ONLY 2 CHANGES ARE MADE IN GRID RULES FOR 1933

"Clipping" Virtually Legislated Out of All Future Games

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The national football rules committee has completed its annual study of the playing code and adopted only two changes in the regulations for 1933.

First—Elimination of the side-line play through a new zoning system. Second—A tightening of the regulations against clipping so that this practice virtually is legislated out of the game.

Committee members also authorized some editorial changes in the rules in the interests of clarity and appointed a special sub-committee to receive and consider all suggestions for rules changes; and went definitely on record in favor of limiting future changes in the rules to those which will simplify the game without changing its character.

Of the two alterations the more radical was that designed to eliminate the side-line play, band of teams marching goalward who find themselves obliged to waste a down to bring the ball into better position.

To prevent this, the rules committee decided to establish side zones ten yards in width, on either side of the field. When the ball becomes dead within these zones, it will be moved to a point ten yards in from the side line without time being called.

Statistics presented before the meeting of the football rules committee of the American football coaches association, which advocated the change, showed that an average of 14 downs a game were started by offensive teams seeking to gain a better position from which to continue a march down field.

The national committee, in ordering the new rule, declared that it not only would eliminate the side-line play but also would lessen tackling out of bounds and so on of great aid to the offense, especially in scoring territory where the team carrying the ball particularly can ill afford to waste a down just because they are cramped up against one side of the field.

The rule against clipping was altered to make it illegal for a player to run into the back of an opponent not carrying the ball, adding to the previous rule against throwing or dropping the body across the back of the leg or legs of the opponent below the knee. In the interests of stricter enforcement of the rule, the penalty was reduced from 25 yards to 15, after committee members had pointed out that the heavier penalty led some officials to hesitate about calling it.

Many other suggested changes were considered by the committee but none was adopted.

School Board Of Brevard Agrees To Donate Wages

COCOA, Feb. 15.—Seeing that there may be difficulty in maintaining regular school terms if school incomes fall short this year, members of the Brevard Board of Public Instruction in session at Titusville Tuesday offered to donate 50 percent of their salaries to meet any deficiency that may occur in an effort to keep the schools running as long as possible.

According to information reaching the Tribune, there is no way for the board members to cut their salaries without legislative action, as the monthly pay of the members is set by the legislature. However, the members agreed to donate 50 percent of their monthly pay to the school fund should it be needed before the school year is over.

Another action taken at the board meeting was to change the system of paying teachers and bus drivers. It was voted by the teachers and bus drivers for the second semester of the school in six monthly installments. Instead of receiving their pay each month, the checks to be given teachers and bus drivers will be divided in six monthly payments.

Cramps and Pains In Side and Back

"I had suffered with cramping and pain in my sides and back," writes Mrs. J. V. Bourque, of Gonzales, La. "I was so weak I could hardly walk. Cardui seemed to build me up, and after about twelve bottles I was better and stronger than I had been in years."

Women who find themselves in a weak, run-down condition can hardly expect to be free from troublesome, painful symptoms. Where the trouble is due to weakness, Cardui helps women to get stronger and thus makes it easier for nature to take its orderly course. Painful, lagging symptoms disappear as nourishment of the body is improved with the assistance of Cardui.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

SAVE FROM ALL EVIL; The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul. Psalm 121:7.

Most quarterly statements these days are hardly worth a quarter.

Florida is the best state in the Union today. Having suffered the depression first, it will lead the way out.

The Miami Herald is running a column called "Miami Poetry" and, strangely enough, some of it is good.

With scarcely three weeks remaining of the present session of Congress, the achievements so far are exactly nothing.

No reasonable man actually objects to farm relief. It's cleaning up the wreckage afterward that is so objectionable.

And then there was the fellow who wanted to see this country go off the gold standard because that metal is yellow.

As we get it, if Chinese soldiers continue to resist being killed any longer, the Japanese may be forced to declare war.

After reading some of the testimony of Senator Huey Long's brother, we can't for the life of us see where David Barry libeled the Senate.

Legionnaires who insist that pension benefits must not be reduced should understand that the alternative is a depreciated currency which would accomplish the same result by a disastrous method.

Huey Long, Mathersite friend of the people from Louisiana, was paid ten thousand dollars by a public utility concern. So his own brother, who is a liar, according to Huey, says, No doubt both are correct.

Gov. Sholtz has reiterated his pledge of a twenty-five percent reduction in state expenses. But the Governor can do little without the support of the Legislature. The people of Florida should see that he gets it.

Arthur Brisbane pays high tribute to a Florida banker who saw his deposits shrink from $63,000,000 to $12,000,000, without materially affecting the liquidity of his resources. Condemnation of bankers, both big and little, is commonplace these days. Much of it is doubt deserved. But when a banker receives praise, that indeed is news.

The bootlegging racket is not as it used to be before hard times modified sales on hard liquor. So racketeers are turning to kidnapping for remuneration of sufficient importance to attract their gigantic organizations. Hence, the Duderberg kidnaping, the recent threat note, the Boettcher kidnaping, and scores of others during the past year. We may not have a revolution in this country, but we are already having a revolt against law and order.

Michigan banks in straightened circumstances suspend operations for ten days temporarily tying up large amounts of cash belonging to General Motors, Chrysler, Henry Ford, and thousands of other savers. The banks will be re-opened and will probably secure Federal aid to make them strong enough to remain open but such subsidies do not help business. The business man who intended buying a car will wait to see what happens next. The socialite who had planned a great banquet at which several plates of celery might have been consumed will put it off a week or two. The depression is on. While those who could something continue to play

A Near Calamity

Shocking news came from Miami last night where Vincent Astor's yacht had anchored a few hours before, where President-elect Roosevelt had addressed a crowd of 25,000 persons on the successes of his fishing expedition. An Italian, Joe Zingara, had wormed his way through the dense crowds until he stood near the President-elect's car and there fired point blank into the Roosevelt party. Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, shot through the chest was seriously wounded. Mrs. Joe Gill, wife of the president of the Florida Power & Light Company, was shot in the stomach. William Sinnott, Russell Caldwell, and Miss Margaret Krews, were also wounded. The President-elect escaped unharmful, and waving his hand nonchalantly to the crowd was hurriedly driven away.

This affair reminds one strangely of another near-assassination of some twenty years ago. Another Roosevelt was speaking in Milwaukee, as a presidential candidate, when a fanatic, probably thinking like Zingara that his will should be superior to the majority, shot him through the chest. This Roosevelt, with characteristic imperturbability, finished speaking, though he never fully recovered from the effects of the shot.

The frequency with which lawlessness of this type has manifested itself in recent months particularly in foreign countries reveals to some extent the extremes to which popular prejudices and bitterness are being carried. The attempts on the life of Mussolini have become almost commonplace. Leaders in France and Japan have been especially subjected to the bullets of assassins.

As in the case of Lincoln's death, the killer who would be the savior of mankind by liberating downtrodden humanity from the tyranny of its master, only makes matters worse. The successor so frequently is neither so competent nor so willing to deal fairly with the problems of the world as the man who is slain.

What might have happened in these United States had this would-be assassin's bullets been better directed is horrible to contemplate. A frustrated majority will is not easy to pacify or to deal with. A country which suffers only from a lack of co-ordinated leadership might have been irrevocably depressed by the loss of its new leader. All hope for restored confidence might have perished with him.

The whole country can well rejoice that it was spared this additional catastrophe.

Up From The Ranks

Napoleon once said that "every soldier carries a field marshal's baton in his knapsack", and although his words may be true, nevertheless it is seldom that one from the ranks ever rises to the command of an army. An exception to this has been recalled with the recent death of Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who was chief of the British Imperial General Staff during the World War.

Poor and with no social position, young Robertson joined His Majesty's forces at the age of eighteen, and by extraordinary application to studious pursuits and by an innate capacity for organization advanced rapidly through the various ranks until he finally reached the highest goal.

It has been stated that the anecdote best defines the personality, and an anecdote about the field marshal will reveal one interesting side of his character. Robertson never kept it a secret that he was of humble origin and once at a dinner, given in his honor, he said to an elderly peeress: "You do not remember me, my lady, but when you were a girl I had the honor of being present at a dinner at which you were one of the guests. On that occasion, however, I could not sit with you, but had to stand behind your chair and wait upon you."

His rise to military fame was not through spectacular accomplishments on the battle field, although he had fought bravely in many engagements, but rather in his staff work. He did not look upon war in the light of single strategical maneuvers and brilliant successes haphazardly won but as a business in which every detail of organization, morale, and equipment is considered as important.

Of a highly practical mind and always displaying an abundance of "horse sense", he early foresaw that the World War would be won on the Western Front and he had enough fundamental soldierly judgment to oppose every attempt at diversion of troops. In this he disagreed with Lloyd George who insisted on sending forces elsewhere, in Palestine, in the Balkans, or in the Austro-Italian frontier. Therefore, Sir William resigned in February of 1918, just a month before the success of the great German offensive added weight to his arguments as to where the fortunes of war lay, later to succeed Lord French as commander-in-chief in Great Britain.

His career was a supreme example of the rewards attending hard work, the drab unspectacular performance of detail duties, and the pursuance of sound military policies.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Miss Wilson, of Auburn, N. Y., is the guest of Capt. W. M. Lovell and family.

It is understood that Professor and Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, of Princeton, N. J., will spend the remainder of the winter in Florida. Mrs. Preston was formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland. She was married to Professor Preston, of Princeton University, on Tuesday.

Mrs. George Maloney died at her home on Melonville Avenue last Friday and the remains were shipped to the old home in Ohio, followed by the heartbroken husband and family.

Miss Mabel Hand was the charming hostess at a very pleasant open house entertainment Thursday evening last complimentary to Miss Madeline Hill, of Narcoossee, her attractive house guest. Mrs. E. B. Brown, and the Misses Madge and Veda Ward contributed several delightful piano solos to the entertainment of the guests, who enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"MIND" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Feb. 19.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 14:24, "The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor?" (Rom. 11:33, 34).

YOUR INCOME TAX

DEPRECIATION ALLOWANCE

The amount to be recovered by depreciation is the cost of the property, if acquired after Feb. 28, 1913. If acquired by purchase prior to that date, the basis is the cost of the property, less depreciation sustained prior to Mar. 1, 1913, or the value on Mar. 1, 1913, whichever is greater.

The proper allowance for depreciation is that amount which should be set aside for the taxable year in accordance with a reasonably consistent plan (not necessarily a uniform rate), aside, plus the salvage value, will at the end of the useful life of the property equal the cost or other basis of the property.

The depreciation rate of a building is not based upon the number of years it will stand before being condemned and razed, but on the number of years it will remain habitable or serviceable for the purpose for which constructed.

If the taxpayer builds a new building, the cost of which depreciation may be claimed begins at the time the building is completed and capable of being used. Buildings under construction are not subject to a depreciation allowance.

If it is clearly shown that, because of economic or other conditions, property must be abandoned at a date prior to the end of its normal useful life, so that depreciation deductions alone are insufficient to return the cost or other basis, a reasonable deduction for obsolescence is permitted because, in the opinion of the taxpayer, the property may become obsolete at some future date.

With the number of automobile owners registering in the millions, the question of deductions for the cost of operation and maintenance of a motor car frequently is addressed to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The purchase price of an automobile, whether it is to be used for business or pleasure, can not be deducted from gross income. If used for business, it is a capital expenditure; if used for pleasure, it is a personal expenditure—both deductions being expressly prohibited by the income tax law.

However, there are several allowable deductions in connection with the cost of maintenance and operation of an automobile, used either for business or pleasure. If the car is used exclusively for business purposes, there may be deducted the entire cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, rent for garage, and other necessary expenses connected with operation and upkeep. Depreciation, based on the cost of the car and its estimated useful life, also is deductible.

Other deductible items are as follows: Sums paid during the taxable year for registration fees, drivers' licenses, personal-property tax, and municipal taxes; interest on money borrowed for the purchase of a motor car, either for business or for pleasure; loss sustained by reason of damage while car is being used for business, provided such loss is not covered by insurance or otherwise; damages paid for injury to a pedestrian, provided that the car was being used for business at the time, and again provided said payment was not covered by insurance or otherwise; amount paid for insurance on motor vehicles used for business purposes.

If an automobile is used for both business and pleasure, all of the maintenance and operating expenses connected therewith, which constitute allowable deductions for federal income-tax purposes, should be allocated to the two uses on the basis of the time that it is used for each. For example, if the total expense of operation and maintenance, plus depreciation, for the taxable year amounted to $800, and the car was used three-fourth of the time for business and the balance of the time for pleasure, the allowable deduction for federal income-tax purposes would be $600.

If a law which imposes a tax on gasoline shows that the tax is imposed on the consumer and not on the dealer, the consumer may deduct as a tax, for federal income-tax purposes, the amount of the gasoline tax paid by him; but the taxpayer must have kept records of the payment of such taxes in order that the deduction may be substantiated as is required by the law and the regulations. The federal gasoline tax imposed by section 517 of the revenue act of 1932 is not deductible by the consumer. A taxpayer may ascertain whether the gasoline tax imposed by a state is deductible by the consumer or by the dealer by addressing an inquiry to the collector of internal revenue for his district.

And We Thought It Would Be A Little Thing!

consumer or by the dealer by addressing an inquiry to the collector of internal revenue for his district.

In any case where the gasoline purchased is used for business purposes the tax may be added to the cost of the gasoline and deducted as a business expense; but where that is done, the gasoline tax can not be deducted separately under the item of taxes.

Boy Is Riding Pony To Washington To Attend Inaugural

CHULA, Ga., Feb. 16.—A youngster just beyond kindergarten age who sits on a shaggy pony with the grace of a general on a prancer traveled through Georgia yesterday on an 800-mile ride to Washington for the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Just a mite of a boy is Toby Cook, seven years old, weight 45 pounds and height a few inches over three feet, but he's an old hand in the saddle—he started riding when he was three.

His own townsfolk went with him to the nearby city of Tifton and there he was given a rousing bon voyage by a multitude a little after sunrise Tuesday morning.

Chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy along the route sent word for him to come prepared for a continuing series of public receptions.

Eight hundred miles would be a long distance for one little pony, so Toby is taking four mounts along, riding them in relays of five miles each. While one is under the saddle, the other three ride along in a truck. Three negro servants traveling in the truck complete the entourage.

The boy won Roosevelt's admiration and hearty greetings by riding 250 miles to Atlanta last fall to hear the presidential nominee's campaign speech.

Toby and the pony led a parade through Atlanta streets in honor of Mr. Roosevelt and he is hopeful of a place in the inaugural march down Pennsylvania Avenue.

Nose, Hips, Lips Are Seen As Large Factors In Beauty

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Nose, lips and hips are the factors; Prof. Lillian H. Locke is the mentor; the new Home Service Institute of Columbia University is the place, and feminine beauty is the idea.

Professor Locke is going to teach American girls how to dress, and she doesn't mind laying down some of the rules in advance—pointing her advice especially to wives, who, she believes are too often at disadvantages as between themselves and the stenographers.

Drooping mouth? Then avoid drooping lines in the costume. Same for the upturned lips. Same for the straight ones. That is, don't repeat. It accentuates.

Square face? Gracious! Don't have any angles on the hat, dress et cetera.

Hips? Don't let the lines run parallel, lest they accentuate the distance from one to the other. If they're wide to start with brilliant colors are out.

Another Term As Mayor Of Jacksonville Sought By Alop

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 16.—Mayor John T. Alop, Jr. last night formally announced his candidacy for re-election.

Deeply appreciative, he said, of the fact that Jacksonville citizens have elected him Mayor for four terms, Mayor Alop seeks the office for a fifth time.

In a statement of announcement, he calls attention to the record of achievement which Jacksonville has made in recent years, and adds that "amid the many difficulties so prevalent throughout the world, Jacksonville is still forging ahead commercially, culturally, and spiritually." The statement is addressed to the people of Jacksonville.

"As evidence," he said, "of my very deep appreciation of the honor you have conferred upon me, I have cheerfully and wholeheartedly given all of my time, energy and humble talents, morning, noon and night to aid you in building a great city."

The mayor's statement pledges himself anew to the "faithful discharge of the duties of the office." He announced he would welcome a frank discussion of all the issues of the campaign, "including my record both as an official and as a citizen of Jacksonville."

Chart Of Dairymen Is Feature At Fair

Of interest to any one who has charge of selecting and preparing food for a family, with or without children, will be the chart and display by the Sanford Dairymen's Association at the Home Demonstration Fair Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week at the Mayfair Hotel.

The display explains just how much of the food budget should be spent for the various kinds of food for a family. It divides the budget dollar into five parts, appropriating one-fourth for milk, one-fourth for green vegetables, and the other two-fourths for bread, meat, fish, eggs, butter and other fats.

BARTER-SYSTEM AIDS FARMER IN NORTH CAROLINA

Excellent Trades, Increased Revenues Are Being Reported

RALEIGH, N. C.—Many farmers of North Carolina, who, in common with their colleagues, residing in other agricultural sections, are "kind of short of money," have reverted to barter.

Many of them, according to letters received by the State Department of Agriculture, are making some excellent trades and increasing their incomes by means of a service that has been furnished them by the department, through the medium of a semi-monthly bulletin which goes into nearly 10,000 farm homes and is read by around 40,000 individuals who are directly interested in agriculture.

There has been developed during the past seven years a free service to farmers, whereby they are permitted to send in their "wants" to the department which, in turn, prints them in the publication referred to. At first, the "for sale" notices consumed practically all the space set aside for his feature.

But, under existing conditions, there are almost as many notices wanting "wants" as there are for sale. Here is an example: "Wanted: To swap 10 bushels of nice Irish potatoes for marmoth yellow or any good mixed soubeans."

Another, recently published, read thus: "Wanted: Wire fencing of any kind, cheap for cash; also carpenter tools, corn planter, poultry and rabbit equipment, lumber, doors, windows; also would like to sell or trade 3000-egg incubator. What do you want and what have you?"

Another farmer wanted to trade some of one bred of pigs for another, in order to diversify his supply. Still another advertised that he wished to trade some Rhode Island red pullets for turkeys and rabbits.

While there is no way of checking up on these various sales and exchanges so as to arrive at the actual amount involved each year, letters from farmers who have used this free service indicate that it has been very beneficial, especially during recent months. It is not a seldom occurrence that a county agent will send in the name of some farmer who wants to buy, sell or exchange farm commodities.

Man farm women, it is observed, are raising chickens, independently. While they, of course, help on the farm in a general way, they specialize in diversified products. Others go in for the cultivation of bulbs and various flowering plants, which they sell during the season or exchange for things necessary on the farm home. Few, as yet, have offered canned goods for sale of exchange, as the products thus preserved are usually put on the pantry shelf for winter use.

A number of North Carolina women have been known to educate their children from the proceeds of articles they produced on the farm, aside from the staple crops raised there. There are several outstanding instances of where mothers provided their daughters with music lessons by trading with teachers, furnishing their agricultural products in exchange for the lessons.

At the same time, figures show rural women are doing more in the way of co-operating with each other in matters of mutual help, than ever before. Further, they are taking more interest in public affairs and in the work of various beneficial organizations, including parent-teacher associations.

GARDEN CLUBS OF TAMPA HELP IN PROVIDING JOBS

Gave Work To Several Hundred During Two-Month Period

TAMPA, Feb. 16.—The Federated Garden Clubs of Tampa, in summing up their work for the year ended, count among their best achievements the co-operative plan carried out by their circles in conjunction with the Unemployment Council.

The November and December records of the clubs show that they used from 500 to 600 jobless men daily, the labor thus obtained being utilized chiefly on the preliminary stages of the river-side project now getting under way. Earlier in the year, the number of workers employed in club enterprises had run so high an average, although all the time reaching a good total.

These laborers have been paid by the Bureau of Unemployment at the regular daily wage of $1.50, while the club members have supervised all work furnished tools and equipment, and given every man regularly a full mid-day meal. It has been a co-operative plan resulting in untold benefit, and both the circles and the uncommon among these jobless men, while most of them are zealously conservationists, resolutely saving every plant or tree possible. Many of them are surprisingly quick in their responses to this beautification work in its every phase.

Unemployment officials are determined to make every effort to continue the arrangement just so long as present conditions exist. The Tampa Garden Clubs have special recognition and tribute at the Boston annual conference of the National Council for their success in conducting so excellent a beautification program as an aid to the unemployment bureau.

The report of work-days given, and of 5200 free meals furnished, the jobless up to date, evoked considerable comment in the assembly last summer. In using the labor of these men, unemployment officials are determined to make every effort to continue the arrangement just so long as present conditions exist.

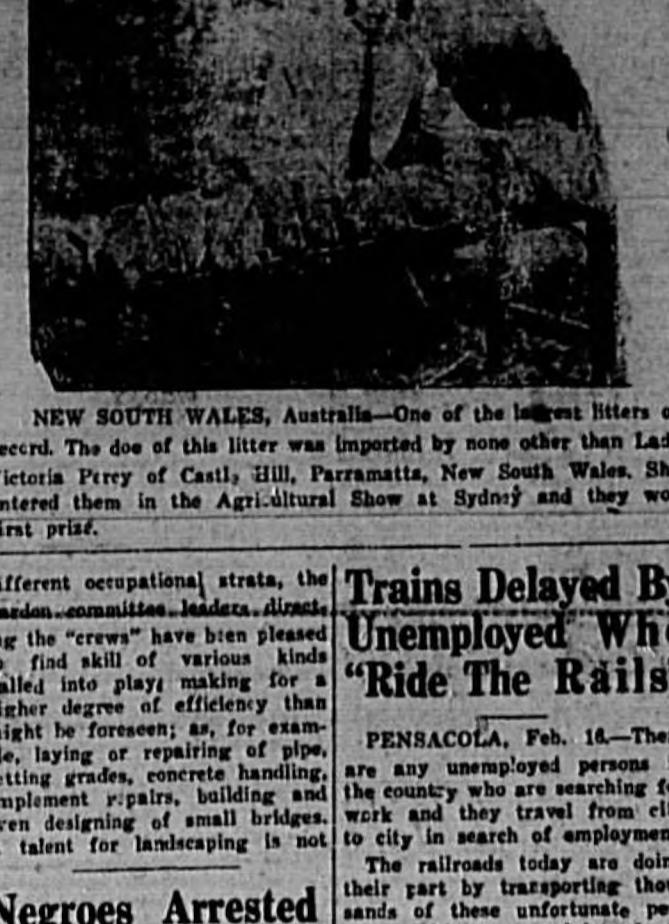

The plan is scheduled for discussion at a principal's meeting to be called within the next two weeks. The system is also lacking in a uniform program of pupil grading and there are marked salaries, Mr. Walker said. Different schools also use different types of report cards. A standard blank would increase discrepancies in principal's he said.

different occupational strata, the garden-committee leaders, directing the "crews" have been pleased to find skill of various kinds called into play; making for a higher degree of efficiency than might be foreseen; as, for example, laying or repairing of pipe, setting grades, concrete handling, implement repairs, building and even designing of small bridges.

When these wanderers delay passenger trains operating on a strict schedule something must be done about it, Damon told the court. As a result three men were given 30-day sentences when they admitted charges of train riding.

Damon told the court that his railroad has offered no objection to men who ride its freight trains for some time. The wanderers, however, have taken to "riding the blinds" of the passenger trains and in some cases delaying trains, he said.

The railroad detective said in court that he did not wish to prosecute unfortunate persons for such charges, but that the railroad found it necessary to keep them off passenger trains if possible.

Preves Only Medicine Helps A Sore Throat. Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, removes irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctor's advice, millions are following this way... "Gargling old-time 'washes' and 'antiseptics.'" For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice an hour. If you have any indication of a cold—beginning sore throat—gargle with BAYER Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have passed your system. Keep at it until it would seem to be cleared away. If you have any cold, you will find that you can get rid of the heat, and a lot of it, in a matter of 100 or any drug store.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For many people completely unused to gargling, one being gargled, one being swallowed, and one being crushed in water. Wash the water you use.

Outlook Is Gloomy For Good Prices On Strawberry Crop

FORT MEYERS, Feb. 16.—Two arguments were offered growers with the opening of this week in so far as strawberry prices were concerned. While the local market opened at around 4 3-4 and 5 cents the past Monday morning it showed a gradual decline as the day wore on and 4 1-4 cents was being freely offered the first part of the afternoon. Indications pointed to one of the heaviest crops of the season Monday with 30 or more cars being loaded.

There was a slight strengthening of the market during the last half of last week with a 5 1-2 cent average holding in general for Thursday and Friday and a 5 1-4 cent average on Saturday when 24 cars of berries were loaded.

The cold wave which failed to develop this section of the state did very little damage if any to the berry areas of the northern part of the state, according to reports from there the first of this week. It was believed the berry and lettuce sections would suffer materially from the cold, but Monday it was said that these sections had suffered little if any.

The three men, Clark Lockhardt, Jack Jamison and Thomas Thompson, received sentences of 30 days in jail from Judge C. Moreno Jones.

MORE HARD CURRENCY IS SEEN NEEDED BY SENATE WITNESSES

After Resounding Testimony Advocated Additional Currency For Present Use

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—More hard money and less credit, to be bought about by manufacturing silver, was advocated before the Senate Finance committee as a financial reform preferable to an international manager credit currency on a gold standard basis.

This advice came from Dr. Sherman F. Arnall, of Boston, former Harvard economist and monetary expert, who described a proposal from several sources for an international currency as "the most dangerous proposition we have heard of."

Arnall appeared before the committee with Paul Goetz, New York, publisher, and George W. Peck of White, H. T. firm, and others and members of the committee's survey of economic conditions.

He did not refer to the plan proposed Monday night by President Hoover in New York for an international currency substituting gold for credit.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24.—(AP)—With Senator Huey P. Long shouting "let's buy U. S. bonds," former chairman of the state tax commission, told the Senate committee investigating Representative John B. Cramer's scandalous campaign that Senator Long, while governor of Louisiana, had kept a "ledger" book, demanded without resignations from state officials and sought increased tax assessments against his political opponents.

"Ledger" Long, he said, required state officials to sign their names in a book containing a pledge that they would follow the law. Governor Long, who was then chairman of the state highway commission, the witness said, was the first to sign in the book.

"Governor Long told me that he didn't keep anything and that his ledger had to get on the line and sign up to take money for two years if they wanted to hold their jobs," he testified.

Long said that while he was chairman of the tax commission Huey Long ordered him to double the tax assessments against the New Orleans newspapers, Times-Picayune, Item and States, who were opposing him, and D. H. Mahan, Campaign and Finance Director, New Orleans, who had organized them and had "organizer" advertisements.
