Ex-con released early charged with beating, robbery of elderly woman

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A man released early from prison is behind bars once again.

Tyrone Terrell Carr, 23, has been charged with robbing and beating a 76-year-old woman in her Mayfair home, east of the Seminole County Services Building in Sanford.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department, Carr is being investigated in at least three other burglaries in Sanford.

The woman said she doesn't believe the charges against him are enough to keep him in prison for very long.

Tyrone Carr

"I feel he should have gotten more," she said. "He was trying to kill me that day."

Whitmire said Carr was taken into custody after his girlfriend's mother had contacted the police to tell them that he had many items in his apartment that could have been stolen.

Uniformed officers went to the apartment at the Mellonville Trace Apartments and were given permission by the girlfriend to search the apartment, Whitmire said. He noted that Carr, who Whitmire said has a history of 14 or 15 arrests, none of them in Sanford, was not there at the time.

In the apartment, officers found stereo speakers, compact discs, cellular telephones, cassette tapes, wallets, purses and assorted driver's licenses.

A CD player and speakers were identified as having been reported stolen so the police sought to find Carr in order to arrest him.

He was found hiding in another apartment in the same complex, Whitmire said.

"He didn't come willingly," Whitmire said. See Arrest, Page 5A

Crime fight continues

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The fight to get tough on crime continued on two fronts Tuesday. The full House worked on juvenile justice reform and a Senate panel approved a three-strikes-and-you're-in proposal.

Both measures have several more steps in the legislative process.

The House juvenile justice proposal creates a new department to handle teen-age criminals, calls for more adult prosecution of teen-agers with long, violent records and provides for longer stays in detention centers and residential programs like boot camps. It has $11 million over two years to create a new department, a figure that satisfies HRS.

School trend?

Paddling students falls out of favor

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The rest of the country seems to be following the trend Seminole County established several years ago.

Corporal punishment, once a staple of the disciplinary menu, has grown out of favor with local officials because it appeared to be an ineffective deterrent to undesirable behavior.

As fewer and fewer schools chose to exercise their option to spank children, the district chose last year to eliminate it as an alternative for punishment by formally removing it from the discipline policy.

Dave Scott, principal of Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford, said he stopped using corporal punishment as a discipline about a decade ago while he was the principal at Longwood Elementary School.

"Frankly, we just stopped using it," he explained. "Because we were seeing the same kids coming back for the same punishment. It wasn't working."

Other principals started to see the merits of

Mandatory garbage pickup closer

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A divided Seminole County commission took a step towards requiring mandatory garbage collection for all unincorporated residents Tuesday.

Voting 3-2, commissioners directed staff to notify residents of the program and to conclude contract negotiations with the four garbage haulers. Residents will receive mailed notices after April 11 explaining the program and giving them service options. Commissioners will hold a public hearing May 10 to formally create the program. Approval of annualized billing will be considered Sept. 13.

The vote fell along party lines. Republicans supporting the program, Democrats rejecting it.

GOP commissioners Daryl McLain, Dick Van Der Welde and Pat Warren voted for the program, saying it would resolve many complaints and help reduce rates. Commissioner Carlton Henley joined fellow Democrat Larry Furlong to oppose the program, both saying the county should stay out of the garbage business and allow open competition to establish rates when current contracts expire in September 1995.

"I don't think the solution lies with greater intrusion of government on citizens," said Henley.

"I'm a strong supporter of free enterprise, but when the cart's in the ditch, someone's got to get it out," Warren said.

If commissioners give their formal approval in May, the 35,500 current

3 sightings of 'fake cop' reported

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Lady Lake woman has now reported three sightings of the "fake cop" which has been sighted in three counties.

And Sanford police stopped a suspected fake cop near downtown at about noon yesterday, only to find the driver was an Ocala-area law enforcement officer. In Lake County, another person stopped by a marked police car, complete with police identification on the side and a red and blue light bar on top, called dispatchers to verify if the officer was indeed a real one.

Reportings of the fake cop driving a white sedan with a revolving blue light on the dashboard are mounting — as is paranoia, say law enforcement officials.

"I wish we could catch this guy," said Lady Lake police Lt. Ed Nathanson. "It's putting our people in real danger and it's putting the public in real fear."

A 22-year-old Lady Lake woman reported she was stopped in Fruitland Park early Tuesday morning by the same large white sedan which attempted to stop her at the same location and time of day Saturday. This time, the woman reported she got out of her car and walked back to meet the man, who had exited and asked for her identification, said Fruitland Park police Sgt. Rob Parish.

When the woman demanded to see his badge, the man said it was in his car, then grabbed her waist, the woman reported. Parish said the woman said she kicked him and he left. The description of the man — with short brown curly hair — given by the woman matched earlier descriptions of the suspect.

Lady Lake police say the same woman filed a report of a similar vehicle attempting to stop her Feb. 27.

In Sanford, police Lt. Dennis Whitmore said dispatchers received a call that the "fake cop" was in town at about noon Tuesday. Police found the vehicle near Sun Bank, only to discover it was an official unmarked vehicle driven by an Ocala-area officer.

Lake County investigator's composites of the "fake cop" plaguing motorists in Lake, Seminole and Sumter Counties. The man wearing a cap stopped a Mount Dora man Friday morning on State Road 46 near the Lake-Seminole County line. The hatless man stopped a Lady Lake woman in her town Feb. 23 and grabbed her hair.

Killer confessed to 21 slayings

By Associated Press

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — The clues pointed toward Larry Eyer for more than a decade.

A dead man's blood was found on his boots, but the evidence was thrown out on a technicality. The day after another body was found, Eyer was treated at a hospital for a knife wound. Later that day, he bought handcuffs and a knife.

So it was little surprise to prosecutors across Illinois and Indiana when a lawyer announced Tuesday that Eyer had admitted before he died of AIDS on Sunday that he killed 21 people over two years in the early 1980s.

"He was our prime suspect" in the death of a man whose body was found in 1982, said Tim Bukowski, a spokesman for the Kankakee County Sheriff's Department.

"Eyer died while on death row for a murder he never admitted to. He also was serving a 60-year sentence for one of the 21 killings.

Kathleen Zellner, the lawyer who handled his appeals, said Eyer had told her over the past three years of the slayings.

Zellner couldn't reveal the confessions while Eyer was alive because of lawyer-client privilege, but she said she persuaded him to let her release his confession after his death.

"I think there's a poetic justice in it, that what couldn't be accomplished through the legal system, I guess, was taken care of maybe by a higher authority," she said.

His admission brought relief to the families of his victims.

"We thought for a long time that Larry did it. Now we know for a fact that he admitted to doing it, and we can maybe go on with our lives now," said Charles McNeive, whose brother Danny was found dead in Indiana in 1983.

Zellner released a list of 21 killings Eyer confessed to, along with the places and dates where victims were found between 1982 and 1984. Zellner's list gave no name for seven of the victims. Eleven were found in Indiana, nine in Illinois and one body has never been found.

Eyer was sentenced to death for killing a 15-year-old male prostitute in 1984 but never admitted he was guilty.

Clinton says revamp unemployment system

By ROBERT NAVLOR JR.
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton, focusing on jobs in advance of an international conference on unemployment, is presenting Congress with a plan for revamping assistance programs for jobless Americans.

Clinton scheduled a news conference today to unveil a program to provide extended jobless benefits for displaced workers learning new skills. It also would combine all state and federal unemployment programs into one-stop career centers, where those looking for work can apply for benefits, receive counseling and sign up for training.

The president presents his Reemployment Act to Congress as he prepares to open an international jobs conference next Monday in Detroit.

Aides sought Tuesday to lower expectations that the two-day meeting will produce any dramatic solutions to the problem of chronically high unemployment around the world.

Robert Rubin, director of the president's National Economic Council, said the meeting will not produce "a communique or events or initiatives."

"This is not a meeting that is going to announce some grand global initiative," said Treasury Undersecretary Lawrence Summers, who briefed reporters along with Rubin.

Conference participants will include top economic officials from the world's seven richest industrial countries — the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy — plus representatives from the 12-nation European Union.

Clinton first proposed the conference last July at the annual seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo.

On the domestic front, Clinton will ask Congress to spend $13 billion over five years on a program that would allow community colleges and other local groups to compete with government-run programs for federal dollars to retrain dislocated workers.

It would permit those entering training programs lasting more than the 26 weeks to receive extended unemployment compensation benefits.

The program would include money for competitive seed grants to help states set up the counseling and placement centers.

It also would encourage employers to reduce worker hours across the board rather than laying off employees. For instance, a company with 1,000 employees might cut the hours of all its workers by 10 hours a week rather than laying off 250 workers. The employees could then receive unemployment benefits to make up the lost income.

This is the third piece of Clinton's legislation designed to make American workers more competitive worldwide. His proposal to establish voluntary national standards for elementary and secondary schools and his plan for a school-to-work training and apprenticeship program already have passed both houses of Congress and await a final compromise between the House and Senate.

Health care lobbyists swarm over Capitol Hill

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — While lawmakers got down to the minutiae of writing a new health care plan, hundreds of doctors, dentists, psychologists and restaurant owners swarmed over Capitol Hill.

"Timing is everything," said Wendy Webster, spokeswoman for the National Restaurant Association. Eatery owners want to make sure the government doesn't force them to pay for health insurance for their workers, many of whom now have no coverage.

Wearing large stickers that said, "NO Mandate," the 200 or so restaurant owners carried the message that forcing them to pick up the tab for insurance would cost thousands of jobs in their industry.

The American Psychological Association dispatched more than 300 of its members to meet with their senators and representatives, pleading that mental health coverage be included in any new health care system.

To a delegation from Connecticut, Rep. Nancy Johnson was less than encouraging. "The question is, do I prescribe what care is covered or let you guys compete and scramble?" Johnson, a Connecticut Republican who sits on the House Ways and Means Health subcommittee, told the four psychologists. "I see the latter happening."

She went directly from the meeting with the psychologists to the first health care drafting session.

Afterward Bryant Welch, the association's chief legislative strategist, shook his head. "When you don't write mental health into the law, you don't get it," he said.

At the same time, more than 300 dentists were plying the corridors, pushing to preserve tax deductibility of dental coverage. Rep. Ted Strickland, D-Ohio, had back-to-back meetings with an Akron dentist and a group of psychologists from his state.

"How are we going to be wise enough to do the right thing?" he said. "I want kids to have dental care, and I want people to have access to mental health services."

Today, 500 members of the American Medical Association hit Congress with their own message, the way paved by $342,000 in 1993 campaign contributions and a full-page ad in The Washington Post.

Among the doctors' messages: the evils of government-imposed price controls on health care and the need for limits on malpractice awards.

The other groups employed tools to back up their arguments, as well.

The dentists undertook a direct mail campaign to their members, soliciting members for their lobbying "Action Team."

"The most powerful political force in America does not reside in Washington, D.C. It lies in your home town," the letter said.

The restaurant association hit the airwaves on CNN and in four cities with TV spots warning that if its members are forced to pay for health coverage for their workers, thousands of jobs will be lost.

In addition to dispatching lobbyists to the Capitol, the association activated its "key contact" list — a database of restaurant owners across the country who have personal friendships with members of Congress. One is Stephen Elmont, owner of a Boston restaurant, who has hosted Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., at his establishment and raises campaign money for him.

"When it's all said and done, (Sen. Edward M.) Kennedy and Kerry want to know what it's going to do to my restaurant," Elmont said. "Politics is local."

Smoking ban hits home aboard U.S. Navy ships

By BRIGITTE GREENBERG
Associated Press Writer

OCEANSIDE, Calif. — For Navy Lt. Peter Clarke, the Pentagon's new ban on smoking in the workplace will stamp out a serious problem — battles at sea.

Clarke said he spent a good portion of his time on board ship refereeing arguments between smokers and nonsmokers, thrown together for six months at a time.

"I was in charge of 42 people and they'd be saying this guy or that guy is smoking in the kitchen and we don't like it," said Clarke, a nonsmoker stationed near here at Camp Pendleton. "The other guys would be saying, 'Well, if you don't like it, you don't have to stand there.'"

He added, "I've seen these kids start smoking at 18, and it's because they see their chiefs smoking. I think the ban is a good thing."

The ban, announced Tuesday, will affect 3.6 million civilian and military employees in workplaces ranging from Pentagon offices to tanks beginning April 8.

The change could help save lives, cut health care costs and reduce work hours lost to sickness, said Sherri Wasserman Goodman, the Defense Department's head of environmental security.

Robert Cowdrey, a civilian employee at the Naval Hospital in San Diego, said the military shouldn't interfere with his decision to smoke.

"I think they need to take care of their alcohol and drug problems before they think about smokers," said Cowdrey, a parking lot attendant. "It's very unjust in my eyes."

The department's current policy requires that some workplace areas be designated for smokers.

Under the new policy, smoking will be prohibited inside Defense Department buildings and other areas deemed to be workplaces. One exception is submarines, where the decision will be up to each vessel's commander.

On military bases, smoking will be allowed outdoors and in areas such as barracks, restaurants, clubs and other recreational facilities.

Military stores will continue to sell cigarettes and other tobacco products free of sales tax. It would be up to Congress to ban sales, Ms. Goodman said.

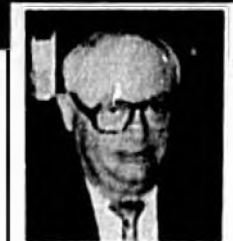

For enlisted Marines like Lance Cpl. Lynn Cunningham, and his buddy, Lance Cpl. Dennis Freaster, the base post exchange has been the supplier of choice. Cunningham smokes, and Freaster chews tobacco. And they said most of the others in their infantry unit smoke or chew.

"People are not going to listen to (the ban) anyway," Cunningham said. "We work out in the field, so it's not like being in an office building."

In the Marine Corps, 39 percent smoke; in the Navy, 37 percent, according to Rear Adm. William Buckendorf, the Navy's assistant surgeon general.

Good health can carry high price

DEAR DR. GOTT: I just asked for a computer printout of all the medications my doctor has me on and was shocked to learn they cost in excess of $120 a month. This is really too much to be spending to keep alive and try to keep going. I have a non-functioning thyroid, high blood pressure and anemia. I presently spend more for prescriptions than I do for food. Why, then, at the young age of 70, am I constantly fatigued? I need your sensible advice on how I can rectify this terrible dilemma.

DEAR READER: You have three serious medical conditions, any one of which could cause lassitude and malaise. In addition, some medicines used for these diseases could aggravate feelings of fatigue.

I assume that you are receiving appropriate therapy for hypothyroidism, hypertension and anemia. Were you not being treated, you would undoubtedly feel less well than you do now. Consequently, the high cost of your medications may simply be the price you have to pay to remain in relatively good health.

Nonetheless, you do have options.

And you and the cat will have to remain in the dog house. Animals constantly shed tiny flakes of dead skin (dander) to which some people are highly allergic. Your wife's reaction is telling you that the cat is the cause of her allergies, even though you cannot see the dander shed by the cat when it enters the room and plops on your wife's lap. # WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Marcel Proust claimed: "We don't receive wisdom; we must discover it for ourselves after a journey that no one can take for us or spare us." True, "if it is satisfying to work but something for yourself, but did Proust never have a teacher?"

Have a look at today's deal and decide which of the acolytes of Proust displayed bridge wisdom. Against five hearts, West led a trump. South was in hand with the seven and cashed the heart ace. East discarding the diamond two. Now South led his spade three and, after West played the seven, he called for dummy's king. When that held, South cordially conceded two minor-suit aces. How many errors were made?

The errors started in the auction. True, North was unlucky that his partner had only one ace. But if he had made a strong jump shift of three clubs and followed with heart support, he could have left the next move to his partner.

Knowing his side had at least two aces, West might have chosen a different initial attack. But it is hard to say the trump lead is definitely wrong.

Once the aceless dummy appears, both defenders should realize that they have three aces between them. So it was at best weak for West to say that he ducked the spade because he was afraid South was void in clubs.

However, there was one other mistake, which you might have missed. On the second round of trumps, East should have discarded the spade queen. Now even this West wouldn't duck his ace.

So there was little wisdom in today's deal. Maybe the players should find a teacher after all.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 10, 1994

In the year ahead you could get involved in a new enterprise or project in which you'll utilize all of your resources, mentally, physically, socially and financially. If things work out, the results will be worth it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Your leadership qualities are quite pronounced today and should be evident to others. Even though you may soar off in a new direction, you might collect new followers. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10163.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are aware of the fact that someone you know is in need of your help, make every effort to do what you can today without any fanfare that could embarrass the recipient.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

you might have to deal with a friend of yours who can occasionally be cantankerous and moody. It may be your turn today to experience his/her acid tongue, so be careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Today you might be inclined to go after something you haven't been bold enough to attempt previously. Your motivating force will be strong, ambitious urges.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Your probabilities for success look good today, but you could experience some limitations owing to your own negative thinking. Don't be counterproductive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
The apprehension you've been nurturing about getting involved in a joint endeavor might be reinforced today when new information about your counterpart is brought to the surface.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Two close friends of yours may have a serious disagreement with one another today. Try to arbitrate this matter immediately or else it might be very slow in healing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
To-

day you should be able to do rather well in developments that are competitive or require staying power. If you find yourself involved in something significant, don't let it intimidate you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
An arrangement in which you're presently involved can enhance its efficacy if you reorganize it properly. If something you can do better than the others involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
It may not be the optimum end result you've been anticipating, but a matter can be concluded today in a reasonably close manner if you're determined to do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
It isn't likely you'll experience a lack of assignments today, the problem could be in finding adequate time to do everything you'd like to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
This is a good day to make an effort to call in a long overdue obligation. You might not be able to stamp on it "paid in full," but you could get a partial payment.

Beat the clock with fabulous Turkey Cutlets with Sun-dried tomatoes.

Savor turkey fare with flair

There never seems to be enough time to do it all. After a busy day at work, you want to get outside and enjoy the spring, but sometimes that seems impossible. You've got to make dinner.

Relying on traditional fast food is one way to stretch your time, but it's not very economical, nor very healthy. A better way to start relying on recipes that use a minimum of ingredients that are nutritious and can be cooked quickly.

TURKEY CUTLETS WITH SUN-DRIED TOMATOES

(Serves 4)
 1/4 tsp. white pepper
 1 lb. turkey cutlets
 1/4 cup sun-dried tomatoes in oil, drained, sliced and 2 tablespoons oil reserved
 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
 1/4 cup thinly sliced green onions
 1/4 cup white wine
 Sprinkle each cutlet with pepper. In large non-stick skillet, over medium-high heat, saute turkey in 1 tablespoon reserved oil from tomatoes 2 to 3 minutes per side or until turkey is no longer pink in center. Transfer turkey to platter and keep warm.
 In same skillet, saute mushrooms and onions 1 to 3 minutes in remaining oil. Add wine and tomatoes; simmer 1 to 3 minutes or until heated throughout.
 To serve, spoon sauce over cutlets.

TURKEY CUTLETS AND

ARTICHOKE HEARTS IN GREEN PEPPERCORN SAUCE

(Serves 4)
 1 lb. turkey cutlets
 1 jar (6 oz.) marinated artichoke hearts, drained and 2 tablespoons juice reserved
 1 tsp. minced garlic
 1 pkg. (1.2 oz.) green peppercorn sauce mix, prepared according to package directions*
 In large non-stick skillet, over medium-high heat, saute turkey in 1 tablespoon reserved artichoke heart juice 2 to 3 minutes per side or until turkey is no longer pink in center. Transfer turkey to platter and keep warm.
 In same skillet saute garlic and artichoke hearts in remaining juice for 1 minute.
 To serve, spoon artichoke hearts over turkey and top with sauce.
 *If green peppercorn sauce is unavailable, use a brown gravy sauce mix. Add 2 to 3 teaspoons of green peppercorns packed in brine.

BURGUNDY TURKEY CUTLETS

(Serves 4)
 1/4 cup red wine
 1 Tbsp. Dijon mustard and honey
 Vegetable cooking spray
 1 lb. turkey cutlets
 1/2 tsp. minced garlic
 Salt and pepper to taste
 In small bowl combine wine, mustard and honey; set aside.
 In large non-stick skillet sprayed with vegetable cooking spray, over medium-high heat, saute turkey 2 to 3 minutes per side or until no longer pink in center. Transfer turkey to platter and keep warm.

In same skillet, over medium heat, saute garlic 30 seconds. Add wine mixture and heat 2 to 3 minutes or until thickened, stirring constantly.

To serve, drizzle sauce over turkey.

Just for the correct record the name is Johns Hopkins

ABBY have been reading with amusement the letters from people who have had trouble with their names.

The name I had trouble with was not my name; it was the name of the university I attended. When I would tell people I was at Johns Hopkins University, nine out of 10 would say, "Oh, so you go to John Hopkins...and you want to be a doctor!"

Abby, to set the record straight, the name of the school is Johns (note the "s" after John) Hopkins. And not everyone at Hopkins wants to be a physician; in fact, two-thirds do not. I have seen Johns Hopkins written as "John Hopkin," "Johns Hopkings," "James Hopkins" and "St. Johns Hopkins." The admissions office has received letters with at least 20 other spellings.

When Milton Eisenhower (brother of President Dwight Eisenhower) was president of Johns Hopkins University, he spoke at the University of Pittsburgh, and was introduced as the president of "John Hopkins." When he got to the lectern, he said, "Thank you; it's nice to be speaking in 'Pit-

ADVICE

CHRIS GREGG, BALTIMORE
 DEAR CHRIS: Thanks for an amusing and informative letter. Read on for more information concerning Johns Hopkins from the university's Office of News and Information:

Who was Johns Hopkins? First things first: Why the extra "s" after John? Because his first name was really a last name. His great-grandmother was Margaret Johns, daughter of Richard Johns, who owned a 4,000-acre estate in Calvert County, Md. Margaret Johns married Gerard Hopkins in 1700. One of their children was named Johns Hopkins.

The second Johns Hopkins, grandson of the first, was born in 1795 on his father's tobacco plantation in southern Maryland. His formal education ended in 1807 when his parents, devout Quakers, decided on the basis of religious conviction to free their slaves and put Johns and his brother to work in the fields.

Johns left home at 17 for Baltimore and a job in business with an uncle, then established his own mercantile house at the age of 24. He was an important investor in the nation's first major railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio, in 1847 and became a director and chairman of its finance committee.

In 1867, Hopkins arranged for the incorporation of the Johns Hopkins University and the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and for the appointment of a 12-member board of trustees for each. He died on Christmas Eve, 1873, leaving $7 million to be divided equally between the two institutions. It was at that time, the largest philanthropic bequest in U.S. history.

Readers, I may have told you more about Johns Hopkins than you really cared to know, but I found it fascinating!
