become another Skyhawk pilot.

Chief Ben E. Butler says the usefulness of an airplane by local law enforcement agencies was proven back in 1974 when police paid $1,000 rental for a plane during an aerial search when a Santard intruder had been kidnaped.

Sheriff John Palk has used airplanes frequently in search and rescue operations. Both Palk and Butler have also used a plane for trips to Tallahassee and other cities on department business.

Chief Butler requested a federal grant last July for the $23,000 Cessna. The white aircraft sporting black and red trim was delivered two weeks ago.

Butler says the Skyhawk will be made available to all law enforcement agencies in the county when needed. The police motto, "Protect and Serve," may not appear on the plane, but that's its purpose.

As we come out of the long, sweeping turn and head south over Lake Monroe with the Sanford Marina complex slipping beneath

From up here you look right down through the tree cover. You can visualize how much help it will be in a manhunt. Fagan notes that a yet-to-be-installed special muffler will quiet the engine sound much more.

Now, as we pass over the city's south limits it's just a few moments and we are over the Oviedo, Chulusta and southeast Seminole area.

Smoothly the plane eases northward. Is that really the county's
