Legal advice sought

LONGWOOD — Longwood commissioners Monday voted to consult the League of Cities for legal advice before hiring a labor attorney to review a code of ethics, mission statement and oath of office proposed by the police department.

Assistant police chief Terry Baker said the department is updating its oath, ethics code and mission statement and plans to have all police department employees sign them. Employees could be fired for violation of the oath or code, so Chief Greg Manning has requested the review by a labor attorney.

In other business, the commissioners:
• Approved the requirement that commissioners' salaries be adopted by ordinance separate from the budget ordinance, so the information is readily available to the public.

• OK'd budget transfers to pay costs related to hiring a new city administrator, two new fire trucks and setting up a line item for construction on Rangeline Road. The road work is a cooperative effort between Seminole County and the city.

• Approved the first reading of an ordinance which lowers the monetary limits for contracts or contract amendments the city administrator or purchasing director may make without bringing the matter before the commission.

Meeting addresses 46A widening

SANFORD — The Seminole County Division of Engineering will hold a public hearing tonight to take public comments on options for the proposed widening of County Road 46-A between Rinehart Road and Orange Boulevard. The 7 p.m. meeting will be held at Wilson Elementary cafeteria, 985 Orange Blvd., west of Sanford.

Project engineer Otis Gifford said the $4.3 million project will create a four-lane section in conjunction with the construction of the interchange at Interstate 4, now under final state design. The county is also completing the details to widen CR 46-A between Rinehart Road and Country Club Road. Gifford said the county owns a road path at an average width of 50 feet, but needs 120 feet for the project. Gifford said no buildings lie within the corridor, but wetlands and protected gopher tortises do and may affect the final alignment.

CALNO meeting

The Council of Local Governments in Seminole County, known as CALNO, holds its monthly meeting tonight at Winter Springs City Hall, beginning at 7 p.m.

On the agenda under old business, is a discussion on signs and billboards, presently adopted by a few cities, but now being studied as a possible countywide ordinance.

Under new business is a presentation on various parks and recreational projects.

During the March meeting, Lake Mary City Commissioner Gary Brender was named as treasurer.

Sanford City Commissioner White Eckstein is acting chairman.

Lake Mary property owners protest land use changes

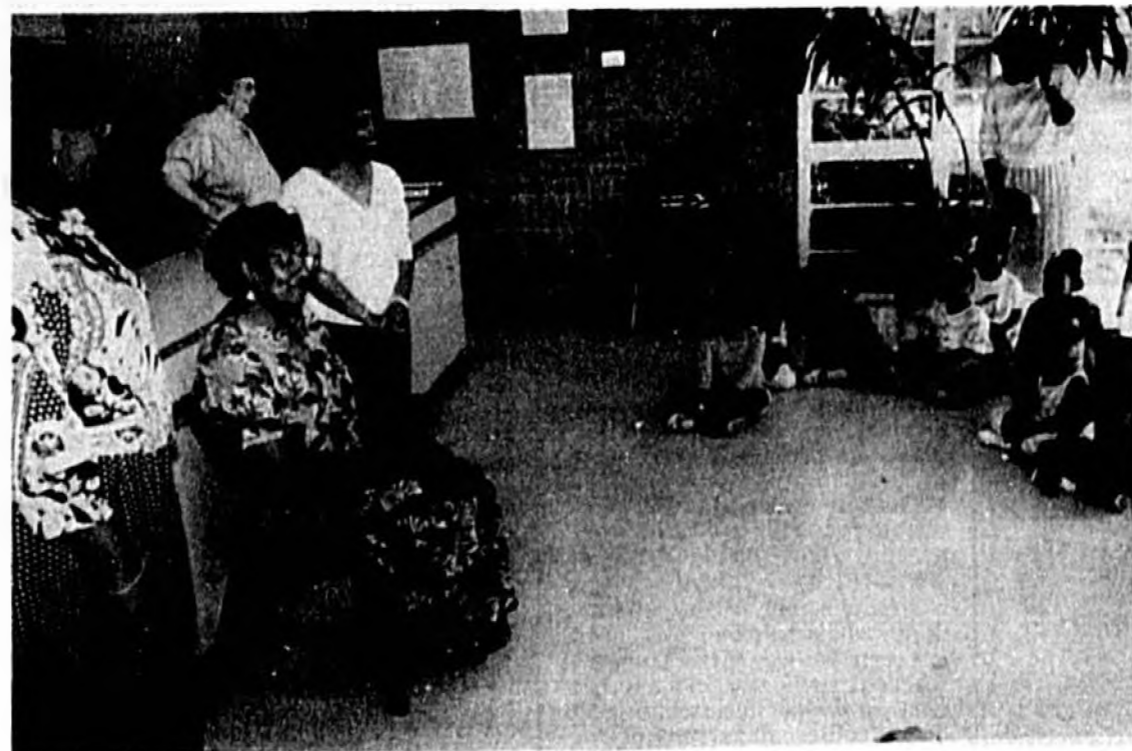

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Some owners of property zoned agricultural in Lake Mary have told officials they believe the city is trying to run them out of town. Planner Susan Deines commented, "We're not trying to rezone anyone's property. We are not trying to take their land use away." City Planner Matt West said there are presently 338 individual property owners with A-1 zoned land. In addition to being informed of tomorrow night's city commission meeting, each of the owners were sent a letter regarding a recent city Planning and Zoning discussion on the measure. An estimated 15 residents spoke to the board. According to the minutes of the P&Z meeting, the residents expressed concerns over such matters as tax increases, changes allowed in zoning, fear of losing land use, fears of rezoning, fears of the future, concerns with losing animals, government intrusion, and sale values of homes. Only one resident at the P&Z meeting spoke in favor of the ordinance. Deines originally proposed two options regarding obtaining a better use of land presently zoned agriculture. One is to eliminate agriculturally zoned property within the city entirely. This would render all

SHS students say Ole! to Spring Break

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Ole! Seven Seminole High students spent Spring Break touring the Spanish countryside and immersing themselves in Spanish history, culture, literature and in the language.

While their friends headed off to the same old beaches or to the mall for another Spring Break at home, Andrea Russo, Eve Elliot, Brooke Wagner, Jaime Bressor, Laurie Blair, Rodolfo Hernandez and Jorge Piquer boarded a plane to the Iberian Peninsula.

"It was a wonderful learning experience," Blair said. "We learned so much in just the short time we were there."

The small contingent, traveling with Spanish teacher Chris Eldridge and chaperone Chris Spilott, took part in an educational experience put together by Educational Tours. Together, they became a part of a larger group of students that included high schoolers from Washington, D.C. and Los Angeles. Nearly 60 students from very divergent backgrounds were put together on the tour to learn and have fun in Spain.

"You had to speak Spanish to get along, but as long as you tried and had some of the words they were very friendly and you were able to get along fine," Blair explained.

The opportunity was extended to anyone at Seminole High who could pay the $1,500 for the 10 days. Most of the students who attended paid their own way through odd jobs or their paychecks.

"We worked hard for this opportunity," Blair said. "But it was worth it." She said the tour was a rapid fire approach to learning. The group rarely spent more than one night in a hotel and hopped from city to city aboard a bus.

Madrid, Toledo, Cordoba, Seville, Granada, Segovia, Madrid again.

"It was so confusing sometimes. We didn't know what day it was or what city we were in sometimes," Blair said with a laugh.

While the tour brought the students to castles and cathedrals, the tombs of historical people and

Field tests for drunk drivers are challenged

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Field sobriety tests used by police to determine if a driver is impaired, are being challenged in Seminole County and across the state.

Tuesday, three county court judges heard arguments challenging the tests which defense attorney Stuart Hyman argued are unscientific and should not be used as court evidence.

The judges will rule later whether the tests will be allowed as evidence in about two dozen DUI (driving under the influence) cases pending in the county courts. The cases were consolidated only for the argument on the admissibility of the tests and will be returned to the presiding judges for disposition. County Judges Marlene Alva, Frederic Hitt and John R. Sloop served on the panel for the hearing which lasted until about 9:30 p.m.

Prosecutor sister turns in brother

NEW YORK — The wanted poster showed a face that Michele Monagas grew up with. So the prosecutor did what she had to do. She turned in her brother for a series of rapes. Anthony Monagas, 36, was arrested Friday in Miami based on tips provided by his kid sister, authorities said. He waived extradition and was returned to New York on Tuesday to face charges stemming from a series of rapes in a private, predominantly middle-class housing project in lower Manhattan.

His downfall: A police sketch that captured his likeness all too well, and a sister in a position to see it. The assistant district attorney in the Bronx borough saw the drawing last week — a balding man with close-cropped hair, a mustache and a 5 o'clock shadow. His eyebrows arched toward the sky, and he wore a dour expression.

She recognized the face of her brother, a convicted sexual offender less than a year out of jail. She made the identification to her boyfriend, a New York City policeman, and told him her brother was living in Florida.

"Michele Monagas deserves the respect and admiration of all New Yorkers for the courage and integrity that she showed in making what must have been a most difficult decision," said her boss, Bronx District Attorney Robert Johnson.

The 28-year-old prosecutor was not in her office Tuesday to discuss the case. Her brother, handcuffed as he left the 20th Precinct in Manhattan, said nothing to reporters who asked about his sister.

Bacchus decides against re-election

TALLAHASSEE — U.S. Rep. Jim Bacchus, who narrowly won re-election in 1992 from the district encompassing Florida's famous Space Coast, will not seek a third term.

"This is a decision I've made primarily as a husband and as a father," Bacchus said in prepared remarks delivered Tuesday at his district office in Cocoa. "I look forward to the day when I can spend more time with three of my constituents named Joey, Jamey and Rebecca."

"They need me and I need them," said Bacchus, who added the weekly trips between Washington and Florida had just become too much.

The House Majority Leader, U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, described Bacchus as one of the bright young stars of Congress.

"I hope he will continue to seek other challenges in public service," said Gephardt.

Bacchus, 44, was elected in 1990 from Florida's 15th District, which includes Brevard, Indian River, Osceola and Polk counties, when he defeated Republican Bill Tolley with 52 percent of the vote. In 1992, Bacchus again faced Tolley in the general election, but his support dropped to 51 percent and he won by less than 4,000 votes.

County sues island residents

FORT WALTON BEACH — Holders of leases on government-owned barrier island property, including many claiming they are exempt from real estate taxes, are being sued for about $1 million in back taxes, fees and interest.

Okaloosa County Tax Collector Chris Hughes has filed 154 small-claims cases — each for $2,500 or less — against Santa Rosa Island leaseholders dating to 1988. They have been ordered to appear in court May 6.

The Florida Panhandle county owns the island property and leases it for businesses and residences. Most of the leases are for 99 years with options to renew. Escambia and Santa Rosa counties also lease sections of the same island within their boundaries for residential and commercial development.

Many leaseholders have refused to pay property taxes, contending their leases provide for lease fees in lieu of taxes. The dispute has been going on for two decades, but state law allows such suits for only the last five years.

Hughes won a test case on Jan. 7, 1993 when Okaloosa County Judge Keith Brace entered a judgment ordering leaseholder Art Bogan to pay back taxes.

Bogan still refused to pay, so Hughes obtained a court order to garnish his bank account, effectively freezing $13,655 in the account to satisfy the judgment. The bank issued a check to Hughes in that amount a year later.

The case was significant because it set a precedent for garnishing a bank account instead of seizing cars, boats or other property to satisfy delinquent taxes. The decision led to the additional suits, most of them filed last week, Hughes said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Budget compromise in the works

JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Legislative leaders said budget negotiators would continue working to hammer out compromises, including how much money schools should get, in next year's $38 billion state spending plan.

Disagreement between the House and the Senate over divvying up $9 billion for schools has stalled work on the budget for the last few days. But House Speaker Bo Johnson and Senate President Pat Thomas met Tuesday night to break the impasse.

The leaders agreed the upper chamber would try to guarantee a 3 percent increase in school spending, while the House said the issue could be debated by the joint conference committee charged with settling differences.

Lawmakers, however, won't be able to finish by midnight Friday, the deadline of the two-month regular session.

But some legislative leaders said the budget — the only item the state constitution requires lawmakers to do during their annual session — could be finished as early as Sunday night.

House leaders had previously said a guaranteed 3 percent increase for schools wasn't negotiable. The Senate argued the issue must go to the joint conference committee.

Tuesday night Thomas and Johnson agreed to give the joint committee until noon Thursday to work out a settlement that satisfies both of them.

After that, the matter reverts to the leaders for settlement.

"If the nut hasn't been cracked to a smooth-running track, to one we both can live with, we'll pull it back," Thomas said.

He said the Senate goal was to reach the House position of a guaranteed 3 percent increase for school districts. Negotiators were to begin late Tuesday trying to resolve differences.

Earlier in the day, the finger-pointing and threats escalated as the budget remained stalled.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Ken Jenne said Floridians weren't going to be happy if lawmakers once again failed to finish their two-month session on time.

"The sad fact is that there is no reason for this failure other than the House of Representatives' refusal to convene a budget conference," Jenne wrote his House counterpart, Rep. John Long.

Thomas said the impression the Senate has gotten is that the House feels it's "our way or the highway" when it comes to allotting money for schools.

Each chamber last month passed its version of a budget for the fiscal year that starts July 1. But after compromising last week on how to pay for additional prison beds, the House and Senate began feuding over how much new money should be guaranteed to school districts.

Snipes uninjured after crash

By Associated Press

JUPITER — Action movie actor Wesley Snipes admits to "traveling at high speeds" on his motorcycle but denies a Florida Highway Patrol report that he tried to elude a trooper during a 30-mile chase.

The 120-mph pursuit ended with Snipes losing control of the bike on an off-ramp from Florida's Turnpike but escaping serious injury. FHP Lt. Sherian Staley said Tuesday. The actor was cited for reckless driving.

The FHP is asking prosecutors whether charges of fleeing from a police officer should be filed, said FHP Lt. Terry Davis.

The incident began Monday night when Snipes, 31, sped between Trooper Steve Walker's marked patrol car and another vehicle. Walker gave chase and called other departments for help.

Snipes took the Jupiter exit ramp, but "he lost control of his motorcycle and was ejected," Staley said. "The right front of the patrol car did collide with the motorcycle."

Snipes' publicist David Pollick said Tuesday that although Snipes "admits he was traveling at high speeds," he was unaware the officer was after him.

"Exiting the Florida Turnpike to refuel his motorcycle, Mr. Snipes lost control of the bike, and fortunately was not on it when the Highway Patrol vehicle crashed into the motorcycle," Pollick said in a statement.

Staley also said that about 10 miles into the chase, Snipes slowed and threw something "the size of a baseball" onto the shoulder and sped up again. She said police dogs later found a package of marijuana near the site.

The 3 ounces of marijuana was sent to the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office for analysis.

When asked about the marijuana, Pollick said "if they could connect that to Mr. Snipes, then I'm sure they would have charged him by now."

Hospital comes to little ones aid

Little ones play hard, and at times catch a silver, skin a knee or cut a finger. With nearly 500 youngsters in its charge, the four Seminole county Boys & Girls Clubs go through a lot of first aid supplies to mend boo-boos. To make sure these children get proper treatment for their minor injuries, Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, put together first aid kits for the clubs to help care for the children. Roy Vinson, CEO of the hospital, left, delivered the kits to club members and Don Millor, Seminole area director, right, at the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club, 919 Palmetto Ave., Sanford.

U.S. attorney asks justice department to probe office

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The Justice Department was asked to review a postal obscenity case in which a judge killed himself after being charged, while the husband of a federal prosecutor on the same mailing list was not prosecuted.

U.S. Attorney Larry Colleton, based in Tampa, said he requested the department's Office of Professional Responsibility look over the handling of the case by his Jacksonville office.

"The citizens of the area are entitled to know that the United States Attorney's Office has acted ethically, professionally and reasonably in all of its activities," Colleton said in a news release Monday.

Duval County Judge Richard W. Kreidler, 54, committed suicide last year, one month after being accused in an eight-count federal indictment of receiving pornographic videotapes in the mail. Bean-Blossom Ltd., the New York company that distributed the tapes, and its president, Michael Gordon, also were charged.

Later, Bean-Blossom was allowed to plead guilty to two counts of shipping obscene materials across state lines and was fined $120,000. Charges against Gordon were dropped.

It was later learned that the name of Joseph Heldmyer, husband of Assistant U.S. Attorney Michelle McCain Heldmyer, was on the same mailing list on which federal agents found Kreidler's name. Heldmyer, however, was not charged.

Dan Smith, president of the Northeast Florida chapter of the Florida Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, questioned whether the Justice Department could perform an independent inquiry into the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Group opposing casino gambling revives for fight

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — Florida's most powerful anti-casino group has launched a new fight against gaming with the same arguments that worked in the past.

No Casinos Inc. contends casinos would take from the economy and put nothing back, leaving places infested with crime and "with a something-for-nothing atmosphere."

"No sound society can exist on that basis," said newly elected president Andrew Hines. No Casinos retorted Tuesday amid a renewed push by four competing groups for a state constitutional amendment to permit casino gambling. Those groups are set to hold a "gambling summit" in Tallahassee today in hopes of presenting a united front.

Backers of the opposition movement acknowledged they are facing a much different political environment than when casino gambling was rejected by a 2-1 margin in a 1986 referendum and 3-1 in 1978.

Thirty-eight states now have casino gambling or plan to have it. New Orleans just approved a mega-casino and other Southern states already have casinos. Indian tribes are seeking permission to operate casinos on their lands.

Casino proponents say Florida must follow suit for its economy and tourism to compete.

However, "Florida did not achieve its greatness by being like other states. It achieved it by capitalizing on the unique assets which come with its location and come with its people," said Hines, a retired Florida Progress Corp. chairman.

The group is backed by drug store magnate Jack Eckerd and has the support of Gov. Lawton Chiles and former Knight-Ridder Inc. chairman Alva Chapman.

But No Casinos will not have the support of the state's parimutuel industry, which was a major fund-raiser in the fight eight years ago.

Parimutuels are currently backing a plan that would allow eight "mega-casinos" around the state as well as casinos in Florida's 35 jai-alai frontons and dog and horse tracks.

Other competing efforts would allow riverboat gambling, another would permit unlimited casinos in any county where voters approve and another would grant a mixture of riverboat and luxury hotel gaming.

Whatever proposal prevails must get 430,000 signatures from registered voters to make the Nov. 8 ballot.

"That activity is ill focused at the present time but we suspect it will focus pretty sharply and fairly rapidly," Hines said. "I'm confident we will prevail ... but it's going to be a tough fight."

SANFORD — Those who are serious about wanted to keep violent offenders behind bars for as long as possible are being asked to sign a petition.

STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) will have volunteers asking for signatures on petitions in front of the WalMart store in Seminole Plaza on Saturday, April 16 and Saturday, April 23 from 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The petition asks people to show their support for making violent offenders serve a greater portion of the prison terms they are given by the judges. STOP wants to make sure that prisoners serve at least 80 percent of their full term.

Only registered voters will be allowed to sign the petition.

If they are able to collect 400,000 statewide, organizers said, they will be able to get the issue before the voters on the November ballot.

Group aims to preserve parks

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

A new citizen support organization has been formed. Called Friends of Florida State Parks, FFSP, it is to help preserve all of Florida's history and environment.

According to the FFSP mission statement, it is, "to enhance and perpetuate the Florida state park system for the people of Florida and its visitors."

Fran P. Malnelli, director of the state Division of Recreation and Parks, said, "Our parks are such valuable resources that we are continually seeking ways to make them even better and more accessible to all visitors and residents."

The Florida Park Service receives no general revenue from taxes. Forty-five percent of its operation money comes from entrance and camping fees. The remainder is generated by documentary stamps on land transactions.

One of the closest state parks to Seminole County is Hontoon Island, located six miles west of DeLand.

Hontoon Island is accessible only by private boat or passenger ferry. Activities include a nature study from the 80-foot observation tower, picnicking and fishing. Camping facilities now include six rustic cabins available with advance reservations.

The FFSP organization is seeking to incorporate various private citizen groups which began forming in 1986, when the legislature passed a law allowing these non-profit groups to exist. Currently there are 36 chartered Citizen Support Organizations providing assistance to specific parks.

The Friends of Florida State Parks however, was organized for the express purpose of helping the entire state park system.

For information on FFSP, phone (904) 488-8243, or write to P.O. Box 6633, Tallahassee, FL 32314-6633.

Campaign was clean

This past month saw a development in Lake Mary that should be envied by all other government entities. Four people campaigned for a political office, and no dirt was flung.

Patrick Callaway, Thomas Greene, Frank McDonald and Sheila Sawyer all went after the job of city commissioner, Seat 4. It is to fill the remainder of the term, through 1995, of the late A.R. "Doc" Jore.

Even though there was a great deal of door-to-door campaigning by the candidates and supporters, they maintained a respect for each other.

Callaway and Sawyer received the highest number of votes, and will now continue to campaign until the runoff election on April 19th.

The fact that no verbal character assassination occurred, and no serious differences over a particular issue is not only commendable, it also is a compliment to the present city commission.

The commission has apparently operated the city to the point where no major difficulties are prominent. Even during commission meetings, votes are usually unanimous, rather than continuous three-to-two decisions as in years past.

Contrary to previous campaigning, there were no political signs torn down by opponents. The city building department reports no signs had to be removed because they were improperly placed.

The situation was utopian. With the caliber of these four people who qualified and ran for election, the city would benefit no matter who ends up being elected.

We commend the candidates, their supporters, the Lake Mary city government, and all of the 803 citizens who turned out to vote.

Even though it was only 21.5 percent of those who were qualified to vote, it was a good number for a one-issue ballot.

When the runoff election comes on April 19, we hope everyone who can will vote, and help the city continue to progress and prosper.

LETTER

Concern about athletics

I am not a parent so in composing this letter to you I am an "outsider" "looking in" so to speak in what I feel is a very disheartening situation. As once an athlete in high school I was offered several opportunities to attend college due to my athletic ability. As a female this was a very accomplished opportunity as 14 years ago athletics for women, especially colleges, was not as pronounced as they are today.

However, in this situation, I am not addressing a female point of view as I am simply a "concerned" community member.

For an entire season I watched young men running, sweating and playing as if their futures depended on their success. I refer to the Seminole High School varsity football players and team. These young men put forth such enthusiasm, such dedication, and very simply played their hearts out. These young men — most of them have had their hopes, dreams, and aspirations destroyed.

The athletic department has just as much a responsibility to help mold and pave the futures of these young people as the educators themselves. For the seniors on the teams, they put their trust and future in the hands of the people who supposedly represent this department in hopes that colleges and other such institutions will be interested in their abilities and accomplishments.

We had several outstanding young men playing hurt, sick, etc. because they cared about the game, the team and their futures, some of them receiving many awards and outstanding mentions for their performances. We even had one young man win the Peter Schaaf Award, picked for All-Conference, as well as being the very first Seminole High School student ever picked to the super senior All-Star game.

The unfortunate thing is that apparently the high school's athletic department didn't perform as well as the players did themselves. We as a community have become aware that this department did not fulfill their responsibility to these young men by contacting colleges and institutions or by promoting these young men as athletes.

I find it not only sad but destructive that because of what seemed to be a lack of interest, initiative or responsibility on the part of the athletic department, some of these young men have not had what could have been — their roads paved for them, having in fact found themselves standing alone without a road to travel. Is it not unfortunate that these young men who could have been men who designed the buildings of the future, men who practiced the law of the land, or maybe one of them would have traveled into space, "where no man has gone before," or simply as a man behind a mask because of his skills surgically, saves the life of a loved one, will get the chance to pursue their dreams.

'Goals 2000:' Unstressed ideas win

Ideas have consequences. But the media does not do a very good job of covering ideas. Let me give you an example, and then tell you about a new television program that I will be moderating, which aims to help out.

At 1:05 a.m. last Saturday, the "Goals 2000" congressional conference report was passed. It is landmark legislation in education, and President Clinton should be proud to sign the bill into law. There were powerful ideas at work as the White House, Congress and the education establishment wrestled with the legislation for almost a year.

The main argument — supported solidly by Democrats and by some Republicans — dealt with the concept of "standards" and "outputs." The idea was that we were spending plenty on our schools, providing plenty of "inputs," but our children were not learning much.

The proposed remedy was to establish content standards in subjects like math, English and history — then test the students — then put "stakes" on their performance. No more "social promotion," no more "social warehousing" or phony grades or ersatz diplomas. No more free lunch.

But conservatives stressed that education is a state and local matter, and that even though the new standards would be "voluntary," over time Washington bureaucrats would dictate a national curriculum.

Conservatives don't like federalization, and they like it less when they believe that Clinton-appointed boards will till education further toward liberalism, yielding a politically correct corps of dundrheaded children. And that's not impossible.

Many liberals were concerned about stakes. They believed that minority and poor children would not do well on the tests, and end up further penalized in the great game of life. They also wanted to make sure that poor schools had the teachers and the equipment to give their kids an equal start. That is not an irrelevant thought.

These are serious ideas. My sense is that the final bill makes some accommodations to both liberal and conservative opposition, but ends up advancing the solid trinity of "standards," "tests" and "stakes," which is worth a try.

This is by no means the end of the matter, and it is a risky matter. Much will depend on who is appointed to certify the standards, how the Clinton team administers the new law in relation to the Civil

Deja vu: Pardon my French

BOSTON — There I am, nibbling my croissant and sipping my cafe au lait at the Au Bon Pain, when the terrible news flashes before my American eyes.

The French are convinced that we are making a bid for the hostile takeover of their language. So they are trying to put up trade barriers against imported English words.

The protectionists of Paris seem to be suffering from what is known among the young and hip in their land as le stress. They do not like the fact that cars in France are equipped with les air bags or that their monetary system is suffering le cash flow. They are alarmed that their people are lying in les jumbo jets and reading les best sellers.

It's not really English that has created this cause celebre. It's the pushy dialect known as American. We are the ones who have the French eating le popcorn and watching le talk show or listening to le hit parade.

So the National Assembly is going to vote this spring on a law that would prevent our words from taking up permanent residence in the official French language. Virtually all forms of communication — government, business, radio, TV, advertising — would be forbidden from using an immigrant word where a native equivalent exists or can be concocted.

Well, pardon my French, but as we say in America, it's deja vu all over again.

The linguistic trade policy of the French government has been hostile to Americanisms ever since a book was published called "Parlez-Vous Français?" That was 30 years ago, when the French had just begun to do le shopping at le supermarket.

In the early '80s, The High Commission for the French Language described Anglo-Saxons as cultural imperialists trying to rule France by words rather than weapons. These commissioners drew a linguistic Maginot line around the French border. It collapsed faster than you could say le microchip.

But now they are at it again, and more seriously.

Frankly, I always thought the Japanese were the protectionists. After all the French had put their moniker on laissez-faire economics.

It turns out, however, that while the Japanese care about what they make, the French care about what they say. What the auto is to Japan, the bon mot is to France. The Japanese care about economics, the French care about culture.

My guess is that the French intellectuals who have relitigated this trade war aren't really angry that their lives may be saved by something called le air bag. They are appalled at the cultural takeover by the likes of Arnold

Schwarzenegger and Euro Disney.

Here is the country that gave us ballet and what did we give them in return? Le disque-jockey. They gave us haute couture and we give them le jeans. They gave us a gourmet cuisine and we gave them le fast food.

The people who exported the very word elite to the states, have imported a mass culture that is enough to make a quiche curdle and a souffle collapse.

It's insulting that the White House is replacing a French chef with a home-grown cook. [Le cook?] The more ignominious fact is that the French people are actually eating le hot dog.

But before the trade war becomes a fait accompli, may I remind the French that during a long and glorious era of free trade among languages, words have traveled both ways across the Atlantic.

When we had only underwear, you gave us lingerie. When we had mere flowers, you put them in a bouquet. When we had toilet water you created perfume.

You gave our apple pie its la mode. You gave our soup its du jour. You helped us know the chic from the gauche. You let us turn a mundane meeting into a rendezvous.

If you ban Franglais, I'm afraid we'll have to ban Englisch. And while we may screw up from time to time, surely you don't want to commit such a terrible faux pas.

So let us remember that France has always been among the avant garde. In this world of instant communication and word proliferation, language barriers are simply passé.

KGB head enjoys his new job

WASHINGTON — The head of the new KGB, Yevgeny Primakov, is a champagne-like man who will do anything to keep his job because he enjoys the power — and the trappings of it.

Little has been published in the United States about Primakov, who as head of the Russian Foreign Intelligence Service, the SVR, continues to run an active spy network in the United States. If the Aldrich Ames affair is any indication, Primakov has at least one mole buried in the bowels of the Central Intelligence Agency, leaking secrets in a treasonous manner to a country whose hundreds of nuclear missiles are still pointed at the United States.

In choosing Primakov to head the new Russian intelligence service, Russian President Boris Yeltsin emphasized Primakov's longtime credentials as a prominent academician and former Pravda correspondent. What Yeltsin neglected to mention publicly is that Primakov, according to several knowledgeable Russian and U.S. intelligence sources, was a longtime agent for the old KGB — at least since 1959. His codename was "Maxim."

Even today, when Yeltsin's inner circle seems to change as often as the weather, Primakov remains one of the few constants. When Yeltsin originally tapped him to head the SVR, it was partly because the old KGB bureaucracy felt comfortable with him in charge. He is a man who has managed to please such disparate masters as Leonid Brezhnev and Mikhail Gorbachev.

Even in his early days with the KGB, Primakov's political skills permitted him many perquisites, with little grumbling from his colleagues.

One source noted that whenever Primakov would make a visit to a Middle East country, in his front role as an academician, the KGB contingent there "would receive a cable in advance, and were told they were responsible for his security in these countries, and to keep him happy. When he was there, he always asked the KGB personnel to buy him expensive presents from the KGB budget. Usually he returned from Moscow with huge luggage. The money spent on the presents usually was found in the KGB fund."

That's the kind of attention that Primakov has always savored. One top SVR official noted how much Primakov liked after the top new KGB job because he didn't want to be anybody's No. 2 anymore. "He was tired of being an adviser to somebody. He really wants to be the policymaker. He very much enjoys the job. And he's quite happy."

Primakov confided to one inquirer: "I worked for a long time as an adviser. The two years that I spent in the Kremlin, though it was not a long period, it was enough to realize that the position of an adviser doesn't suit me. I like this job where I am the top-ranked man, and I decide what work I will do."

To keep that job, Primakov has deliberately suppressed personal information that might be seen as adverse, and tried to advance the myth that he was a courageous Yeltsin-style reformer all along.

He doesn't talk about his KGB career, and has even publicly denied it in several Russian press reports. More curious, he has ducked any confirmation that he is part-Jewish. In Muscovite power circles, this is not a useful aspect for Primakov, who has taken note of the rise of ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovskiy on the back of anti-Semitic remarks.

When Yeltsin's inner circle seems to change as often as the weather, Primakov remains one of the few constants.

"It seems there's more here," said Cmdr. Dennis Whitmore. "How did they know there was a floor safe. Why did they ask for drugs. We have a lot of questions."

The couple could not be reached this morning.

According to a police report, Cory Holm said he was in his yard in the 300 block of Live Oak Boulevard when three men wearing stocking masks grabbed him and forced him inside through an open garage door.

Holm said they then taped his hands behind his back, placed him on the floor and covered his head with a blanket.

Yvonne Fuller-O'Neal said her hands were taped together behind her back and the masked men forced her into a bedroom where they demanded she open a safe. From the coffee, the men took a necklace, O'Neal reported. The men demanded "the cocaine," but were told there was none in the home.

The couple reported the men took $355 from a wallet. Holm's backpack which contained clothes and about 150 compact disks before leaving.

The couple described the first man as a white male, five feet, 10 inches tall to six feet tall, medium build, dark hair with a mustache, wearing a white shirt, jeans and sneakers. The man's name was believed to be Steve.

The second man was described as five feet, 10 inches to six feet tall, medium build, bald and wearing a black shirt, black jeans and possibly named Bob.

No description was given for the third man.

agricultural uses non-compliant and eventually force owners to rezone and/or redevelop their property.

The other option is to redefine the regulations pertaining to agricultural zoning. The city staff has recommended this approach as being the most fair to the city as well as the property owners.

The P&Z Board recommended approval of this second option by a three to one vote, subject to the elimination of the amortization clause which was written into the original proposal.

The amortization as originally proposed would deal with any agricultural type operation which would change from permitted to conditional use through the enactment of the ordinance.

"If that change is made," West explained, "the property owner would then have six months during which to apply for a conditional use permit, or change to what would be required."

P&Z suggested the clause be eliminated. If the commission agrees, the amortization would no longer exist, and any property use which currently exists would be grandfathered in and no conditional use would be needed.

If approved as being presented in ordinance form, the uses permitted for A-1 zoned land within the city limits would allow: single family dwelling; one horse or cow per acre; tree farms; 12 fowl per parcel; guest houses/garage apartments with a maximum of 600 square feet; vegetable crop cultivation.

"What we want to do," she said, "is to make the agriculturally zoned land more compatible with the urbanizing areas and residential neighborhoods located around them."

West gave an example. "If you have, say, five horses on a full acre, and it was already zoned agriculture, you won't have to make any changes if the amortization section is removed. On the other hand, if it is left in, you would have six months to either apply for a conditional use to keep all five horses, or have to reduce to the one which is required under the proposed changes."

Regardless of the use, if the measure passes, property owners would be allowed to sell their agriculturally zoned land and the new buyer continue operating under the grandfather clause, as long as operations did not cease for a 90 day period during the change of ownership.

Because the matter drew a great deal of citizen participation during the P&Z meeting, it is being placed high on the agenda for tomorrow night's commission meeting. It will be presented in ordinance form, on first reading with public hearing.

The City Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Plans

Gateway Plaza, no specific development plans are being considered by P&Z at this time. Rather, a realigning of the property is being proposed.

The proposed Gateway Plaza is up for consideration as a planned development and master plan.

The plaza would be located on the south side of S.R. 46, between Oregon Avenue and Rinehart Road. The land consists of 31.29 acres and is part of the Northgate Planned Development.

The second public hearing is adjacent property at Northgate, consisting of 24.7 acres. Although connected, the two parcels are separately owned.

According to Jay Murder, director of planning and development for the city, the property split in the original Northgate area is being requested to avoid triggering a Development of Regional Impact (DRI) review procedure. The land had previously been zoned as a planned development but under the new request, the multiple family and office/medical uses would be eliminated from the property, to allow it to be all commercial development.

Two automotive related public hearings are also scheduled at the P&Z meeting. One request is for a conditional use for property at 2734 Orlando Drive, for an automotive dealer sales (used).

The second is at 2482-2484 Sanford Avenue, for an automobile and truck accessories sales and installation business.

Additional items listed on the agenda for Thursday night's P&Z meeting are as follows:

- Public hearing - Request for conditional use for property on the northwest corner of Highway 17-92 and 2nd Street for the addition of a second detached sign at the intersection of 1st and Maple Avenue, Sanford House of Praise, owner.

- Public hearing - Dimensional variance request for property, same as preceding item.

- Site plan consideration - McDonald's drive-in restaurant, 112 French Avenue.

- Site plan consideration - U-Haul mini-warehouse storage, 3851 Orlando Drive.

- Site plan consideration - Sunshine Adult Day-Care Center and office building, at 44 E. Airport Blvd.

- Consideration of 12-month extension of approval for final improvement plan, final plat, Carriage Cove North.

- Additional business from floor or commission members.

The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., this Thursday night in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Kiwanis Pancake Day set Saturday

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — If you're looking for something to do this weekend, you'll flip over this one.

The annual Kiwanis Pancake Day will get underway at the Sanford Civic Center this Saturday morning, April 9 at 8 a.m.

The Kiwanians have been hosting the event to benefit many of the local children's charities for three decades now. Organizers said the event gets bigger each year.

And, indeed, there are much more than pancakes on their plate this year.

When you enter the civic center, enticed by the delicious aromas of pancakes, syrup and sizzling bacon and sausage, you'll want to eat first of all, but don't miss the other activities going on until 5 p.m.

The event is designed to benefit local underprivileged youth so there will be activities to raise money in a variety ways.

Meal tickets are available for a donation of $3 each. The Kiwanis Club of Sanford suggests that pancakes make an excellent breakfast, lunch and dinner for your whole family.

Each hour, door prizes donated by local businesses, will be given away.

Local children's groups will provide the entertainment throughout the day, delighting audiences with singing, dancing and a variety of talents. The shows are free and on-going throughout the day.

Outside, there will be a farmers' market including truckloads of fresh fruits and vegetables.

A silent auction, a merchandise mart and a bake sale will be additional fund-raising activities that will take place throughout the day.

Tickets for the Pancake Day are available at the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, at the SunBank downtown and at Touchton's Rexall Drug Store.

Tests

Hyman argued field sobriety tests administered by police before individuals are arrested for DUI should not be admitted in court testimony. The tests being challenged include the one-leg stand, walking a straight line and following a moving object with their eyes. The defense attorney claimed people are requested to perform feats they do not do in their daily routine.

The defense attorney also argued juries tend to give more weight to police officer testimony about the sobriety tests than the drivers were drunk. Hyman argued that field sobriety tests, like polygraphs, are totally subjective and should not be presented to a jury.

Isaak argued the field tests measure normal faculties such as the ability to walk and talk, judge distances and use eye-hand coordination.

Assistant state attorney Elinor Isaak told the panel of judges the field tests do not have to be scientifically reliable to be relevant to the question of driver impairment.

He said police are not presented as "expert" witnesses in DUI cases but use the sobriety tests to observe and report on a driver's ability to follow directions and perform motor skills, such as hand-eye coordination. The tests are used to determine whether a driver is sufficiently impaired to be arrested. Blood alcohol tests are administered after an arrest if the driver consents. Isaak argued the field tests measure normal faculties such as the ability to walk and talk, judge distances and use eye-hand coordination.

If field sobriety tests are not scientific, Hitt asked Isaak, "Why do officers testify the defendants 'fail' the test. How can there be a pass/fail if it isn't presented as scientific evidence?"

"We live and die by the video," Isaak responded, noting cases are won or lost when jurors see sobriety tests administered to drivers. Jurors rely on their own knowledge and experience to determine if a person shown taking the test is drunk.

Ronald Nowaczyk, Ph.D., a Clemson University psychology professor testified as a defense expert witness that studies showed police were wrong almost half the time (46 percent) when they watched sobriety tests, then guessed if the subjects were legally drunk.

The admissibility of the field sobriety tests was challenged by Hyman in Orange County at Tuesday morning hearing. Sobriety test evidence is not used in Bay and Clay counties and its use is restricted in Osceola County.

NASA: Endeavour 'go' for Friday

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA aimed for a Friday launch of Endeavour after the spaceship's engines were found to be free of a dangerous defect discovered in the shuttle fleet.

The weather may not cooperate, however. The chances of good weather for the 8:06 a.m. liftoff were put at 40 percent because of a cold front headed this way.

Endeavour will lift off with a crew of six and a set of highly sophisticated radar instruments that will survey the world's deserts, mountains, volcanoes, forests, farmland and oceans during the nine-day flight.

NASA had postponed liftoff from Thursday to Friday to inspect Endeavour for a flaw that engine maker Rocketdyne discovered in other shuttle oxidizer pumps. Tuesday's inspection at the launch pad found no defective parts.

Rocketdyne, a division of Rockwell International, discovered the problem late last week during a routine inspection of an oxidizer pump that had flown in space seven times, spokesman Paul Sewell said.

One of 11 metal strips that help direct the flow of liquid oxygen through the pump was too narrow at one end. NASA feared such a pointed end could cause the strip to crack and send metal chips into the pump. That could lead to an engine failure or even an explosion.

An inspection of 12 more pumps — excluding Endeavour's — found one other with an exceedingly narrow metal strip. That pump had flown four times in space back in the early 1980s.

Six other pumps had strips that were less than the specified six-hundredths of an inch in width, but the difference was so slight as to be of little concern, Sewell said.

Rocketdyne engineers spent Monday and Tuesday testing one of the defective pumps at the company's Los Angeles plant to see if the strip would crack. Although higher-than-normal pressure was applied, the strip held, Sewell said.

"In the history of the program we have never, ever had crack in there," Sewell said.

Workers did not file the strip into a rounded shape as required, Sewell said.

"I don't know how it happened," he said.

The parts have not been made since 1985.

architectural wonders that chronicled the history of what was once the strongest nation in the world, the students were also exposed to the way the Spaniards live today.

"We ate the kinds of food they do and tried to keep the same kinds of hours they do," Blair explained. "I'm exhausted from that."

Breakfast, she said, consisted of a hard roll and hot chocolate. The midday meal was huge and rich.

"And then they didn't eat again until 10 o'clock at night," she said. "And after that, they'd go out to the discos or whatever until the early morning."

Blair said the students were all fascinated with "the little houses and tiny cars and things" along the way. It was the "real Spain," she said, and that's what the students wanted to see.

The trip was organized by the Seminole High Spanish classes, but there won't be a test. The real life experience gained by the students is invaluable, Blair acknowledged.

"We learned more in 10 days there than we could have in a year in class," she said.

PENSACOLA — Navy museum officials say they are trying to make sure a World War II-era Army bomber on the bottom of a South Carolina lake goes on public display rather than into a private collection.

That's the only reason why the National Museum of Naval Aviation wants possession of the plane, museum director Bob Rasmussen said Tuesday.

Rasmussen said he has no interest in displaying the North American B-25 Mitchell in the museum at the Pensacola Naval Air Station but would loan it to another facility as has been done with other aircraft.

"I'm not prepared to put the kind of resources into it that it would take to make it presentable," said Rasmussen, a retired Navy captain and fighter pilot.

He disputed a Greenville, S.C., doctor's assertion that the Navy museum may want to salvage the bomber, which crashed in Lake Murray during a training mission 51 years ago Monday, for display in Pensacola.

Rasmussen also said Dr. Robert Seigler, a pediatrician who is trying to raise money for his own effort to recover the plane and keep it in South Carolina, is wrong about the bomber's historical significance.

Seigler has claimed the C model B-25 was the same type used by Gen. Jimmy Doolittle for his raid on Japan in 1942. Flying off the deck of the aircraft carrier USS Hornet.

Doolittle used earlier and rarer B model Mitchells, Rasmussen said.

"If it were a B model, there would be no doubt I would go after it," Rasmussen said, because of its connection to the Navy.

The Navy museum, experienced in making such recoveries from Lake Michigan and the Pacific Ocean, has been assisting a Naval Reserve unit that located the plane on the bottom of Lake Murray, owned by South Carolina Electric and Gas Co.

If it were a Navy plane the bomber still would be Navy property, but the Air Force has a different policy on such wrecks, relinquishing them to property owners, Rasmussen said.

He said utility company officials are anxious to have the plane brought up by the Navy reservists and placed in a museum.

Rasmussen said he would prefer the bomber be kept in South Carolina, but so far no museum in that state has come forward. Some out-of-state museums, however, are interested, Rasmussen said.

South Carolina's state museum in Columbia already owns a B-25, said Buddy Macon, deputy director at the Navy museum. It was recovered from another South Carolina lake at least 10 years ago.

Macon said there are no firm plans to recover the Lake Murray bomber and that the museum may drop the project if opposition continues.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Turner leads Magic

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic, playing without ailing center Shaquille O'Neal, got 22 points and 10 rebounds from Jeff Turner to defeat the Milwaukee Bucks 104-97.

O'Neal sat out the game with a stomach virus, the first time in his two-year career he missed a game because of injury or illness.

Turner took up the slack, scoring 14 points in the first half when the Magic opened a 20-point lead. Rookie Penny Hardaway scored 21 points and Nick Anderson 14 for the Magic, who need one more victory or another Charlotte loss to qualify officially for the playoffs.

AROUND THE STATE

Heat knock off Knicks

MIAMI — Sick, sore and sinking in the standings, the Miami Heat felt a lot better after they ambushed the NBA's hottest team.

Miami limited the New York Knicks to 36 percent shooting and snapped their 15-game winning streak Tuesday with a 100-86 victory.

Miami played without injured center Rony Seikaly, while starters Glen Rice and Grant Long were weakened by the flu. The Heat lost seven of their previous eight games, including a 110-87 blowout at New York on Saturday.

Harold Miner scored 22 points and Steve Smith 20 for the Heat, who earned their 39th victory of the season, a franchise record.

Tars surprise Hurricanes

CORAL GABLES — Scott Thayer singled home Tony Rich for the go-ahead run in the eighth inning to lift Rollins to a 4-2 win Tuesday over Miami.

Ben Fleetham (9-2) struck out seven and allowed two runs on seven hits in seven innings to earn the win for the Tars (31-6).

Jay Tessmer (2-1) took the loss for Miami (27-6).

AROUND THE NATION

Dodgers rally by Marlins

LOS ANGELES — If the best way for the Los Angeles Dodgers to put Darryl Strawberry's latest problem behind them is simply winning, they took a step in that direction Tuesday.

Pinch-hitter Jeff Treadway's sacrifice fly with one out in the eighth inning gave the Dodgers a 4-3 season-opening victory over the Florida Marlins, a day after Strawberry admitted he had a substance abuse problem and went on the disabled list.

ELSEWHERE

Nordiques tie Panthers

QUEBEC — Joe Sakic scored with 48 seconds left Tuesday night to give the Quebec Nordiques a 3-3 tie with the Florida Panthers and maintaining their faint playoff hopes.

The tie left Quebec barely alive in a bid for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference, which the first-year Panthers currently hold. Quebec is seven points behind Florida with four games to play.

The Panthers' lead over the New York Islanders, their closest pursuer, was cut to two points. The Islanders, who beat Washington 4-3 in overtime Tuesday night, have five games left while the Panthers have four.

Andrei Lomakin, Stu Barnes and Jesse Belanger scored goals for the Panthers.

Crank up the offense

Chain of Lakes Marine, Rotary slug way to victory

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — No shortage of runs here.

The teams in the Sanford Recreation Department Girls' Spring Showpitch Softball League must have thought they were at track practice after circling the bases for 46 runs in the two games played at Pinchurat Park.

What makes the amount of runs scored even more impressive is the fact that the four teams only batted in 13 innings and scored in 11, an average of over 4.4 runs per at bat.

Chain of Lakes Marine again had the biggest offensive output, lacing 26 hits in a 21-9 triumph over Sanford Optimist Club.

The other game was a little more sedate, but their were still plenty of runs scored as Rotary Breakfast Club scored four runs in the bottom of the second inning to break a 6-6 tie and defeated Regatta Shores, 10-4.

Chain of Lakes Marine scored five runs in the top of the first inning, then put the game away

Regatta Shores	240	4	3
Rotary Breakfast Club	444	10	3
Chain of Lakes Marine	318	4	21
Sanford Optimist Club	332	4	9

with an eight-run third inning.

Contributing to the Chain of Lakes Marine offense, which featured 12 extra base hits, were Lakeyenia Byrd (two home runs, two singles, three runs, seven RBI), Nina Byrd (home run, double, single, two runs, four RBI), Sharon Williams (two doubles, single, two runs, RBI) and Candice Brown (two home runs, two runs, three RBI).

Also contributing were Chuyna Hunter (triple, double, two RBI), Shannon Jackson (double, single, two runs), Shayla Hooks and Kalesha Hayes (two singles, two runs and one RBI each), Keasha Bradley (two singles, RBI), Adrian Lytle (home run, two runs, RBI), Tasha Dixon (single, two runs) and Tashia Lawson and Octavia Redd (one single and one run each).

Providing the offense for Sanford Optimist Club were Stacy Oten (double, single, two runs, RBI), Shalonda Peterson (triple, run, RBI), Randi Lee (single, two RBI), Shelly Pratt (single, run), Kelly Simmons, Brandi Colgate, Dambi Degass and Lelle LaPor (one run and one RBI each), Rachael DeVolder (run) and Allen Colon (RBI).

Rotary Breakfast Club was led by Shavon Anderson (double, two runs, two RBI), Laketta Bryant (single, two runs, RBI), A. Pearson (single, run, two RBI), Brittany Ramsey (two runs), M. Duncan (run, RBI), Angela Campbell and Lisa Evans (one run scored each) and Lindsey Aten, Muretta Baggs and J. Carr (one RBI each).

Doing the hitting for Regatta Shores were Shiley Dixon and Erica Davis (one single and one RBI each), Jessica Spradlen (single, run), Rose Knight and Abbie Harris (one run and one RBI each), Tonya Gerlos (RBI) and Dana Popillo, Maggie Monet and Katy Riker (one run scored each).

Hot streak has Silver Hawks at crossroads

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

CASSELBERRY — Just how good is the Lake Howell High School baseball team?

Are the Silver Hawks the team that lost seven of its first 11 games or are they the team that's won five of its last six games, including an 8-2 decision over 5A-District 4 foe Spruce Creek Tuesday night?

With four weeks remaining in the regular season, now's the time for them to decide.

"This is the way we should have been playing all year," said Lake Howell coach Burt Benjamin, referring to the Silver Hawks' combination of steady defense and timely offense in support of winning pitcher Matt Huston's three-hitter.

"There's still a ways to go yet. We can get right back in the middle of things, including the conference race, if we go on from here."

Currently 0-3 in the Seminole Athletic Conference, Lake Howell (9-8) will resume its conference schedule with a 7 p.m. game at Lyman this evening.

Anchoring the Silver Hawks' stretch run is a pitching staff that regularly produces efforts comparable to Huston's gem Tuesday night and will be bolstered by the return of 6-foot, 7-inch right hander Mike Johnson.

"All year long, we've been more than pleased with our pitching," said Benjamin. "It's been the highlight of a team so far this season."

Huston opened Tuesday night's game by retiring the first nine Spruce Creek hitters. Then after giving up a pair of unearned runs in the top of the fourth inning, Huston retired 11 of the last 13 batters. He finished with eight strikeouts while walking just one.

What has hurt the Silver Hawks this season is that while they've played solid defense and hit the ball well, they rarely did both in the same game until last week, when Lake Howell won three of four games on the way to finishing fifth in the Big Blue Bonanza tournament at Lake Brantley High School.

Against Spruce Creek, Lake Howell continued to play good defense (making just two errors, both in the fourth inning) and come up with clutch hits. After Spruce Creek rallied to tie the score 2-2 in the top of the fourth, Lake Howell came right back with two runs in the home half of the inning.

"We responded to the situation and came right back," said Benjamin. "As long as we continue to do that, we'll be OK."

Leading Lake Howell's 11-hit attack was third baseman Mark Desabrais, who was 3-for-4 with two runs scored and an RBI. Randy Proulx added a pair of singles and two RBI. Kyle Feldman doubled in a run and scored a run. Kevin Stephenson added a single, a run, and an RBI.

Dwayne Sanford singled and scored two runs. Rich DiTore hit a single and scored a run. Chris Tolliver added a double. Peter Gill singled. Mike Hernandez scored a run.

Wayne Longstreet singled twice for Spruce Creek.

Lake Howell's Matt Huston retired the first nine hitters he faced and 11 of the last 13 in a three-hit win over Spruce Creek Tuesday. He fanned eight and walked one.

Lion girls, Tribe boys enjoy wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Tracy Kotses, Carole Long and Kelly Hargrave swept their way to individual victories Tuesday, leading the Oviedo Lions to a 7-0 sweep of Seminole in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' tennis dual meet at Lake Sylvan Park.

In boys' play, Oscar Canonizado and Sebastian Gras both posted 8-0 wins to help Seminole post a 5-2 victory over the Lions.

Kotses, who competed in the Easter Bowl tournament last week in Miami, swept past Aubrey Nelson 8-0 at No. 1 singles. Long did the same to Kristina White in the No. 4 match while Hargrave blanked Kelli Ballingal at the No. 5 spot.

At No. 2 singles, Kristin Stebbins defeated Tiffany Soderstrom 8-1. Jody Hodges scored an 8-5 victory over Bianca Stevenson at No. 3.

In doubles play, Kotses and Stebbins blasted by Nelson and Soderstrom 8-0 while Long and Hodges bested Stevenson and Alison Westmark 8-1.

Canonizado shut out Oviedo's Ben Melvin 8-0 at No. 1 singles. Gras duplicated the result over Ryan Norris in the No. 4 singles match.

Also winning their singles matches for the Seminoles were Eddie Vargas (an 8-5 victor over Chris Hawk at the No. 3 spot) and Matt Durham (who topped Steve Aboud 8-4 at the No. 5 position).

Vargas and Graf later combined to beat Hawk and Norris 8-6 in the No. 2 doubles match.

Oviedo's two wins came at No. 2 singles, where Pete Buffington bested Sonny Vong 8-2, and No. 1 doubles, where Seminole defeated.

Both the Tribe boys (5-5) and girls (4-6) will play again this afternoon, traveling to Daytona Beach to play Mainland. The Oviedo boys (0-8) will host University on Friday at Red Bug Lake Park while the Oviedo girls (6-3) aren't schedule to play until the Seminole Athletic Conference tournament April 13 and 14.

Red Sox, Cubs, Royals continue winning ways

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Three teams have shown themselves to be the teams to beat in the early going of the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League season.

All three took to the field Tuesday night and demonstrated just why they've become the top teams.

The three — the Suniland Corporation Red Sox, the Railroaders Cubs and the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Royals — combined to outscore their opponents 45-6 and outhit them 39-6 to raise their combined records to 17-1. The trio did the damage in just 13 of the scheduled 18 innings.

The Red Sox, the defending city champions, continued to run roughshod over the competition, pounding the ball for 15 hits (nine of which went for extra bases) in support of a two-hitter by Levi Raines Jr. in a 17-2 trouncing of the Fisher, Laurence, Deen & Fromang Blue Jays at Roy Holler Field.

The Red Sox (6-0) actually fell behind the Blue Jays (1-5) 1-0 in the top of the first inning, but quickly erased that deficit as the first six batters in the lineup all had hits and the Red Sox went on to score 12 runs in the frame.

Raines only allowed three Blue Jays runners to reach base in his three innings of work (a home run and a single to Jason Turner and a walk to Powering the Red Sox offense were Raines (home run, two doubles, three runs scored, four RBI), Randy Ford (double, two singles, two runs scored, two RBI), Bud Bennett (home run, double, two runs scored, four RBI) and Jimmy Franklin (triple, double, two runs scored, RBI).

Also hitting were Matt Mergo (double, two runs, RBI), Nick Erickson (single, two runs, RBI), Adam Frank (single, two runs), Troy Brinson (single, one run), Robert Robinson (single, RBI) and Eddie Morales (one run).

The team trailing the Red Sox in the American Division standings, the Royals, also used strong pitching and an high powered offense to improve their record to 5-1 on the season.

Anton and Alex Anderson allowed only one single and were supported by a 15-hit attack as the Royals whitewashed the First Union Bank A's, 15-0.

Like the Red Sox, the Royals also used a big first inning to get themselves started, scoring seven runs in the top of the first inning. The Andersons made it stand up, striking out five and allowing the A's (0-6) just one single to Eddie Wells and a walk to James Bering over three innings.

Doing the hitting for the Royals were Dwayne Tillman (three singles, two runs), Jason Sheffield (double, single, two runs, two RBI), Donovan Redden (double, single, one run, RBI) and Jeremiah Jenkins (two singles, two runs, RBI).

Also contributing were Alex Anderson (single, three runs, RBI), Anthony Ratonarong (single, two runs), Robert Wilds (single), Anton Anderson (two runs) and Dontaey Major (one run).

At Lakefront Field, the Cubs scored eight runs in the bottom of the second inning to break a 3-3 tie and went on to win their sixth straight game without a defeat, 13-4, over the Expos. The victory keeps the Cubs two games ahead of the rest of pack in the National Division.

Contributing to the Cubs' 12-hit attack were Danny Brock (home run, three singles, three runs, three RBI), winning pitcher William Cleveland (triple, two singles, four RBI), Channing Byrd (triple, two runs, three RBI) and David Sanders (double, one run).

Wood holds groove, wins Late Model main

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - Current FASCAR Late Model point champion Ricky Wood did not have the fastest car or the best-handling car, but he had enough to win the 25-lap Late Model feature last Friday, April 1, at Orlando Speedway.

Wood used his advantage of starting on the pole to go green flag to checkers in scoring his fifth win of the season.

"I knew I had a handful with Scott (Bramlett) and David (Russell) behind me because both of their cars are faster than mine," said Wood.

"Speedworld is a one groove track. It's real hard to pass on the outside. So I knew if I kept my line and stayed out of trouble, I could keep them behind me. With a few laps to go, we had to deal with lapped cars, but I got by them OK."

Bramlett took runner-up honors with Russell finishing third in front of Dave DeBullis and Tuffy Hester.

In the Limited Late Model feature, a forgetful Glen Carter crossed the stripe in fifth place but was declared the winner of the event to celebrate April Fool's Day, track promoters announced that the winner's purse and trophy would go to the fifth-place driver instead of the first-place pilot.

"I was in third place trying to catch the Todd brothers when I got high on the track and two cars got by me," said Carter, who recently moved from the Modified Division to Limited Late Models. "With four laps to go, I was really charging, trying to get my spots back, but I just ran out of time."

"I completely forgot the April Fool's stunt. I got to the front straightaway and the flag man brought me the winner's trophy. This is one time I'm really satisfied with a fifth-place finish."

The Todd Squad, Timmy and Mike, finished first and second, respectively. They were trailed by Michael Williams, Allen Rhodes, and Carter.

Rick Johns dominated racing action in the Sportsman Division to notch his third feature win of the season. Walt Loggins was second, seven car lengths behind Johns. Jeff Rule, James Hansen, and Scott rounded out the top five.

"I can't believe I was running that good," said Johns. "I kept waiting for someone to come up and race with me, but it never happened. The car was real comfortable and I guess I was going faster than I thought."

In bumper action, Bobby Stevens led every circuit to take the checkers two car lengths in front of Glen Castro. Completing the top five were, in order of finish, Rick Schlimmer, Robert Jenkins, and Bill Gibbons.

Dink Sullivan held off a furious late-race challenge by Jared Allison to win the Mint-Stock main event.

At the midway point, Sullivan had about a 10-car advantage over the field with David Lecklitter in second and Allison running third. Five laps to the finish, Allison got by Lecklitter and began his charge after Sullivan.

With three laps remaining, Allison closed to Sullivan's rear bumper and the two raced the remainder of the feature bumper-to-bumper. Sullivan managing to maintain his advantage.

Lecklitter was third with R.J. Arnone finishing fourth ahead of Keith Francis.

Bruce Thompson finished first in the Modified Division with John Willis, Skip Honaker, Russ Ehrhridge and Ed Meredith in tow.

Cook of the Week

Healthy ingredients accent his culinary treats

SANFORD — Cook of the Week Joe Hartle came into his own where cooking is concerned right out of high school with his first job. Hartle was employed with Dan's Restaurant in Longwood for nine years. He started out as a busboy and worked up to the position of a breakfast and lunch cook. Hartle is now employed as a salesman with Flowers Baking.

Born in Pennsylvania, Hartle has spent almost all of his life in Sanford. He has a true passion for sports activities. When softball season is in he is working hard to get sponsors in order to form his own team and, if that doesn't work, he will find a team to join for the season.

Golf is another sport that Hartle has recently come to really enjoy. "It can be hard trying to find a partner-friend to go golfing with," says Hartle. "Not everybody has clubs or gets the same days off from work as I do but I still manage to get time on the course."

A very health-conscious person, Hartle keeps his body in shape with exercise and diet daily. He works at watching those fat grams and makes it a point to walk or jog at least once a day.

Hartle's recipe for Sweet and Sour Cocktail Sauce is more or less "a recipe that I have added a few things to and I have taken a few out to make it have that special taste that I was looking for."

A good and healthy recipe for breakfast is Hartle's recipe for French Toast. "You're not missing a thing in the taste department on this one," he said. "And it only has two grams of fat."

Another diet recipe is one that Hartle says "is great after a maybe too heavy dinner or just a snack that won't add those extra pounds." Party Diet Delight is easy to make and is filling as well as light in calories.

A true spaghetti sauce takes a bit of preparation in preparing and cooking time. Hartle's recipe for spaghetti sauce is "worth the extra effort," Hartle said.

Turkey offers light, flavorful, nutritious dining year round

Once, turkey was only considered for hearty holiday dinners. Now, with the variety of smaller cuts and the ground option, it can appear on the dinner table in many different forms year round.

It offers light dining, good nutrition and a mild flavor which is compatible with a wide variety of other foods.

As an added bonus, turkey is low in calories, cholesterol, sodium and fat. A 3 oz. serving of cooked skinless turkey breast has only 119 calories. Dark meat has slightly more calories, about 143.

Turkey is easily prepared in the microwave oven. Try some of these warm weather favorites.

These Mexican sandwiches are easy to make and offer a change of pace for casual menus.

World's tallest building clarified

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "What is the world's tallest building?" needs some clarification:

There is a free-standing concrete structure in Toronto, Canada, as your reader suggests. It is called the CN Tower. It is 1,821 feet tall — 367 feet taller than the Sears Tower in Chicago, which is only 1,454 feet tall.

There are other communication towers in the world that are even taller, but to the best of my knowledge, the CN Tower is the tallest self-supporting one (no guy wires), and it is the only one in which there is an elevator to a public restaurant and viewing platform near the top.

Although it is not an office building, it is a building, albeit a very narrow one.

DREW VACTOR, TUCSON.

Harry Blackmun: 'Good worker in the vineyard'

By RICHARD CANELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Mathematics and medicine always have fascinated him. But Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun downright loves the law and baseball.

"In both, justice does not always prevail," a ruefully smiling Blackmun once told another Minnesota Twins fan after watching a ninth-inning grand slam home run give the Baltimore Orioles a victory over his home state's team.

He follows the Twins and the Chicago Cubs, but his love of baseball transcends team allegiance.

And as he leaves the bench, Blackmun hopes the legacy of his 24 years on the nation's highest court will extend beyond his writing the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide.

"I hope I would be remembered as a person of judicial integrity who wrote acceptably well and contributed in more than one field," he once told The Associated Press. "I'd like to be known just as a good worker in the vineyard who held his own and contributed generally to the advancement of the law."

To those who don't know him, Blackmun might seem to be a cranky old guy. On the bench, he often displays a judicial scowl and can be snappish with lawyers.

At other times, his homespun questions have hidden the intellect of a magna cum laude mathematics graduate of Harvard who considered becoming a doctor and for years served as general counsel to the Mayo Clinic.

When Blackmun takes off the judicial robe and puts on one of the ever-present cardigan sweaters he wears in his offices, warmth and humor emerge.

He can talk at length about his two daughters and his grandchildren, about his former law clerks and their families. And he can joke about his longevity.

In a 1990 interview, Blackmun called himself one of the high court's "three old goats," whose inevitable departure, he predicted, would solidify conservative domination of the court for the next 40 or 50 years.

He was 81 at the time. Fellow Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall were 84 and 82, respectively. Both retired shortly thereafter.

"Time will take its toll on the three old goats," Blackmun said. "We will be replaced by appointees of the current administration or the next one, which is probably going to be another Bush administration. So it seems to me that before too long the court could be nine conservatives and that surely will last well into the next century."

He was wrong. Bill Clinton beat George Bush in the 1992 election and will get to pick Blackmun's successor. Clinton already has filled one Supreme Court seat.

Blackmun once was called a conservative, but more recently was called a liberal. He believes he's always been somewhere in between.

"One has to develop his attitude toward the (Constitution's) great phrases," he once told an interviewer. "What does equal protection mean? What is cruel and unusual punishment? I would hope that I have grown in that respect over the years. But as far as shifting from conservatism to liberalism, I don't believe I have done that."

Blackmun always suspected he and his high court colleagues held less than realistic views of American society. He called them and himself

"prima donnas."

In a recent commencement speech to Washington and Lee University law students, he urged them to seek "the common touch, the feeling for the little person."

"There are arrogant people in this world, and arrogant lawyers, and what is worse, arrogant judges," Blackmun told them.

When the court years before ruled that states were under no legal duty to pay for abortions sought by women on welfare, Blackmun bristled.

"There is another world out there, the existence of which the court, I suspect, either chooses to ignore or fears to recognize," he wrote.

"The cancer of poverty will continue to grow. This is a sad day for those who regard the Constitution as a force that would serve justice to all evenlyhandedly and, in so doing, would better the lot of the poorest among us."

It is Blackmun the baseball fan who wrote what may be the most extraordinary paragraph in American law.

In a 1972 decision called Flood vs. Kuhn, the Supreme Court allowed major league baseball to keep its exemption from federal antitrust laws.

Writing for the court, Blackmun began with what might be called an ode to the national pastime. In the fifth paragraph, he embarked on a journey through some of the game's most famous names — in all, 88 players, owners, managers and even umpires.

What are symptoms of yeast infection?

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the symptoms of a yeast infection and what can I do about it?

DEAR READER: Yeast infections cause a characteristic white, "cheesy" coating or discharge on the skin, in the mouth or in the vagina. The diagnosis is confirmed by a smear or culture, which enables the doctor to identify the yeast microorganisms. Once this is done, treatment with anti-yeast medication, such as Mycostatin, is usually effective.

I assume from your question that you are suffering from the pain and discharge of a vaginal yeast infection. Again, this should be diagnosed by a physician, because other, non-yeast (bacterial) infections can appear similar. Then the physician can recommend appropriate therapy.

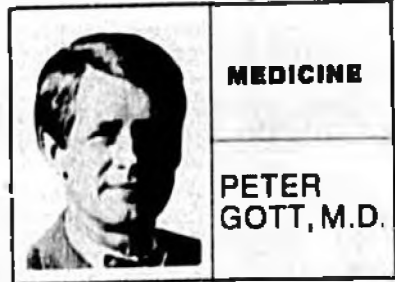

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was recently told I have H. pylori bacteria growing in my stomach. My doctor hopes to treat it with antibiotic suspension. Where do the bacteria originate and how would I have gotten them in my stomach?

DEAR READER: Many peptic ulcers appear to be caused by bacteria called "H. pylori." The reason for this is unknown; no one knows where the bacteria originate and why some people are especially affected by them. Anybody who has recurring or persisting peptic ulcers should have a blood test for H. pylori infection, which is treated with a combination of antibiotics and bismuth (Pepto-Bismol).

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Peptic Ulcers." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

It is usually important, when you are writing, to ensure that your meaning is crystal clear. For example, I have seen many road signs claiming "Slow Children Playing." Presumably the quick children are at home studying. Also open to misinterpretation was this sign in Northern Ireland: "If you find the service in this cafe unsatisfactory, you should see Mr. Wilson the manager."

The correct play in today's deal should be crystal clear to an expert. After a straightforward auction to four hearts, West leads the club king. How should South plan the play?

Declarer has nine top tricks: six hearts, two diamonds and one club. If East has the spade ace, everything will be plain sailing. But is that likely? West made a two-level vulnerable overall. Surely he has the ace.

The next thought is to play three rounds of diamonds, in the hope that they break 3-3 and that West has to win the third round. It's a faint hope against defenders with any acumen.

The only way to benefit from a 3-3 diamond break is to lose a diamond trick. South achieved this by calmly playing a low club from the dummy at trick one.

The second trick was won with dummy's club ace. South discarding a low diamond. Two top trumps were cashed in hand. Declarer continued with the diamond ace, a diamond to the king and a diamond ruff.
