Politics Gets Into CWA Work In Marianna

Barton charged that A. D. Harkins, a member of the Jackson county council, sought approval of a project which would have required all the available CWA workers in the county. The council declined to approve the project. Barton said "Harkins started all this trouble."

"Two disgruntled members of the council who wanted to force their ideas upon us and found they could not, then joined hands with the politicians and started all this stir," asserted Barton. He did not name the other member.

"Harkins has endeavored to destroy, rather than build up this council," continued Barton. "He has been endeavoring to sell it out to the political interests of Jackson county. He wanted to get us out so they could take it over and reap the political reward."

Barton denied any unethical activities. He said he had appointed a project committee of Marianna business men so they would be readily available to consider applications for CWA work.

Barton said a majority of his board was present yesterday. Several members spoke in support of the chairman's statements.

Tragedy Occurs In Fog Early Today When Northbound Freight Strikes School Bus

from Crescent City said that Mr. Niles had been gathering children living south of that town for probably half an hour and he had nearly filled his bus with children, whose ages ranged from six to sixteen years.

It is said to have driven westward off the main highway toward the home of Rupert Tueton to pick up Mr. Tueton's two children. Mr. Tueton had constructed a turning place so it was unnecessary for the bus to cross the tracks, but the driver did so today.

Two reports were current early this afternoon as to when the bus was struck. Mr. Niles is reported to have told his son after being carried to a Palatka hospital in a serious but not critical condition, that he had crossed the tracks and was returning back to the main highway when the accident occurred.

Other reports are that the bus was struck as it was crossing the track toward the Tueton home, and since the list of dead and injured does not contain the names of the Tueton children, this latter report was reported as being the nearest correct.

From every indication, seven of the children were killed instantly, and the remainder died enroute to the hospital at Palatka or to an emergency hospital set up near the office of Dr. E. W. Ford of the accident other than those in Crescent City.

Almost all of the early details related by Engineer Howell, were gathered from a 12 year old boy who was thrown on the engine's pilot by the crash. He was seriously injured, and in his stunned condition he is reported as having said that the bus driver never stopped at this crossing, and that he did not do so today.

The Herald received first-hand information of the tragedy from L. R. McCullum, Fort Myers man, motoring south along State Road No. 3 toward Fort Myers, said he reached the scene about 15 minutes after the accident.

He said that about six automobiles were parked near the scene when he arrived, and that his first sight was that of two dead boys lying on either side of the track. Remarking that the fog was so thick that it was difficult to see much more than 25 feet in any direction, Mr. McCullum said he walked a short distance and counted at least 10 dead children.

Ambulances from Deland, Orlando, Daytona Beach, and Palatka arrived on the scene together with doctors and nurses, and for several hours traffic on the main automobile highway was blocked as hundreds of persons visited the crossing.

Small scenes were enacted as hysterical mothers and anxious fathers, stunned by news of the tragedy, searched for their loved ones. It was almost impossible to describe the confusion at the emergency hospital in Crescent City and the lobby of the hospital at Palatka, according to witnesses who offered their assistance in caring for the injured and dying.

The accident has a local sting in that one of the injured is Margaret Jackson, young sister of J. M. "Jimmy" Jackson, station agent at Crescent City and a former resident of Sanford. Miss Jackson was reported as only slightly injured, but Mrs. Florence Mear of Sanford, left for Crescent City this afternoon planning to bring the injured girl to Sanford to be examined for possible internal injuries.

Silver Pond grade crossing, as many local persons recalled it upon hearing of the wreck, is about 300 feet off the main highway that leads into Crescent City from the south.

For a distance of probably a mile, the railroad track parallels the highway leading from the south, but a short distance north of the station known as Hammond, the railroad veers gradually toward the left. Dirt roads cross the Hectic Excitement!

ON BOARD THE BYRD FLAGSHIP JACOB RUPPERT, Oct. 12.—What a hectic time we are having on our great ship at Bayona, N. J. I can't write it all out sensibly. I can only give you a few hasty glimpses of the strange whirl of events I am going through.

The arrival on board with my luggage—in the rails. The howling of 151 Eskimo dogs, some in cages, the rest chained to everything available on our steel decks—all of them yelling their heads off a dock worker has made a mistake in G. O. Neville's handling. A big valve and a lot of dogs have been deluged with oil. Four veterinarians are working over them now. They are a lot of discomfort but wonderfully patient.

The shouts of Commander Stevenson. The hundreds of orange painted rescue line drums. The piles of miscellaneous cargo. The boxes of oil. Walking through the holds I see strange sights—skis, snowshoes, immense piles of furs, queer looking little round stoves (I'll tell you some interesting things about these later). The first without doubt for food after working all night. Utter fatigue but no rest. Such is the beginning of our great adventure.

I know the dangers of loading this cargo. We are using the utmost care in our inspection of each case. One drum to prevent a leak. One from coming aboard. What leaking gasoline could do to us is too terrible to contemplate. And here on the side, come two tons of high explosives, for blasting our way through the ice of Antarctica. At night when I go to bed I hope I can forget that these things are on board.

Already I am beginning to catch what is known as the "Expedition Spirit." Everyone is tired. Every one has more work than he possibly can do. But everybody is good natured, cooperative, sympathetic. It is this spirit and his wonderful preliminary campaign of preparation which makes Admiral Byrd's ventures so successful. Visitors are swarming over our ship. Colonel Ruppert, one of our sponsors, grintracks on the slight curve at Silver Pond and Long, which is a mile north of Silver Pond crossing. It is possible to see a train clearly from the highway for a distance of nearly two miles to the south when a motorist drives off the highway toward Silver Pond crossing but the view along the railroad to the north, not being straight away, is not clear for such a distance.

Klansmen Prevent Labor Group From Addressing Blacks

ATLANTA, Dec. 14.—Hordes of Ku Klux Klansmen prevented two international labor group representatives from addressing a negro meeting here Sunday afternoon for the purpose of raising funds for the Scottsboro boys.

The two representatives, said to have been Parker Q. Wilson, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Mary Leonard, an old investigator, were waved away from the meeting by 22 klansmen who had surrounded the meeting place—a negro Methodist Church—before it was to begin.

The klansmen handed handbills to all arriving for the meeting. The handbills contained the pictures of six hooded figures riding on six hooked horses. At the top were printed the words, "Communism will not be tolerated," and at the bottom, "The Ku Klux Klan rides again."

After distributing the pamphlets, the Klansmen rode away. In the meantime, someone said to have been Dick J. Davis, Jr., negro lawyer who had been assisting in the Scottsboro case—called police. The officers, except the meeting and were told it was in no way connected with communism but to "hear about the Scottsboro case." The Rev. J. Raymond Anderson, negro preacher, had delivered a speech, taking the place of the excluded speakers, and film had been collected for the Scottsboro negroes, police reported.

Police arrested Nathan Yagol, president of the junior class at Emory University, Atlanta, who was sitting on a back pew of the church, and charged him with "suspicion." He was later released on a copy of charges. Yagol said he attended the meeting as a student of political science.

WEIRTON FIRM IS WARNED BY HUGH JOHNSON

Government Threatens Full Penalties Of Industrial Law On Big Steel Company

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The government last night warned the Weirton Steel Company that if it proceeds today with a company-dominated election among its employees the full penalties of the industrial law may be brought down upon it, including deprivation of code membership and criminal prosecution of its officials.

The warning was despatched in a tersely worded telegram by Hugh S. Johnson, after repeated conferences with President Roosevelt, who was understood to have been fully informed of events and to have approved the course taken.

The telegram was addressed to Ernest T. Weir, at the offices of the National Steel Company in Pittsburgh, of which the Weirton concern is a subsidiary, indicating that NRA might hold the entire concern responsible.

NRA officials regarded Weir as challenging the national labor board, arbitration arm of NRA, by going back on an agreement entered into months ago to let the board supervise a free election among his Weirton employees to determine whether they wished to be represented for collective bargaining by the company union, or by the American Federation of Labor union of steel workers.

Johnson's telegram said: "This is to advise you that, in my opinion, you are about to commit a deliberate violation of federal laws, and that, if you do so, I shall request the attorney general to proceed against you immediately."
