Anti-drug bill nears completion

WASHINGTON — House and Senate negotiators, making "great progress on some of the more thorny issues," neared final agreement today on the contents of their election-year anti-drug legislation.

After meeting into the night before calling it quits to return to work this morning, the negotiators expressed hope that they could present a resolution of differences between earlier versions approved by the House and Senate, thus clearing the way for a final vote Friday.

Tyson claims 'a knockout'

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson's lawyers have claimed "a knockout" after his wife Robin Givens announced she is throwing in the towel on her multimillion-dollar marriage, all in the name of protecting the boxer.

Hopefully, she'll live up to her word. Tyson's lawyer, Howard Weitzman, said in Los Angeles Wednesday, "We beat her down to nothing."

Givens announced on Wednesday she will grant her husband of eight months a divorce and not seek any money from him.

Judge killed in chambers

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A judge shot to death in her chambers, allegedly by her estranged husband, a 21-year police veteran, apparently had no warning of trouble until faced with the drawn gun that killed her.

District Judge Carol Irons pushed a panic button Wednesday in her chambers in the Hall of Justice and told police who called that her husband had drawn his gun and was holding it to her head. Moments later, three officers found Irons, 40, stumbling out of the office clutching her throat and crying, "Please help me."

Irons died in her courtroom, where she was taken by officers who had rushed to help her, said Police Chief William Haggarty.

An arraignment on an open murder charge was expected today for Clarence Ratliff, 51, a former detective recently assigned to night patrol.

Dodgers just one game away

OAKLAND — The Los Angeles Dodgers will send their Henderson to the mound tonight in Game 5 of the World Series, needing just one more win to complete a Cinderella season for Tommy Lasorda.

L.A., using a makeshift lineup after injuries to key players such as Mike Marshall, Kirk Gibson and Mike Scioscia, rode the pitching of starter Tim Lincecum and ace reliever Jay Howell to a 4-1 victory over Oakland in Game 4 Wednesday.

If the Athletics come away with the victory tonight, the scene will shift to Chavez Ravine in Los Angeles for games six and seven, if necessary, on Saturday and Sunday.

Gunman takes own life to end five-hour standoff with police

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — An accused rapist who held police and the Seminole County SWAT team at bay for five hours before fatally wounding himself in the head Wednesday didn't confront a woman who was hiding from him in the office complex where he was hiding.

Dead is Kevin Enright, 18, of 344 Clemson St., rural Altamonte Springs. At about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday, police said, Enright, who was holed up in the Plaza North Office Complex, 375 Douglas Ave., fired a single shot from a .357 magnum handgun into his forehead.

Rescued an hour earlier from her hiding place under a desk at Lease America Corp. was Colleen Fahey, 29, of Longwood.

Seminole County SWAT Commander Marty Lafrusciano said.

Lake Mary to hear Amoco Oil request

By SANDRA BOUCHAMINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — A land use request from Amoco Oil Company, which was denied by the city's Planning and Zoning Board on Oct. 11, is scheduled to be heard by city commissioners at their regular meeting at 7 p.m. tonight. The commission will meet in its chambers at the old city hall at 138 North Country Club Road.

The oil company has requested conditional use for a service station and convenience store at 702 Lake Mary Blvd., an approximately one-acre, 30-foot zoned C-1 Commercial and P-1 Professional office.

The company also has asked for a subdivision with a variance to create a lot with less than 300 linear feet fronting an arterial roadway with an additional access point.

The planning commission told Gene Duffy of Duffy & Harvey

Planning and Zoning Consultants, the Amoco Oil representative, that the conditional use cannot be granted because the subdivision does not meet the requirements of the Land Development Code.

The code states that under Street System Regulations, parcels shall not be created with less than 300 linear feet frontage unless access is gained through existing joint accesses.

Jim Edmundo, chairman of the planning board, said the board denied the subdivision request because it creates a substandard lot with curbs cuts being a 100-foot apart.

Amoco Oil Company has a contract to buy the land located on the north side of Lake Mary Boulevard between Barnett Bank and a 7-Eleven convenience store from Nicholas J. Patis. Patis does not want to sell the entire two-acre site, but does Amoco intend to buy additional

NASA says shuttle leak posed no danger to crew

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — One of the shuttle Discovery's three liquid-fueled main engines developed a small leak on its high-pressure combustion chamber during the first post-Challenger flight, but officials said the ship and its crew were never in any danger.

The leak, located where the engine's 9-foot-long nozzle attaches to the combustion chamber of main engine No. 1, was found during routine checks after Discovery's landing Oct. 3 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., officials said Wednesday.

Discovery blasted off Sept. 29, and it was not immediately clear if the leak developed during the climb to orbit or after the engines shut down in space 8 1/2 minutes after blastoff.

Officials said similar leaks have been observed after previous engine firings and that a small amount of leakage is acceptable. But an engineer familiar with the trouble involving engine No. 1 aboard Discovery said it was probable that the combustion chamber would be ruined until for future flights.

That would require NASA to rebuild the engine with a new combustion chamber, a procedure that could take more than a month and a half in an already tight processing schedule.

Even so, officials said Discovery and its five-man crew were never in any danger and that the

Traveling clown killed in bike mishap

JACKSONVILLE — Douglas Hood, who bicycled across the country as "Rags McBobo" and dreamed of working beneath the Ringling Brothers big top as a clown, has been killed in a traffic accident.

Hood, 23, of Jacksonville, was riding his bike and wearing a radio headset when he was struck by a car while crossing an intersection Tuesday in Ponte Vedra Beach, state police said.

Hood was pronounced dead at University Hospital after the accident. Officials said he was holding a scrapbook filled with mementos of his cross-country tour last year when he was hit by a car driven by Anna McHenry, 79.

It is illegal in Florida to wear headsets while riding a bike. Hood said he had encountered good and bad as he road down isolated highways and through big cities dressed in his tattered fisherman's hat, floppy shoes and bermuda shorts.

Defendant to abide by "Son of Sam" law

TALLAHASSEE — A woman convicted of child abuse for allowing her 17-year-old daughter to work as a nude dancer has agreed to abide by Florida's "Son of Sam" law, Attorney General Robert Butterworth said Monday.

"The defendant has agreed all such income will go into a state trust fund until her obligations under the statute are met," Butterworth said in announcing the agreement with Theresa Jackson.

Jackson, 41, was convicted Oct. 30, 1987, of child abuse, forgery and procuring sexual performance by a child after her 17-year-old daughter Tina Mancini, committed suicide in 1986.

She was sentenced to a year in prison and two years' probation after her conviction. Prosecutors said Jackson encouraged the girl to work as a nude dancer, an event that contributed to her suicide.

Florida's "Son of Sam" law is patterned after a New York statute that was passed to keep a serial killer from profiting from his crimes by selling the publication, broadcast or film rights to his story.

Alcohol still top campus problem

TALLAHASSEE — Alcohol consumption remains the leading substance abuse problem on Florida's university and college campuses, Chancellor Charlie Reed said Wednesday, outdistancing the use of illegal drugs by a 9-1 margin.

University police have clamped down on campus drinking — particularly among underage students — in recent months. Students have responded to that crackdown, Reed said, by moving their parties off campus.

The crackdown has not resulted in more drunken students driving because those students would have been driving to and from on-campus parties anyway, Reed said.

"Alcohol continues to be the single biggest problem we have on our campuses," he said. "What we need to do is send a hard signal — if you're not 21 in this state, you're not eligible to drink."

Triple murderer gets three life sentences

PORT ST. JOE — A judge who said convicted triple-murderer Clyde M. Melvin had turned the Gulf County courthouse "into a shooting gallery" last year sentenced him to three life terms Wednesday.

The judge's sentencing agrees with a jury's recommendation not to execute him in Florida's electric chair.

An Escambia County Circuit Court jury convicted Melvin, a security guard at the St. Joe Forest Products paper mill, Sept. 21 of killing three people during a hearing July 28, 1978, in the same courthouse where he was sentenced.

Presiding Judge Carl Harper ruled that Melvin, 63, must serve at least 25 years in prison before being considered for parole in the first-degree murder of Circuit Judge Wilson Lamar Bailey, who was shot in his chambers during a hearing on post-divorce alimony matters.

Judge stays murderer's execution

CLEARWATER — A stay of execution has been issued for Nathaniel Jackson, 25, who was scheduled to die in Florida's electric chair Oct. 26 for the murder of a St. Petersburg man during a robbery.

Jackson and his brother, Clinton Jackson, were sentenced to death for the death of Herbert Phillibert during a robbery of his hardware store Jan. 17, 1984.

Pinellas Circuit Judge Robert Beach granted a stay Tuesday to give him time to review the case after Jackson's attorneys argued he had been poorly represented at trial and may be mentally retarded.

The U.S. Supreme Court has pending before it a case on whether mentally retarded people can be executed.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Drug agents run into mountain lions

United Press International

FORT MYERS — Law enforcement officers ran into unexpected trouble when they arrested a Collier County couple on drug trafficking charges — a pair of adult mountain lions roaming freely in the house.

State wildlife officers subdued the pair, but not before the larger one knocked down an officer, his claws ripping through the officer's bullet-proof vest, tearing his shirt to threads and leaving minor scratch wounds on his chest.

Lt. Jim Huffstodt of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission said Wednesday the incident occurred Tuesday at the heavily guarded home of Warren and Linda Stewart at Golden Gate Estates, just north of Alligator Alley six miles east of Naples.

Huffstodt said the house was surrounded by an 8-foot fence topped by electrical barbed wire. He said the Stewarts, who own the Goodland Fish House Restaurant in Goodland, a small fishing village at the northern end of Florida's Ten Thousand Islands chain on the Gulf of Mexico, were known to have two mountain lions. The couple had permits to keep the animals which wildlife officers had inspected in the past.

He said plans called for wildlife officers and U.S. Customs agents to wait for Stewart to leave to go to the store as he normally did, then wildlife officers would gain access to the property on the pretext of checking the lion. Customs agents then planned to arrest Mrs. Stewart, while other agents arrested her husband on federal indictments charging marijuana smuggling.

When Stewart failed to leave the house, three customs agents donned wildlife officer jackets and joined Lt. John West, who had been to the house several times to check the animals, and two other officers.

"Mrs. Stewart was in the yard and John told her the other men were auxiliary officers, and because they were in the area he thought he would check the cats and give them a chance to see them," Huffstodt said.

He said Mrs. Stewart unlocked the gate and had her husband come out to talk about the cats. Customs agents arrested both of them.

Huffstodt said West was surprised to find four adult mountain lions in cages instead of the two he expected. When he asked Mrs. Stewart if there were any others, she told him there were two cubs running free in the house.

Wildlife officers with "catch-poles" went into the house. When they reached a back bedroom and opened the door, they found two adult mountain lions weighing 100 and 150 pounds.

Officers found about a dozen other weapons in the house.

Lawyer: Man framed in children's murders

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Mark Lane, a criminal lawyer turned author, said Wednesday he had evidence suppressed by officials who wanted to "frame" James Richardson for the 1967 poisoning deaths of his seven children.

"This is a deliberate plan to frame an innocent man," Lane said in a news conference after turning over more than 950 pages of documents to Gov. Bob Martinez, whom Lane has asked to review the case.

"This is one of the greatest acts of injustice in the history of this country," Lane said. Although judges and juries can make mistakes, "these are not mistakes. This is a deliberate plan to frame an innocent man."

Lane said former DeSoto County Sheriff Frank Cline suppressed evidence that might have implicated a neighbor, Beale Reese, in the murders because he was close to her family.

He also alleged State Attorney Frank Schaub participated in the plot.

"If he said that, I say he's a liar," said Cline, who was defeated in a 1980 re-election bid. "His accusations are lies, innuendo, anything to make a buck."

Schaub was not available for comment.

Lane wrote a book in 1970 called "Arcadia" about the case, which he called an example of "lynch justice." He said he plans to write a television screenplay if the backers for the project can be found.

"I would hope I make a lot of money and I hope the whole state and whole world hears about this case," said Lane, best known for his conspiracy theories in the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

"There's not one word, not one clue, not one shred of evidence which points to Richardson's guilt when you go through that file," Lane said.

Richardson was convicted of poisoning his seven children with parathion, a powerful insecticide. The poison was mixed with their breakfast on Oct. 25, 1967 in a meal served by Reese.

According to Lane, Reese had threatened to "destroy" the family.

Richardson was sentenced to die, but the sentence later was reduced to life in prison.

Peter Dunbar, general counsel to Martinez, said the evidence would be reviewed without regard to Lane's celebrity status.

"We're treating this like all the other (such requests) that come in. We do a systematic analysis and see if anything else is needed," Dunbar said.

Lane also represented the Rev. Jim Jones, founder of the People's Temple, and escaped the massacre of Jones' followers in Guyana in 1978.

Lane said the 12-inch stack of documents he turned over to the governor's office were stolen from the state attorney's office in Arcadia nine years ago and given to him recently.

The documents show the authorities knew or should have known their case against Richardson was flawed, Lane said.

The state alleged the murders were committed so Richardson could collect $500 each in life insurance policies taken out on the children the night before their deaths.

But an insurance agent told investigators the policy was not finalized because Richardson lacked the money to pay

Baby Keith born; Hurricane Joan stalls off Costa Rica

United Press International

MIAMI — A tropical depression, the 18th of the 1988 Atlantic hurricane season, formed Wednesday on the heels of hurricane Joan in the southern Caribbean, the National Hurricane Center reported.

At 6 p.m. EDT, the de-pression's center was near latitude 13.5 north, longitude 72.5 west, about 90 miles northwest of Colombia. Maximum winds were about 35 mph and it was stationary, although it was expected to begin drifting west later in the day. Little change in strength was expected until late Thursday.

The depression formed just 500 miles east of Joan, but there was no connection between the two tropical systems, said Brian Maher, a weather specialist at the hurricane center.

"The main thing is that it is unusual — very unusual — to have two storms so far south this close together," Maher said. "There have been a few cases where we have had storms this close together further north, but to have a hurricane and a depression this far south definitely is out of the ordinary."

Hurricane Joan was situated near latitude 11.2 north, longitude 79.7 and is stationary near the outer islands of Costa Rica. Highest sustained winds are 115 mph and it is expected to resume a westerly direction later today.

Suit threatened to block restart of nuclear reactors

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Environmentalists and lawmakers alarmed by safety lapses are demanding that the Energy Department address concerns at federal nuclear weapons reactors before proceeding with plans to restart them in December.

A dozen members of Congress have written a bipartisan letter to President Reagan seeking a departmental report within 90 days on efforts to improve management of the 90-year-old reactors at the Savannah River Plant in South Carolina, which produce radioactive tritium and plutonium for U.S. weapons.

As the letter was made public Wednesday, attorneys for the Natural Resources Defense Council went further by warning they will go to court to block any restart unless the department agrees by Nov. 11 to prepare an environmental impact statement on the three reactors plagued by a history of trouble.

"The reactors will remain shut down until the department proves to the American public that they are safe," vowed Dan Reicher, the policy group's senior project attorney.

Will Callicott, an Energy Department spokesman, responded by saying the agency's position is that an environmental impact statement is not required for a restart. In his words, "We do not think restart constitutes a major federal action (affecting the environment) as defined under federal law."

Asked if the department was refusing to prepare a study, however, officials said no final decision had been made. And in response to the congressional letter, Callicott said lawmakers would be kept "well apprised" of action.

North Korea: U.S. must withdraw troops to make summit possible

United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — North Korea said U.S. troops should be withdrawn from South Korea before the leaders of the divided peninsula hold a summit meeting to discuss proposed non-aggression and reunification pacts.

Addressing the U.N. General Assembly on Wednesday, North Korean First Deputy Foreign Minister Kang Sok Ju responded to a proposal made a day earlier before the same body by South Korean President Roh Tae Woo, who called for reunification talks with his northern counterpart, Kim Il Sung.

Roh wound up two days of meetings in New York and flew to Washington for a meeting today with President Reagan at the White House.

Responding to Roh's overture, Kang told the General Assembly that his country would welcome a visit by the "highest authority" in South Korea but demanded the removal of "foreign troops wearing the helmets of U.N. forces."

About 40,000 U.S. troops have been stationed in South Korea since the 1950-53 Korean conflict. The United States also commands U.N. peace-keeping troops along the Demilitarized Zone dividing the volatile Korean peninsula.

Kang said the foreign military presence in the South was "spoiling the atmosphere of reconciliation" and suggested high-level talks on political and military issues be held prior to any summit between Roh and Kim in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Kang told United Press International Wednesday that at any summit Roh must have the authority to discuss "fundamental matters," which he described as obstacles to reunification.

"Yes, it is possible," Kang said when asked if the two Korean leaders could meet to resolve the 40-year-old division of the peninsula. "He should have the ability to discuss these matters."

Richards files for commission seat

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Storm Richards, 1804 Maple Ave., filed qualification papers Wednesday for election to the Sanford City Commission from the Second District.

Richards, 38, is employed by Greiner Engineering in Orlando specializing in environmental and transportation planning, land development and development feasibility studies.

His parents, John L. and Sally Richards, moved to Sanford in 1953 when his father was with the Navy, and he was educated in Seminole schools. He received B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Florida, and received his Ph.D. there in 1983.

His Ph.D. dissertation was written on development in the rural-urban fringe areas of Seminole County.

Richards said his expertise and experience in planning will be a valuable asset on the city commission. "I want to run on my qualifications as a planner with expertise in environmental and transportation issues," he said. "As more development occurs in and around Sanford, these issues are going to be more and more important."

One of his priorities, if elected, would be to improve relations between the city and county, he said. Richards served as a planner for the county a few years ago and has dealt with county officials many times in his present job. "I have a good relationship with county officials and staff and think I could improve relations," he said. "That is one of the main reasons I am running."

Richards' background includes planning for the city of Gainesville, for the Suwannee River Water Management District, being comprehensive and transportation planner for the city of Ocala, and land use analyst for the Office of Navajo Land Development in Window Rock, Ariz.

He served as senior planner for Seminole County in 1982-83, and was deputy executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority when it was first organized.

Richards is married to Jeanne Fillman-Richards, who is completing her Ph.D. at the University of Florida in the same field her husband earned his in. The couple has one child.

The district 2 seat is presently held by Bob Thomas, who filed earlier this week to run for a second term.

Storm Richards has filed qualification papers for the second district City Commission seat in Sanford.

Barge heads toward trapped whales

United Press International

BARROW, Alaska — Experts mounting an unprecedented effort to rescue three California gray whales trapped nearly two weeks in the pack ice off northern Alaska said they were hopeful the giant mammals could be saved.

The rescue operation was scheduled to resume at daybreak today with Alaska's biggest helicopter flying out to a huge icebreaking barge that it began towing out of the giant oil complex at Prudhoe Bay on Wednesday on the first and often-delayed leg of the 200-mile trip to where the whales are trapped.

The oil company barge — designed to hover off the ice and break it up into slush with 185 tons of downward force generated by its 8,000 horsepower diesel engines — made only about 5 miles on Wednesday.

Officials said it has another extremely slow 5 miles to go before it clears the harbor area and makes the Beaufort Sea, where it can reach speeds that could get it to Barrow in a day.

National Guard spokeswoman Sheryl Deveau said the toughest part of the trip was that first 10 miles, a shallow area with an uneven sandy bottom and a covering of "brittle old ice."

"We feel very positive we're going to get through it," she said.

The whales were trapped beneath two openings in the shifting arctic ice that surrounded them before they could leave the rich northern feeding grounds and begin their annual migration south to the warm Pacific waters off Baja California, Mexico.

Despite nearly two weeks of frustrating imprisonment, and the pain of constantly banging their heads against the jagged pack ice as they search for their breathing holes in the dark of long arctic night, the whales appeared in good condition, said Ron Morris, coordinator for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration fisheries service.

"They still look quite vigorous," Morris said. "There has been a change for the good in their behavior and the way they are resting."

Local residents used chainsaws and picks to chop two new breathing holes for the whales late Tuesday and volunteers widened them and two original openings Wednesday.

But the animals seemingly were reluctant to swim the 100 yards to the new holes, preferring the relative safety of the ones where they have been sticking their bloody snouts up for air every few minutes since they became trapped.

At least one whale was seen in one of the new holes Wednesday, but the holes were closing up because the whales were not using them enough to keep them from freezing over in the sub-zero temperatures off the northernmost point in the United States.

A pump was being used to stir up the water and keep the holes from freezing.

Flights over the area have discovered open water channels in the ice 5 miles west of the trapped whales. But 5 miles is too far for the air-breathing mammals to travel under ice on one breath. The whales cannot go longer than four or five minutes without taking a breath.

Dr. Thomas Albert, a marine biologist, said he was concerned that even if the barge succeeds in creating a relatively ice-free channel to open water that the whales may not use it out of fear of leaving their relatively safe situation.

The rescue effort brought together an unusual alliance of military and civilian authorities, oil companies, whale hunters and environmentalists such as Greenpeace who have often been at odds with those who are now helping them save the whales.

Calls have come in from around the world suggesting ways to free the whales, which do not have to be fed because they have been feeding for months in order to build up a large layer of blubber that provides the energy needed to make the long trip south.

Lax federal action cited in bank failures

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Despite scores of bank and thrift industry failures, the government has failed to do enough against a rise in insider theft and abuse in the nation's financial institutions, congressional investigators say.

More federal examiners are needed to detect corrupt practices and prosecutors must put greater emphasis on convicting and punishing the guilty, according to the House Committee on Government Operations.

The committee released conclusions of a 22-month investigation Wednesday, declaring: "The lack of eventual prosecutions and the imposition of often lenient sentences ... constitute the greatest single impediment to deterring criminal behavior in the banking and thrift industry."

Stating the more obvious, the committee found greed "is the single greatest motivating cause of insider abuse" and noted a 1987 FBI report on white-collar crime that said in part:

"Many industry officials commented that employees coming into banking today have a declining sense of integrity and honesty. ... Deregulation and general instability of the (savings and loan) industry have allowed a criminal element to gain ownership or some degree of control in many institutions."

Federal figures show that insiders at banks and savings and loans, often in cahoots with outside borrowers, steal untold tens of millions of dollars each year through a host of scams, most involving bogus loans and phony land deals.

That was a leading factor in one-third of the 550 bank and savings and loan collapses during the last three years, costing tens of billions of dollars in federal insurance and shaking public confidence in the financial institutions, the committee said.

The panel's report drew immediate protest from William O'Connell, president of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, a trade group of 3,200 thrifts.

In 1984, Congress issued a similar study on banks and thrifts that resulted in a wave of reform, including tougher criminal laws.

Budget interest keeps going up

To understand how debilitating the $2 trillion national debt has become, consider that the interest payments alone are swallowing up a larger percentage of the budget each year and now even exceed the annual deficit of $150 billion. In other words, if Washington had not gone on the borrowing binge of the 1980s, this year's budget would be in balance because the Treasury Department would have no huge interest payments to make.

Like a chronic spendthrift who sinks deeper and deeper by borrowing new money to pay the interest on old loans, thereby raising his total debt burden still more, the treasury faces a steadily rising interest bill into the 1990s.

Already, 14 cents of every federal dollar is spent simply to cover interest on the debt. This compares to about 7 cents spent on interest costs in the mid-1970s.

But Congressional Budget Office analysts project that this year's interest tab of $150 billion will increase to around $200 billion five years hence. This is because Washington continues to rack up big deficits year after year, pushing the total debt from its current level of $2 trillion to $2.8 trillion in 1993, according to CBO estimates.

Thus, federal spending on everything from aircraft carriers to food stamps will be squeezed increasingly by the "uncontrollable" costs of the national debt. Future presidents and Congresses will operate in a fiscal straitjacket because of the obligations being placed on them today.

The debt burden will not improve substantially until the federal budget is balanced. Under the Gramm-Rudman act, the deficit will not reach zero until 1993 — assuming Congress sticks to the targets established by the law. Assuming otherwise, this is a big assumption, however, because lawmakers and the administration have already made all of the easy spending cuts; most of what remains are deemed untouchable, such as Social Security and other entitlement programs.

This situation will demand strong leadership from the next president in order to jar Washington out of its fiddle-as-Rome-burns approach to the debt.

But neither George Bush nor Michael Dukakis has offered a credible plan to surmount the deficit. The Democratic presidential nominee says he would crack down on tax cheats, as though the deficit were merely a problem of poor law enforcement, and he demagogically accuses the Republicans of plotting to slash Social Security. Vice President Bush would adopt a "flexible freeze" on spending, without raising taxes, but has declined to specify what programs he would cut to achieve his goal.

Meantime, the debt monster continues to consume a larger share of America's resources and threatens to devour those of the next generation.

Is the election Bentsen vs. Dukakis?

If this year's presidential election were between Lloyd Bentsen and Dan Quayle, the Republicans, at this point, would have cause for concern.

In their debate in Omaha, Neb., on Oct. 5, Bentsen's seniority, suavely and wit told heavily in his favor. Quayle, clearly under instructions to look serious and stress his own experience, acquitted himself honorably. He certainly didn't come across as irresponsible or uninformed, and he probably managed to assure most voters who are leaning to Bush that he is no disgrace to the ticket.

But that's not quite the same thing as saying that he looked or acted as "presidential" as Lloyd Bentsen. Moreover, the one "sound-bite" of the evening — the moment that is guaranteed to be replayed and remembered forever — was Bentsen's "You're no Jack Kennedy." The Democrats in the Omaha audience roared with delight at that zinger.

The problem, though, from the Democrats' standpoint, is that the presidential election this year isn't between Bentsen and Quayle. It's between Bush and Dukakis. And there is a real possibility, it seems to me, that Bentsen will hereafter be perceived by many Americans as towering not only over Quayle but over his own running mate.

Let's face it, Michael Dukakis is, from a crudely political standpoint, deficient in almost every attribute that makes Lloyd Bentsen attractive. He is shorter, and just generally less "presidential" in his demeanor. He has had much less experience in almost every category relevant to the presidency. He is, moreover, far to the left of Bentsen on practically every issue before the voters this year — a fact so damaging that Dukakis has done his strenuous best to conceal it altogether.

Putting Lloyd Bentsen before a national television audience (as distinguished from using him in states, such as Texas, where he has special strengths) merely emphasizes how many of his attractive qualities Dukakis lacks.

For the presidency, after all, is the real issue this November. It is altogether proper to give due attention to the selection of the man who will be "one heartbeat away from the Oval Office"; but we cannot afford to forget whose heart will, in all likelihood, be beating in that Oval Office. And if the Democrats win, it won't be Lloyd Bentsen's; it will be Michael Dukakis'.

Dukakis, incidentally, isn't the first presidential candidate to risk being overshadowed by his running mate. In 1968 many people came to the conclusion that the Democratic vice presidential candidate, Senator Edmund Muskie, was an all-around better man than the party's presidential candidate, Hubert Humphrey. One memorable cartoon of the day showed the four candidates as boxers, weighing in before the big bout. Muskie, lined up behind Humphrey, was depicted as a good 3 feet taller.

Did this help Humphrey? Did the voters credit him with being able to pick a good running mate? We'll never know — but Nixon won the election.

Whatever its shortcomings, the Bush-Quayle ticket at least has its priorities in the right order. The presidential candidate is taller, older, more experienced and warmer than the vice presidential candidate. Over in the Democratic camp, precisely the reverse is true.

Dukakis' smugness shows

LOS ANGELES—Two years ago this month, John Sasso, the able political handler of Michael S. Dukakis, was sitting at lunch in Boston's venerable Locke Ober restaurant, running down the pluses and minuses of a possible presidential candidacy by the governor of Massachusetts.

Sasso talked about Dukakis' growing national reputation as an innovative state executive who was dealing with the challenges of a changing economy and finding "consensus" solutions to such nagging problems as job retraining and welfare reform.

Such an approach, he said, could translate to the national level. But there were real questions, he conceded, whether Dukakis could compete effectively against other Democratic contenders while holding down his job as governor. And no one could judge in advance, he said, how voters across the country would react in the name "Dukakis" or the notion of having a second-generation Greek immigrant's son with a Jewish wife as the President and First Lady.

This reporter suggested there might be another problem, bigger than any of those. With so much of the Democratic Party leadership saying it needed to look southward and a bit rightward to regain the support of lost Reagan Democrats, the largest barrier might be the label "Massachusetts liberal Democrat." Sasso demurred. Ideology was not a big problem, he said, and Dukakis was very much in the mold of the Democrats who were running state governments all across the land, including the Deep South and Mountain States where recent Democratic presidential candidates had been routed.

That has proved to be true in one sense—and fatally wrong in another. Dukakis is mainstream in his program proposals. Those he has put forward on college loans, housing and health care are likely to be passed by a Democratic Congress in the next four years. Most would be signed by George Bush if he becomes President, with the same enthusiasm President Reagan showed last week in signing a welfare reform bill which also bore the imprint of Dukakis' thinking. They are creative solutions to real problems.

But at the level of symbols and values, Bush has effectively made the case that Dukakis is outside the mainstream. And that, as much as the winning personality of the Vice President displayed in the final debate here last night, is why he stands on the verge of victory in the 1988 presidential race.

By this year, Sasso knew that the Republicans would attempt to paint Dukakis in alien colors on the emotional issues of God, flag and country. After Dukakis had clinched the Democratic nomination, but before the Democratic convention, at a time when smugness pervaded the Dukakis headquarters in Boston, Sasso told me he was afraid "there are hard times coming." He was right, but he was in exile at the time for his mistake of judgment on the "Biden tapes" incident.

By the time Sasso was recalled to duty, the Bush campaign had done a number on Dukakis, using symbolic issues such as his veto of a Pledge of Allegiance bill, prison furlough program and membership in the American Civil Liberties Union to drive a wedge between him and most voters. The Dukakis campaign's failure to anticipate or answer that attack may well have cost the Democrats their best chance of regaining the White House.

Why was Dukakis so vulnerable to such an attack? There are at least three reasons. First, he is genuinely uncomfortable showing private emotions on the public stage. A man who shows not the flicker of shock or anger at a truly brutal question about the hypothetical rape and murder of his wife is not a man who can convey the feelings he undoubtedly has about the flag, country or Creator.

Second, on some values questions Dukakis is in fact outside the mainstream. The political culture of Massachusetts is as far left of center as the political culture of Reagan's circle of wealthy Californians is to the right. The difference is that Reagan always has known he had to defend his world view, while Dukakis seemed sublimely confident people would just accept his as correct. That has come across to people as arrogant—and they may not be wrong.

Finally, the Democratic Party nominating process encourages the tendencies of candidates such as Dukakis to give full vent to their liberal impulses and values, while understating or concealing the conservative instincts they may possess, as Dukakis certainly does.

Today, there are few Democratic politicians who would deny that their ticket would be stronger if Lloyd Bentsen of Texas were on top and Dukakis were his running mate. But the Bentsens of the Democratic Party cannot compete effectively in the current nominating system, as the senator discovered when he tried in 1976.

The nursing shortage

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (NEA) — Even though the revelation came more than a decade ago, Romale Fennell still remembers the incident that forced her to recognize how abysmally bad the salaries are for her and other nurses.

It occurred during a 1975 trip to a supermarket. "I had been working as a professional nurse for five years and I discovered that this check-out person was making more than I was," she says with more than a trace of bitterness.

Dee Christensen, also a hospital nurse here, has another complaint. "Either you work all your life on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift or you're constantly rotating between shifts," she says.

"I work alternate weekends and seven out of 10 holidays during the year," adds the nursing veteran of 23 years. "Nurses don't lead normal lives."

Poor compensation and insensitive scheduling are only two of the grievances held by those already engaged in nursing and contributing to the reluctance to enter the profession among those considering career alternatives. As a result, the nation now faces a severe shortage of nurses.

That lack of nurses "is real, widespread and of significant magnitude," concludes a report recently issued by the 25-member Commission on Nursing established by the federal government's Department and Health and Human Service.

Hospitals, which employ 64 percent of all nurses, have been most seriously affected. The commission notes that "30 percent of hospitals in urban setting and 15 percent of rural hospitals report that they were forced to close beds temporarily in 1987 due to the nurse shortage."

But the shortage also adversely affects nursing homes, which employ 8 percent of all nurses; community public health facilities, where another 7 percent of all nurses work; and hospices, clinics, long-term care centers and other facilities that account for the remaining 17 percent of the nursing work force.

Even though an increasing number of men are entering the field, 97 percent of all nurses are women. This is significant because the current crisis is directly related to society's traditional devaluation of women's work and to the struggle against sex discrimination.

"When I graduated from high school, there were few options open to young women — teaching, nursing, getting married and, if you were Catholic, being a nun," notes Norma Miller, a nurse in the intensive care unit of a Council Bluffs hospital.

As with most other forms of "women's work," nursing long has been ill-compensated, especially in terms of salary increases for those with experience and seniority.

The average starting salary for nurses, accountants and computer programmers is about $21,000 per year. But the average maximum for nurses is only slightly more than $29,000, compared with almost $43,000 for computer programmers and $61,500 for accountants.

That compression of the wage scale is the most important issue for many current and potential nurses who reach the peak of earning power and professional status within five to 10 years after starting in the profession.

Indeed, many hospitals and physicians long encouraged that salary progression, viewing nurses as disposable.

Lack of nurses is real, widespread and of significant magnitude.

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly higher today in light trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 22.58 Wednesday, was up 4.06 to 2141.36 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 398-331 among the 1,186 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,697,000 shares.

A surge in oil prices Wednesday helped send stock prices sharply lower in active trading as Wall Street marked the first anniversary of its worst collapse ever by retreating from its day-old recovery high.

"First, the anniversary of last year's collapse was a non-event. It's insane to suggest otherwise," said Ralph Bloch, chief market analyst at Raymond, James & Associates in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"The story of this session was the price of oil exploding and the negative impact that had on the bond market because of inflationary fears," Bloch said.

Crude oil prices soared in hectic trading amid signs that two OPEC committees meeting in Madrid would agree to curtail the cartel's production levels.

West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for immediate delivery, jumped 76 cents to $15.40 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Bloch also blamed part of the pullback on futures-related selling and some early-session profit taking.

Dollar opens mixed; gold slightly higher

United Press International

The dollar was mixed in light trading today on major foreign currency markets after closing higher in Tokyo. The price of gold made a slight gain.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar strengthened against the Japanese yen, closing 0.30 yen higher at 127.15 yen in what traders described as calm trading.

In Europe, the dollar opened higher in Frankfurt at 1.8085 West German marks, up from 1.803 on Wednesday.

In Paris, the dollar began the day at 6.178 French francs, up slightly from 6.1745.

Elsewhere, the dollar was lower. It began trading in Zurich at 1.5275 Swiss francs, down from 1.5305, in Brussels at 38.24 Belgian francs, down from 38.30 and in Milan at 1,345.50 lire, down from 1,347.

In London the pound opened at $1.7595 compared with $1.7505.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mostly lower against key foreign currencies in quiet trading.

Higher mortgage rates forecast

United Press International

ORLANDO — Traditional home mortgage interest rates will rise by up to three-quarters of a percentage point over the next six months, the chief economist for the National Association of Realtors said Wednesday.

"There's a lot of debt out there. That's the No. 1 reason. And second, the Fed (Federal Reserve Board) is leaning against all the markets trying to slow growth and keep inflation down," said John Tuccillo, a former economist for National Council of Savings Institutions.

Tuccillo predicted a "rolling hill" in which 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages will increase one-half to three-fourths of a percent into the first quarter of 1989 before gradually settling down again to current levels.

In an interview on the anniversary of "Black Monday," Tuccillo said last October's stock market collapse had little effect on the nation's housing market other than to briefly slow sales while buyers watched for economic fallout.

Committee to discuss corner project

SANFORD — Sanford's Planning and Zoning Commission will discuss a planned development at the corner of Brinson and Celery avenues in the east part of the city tonight, as well as applications for permits for a gas station and duplex.

A pre-application conference is scheduled with America Geuka, trustee for developers of a planned unit development at the southwest corner of the intersection. The development will include multi-family and single family residences and a strip commercial area.

The commission will also consider a request from Shell Oil Co. for conditional use of property at the northeast corner of Highway 17-92 and the extension of Lake Mary Boulevard which is now under construction. The company plans to build a self-service gasoline pump island on the property.

Also to be considered are a request from Central Baptist Church for conditional use of property it owns at 1300 Park Ave. so the present house on the property can be used as a single family residence, even though the property is zoned for commercial use; a request from Joe T. Ruessell for conditional use of two lots on the west side of Oak Avenue between W. Sixth and Seventh streets for the location of a duplex.

problem is not expected to have any impact on Discovery's next flight, planned for Feb. 18, 1989, or on the launch of the shuttle Atlantis around Nov. 28 on the second post-Challenger mission.

The 9.4-foot-long engine nozzle is a bell-shaped extension that is attached to the combustion chamber where hydrogen and oxygen are burned to produce thrust.

Each powerplant, built by Rocketdyne, costs about $40 million. They are considered the most advanced liquid-fueled rocket engines ever constructed. The engine in question, serial No. 2019, was the only one of Discovery's three hydrogen-fueled engines with previous flight experience.

Before launch with Discovery, engine No. 2019 had been used for three shuttle flights dating back to the launch of Columbia on the ninth shuttle mission in November 1983. In addition, the engine was fired during an unmanned test run before the shuttle Atlantis's maiden flight in late 1985.

"There is a leak," NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone said. "There is a weld between the main combustion chamber and the engine nozzle and that's where the leak is.

"We're planning on taking off all three of the engines as part of our turn-around activities for (Discovery's) next flight," Malone said. "We'll be doing our post-flight inspections and we'll be replacing several components."

The leak is located in a seal on a flange where copper and nickel plating are joined together.

land it does not need, according to officials. This is what necessitates the subdivision, Talmadge said.

"They would be creating their own hardship. They plan to create two parcels which front on Lake Mary Boulevard, neither of which have required frontage to accommodate the curve cut," Talmadge said.

Two accesses presently exist, one at 7-Eleven and the other one at Barnett Bank. By putting another one in between the two, the accesses would be only 150 feet apart, Talmadge said.

Planner Matthew West said it would meet the requirements only if it utilized the cross access easements on 7-Eleven's property.

Talmadge said the conditional use for the service station and convenience store becomes a moot point because the subdivision was turned down.

Amoco also requested a variance for the western buffer, reducing the width from 25 feet to 10 feet.

"If they don't get the subdivision, they won't have a parcel of land to build on," Jim Talmadge said.

Also at tonight's meeting, Lake Mary commissioners will adopt a resolution to accept subdivision improvements and a maintenance bond for Shell Oil Company.

Shell Oil Company, the developer of Northpoint, a business office complex on Lake Emma Road, completed the required improvements and put up a two-year maintenance bond to insure the work was done to city standards.

Construction cost for the improvements is $973,686.80 including streets, curbs, storm drains and the water system.

The Shell Company bonded itself through United Pacific Insurance for the sum of $97,369 or 10 percent of the contract cost to do the improvements.

Candidates gear toward final joint appearance

United Press International

The presidential campaign's harshness is supposed to take a back seat to some humor tonight when Republican George Bush and Democrat Michael Dukakis head to New York City for their last scheduled joint appearance before Election Day.

On the eve of the event, however, the campaign was mired in its now-familiar negativism as Bush lit into Dukakis's liberal philosophy and the Massachusetts governor blasted the vice president's record toward America's heartland.

Observers will be waiting to see how each man handles his expected speech at tonight's Al Smith Dinner in New York, where the unofficial order of business at the "must" event every four years is a light, self-deprecating address in which the jabs are gentle and the jokes prevail.

The charity dinner, sponsored by the Catholic Archdiocese of New York, comes one week after the second and last presidential debate in which most analysts said Dukakis — now trailing Bush by larger margins in national polls — did an inadequate job of presenting himself as a likable politician.

Tonight's forum, then, should be the Democrat's last chance before Election Day to be seen as besting Bush on the same stage. Gearing up for the event, Dukakis arranged to campaign through nearby Connecticut while Bush stopped in New Jersey and New York.

The agenda was a far cry from that of Wednesday, when Dukakis visited a pig farm in Hull, Ill., in a bid to boost his support among Midwestern farmers.

Answering questions in a satellite "teleconference" beamed to 20 states, the three-term governor promised "a new dawn for rural America" that would provide reasonable farm prices to keep family farms operating.

"The family farm is not only the backbone of American agriculture but it is a very, very important part of what this country is all about," Dukakis declared from a perch on a bale of hay. "Republicans don't understand that. George Bush doesn't understand that."

"George Bush believes the fewer farms, the better," he asserted. "I don't recall a time in this campaign when George Bush has expressed any concern at all about the family farm."

At a later appearance in Quincy, Ill., Dukakis broke from his rural theme to denounce pamphlets distributed by the Republican State Central Committee that attacked him as the candidate of rapists, child molesters and murderers.

"My friends, this is garbage," he protested, holding a pamphlet aloft. "This is not worthy of a presidential campaign. These kinds of lies, of half-truths, have no place in a presidential campaign."

To the north of him in Michigan, however, Bush kept hammering away at what he called his rival's "discredited" liberal viewpoint.

"He himself said a year ago, 'I am a progressive liberal Democrat,' and I remind him of that and he doesn't like it but I'm going to keep on reminding him because the country does not want to move way over," the vice president said at a high school rally in Royal Oak, outside Detroit.

"He's got a terrible problem," Bush maintained. "He can't win unless things get worse and they're not going to get worse unless he's elected."

The Republican spent the day in Michigan with former President Gerald Ford, who represented the state as a House member, and again stressed his record in defense and foreign policy matters over Dukakis's lack of similar experience.

At the same time, President Reagan stumped hard in Ohio for his two-term vice president, contending "the liberal presidential campaign (is) starting to fall apart" but borrowing a phrase from baseball's Yogi Berra to warn the GOP. "It ain't over till it's over."

Reagan's trip to the Buckeye State, which he visited four times in the 1984 campaign, was an effort to put a dent in Dukakis strategy while unveiling an even warmer sales pitch for Bush.

Ohio, with 23 electoral votes, is considered to be leaning Republican but the Democrat's strategists reportedly have pegged it as one of 18 states they need to carry to win the White House. Just two days after Dukakis stumped the state with a message of economic doubt and discontent, Reagan was upbeat in touting job creation during the time he and Bush "have worked side by side."

Bush began the day with news of a poll showing him ahead by 9 percentage points in California.

from his gun. He told police it was an accident. The second shot he fired was the fatal shot, police said.

During the negotiations, police said, Enright wrote three notes to his adoptive mother. Police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said today that Enright's mother, whose name he doesn't know, was at the scene. The notes to her, Hawkins said, indicated that Enright was considering suicide.

Hawkins said police have determined that Enright has in the past been treated for unspecified mental problems. He also indicated to police that he was on probation. Hawkins said police have not determined why he was on probation.

Because the gunman struck at lunch time, police spokesman Charlie Zorbaugh said, the seized building and nearby buildings were not fully occupied. There was no evacuation, but police blockaded Douglas Avenue directly in front of Enright's location. Children at the Rocking Horse Day Care Center, directly across the road, remained at the center until about 3 p.m. when parents arrived to routinely pick them up. The tots were handed over the center's back fence to police, who released the children to parents.

Within about five minutes of Enright fatally wounding himself, rescue workers from the nearby fire station transported him to Florida Hospital-

Altamonte Springs. Within the hour he was pronounced dead. There were no other injuries associated with the siege.

During the five hour period, police blocked Douglas Avenue directly in front of the building. Traffic on the two-lane commercial thoroughfare, which connects state roads 436 and 434 and parallels Interstate 4, was rerouted onto Westmonte Drive and Interstate 4.

Guests at a Days Inn in the blocked area complained because they couldn't go to their motel rooms when they returned from outings. One area resident who calmly walked through the blocked area to a 7-Eleven across from the fire station, was stopped by police as he tried to return home via the same route. A crowd gathered in front of the convenience store to watch and wait for the incident to conclude.

Zorbaugh said the seized, two-story building of brown stone and black glass panels is new, and thus has a low occupancy level. Police didn't have to worry about captive bystanders, other than Fahey. Although police knew from the beginning that Fahey was in the building, they told news media that Enright was alone in the building until Fahey's rescue.

Police issued several "30 second warnings" for an Orlando television station helicopter to vacate the air space above the building just before Enright shot himself.

Iran urges chemical weapons production

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian strongman Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani called on his country's leadership to consider producing chemical weapons as a defense against what he termed Iraqi aggression.

Rafsanjani, in remarks carried Wednesday by the official Islamic Republic News Agency, said thousands of Iranians had died during Iraqi chemical attacks on Iran in the last four years of the Persian Gulf war. He charged the international community had done nothing to prevent Iraq from using the weapons banned under international law.

While acknowledging that the use of chemical weapons was inhuman, Rafsanjani said Iran needed an effective deterrent to prop up its badly bruised defenses against Baghdad.

Clashes kill one, wound four

SIDON, Lebanon — Rival Moslem groups blasted away at each other with mortars, rockets and machine guns early Thursday in a five-hour street battle that left at least one person dead and five others wounded, police said.

The clash between pro-Syrian Shiite Amal militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas erupted around the Palestinian refugee camps of Miyeh Miyeh and Ain El Helweh southeast of the port city of Sidon.

The rival gunmen clashed with mortars, rockets and automatic machine guns along the three-year-old confrontation line, killing one militiaman and wounding four others, police said.

The militiamen ignored several calls for a cease-fire, but the fighting tapered off to occasional sniper fire before ending at sunrise, police said.

Crucial OPEC meeting today

MADRID, Spain — OPEC's chances of halting the plunge in world oil prices rests largely on whether the 13-nation cartel can give a convincing signal that it will reduce current production levels, oil industry analysts say.

Ministers from eight leading members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries were scheduled to meet today in hopes of reaching a consensus on new production quotas, but political divisions within the group may thwart their efforts.

Iraq's refusal to take part in the quota system and the recent free-for-all pumping by OPEC's 12 other members has led to a worldwide glut in crude oil and sent prices diving to a two-year low.

Some analysts have predicted the collapse of the 28-year-old cartel unless it can muster a new show of discipline.

Britain bans IRA broadcast interviews

LONDON — Officials of the British Broadcasting Corp. said a government ban on all radio and television interviews involving spokesmen for outlawed Irish groups sets a "damaging precedent" that will affect reporting on Northern Ireland.

But the ban, announced Wednesday by Home Secretary Douglas Hurd at the opening of the fall session of Parliament, was defended by the government as a way of depriving the "oxygen of publicity" to the Irish Republican Army and similar groups.

A government spokesman said he was confident networks would not violate the ban that applied only to broadcast interviews, and not to print media, or to broadcast news programs that only quoted the extremists indirectly.

Polish students boycott military training

WARSAW, Poland — Authorities warned that a boycott of military training by thousands of students in three universities could jeopardize scheduled talks between the government and the outlawed Solidarity trade union.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban warned Wednesday that student dissidents at Jagiellonian University, Warsaw University and the Krakow Coal Mining and Foundry Academy may face "an unpleasant surprise" unless they halt their protest, but he did not specify what measures may be taken.

The students are also demanding an end to compulsory Russian language classes.

Urban said the boycott could jeopardize talks scheduled for Monday between the banned Solidarity trade union and the government. Those meetings will include discussion on the possible restoration of Solidarity's legal status.

No arrests have been reported in the student actions, but a government newspaper, Gazeta Krakowska, said the military office at Jagiellonian University in the southern city of Krakow was damaged after a rally.

Marcos target of arrest warrant

United Press International

NEW YORK — Former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife face arrest for ignoring a grand jury subpoena in an embezzlement probe, but FBI officials in Hawaii said the authorization to make the politically sensitive arrests must come from Washington.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld a civil contempt ruling against Marcos and his wife, Imelda, for failing to comply with the subpoena, and upheld the warrant for the couple's arrest.

The Marcoses, living in exile in Hawaii, had been found in civil contempt by U.S. District Judge John Walker for failing to comply with grand jury subpoenas to produce finger and palm prints and examples of their handwriting and voice samples.

The grand jury is investigating whether the Marcoses diverted

Essentially ... (the Marcoses) fraudulently diverted enormous sums of money that belonged to the Philippine government and the government of the United States

-Court of Appeals decision money belonging to the Philippine and U.S. governments to themselves. The appeals court ruling marked the first public disclosure of the proceedings.

The court also cited the couple for failing to sign "consent directives that authorize foreign banks to turn over to the grand jury their financial records."

But whether the arrest warrant would be served remained unclear.

The FBI special agent in charge in Honolulu, Eugene Glenn, said his office normally would handle an arrest but that because of the "unprecedented" nature of the case any decision on what to do would be made in Washington.

The Aug. 11 Walker order named "Mr. and Mrs. Doe," indicating the action was sealed. However, the ruling by the federal appeals court named the Marcoses.

When the Marcoses failed to appear before Judge Walker to comply with the request Aug. 18, a bench warrant was issued for their arrest, the appeals court decision said.

"Essentially, the government believes (the Marcoses) fraudulently diverted enormous sums of money that belonged to the Philippine government and the government of the United States," a three-judge panel of the appeals court said in its 21-page decision.

"Among the alleged means employed were embezzlement of funds in both countries, a portion of which were then used to purchase personal and real property in the U.S., and the remainder of which were transferred to secret Swiss bank accounts for the Marcoses' benefit."

The court said no indictment had been handed down. However, recent reports have said either a sealed indictment was delivered or indictments were expected.

In Honolulu, Marcos spokesman Gemmo Trinidad said he had no information about the ruling.

Israel vows revenge for car bomb attack

United Press International

METULLA, Israel — Israeli leaders vowed to avenge the deaths of seven soldiers killed by a suicide car bomb near a Lebanese border crossing.

"It is our goal to catch every murderer everywhere and none will go unpunished," Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin told state-run Israel Television Wednesday. "Those who send people who commit suicide in an exploding car must know that they will pay the final price."

The car bomb exploded Wednesday on the Lebanese side of the border near the northern Israeli town of Metulla. Seven soldiers were killed and eight wounded. Two Lebanese women also were wounded, an army spokesman said.

In Beirut, a spokesman for the pro-Iranian Hezbollah group said its guerrillas in southern Lebanon and the eastern Bekaa Valley were on maximum alert, fearing prompt retaliation by Israel.

The Islamic Resistance Movement, which is headed by the pro-Iranian fundamentalist Hezbollah, claimed responsibility for the attack.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said the attack would not go unanswered.

"It is Israel's justified goal to catch murderers and to stop murder organizations," Shamir told Israel Television.

Peres said, "Israel will get the murderers and their messengers and will get back in retribution."

The attack was the most daring since Nov. 25 when an Arab gunman sailed across the Lebanese border on a hang glider and slipped into an army camp where he killed six soldiers and wounded seven others before being gunned down.

For Palestinians in the occupied territories, "The Night of the Gliders" proved the Israeli army was vulnerable and was one of the events that led to the outbreak of the Palestinian uprising Dec. 9.

It was the bloodiest incident on Israel's northern border since March 10, 1985. In that incident 12 Israeli soldiers were killed and 14 wounded when a suicide driver drove a pickup truck laden with explosives into a convoy in the Lebanese village of Khiam just north of Metulla.

Maj. Gen. Yossi Peled, head of the northern command, said the car bomb exploded inside Lebanon, near the Fatma border gate on the outskirts of Metulla. The gate is used primarily by the army.

A white Toyota, traveling on South Lebanon Road, drove into a yard where drivers stop to get their papers ready and then exploded. In the yard were six jeeps and a communications van.

Peled said he had ordered an investigation to see if all procedures were being followed at the time of the attack. Rabin and armed forces Chief of Staff Brig. Gen. Dan Shomron visited the site of the attack.

President Reagan meets with Korean leader today

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Roh Tae Woo of South Korea, claimed as a jewel of President Reagan's foreign policy, was invited to the White House today to discuss the future of the Korean peninsula.

Roh, the first Korean head of state in history to address the United Nations, was flying from New York to the nation's capital to meet with Reagan and with Secretary of State George Shultz, who had the question of contacts with North Korea high on their agenda. In his U.N. speech Tuesday, Roh proposed a summit with his northern adversaries, an idea welcomed by the U.S. administration.

In light of the Roh initiative and a lack of North Korean subversion against the Summer Olympics in Seoul, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Wednesday the United States is reviewing its policy of isolating North Korea.

"We are moving toward a decision," Redman said. Still, "North Korea's track record in terrorism makes us cautious."

A senior administration official who briefed reporters on the condition of anonymity said an announcement could be expected this week of a shift in U.S. handling of North Korea.

The official said the administration is prepared to take unspecified steps — presumably related to trade or diplomatic contact — to improve its relations with the communist government.

Cautioning reporters not to expect "any kind of dramatic change," the U.S. official also noted the administration has detected no "softening" in North Korean resistance to those overtures.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Father with AIDS wins custody battle

SAN FRANCISCO — A homosexual man with AIDS has won custody of his 9-year-old son in what his lawyer said was the nation's first court test involving a parent with the disease.

Civil rights lawyer Roberta Achtenberg announced the decision Wednesday at a news conference.

A San Bernardino County Superior Court judge awarded custody of Shawn Wallace to the boy's father, Artie Wallace, 32, until the end of 1989, when his ability to care for the boy will be reviewed.

Achtenberg said the decision, the first of its kind in the nation, followed a bitter battle between Wallace and his former wife, Julia, a fundamentalist Christian who disappeared with the boy in August 1987 and was found by the FBI eight months later in Arizona.

LTV, Sumitomo consider second venture

CLEVELAND — The LTV Steel Co. and Sumitomo Metal Industries Ltd. of Tokyo are considering a plan to build a second jointly operated plant to produce rust-resistant coated steel primarily for the auto industry, LTV officials said.

The two firms in 1986 opened the L-S Galvanizing Co. in Cleveland, employing 88 people and using steel made at LTV's Cleveland Works.

No date has been set for completion of the study on a second new plant and no sites have been identified. LTV spokesman Mark Tomasz said Wednesday.

Teen mother unsure she wants son back

PONTIAC, Mich. — A teenage mother who abandoned her 20-month-old son in a discount store parking lot said she loves her child but is not sure she wants him back.

Doria Nixon, 19, was granted permission Wednesday to see her son, Andrew, one hour a week by Oakland County Probate Court referee Robert Martin. Martin delayed a hearing on neglect charges against Nixon until next Wednesday.

The woman, who abandoned her son Oct. 3 in a parking lot of a K Mart store in Waterford Township, said she still loves her son but has not decided whether to seek custody. The child has been in a foster home since the incident.

Charges of criminal abandonment were dismissed Oct. 12 at the request of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

Judge shot in chambers

Judge died in courtroom; estranged husband jailed

United Press International

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A judge shot to death in her chambers, allegedly by her estranged husband, a 21-year-old police veteran, apparently had no warning of trouble until faced with the drawn gun that killed her.

District Judge Carol Irons pushed a panic button Wednesday in her chambers in the Hall of Justice and told police who called that her husband had drawn his gun and was holding it to her head. Moments later, three officers found Irons, 40, stumbling out of the office clutching her throat and crying.

"Please help me."

Irons died in her courtroom, where she was taken by officers who had rushed to help her, said Police Chief William Hegarty.

An arraignment on an open murder charge was expected today for Clarence Ratliff, 51, a former detective recently assigned to night patrol.

Hegarty said Ratliff followed his wife of four years out of the chambers and fired two or three more shots from a 9mm pistol. After Ratliff ducked back into the chambers, Hegarty said Irons was moved into a courtroom where emergency efforts to save her failed.

As police prepared to negotiate with Ratliff, he yelled through the door: "I'm coming out."

"Put your hands up," the officers yelled back.

At 12:15 p.m., eight minutes after Irons hit the panic alarm, Ratliff walked out with hands raised and surrendered quietly.

"When she told me she was filing for divorce, she mentioned she thought the worst of it was over and thought it would be much easier from then on," said Chief 61st District Judge Donald Johnston, who married the two outside the Hall of Justice. "But there were no indications that there was any violence in their marriage or that she was fearful of him."

The couple had no children together, though Ratliff has children from a previous marriage. It was the second marriage for both.

Kent County Circuit Judge

George Buth, who was presiding over the divorce, said the proceedings were complete except for a property settlement.

Josef Soper, 61st District Court administrator, said Irons had told colleagues that she and Ratliff "had agreed to disagree and that they would be friends."

Lt. Vic Gillis said that Ratliff arrived shortly after noon to keep his lunch date with Irons. He was expected by court personnel who let him in through a locked security door and ushered him down a corridor into her chambers at the end of a hall.

"Unfortunately, this kind of hostility is often hid deep inside an individual," Gillis said.

"No security in the world could have stopped something like this," Soper said. "Anybody on our staff would have let him in."

Homeless relief bill moves to Senate

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Relief for the nation's homeless rested today in the hands of the Senate, set to give final approval to a $1.3 billion package of food, shelter, health care and job training for an often forgotten constituency.

The legislation passed the House on a voice vote Wednesday after more than a hour of mostly supportive debate. Proponents expressed confidence President Reagan would sign it even though his budget request for the program was only $264.8 million, including $70 million already allocated for food stamps.

Consideration of the measure, results of a compromise reached by Senate and House negotiators, came as Congress pushed to adjourn to give lawmakers time to campaign for this fall's elections.

"This is supposed to be an emergency. It was introduced in January and now it is October in the waning days (of the session)," said Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, before the House vote. "Therefore, enough said. We need action."

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., a leading advocate for the homeless, applauded the vote but said he had hoped for more concern in terms of money.

"I wish there was as much compassion for the human beings trapped in the ice," Frank said, comparing the winter plight of the homeless with national attention now on three whales imprisoned by arctic ice off Alaska.

While most representatives backed the bill, Rep. David Dreier, R-Calif., called it "the wrong approach" to a problem that has not gone away despite efforts by the federal, state and local governments and charitable groups.

"The federal responsibility may be part of the problem by encouraging shelter-bound people," Dreier protested.

An estimated 735,000 people in the United States are homeless on any given night and as many as 2 million may be without a place to stay for one night or more during the year. Meanwhile under President Reagan, federal support for low-income housing has been cut to $7.5 billion from $32.2 billion in 1981.

The bill calls for a two-year reauthorization of the McKinney Homeless Assistance Act, named for one its chief supporters, Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., who died last year.

It would provide money for emergency shelters as well as for subsidized low-income housing, health programs that include alcohol and drug abuse prevention, job training programs, adult literacy programs, education of homeless children and shelter for homeless veterans.

Wounded agent is third officer shot in 24 hours

United Press International

NEW YORK — A federal drug agent was wounded in a cocaine deal gone sour, becoming the third law enforcement officer gunned down in 24 hours and prompting Mayor Edward Koch to lash out at the Reagan administration's anti-drug campaign.

The brief, frenzied Brooklyn gunbattle late Wednesday came as police stepped up the search for suspects in the upper Manhattan slayings of two police officers — one shot to death during a "buy-and-bust" operation and the other killed hours later in an unrelated shooting police suspect was also drug-related.

The killings apparently were the first time in the city's history that two officers died in separate slayings on the same night, police said.

The shootout Wednesday between federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents, city and state police of the New York Drug Enforcement Task Force and a Dominican cocaine dealer left the suspect dead and one agent with a bullet crease to his head and gunshot wound in the leg, authorities said.

Koch and New York Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward, outraged by the violence, belittled Reagan's so-called war on drugs, charging the president failed to back police despite a barrage of rhetoric.

"I wouldn't call this a 'war on drugs,'" Ward said Wednesday. "That's a misnomer. I don't think we ought to call it that until we really declare a war."

"I hope whoever wins this (presidential) election will declare a war," Ward added.

While Koch applauded the "great courage" shown by police, he said that "they are not being supported by the president, no matter what he says."

The unidentified DEA agent shot Wednesday was allegedly buying a kilo of cocaine from a three Dominicans as he sat with them in a car parked in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn, said Special Agent Robert Strang, a DEA spokesman.

When the three men showed the undercover agent the cocaine, he signaled his back-up unit of about 10 agents and police officers. As authorities moved in, one of the suspects leaped from the car and ran toward a nearby building, Strang said.

The suspect shot the undercover agent and then pointed his gun at the other agents, who shot and killed him, Strang said.

The wounded agent was listed in stable condition at Wyckoff Hospital in Brooklyn, Strang said. Another agent suffered a minor injury to his hand during the incident.

Police, meanwhile, intensified the search for additional suspects in the Tuesday night slayings.

Scientists: Past quakes hold key to predictions

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — A team of American and Soviet scientists said it is closer to being able to predict major earthquakes by studying six possible warning signs.

The scientists from UCLA, the California Institute of Technology and the Academy of Sciences in Moscow are studying specific patterns of seismic events they believe are most likely to occur before large quakes strike — such as movement in different plates of the Earth's crust and animal behavior.

The scientists developed mathematical models to predict quakes, and said there had been numerous instances of natural phenomena preceding strong earthquakes that might be used to predict future tremors.

The mathematical model would be useful in predicting the approximate time of a major quake, but not its specific location, the scientists said Wednesday in the current issue of the journal Nature.

Geophysicist Leon Knopoff, of UCLA's Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics, said the new study looked at quakes in California and western Nevada between 1938 and 1984 and found six possible precursors of major quakes.

"We can't estimate the statistical significance of the observations because of the limited size of the earthquake sample," Knopoff said. "However, the success of the calculations, which can be transferred from California and Nevada to other locations around the world, is relevant to identifying the approach of a strong earthquake in many tectonic regions."

The new mathematical model examines six key events associated with major earthquake activity. The events are: Periods of quake inactivity; levels of actual earthquake activity; rates of change in quake occurrence; earthquake magnitudes; clustering aftershocks and long-range interaction between main shocks occurring long distances apart.

Geophysicist Kerry Sieh, of Caltech, who was not associated with this project, has been trying to develop a method of predicting quakes by "reading" the ring patterns of trees growing near known fault zones in California.

But Knopoff said the new mathematical formulas he and his team developed have greater applications and have been used to study five other seismic locations in the world.

Those areas are the Caucasus region in the Soviet Union, the Pamir-Tien Shan of Central Asia, the Northern Appalachian mountains in the United States, the Brabant-Ardennes in Belgium and the region around the city of Vrancea in Romania.

Without telling it that earthquakes had occurred in those areas, the scientists had a computer use their mathematical model to look back at events preceding 20 quakes, and said it was able to identify the occurrence of strong earthquakes 16 times.

But the California Division of Mines and Geology reported in a recent disaster scenario that a major quake could also occur along the coastal Newport-Inglewood Fault Zone near Los Angeles that would be even more devastating than one on the San Andreas.

Scientists find evidence Earth hit by huge meteors

United Press International

BERKELEY, Calif. — More evidence has been found that backs up a theory that Earth was bombarded by comets or meteors up to 12 million years ago, causing many prehistoric animal species to become extinct, scientists said.

Scientists from the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and the University of California's Berkeley and Santa Barbara campuses reported Wednesday that they have found high levels of iridium in sediments deposited 6,000 miles apart during the epoch known as the Middle Miocene.

The discovery is significant, they said, because iridium is an element that is rare on the surface of the Earth, but relatively abundant in meteors, comets and asteroids. The sites were in the Weddell Sea near Antarctica and in the Tasman Sea north of New Zealand.

"As the iridium was deposited at the two sites at about the same time, and they are one-quarter of the way around the world from each other, it seems likely that the deposition was worldwide," nuclear chemist Frank Asaro of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory said in a statement released Wednesday for presentation today at a conference in Utah.

Evidence that iridium has been deposited worldwide is considered crucial to the claim that the iridium came from a comet or meteor, rather than from volcanic or other sources on Earth, Asaro said. He estimated the diameter of the objects that struck both sites at about 1.8 miles — a huge object from space.

This was the third set of iridium data to be associated with one of a series of mass extinctions that have shown up in the fossil record. The first was in 1980, when the late Nobel Prize-winning physicist Luis Alvarez and his research team originally advanced the meteor-comet theory.

The second connection was made in 1982 by the same team, and concerned a later mass extinction at the end of Eocene period, about 37 million to 39 million years ago.

The new evidence relating to the Middle Miocene, 10 million to 12 million years ago, was to be reported today at the conference on Global Catastrophes in Earth History.

Afghan rebels shell Kabul as meeting begins

United Press International

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Western diplomats said a special meeting of Afghanistan's ruling party under way in Kabul is likely to consider a new initiative aimed at ending the country's 9-year-old civil war.

But as the meeting of senior party officials began Wednesday, Afghan rebels launched a six-hour rocket attack on the capital that killed at least nine people and wounded 18, state-run Kabul Radio and the Soviet news agency Tass said. A Western diplomat said 15 people were killed at Kabul airport's international terminal, which received a direct hit.

Rebel shelling of Kabul and other major cities has increased since May 15 when Moscow began withdrawing its 100,300 troops from its southern neighbor under the U.N.-mediated Geneva Accords, signed by Afghanistan and Pakistan.

Western diplomats said the guerrillas, who are backed by the United States, China and Iran and based mostly in Pakistan, are trying to prove to civilians through the attacks that the communist government will be unable to protect them once the Soviets complete their pullout.

Kabul Radio said President Najibullah presented a report at the opening of the meeting Wednesday of the Central Committee of the ruling People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan.

Western diplomats said the Central Committee will likely to consider a new peace initiative, but Kabul Radio said in a Pashto-language broadcast that details of Najibullah's report would be released later. Tass said the plenum discussed "organizational matters."

There has been speculation Najibullah would announce profound changes in the Afghan leadership, including possibly his own resignation in favor of Prime Minister Hasan Sharq, who is not a PDPA member.

Afghan sources in Kabul said the aim is to form a broad-based government that would attract moderate opposition groups and tempt rebel leaders into negotiations.

The meeting began after more than a week's delay that Western diplomats attributed to differences between rival factions over how to end the 9-year-old conflict in the country after the Soviets leave.

They said Najibullah's Parcham faction favors a political settlement while the Khalqis, led by Interior Minister Sayeed Mohammad Gulabzoi, prefer a military solution.

Moscow hopes to reach a compromise between the Afghan government and the rebels by the Feb. 15 deadline set by the Geneva Accords for a complete withdrawal of Soviet troops. The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in December 1979 to support the communist regime.

But the rebels, known as the Mujahideen, reject any role in a coalition that would include PDPA members and vowed to fight until an Islamic government is established in Kabul.

The meeting began four days after the arrival of new Soviet Ambassador Yuli Vorontsov.

Oilers win in Gretzky's return

The Edmonton fans gave Wayne Gretzky a warm reception in his return as a member of the Los Angeles Kings. The Oilers weren't as generous on the ice.

Mark Messier scored two goals and the Oilers converted on 8 of 21 shots Wednesday night, spoiling the return of Gretzky as the Oilers took an 8-6 victory.

Gretzky, who was traded from Edmonton to Los Angeles in August, received a five-minute standing ovation during the pregame skate-around at the Northlands Coliseum. The crowd of 17,503, an Oilers record with the addition of one seat for the occasion, stopped cheering only after the public-address announcer persisted in announcing the start of the national anthems.

"I wanted to cheer too," said Oilers' co-coach John Muckler. "Wayne meant a great deal to this organization. It was great. The crowd cheered for Wayne but also for the guys in the home shirts."

TOKYO — Top seed and defending champion Stefan Edberg and second-seeded Boris Becker advanced to the quarterfinals Thursday of the $617,500 Japan Indoor Men's Championships.

Edberg, of Sweden, beat Canadian Chris Pridham 6-1, 7-5 while Becker was forced to rally back from a set down to beat fellow West German Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Third-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador and sixth-seeded Australian John Fitzgerald advanced in straight sets and will now meet in the quarterfinals. After a close first set, Gomez dispatched Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union 7-5, 6-4 and Fitzgerald was taken to a second set tiebreaker before defeating qualifier Robert Van't Hof of Irvine, Calif., 6-3, 7-6.

The tournament's seventh and eighth seeds, respectively — Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia and Dan Goldie of McLean, Virginia — were upset. Zivojinovic was beaten by Paul Chamberlin, a qualifier from Manhattan Beach, Calif., 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 and Goldie lost to Eric Jelen of West Germany, 6-3, 6-4.

In other results, Japanese No. 1 Shuzo Matsuoka continued to produce some fine tennis, reaching the round of eight with a hard fought 7-5, 7-6 triumph over Marty Davis of Harbor Bay Isle, Calif. Also, Richard Matuszewski of Hopewell Junction, N.Y., defeated Sammy Giammalva of Houston, 6-3, 7-5.

Dodgers forge 3-1 lead

LA ace Hershiser will try to wrap up Series tonight

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Oakland slugger Dave Parker has been on the edge of World Series defeat once before and came away a winner, his hopes history will once again repeat itself.

Back in 1979, Parker was a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates when they fell behind the Baltimore Orioles by a 3-1 count in the World Series. No one gave the Pirates much of a chance to win the Series from such a deficit, but they won three straight to come away with the championship.

On Wednesday, Parker found himself once again facing sudden death in the World Series after the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Athletics, 4-3, to go up by a 3-1 margin heading into today's Game Five.

"From what I remember, we just told ourselves we were going to take it one game at a time," Parker said. "That's what we did. Fully concentrated on each game and we came back to win the Series."

The A's face a stiff challenge if they are to overcome the Dodgers. Pittsburgh was led in its comeback by Willie Stargell, who hit .400 for the Series with three homers and 7 RBIs. Oakland is led by Jose Canseco, who has just one hit in the Series.

The A's as a team are hitting an anemic .186 and have scored just nine runs. Canseco, whose speed and hitting power helped him become the first player in Major League history to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in a single season, has been held hitless since hitting a grand slam in the opening game.

To make matters worse, Oakland will face Dodger ace Orel Hershiser in Game Five. All Hershiser has done in the playoffs and Series is toss 19 1/3 consecutive shutout innings.

"I can see why he's been successful, and like any real good pitcher, if he's making his pitches, we'll have to make sure we don't give them much," said A's Manager Tony La Russa. "If he gives us something to hit, we'll have to try and make the most of it."

Making the most of it is what the Dodgers have done so well in this Series. On Wednesday, Los Angeles' starting lineup was devoid of any power hitters. Both Kirk Gibson and Mike Marshall were on the bench and Mike Scioscia came off limping in the fourth inning after twisting his right knee while sliding into second.

"With Gibson and Marshall out, we have to manufacture runs and rely on our pitching and defense to get by," said Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda.

The Dodgers may have to manufacture runs again today because Gibson and Scioscia likely will not play. Marshall, who was put in as a defensive replacement in the ninth inning Wednesday, should be able to start.

While Lasorda may be short on hitters, he is deep on relievers. On Wednesday, Jay Howell — who gave up the winning homer Tuesday night — came on to twice baffle the heart of the A's lineup.

Seminole's Cissy Burgess swims toward a school record in the 100 breaststroke.

Burgess shatters 2 records

By CHUCK BURGESS
 Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD — The Lyman Greyhounds, who have raised themselves to a higher level in high school swimming, continued their winning ways Wednesday afternoon by defeating the visiting Seminoles of Sanford 117-33 in the boys meet and 90-50 in the girls.

"Right now we're shooting for the conference meet," Greyhound head coach Don Clark said. "But we're not doing anything special. No fancy gimmicks, we're just going to swim and let the chips fall where they may."

Even though the score wasn't close, the Seminoles had the swim, or rather swimmers, of the meet as Lady Seminole splasher

Cissy Burgess swam uncontested in her two individual events and then helped the Lady Swimmers to a victory in the 200 medley relay. Burgess also wiped out two school records, one of which was 10 years old, in the process.

"Cissy had a great meet," Seminole head coach Tony Ackerson said. "She has a smoothness I didn't see last year and you can see a big difference. She's got confidence that she didn't have last year and she's still getting better and better with each meet."

Burgess started off her record-breaking afternoon by shattering her two-year old record with a victory in the 200 individual medley as she reeled off a time of 2:22.87. Despite having a shoulder injury and not swimming her best events,

Burgess then broke the Seminoles' 100 breaststroke record in winning fashion with a 1:15.36 clocking. Earlier in the day, Burgess brought back the girls 200 medley relay team from a huge deficit to victory by having her fastest split of the year in the fly leg. The other Lady Seminoles who contributed quick legs in the victory included Mindy Bogue, Christina Neville, and Christi Merritwether.

Bogue provided the only other win for the Seminoles by digging down the last 15 yards and taking the 100 free in 1:09.44.

Even with the fine performances from the Lady Noles, the rest of the meet belonged to the Lady Hounds. After losing to Lake Brantley and Lake Mary in consecutive dual meets last

S.C. player: Coaches encouraged steroid use

United Press International

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A former South Carolina defensive lineman, driven by steroids to the brink of suicide, said in a magazine article team coaches and doctors indirectly encouraged his use of the drugs for more than three years.

Tommy Chaikin said he began taking various growth-enhancing drugs during the spring of 1984 as a South Carolina freshman. By the fall of 1987, Chaikin said he was suffering extreme anxiety and other symptoms from his steroid use to the extent that he sat in his room with a loaded .357 Magnum and contemplated suicide.

"My finger twitched on the trigger," he said in a copyright article in the Oct. 24 issue of Sports Illustrated. "I was in bad shape, very bad shape. From the steroids."

In the article, Chaikin also tells of widespread recreational drug use, in addition to steroid use, by members of the South Carolina football team. He eventually was hospitalized in his native Bethesda, Md. before last season's game against Clemson. Reports at the time said he left school because of a "mysterious illness."

Chaikin said Gamecocks Coach Joe Morrison, assistant coach Jim Washburn and team physician Dr. Paul Akers knew about or learned he was taking the drugs, but they either ignored the fact or made little or no effort to stop him.

Chaikin said Akers learned of his steroid use in 1985 by discovering the player's liver was swollen by steroids. The doctor then informed Morrison.

"Morrison looked at me and said, 'Don't do it anymore.' That was it," Chaikin said in the article.

Morrison had no comment Wednesday morning but school officials said the coach would issue a statement later.

Chaikin said while coaches did not officially encourage steroid use, there was tacit approval if a player built himself up with the drugs. Chaikin said Washburn, South Carolina's defensive line coach, told him: "Do what you have to do, take what you have to take."

After building himself from 210 pounds to 235 pounds during an eight-week period in the summer of 1984, Chaikin said Washburn told him he looked great.

Mackerel amendment approved

By JIM SHUPE
 Herald fishing writer

The Governor and Cabinet voted to approve amendments to king mackerel management rules recommended by the Florida Marine Fisheries Commission. In other action, the Commission has scheduled its next regular meeting, and has set a date to go before the Governor and Cabinet to present its redfish rule for approval.

The Commission rule amendments for king mackerel, which take effect November 1, 1988, include setting a daily bag limit in state waters for the Gulf-Atlantic fishery of two fish per person reverting to one fish per person when the federal zone closes, and two fish per person in the Atlantic fishery. These bag limits include the captain and crew of charterboats. The provision for automatic closure of the fisheries when the fisheries in the federal zones close has been repealed. In addition, the rule will allow a one percent or 250 pounds (whichever is less) bycatch of king mackerel in otherwise lawful harvests of Spanish mackerel in state waters. This replaces the 10 percent bycatch exception previously allowed. The rule will also require a "restricted species" endorsement on saltwater products licenses along with a federal permit in order to sell king mackerel.

The Governor and Cabinet will consider on December 6, 1988 the Commission's recommended rule to provide for a limited harvest of redfish. The rule if approved would allow all fishermen a daily bag limit of one redfish 18 to 27 inches in length except during the months of March, April, and May, and prohibit the sale of the species. The harvest of redfish is now and will continue to be prohibited pending further action by the Governor and Cabinet.

All-Star Classic scheduled for April of '89

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO— Officials for the Orlando All-Star Classic announced that the collegiate basketball all-star event has been scheduled for April 1989 at the new Orlando Arena.

Pat Williams, the General Manager of the Orlando Magic, and the chairman of the player selection committee said there will be 36 of the top college seniors in the country on hand.

"This kind of talent for three nights will be a unique experience for the fans in the Central Florida area," Williams said. "These are the cream of the crop, the best in the USA."

Seven players have already committed to the Classic, among them, Glenn Rice of Michigan, Chuckie Brown of N.C. State, Mel Lance of Purdue and George McCloud of Florida State.

Williams also announced the four coaches for the Classic will be Norm Sloan of the University of Florida, Tom Davis of Iowa, Ralph Miller of Oregon State and Rolie Massimino of Villanova University.

Sloan, who led the Gators to an NCAA tournament bid last season feels "pleased to be selected, and to have Pat Williams to run this game is just great. I'm excited to see the ball (Orlando and Miami) in the state of Florida. And to see the kids go pro, it's a great feeling."

Paul Bryton, the President of the Pillar-Bryton Chairable Foundation, will be responsible for running the Classic and he said three local charities will benefit from the proceeds of the Classic.

Those charities will include a minority endowment scholarship fund for the University of Central Florida; 50 percent to the Mayor's (City of Orlando) Committee on the fine arts; and the final amount of the proceeds will go for endowment scholarships for the UCF men's and women's basketball programs.

Orlando Mayor Bill Fredrick, who is a big supporter of the fine arts for the Central Florida area feels it is important to have sports and the arts. "For the community will not be great without it. It's going to be a great marriage. And the primary beneficiary will be the Central Florida area and the City of Orlando."

Gene McDowell, head football coach and Athletic Director at the University of Central Florida was very pleased of the news that the basketball programs will be getting some much needed money for scholarships.

"I'm very happy to increase our endowment fund for basketball. It's worth two endowment scholarships from this Classic next year alone, and it will put us 20 percent towards our goal of a $10 million endowment fund that we (UCF) hope to reach by 1992."

The game has been sanctioned by the NCAA, which is good news for the coaches. When the first Classic was held here this past April, the coaches were told that if they got involved in the games, their schools would have been put on probation because the game was not sanctioned by the NCAA.

At the last minute, former NBA coaches led by Billy Cunningham and Bill Russell replaced them and the whole affair turned out to be a total embarrassment according to many who attended.

This year's Classic is considered very important to the future of the 36 top college stars, because every top NBA talent scout will be watching their every move.

An outstanding performance would improve their stock before the 1989 NBA draft which will be held in June of 1989.

Miami to start 1st true frosh

United Press International

CORAL GABLES — A shuffle in the Miami secondary will put a true freshman into the starting lineup for the first time in Jimmy Johnson's five years at Miami.

Charles Pharms, 18, will start at free safety Saturday afternoon in the Orange Bowl as the fourth-ranked Hurricanes, 4-1, look to start another winning streak with a victory against Cincinnati. Pharms, from James Madison High in Houston, got the starting nod when senior Bubba McDowell was moved from free safety to cornerback, knocking Kenny Berry out of the starting lineup.

Although his collegiate experience consists of five games, including three contests in which he got some playing time at free safety, Pharms talks calmly about his progress at Miami, which he attributes to maturity.

"The coaches always felt I had the talent and everything but usually when you come from high school and go into college, there's a lot of little things you have to work on," said Pharms. "5-foot-11 and 180 pounds. Reading the quarterback, getting familiar with a lot of routes. You make that adjustment, that's mainly what it is. I've just been doing a better job of that, which is basically coming from maturity."

Other than Pharms' maturity, the move was dictated by the upcoming Miami opponents. The first five teams Miami played this season were basically running teams that liked to mix in the pass when possible.

Beginning this week with Cincinnati, however, the Hurricanes will be facing teams that mirror their own offensive philosophy — throw first and use the run to keep defenses honest. Other passing teams on the schedule are Tulsa, Louisiana State and Brigham Young.

Gilbert Barnes bursts through a seam created by the UCF offensive line in action vs. Bethune Cookman.

'Hurricane' Gilbert flying high

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — There's been a "Hurricane Gilbert" blowing around the Florida Citrus Bowl this season.

That's good if you're a University of Central Florida football fan. And only pain and misery for the teams that have to face it.

The "Hurricane" in question is running back Gilbert Barnes.

Barnes, a 5-9, 180 pound junior from LeHigh Acres, is the player everyone has been talking about.

Why? Because "Hurricane" Gilbert Barnes became the first running back in UCF history to rush for over 100 yards in consecutive games (129 vs. New Haven and 127 vs. So. Conn. St.), the fifth and sixth best single game efforts in team history.

Barnes also leads the team with 456 yards on 104 carries (4.1 average) and 7 TDs (all on the ground), and had caught six passes for 24 yards.

But wait, here's the best news of all.

If "Hurricane" can gain 544 yards (136 yards per game) in the final four regular season games for the Knights (6-1), 10th ranked this week in the NCAA Division II poll going into their key road game against the Valdosta State Blazers, Barnes would be the first running back to ever gain 1,000 yards in a single season for the Knights.

Barnes should have no problem breaking Elgin Davis' single season rushing mark of 786 set in 1983, but it's the 1,000 Gilbert's looking for.

In a football season that has had more twists than Iran-Contra (Notre Dame beating Miami last Saturday, and the hapless Boone Braves stunning the Lake Brantley Patriots to end their 22 game losing streak last month), anything can happen.

Barnes who became the starting tailback for the Knights after Perry Balasis suffered a season ending knee injury against North Alabama on Oct. 1, proved he could do the job on his own by rushing for 137 yards on 20 carries in the first half of UCF's game with New Haven.

And although "Hurricane" was held to negative yardage in the second half (seven carries, minus eight yards), which was a key to the Knights' 31-23 upset loss to the Owls, a star was born.

Barnes feels "it's nice to be in the limelight, but I don't have the big head."

"My success in the last two weeks came because the offensive line has done a super job blocking up front, and the fullbacks (Perry Balasis, and Jon Jordan) are leading the way for me."

Barnes, who's majoring in Business Management, hopes for a nice pro contract in the future as scouts from the NFL's Falcons, Steelers and Seahawks have seen him play during Knight games this year and all have been impressed with his 4.4 speed in the 40, and his ability to make something out of nothing.

So when you hear the name "Hurricane" on Saturday nights, it's not the Hurricanes of Miami, it's UCF's own "Hurricane" — Gilbert Barnes.

Dodgers

In the seventh, he got Mark McGwire — whose ninth-inning home run beat Howell Tuesday — to pop out with the bases loaded to end the inning and then he struck out Canseco in the ninth with one runner on.

"Any time a guy has to come in and save a game and get as many outs as he did — well, that's the toughest piece of work he has to do," La Russa said. "And he got them — the pop up by Mark and the strikeout of Jose."

The A's did manage to tag Los Angeles starter and winner Tim Lincecum, 1-0, for three runs in the contest. Luis Polonia led off the first with a single, moved to second on a passed ball, advanced to third on a ground out and then scored when Canseco grounded out to first.

In the sixth, Dave Henderson singled, moved to second when McGwire drew a two out walk and scored on a single by Carney Lansford. The final Oakland run came in the seventh when Walt Weiss singled, beat out a force at second and scored on a Henderson double.

Los Angeles scored a pair of runs off starter and loser Dave Stewart, 0-1, in the first. Steve Sax opened the game with a walk, moved to second on a one-out single to right by Mickey Hatcher and scored on a passed ball that also moved Hatcher to second. Mike Davis' grounder then eluded Glenn Hubbard for an error moving Hatcher to third. John Shelby followed with a ground out, scoring Hatcher.

The Dodgers went up 3-1 in the third when Franklin Stubbs ripped a one-out double and later scored on a Weiss error. The final Los Angeles run came in the seventh. Alfredo Griffin drew a one-out walk, moved to third on a Sax single and scored on a Tracy Woodson ground out.

GIBSON NOT SURPRISED

Los Angeles outfielder Kirk Gibson, a World Series spectator for all but one dramatic at-bat, says he expected the patchwork Dodgers to dominate the Oakland Athletics.

"These guys just don't dwell on things out of their control," Gibson said Wednesday night after the Dodgers took command of the Series with a 4-3 victory. "Although I've had my moments and Mike (Marshall) has had his moments, this season is what you'd call a team effort. We're all together regardless of who is put out there."

Gibson and Marshall (back) were not in the starting lineup

"What the whole team does is give you an honest effort," said Gibson, whose right knee remains sore. "As a player, what are you going to say when guys get injured? How are you going to win the game? You've come this far all year. You're not going to give up now."

"I've won a world championship before (in 1984 with the Detroit Tigers) and we needed everyone on the club to win that one. We don't ask how we got there. It's the end result that counts."

Gibson took batting practice again Wednesday night, but ruled out anything but a pinch-hitting role.

Steve Gard from Osteon Bridge Fish Camp stated that fishing is fixing to get hot. Good stringers of specks are coming from the old river channel and some school strippers were caught last weekend. The good fishing is also attracting more anglers. Bass fishing is holding up, with the average size of the fish on the increase.

Sebastian Inlet Snook fishing has improved dramatically, with 30-40 snook being caught on the better nights. Jigs are still the top producers, and most of the snook are being caught above the bridge. Try some live bait for the larger snook.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that high seas have hampered offshore fishing. Bottom fishing will be improving as grouper and snapper move onto inshore reefs and wrecks. Look for plenty of dolphin and sailfin when the seas subside. Inside the Port, flounder fishing has picked up with the cooler weather. Bounce finger mullet along the channel ledges for some tasty flatfish. Bluefish and sheepshead fishing has also improved with the cooler weather. The flats on the Banana and Indian River are producing nice catches of trout and redfish.

Rough weather has discouraged jetty jumpers and boaters from crowding the New Smyrna jetties. Look for jumbo bluefish and sheepshead to move in with cooler water temperatures. Flounder, drum, sheepshead and redfish will also provide plenty of action.

A's seek quick fix for offense

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jose Canseco, whose powerful bat has electrified Oakland all season, struggled Wednesday night to find a reason for the silence that has fallen over the Athletics' batting order.

Canseco went 0 for 3 Wednesday, striking out in the ninth inning with a runner on as reliever Jay Howell preserved a 4-3 Los Angeles Dodgers victory. The win gave the Dodgers a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven World Series.

"I'm depressed because our offense is not doing what it is capable of doing," said Canseco, who is hitting .067 for the Series. "What people out there are seeing is not the Oakland Athletics. Everybody but one or two guys are not hitting, not advancing runners."

Canseco, the first major leaguer to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in a season, personifies the A's slump. He ranked in the top 10 in 12 offensive categories during the regular season, but against the Dodgers he has just one hit: a Game 1 grand slam.

As a team, Oakland is hitting .186 and has scored just six runs over the four games. Carney Lansford, Oakland's leadoff batter, has one hit in the Series. Mark McGwire also has just one hit, but that hit may be the difference between Oakland having a glimmer of hope and none. McGwire hit a game-winning, ninth-inning homer Tuesday.

"There pitching staff is really underrated," Canseco said. "Their starters are strong. They basically are keeping us off-balance."

The ninth-inning showdown between Canseco and Howell was one of two pivotal points in the game. Howell had surrendered the homer to McGwire 24 hours earlier.

"When things are going bad, they go bad," Canseco said. "He made a mistake the pitch before — hung a curve — and I fouled it off. I knew that was the pitch I had to hit out."

"The next pitch was a nasty curveball that the bottom dropped out of." Canseco swung and miss for strike three.

Dave Parker, who played on the Pittsburgh Pirates when they came back from a 3-1 World Series deficit in 1979, said the solution to the A's problems at the plate is simple.

"We got to get hits, timely hits," he said. "We are a good offensive ballclub, but we are just in a slump."

Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said "We are having enough at-bats and are not giving ourselves the best of it. It isn't every at-bat, every inning. We are getting closer but the margin out there is not very much and if you throw just a few at-bats it can be the difference in the game."

BELATED BIRTHDAY

Happy birthday, Tim Belcher.

Belcher, who turned 27 Wednesday, reported to the Oakland Coliseum and found flowers in his locker, balloons floating above and a stuffed animal perched on a shelf.

But he gave himself the best birthday present of all — pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics in Game 4 of the World Series.

Georgia in control in SEC?

United Press International

It seems to be a matter of opinion whether the Georgia Bulldogs are in the "driver's seat" in the Southeastern Conference.

The league-leading, No. 13 Bulldogs are solid favorites for their Saturday visit to Kentucky, while two of the SEC's three runnerups — No. 19 LSU and Florida — both have open dates, and the third — Alabama — goes outside the conference to play Penn State.

"I guarantee you they are in the driver's seat," says Kentucky Coach Jerry Claiborne. "When they get off to as good a start as they have, they certainly have to be considered the favorites at this time."

Win or lose, Georgia, 4-0 in SEC play, will continue to lead the conference race. LSU, Florida and Alabama will all remain at 3-1. No. 9 Auburn, 2-1, is an overwhelming 27-point favorite over Mississippi State and figures to move into a four-way tie for second place.

Georgia is fifth in the nation in rushing at 300 yards per game with tailbacks Tim Worley (1,761) and Rodney Hampton (4,444) and fullback Keith Henderson (10,294) all among the top-10 rushers in the SEC.

"I can't remember a better Georgia running team than this one," says Vanderbilt Coach Watson Brown. "They have more backs than anyone in the country to throw out there."

But ever-cautious Georgia Coach Vince Dooley warns that the SEC race, with each of the 10 teams having to play seven league opponents for the first time in league history, is far from over.

"Most everything we have accomplished has been at home," Dooley says of the Bulldogs showing 15-1 overall with the lone loss at independent, No. 17 South Carolina. "All the tough part is dead ahead."

birthday or not, is really exciting," Belcher said. "We used to play six weeks of fall baseball in college (Mt. Vernon Nazarene in Ohio), so I'm sure I pitched on my birthday once before, but this is obviously the one I'll remember the most."

Facing a starting assignment Wednesday night, Belcher was in no position to spend the afternoon of his birthday in wild celebration. Apparently, he was in no mood to whoop it up after the game, either.

"I'm pretty tired right now," he said. "I don't want to blow my physical stamina by going out and partying too much. All I want to do is go to bed."

Pleasant dreams, indeed. After last night's two innings in his Game 1 start, Belcher held the A's to two earned runs over 6 2-3 innings and picked up the Game 4 victory.

The difference? "About this much," said Belcher, holding his hands two feet apart. "I was throwing the ball over the plate."

As opposed to Game 1 at Dodger Stadium, where Belcher hit Pasadena, Glendale, Burbank and seemingly everywhere in Southern California except the strike zone.

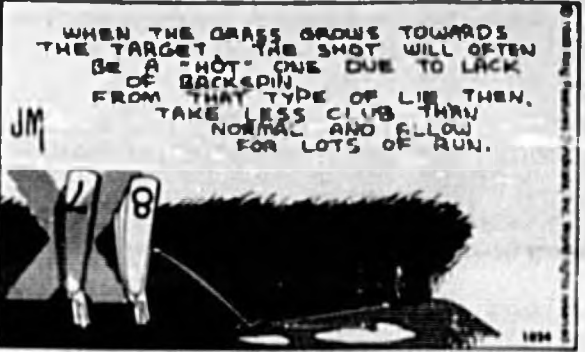

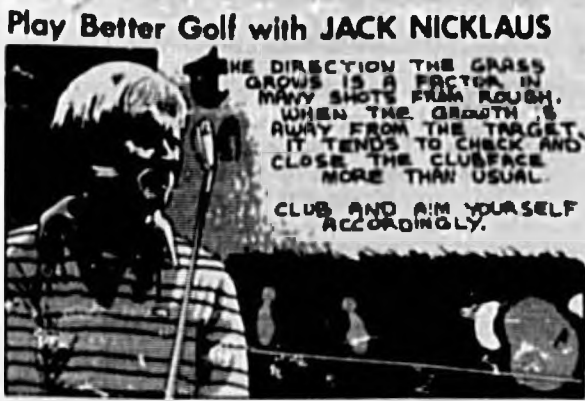

"I had a good fastball in Game 1," Belcher said. "I just didn't know where the hell it was going."

In Game 1, he walked four in two innings. In Game 4, he walked two in 6 2-3 innings. He also struck out seven, including five in the first three innings as the Dodgers built a 3-1 lead.

"Strikeouts are kind of like the slam dunk in basketball," Belcher said. "Psychologically, it may have an effect on the other team."

Leonard, Dundee split up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Ray Leonard and Angelo Dundee, who have been together since Leonard turned pro in 1977, have split in a dispute over money and the veteran trainer Wednesday said he will be absent from the corner when Leonard meets Donny Lalonde Nov. 7.

Leonard will try to win Lalonde's World Boxing Council light heavyweight title and the vacant WBC super middleweight title at Las Vegas. If successful, Leonard will become the first man to hold world titles in five weight classes.

Dundee said Leonard's camp was upset because the trainer asked for a contract for the Lalonde bout. Dundee said he worked without a contract for Leonard's last bout, a 12-round decision over middleweight champion Marvin Hagler April 6, 1987, and was paid $150,000 by Leonard and his attorney, Mike Trainer.

"Evidently, I'm not necessary in the corner," Dundee said by telephone from his Miami office. "They were offended because I had the audacity to have my lawyer call Mike Trainer's office asking when I was going to get paid."

"I left it up to them for the Hagler fight. I depended on their malice and their generosity and I got one percent of the purse."

Leonard, from his training camp in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, said he was hurt to hear Dundee would not work his corner.

BOXING SCHEDULE

Major Fight Schedule
(c denotes defending champion)

Oct. 26 at Copenhagen, Denmark — c Greg Haugen vs. Geri Bo Jacobson, 13, 187 light weight title.

Oct. 29 at Las Vegas, Nev. — c Julio Cesar Chavez vs. c Jose Luis Ramirez, 12, WBC and WBA light weight titles; c Alquis "Happy" Lara vs. Paul Perez, 12, WBC bantam weight title.

Nov. 1 Monterey, Calif. — c Primo Ramos vs. Victoria Belcher, 12, NABF light weight championship.

Nov. 2 at London — c Brian Mitchell vs. Jim McDermott, 12, WBA super feather weight title.

Nov. 4 at Las Vegas, Nev. — c James Kinchen vs. Thomas Hearns, 12, NABF super middle weight title; c Michael Nunn vs. Juan Domingo Roldan, 12, IBF middle weight title; c Matthew Milton vs. Robert Hines, 12, IBF junior middle weight title.

Nov. 7 at Las Vegas, Nev. — c Donny Lalonde vs. Ray Leonard, 12, WBC light heavyweight and vacant WBC super middleweight titles; c Gilberto Roman vs. Sugar Baby Rojas, 12, WBC super flyweight title; c Roger Mayweather vs. Vinny Pazienza, WBC super lightweight title.

"It's been a shocker to me," Leonard said. "All of a sudden, I'm getting calls that Angelo won't be here. I find it quite embarrassing. I thought I should've known first."

Trainer said Dundee received more than one percent of the Hagler purse.

"He hadn't had a contract the last several years," Trainer said. "He was paid more for Ray's last fight than in any other fight."

Dundee, 67, who also guided Muhammad Ali through his entire pro career, is considered one of boxing's top motivators and strategists. He was voted trainer of the year for 1987 by the Boxing Writers Association of America, largely because of Leonard's upset victory over Hagler.

Leonard and Dundee have not spoken since the Lalonde fight was signed in August. Dundee's attorney, Sandy Muchnik, said Dundee turned down an invitation to attend an Oct. 18 press conference in New York to announce the fight because he wanted a contract first.

"The relationship is different than the one I thought we had," Leonard said. "I saw Angelo before the fight was announced, he said, 'I'll be there.' Angelo has not spoken to me since the fight was signed. That's why I'm surprised to hear this news."

Although Leonard has had great success in the ring, the relationship between Trainer and Dundee not always been rosy. When Leonard turned pro after winning a gold medal in the 1976 Olympics, he signed a contract with Dundee as his manager for 15 percent of his purses. Dundee said he released Leonard from that contract with two years remaining once Leonard started making multi-million dollar purses.

Trainer said the contract was revised because Dundee was not serving as Leonard's manager, then expired while Leonard was in retirement from 1985-87.

"I don't want to go into things that happened in the past," Dundee said. "I swallowed it and took it like a man. I can't contend with Mike Trainer. I never could contend with a lawyer."

Moon critical of Oilers' defense

United Press International

CINCINNATI — Houston quarterback Warren Moon said the Oilers' defense plays with wild, penalty-drawing abandon to compensate for a lack of skill.

"We're not a very talented team on defense," Moon told Cincinnati reporters in a conference call Wednesday. "We have to play that way in order to make things happen."

Houston, which plays Sunday at Cincinnati, has gained a reputation as fielding the NFL's dirtiest defense.

"We're coached to be aggressive," Moon said. "Sometimes that aggressiveness turns into penalties. I don't think our guys are trying to do it on purpose. It's just the way we're taught to play."

"Sometimes it hurts us, but in other ways it has helped us. We've blocked four punts this year with our aggressiveness and we make a lot of big plays with that aggressiveness."

The numerous defensive penalties, though, irritates Moon.

"It makes me mad," Moon said. "I get mad at a lot of my teammates, although not at any one in particular, because of some of the stupid penalties we make."

"Whenever we lose, it seems to be because we beat ourselves with a lot of stupid penalties and not playing smart. When we get a lot of penalties on defense, that takes us away from what we want to do on offense, and that's control the ball."

Like Moon, Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville said his team's reputation has both aided and hurt Houston.

"It helped us because it gave us an identity when we were struggling," he said. "It gave us something to hold onto."

"But, it works against us because we play under a microscope. People watch us very closely. But, we do play hard. We play very physical. We try to come after you. That's the way we love to play."

"If we didn't play that way, I don't think we would have ever crawled out of that dark hole we were in. We were about as low as you could get. We couldn't find our way to win. We started becoming a much more physical, tougher team and I think that helped turn us around."

Asked if he was proud his defense is so heavily penalized, Glanville said, "No, we're disappointed in that. We'd love to play the exact same way we play without having one penalty. That would really be nice. But we haven't come close yet."

EASON ACTIVATED

The New England Patriots activated Tony Eason off the injured list Wednesday, though the veteran quarterback said he is not yet ready to play.

Eason, 29, separated his right shoulder last Nov. 1 against the Los Angeles Raiders and underwent surgery last March. He suffered from post-operative nerve complications that kept him out this season.

"I can throw a ball in practice," said Eason, who practiced Wednesday. "But it is kind of rolling the dice to see where it winds up. It's tough, you just don't know what it is going to do."

Doug Flutie has moved in as the starting quarterback. Steve Grogan, who began the season as a starter, is the backup.

The Patriots, anticipating Eason's return, Monday released Tom Ramsey, who had started earlier this month.

Rudd to appeal fine

United Press International

Ricky Rudd plans to appeal a $6,000 fine levied by NASCAR for "over-aggressive driving" in Sunday's Holly Farms 400 Winston Cup race at North Wilkesboro Speedway in North Carolina.

"I am not happy with the fine," said the Chesapeake, Va., native.

NASCAR officials who viewed videotape supplied by ESPN, which televised the race, determined Rudd's driving tactics were responsible for Dale Earnhardt's wreck in the fourth turn with five laps remaining, NASCAR spokesman Chip Williams said. NASCAR handed down the fine Tuesday.

Rudd declined to comment extensively on the incident. "I think if you review people's past records that they will speak for themselves," he said.

Rudd and Earnhardt, of Kannapolis, N.C., were involved in two bumping incidents with approximately 40 laps remaining in the 400-lap race. Both were warned and were sent to the rear of the field for a re-start following a caution period.

Rudd and Earnhardt later got together in the fourth turn late in the race, causing Earnhardt to spin sideways on lap 395, where he was hit by a Ford driven by Mark Martin of Batesville, Ark.

Williams said Earnhardt was not fined for slamming into the rear of Rudd's car on lap 360, causing Rudd to spin across the track and possibly costing him the victory.

APOPKA — When you are 6-4 and weigh 215 pounds, have 4.5 speed in the 40 yard dash, have ran for four touchdowns in five games, and come out of the same high school program as Florida State star running back Sammie Smith, one would think you would be a highly recruited running back.

But not Apopka's Derrick Clark. His stock in the football trade is rising mostly on defense. "We use him in spot situations, like goal line or short yardage plays, and the coaches and I have talked about playing him on offense more," said head coach Chip Gierke. "But we just can't move him off defense. He's the Lawrence Taylor of our team. He would be a very good offensive player if we played him more, but I think we have enough offense without him. We do use him as a kick off and punt return man though."

Derrick, the son of Mary Clark, is the latest in a long line of major college prospects to come out of the Blue Darter program since 1983. Included in that group of 23 young men, are the Pittsburgh Steelers' number one pick this year, defensive end Aaron Jones, Smith, Rodney Brewer, Mark Murray and Mike Lowman.

Clark is one of those players who seems to be everywhere on the field at once. He makes tackles from sideline to sideline, from endzone to endzone, on passes as well as runs.

Last Friday night, in a 26-0 victory over Oak Ridge, he had a dream game for a defensive player. He set up the first score of the game when he recovered a fumble, he scored the second on a 73 yard punt return, intercepted a pass in the third, and also forced two more fumbles.

Clark is not a rah-rah type person but he has his moments. "I fire the team up when it needs it, and I congratulate my teammates on good plays, but I usually let my actions speak for me," said Clark.

Coach Gierke agreed: "He leads by example, but he will step out when needed. He knows he is a senior and we normally see seniors step up and become more vocal leaders." Clark also does not care where he plays, offense or defense. "It makes no difference to me. Wherever coach needs me I'll be there."

He is being recruited by many name schools. "It is the usual southern schools," said Gierke. "Florida State, Florida, Alabama, LSU. He definitely has that ability." But while there are a lot of schools after him, Derrick has some specific ones in mind. "I have my eye on about three or four schools, but I want to keep my options open for a while."

Since he has become a prospect, it also has become time to hit the books harder. "He has been just an average student," said Gierke. "It is going to be tough for him, but I think he can smell that scholarship."

"I really am working harder," said Derrick. "I really want to do well so I can go to school where I want."

After an opening season loss to Lake Howell, when regular quarterback Joey Hunt was out due to illness, Apopka has lost only once, that being to one of the top 20 high school powers in the country, Robert E. Lee High School of Montgomery, Alabama, on the road. And while their overall record does not look that impressive at three wins, and two losses, their Metro Conference and 5A-5 District record is a perfect 3-0.

This week they play an important Metro contest when they play host to the Grenadiers of Orlando Colonial High School. "After losing to both Winter Park and Evans, they have really been preparing for us," said Clark. "They have been saying that a win over Apopka would make their season. Well I just hope we can shut them down, because they have been talking too much."

Looming on the horizon is two monster games for Apopka when they take on Evans and Winter Park, the two teams which also have 3-0 records in the conference and district, but Clark thinks they have a chance. "If we keep playing the way we have the last few weeks we should have a very good chance in both games."

With players the caliber of Derrick Clark and coaches like Chip Gierke the Apopka Blue Darters will be a team to be reckoned with the rest of the season.

Three-way logjam in District 5A-5

The way it appears, the contenders in District 5A-5 are gearing up for a three-way, head-on collision for the championship. Apopka, Winter Park and Orlando Evans all stand at 3-0 in the district and should be 4-0 after this week's action. That sets up an interesting three-way duel in the last three weeks of the season.

Apopka, 4-2 overall, hosts Colonial this week and Winter Haven on Oct. 28. The Blue Darters of coach Chip Gierke then have back to back games against the other two contenders, playing at Winter Park on Nov. 4 and hosting Evans Nov. 11.

Winter Park, the No. 5 team in the state in Class 5A, is 6-0 overall going into this week's game at Orlando Boone. The Wildcats of coach Larry Gergely then have their biggest outing of the year on Oct. 28 when they host Evans at Showalter Field. Winter Park then turns around to play Apopka on Nov. 4.

Evans, 5-0 overall and No. 10 in the state, hosts West Orange this Friday night before going to Winter Park on the 28th and traveling to Apopka Nov. 11. Although Winter Park is the higher ranked team, there is a favorite among the three. Whoever executes its game plan and makes the least mistakes will be the district champion in what has to be one of the toughest districts in the state.

Over in District 5A-4, there are a few big games this Friday night as Lyman plays Spruce Creek (at Daytona's Municipal Stadium) and Lake Brantley hosts DeLand.

Spruce Creek stands at 2-0 in the district while Lyman is 1-1. Lyman can put itself into the race and at the same time knock the Creek down a few notches. The Creek can put itself in excellent position with a win.

Swim

The Lake Mary boys and the Lady Rams took it to the Seminoles as Lyman's Cindy Pruitt cranked to two individual victories and lent a hand to a relay win.

"We needed a victory like this after the last two losses," assistant Greyhound coach Noel Minck said. "Cindy had a good meet. She always hangs tough in the 500 free."

Pruitt scored victories in the 200 and 500 freestyles at 2:26.05 and 6:28.23, respectively and helped the Lyman 400 free relay to a win at 4:25.63. Other members of the relay included Jennifer and Rhonda Ricketson and Nicole Mabry.

Other wins for the Lady Greyhounds were Mabry in the 500 free (29:96), Ricketson in the 100 butterfly (1:14.53), Lisa Strayer in the 100 backstroke (1:18.14), and Angie Pfaff in the diving.

In the boys meet it was the same old story as the consistent veterans once again showed their state-class power. Seniors Chuck Reinighaus, Dave Bandy, and Nick Radkewich all scored triple victories and John Metzdorf and the older brother of Dave, Jim Bandy both touched in with double victories.

"Our boys looked strong today and we had some real good swims," Minck said. "They're all coming along and they're getting stronger and stronger. We're getting our younger kids ready for the conference. They're our core for conference. They are the ones who could win or lose it for us."

Reinighaus took the 50 free in 22.52 and the 100 butterfly at 56.36, and then led off the winning 400 free relay team of the Bandy brothers and Kevin Scott who touched in at 3:31.2.

Radkewich equaled Reinighaus' performance with victories in the 200 I.M. at 2:17.37, the 100 free in 53.49, and the 200 medley relay team of Metzdorf, Chris Rittlinger, Seminole's Scott Lewis splashes through the water during Wednesday's dual meet vs. Lyman.

and John Jones at 1:55.35.

The younger Bandy showed that being a junior didn't affect his drive to be a winner as he took the 500 free in 4:53.22 and the 100 breaststroke at 1:08.83.

Other wins for the Greyhounds included the elder Bandy in the 200 free in 1:54.48, Metzdorf in the 100 back (1:02.84) and Todd Brooks in the diving.

Lake Mary boys, Lady Pats dominate

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

The Lake Mary boys and the Lake Brantley girls each exchanged convincing victories Wednesday afternoon in prep swimming action as the Rams downed the Pats, 116-35, and the Lady Patriots returned the favor by drubbing the Lady Rams, 111-55.

Even though the Lady Rams lost, they were the closest team to the Lady Pats in dual meet action thus far this year. However, the state-runners up for the past two years were too much to handle, according to Ram head coach Walt Morgan.

"We swam well considering we're swimming the number one team in the state right now," Morgan said. "We worked hard today. We stacked both of our relays and they still took first and second. They are really tough."

Not one Lady Pat did the leading in the victory arsenal, but a slew of individuals came through for the Lady Patriots. Jody Lake, Kristen and Ryann Pauley, Manda Davis, Dani Ohnman, and Beth Rosenbluth all scored wins for the Pats, who despite losing to defending 3A state champion St. Andrews in the National Spa and Pool Institute Invitational at the Justus Aquatic Center last weekend, have yet to lose a dual meet and remain the favorites along with Spanish River to vie for the state 4A title.

Even though the Lady Rams lost all of the swimming events to the depth-filled Patriot squad, diver Vanessa Rogers stopped a complete whitewash with an impressive showing on the board as she sprang her way to a win with 96.15 points.

The boys meet was a complete turnaround as Chris Snively led the way with triumphs in the 200 I.M. and the 400 free relay where he teamed with Rob Baker, Zach Simecek, and Karl Kuchma.

"Chris swam better than anybody," Morgan said. "He really works for what he gets. No matter if he's far behind or way out in front, he swims as hard as he can."

It was a day for double wins as Baker, Kuchma, Simecek, Steve Kostowicz, Barry Helt and Lake Brantley's Scott Rowe all recorded twin wins for their teams.

"Our boys swam real well considering there was really no one there to push them," Morgan said. "We have a team that swims hard when the meet's hard, but doesn't really give a strong effort if the meet's not hard."

The Rams, Patriots, along with Lyman, Seminole, Lake Howell, DeLand, and Oviedo, will all take the week off to prepare for the Seminole Athletic Conference meet which will be held next Friday and Saturday at Lyman High. The diving takes place on Friday while the swimming kicks into action on Saturday. The Rams boys and the Patriot girls are both defending SAC champions.

Oviedo rebounds to rip St. Cloud

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

OVIDEO — Suzanne Hughes and Serena Caldeyro led the Oviedo Lady Lions to a convincing, 15-4, 15-4, victory over St. Cloud Wednesday night before a crowd of 111 at Oviedo High School.

The Lady Lions, coming off a disappointing loss to Lake Brantley on Tuesday, improved to 15-2 overall this season and will return to action this Monday against Bishop Moore. St. Cloud dropped to 6-9 and will return to action against Kissimmee Osceola next Tuesday.

In the opening game Shannon Wilcoxson continued to serve well for Oviedo and managed to get the first two points of the match and give her team the lead for good.

After St. Cloud managed a side out and a point of the service of Melanie Foucher, Caldeyro opened the game up with seven straight service points. Caldeyro's run was powered by two aces, a Hughes kill and a dink by Betsy Hughes.

Tough decision for married woman

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old married woman with two children, 11 and 14. I've been married for 16 years to a career Army man. (I'll call him Al.) Al was given the choice of going to Germany for three years with his family or two years without us. Without even discussing it with me, he chose to go to Germany without us.

After 10 months of being alone, I became romantically involved with my chiropractor. (I'll call him Seymour.) Seymour is 34, has never been married, and he treats me like a queen. Never in my life have I been this happy. When Al came home, I told him the truth and asked for a divorce so I could marry Seymour. Al was shocked because all through our marriage, I had been true-blue, while he played around.

Now I'm getting advice from all sides. Al's family has called me every name in the book. My friends who know how much I had to put up with over the years say, "Dump Al, and go for it with the doctor." My 11-year-old says, "Stay with Daddy." The 14-year-old says, "Daddy deserted us when he went to Germany, so marry Doc." What should I do?

ADVICE

ARMY WIFE

DEAR ARMY WIFE: Only you can make this decision. Do nothing while you are still in doubt. You need to sort out your feelings with a counselor to determine whether your marriage can, or should, be saved. Your husband also should be counseled, because unless you both "fix" what went wrong with your marriage, a reconciliation would be only temporary.

DEAR ABBY: I do agree with "Irritated in Colorado"—but the problem actually refers to how all women (not just teenagers) are addressed. To call a young woman "Honey" is tantamount to calling a young man "Sonny Boy," and I don't think you would do that.

Not too long ago, a friend and I, both in our 60s, were greeted by a clerk with, "What can I do for you girls today?" This is patronizing and demeaning. In a doctor's office, I was waiting for my appointment with a man also about 60. The receptionist said to him, "You may go in now, Mr. Smith," but when my turn came, she said, "The doctor will see you now, Marilyn."

I always correct these people gently but firmly. Often they are surprised because they had not even realized that this is a subtle kind of put-down. Actually, I would like to see all forms of address more formal when people are acquainted only in a business or service station. First names and pet names are fine for friends and family because they denote an intimacy. However, I resent it from strangers. LYN VENABLE, WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.

DEAR MS. VENABLE: I plead "guilty." I have called someone I did not know well "Honey." But regardless of how that person perceives my motives, I assure you it is not intended as a "subtle put-down." Perhaps it is too friendly, in poor taste or presumptuous—but never any kind of putdown or intention to demean.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How I laughed at your article about free VA care! My husband, a vet of World War II, has had surgery for rectal cancer, an ostomy, liver cancer, diabetes, cataract surgery, heart trouble and a stroke. I can't get the VA even to supply the necessary ostomy supplies, let alone the "routine" checkups. If we didn't live in Mexico, we'd be street people by now because of our medical bills, and all thanks to the VA.

DEAR READER: I am sorry to learn of your husband's difficulties with the Veteran's Administration. I know that the VA sometimes stubs its toe — it is, after all, a bureaucracy like any other. However, the VA hospital system, despite its drawbacks, continues to provide low-cost medical care to veterans.

In my opinion, your husband's ill health, not the VA, is the root of the problem. If you believe that he has been unfairly treated, you can certainly appeal the VA decision or work through your congressman.

Because the VA has relatively strict rules about how the system responds to the needs of veterans, I usually encourage people to carry private health insurance in the event that the VA denies their claims.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my health report, "Insuring Your Good Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I went on a very strict diet for six months and became constipated. I'm now hooked on laxatives — seven a day. If I don't take them, my bowels don't move. What can I do?

DEAR READER: Strict dieting may deprive people of intestinal bulk and roughage, leading to constipation. You may be able to get back on the right track by taking one of the commercially available plant derivatives, such as Metamucil, to add fiber to your diet. These preparations are low-calorie and will often solve the problem.

In addition, you might try eating more salads and raw vegetables.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

If you're going to bid your hand to the hilt, you'd better be able to play it as well. South had a good hand, but it wouldn't play very well opposite zero high cards. When South reopened with a double, the two-diamond bid by North showed nothing other than moderate diamond length. Then, when East competed with two hearts, South bid three hearts to express that his hand suddenly looked much better. Because North had an ace which his partner did not know about, he wisely decided to show it by jumping to five diamonds. That was doubled by East on general principles.

South had plenty of work to do. For starters, he needed two club tricks. He also needed to lead up to the diamond queen. And of course there was no guarantee that he would not have an eventual spade loser. Since he did not think that East would have passed his partner's one-heart overcall with two kings, he decided to play West for the club king. So he won the ace of hearts and immediately led the club queen out of his hand. West took the king and played a second heart, ruffed. Declarer now led to dummy's ace of diamonds and played dummy's 10 of clubs. When East played low, so did South. That line worked, and declarer was still in dummy. He led a diamond, and the king was onside. Later, when the spade suit split, declarer had made five diamonds doubled. But just try to do it without the queen of clubs play at the second trick!

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
October 21, 1988

More opportunities than usual should be in the offing to strengthen your financial position in the year ahead. Your prospects look better than they have in years.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A trend is beginning to develop that will have a favorable influence on your earning potential. It will not be a cycle of short duration. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Take a chance on your own ideas today before you look to others. What you conceive is likely to have far greater potential for success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Let your natural sense of timing come into play today if you're trying to finalize an important matter. Press for the close when your intuition directs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be reluctant to ask probing questions today regarding something new you are undertaking but don't fully comprehend. The information is available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are two promising areas at present that could be meaningful financially. One is your regular work, the other is a confidential channel.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is the kind of day you'll like, because you should be able to do things your own way. If you don't run the show, you'll have only yourself to blame.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be impatient, even if you feel blocked. Surprising things could develop behind the scenes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Involvements with friends where important issues are concerned, things should work out in ways that will make everyone happy. Do your part.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though a goal you'll be striving towards today will be personal, you might be surprised how much support you get from others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In partnership arrangements today, it should be you rather than your associate, who plays the major role. Assert yourself, don't wait upon this person to make the first move.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not be in a position to influence changes today, but you will be able to make the most of any shifts that occur. The benefits could be considerable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions are quite favorable today for striking bargains or making deals. Try to do so now, because later influences may be less conducive.
