U.S.-French Ambulances Are Bombed

Three Die And 12 Are Wounded As Insurgent Planes Attack Caravan On Border

Japs Mark Off Doomed Areas

Foreigners Are Told To Evacuate To Escape War Dangers

By Associated Press
Three Spaniards were killed and 12 other persons wounded today when insurgent planes bombed an American-French caravan of ambulances and supply trucks in Spain near the French border.

Reports received in France did not say if there were any Americans among the wounded. A "traveling hospital" furnished to the Spanish Government by American sympathizers was believed to have been part of the caravan.

In China, Japanese military commanders marked off a huge area and told Americans and other foreigners to evacuate it if they wished to escape the dangers of war.

The Japanese said they would bomb the area but would respect missions and other foreign property if it was marked and if (Continued on Page Three)

Supreme Tribunal Of State Declares Bingo Is Gambling

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 3.—A game of bingo, widely played all over Florida, was branded yesterday by the Florida supreme court as gambling.

In an opinion written by Justice Terrell, with four other justices concurring, the court affirmed the conviction of six men in Tampa charged with operating a gambling house, which furnished for a brief period at Tampa and Winter streets.

"Chance entered by the hope of getting something for nothing is the controlling element in gambling," said the court.

Justice Buford agreed in approving fines imposed on those charged with operating the bingo plant because they ran an establishment in which a game was played and a prize awarded.

But Justice Buford did not agree in the decision that bingo players engage in gambling.

Eleven Fliers Die When Navy Planes Collide

Marks Second Naval Crash Within Past Month Off Coast Of Southern California

CALIF., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Two navy patrol bombers, flying through a sudden rain squall, collided within sight of the maneuvering United States fleet off the Southern California coast last night, killing at least 11 of the 14 crewmen. One bomber fell in flames. The other cracked up when it struck the sea.

Four of the seven-man crew on one plane were rescued by boat from the fleet flagship Pennsylvania. All four were injured. The other three members of this plane's crew are still missing. All seven fliers aboard the other plane are believed dead, since the flaming ship dove into the sea.

Battleships, destroyers and planes from the fleet searched for the ten missing men. It was the third major American naval plane disaster of the year and the second disastrous naval crash off the Southern California coast within a month. Twenty-four men have been lost in the three crashes.

The mid-air collision of the two patrol bombers, the worst plane disaster in American naval history, has already claimed eleven lives. One of the four fliers who had been rescued died while the Navy continued efforts to find the 10 others who are still missing.

How He Reached Rock In Middle Of Stream Police Do Not Know

Gen. FRANCISCO FRANCO

Rebel generalissimo of Spain who this week established himself as dictator, after the manner of Hitler and Mussolini, and provided for the creation of a group of ministers to serve as his advisers.

Coast Guardsmen in a breeches buoy brought to shore a man marooned since midnight on a jagged rock in the Merrimack River basin below Newmarket Falls. He was Edward O'Brien, 38, who went for a walk last night. Police were unable to learn how he got into the middle of the fast stream. He was in a serious condition when rescued and could not talk. The first attempts to rescue the man failed when a rope across the river by the coast guard broke.

Physicians said he would have died if he had been forced to stay in the river another hour.

Man Who Defends Self Not To Seek New Trial

"Little Business" Adopts Program To Aid Recovery

Escaped Prisoner Gives Up To Local Police Department

Convict Will Be Returned To Prison In North Carolina

A man who gave his name as Earl Covness, came to the local Police Station yesterday afternoon and advised Chief of Police Roy G. Williams that he had escaped from a North Carolina prison and that he wished to be returned to serve the remaining three years of his sentence.

The local Police Chief immediately wired North Carolina prison officials who advised that the 26-year-old man had escaped from the Halifax prison only a few days ago where he was serving a sentence for receiving stolen goods.

The man who gave himself up waived his extradition rights and officials in Raleigh, N. C., advised that an officer would be sent after the prisoner at once.

"I don't know why I did it, but I did," Covness said to Chief Williams when he told officers of his escape from the prison, "and I want to go back and serve the remainder of my sentence."

Meeting Adjourns In Tumult After Two Delegates Thrown Out For Fighting

Efforts Sought To Pump Credit Recommendations Will Be Submitted To The President At Once

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Delegates of "Little Business" adopted over many shouted protests a program of advice to the present administration, including a recommendation that the government supply financial aid by stimulating private credit.

Without formal debate a standing vote was taken by Chairman Fred Roth of Cleveland, Ohio, despite the insistence by some of the small businessmen from the floor that minority reports be heard, and the insistence of others that any contradictions between the various recommendations should be composed.

During the temporary lull, A. S. Shafer of Philadelphia was named one of the conferees for a second time. Shafer was elected from yesterday's meeting by Commerce Department guards.

Today a group of businessmen themselves did the job. Officials said they had told Shafer he ought to be quiet. He was insisting on his right to speak when he was dragged and pushed him through the door. His trousers were almost torn off.

Later Robert Kempfer of New York was ejected from the meeting by plain clothes officers for causing a disturbance. He called himself New York's " forgotten man."

After adopting the recommendations, the conference adjourned in tumult. A committee from the conference was to present the recommendations to President Roosevelt this afternoon.

The general session was held in the auditorium of the Commerce Department where, four years ago, hearings on many N.E.A. codes were conducted. Today's gathering reminded many of those hearings, with the exception that (Continued on Page Three)

Applications To Pardon Expected To Show Decline

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—State officials say they expect fewer applications for clemency at the regular Pardon Board meeting March 15.

The session scheduled for last September was delayed more than a month, and new pleas were accepted until the end of November. Approximately 1,300 applications were received. Only about 125 received clemency from the board.

Board rules say only prisoners who have served at least one third of their sentences, or five years, may apply. The board's secretary has accepted applications that do not comply strictly with this rule but explained there "is very little chance" of any action on them.

All applications must be filed with the board by Feb. 15.

New Construction

If there is any recession in Miami or Miami Beach, you would not know it from a casual examination of reports on building permits and real estate transactions. While the totals by no means reach the records established during the boom, they show a substantial growth of which any city in the country could well be proud and at the same time are not nearly so likely to be followed by the heartaches of the 1925 period.

The Miami Beach Realty Board reveals that real estate sales during the year which has just closed aggregated $25,203,920, which was two million dollars more than the 1932 total. Not only was there an increase in the actual number of properties sold, the Board reports, but there was also a healthy improvement in the value of individual properties. And while there were more actual transactions, there were fewer vacant lots sold, showing that there is now a demand for finished structures.

This demand is being partially met by new construction as reflected by building permits which show that more than $14,000,000 was spent on new construction in the Miami area last year. This compared with $12,614,000 for the previous year, and with $5,675,940 for 1932. In 1932, the low ebb of the slump, only $1,687,000 was spent on new construction in Miami. During the past year there were more than 1,600 single residences built in Miami at a cost of $6,390,202, a record for the entire country on a per capita basis.

Those who recall the last great period of expansion in Florida remember that Miami led the rest of the state into the boom by a good two years. It is quite possible that that may be the case this time and that within the coming year new construction will materialize in this part of the state on somewhat the same proportion as it has been going on in Miami for the past year or two. It goes almost without saying that the development of Miami is bound to benefit the rest of the state to some extent.

As a matter of fact we see in the new housing act which has just been enacted by Congress a great boon to Sanford during the coming years. The cash payment required for building a new home, and the interest on the deferred payments have been so far reduced that no one who does not own his own home can afford to let this opportunity pass. Six hundred dollars cash, and the rest just like rent, is all it takes now to build a $6,000 home.

Helped Out Of A Job

Some indication as to whether or not federal legislation definitely fixing by law the minimum wages which must be paid to labor, will actually benefit the workingman, may be gained from a study recently prepared by the United States News and based on figures submitted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor.

These figures show that under pressure of the various labor organizations, as well as the influence of the government, wages in industry began to rise in December of 1930 from an average hourly rate of 59.4 cents an hour. This hourly wage rate increased throughout the year of 1931 at the fastest pace ever recorded in the history of this country until by December of 1931 it had reached 66.0 cents per hour. This represents an increase of 12.2 percent in the hourly wage of labor for the year.

Anyone who argues in favor of establishing minimum wages by law must then be prepared to show that labor generally has been benefited by the increase which has already taken place. But what are the facts? The Department of Labor Statistics further show that while the hourly wage rates were going up, the number of jobs available were going down, and the number of hours which even those who retained employment actually worked were being cut.

In the manufacturing industries alone, the figures show, there was a decline in the actual number of persons employed from 8,200,000 in December of 1930 to 7,400,000 a year later. And furthermore, the cut in hours for those who managed to keep their jobs resulted in a decline in the cash actually put into pay envelopes of more than 6 percent in spite of the increase in hourly wage rates.

At the same time prices of everything which the workingman has to buy were going up so that a dollar in December of 1931 would buy nine cents less merchandise and other commodities than in December of the previous year. So while the workingman, who won an increase in hourly wages, was receiving 6 percent less per week, he was paying nine percent more for what he bought.

Now we submit that this is what might happen to the supposed beneficiaries of the minimum wage law. Such federal legislation presupposes the establishment of a minimum wage of say 40 cents an hour for all labor. No one would be allowed to work for any less than that. And it is presumed that this would benefit the "forgotten man" at the bottom of the economic pyramid who now earns 15 or 20 cents an hour.

But would it? Could he find work for as many hours a week at 40 cents an hour as he could for 20 cents an hour, and if he couldn't, could he earn as much in a week for himself and his family at 40 cents as he could at 20 cents. As a matter of fact might it not also develop that many persons, cooks in the kitchen, for instance, farm laborers, many unskilled persons, and perhaps even plenty of others, could find no work at all at the government wage rate.

The problem seems to simmer down to the question of whether it is better to work for 20 cents an hour and have a job, or work for 40 cents an hour and have no job at all.

$2.10 Set As Amount Trailer Owners Spend

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 3.—How much do trailer owners and their families spend while they are on winter and summer "vacations?"

This controversial question was given an answer here today by Captain Edward H. Jungren, of Bradenton, president of the Automobile Tourists Association, who said $2.10 is the average amount each day by every adult trailer occupant.

Nearly 1,500 members of the A. T. A., an organization which works in the interest of trailer owners, are here for the winter convention in tropical Bradenton Trailer Park. Summer headquarters for the association are at Manistee, Mich.

A 200-foot observation tower, secondarily more than 600 people at one time, will mark the center of the Southland Empire Exhibition in Glasgow this summer.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK
By PRESTON GROVER

This is the second of two articles in which Preston Grover, Washington Columnist for The Sanford Herald, examines British labor legislation and policy with an eye on American labor problems.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Two digests of the British trade disputes act are being circulated in Washington. One comes from the department of labor, which might reasonably be expected to reflect a labor viewpoint. The other comes from the National Association of Manufacturers, which might reasonably be expected to reflect the employers' viewpoint.

In light of the President's suggestion that it would be worth while to study the act, it may be helpful to know the reaction of these two agencies. The labor department, sympathetic to labor, is openly critical of most phases of the act. The manufacturers' association, on the other hand, discloses in its digest a friendly attitude, guarded and reserved friendliness, but nevertheless, friendliness.

Two Approaches
 The two articles approach the proposition wholly from the economic standpoint, which in itself is an attitude which seems to distinguish the American discussion of labor-management cooperation from that of the British. British labor, as the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences and other sources say, has approached the labor problem as that of a social class striving for political power. On the other hand, the American practice and discussion of the problem has avoided social theory for the most part and instead has emphasized labor's local interests, stressing particularly the purely business aspects of co-operation.

A political approach to the problem carries with it necessarily the idea of giving the government a larger hand in bringing about labor-employer co-operation. And from that you can go back to the social science encyclopedia for the assertion that when the government steps into labor disputes, the employer benefits most—since the government is interested mainly in preventing the status quo, "which labor strives to upset more frequently than capital."

As part of an attitude of peace at almost any price, the British have established many precedents of compulsory conciliation and arbitration of labor disputes—interrupted by such events as the general strike of 1926. That machinery is designed to replace strikes. It doesn't altogether London business struck and messed up the recent coronation. But public and official pressure is for peace.

Employer Also Responsible
 Quite apart from any class angle is the provision in the British act making labor unions and workers responsible for illegal acts. Among "illegal acts" are such things as "sympathy strikes." Unions may be sued for damages, their legal responsibility under the British act being quite a distance beyond that of American unions, except perhaps under the laws of some states which make unions legally responsible.

One phase of the British act that may interest many employers is that it subjects them (the employers) to rigors of the law in the same terms as unions. A "sympathy" picket or a lockout intended to influence government action would be just as illegal and punishable as a sympathy strike or a strike intended to influence the government.

As a final comment we should add that the British act is written in honest-to-god, straight, straightforward, understandable English. That can't be said for the proposed wage-hour bill.

U. S.-French Ambulances Are Bombed

The Japanese were advised in advance where such property were located.

In London Great Britain was still awaiting quick replies from France and Italy to proposals designed to forestall a new scourge of "piracy" in the Mediterranean following the sinking of the British merchantman Endymion.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden laid the plans before French Ambassador Charles Corbin and Italian Ambassador Count Dino Grandi in a "baby Nyon conference" in the foreign office.

The representatives of the three major powers in last year's Nyon conference, which established the anti-piracy patrol, met for less than half an hour.

Informed sources indicated the proposals were mainly technical and involved no major change in the already comprehensive Nyon Pact.

It was understood they were aimed at achieving more efficient and co-ordinated action by the three sections of patrol ships—British, French and Italian—and possible limitation still further of submarine navigation.

Under the Nyon Pact of September 9, 1937, to which Italy later adhered, the signatories agreed to keep their submarines in port or advise the other powers of proposed movements and arranged for surface vessels to accompany the undersea craft.

Submarines also were allowed to exercise in restricted areas. The French and Italian ambassadors were expected to receive their governments' replies on Friday at the latest and possibly within 24 hours.

Three battleships and four destroyers of the British home fleet arrived at Gibraltar on a Spring cruise while patrol ships mustered their full strength in a search in the Mediterranean for the submarine which sank the Endymion last Sunday with the loss of 10 lives.

A Gibraltar dispatch reported the British cruisers Southampton and Newcastle were en route to Valencia to conduct an investigation into the sinking.

Mining Renewed At 'Matchless' By Tom Palmer

Pay Dirt Is Removed As Quest For New Bonanza Is Begun

By ROBERT GEIGER
Air Force Services Writer

LEADVILLE, Colo.—Old Tom Palmer, digging on Fryer Hill, hopes to write a new chapter in the story of "How" Tabor and his $1,000,000 Matchless silver mine.

Palmer thinks Tabor had a "darn good reason" for telling his second wife, the once plump, blonde and pink-checked Baby Doe, to "hold on to the Matchless." He's digging the old workings to find out the reason.

Through years of pinching poverty Baby Doe guarded the mine with a shotgun and sharp words. Three years ago, they found her in the Matchless shack, her body frozen and her stiff fingers clutching a purse with two wrinkled dollar bills, last of the Tabor million.

Palmer is an optimist, disregarding mining men who call the Matchless an "incredibly hazardous financial gamble."

Palmer Moved In
He risked his life to climb down into the old shaft with its 100-odd timbers to see if mining day had begun when they were talking about the workings were flooded. Now he is willing to risk "my last penny" to renew Tabor's hunt for a new bonanza.

Palmer made the old Tabor shack comfortable and moved in. He, the Matchless, after Baby Doe died, Palmer's father worked the Matchless for Tabor.

"Tabor simply had to quit digging because the bottom dropped out of the silver market."

Now that silver is up again the mine will make money. Who knows? Maybe we may even hit "bonanzas again."

Tom Palmer's blue eyes kindle when he says that. He winks and

"I decided last March to find out if the Matchless was flooded," Palmer explains. "I had a friend lower me on a 200-foot rope. The water is below the third level, about 225 feet underground."

Palmer interested a group of locomotive engineers from his home town of Grand Junction, Colo., in the venture and they obtained a lease from the Shorego Mining company, which held a mortgage on the Matchless property.

With small capital they installed an electric hoist and cleaned out the upper levels.

"The first shovel full we brought up assayed 32 ounces of silver, 16 of lead to a ton," Palmer says, displaying the assay report.

With the price of silver pegged by government purchases, Palmer can't keep optimism from his voice when he calls that "pay dirt."

"It runs about $30 a ton and that is about as good silver ore as I have heard about in a long time around here," he says.

Palmer has dug up an old chat of the Tabor workings.

Pocket Possibles
"This over here is all worked out," he explains as he points to one section of the property. "But this over here has barely been scratched. That is what Tabor meant when he told Baby Doe to 'hold on.'"

Mining men concede he may stumble on to a pocket of ore that Tabor overlooked, one of the kind that netted "How" $100,000 in a day.

Foreign Policy Of Roosevelt Attacked Again

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Attacks on President Roosevelt's foreign policy broke out again yesterday while administration fronts in an attempt to ease growing international concern over the Nation's naval expansion program.

In contrast to warnings by Senators William E. Borah (R Idaho), and Hiram W. Johnson (R Calif.), against dangerous secret alliances, Sen. William H. King (D Utah), declared that the United States "should not look for indifference on Japan's 'flagrant' violations of treaties in the Chinese conflict."

Other developments came as: 1. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, testifying before the House Naval Affairs Committee on behalf of the President's naval expansion program, denied that the United States has any plans for joining another power in possible war against Japan or any other Nation.

2. Chairman Scuyler O. Blood (D Va.), of the House Merchant Marine Committee, warned members against use of "inflammatory" remarks in discussion of United States-Japanese relations during consideration of a bill to confiscate foreign fishing vessels violating this country's regulations off Alaska.

3. Chairman Key Pittman (D Nev.), of the Senate had no binding agreement or understanding with Great Britain to consult on international affairs and policies.

4. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee began study of an amendment to the Neutrality Act to give Congress authority to apply its provisions after the President has informed that body that he believes a state of war exists.

Admiral Leahy, testifying the third successive day on the Vinson bill to increase the Navy's fighting strength 20 percent over treaty limits, vigorously denied there is any intention to join the British and French Navies in policing the world. "This program is needed to improve the defense of this country against any possible aggression from overseas," he said. "The United States Navy has no plans to join any other nation in a possible war."

He said it was "absolutely essential" that the United States keep pace with other powers in the construction of naval units. He gave as his opinion that the proposed increase in the United States Navy "would definitely promote peace."

L. J. Taber Gives Success Formula For All Farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Success formula for farmers:

1. Buy good land.
2. Use modern machinery.
3. Participate in community life.

L. J. Taber speaking, the Wynant, white-haired national master of the 800,000-member cooperative and social Grange organization adds that there is a substantial financial reward for the young man who fitted these qualifications:

"Likes to work, loves the soil and has the 'act and ability' to become a real farmer."

"We will have no farmer millionaires," declares the veteran farm leader, who is rounding out 25 years as a Grange official, "but when it comes to settling up estates we find that farmers average pretty well with other groups."

The former Ohio director of agriculture stresses education, organization and co-operation as the "three old weapons" which the farmer "can use in a new way."

"Science, research and inventive genius are building a new rural life that offers added rewards to young men and women of courage and ability," he asserts. "The old notion that a farmer must work from sun-up to sun-down is still partly true in the rush season, but that does not hold good in the year-round program. The young farmer and his wife who are comqually builders will stand just as good a chance of keeping the sheriff from the front gate as those who keep their noses all the time on the agricultural grindstone."

Fifty-nine years old, Taber says he is good for 40 more. He has been head of the Grange 15 years. He and his wife, who divides her time between acting as his secretary and doing housework, live in Columbus, but own a farm in eastern Ohio and specialize in raising cattle.

Taber's philosophy as leader of the Grange: "The farm is a basic factor in American life and it will remain an essential spark-plug in the economic and social development for generations and probably for centuries."

STORK CALLS 27 TIMES

The 63-year-old farmer and sawmill operator was soon able to return home and greet his young son. He is now attending to the daily work on his plantation. Twenty-five of his children are living.

23 Points Are Urged To Cure Business Ills

"Little Fellows" Reveal Recommendations To President After Conferences

Roosevelt Agrees With Some Ideas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Twenty-three recommendations to combat the recession were placed before President Roosevelt by a committee representing the small business men's conference.

White House officials said later that the President thought a large majority of them were constructive and possible of fulfillment.

The recommendations, which included repeal of the undistributed profits tax, private and federal loans to small business, curtailment of government spending, and a campaign to stimulate business, were read to the President at an hour and a half conference by Chairman Fred Roth of Cleveland.

The recommendations were formed at a turbulent two-day session of the "little fellows."

One of the recommendations was that a permanent advisory council of small business men be named to consult with the government.

In closing yesterday, "little fellows" adopted the following:

1. Repeal or revision of the undistributed profits tax and the undistributed tax.
2. Relaxation of restrictions imposed on capital transactions by the securities and exchange commission. This is not a part of Mr. Roosevelt's program.
3. A vigorous drive against monopolies. The President probably will ask congress soon to strengthen anti-trust laws to bar against concentration of business and economic power.
4. A balanced budget. Mr. Roosevelt had said repeatedly that he favors a balanced budget but that it cannot be attained as long as the government is "living on the edge" through large federal expenditures and as (Continued on Page Three)

True Bill Filed By Grand Jurors In Assault Case

Persons To Be Tried In Spring Term Arraigned Today

The Spring term of the Seminole County Grand Jury before recessing today returned a true bill in the case of Viola Haddock, charged with assault with the intent to commit murder.

No true bills were found in the charge against Edward Leno and in the case of the State versus H. G. Stodolny, charged with breaking and entering with the intent to commit a misdemeanor.

Those to be tried in this term of court were arraigned before circuit Judge Millard B. Smith early this afternoon to enter pleas and the cases were to be docketed for trial.

Assistant State's Attorney Lloyd F. Boyle said today that Fall term of the court will be small in view of the fact that the grand jury did not adjourn until Jan. 22.

Mr. Boyle advised the Grand Jury had recessed for the present but expects to reconvene as matters have arisen which warrant its reconvening.

Hitler Faces Crisis With Army Heads

Quiet Absorption Of Blomberg's Power Is Believed Aim Of Head Of Nazi Party

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler was reported today to have approved the formation of a streamlined cabinet as the solution to the most serious crisis the Nazi party has faced in years.

Well-informed circles said this solution would mean the quiet absorption of the vanished power of Marshal Werner von Blomberg, resigned minister of war, by Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, the No. 2 man.

Cabinet rank would be given to the heads of the army, navy and airforce, allowing the war ministry to disappear along with von Blomberg, now on a honeymoon from which he is expected not to return.

In the new cabinet, Goering technically would be listed as air minister ranking equally with Col. Gen. Werner von Fritsch, commander-in-chief of the army, as war minister and Admiral Erich Raeder as navy minister.

But as Hitler's right hand man and head of economic defense council, Goering's position as coordinator of the nation's military and industrial economy would give him the dominant voice in all national defense matters.

In connection with this plan there was some talk of the removal of Gen. Ludwig Beck, a chief of staff to make room for Gen. Walter von Reichenau, army corps commander, who had been mentioned previously as a successor to von Blomberg.

It was also possible that von Fritsch might be replaced later by some general not directly involved in the controversy between the army and Nazi political leaders that broke with the resignation of von Blomberg.

Von Fritsch acted as army spokesman in suggesting that von Blomberg resign because of his marriage to 23-year-old Erica Bruhn, a carpenter's daughter.

Celery Fed Quintet Takes 47 To 31 Trouncing From Orlando Cage Team

Following some of the worst breaks in the current basketball season, the Seminole High School Celery Feds took a 47 to 31 trouncing from the Orlando Tigers in the local gym last night.

In the early minutes of the first quarter last night Sanford's high-scoring guard, Johnny Morgan, had to leave the game because of a sprained right ankle, and although he entered the fray again in the third period, he was forced to retire after about two minutes of play.

"Red" Williams, Fed forward, was taken from the game early in the second quarter after collecting four personal fouls. At the time he left the game, Williams was high point man with a total of seven points to his credit.

Darrell Ferguson, crack Fed guard, was also forced to retire from the game in the fourth because of too many fouls, leaving the game in the hands of the more inexperienced members of the Fed roster.

With the invading Tigers leading by a score of 24 to 12 at the half, the localites, in a scoring rally led by Darrell Ferguson, narrowed the Tiger lead down to five points, amazing four field goals while the visitors scored a single free shot in the first part (Continued on Page Three)

Anti-Lynching Bill Showdown Is Planned

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Southern Senators today made plans for an early showdown on the Anti-Lynching Bill.

While Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, attacked the constitutionality of the measure, Southerners agreed tentatively on an attempt to call up independent members of the Appropriation Bill and side-tracking the long debated anti-lynching issue.

Other Powers Are Warned By Tokyo

France Joins Britain In Re-Newed Policy To Protect Shipping

Spanish insurgent bombs that sent another British freighter to the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea and a parliamentary speech by the foreign minister of Japan emphasized the threat of war on two sides of the world today.

All aboard were rescued when two seaplanes bombed and sank the British steamer Albion off Barcelona. The ship was trying to get through the insurgent blockade with a load of coal. Two persons were killed Monday when a torpedo sank the British freighter Eudymon off Cartagena. It too carried coal.

In Tokyo, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota informed parliament that Japan had "warned other powers strictly to supervise shipments of arms and munitions to China." He did not name the nations concerned, but said that neither Italy nor Germany could ally with Japan against international communism without materially aiding China.

Aroused by the sinking of the Albion and Eudymon, Britain intensified her leadership efforts to clear the Mediterranean of marauding planes and submarines.

France joined Britain in a renewed policy of force to protect neutral shipping and they were reported to have massed 70 destroyers to patrol the lanes of commerce.

British planes that had been called home from the anti-piracy patrol were expected to be sent back.

There were scant reports of actual warfare in Spain except for renewed artillery attacks on government held Madrid.

Fighting in China continued with the Chinese making a last stand to keep the Japanese from landing areas they already control in north and central sections.

The French foreign office announced that as a result of emergency consultations in London following the torpedoing of the British steamer Eudymon with a loss of 11 lives, the two governments have ordered their warships to attack all submerged submarines found in all "sanitary" zones outside Spanish territorial waters.

The French Navy department, pressing 20 warships into the anti-piracy patrol, said the anti-aircraft orders affect all submarines encountered east of a meridian running from Cape de Matia near Marseille, to the Cape of Good Hope on the North African coast near Gannakaliamo. Spanish insurgent base of Ceuta.

The French orders conform with those issued by the British admiralty. It was announced.

Added to the 20 French warships and British admiralty reported 40 warships, ranging from battleships to small torpedo boats, for service on the new anti-piracy war.

The plan envisaged a "quadruple" of all submarines in the Mediterranean off the Spanish coast, leaving any underwater craft venturing into those waters the target of the patrol warships.

Under the original anti-piracy agreement signed by 16 nations at Nyon, Switzerland, Jan. 21, 1937, 11 submarines which refused to disclose their location (Continued on Page Three)
