Beauty By The Bunch

For possible purchase are Bill and Pat Foster of Sanford, volunteers at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce's annual plant sale that started today and lasts through Saturday. The sale, in conjunction with the St. Johns River Festival and sponsored by Sanford's Beautification Committee, is on the patio at the Civic Center, Sanford Ave. and Seminole Blvd., 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Available are 13 varieties of azaleas, Dr. Huey roses, miniature roses, Burford holly, day lilies, and caladium bulbs. Azaleas range in price from $3 to $6. Roses and other plants are $5 each. A limited number of the plants are available in pots. Buyers are encouraged to bring their own boxes.

Love Of Children, Learning Motivate Teacher Of Year

By Geale Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Is this teacher enthusiastic and still looking for new ways to reach the children?

Will this teacher really care about my child so that he is motivated to learn?

Does this teacher love children?

These three questions are asked by a second-grader's mom, Suzanne Cattell, each fall when she meets her son Andrew's new teacher. The answer to her questions this year was "yes, yes, yes," and the teacher who met Cattell's qualifications is second-grade teacher Marjorie Nelsen of Keeth Elementary School in Winter Springs who was named today as Seminole County's Teacher of the Year.

In a letter to Keeth principal David Sawyer, Mrs. Cattell said that she and her husband echo their son's sentiments about Mrs. Nelsen. "I wish I could have her next year and the next year after that as long as I'm at Keeth."

Mrs. Nelsen has taught at Keeth for four years, but has been a teacher for 19 years; 17 of them in Seminole County schools.

In a letter describing her background, she says she is a third generation kindergarten teacher (the grade she first taught). Her grandmother taught the first public kindergarten in the city of St. John, New Brunswick, Canada and became president of the Kindergarten Teachers' Association and her mother taught kindergarten in Rochester, N.Y. Mrs. Nelsen said she has a daughter who started teaching kindergarten at Lake Mary Elementary this fall. Mrs. Nelsen and her husband, Lyle, have four children who are

Paths May Affect Smith, Sturm

Thousands Seek Expressway Facts

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and Seminole County Commissioner Bob Sturm were among hundreds who learned that their homes are along possible routes for the Seminole County expressway. The residents visited three public information sessions this week, the last one being held last evening in Sanford Civic Center.

Mrs. Smith lives near one of the routes that goes through Sanford, and Sturm's home is in an area where one of the southwesterly routes lie. Both are on the Seminole County Expressway Authority. Sturm lives at 514 W. Plantation Blvd. in Lake Mary. Mrs. Smith lives at 103 Country Place, Sanford.

As of Thursday afternoon at the start of the final information session, 1,100 people had signed up to be kept informed about the expressway routes, said consultant Tim Jackson, Orlando.

At the Sanford meetings Wednesday and Thursday, about 400 people showed up each night, said Expressway Authority Executive Director Gerald Brinton. Tuesday at the Winter Springs meeting, 1,500 people attended, he said.

He speculated that the main reason people in the south end of the county showed up in such force was that 350 people got letters stating their homes were in the more or less finalized area for the route south of Lake Jesup.

The alternate routes go in 88 paths and the chosen one will eventually streak the county from northwest to southeast and connect to the Bee Line Expressway in Orange County and the Orlando International Airport. About 55 residential neighborhoods are affected by the various routes, and the final one will be chosen later this summer. The expressway is expected to be completed in 1991 or 1992.

Brinton explained to some of the people who were concerned about living close to the expressway that homes are being built next to it all the time. Those in Mandarin Estates, located near Longwood off Markham Woods Road, he said, are 200 feet from the road and are in the price range of $125,000 to $135,000.

Blue taped areas on the maps at the informational hearings showing all of the route proposals cover an expanse of 300 feet "from fence to fence" of the expressway, and people were looking closely to see how many homes in their neighborhoods would be affected.

Will Go Into Private Practice

Asst. State Attorney Resigns

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

The chief trial attorney for the Seminole-Brevard State Attorney's office in Sanford will be going into private practice at the end of the month.

Don Marblestone, 39, who has been with the State Attorney's office since 1976, has accepted a position with the Jacobs and Goodman law firm in Altamonte Springs.

Marblestone, recovering from surgery, was not available for comment.

Norm Wolfinger, State Attorney for the Seminole-Brevard circuit, said Assistant State Attorney Steve Plotnick will become chief trial attorney for the Sanford office. Another assistant state attorney, Tom Hastings, will replace Plotnick as division chief at the same office.

"Don's been a credit to our organization and I wish him the best of luck," said Wolfinger.

Marblestone, who prosecuted the notorious torture-death case of 5-year-old Ursula Sunshine Assaid, has left his mark on Florida law as the driving force behind a change in the statutes that now allows prosecutors to charge suspects with first-degree murder in cases where child abuse has resulted in the death of a child, even if unintentional. One suspect in Seminole County has been so charged and awaits trial. The state will ask for the death sentence if the man is convicted.

Prior to Marblestone's efforts, prosecutors had to prove the accused intended to kill the victim to be convicted of first-degree murder.

Man Given His Grandson's Heart

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy who died from injuries in a car-train accident left his grandfather the gift of life — his heart.

Thomas Albert Nielson, 63, had refused to accept the heart of grandson Jonathon Simper until the boy's parents persuaded him to do so. Nielson, of Logan, Utah, was in critical but stable condition Thursday, 24 hours after the transplant.

Oreg Nielson, son of the heart patient and uncle of the donor, said that without the transplant, the grandfather probably would have lived only a couple of months.

"They really don't know how bad it (the ailing heart) was. But they did know it was only pumping 10 percent of what it should have been," he said.

"They (the parents) told him they wanted him to take the heart," he said. "The heart was going to go to somebody. It was a matter of one life for another one."

Young Simper, of Brigham City, was fatally injured Tuesday night when a car in which he was riding was struck by a Union Pacific train in an accident that instantly killed three teenage girls.

"We're really saddened and upset at this loss," said Craig Simper, father of the victim.

"But we didn't make these decisions for his transplant. If you had known him, you'd understand he made that decision for his granddad. It was a sacrifice he would have consciously made before all this happened."

The teenagers were struck by the train when they crossed railroad tracks from a rural dirt road. The girls died instantly but Simper lived until Wednesday. The heart was among several organs given for transplantation.

Longwood Must Wait For New Downtown Post Office

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood will have to wait until late 1991 or 1992 before a new postal facility is possible for the downtown area, but Longwood Postmaster Jean Wells has asked the city commission for help in providing immediate relief for traffic and parking problems at the present post office.

One of her suggestions to the city commission was for the city to make Church Avenue one-way going west and to allow parallel parking on one side. Another was the possibility of changing County Road 427 from five lanes to four lanes by the post office and convert the fifth lane to parallel parking spaces.

Longwood Mayor Ed Myers said the city has plans to make the portion of Church Avenue from County Road 427 to Milwee Avenue one-way after Milwee is paved, but any changes on 427 would be up to the county. The paving project has been authorized but bank financing has not yet been arranged, Myers said.

Myers said he will be conferring with the police department on ways to alleviate traffic problems.

A new 19,000-square-foot Longwood Post Office is scheduled to open May 1, but it is located 2.5 miles outside of the city limits west of Interstate 4 on Wekiva Springs Road in Sabal Point. The site is 5.2 miles from the downtown post office. A new 25,000-square-foot Altamonte Springs Post Office will open next month on Montgomery Road.

Mrs. Wells said she hopes when these two offices open some of the problems at the old Longwood facility located at

SIB Vows To Continue Scouting For Unkempt Yards

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Although the practice has sparked controversy, Sanford's Scenic Improvement Board will resume scouting for messy yards and businesses that violate city code.

Continuing the practice was among many projects SIB members discussed for the upcoming year at a meeting Wednesday night.

The SIB began reporting unkempt property to city building department officials two years ago, when the board was formed. One city commissioner calls the practice "spying," and says it should be stopped. Two other city commissioners turn in reports themselves, and side with SIB members who say the citations prompt compliance with city codes to improve Sanford's appearance.

SIB chairman Ray Priest says he doesn't feel the practice is necessary, but accepts that a board majority wants it to continue.

"I think the need is being fulfilled by code enforcement officers and citizens who call in reports to the city, so rather than duplicate efforts, the SIB should place its emphasis in other places," Priest said.

The SIB's founding chairman disagrees.

"City codes are laws and should be upheld," said Sara Jacobson, who still serves on the voluntary board. "Our code of officers can't be everywhere, and we're lending them a free hand."

Close to 1,000 reports have been submitted during the last two years to city code enforcement officers for follow-up inspection. The reports were turned in by SIB members, Commissioner John Mercer and to a lesser extent Commissioner Bob Thomas. On follow-up survey, the citations pan out as bona fide violations of city code almost 100 percent of the time, staff inspectors say.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan has been critical of the reports since he took office in January. He calls the scouting "spying" and says it infringes on property owners' rights.

While discussing a host of projects for the upcoming year, SIB members said Wednesday all efforts will concentrate on continuing to enhance the city's image.

Members said they'll be working towards this end through cooperation with representatives from private and public associations and groups, including the black community. One of the SIB's nine members is black and will be acting as liaison for the effort to get more input from that sector of the Sanford community.

The SIB also plans "Neighborhood Enhancement" projects, launched with input from property owners in the yet-to-be targeted areas. The board also wants to join with the Seminole County School Board to begin upgrading school grounds. A pilot program would select one school for enhancement and involve its PTA and students, as

Sanford Goes High Tech To Preserve Trees

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

The city of Sanford and its Scenic Improvement Board are using high technology to develop a preservation program for several hundred trees.

Plans call for a computerized maintenance program for every tree that lies along city right-of-way in an area extending from Lake Monroe to 25th Street, between French and Mellonville avenues.

The computerized system being worked up at city hall would also schedule replacement of dead trees in bulk, at considerable savings, SIB members say.

Budget considerations require replacement costs for dead trees and funding estimates for maintenance supplies be developed in tandem with the computerized system, according to discussion at an SIB meeting Wednesday.

Programming for the SIB's computerized "Tree Plan" will begin this spring through the city's administrative services department. The public works department, which oversees the SIB's budget, will be looking into the maintenance/replacement costs to form the basis of budget requests and backbone of the program, said the department's director, Bob Kelly.

The several hundred trees in this area were surveyed by a group of SIB members and community representatives last spring.

The data they compiled is being evaluated by the public works department gardeners who work on SIB projects. Appropriate replacement/maintenance programs are being developed for computer feed-in to enable the tree plan's permanent success, SIB members say.

Board members want the system to use present conditions for determining appropriate maintenance measures, such as pruning and fertilization, and also anticipate more comprehensive treatments that may be necessary to save certain trees.

Already dead trees could be replaced in groupings, saving the city money through bulk purchase, SIB members said.

Kelly said he'll be considering costs for new tree purchases as well as supplies, such as chemicals and fertilizer, for budget preparation.

The city's seven departments are just beginning to develop their budget proposals for fiscal 1987-88, which begins Sept. 31.

Right now, there's some maintenance monies available for the trees, but not enough to cover the type of system the SIB is discussing, Kelly said Wednesday.

Development of the high tech program was preceded by three months of old fashioned leg work. SIB and local garden club members, along with private individuals "who just care about the community," spent last spring walking throughout the target area conducting the surveys, said SIB member Juanny Mercer.

Zoo Recognized For Monkey Births

The Central Florida Zoo reached a propagative milestone with the recent birth of its 20th Black Faced Spider Monkey (Ateles geoffroyi), a South and Central American primate, named for its long arms and legs as well as its long prehensile tail.

As a result of this achievement, the Central Florida Zoological Park was presented with a Silver Propagator's Certificate by the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums.

4 H'ers Win Top Prizes For Steers

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County 4-H'ers had both the Grand Champion and Reserve Champion steers at the Central Florida Fair in Orlando.

They also took other honors for the animals they raised.

Amy Sweat, 12, of Oviedo, exhibited the 1,165-pound Grand Champion Steer, which was bought by Winn-Dixie for $3.75 a pound at Monday's sale.

Amy also won the first place Junior Showmanship Award and was named Champion 4-H Exhibitor for the show. Amy's steer also won the first place award for the most weight gained—from the September weigh in. This is her second year to enter the steer competition.

Her next-door neighbor, Carrie MacLeod, 12, Oviedo, exhibited the Reserve Champion Steer for the show. In her third year of exhibiting at the fair, Carrie is carrying on the family tradition begun by her older sisters, Heather and Christy, who won many awards with their steers, including Grand Champion.

Carrie's 1,065-pound blue ribbon steer placed first in its weight class and was purchased by L.D. Plante of Oviedo for $2 a pound.

Carrie also placed third in Junior Showmanship.

Anna Hollis of Oviedo was named runner-up 4-H Exhibitor for the show. Anna's 1,000-pound blue ribbon steer placed first in its weight class. It was bought by Seminole County Soil & Water Conservation District.

Anna also won first place in Senior Showmanship. In addition, she received second place in the 4-H record book competition.

Mike Lee of Sanford, in his last year of competition, placed third in his weight class with his 1,030-pound steer. His blue ribbon steer was also purchased by Winn Dixie for $1.20 a pound.

The steer exhibited by Vince Hollis of Oviedo placed fifth in its weight class. His blue ribbon 1,185-pound steer was bought by Joe Wington of Wington Fire Sprinklers Inc. of Longwood.

Chuluota's George Nunnery's steer placed eighth in its weight class. The 930-pound steer was purchased by Publix.

The Seminole Pioneers 4-H Club won the third place Herdmen Award for their steer area at the fair.

The youngsters raised the steers from calves doing all the feeding, grooming, training and record keeping.

Anti-Paddling Bill Fails By One Vote

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A House committee has defeated by a single vote its chairman's bill to let parents and school boards ban corporal punishment, but a parliamentary move kept the measure clinging to life.

The bill by Rep. Alzo Reddick, D-Orlando, failed of adoption Wednesday on a 5-8 vote in the House Committee on Youth. The committee then agreed to reconsider the measure at a future date — a move that kept the proposal breathing.

Current state law gives school principals broad authority over corporal punishment. School boards may set guidelines but cannot ban paddling.

Bills similar to Reddick's have failed three times in the past four years. Opponents said principals need the authority to paddle to maintain classroom discipline.

Reddick compared paddling to child abuse during a news conference earlier in the day.

"People are revolted at the idea of physical abuse against children," Reddick said. "But it represents a decline of the American empire if we don't discipline our kids by smacking the hell out of them."

Reddick's bill (PCB 4) was endorsed during the news conference by a leading child psychologist and by Jack Levine, executive director of the Florida Center for Children and Youth and spokesman for the Florida PTA.

"My wife and I cannot go to our son's principal and request that principal not to inflict corporal punishment on our child," Levine said. "A parent can opt out of sex education because it conflicts with their moral teachings, but that right is not granted when it comes to administering a paddle to the backside of a child."

Irwin Hyman, director of the National Center on Corporal Punishment and Alternatives at Temple University, said research suggests a link between paddling and behavior problems in later life, including child abuse.

Hyman said he could not demonstrate a definite relationship between paddling and the school dropout rate or behavior problems, although he said research strongly suggests such a link.

Hyman noted that Florida ranks second among states in both the rate of corporal punishment and the dropout rate.

"This is a very strong gut issue," Hyman said. "It's a religion with some people that children must be hit. I'm hoping the people in the Legislature can set aside for the moment their deeply held convictions and look at the data."

Hyman said corporal punishment is rooted in the doctrine of original sin. "The tradition that children are basically evil and we have to beat the devil out of them."

Hyman said the evidence suggests corporal punishment is a poor long-term tool for encouraging good behavior. He cited a study in which children who had been paddled were more likely to touch forbidden breakable objects than children who had been rewarded for behaving well.

"The infliction of pain is the infliction of fear," Hyman said. "We try to teach in a democracy that you do something because it's right."

Martinez Reneges On Open Meetings

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez has decided to go back on his campaign promise to conduct strategy sessions in public, saying his first four months in office proved the policy is impractical.

Martinez promised during last fall's campaign that reporters or the public would be welcome in any meeting between him and two or more legislators. Martinez also promised to try to open more legislative meetings to the public.

But Martinez aide Mac Stipanovich said Thursday that the promise proved unworkable in reality, where 160 House members and senators want privacy when they meet with the governor.

"He was like the Maytag repair man sitting in the sunshine and nobody was calling," Stipanovich said.

"This voluntary policy places me at a severe disadvantage in responding to the private statements and positions of lobbyists and legislators who oppose initiatives I believe important to the people of Florida," Martinez said in a prepared statement.

"Therefore, until such time as the rules change, I must function under the rules that now exist," Martinez said. "To do otherwise would be to tie both hands behind my back during the upcoming legislative session."

The governor's strategy sessions are not covered by Florida's open government or "Sunshine Law," and neither are the meetings at which legislative leaders routinely work out last-minute compromises.

Martinez said that he would reopen his meetings if and when the Legislature agrees to expand the Sunshine Law.

Gardening

Watering, Mulching May Be Most Valuable Gardening Practices

Most gardeners in our area have learned the techniques of fertilizing, pruning, mowing, and controlling pests. The one thing very few can get a handle on is watering. Perhaps the reason is that there are no specific rules to follow. When and how much to water depends a lot upon the plants you're growing, what kind of soil you have, the time of year, and naturally the weather conditions. If you think your watering problems are different from your neighbor's you're probably right.

To improve your watering efficiency, closely study your lawn or garden. First, you need to determine how deep the water penetrates after a rain or irrigation. You can do this with a fancy soil coring device or simply use a spade to see how far down the moisture penetrated.

Next, check the amount of water supplied by your sprinklers. Place several coffee cans at intervals around your lawn. When you have run your sprinklers for an hour, see how much water is collected in each cup. The amount should be about the same in each can if your sprinkler is delivering water uniformly.

For most of our sandy soils, the top six to 12 inches should be moistened at each irrigation. You need to determine how long and how much water is required to wet your soil to the depth.

Alfred Besseson
Urban Horticulturist

Then, you'll know about how long you need to water.

To provide proper distribution and to avoid wasting water, operate the sprinklers at a rate only as fast as the soil will take it in. Runoff from too rapid watering does your plants no good and costs you money. Check several areas around your lawn by this method. This will give you a guideline to use for the length of time needed for irrigation in each area. Frequency of watering depends upon the rate of water loss for your particular soil type, its depth, weather conditions, and rate of water uptake by the plants.

Water is lost chiefly by evaporation and transpiration of plants. Experience is your best guide for how often to water. Look at the soil to see how fast it dries out and watch your plants to see how quickly they wilt. With a little practice, you can quickly discover how often you need to water, how much, and how long to replenish the supply.

Using a mulch around your trees and plants can greatly reduce the amount of water needed, as well as reducing the time you spend mowing and weeding. A mulch consists of any kind of material applied to the soil surface to control weeds, conserve moisture, and moderate soil temperatures.

Mulch materials may be organic, such as compost, bark, wood chips, or similar material. Or, you can use an inert material, such as gravel, pebbles, or the new plastic mulching fabric. In most instances, avoid the use of polyethylene plastic film. Perhaps it's a matter of personal preference, but I've found organic materials are much easier to work.

Mulches have many beneficial effects upon the soil and plants. They prevent evaporation of moisture from the soil. Moisture moves by capillary action to the surface and there it evaporates if not covered by mulch. Mulches prevent crusting of the soil surface, too, thus improving absorption and percolation of water into the soil, and eliminating erosion.

If weeds are a problem in your garden, the solution is a mulch deep enough to stop weed germination and smother existing smaller weeds. Sure, an occasional weed may poke through the mulch, but it can be pulled out easily.

Mulches add to the beauty of the landscape by providing a cover of uniform color and interesting texture to an otherwise drab surface. Dark-colored mulches will give plantings a more attractive appearance.

For best results, apply your mulch at least two to four inches deep over the whole area. Avoid covering the crowns of low-growing plants, though. Keeping the layer deep enough to do the job is important. This means that more mulch should be added to the older layers at least once a year to get the maximum benefit.

One added benefit of mulches is that they reduce the leaching of fertilizer and other nutrients from the root zone of the plants. Thus, smaller amounts of fertilizer are required to keep the plant healthy.

Proper watering and mulching may be your most valuable gardening practices. You'll certainly reduce the amount of personal effort needed in cultivating, weeding, and watering and increase your chances of growing a healthy and vigorous landscape.
Happy gardening!

Four Generations Gather To Celebrate 78th Birthday

The Henderson family gathered to honor Pearlene "Mother" Henderson on her 78th birthday, Feb. 27.

Four generations attended the celebration. Anthony Tony Williams, Seattle, Wash., and Flora Williams, Edgewater, N.J., hosted the birthday celebration.

Mrs. Pearlene Henderson, wife of the late Arthur Henderson, is the mother of six children, 14 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren. Attending the celebration were Virginia Rebecca Jenkins, Annie Pearl Cooper, Arthur Mae Scott, Sanford; Titus Jerome Henderson, Philadelphia; Flora Bell Williams, Edgewater Park, N.J., and Harriet Henderson, Rochester, N.Y.

Grandchildren attending were Anthony Craig Williams, Seattle; Titus Jerome and Elizabeth Scott, Bruce Allen Scott, Sanford; Debra Wyatt, Orlando; and Shawn and Shelia Cooper, Kissimmee.

The celebration continued on Saturday at the family home of the Hendersons. Her daughter, Arthur Mae, was the hostess. Attending were Debra and Wallace Wyatt and children, Orlando. Mrs. Scott's grands, Temika, Ke Ton Quoi, Brandy, Sentiel, Annie Pearl and Reginald Cooper and grand Nancy Ross.

The celebration was highlighted by the family members attending morning worship with Mother Henderson at the Holy Trinity Church of God, Sanford. Guest attending was Mrs. Barbara Gainey, Oviedo.

Elks Awareness Day will be observed by Celery City Lodge No 542 IBPO Elks of the World and Evergreen Temple No. 321 Daughters of Elks, Sanford. This special program will be held at New Mt. Zion Primitive Baptist Church in East Sanford.

Elk Awareness Speaker will be Daughter Margaret Ward, Leesburg, retired instructor in the public school system. All Brothers and Daughters are to be a part of this special Elks observance. The community is invited to attend.

Happy Birthday to Sandra Mitchell Gaines and Thad J. Brooks Jr.

Observing Scout Sunday

Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, their parents and adult leaders from Troop 34 and Cub Pack 34, sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Sanford, gathered in a body to worship on Scout Sunday. According to Herman Schroeder, by attending worship service, the scouts observe reverence, the 12th point of the Boy Scout Laws. Other scouts observed Scout Sunday by attending the churches of their choice.

Parents Wonder If Son Who Stays Out Should Move Out

DEAR ABBY: Our son, who will soon be 21, is a full-time college student living at home. He has a part-time job that pays well, but not well enough for him to live independently in his own apartment, which we would prefer. "Earl" has started spending many nights away from home, and we're sure he's sleeping with at his girlfriend's. She's 22, also a college student, and share an apartment with two other college girls.

My husband and I expressed our disapproval of Earl's all-night absences. We've also told him if he chooses to continue his relationship with this girl, it's up to him to take responsibility for birth control. (He neither admitted nor denied sleeping with her.)

Should we kick Earl out? His father thinks we should; I am against it, but I don't see any other solution, do you?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Solution to what? If you think you can control your son's sexual behavior at this stage of the game, you are kidding yourselves. Earl is a man — not a boy. Your job is done, for better or worse. Kick him out if you want to, but control his sexual behavior? Don't count on it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own and operate a restaurant. (Don't say where, please.) We work 14 to 16 hours a day, seven days a week, and make a good living out of this place because we are always here and work hard. The problem: Our married children have developed the habit of bringing their children (ages from 3½ to 9 years old) here, and leaving them with us when they want to go somewhere.

Dear Abby

We love our grandchildren and do not mind having them here once in a while for a few hours, but lately we have been baby sitters for them five and six hours at a time, and we can't handle it. A busy restaurant is no place for children, and some of these children have to be watched carefully or they might get hurt. Also, they are in the way when we get real busy on weekends.

Is there some nice way to tell our children that they should either stay home and look after their kids, or hire a baby sitter? Maybe if they see this, they will get the hint.

DAD AND ME

DEAR DAD AND ME: Don't look for a "nice" way to tell your children that your restaurant is not a day-care center. Just get the message across. And don't expect them to see this in my column and take the hint. If they see it, they'll think it's meant for somebody else. Be firm. They cannot take advantage of you without your cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson was married last summer. The marriage did not last. The wedding gifts were never acknowledged. Out of affection for the groom's late grandfather and me, many of our friends sent lovely gifts.

I have been fretting for several months because no "thank-you" notes were ever sent. I sent my friends valentines with the following message enclosed:

"When my grandson, and his bride married last year, you were so very dear to send them a gift. The marriage did not work out and your lovely gift was never acknowledged. There is nothing I can do to make up for such thoughtlessness, but I want you to know how much your caring means to me. Thank you!"

It may not help, but I feel much better. A member of my family said she thought my message was improper. What is your opinion, Abby?

DOROTHY B.

DEAR DOROTHY: I think your message was not only proper, but a gracious acknowledgement of a gift that otherwise would have been rudely ignored.

UDC Studies Jefferson Davis

Members of the Norman De Vere Howard Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy drove to Oviedo for their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Wheeler.

Since the purpose of the UDC is to review the history of the South and to recall its history, the program was given by Mrs. Minnie Strickland on the life of Jefferson Davis. She gave much of the history of his life, also of his home, now known as Beauvoir, which is translated as "Beautiful View."

Interesting is the fact that the beautiful mansion was sold in 1855 to James Brown for $3,000, and later willed to Jefferson Davis by Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, an ardent admirer. Mrs.

Strickland closed her talk by reading a poem, "Old Glory."

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wheeler to the following: Martha Ashby, Hazel Cash, Carolyn Cornelius, Katie Corley, Tony Hobson, Virginia Jones, Sarah Krider, Juanita Miller, Lillian McCall, Carmeta Ray, Minnie Strickland, Domarious Varn, Eloise Wimbish, Ethel Carver and Allison Swain.

Publicity Procedures

The Sanford Herald welcomes organization and personal news. The following suggestions are recommended to expedite publication:

1. Releases should be typed (upper and lower case), double spaced and written narrative style (third person).
2. Do not abbreviate.
3. A contact person's name and phone number is necessary.
4. Keep releases simple.
5. Organization releases (the program should lead the meeting account) must be submitted no later than two days after the event.
6. Advance notices should be submitted one week prior to desired publication date.

See A Good Doctor About Knee Problem

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband's knees have bothered him for a few years. Lately, they make a popping noise when he walks and one will just give out with no warning. He refuses to see a doctor out of fear he will need surgery, and he doesn't feel he can afford to miss work. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Your husband may be developing arthritis or may have a knee-joint malfunction; both conditions can be treated without surgery. Clearly, your husband needs to see a physician for an examination.

I am amazed by the number of readers who say they won't see a doctor — or are afraid to — for one reason or another. This is not reasonable or rational. If something goes wrong or isn't working right, the person is best served by seeking medical attention. Good doctoring means presenting options; there usually is more than one way to handle an illness. A skillful physician will make a diagnosis, then help the patient choose a course of action for treatment. Of course, there are illnesses and injuries for which few options are available — for example, a heart attack ordinarily requires medicine and evaluation in a hospital, and a badly fractured bone should be set in order to heal properly.

Seeing a doctor does not automatically lock a patient into a particular form of therapy. Going to a doctor is usually an information-gathering experience; the patient actually may feel a sense of relief. If a problem is present, alternative treatments can be discussed. A family physician is your best health resource; a newspaper medical columnist (like me) has not had the chance to take a medical history or perform an examination and can only address health problems in general terms. This is why I so often recommend that my readers "see your doctor."

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 71, male, and have problems with cramps in my hands and feet at night. I drink lots of milk and eat six eggs a week. Can you help?

DEAR READER — Nocturnal cramps in older patients may indicate poor circulation. Ask your doctor to examine you for this condition. He or she may wish to prescribe calcium or quinine, both of which help night cramping. Although surgery is sometimes necessary to reroute blood around obstructed arteries, prescription drugs can often reduce symptoms and improve bloodflow.

Incidentally: Six eggs a week are probably excessive for keeping your cholesterol low; reduce this to no more than two.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 Ducking an ace is frequently a good play. It can give you the right timing in setting up a suit; it can disrupt the opponents' communications; it may cajole those same opponents into playing another suit to your advantage. However, don't duck without good reason. Should declarer cleverly duck the opening lead, West would play a low heart and South would wonder about the ace and queen. He might guess correctly, but his guess would be relatively uneducated. All he would know is that West had the K-Q of spades and had opened the bidding. To avoid that problem at the second trick, declarer should grab the spade ace right away. He can then play a diamond to his ace and back to the queen. Next, to find out who has the club ace, he plays a club to his king. West wins the ace.

and now comes the inevitable low heart. By this time declarer knows more about the high cards. East probably holds that heart ace — otherwise his raise to two hearts would have been on only the heart queen and a stray jack or two. And he does indeed hold the ace. The jack of hearts loses to the ace, and declarer makes his four-diamond contract. Just a word about North's bidding. He was right to pass over one heart, since bidding one spade would be too risky when vulnerable with such a sparse suit. However, after three diamonds from South and three hearts from West, North might have bid three spades, implying diamond support. Imagine the difference that would make if South's holding in clubs and spades were reversed. Now a good four-spade contract might well be reached.

Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you say unkind things about others today, don't be surprised later when you learn unkind things are being said about you. What goes around comes around.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't involve yourself in a financial situation today that is similar to one that did not work out well for you in the past. Profit from your mistakes.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The outcome of events will be substantially influenced today by the people with whom you associate. Don't saddle yourself with losers.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) The weight you may feel on your shoulders today could be the heavy hand of neglected responsibilities. Do everything within your power to start alleviating these burdens.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't allow peer pressure to cause you to do things today which violate your better judgment. When you say no, mean it.
VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your public image is extremely fragile today, so be extra mindful of your behavior. Don't do anything that could arouse resentment in others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of wasting time today trying to establish who's at fault for a blunder, it's far wiser to expend that effort correcting the mistake.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The world isn't about to give you a free ride today, so don't expect it. If you want to dance, be prepared to pay the piper.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The kind of response you need by your attitude today. If you're sharp-tongued or critical, anticipate similar treatment.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid taking things out of context today, or you might feel others are dictating to you. In reality, they may only be offering helpful hints.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Steer away from expensive involvements today; you might not be up to par at getting proper value for what you spend.

...Pony

These ponies can range in value from $500 for a foal up to $10,000 for a trained hunter, jumper pony, Mrs. Starr said.

She remembers riding Welsh ponies as a girl in her native Scotland. They are a different breed from Shetland ponies, which originated in Scotland. The Welsh ponies originated in Wales, and they began to be registered in the 1800s, she said.

They're ideal ponies for children, she said. "If they learn not to stand in back and get kicked. It teaches them a sense of responsibility and sportsmanship, and hard work."

The Starrs' four sons,

Scott, 14; Greg, 13; Nickolas, 8; and Michael, 6, are all riders. And Starr said that despite their small size, Welsh ponies can also be ridden by adults.

Typically they are ridden as mounts — hunter, jumpers, or can be trained to pull a cart, he said. They can also be adapted for use in what Starr said is his sport, barrel racing, a race on a patterned course marked with barrels, flags, and poles.

"They have a wonderful temperament and are easy to handle," Mrs. Starr said. Except for their size they aren't very different from horses, except they eat less, so are more economical to maintain, Starr said.

Their colors are typical of other horse, black, grey, brown, but if a Welsh pony is a paint, with mixed colors spotting its body, it can't be registered as one of the breed, Mrs. Starr said.

They can be mix bred with thoroughbred horses to produce a small horse that will measure about 15 hands high, Starr said.

An animal of that type can be registered as half Welsh if the Welsh parent was a registered animal. Registration increases the value of the foal, he said.

By age 18 months a foal is ready to begin training, and Mrs. Starr, who is just trying her hand at training this type of pony, said they learn quickly. By age three years they are ready to be ridden or to pull a cart.

Welsh ponies are shown and are scheduled to appear in the Central Florida Horse Show of the Central Florida Pony Club, beginning at 9:30 a.m. April 12 at the Clarcona Horseman's Park. The pony club typically sponsors about five such shows each year, Starr said.

WOFL Airs Special Series

WOFL-Channel 35 has announced that it will present a series of local and national public service programs throughout 1987 as part of its "For Kids' Sake" campaign.

"This is more than a public service campaign. It's a public education campaign," said WOFL Vice President and General Manager, Norris Reichel. "with 'For Kids' Sake' we want to better educate the Central Florida community on pressures all young people face growing up on today's complex society."

The initial "For Kids' Sake" special which airs Monday, March 9th at 8 p.m. is "Working It Out: Kids and Race". This nationally syndicated hour long program explores the painful, often poignant, and sometimes unconscious feelings of racism, a problem which continues to garner national headlines with recent events in Forsyth County, Georgia, Reichel explained.

WOFL will couple this program with a locally-produced hour long special hosted by Carolyn Fennell and featuring a panel of experts and a live studio audience comprised of 29 area high school students.

Ms. Fennell also hosts WOFL's weekend minority affairs program "Impact", seen Saturdays at 8 a.m.

Future WOFL "For Kids' Sake" specials include "Tender Places", a Peabody Award winning program which stars Jean Stapleton (All In The Family) and Freddy Kohler (Kate & Allie) and deals with the impact of divorce on kids; "Street Shadows" ... a tough program about young run-aways and life on the street; "A Message to Our Parents" hosted by Christopher Reeve (Superman) ... a program filmed by kids that addresses their concerns about nuclear war; "Can We Talk?" ... a game show format examining family communication skills and featuring the "Cosby" kids as well as members of the "Family Ties" family; "Kids and Drugs: A High Price To Pay" ... a hard hitting look at four kids struggling to overcome their drug habits and the effect of those habits on their personalities, families, friends and education; "When I Was Your Age" ... a fun-filled comparative look at kids in the forties, sixties and eighties that plays off every parent's favorite cliché hosted by "Growing Pains" star Alan Thicke.

Spingarn Medal

The Spingarn Medal has been awarded yearly since 1914 by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for the highest achievement by a black American. Some of the recent winners have been Bill Cosby, Mayor Thomas Bradley of Los Angeles, Lena Horne and Mrs. Rosa Parks, who started the bus boycott in Montgomery, Ala., in 1955.
