TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE
 This was a command to attempt the impossible, but that is the biblical message of the Bible. It has made Hebron slaves into a great people. Speak to the children of Israel that they go forward.—Ex. 14:16.

They keep on doing big things out at Delary. Central Florida's fastest growing community.

Truman Said Whittling Away at His Own Budget—headline. What he needs is an axe instead of a pocketknife.

One of the nation's top Communists lives within six miles of Orlando, Sanford's Judge Stenstrom told the Orlando DAV the other night. We understand there are about 50 Communists living in Seminole County. That is not many, but they can do a great deal of harm because not many know who they are. If Communists had to wear a badge "I am a Communist", they couldn't cause much trouble.

Dorothy Dix, who probably gave more advice to more love sick people than anyone else in the world, is dead at the age of 81. For more than 50 years she has been leading out her heart to millions of persons throughout the nation, but what is infinitely more important she was being read. Any of us can offer advice, or almost any subject under the world, but few will listen. They listened to Miss Dix. That was the secret of her power.

"Distant Drums" is having its world premiere on Dec. 22 in St. Augustine where it was filmed and where much of the action of the picture takes place. Before long it will be shown in Sanford and everyone should see it. Based on the Seminole Indian War, the last big Indian struggle east of the Mississippi River, the picture will give many present day Floridians a knowledge of their historical background which is sorely lacking in many of them. The picture also shows the further possibilities of Florida as a center for the motion picture industry.

Dr. Wilson Sowder, Florida's state health officer, is in an agreement with Senator Thomas Dandridge of New York, over which state has the better retirement possibilities for old folks, which has the more healthful climate in which those who have reached the declining years of their life may retire. Dr. Sowder, it seems to us, wins the argument when he asks how anyone of any age could live in New York. "It is a source of wonder to us," he says, "that so many people stay in New York and the retirement age, subjecting themselves to stomach ulcers, high blood pressure, and nervous breakdowns." Most people in New York are merely trying to make enough money so that they can afford to retire and come live in Florida. Those of us who already live in Florida don't have to worry about that.

A friend of ours brings in the following which he says just covers his life's history: "I married a widow who had a young stepdaughter," he says. "My father-in-law lived with my mother and after a while she died. So my father-in-law and my mother and my stepdaughter, because of my father's wife's death, lived together. My father-in-law was the father of my stepdaughter and my wife. My father-in-law and my wife were the brother of my stepdaughter. My father-in-law's wife (my mother) also had a son, my stepbrother, and my mother and my stepbrother were the brother of my stepdaughter. My father-in-law's wife (my mother) also had a son, my stepbrother, and my mother and my stepbrother were the brother of my stepdaughter."

Income Tax Limit

A new campaign is being made by the Western Tax Council on its proposal for an amendment to the Constitution limiting federal income taxes to twenty-five per cent in peacetime. Legislatures in twenty-six states have petitioned Congress for a constitutional convention to consider the proposal; petitions from eight more states are needed to bring the convention into being.

The convention method of amending the Constitution has never been employed, but there probably would be no other way to get an amendment limiting the income tax. Congress would hardly make the proposal unless forced to it. The present income tax is already far in excess of twenty-five per cent for the higher incomes, and is approaching that figure for the middle and even the lower incomes. The proposed change thus would reduce present taxes on higher incomes.

As doubtless intended by its supporters, the proposed limit would force Congress to find other ways to raise taxes or else cut government costs drastically. It would, in effect, tend to be constitutional limitation on the size of the government. There would be a loophole, however, and perhaps a dangerous one. The limit would not apply in wartime, an exception which would clearly be necessary in order to leave the hand of Congress free. There are already great temptations to prolong an official state of war in order to retain the extraordinary war powers of government; the unlimited power to tax incomes would be added to these.

A simpler, quicker and more effective way to reduce the income tax would be to elect representatives and senators pledged to make real cuts in the cost of government.

Refreshing Honesty

With news of influence peddling and tax frauds raising questions about our national integrity, it is refreshing and encouraging to read of a transaction with the government guided by a sense of honor and ethics. In North Wales, Pennsylvania, a tool manufacturing concern discovered that it had filled an Army Ordnance contract and made a larger profit than had been expected when its bid was accepted. The company felt "morally obligated" to offer the Army a reduction of $6,000.

The recent scandals involving government officials are very disturbing, and every citizen should be concerned about them. Officials who sold influence were guilty of serious misconduct and the businesses which bought it were no less guilty. But these cases should not lead to the conclusion that all public officials are corrupt and all business dishonest in its practices.

Most businesses are conducted on a highly ethical plane and would reject any opportunity to gain through corruption of public officials. Most officials would be equally prompt in refusing anything resembling a bribe. It is important to expose corruption wherever it exists but it should be remembered that dishonesty is still the exception rather than the rule. We're glad to have this $6,000 piece of evidence to that effect.

Preventing Explosions

It is claimed that a British military invention can prevent the gasoline tanks of warplanes from exploding when hit. It is a simple container of smothering gas, placed inside the fuel tank, which bursts under the pressure of a beginning explosion and snuffs it out instantly. It may also be capable of preventing other explosions, for example those which sometimes occur in coal mines.

Mr. McKinney's Investment
 New York Tribune

Mr. Frank E. McKinney, the new Democratic National Chairman, who has undertaken to set the "termites" out of the woodwork and promised to "let the chips fall where they may," manifested a distinct annoyance yesterday that any one should be interested in that little business investment of his own which in 1946 turned him a modest profit—at least 6,700 per cent in ten months—with a concern known as Empire Tractor. Empire Tractor was a peculiarly tangled offshoot of Empire Ordnance, which has played so prominent a part in the government-contract and influence business. Perhaps it all depends on which termites are exposed and where the falling chips may hit.

Mr. McKinney seems to feel that this oddly profitable transaction—which was duplicated at the same time by Indiana's Boss McHale, the chief sponsor of Mr. McKinney for the "housecleaning" party chairmanship—is nobody's affair but his own. Mr. McHale has certified Mr. McKinney as "like Caesar's wife, above reproach." Mr. McKinney has recorded his impression that Mr. McHale is just

WASHINGTON (AP)—Before public interest in the government scandals subsides there will be more investigations and, probably, more irregularities exposed. But the interest, public shock, investigations and exposures will be a farcical, short-time result unless steps are taken to make future crookedness tougher.

President Truman said he'll try to make it harder for government employees to have outside interests. That should help, by cutting off some of the avenues that lead to crookedness or "indiscretions."

But making crookedness more difficult won't keep crooks out, no matter whether Democrats or Republicans are in the saddle, since government employees are recruited from considered pillars of the population in full of loyalty.

The shenanigans of racketeers go on, but the public—both the general public—but the racketeers are only a small percentage of the crooks that are loose.

Government attorneys who handle tax cases, for instance, will show you that the overwhelming percentage of tax frauds are committed by people who have been considered pillars of their community.

In the past year a special committee of the Senate was set up under Senator Douglas, Illinois Democrat, to study the problem of ethics in government and it reported: "No group in society is in a position to point the finger of scorn at others. Influence peddlers can exist only as long as businessmen or others are willing to patronize them."

"Favoritism can be a problem only when individual men and women seek favors of the government. Gifts, improper pressure, and bribes come from outside the government, from individuals, organizations, and from groups who are part of what we call the 'public.'"

"When educational institutions which we have long regarded as responsible for moral leadership are troubled by the problems of professionalism, commercialism and dishonesty in amateur athletics. It is evident that we are all living in the same glass house."

In the past Congress could have tightened the laws to keep employees of the government on the straight and narrow. It may do something in that direction as a result of the present disclosures.

Several months ago the House subcommittee investigating the tax scandals requested that all employees of the Internal Revenue Bureau be ordered to fill out a questionnaire showing all their income. This was done.

But members of Congress themselves are not exempt from the law which would require all members of Congress and all judges to list—for public inspection—all their income above their salary. The same would apply to other government employees making $10,000 a year or more.

President Truman came out for pretty much the same plan a couple of weeks ago. But once again Congress went home for the year without paying any attention to the suggestion. After it left, the Douglas committee proposed a similar plan for action in 1952.

If the public could see such a list of congressmen's income it would be able to tell a little better—after a member of Congress plugged for or opposed a certain bill—whether he had any personal interest in it or stood to lose or benefit, depending on whether it passed or didn't.

Record Spending By Business Is New Year's Prop

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The longer the business boom lasts the more nervous people get about the chance of a slump coming soon—after the old adage that everything that goes up must come down.

"We are in the longest business boom in record in this country," the Cleveland Trust Co. noted today, "with temporary interruptions, it has lasted more than 11 years."

And the National Association of Credit Men warned: "The end of the synthetic prosperity, in which industry has operated for so many months, may come sooner than is now anticipated."

But the Cleveland Trust Co. is a bit more cheerful in its business bulletin. It sees few signs of that happening in 1952.

Without the prop of continuing large spending for defense the boom probably wouldn't last through next year, the bank admits. But it expects the arm program to continue much, "generally a great deal of industrial activity in 1952."

The boom's other big prop this year has been the record spending by business for new plant and equipment. Much of this is closely tied in with the defense program and will continue into the New Year, although less essential expansion probably will drop off. The bank guesses that total dollar volume of construction in 1952 will be from five to 10 per cent lower than this year—but that's still quite high.

"Home building will decline by at least 15 per cent, and perhaps by more than 30 per cent," the bank predicts, "but the price of new homes will be harder to get and also that demand for new homes will be less."

The cost of living is likely to be higher, but not as high as some say. Wholesale prices may work higher, but raw-material prices in general probably will not average much above the 1951 level.

Retail sales should top this year, perhaps by more than five per cent, the bank says, because of the public's large purchasing power and its need to replace goods it bought a year ago in a war-scare spree. To supply this demand, business has both the large stock of finished goods now on hand and the great productive capacity of the nation's factories. The defense program will spur some output but no doubt others by control over scarce materials. This will hold industrial production in general at about the same level or a little higher.

Some of the industries that have been sluggish recently should perk up next year. For example, the bank predicts greater output of textile products and shoes. It thinks that food products, chemicals and all products will flow in even greater volume.

Durable goods will show mixed trends. Those "directly or indirectly important to the defense program, such as steel ingots and machinery, will increase over 1951," the bank says. But production in auto production at more than 15 per cent under 1951.

The principal source of serious inflation, namely deficit financing by the government, will not exert any important influence in the first half of 1952," the bank says. It believes treasury receipts will run ahead of expenditures until mid-year.

It foresees a sharp rise in government spending in the last half of next year, however, offering the nation the alternatives of higher taxes, large deficit financing, or a reduction of non-essential government expenditures.

For these three, the bank says rather sadly, large deficit financing appears the most likely. Serious inflation, however, could be held off some time by two things: public resistance to higher prices, and the growing productive capacity of the factories.

Of one thing coming next year the bank is very certain: "The output of paper for government forms and questionnaires will increase."

Use of the ultra high frequencies planned for television use would involve adoption of small antenna, about a foot in length.

Turkeys are grown in every one of the United States.

Back in Washington to try to attend a lot of work that piled up while I was in the District. It seems that every day the work piles up. We are going to try to take care of it all before the first of the year. Some of our mail hasn't been answered as promptly as we would have liked to see. Even though we think we have an efficient office staff, there are some things that no one else in the office can do.

Some things that we can not do. For example, we are not able to get RFC loans for people. If you desire such a loan you must apply in person to the Jacksonville office of the RFC. You will have to sell them on the merits of your application. I feel that Congressional influence should not have anything to do with whether such loans are granted. Too, recent events have made government departments so fearful of investigations that they will now bend over backward to avoid political interference. That's the way it should be. Theoretically, these lending agencies were set up on a non-political basis. That some have degenerated is obvious.

list of congressmen's income it would be able to tell a little better—after a member of Congress plugged for or opposed a certain bill—whether he had any personal interest in it or stood to lose or benefit, depending on whether it passed or didn't.

When they argue on the floor about a bill, members of Congress never ask one another about personal interest. But a public listing of income would let the public know sometimes whether a body was buried.

Life In U.S. "Ice Box" Cities Is Up-To-Date And Is Livable

CHICAGO—Winter life in America's "ice box" cities is very tolerable and up-to-date, thank you. These cities are the first ones you'll read about when this winter's worst cold waves start howling down from Canada and spreading their misery across the U. S. map.

The cold hits them first and leaves them last. It generally gets and stays colder there than in any other cities in the United States.

But don't shed a tear for the residents of Bemidji and International Falls, Minn., or Havre, Mont., where the mercury sometimes dips from 40 to 50 or more below zero. Or for the 800 inhabitants of Pembina, N. D., where the January temperature averages 24 degrees below zero.

This is a civilized age with coal and oil furnaces and modern movie houses and stores. These northerners are prepared for their situation—except that these northerners like to spend more time out in the open. Their favorite winter sports are skating, hockey, skiing, tobogganing, and basketball.

There are good theaters, bridge and cribbage card parties, pot-luck dinners, dances, library and heavy, wind-driven snow—not intense cold—is their worry. They dress properly for long hours out of doors. And yet a housewife may slip on nothing more heavy than a coat or jacket and dash from her well heated home to the corner market—probably in sheer stockings or none at all—for a box of breakfast food, a can of soup, or fresh meat for the evening meal.

Some women shrink from wearing up to the fact they own "anugues" but sales of these cold weather garments in stores give them away.

Life in these frigid spots is not much different than anywhere else—except that these northerners like to spend more time out in the open. Their favorite winter sports are skating, hockey, skiing, tobogganing, and basketball.

Bond Chairman Suggests Bonds For Xmas Gifts

A suggestion for a Christmas gift "at once patriotic and practical, that grows in value through the years and is a better buy today than it was last Christmas" was made today by Forrest Gatchell, chairman of the U. S. Defense Bonds Committee for Seminole County.

"That is the Series E Defense Bond," Mr. Gatchell explained. "These bonds have been popular as Christmas gifts since they were first issued in 1941. Within the past year, the life of all E Bonds, whether issued in the past or to be issued in the future, has been extended for an additional ten years beyond the original ten year maturity period. The owner simply holds onto the bonds and they continue to grow in cash value each six months up to the twentieth year.

"In other words, each $18.75 invested in an E Bond of $25 face value will return $33.33 at the end of 20 years; $37.50 put into a $50 bond will grow to $66.67; $75 invested in a $100 bond will bring back $133.33—and so on through the $200, $500 and $1,000 denominations of E Bonds.

"The new 20-year life of the E Bond makes it especially attractive as a gift for a new baby, who will be of college age twenty years from now, or for children who will then be starting out in life for themselves. One E Bond leads to another, and gift bonds regularly added to at Christmas and on birthdays will grow into a neat sum by the time the children and the bonds mature. Of course, Defense Bonds are good gifts for all ages, and buying bonds is good for everybody, not only for the thrifty bond saver but for all Americans since saving helps to fortify the whole economy of our country.

"Local banks and postoffices are giving an attractive gift ticket free to E Bond buyers as long as the limited supply lasts," Mr. Gatchell added. "The cover is a color reproduction of a painting of the Star of Bethlehem."

BEST PICTURE
NEW YORK—The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has picked "A Place in the Sun" as the best picture of 1941. For the year's best acting, the board has selected Jan Sterling in "The Big Carnival" and Richard Basehart in "Fourteen Hours."

The board announced its selections Monday night.

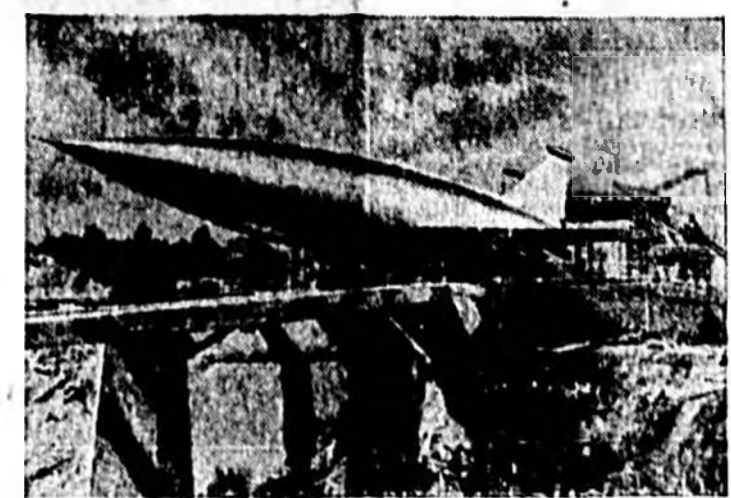

"A Place in the Sun" was the film review (Paramount) of Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," George Stevens directed it.

spots. Caribou, Me., is one of the first U. S. communities to feel the Arctic blasts starting down from eastern Canada. Last winter, Caribou's lowest reading was only -31, but the temperature slipped to -52 in February, 1943.

Havre, Mont., on the highline, had a -62 reading a few years ago. Wisdom, in southeast Montana had a -62 snap last winter.

Individual farmers and ranchers get snowed in every winter in many parts of Montana and a few towns are snowbound for short periods. Most farmers in the heavy snow belt prepare for short hibernating periods by laying out woodpiles as high as their ing in plenty of everything. They houses and fill up their pantries with supplies.

Hal Boyle Says Women Superior To Men In Many Ways

NEW YORK—Women are superior to men in many ways. (The trouble is they know it.)

Men use logic as a crutch, something to lean on. Women use logic like a pole vault. When it can lift them no higher, they let go of it and go sailing on.

They never become a prisoner of logic as men do. If it can no longer serve them, they simply rise above logic. This explains why women are mentally superior to men and why no woman in history ever was proved wrong. Illogical? Of course. But wrong? Never.

Women show the same change of pace ability in the matter of emotion. They are great broken field runners here, too, and that is why they are emotionally superior to men.

Many a strong man will let an emotion get him down until, as he says, "I fell lower than a whale's abdomen." But a woman? When she feels that low she sets about finding a way to have a whale of a time out of it.

This difference between the sexes is most clearly shown in how they react to "the glooms." The glooms is a disease that thrives on civilization. It is the feeling you get when something goes awry. As civilization gets more and more complicated, there naturally are more things to go awry, so the glooms seem to mushroom more and more.

But whether the glooms come from a broken heart, a lost job, or a traffic cop's unkind remarks, a woman knows how to rise above them better than a man. He wallows in his depression until he almost drowns of self-pity. She tears herself out of despair by giving herself small unexpected pleasures. She takes positive action to lead her spirits out of the black jail.

That is why, when women feel bad, they buy themselves a new hat or lunch at a restaurant they can't afford. They do something positive to break the pattern of their mood and make themselves feel better.

Men don't know how. They just go on feeling sorry for themselves until they wear out their worries or their worries wear them out. They end up with ulcers—the ladies with new wardrobes.

Poor man. They never have learned how and when to celebrate. They think the time to have a gay night out on the town is after they have had a raise in pay. That's when they ought to go home and relax. They feel good enough already. It's when they've had tough luck they ought to dress up, see a good show, and start opening champagne bottles. Anything to pull them out of the glooms.

To men life is usually black or white. They feel good or they feel bad, and they have no ready formula to change the color of their emotions. To women life is more pastel, and they are artists in living. They change the colors if they get too somber. At least they try to.

When I explained this theory to my wife, Frances, she replied: "Never, that is the only sensible thing I ever heard you say about women. The reason women live longer than men is that they know how to get themselves when they feel bad. Men don't."

I don't know what she'll say, however, when I lug home the new television set I bought yesterday. I was feeling lousy.

FORT MYERS—Search continued today for the body of James F. Gibbs, 40, believed drowned Saturday night along with his wife, Hazel, 36, and their pet dog during a squall off the Southwest Florida coast.

Deputy Sheriff Louis Pelicer said the couple was returning to Moundgo Island from Uzeppa Island when a sudden rainstorm capsized their small boat about 10:45 p. m.

Mrs. Gibbs' body was found near Uzeppa Island a short time after searchers located the overturned boat. The body was sent to Edison N. C. for burial.

Pelicer theorized that Gibbs' body may have been carried out to sea on the tide from Boca Grande Pass, just north of Moundgo Island.
