Case against Taylor dismissed

A grand theft case against former Seminole Soccer Club president Barry Taylor was dismissed for the second time Tuesday.

Taylor was accused of overbilling the club $15,000 in 1991 for advertisements he placed in a soccer magazine. Some of the ads never ranbut Taylor said he did not know that because the magazine failed to confirm publication with copies of the ads or magazine. He billed the club based upon his notes. Taylor was removed as club president in 1992 by other club leaders.

The initial case of grand theft was dismissed by a circuit judge in October when he ruled the information failed to establish intent to defraud. In November, four counts of grand theft were refiled by the state attorney. The prosecutor discovered there was not enough evidence due to the magazine's poor record keeping and the lapsed time since the incident to try the case.

Suit against firefighters

SANFORD - A former nude dancer says she may file charges now that an administrative probe has cleared several firefighters of pawing and dimping beer on her during a performance at a nude club.

Seminole County officials also are considering possible disciplinary action against the firemen as a result of the Nov. 29 Christmas party held at Cabaret Internationale in Casselberry.

Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said he was pleased the firefighters were exonerted, but he said they used poor judgment and may have eroded the public's trust.
"This will be clearly communicated to those involved to prevent future incidents." Kaiser said Monday. The county's personnet director also was looking into the case

The 28-year-old former dancer said she was surprised at the results of the investigation by sheriff's officials.

old saying about the brotherhood of firefighters and policemen - that shows it right there," said the woman, whose name was not used because of the nature of the incident.

Bagging local celebs

Local celebrities will be on hand at local Winn Dixie supermarkets tomorrow from 4 to 8 p.m. to help get your groceries ready to go.

The celebrities will be bagging groceries in an effort to draw attention to the stores' efforts to help the American Cancer Society.

Winn Dixie will donate five percent of their gross sales from that time period to the American Cancer Society.

The funds will be used for the American Cancer Society-Winn Dixle Hope Lodge, a "home away from home" for patients undergoing cancer treatment. The Hope Lodges, located in Gainesville and Miami, provide free lodging for patients and their families.

Snow falls in North Florida

Giant flakes of snow danced from the skies across North Florida early today, but authorities did not expect the winter weather would cause much more than a few wide-eyed gazes.

"It's just a little bit of stuff in the air," said Leon County shertiff's Sgt. Mike Wood, "There's not going to be any problems on the ground."

Temperatures were in the mid- to high- 30s across the northern part of the state, preventing the snow from sticking to the ground and causing problems for drivers, Wood said.

NEWS DIGEST How safe are schools?

New district plan should thwart rise in crime

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County schools are stepping up efforts to ensure the safety of students, teachers and administrators and their possessions at school.

Meanwhile there have been increased reports of burglaries and other incidents at the schools all

John Reichert, the school district ombudsman, said the school safety department is currently formulating a plan that will make the schools safer and free from crime and drugs.

"I'm not aware of the particular incidents that have been reported," he said, "but I know that we are working on plans at all school levels to be sure that we will be able to avoid these kinds of things from occurring." Reichert said this morning.

George Procchel, the district safety director, was at a safety workshop this morning in Orlando and was not available for comment.

SANFORD - The Seminole County School Board has been sued by a former school psychologist who claims she was fired for opposing a testing policy that placed fewer students in exceptional education programs.

Nancy Duniho sued the school board for back pay, damages and to be rehired. In lieu of getting her Job back. Duniho wants to be paid the salary difference between the amount she makes and what she would have made if she was still working for the local district, for the rest of her working years.

Duniho began working for the district in 1984 and claims she received outstanding evaluations until her last one, written by support services administrator Mary Ann Kaesberg, Kaesberg, school superintendent Paul Hagerty and Donald Ricci, director of exceptional student education are also named as defendants.

Several school psychologists, including Duniho.

Good Supermarket owner Vincent Van. 63, died Tuesday night at Tampa General Hospital after he was shot during a melee with three robbers, police said.

While authorities could not positively link Tuesday's robbery to more than 20 others that have occurred since Jan. 15. Hillsborough sheriff's spokeswoman Debbie Carter said "It does look like it's connected."

During most of the robberies, eash and cigarettes have been taken. An intense search has become even more urgent has the level of violence has become more severe.

A gunman shot the surveillance camera during one robbery. During others, the robbers have shot at the ceiling

'They're getting braver and braver and the potential for violence is getting greater and greater." Carter said. With raised concerns comes heightened frustration.

"When in the hell are they going to catch them?" asked Barbara Fernandez, who works at Tampa area convenience store. Last month Fernandez said her son, Corbin, a clerk at another store, was robbed.

Stormy is freed for first flight

PORT ST. LUCIE - Stormy, the eaglet who was found injured by a wildlife worker during the violent winter storm last March, has been returned to the wild.

About 20 environmentalists and wildlife officers watch Tuesday as the year-old eagle was released from the Savannas State Reserve for his first solo flight to freedom.

'I don't think I was quite ready to let him go," said David Hitzig, executive director of the Treasure Coast Wildlife Hospital in Hobe Sound, where Stormy spent the past six months learning to hunt, fly and compete with other birds of Stormy was born in the only coastal eagle's nest between Vero Beach and Miami. The March storm knocked him out of his parents' nest and onto the ground where Savannas patrol officer Bob Przekop found him.

He spent about four months in the nest of his adoptive parents at Dreher Park Zoo in West Palm Beach before going to the Treasure Coast hospital. It was a bittersweet sendoff for those who have nurtured and trained Stormy, whose head is still the brown of a young eagle. Even though the bird's parents are back in their nest. Hitzig said it's doubtful they'll recognize him.

Lorenz's name was drawn Tuesday as the winner of the South Florida Fair's grand-prize. The $4,000 prize for two people covers hotel and admission for a bus tour through caribou country, whale watching on Cook inlet and views of mountains and glaciers - all starting at Anchorage International Airport.

He's just not sure how he's going to make the 10,000-mile transcontinental journey.

"We'll try to get there somehow - even if we have to take dog sieds," said Lorenz, 34, of Deiray Beach.

Two roughdrip tickets would cost about $1,400, and state weren't included in the prize because fair organizers couldn't Lasters was he thought the sign above the raffle said "Win a trip to Alaska." The poster actually said "Alaska Tour" and ended with an asterisk noting air fare was not included.

Law should ban all panhandling

BOCA RATON - A city attorney said any law prohibiting people from soliciting donations on public streets should apply to everyone, charities and panhandlers alike.

City Attorney Frank Bartolone said in a memo to Mayor Bill Smith Jr. that an ordinance would have to prohibit all money soliciting if the ordinance would stand up under court scrutiny. The city also would have to show there was a real, not perceived, danger with panhandlers.

Smith asked Bartolone to investigate the matter after city residents threatened to picket and ridicule panhandlers beginning March 12 if the city does not begin to regulate them.

Councilman Steven Abrams said he is wary of an ordinance to restrict panhandling because it "could create more problems than it would solve." He said such a law would hurt charities and likely prompt a suit from the American Civil Liberties

Florida ACLU President James Green said the city would probably back down before it came to court action.

I doubt the city would expose itself to the expense of an ACLU court challenge," he said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Gambling used to lure tourists

By BILL BERGSTROM Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Churches and politicians including Gov. Lawton Chiles may object, but racetracks, hotels and casino companies will back a bid to put gambling on the November ballot, a petition-drive organizer says.

Pat Roberts, chairman of Proposition for Limited Casinos, said Tuesday that with competition growing, some form of expanded gambling is likely, and his proposal would cause the fewest problems.

We believe a form of limited casinos will help with tourism growth and will be a major boost to economic development," Roberts told a news conference called to announce formation of the political action committee. "It will also allow Florida to more effectively compete for major conventions with New Orleans and other cities."

Roberts said some church groups and politicians, including Chiles, will fight growth in gambling.

Chiles opposes a constitutional amendment to expand gambling and has said he'd veto any action by lawmakers to legalize casinos.

"Governor Chiles believes Florida's future is about more than a roll of the dice or the spin of a roulette wheel," spokesman Ron-Sachs said. "The governor is committed to the kind of wholesome economic development that generates skilled high-paying jobs, the growth of small business and new clean industry, and he thinks our future lies more in that direction."

"I'm sure he will never campaign for it." Roberts said. "How much he wants to make it an issue in his campaign I'm not sure."

With no gubernatorial candidates calling for casinos so far, it may be a minor issue. predicted Bob Fiero, campaign manager for Republican contender Ken Connor.

Connor questions gambling's value as a lure for tourists and conventions, Fiero said. "We're more concerned about the effect it has on Florida's population." Roberts said his group will hire a petition-gathering service, for about 75 cents per signature, to try to get the nearly 430,000 signatures that must be obtained by an Aug. 9 deadline. Connor helped lead opposition to an unsuccessful 1986 proposal to let counties authorize casinos at major hotels.

But now tourists are being wooed by family attractions at Las Vegas gambling palaces, riverboat gambling on the Mississippi River, casinos opening soon in Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans, and likely casino gambling on Seminole reservations In Tampa and Hollywood.

"I still do not believe Florida needs the type of casino operation that exists in Atlantic City," Roberts said. "What we do need is a plan for a limited form of casinos."

Suits filed against swampland owners

By Associated Press

TAVARES - It was swampland, and it could only be reached by helicopter or parachute. But the buyers weren't aware of that because the sellers didn't register with the state.

Now, Circuit Judge G. Richard Singeliary is trying to sort out the conflicting versions of how the property near Walt Disney World exchanged hands, and who got the money and how.

He will determine whether the buyers are entitled to their money back, plus damages. Florida law requires sellers to register their land so buyers know what they are getting.

The buyers believed the plots they bought were good investments because of their proximity to the large tourist attraction.

The judge is hearing lawsuits involving 18 individuals and couples suing David and Bettie Stegel of Orlando. Another 20 suits will be tried later.

Nation of Islam speaker denies hate message

Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE - A top aide of Nation of Islam Minister Louis Farrakhan fought back against Jews and other protesters who accused him of anti-Semitism as he urged students to learn about black history.

"What nerve you have to call me an anti-Semite. What nerve you have to call me a bigot. The state of Florida is on the honor roll of racism." Khalid Abdul Muhammad said in a speech Tuesday night at the University of Florida kicking off Black History Month.

He mentioned the destruction of a small Florida town populated by blacks. A weeklong rampage begun by a white mob wiped out Rosewood in 1923 and icft at least eight people dead.

ance drew bitter debate, was surrounded by bodyguards amid tight security in the university auditorium where some 800 students about evenly divided between blacks and whites gathered.

"You can't compare me to David Duke or Hitler." Muhammad proclaimed. "Nobody ever took their nation. Nobody ever robbed them completely of the knowledge of self as my people have been robbed. We are fighting back. ...

"At the same time you lift every voice and sing, lift every fist and swing."

He urged students to examine the true history of blacks, adding We are not letting you get away with the lies you told us all these VERIS."

Some students were clearly upset by Muhammad's remarks.

One student was asked to leave while another stood and turned his back to him. Art Sandeen, UF vice president of student affairs, defended the decision allowing Muhammad to speak, saying the school was committed to freedom of speech.

Muhammad is receiving $1,500 for his speech from a student government fund supported by student fees. His appearance was sponsored by the Black Student Union.

Jewish students were vocal in their opposition to Muhammad and sponsored a "unity rally" before his speech. About 250 people attended the rally, where signs read: "Christians Opposed to Anti-Semitism," "Jewish and Proud" and "UF Has No Room

For Bigots." 'Racism under the guise of muiii-cunturalism is still facfor shouting during the speech, ism," Larry Reimer of the Campus Ministry Cooperative said at the rally.

> "We need to take a stand when someone attacks us," said Marc Goldberg, a Jewish student at the university.

> In a speech to students at Kean College in Union, N.J., on-Nov. 29, Muhammad said Jews are "the blood suckers of the black nation," the pope is a "no-good cracker," and black South Africans should "kill everything white that ain't right."

Black Student Union officials defended Muhammad's appearance, noting that other controversial speakers have appeared on campus, including former Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates, on whose watch the beating of black motorist Rodney King occurred.

TV violence monitor planned

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Parents would know when a violent show was coming up on cable television - and could block it under a system devised by the industry to derail congressional efforts to force a reduction in televised mayhem.

The cable industry also said Tuesday it would set up an independent monitoring system to track violent shows and issue public reports.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce telecommunications subcommittee, termed the plan "the dawning of a new era."

And Sen. Paul Simon, D-III., said he is sufficiently satisfied with the monitoring proposal to drop legislation that would have required federal monitoring of violence. But he left the door open to renew the effort if television doesn't improve.

The four major broadcast networks said they will join in the independent monitoring program, with a system in full operation by September.

But the over-the-air broadcasters declined to join in the rating system or the proposal for technology that would allow shows to be

That rating system could be in place in six to nine months, and the technology to block shows within a year, cable officials said. Both cable officials and broadcasters denounced gratuitous violence on television, but both also said they were concerned that any congressional action could violate their First Amendment rights of freedom of speech and the press. The cable industry also called for a concentrated series of anti-violence broadcasts termed Voices Against Violence as well as the rating, monitoring and channel blocking plans.

And a broad spectrum of cable networks endorsed the effort, ranging from American Movie Classics to the Weather Channel and including MTV, ESPN, HBO, Discovery, the Learning Channel, Lifetime, Court TV and CNN.

Winston H. Cox, president of the Showtime network, said the cable industry assumes there would be one independent monitoring program for both cable and broadcasters

Cox said the cable industry plans the rating system to give parents more information on the shows that appear. However, it was not yet clear how viewers would learn the rating.

The rating could be aired or in a guide or the rating could be coded into a broadcast and a violent show automatically blocked. Cox said sports and news shows are not expected to be rated. But while CBS Vice President Martin D. Franks said the four major broadcast networks were open to the idea of a single monitor, they were inclined to have their own system separate from cable.

And while Franks spoke of an annual report on violence, Cox talked about reports two to four times a year.

The biggest difference focused on cable's endorsement of a plan for rating shows and finding ways to limit the access of children to them, though Cox said the success of such a venture may hinge on whether the broadcasters eventually choose to join in.

There should be no surprises to viewers when they turn on their TV," said Cox, representing the National Cable Television Association.

He endorsed the so-called V-chip, a technological device that would permit parents to block from their television sets any program that was rated as violent.

Markey explained that computer chips included in all television sets starting last year can be modified to block violent programming at a cost of 10 cents to 15 cents each. The chips are currently used for closed-captioning for the hearing-impaired.

"We're sort of updating the on-off switch," Cox explained. "We're sort of giving parents the same control today that parents may have had 20 years ago."

The difference, said Cox, is that in years past there were only a few channels to keep track of and there was more likely to be a parent home to monitor what children watched.

"Parents need the technology that enables them to protect their family from the 500-channel revolution," said Markey.

Professor-turned-Zen disciple sets off sex-harassment furor

By LAURA KING Associated Press Writer

TOKYO - The plot is the stuff of soap opera, with a Japanese twist: Eminent professor is accused of sexually harassing female colleagues. He insists he's innocent, quits his job. retreats to a Buddhist temple, shaves his head and takes a vow of asceticism.

He says he wants to search his soul - but accusers say he just wants to escape further investigation. After angry protests from a women's group, the temple asks him to continue his spiritual studies elsewhere.

The saga of professor-turned-Zen disciple Toru Yano has made headlines here and may reflect a growing will on the part of digardese Women to fight back against bektral harassment, a pervasive pro-blem in this conservative, male-dominated culture.

The idea that there was even such a thing as unwelcome sexual overtures in the workplace didn't gain currency in Japan until long after most Western countries gave workers legal avenues to fight them. Tellingly, the Japanese coined a word borrowed from English for the phenomenon - "sekuhara." from "sexual harassment."

Rules on appropriate workplace conduct are evolving slowly in Japan. A law in 1986 banned sex harassment, but only late last year did the Labor Ministry issue a report defining it for the first time - a move meant to make it easier for women to take action.

"I think this new rule is helpful, but attitudes don't necessarily change when laws do," sald Tomoko Shibata, former head of a research group on women's employment who now works in private industry.

According to government surveys, about one in four working women have experienced harassment on the lob. ranging from lewd remarks to physical attacks. Women's rights advocates say the true figures are probably much higher.

But complaints may be muted because bad economic times have made women's positions at work more precarious. As Japan's worst postwar recession drags on, female university graduates find it far harder than men to get hired. Fewer women now get a shot at "sogoshoku," or executive-track positions, and part-time workers - mainly women - are the first to be laid

Other observers say sex harassment could be at least partly the product of a job atmosphere in which many women are expected to be deferential and decorative "office flowers." At most Japanese firms, female clerical workers make tea and tidy up.

In the United States, the Michael Crichton novel "Disclosure" - the story of a power-hungry woman boss who sexually stalks a male colleague - is topping the bestseller lists. Three young Japanese "office ladies," told of the novel's plot. burst into peals of incredulous laughter.

In sex-harassment cases, legal action is still relatively rare. Japan's first such case wasn't filed until 1989.

Perhaps in part because respect for authority is so ingrained here, women are hesttant to accuse a man in a powerful position - someone like Toru Yano.

At 57, the Kyoto University professor was the recipient of many academic honors, a member of the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences, which picks the Nobel prize winners. He served as director of the university's well-regarded Center for Southeast Asian Studies.

Last spring, eight of the professor's personal assistants quit in rapid succession, and rumors spread that they had been harassed. The school began an investigation after one of the former assistants formally complained.

Lawyer Hiroshi Iguchi said the -was browbeaten and intimidated into having sex with Yano, and afraid to speak out because the believe her.

Eliminate drug problem from the beginning

When rail crossing bells start sounding, it's a warning that a train is approaching. Stop. or you could be headed for serious trouble.

When statistics show drug use is causing more deaths, it's another warning. This is also life-threatening, but few see it as a reason

A new survey, conducted by the University of Michigan, has been released regarding teen age drug use. The results are startling.

Nine percent of eighth graders, 19 percent percent of 10th graders and 26 percent of 12th graders reported using marijuana during the past year. The figure is down considerably since the late 70s, when 60 percent of the seniors admitted to trying marijuana. Last year, the percentage was down to 35 on a national average. The statistics were compiled with 51,000 students at over 400 schools. We don't know if any were in the Central Florida area, but there is no reason to believe the numbers here would be much better than the national

More and more, smoking is being banned. Most schools no longer allow teachers or employees to smoke cigarettes indoors. Drug-free zones are being set up to bring about a stronger punishment if a person is convicted of using drugs on school property.

Neither of these seems to help. Money continues to be the motive.

Scherger reen giving small amounts of marijuana assay free of charge. They hope youngates will have a few pulls, and become addicts. Eventually, the teenager will pay almost any price to obtain more of the

The constant undertaking of studies and issuance of startling statistics may shock some people. Unfortunately, it's not doing any good.

Everyone seems to be concentrating on cutting down on crime. We hear talk of longer prison sentences, more police, and better protection for our lives and property.

When will people understand that drugs are causing a great portion of these crimes? Youngsters as well as adults are robbing and burglarizing, even killing, to obtain money for the next drug buy.

Another statistic released in the past week says Florida is first in overall violent crimes per capita. We expect a large percentage of those crimes were directly connected to obtaining money for drugs.

Let's start to look at the problem from its beginning. We must eliminate the sale and use of marijuana, crack, cocaine, or any of the other money-makers. Only in doing so will we see the crime rates start to drop.

Lake Mary's sewer lines

It has recently come to my attention that the Lake Mary city commissioners entered into an agreement earlier this year with Seminole County to install sewer lines when Lake Mary Boulevard is widened from Country Club Road to u.S. Highway 17-92. This will cause an expenditure of approximately $172,000 next year and an additional $400,000 plus in the next three years for a total cost of around $600,000 total to serve about 29 parcels of land. I find this amazing since we cannot afford proper drainage in parts of the city behind Lake Mary Elementary, have apparent need for sewers in the Crystal Lake areas or afford lights for ball fields!

At the time of this agreement, there were no public hearings, no feasibility study and drainage studies (3 in the past 8 years) were ignored.

Seminole County has indicated that Lake Mary can get out of this agreement if the commissioners request it by Friday, Feb. 4.

I strongly encourage the citizens of Lake Mary to call the Lake Mary bot line, 324-3058, and attend the first and only public meeting on this item on Thursday, Feb. 3, to let your commissioners know that we do not approve this waste of our money and they should request that this agreement be

Last Saturday, at age 52, my wife Diane became a "bat mitzvah." Let me explain.

Since the 14th century, most Jewish boys in early adolescence have traditionally become a "bar mitzvali," that is, "a son of the commandment." The boys studied Hebrew, Judaic thought and ritual. During a Sabbath service they chanted a portion of the Torah (the first five books of the Bible). With those acts and ceremonies, the bar mitzvah boy publiciy affirmed his coming of age. In 1922, the very first bat mitzvah ceremony took place, yielding a "daughter of the commandment." But it was not until the hothouse 1960s that the practice took hold in most synagogues, often after much consternation. After all, it meant a change in a tradition.

So, for women of a certain age, roughly over 40 or 45, a particular opportunity for religious fulfillment simply did not exist. My wife, for example, was "confirmed" in synagogue at age 14. But it wasn't the same as a bar mitzvah, not the Torah.

Accordingly, a decade or so ago the "adult bat mitzvah" began gaining popularity, offering the rewards and responsibilities of the faith to women who missed out the first time. And so it came to pass last week at my congregation (Adas Israel, in Washington, D.C.) that 33 women. having studied together for 18 months, became but mitzvot. (One of them was Diane's sister. ("Miriam, the prophetess took a timbrel in her hand, and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances." A second portion from the Bible dealt with Deborah, the flerce prophetess and judge who led the Israelites to victory over the Canaanites. That triumph was punctuated by a Kenite woman named Jael using a mallet to drive a tent pin through the temple of Sisera, the Canaanite commander, who happened to be asleep.

In addition, the Adas Israel women performed a historical cantata written by their tutor, Avis Miller, a mother of five sons, a rabbi in a formerly all-male profession. Rabbi Miller's cantata included these spoken words: "As we stand here today, we honor those women who came before us, who struggled for their voices to be heard And we rejoice at exercising privileges denied to Jewish women throughout our history."

It is part of a potent spiritual revival going on across America, in every religion. Hah! Whoever would have thought that, in at least this case, modernist feminism would boost a religious

ELLEN GOODMAN

Values are society's glue

BOSTON - The TelePrompTer had hardly stopped rolling, the president had barely glad-handed his way out of the House chamber, when the analysts and politicians all began deconstructing his text. Health care, crime, welfare - they waded through the words looking for portents about policy and clues about compromise.

But from my listening post, way outside the chamber and well beyond the Beltway, I was most conscious of the voice Bil Clinton used. Not just the words of policy but the underlying sound of values:

"In our toughest neighborhoods, on our meanest streets, in our poorest rural areas, we have seen a stunning and simultaneous breakdown of community, family and work. the heart and soul of civilized society."

We can't renew our country when children are having children and the fathers walk away as if the kids don't amount to anything."

'I am telling you we have got to stop pointing our fingers at these kids who have no future and reach our hands out to them."

Not that long ago, the language of values was spoken almost exclusively by conservatives. Not anymore. One of the striking things Clinton has done since he came on the national scene is to give progressives and moderates permission to use the most potent words in our moral vocabulary.

Despite "bimbo eruptions," despite ap-pointments that blew up in his face like trick cigars, despite a Houdini ability to get himself in and out of traps, time and again he has drawn on the power in that voice.

What a change that is. Back in the 1980s. the right wing took over the word "values" the way they had taken over the word "family."

When Ronald Reagan spoke of welfare, he was talking of "welfare chests." Law and Order were code words for racism. And those who criticized sleaze wanted to ban Judy Blume books

As late as 1992, Dan Quayle talked of single mothers only to pin a scarlet A on Murphy Brown. Marily Quayle divided women into Hillary Clinton-like liberals and those who "do not wish to be liberated from their essential natures as women."

For a long time, the very word values was suspect as a code used by the radical right. In the face of this, many others were tongue-fied.

Those who believed in a woman's right to choose found it hard to critize any choice. Those who didn't believe in punishing teen-age mothers found it hard to decry young

It was hard to worry out loud about children home alone without seeming to blame working mothers. Not even Tipper Gore could worry about sex or violence in music withut being tagged as a censor.

Gradually we are now finding a way to the center. Not drifting right to some presumed political center. Reaching down to a psychological center. Finding a voice there.

This is the native tongue to the man from Arkansas. Values provide the link with which he connects health care, welfare reform, crime, jobs. These issues are girds to shore up an infrastructure rocked by the earthquakes of social change.

Language of course, isn't everything. There are questions about many of Clinton's policies that chart change and not just about health care.

Will welfare reform emancipate people from the system? Or merely deinsitutionalize them. setting families adrift in a sea of unintended conse quences?

Can any government ensure the ethic of work? Or will that ethic be downsized in a ruthiesa world economy no matter what?

Are communities the humpty-dumpty of America? Or can they be put back together?

Not just the underlying

but the words of policy

sound of values.

When Clinton talked about such values, some regarded it as treacly rhetoric, the spun sugar of politics. But this is clearly a man who sees values as glue. It holds him to the public and to policy.

In just over a year, this sometimes rocky administration has staked out the common ground of change. It can be an unsettled turf. But it's a lot easier to build on, when you speak a common language.

Zhirinovsky's past may include KGB

WASHINGTON - U.S. intelligence sources now believe that Russian ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky was once a KGR "asset," and that much of his current financial support comes from elements of the old KGB and the current Russian intelligence service.

Zhirinovsky's Liberal Democratic Party won a quarter of the vote in last December's parliamentary elections, more than any other political party. It rang alarm bells across the world. b e c a u s e Zhirinovsky's stands include threatening war with Germany. Japan and even the United States.

The latest volley against Zhirinovsky came from the respected reformist muyor of St Petersburg, Anatoly Sobeliak, who alleged in a recent interview with a Russian newspaper that Zhirinovsky was a "reserve" KGB captain who created the LDP in 1990 at the beliest of his world.

Unfortunately, Sobehak offered no documentation to support his charges and gave details of which he could have no intimate knowledge. These include statements made in closed-door meetings of the Politburo a long-time opponent of Zhirinovsky. Sobehak claims his information was culled from "trustworthy" sources, and his statements may not be far off the mark. CIA sources shared part of a classified profile of Zhirinovsky with our associate Dale Van Zhtrinovsky spent his early years at Moscow State University's Africa and Asia Institute, a KGB-affiliated section of the university that trained some of its most gifted agents in foreign languages and cultures. The CIA believes this is when he may have been initially recruited. He would have been an attractive find because of the early facility he showed for languages. Zhirinovsky is reportedly fluent in English, French, German and Turkish.

Later he excelled as an interpreter in Turkey, where he worked his way up from a low position at the local Soviet Cultural Center to a top position with a Russian trade delegation. The fact that he was allowed to work abroad in the '70s after college. especially in a NATO country, would have required KGB permission at a minimum. Turkish journalists have since established that he was arrested for making "Communist propaganda and distributing Lenin badges" during his stint there, though Zhirinovsky claims he never officially joined the Communist Party.

The most compelling evidence against Zhirinovsky, however, surround the 1990 formation of the Liberal Democratic Party. which was the first opposition party allowed in the Soviet Union. There are three undeniable facts about this:

First, intelligence reports claim that the KGB was busily looking for agents to form political parties once it was clear Gorbachev was going to allow multiple parties.

Second, the LDP became the first party ever to register with the Soviet Justice Ministry, though Zhirinovsky had few supporters at the time, nor did he have the requisite 5,000 signatures that the law required. These laws were waved for Zhirinovsky and his party.

Third, within months, several key supporters in the LDP leadership quit the party. claiming Zhirinovsky was a KGB agent. A 1991 letter to Russia's procurator general. Vladimir Bogachev, who leads a party that split from the LDP, also accused Zhirinovsky of KGB ties.

Study finds many drugs cost far more in states

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Drug manufacturers charge 60 percent more for several dozen best-selling. brand-name drugs in the United States than for the same medicines in the United Kingdom. government auditors said today.

One contraceptive pill, Nordette, cost 17 times more at the wholesale level here than in Britain. said a report by the General Accounting Office. the investigative arm of Congress. The tranquilizer Vallum cost 10 times as much and the cardiac drug Inderal cost nearly nine times as much.

The report, requested by Rep. Henry A Waxman, D-Calif., provides ammunition for lawmakers who contend drug makers are ripping off the American public in the absence of government controls on prices and profits.

The British market is heavily regulated, with the government buying most drugs through the National Health Service.

"If we are serious about controlling health care costs, we must address the issue of prescription drug prices" Waxman said in a statement. "We must find a way to balance profits and price in a way that is fairer to the American

"These numbers translate into real costs to real people, particularly the elderly who purchase 34 percent of the drugs," said Waxman, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association challenged the GAO study, saying "It compares prices in the best health care system in the world with prices in one of the worst systems among major industrialized countries.

Robert F. Allnutt, the association's executive vice president, said the GAO also exaggerated the price differences by looking only at brand-name drugs and ignoring generics and U.S. rebates and discounts.

Robert M. Goldberg, a Brandels University research fellow, said that in Britain and other European countries with price controls, "there's less innovation and less access to new and better drugs. That's the tradeoff for low prices. An earlier GAO study found a similar disparity between prices for the same drugs in the United States and Canada. The drug industry argued then that Canadian firms conduct relatively little research.

But the GAO report said the private pharmaceutical industry in the United Kingdom remains "one of the world's leaders" in research and development, ranking third behind the United States and Japan in major drugs brought to market from 1970 to 1992.

The GAO, working from a list of the 200 drugs most frequently dispensed in the United States in 1991, compared the prices of 77 sold in the same form and dosage in the United Kingdom.

It checked the prices that manufacturers sold the drugs to retailers, not the prices consumers paid at pharmacies. The wholesale price is typically two-thirds of the retail price.

The 77 drugs "cost wholesalers 60 percent more in the United States than in the United Kingdom," the GAO said. Six out of seven drugs were priced higher in the United States; most were priced more than twice as high.

The differentials ranged from 62 percent lower for Zovirax capsules, an antiviral drug priced at 69 cents for a 200 mg capsule here and $1.81 in Britain, to 1,712 percent higher for the Nordette contraceptive tablet, which cost 84 cents apiece here and 5 cents in Britain.

A 5 mg Valium tablet that wholesaled for 45 cents in the United States cost 4 cents in the United Kingdom. Inderal, the heart medication, cost 37 cents for a 40 mg tablet here and 5 cents in the U.K., an 872 percent difference.

The price gap "tended to be dramatically smaller" for newer drugs - Just 17 percent for those introduced since 1986. Pre-1980 drugs cost 120 percent more in the United States, the report

The GAO concluded that the price differences "are primarily due to the regulatory constraints that manufacturers face in pricing their drugs on the U.K. market and ... the lack of similar constraints in the United States.

Drugs account for only 7 percent of all U.S. health expenditures. But they are one of the biggest out-of-pocket medical expenses for many consumers, especially the elderly whose medicines can cost hundreds of dollars a month and are not covered by Medicare.

Rest prescribed for Clinton's hoarseness

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has several factors working against him as he tries to regain his voice - his job, the weather, even his personality, doctors say.

The president, sipping soothing tea along the way, suffered through back-to-back speeches on Tuesday, getting progressively more hoarse as the day wore on. "I'm doing slightly worse," he acknowled ed during the second appearance. "The good news is, you get a shorter speech."

Clinton, plagued by chronic voice problems, has been troubled by this latest round of hoarseness ever since his 63-minute State of the Union speech on Jan. 25. Laryngills is not unusual among people who use their voices a lot. Rest is the usual

Clinton to lift trade embargo

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON - President Clinton is primed to lift the 19-year economic embargo on Vietnam, administration officials say, spurred by progress on the MIA issue and urged on by Clinton's top advisers, senators and U.S. business interests

A memo on its way to the president's desk embraces a "consensus recommendation" that the embargo end, the officials said Tuesday night.

Clinton's advisers weighing in on the Issue were Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Defense Secretary Les Aspin and national security adviser Anthony Lake.

Some veterans groups and families of missing Americans want the ban to stand.

But Clinton is prepared — as one official put it - to "check the right box" in favor of resuming normal trade relations.

Other officials said Clinton has been leaning for weeks in the direction of ending the embargo as the best way to speed the search for servicemen unaccounted for from

While there are varying views among Clinton's advisers whether lifting the ban would achieve that goal, a majority do believe that a change on trade would improve chances for getting more cooperation from Victuam in determining the missing Americans' fate, the officials said.

However, the administration is not ready to open a diplomatic office in Ho Chi Minh City - a step that the Asian nation wants, the officials said.

Washington imposed an embargo against North Vietnam in 1964. It extended the embargo to cover the entire country after South Vietnam fell to communist North Victnam in 1975.

Normalizing trade has been on the Clinton White House's agenda since December when Assistant Secretary of State Winston Lord returned from Hanol to report the communist government was cooperating in the search for some 2,200 unaccounted for American servicemen from the Vietnam

In September, Clinton relaxed the embargo by allowing American firms to compete there for development projects financed by international lending institutions - a step urged by American bustnesses complaining that competitors in other nations were getting the jump on Boeing Co. could sell as many as 80 passenger jets worth $5 billion to Vietnam over the next 10 years, a regional sales director for the Seattle-based airplane manufacturer said this week.

The Senate last Thursday voted 62-38 to urge Clinton to end the embargo. Several senators praised Hanol's cooperation in giving the fullest possible accounting for the

But MIA families "don't think the cooperation has been wonderful." Ann Mills Griffiths of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, said last week.

"Accountability is purposely being lgnored." Mills said.

On the other hand, Vietnam veteran Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who proposed last week's resolution, argued "the Vietnamese cannot be expected to go "on and on helping us forever and receiving nothing in return but the cold shoulder of two decades of wholesale embargo."

As a presidential candidate. Clinton pledged there would be no easing of the embargo until Hanoi made a "full accounting" of missing Americans.

Once in office, Clinton emphasized expanding overseas trade to improve the American economy and has made an economic push in Asia a major foreign policy objective.

On his three-day trip, Lord received the remains of what the Vietnamese said were eight dead Americans. The repatriation brought to 67 the number of remains Vietnam returned last year.

Lord, meanwhile, announced a $2 million U.S. contribution to assist return of Vietnamese boat people who had fled the Civil rights groups saying Patrick not another Guinier

By SONYA ROSE An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON - Civil rights groups kicked themselves for their too-little, too-late support for Lant Guinter last year when her nomination to be the nation's top civil rights enforcer withered and died under conservative attack.

That's not going to happen this time with Deval Patrick, the groups say.

Yet even before President Clinton nominated Patrick as the Justice Department's assistant attorney general for civil rights. one conservative was labeling the 37-year-old Boston lawyer "a stealth Guinter." That remark from Clint Bolick.

president of the consequative institute for Justice, was made Monday, a day before Clinton

It was a familiar scenario, for it was Bolick who came up with the characterization of Guinter that she never was able to shake: 'auota aucen.'

As with Guinler, Bolick's attack on Patrick went unchallenged while civil rights groups weighed their response. When they finally did say something, they quietly said Patrick was a nice guy, perfect for the

Their reactions to Guinier were similar: She was nice, well-qualified, a thoughtful student of the law as a professor at the University of Pennsylvania. But she had a long paper trail of controversial writings on vot- firmation hearings on Patrick's ing rights that ultimately sank her nomination.

And in the hours after Guinter admitted they rose to her de- on the committee. fense too late.

"It was our job to defend her. We should have had this press conference a month ago," Rep. Eleanor Holmes Norton, delegate to Congress for the District of Columbia, said when Guinier's supporters finally appeared before reporters.

Patrick also drew positive responses from some key senators. "He is an excellent choice." said Sen. Paul Simon, D-III., a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will hold con-

Lawmakers debate prison beds vs. prevention

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Finding the money to pay for many new crime-fighting proposals will be the major challenge faced by Florida lawmakers when they convene next week. They have already produced hundreds of ideas to build prisons, keep offenders behind bars longer, ban assault weapons, stem the increase of juvenile lawlessness, and other measures.

"It's obvious to me the most overwhelming mandate we have is to do something about the violence in our communities," said Senate President Pat Thomas. "Our first priority here is to provide security and safety to our people.

But agreeing on how they'll pay for the new programs is another issue for most lawmakers in an election year.

"I very candidly don't think this session we'll pass any taxes," concedes Thomas, D-Quincy. "I don't find any rush by any members.

His House counterpart, Speaker Bo Johnson

"A lot of legislators and candidates are tripping. over each other trying to promise the construc-tion of prison beds," said Johnson, D-Milton. "It's harder to find a way to pay for them."

However, most Floridians think crime is out of control and expect to see the Legislature come up with some ideas to ease the crisis.

The state's crime problems drew international attention after a string of tourist murders, including the highly-publicized murder of a British visitor in September at an Interstate 10 rest stop in North Florida. Four teen-agers - aged 14 to 17 - are awaiting trial.

Currently, inmates are serving about 40 percent of their sentences. One citizens group, Stop Turning Out Prisoners, is gathering signatures to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot to require felons to serve 85 percent of their sentences.

If lawmakers approved a five-year prison building plan to stop releasing prisoners early, the state would run a $2 billion budget shortfall by 1998-99 unless new taxes are passed or the

In his proposed $38 billion, no-new-taxes budget for 1994-95, Gov. Lawton Chiles calls for funding 14,665 new prison beds by selling $300 million in revenue bonds. Chiles also said he expects lawmakers to produce more than new prisons. He wants preventative programs to keep at-risk youth from turning into career crooks.

He has proposed spending $175 million on a variety of efforts to curtail juvenile crime, including after-school programs at middle schools and two "juvenile education academies" for delinquents

But his budget plan leaves unanswered how the state would pay for the cost of operating new prisons in the years ahead.

Florida TaxWatch said the governor's plan only includes the money to operate little less than half of the prison beds he has proposed. His budget plan probably would create the need for additional taxes by 1996, the independent research group said.

D-North Miami Beach, would add a penny to the state's 6-cent sales tax to pay for 50,000 new prison beds and ensure inmates would serve at least 85 percent of their sentences. Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher, a potential Republican candidate for governor, is heading a petition drive for a constitutional amendment that also would increase the sales tax one cent for new prisons and other anti-crime programs.

Not every anti-crime proposal is linked with the budget. Rep. Ron Klein, D-Boca Raton, is pushing legislation to ban the sale, transfer, and possession of 37 types of assault weapons.

But most of the criminal justice measures will be tied directly into the state budget. Chiles acknowledged the need for additional taxes in the future to pay for his prison plan but he said he did not want the sales tax increased until the tax base was broadened by eliminating exemptions.

"If the Legislature wants to come up with some tax source. I will review that," he said.

Harding's lawyer: Keep mind open

By JEFF BARNARD Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. - As the noose of suspicion tightened around Tonya Harding, her lawyer urged Olympic officials not to throw her off the team based on her ex-husband's claim she gave the OK for the attack on Nancy Kerrigan. "All Tonya is asking for is her measure of fairness and jurisprudence that is represented by every one of the team members who will be wearing the United States flag on their uniforms," Robert C. Weaver Jr. said Tuesday.

Weaver made the appeal after Harding's ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly, pleaded guilty to racketeering and agreed to testify that Harding approved the Jan. 6 attack that knocked Kerrigan out of U.S. figure skating championships, the qualifying competition for the Olympics this month in Lillehammer. Norway.

In exchange for the guilty plea. prosecutors agreed to recommend two years in prison and a $100,000 fine. In Gillooly's statement to the FBI, released Tuesday, he said Harding wanted Kerrigan out of the way because Kerrigan "was the favorite of the U.S. Figure Skating Association."

OK. let's do it." Gillooly quoted Harding as saying of the

A special committee began meeting this week to look into whether Harding violated the association's ethics code and forfeited her place on the Olympic team. The panel expects to make a recommendation by week's end.

Gillooly's lawyer, Ron Hoevet, said he expected Harding to be charged. He urged the U.S. Olympic Committee to drop Harding from the team, and added his own advice to the skater.

"Denial is no longer plausible," he said. "The truth about this bizarre crime has now been revealed. Harding again denied involvement in the attack, in which Kerrigan was clubbed in the knee. Last week, Harding said she didn't learn until four days afterward that people close to her were involved. She has not been charged.

"Gillooly's accusations appear to evidence a continued practice of abusive conduct intended to disrupt Tonya Harding's life and destroy her career," Harding's lawyers said in a statement.

Weaver also said he is certain figure skating and Olympic officials "are going to follow their constitution, regulations and guidelines and are not going to embrace this notion of Mr. Gillooly's attorney that they can be some kind of rump committee and bump her off the team, a position on which she has worked very hard to put herself on and which she richly deserves.

Gillooly and Harding divorced last year, then reconciled and lived together until Harding's Jan. 18 meeting with the FBI. when she announced that they were splitting so she could concentrate on skating. She has accused him of hitting her.

Authorities also released statements that alleged hitman Shane Stant and alleged getaway driver Derrick Smith made to the FBI. Shawn Eckhardt. Harding's bodyguard.

has also been charged.
Gillooly statement said
Eckhardt suggested running Kerrigan's car off the road or hiring a sniper to shoot her. Smith told investigators that Eckardt suggested cutting Kerrigan's Achilles tendon or hamstring, but the others didn't want her permanently disabled.

LONGWOOD - Half of the top four seeds in the 5A-District 4 boys' soccer tournament will have to buy tickets to get into this evening's semilinal games.

While top-seeded Lake Mary rolled into the semilinals with an 8-0 rout of Mainland and No. 4-seed Del.and outlasted Deltona 3-2 Tuesday night, second-seeded Lyman and third-seed Oviedo were shown the gate by No. 7-seed Lake Brantley and No. 6-seed Lake Howell, respectively.

At Lyman High School Stadium, Lake Brantley goalte Sean Seaver made three saves during the penalty kick shootout to lift the Patriots to a 2-1 win over Lyman.

Meanwhile, at Oviedo's John Courier Field, Kevin Yearick scored the game's only goal with 28 seconds left in the match, giving the Lake Howell Silver Hawks a 1-0 decision over the Oviedo Lions. This evening, Lake Mary will host Deland and Lake Brantley travels to Lake Howell. Both semifinals will start at 7 p.m. The survivors will meet Friday night at the home field of the highest remaining seeded team.

MAITLAND - What home court advantage? The state-ranked basketball teams from Lake Highland Prep came to Maitland with something to prove Tuesday night and did just that. knocking off Orangewood Christian School 49-29 in the girls' game and 84-83 in the boys' contest. The Highlanders also ended the Rams' undefeated jy boys' season with a 68-61 triumph. Christine Parrish scored 20 points and Jill Vazquez added 13 as the Lake Highland girls, ranked No. 7 in Class 1A, improved to 15-2. No one scored in double figures for the Orangewood girls, who fell to 13-10. The boys' game was a barn-burner, with the Rams leading 29-18 after the first period, but were unable to maintain the advantage. Contributing for the Highlanders (19-4, ranked

The win ended the Dreadnoughts' seven-game win streak and gave the Silver Hawks tranked fifth in this week's Florida Sports Writers Association's Class 5A state poll their 28th victory in 29 starts this scason.

Things did not start well for Lake Howell as Lakeland raced to an 11-4 lead with University of Florida signee Nikki Sullivan scoring nine points. After a timeout with 3:17 left in the first quarter, the home squad responded by scoring seven straight points to tie the score at 11-11 at the end of the period.

The Silver Hawks kept the momentam going in the second quarter, scoring six points while holding the Dreadnoughts without a point until Kalasha McCoy hit a three-pointer with 5:43 left in the half.

The teams traded baskets the remainder of the half, with Nikki Sullivan hitting a shot at the buzzer to tie the game 26-26 at intermission. Sullivan ended the half with 15 points.

Lakeland scored the first six points of the second half, giving the visitors a 32-26 lead with 5:22 felt in the third quarter. Lake Howell again answered back and the quarter ended with the Dreadness 4s up 41-40.

The fourth quarter basically belonged to the Silver Hawks, but they could not put the game away because of their problems at the free throw line.

Lake Howell was able to pull off the win because of the second half play of Deanna Graves, Kelly Kohn and Lort Marchisella and a defense that held Nikkt Sullivan to five points.

Graves, a University of South Florida signee, scored 16 second half points and made six of eight free throws in the final 1:36. Kohn, a juntor point guard, had six assists in the second half. and Marchisella scored eight points on four of five shooting and pulled down nine rebounds.

"I thought we did an excellent job of defense on Sullivan in the second half," said Lake Howell head coach Dennis Codrey. "And Marchisella played a very good game. She's the kind of player you have to see play a few times to really appreciate her abilities."

The Silver Hawks will conclude the regular season with a home game against Spruce

Creek on Thursday night. Graves led the Lake Howell attack with 25 points, five rebounds and four assists. Also contributing were Christina James (12 points, 12 rebounds), Marchisella (10 points, 14 rebounds) and Kohn (seven points, nine assists)

Lakeland (16-12) were paced by Nikki Sulivan (20 points, 13 rebounds) and Meggan Sullivan (14 points, nine rebounds).

RAMS WHIP EUSTIS EUSTIS - Lake Mary raced to a big lead early and protected it with a solid defensive effort as the Rams clubbed homestanding Eustis, 68-43, in a girls' basketball game Tuesday night.

The Lake Mary offense dominated the first half, taking a 27-14 lead after the first period and a 40-28 advantage at mtermission. The second half belonged to the defense, as the Rams held the Panthers to just six points in the third period and Raiders' two losses was to the Greybounds (on Jan. 15).

"We know a tough game is coming," said Barnett, "We knew that we were going to have to play and beat Orange Park again if we want to win the state championship. It should be a very good game."

To their credit, the Greyhounds (state champions in 1991 and 1992) gave no sign that they might be looking ahead to a showdown with Orange Park during their winover Mandarin last night.

Playing with the confidence born from their repeatedly successful appearances in the state tournament and the determination forged in last year's upset loss in the district semifinals, the Greyhounds quickly took control of Tuesday night's game and attacked the Mustangs through the final whistle

Shea Donthi put Lyman on top when a ball she mis-hit curled up and over the Manadarin keeper into the upper right 90 of the goal at 16:55. Danielle Garrell accounted for the next two goals on headers of crosses from Danya Harris, scoring at 25:35 and 31:29.

Caryn Roberts (off an assist by Michelle St. Louis) and Deborah Larsen (knocking home the rebound of her own penalty kick) scored for the Greyhounds in the first 15 minutes of the second half before Butler found the net for the Mustangs at 58:22.

Harris and Sara Kane doused any faint Mandarin hopes of a comeback with goals in the final 10 minutes of play. St. Louis also assisted on Harris' goal.

Barnett attributes the TCOB (taking care of business) approach that the Greyhounds have employed in winning their last 22 games to their collective. maturity.

They take pride in playing well," said Barnett. "Last year. when they came off the field after playing poorly, their at titude was that it was OK.

This year, it bothers them. We don't have to tell them. They already know. We'll mention little things, some reminders, but we don't have to tell them much. They know what they have to do and how they have to

So the Mustangs found out.

Discount Propane, Ace Drilling rally for wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD -- The leaders struggled but continued to win in the Tuesday Sanford Recreation Men's Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Ace Drilling (4-1) trailed Whelchel & Howard (2-3) 8-5 entering the bottom of the seventh linning. But five singles and two walks plated four runs as Ace won 9-8.

Discount Propane also had a tough time, coming from behind three different times to pull out an 8-7, nine-inning victory over Ken-Rummel Chevrolet (1-4) on a bases-loaded single by Chris Grissom. Discount (5-0) then came back in the late game to whip Gager Pest Control (0-4), 12-1.

Next week. Gager plays a doubleheader with Ken Rummel at 6:30 p.m. and Whelchel & Howard at 7:30 p.m.; and Discount faces Ace at 8:30 p.m.

I hate deciding a game on penalty kicks," said Lake Brantley coach Jim Brody. "I feel a little better about because we won, but I don't like winning or losing a game that way."

Lake Brantley (13-11-4) spotted Lyman (18-8-1) a 1-0 lead when Steve Robinson played a long, looping shot that Seaver lost in the lights until it was over him and under the cross bar at 14:35 on the first Jimmy Meletlidis equalized for the Patriots when he took a pass from Chris Branding, beat a defender and ripped a shot past Lyman keeper Chris Lewis at 27:01.

While both teams had solld chances to net the go-ahead goal. Seaver and Lewis turned them away as the the final 53 minutes of regulation and 10 minutes of overtime passed without a winner being decided.

In the shootout, where each team gets five penalty kicks, the Greyhounds appeared to seize the advantage as the Lake Brantley's Ken Villet hit the post with his shot and, after Paul Riggins converted for Lyman. Lewis made a save on Todd Williamson.

Faced with the possibility of his team going down 2-0 with three rounds to go, Seaver parried Brian Young's attempt to keep the Patriots close.

"I had to make the save right there," said Seaver of Young's shot. "That was the game."

How big was the play? "Huge," said Brody, "That was huge. What can I say? If they go up 2-0, it's probably over."

Both teams made their next two shots. Then, with the teams knotted at 3.3. Lewis lined up to take the last shot for the Greyhounds. But again Seaver

WEDNESDAY'S PRIME TIME

Cook of the Week

Civic activist adds Amish flavor to cooking

LAKE MARY - Cook of the Week DeLores Lash has developed a method of doing in a 24-hour day what might otherwise take someone 26 hours to accomplish. Lash, most simply put, is a "non-stop lady" and, not only does she get the job at hand done, she completely enjoys every project with which she becomes involved.

Lash and her husband, Jim, hail originally from Pennsylvania. They make their home in Lake Mary where they have lived for 24-plus years. Their passion for happiness and family is very apparent in that they have been married for 43 years and are the parents of four grown children. They also have five grandchildren with number six due in August. Lash proudly spoke of her children and grandchildren as she pointed out pictures of each and everyone of them hanging on walls throughout her beautiful Lake Mary home.

Lash's list of community involvements is very extensive as well as impressive. "I was the first police commissioner for the city of Lake Mary," said Lash. Inher home office hangs her police commissioner's shirt she wore during her tenure which began in 1973. "I set the department up and got them their first car," Lash said. She went on to say that "it was only a one-man department at that time."

She is the vice chairman of the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts. This is an annual event in the fall of the year. Lash has also been a three-time president for the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce and editor of the chamber's newsletter. Currently, she is a member of the Lake Mary Historical Commission and the Woman's Club of Sanford.

In the early 60s, Lash and her husband, Jim, owned and operated Jim Lash Chrysler and Plymouth car dealership in Sanford. In 1975, Jim Lash Blue Book Cars and Service was born and is still operating today in banford. Lash worked very hard ouring the years of growth that are required when one builds a business. Side by side, she and her husband made their dreams come true.

Travel plays a big part in Lash's life. Having another home In Pennsylvania affords Lash the luxury of visiting her home state several times a year "In August. I'll visit with the Amish and buy fresh vegetables and baked goods." Lash said , "I also enjoy antiques and, with the Arhish people I almost always will find something different and unusual to bring back to Florida."

Lash went on to mention that hunting month. But, Lash continued, "I do my own share of hunting during this time too. hunt the stores for clothes and maybe get in a bit of antique shopping." February comes around and Lash is getting ready to go back and hit the ski slopes. CHICKEN CORN BOUP

Easy meatloaf is a great time—saver

The microwave oven is a real time saver as well as a very economic appliance to use. More than 75 percent of American households have at least one microwave oven. We ought to be using them to their full advantage. In other words, for more than reheating leftovers, or baking a potato or boiling water for coffee or tea.

Almost everything you cook on the top of the range and most baked recipes for casseroles, meats, poultry and breads. cakes, pies etc. can be suc-cessfully prepared in the microwave oven. It is important to follow the instruction manual for the appliance and use tested

When you are comfortable with using this method of cooking then you can experiment. Usually the major difference is in the amounts of liquid in a recipe club, East switched to a low dummy with another diamond. declarer took a second spade finesse to pick up the trumps without further loss, and claimed his contract.

Nothing anyone could do - or he discards a diamond. What does the declarer do now? If he plays trumps from band. East wins two spade tricks to go with the pair of club tricks already in the bag. So South needs two dummy entries for finesses, but he has only one. Whichever way South turns, the terminus is
