One Confirmed Dead, 76 Injured

Cuban Convicts Hold 103 Hostages In Two Prisons

By Bill Lehmann
United Press International

Cuban convicts who seized two federal prisons made no response today to a moratorium on deportations and held 103 hostages as bargaining chips against their return to what many said is certain death in Cuba.

At least one person and perhaps as many as six were killed in the uprising in the grim old Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, where 1,392 Cuban detainees held about 77 hostages.

Thirty have been injured in the Atlanta riot and 48 in Oakdale, La.

There was no indication any of the hostages had been harmed and the 1,000 Cubans at the Federal Detention Facility at Oakdale — including as many as 300 who had been confined to a mental ward — showed two of their 26 hostages to authorities as a sign of good faith.

Negotiations apparently bogged down over a lack of inmate leadership in the Atlanta prison, where fires flared anew in several buildings near the block where the hostages were held.

The fresh blazes were caused by "inmates throwing mattresses and some other stuff on the existing fires to keep the fires going," said Fire Department Lt. Jerry Rusinski.

"We're concerned because we want to keep the fire from going to the main building," he said.

Firefighting helicopters were called over the prison again to dump water on the blaze.

Wives of inmates stood across McDonough Boulevard from the Atlanta prison, many of them weeping. Janet Lugo said her husband called her from inside the prison and told her. "They don't want to go back to Cuba and be put in another prison. He would rather die here."

One convict was confirmed killed in the Atlanta uprising Monday and a hospital official said prison officials told his staff to expect five more bodies.

"They said they don't have access to these bodies," said William Breyer, the night administrator at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta. "We have our ambulances on standby at the prison and they have asked for use of our morgue for the bodies."

Six black body bags were taken into the administration building this morning.

The Atlanta uprising began Monday, two days after the Oakdale riot, and by Tuesday morning

Cubans held virtually the entire prison. Federal officials remained in control only of the administration building, which is actually outside the walls.

About 75 percent of the Louisiana facility was destroyed by fire. The only parts of it left standing were the administration building and a few housing units. None of the remaining structures had electricity.

Three buildings — a warehouse, the broom factory and a gym — were gutted by fires at the 50-year-old Atlanta prison, which once held some of the country's most hardened criminals. Its last famous resident was KGB Col. Rudolf Abel.

$10,000 Reward Offered

Longwood Woman Missing 6 Days

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The family of a Longwood woman who disappeared last week has offered a $10,000 reward for information on her whereabouts.

Georgia Caruso, 39, of 229 Cottamore Circle, was last seen about 2:25 p.m. Wednesday in Winter Park with a man allegedly planning to buy diamonds from her. Caruso, owner of Nail Expression in Altamonte Springs, sells jewelry as a second job.

A $1,000 reward was offered earlier through the Orlando Hot Line. The Winter Park police, who are investigating the disappearance, have received hundreds of telephone calls as a result of the rewards and publicity on Caruso's disappearance.

Caruso and a man who called himself George Williams had $40,000 in diamonds appraised at the Winter Park Gem Lab Wednesday, police said. They left in the man's black Cadillac at 2:25 p.m. so the man could get make a bank withdrawal but they never showed up at the bank, police said.

Caruso is described as being 5-foot-1 inch tall, weighing 130 lbs., with short black hair. She was wearing a bright skirt and buttoned top when last seen. Williams is described as being in his late 50s with graying-brown

Salvation Army Kettle Drive Begins

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The annual Seminole County Salvation Army pre-Christmas kettle drive is underway with a goal this year of $65,000. By this Friday bell-ringers are scheduled to be stationed at nine different locations throughout the county to receive donations including Seminole Centre, Knart and the post office in Sanford.

A kick-off ceremony was held Friday at the Altamonte Mall with music by the Sanford Woman's Club chorus and an ensemble from Seminole High School. The Seminole Sunrise Kwanis Club was presented a plaque for being the organization which raised the most money for the Salvation Army during the past three drives.

Collections began Saturday in front of Wal-Mart in the Seminole Centre. The kettle at the Sanford Post Office will be manned by volunteers from local organizations. Lt. Sam Flanigan, local corps commander, said any group wanting to help in the drive at the post office or some other location may call the Salvation Army office at 332-2642.

Donations received in the campaign go to provide food and toys for needy families at Christmas and for emergency financial aid throughout the year, Flanigan said.

Donations of toys and canned goods can be left at the Salvation Army center at 700 W. 24th St. or at Quincey's Restaurant. A fish bowl is being set up at Barnett Bank to receive cash donations.

Persons wishing to sign up for groceries and toys at Christmas may do so Dec. 7 thru 11 at the office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Distribution will be on Dec. 22.

Sanford Says No Suit Over Expressway

All Commissioners Unhappy But Vote 3-2 Against Suing

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

Heated discussion Monday night at the Sanford City Commission meeting proved that commission members and private citizens alike are unified in their resentment of the proposed expressway that would cut through Sanford. But in the end the commission voted 3-2 not to bring a lawsuit against the Expressway Authority.

Residents who came to show their disapproval of the proposed expressway packed the chambers. Most were Sanford residents, although some were from other areas of the county.

Commissioner John Mercer said, "I feel sure the city of Sanford is being harmed by the route the Expressway Authority has taken."

Commissioner Bob Thomas said of the expressway, "I'm against what would happen to our city, but I think the odds are too great (to fight). I care about the city as much as anyone, but it's going to take megabucks to fight this."

"The suit being addressed would only challenge. It would not stop the expressway," Commissioner A.A. McCann pointed out. He said that earlier proposed routes would wipe out a lot more residential area than the present proposed route, but he and other commissioners still described the proposed route as "cutting right through the city."

According to Gerald Briston, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority, the expressway route now under consideration crosses US 17-92 in the vicinity of Airport Boulevard, a commercial area of the city. He said that "90 per cent of Sanford will be

Impact Fee Moratorium Extended By Sanford

A moratorium issued by the city of Sanford on road impact fees may be extended another six months if an ordinance introduced at Monday night's meeting is passed at the city commission's next meeting.

The ordinance calling for the moratorium was given first reading at Monday's meeting.

If the moratorium is extended, the city will continue to study the legality of the county's right to impose impact fees on the city.

City Manager Frank Faison noted that the purpose of the moratorium is to give Sanford city staff time to contact other municipalities in the county to see how they are dealing with the situation. However, the status of that research is still uncertain.

Commissioner John Mercer said, "Due to the fact we're not sure where other cities stand, due to the fact we're not sure where we stand, I move we extend the moratorium another six months."

As explained by City Commissioner Whitey Eckstein, the issue mirrors an ongoing conflict between the city and Seminole County. The county passed an ordinance that new growth in the various municipalities within the county would be subject to the road impact fees. The municipalities themselves would have to collect the fees.

Impact fees are fees imposed on new construction, both residential and commercial, to pay for the maintenance of roads. Eckstein said that most city officials feel the county commission imposed its will on cities such as Sanford, by not consulting with them in formulating such plans. This is at least the third extension of the moratorium, he noted.

Mayor Bettye Smith voted

14 Killed In Alaskan Air Crash

HOMER, Alaska (UPI) — A twin-engine commuter airplane carrying 19 passengers and two pilots crashed several hundred feet short of an airstrip Monday night, killing 14 people, authorities said. The seven survivors were badly injured.

The Ryan Air plane, a Beechcraft 1900, crash landed at 6:28 p.m. at the edge of the state airport at Homer, said Ivey Moore, a spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration. She said 14 people died and the seven others on the plane were injured.

The injured were taken to South Peninsula Hospital in Homer and then flown to Anchorage hospitals, because of the seriousness of their injuries.

State troopers said the plane landed about 200 feet short of the runway and about 250 feet to the side and then crashed through a fence and broke apart on a grassy field.

"The weather was appropriate for flying, but the plane just landed too soon," Sgt. Jim Stogsdill said. "There was no fire and no one on the ground was hit."

The plane carried 19 passengers and two crew members. The flight had originated in Kodiak and was to stop in Homer and Kenai on its way to Anchorage.

Moore said a National Transportation Safety Board "Go Team" was traveling to the scene from Washington to investigate the crash.

Homer is a fishing and tourist community of about 4,500 residents, 115 miles south of Anchorage. The Homer airport, Stogsdill said, does not have a tower and all landings and takeoffs are made under visual flight rules.

Holiday Closings

Seminole County offices and city halls in all seven cities will be closed Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving holiday. State offices will be closed Thursday and Friday, but banks, post offices and federal offices will be closed Thursday only.

Seminole County public schools and the school board office will be closed both days.

Mail will not be boxed and there will be no delivery except for Express Mail and special delivery.

In Sanford there will be no refuse collection either day. Normal collection schedule will resume Monday and Tuesday.

Police, fire, sewer and water service will continue on the normal 24-hour schedule. For

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Cookout Host Allegedly Threatens Guest With Knife

Robert M. Dosa reported to Altamonte Springs police that he was invited to a cookout Saturday but the host, who appeared to be intoxicated, brandished a knife and threatened to kill him.

When police arrived at the scene at 485 Forest Way #207, Altamonte Springs, at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday, they reported seeing the suspect wielding a knife and threatening to kill Dosa.

The suspect refused twice to surrender the knife on police orders, but threw the weapon down after the third demand, police said.

James Robert Vance, 31, of the above address, was arrested at his home on a charge of aggravated assault. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Husband Charged With Abuse

A bride of four months reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that her husband allegedly grabbed her by her arm and slammed her against a car behind her workplace, Applebee's Restaurant, Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, at about 5:45 p.m. Sunday.

Linda Dobbins, 21, of 275 Cranes Roost Blvd. #333, Altamonte Springs, told sheriff's deputies this was not the first time her husband had allegedly attacked her.

Trent O'Brien Dobbins, 18, of the same address, was arrested at the restaurant on a charge of battery-spouse abuse at about 5:58 p.m. Sunday. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Three Arrested On Drug Charge

Two men and a woman, all from Orlando, who were in a vehicle outside 845 Dyson Drive, Winter Springs, at about 6:45 a.m. Sunday, were questioned by Winter Springs police and arrested.

Police reported searching the vehicle and finding two handguns and cocaine.

John Calvin Mitchell, 28, and Joanna Marie Zerrip, 21, have been charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia and carrying concealed weapons. Donald Stephen Foeller, 32, has been charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia. The three have been released on $2,000 bond each to appear in court Dec. 7.

Exposure Charged Filed

A man who allegedly urinated in the parking lot of Warco, 110 N. French Ave., Sanford, at about 7:25 p.m. Saturday, in sight of customers and police, has been charged with disorderly conduct and exposure of sexual organs.

Buzzy Martin Bennett, 51, of 1307 Myrtle Ave., Sanford, has been released on $500 bond to appear in court Dec. 2.

Beer Dropped, Pot Is Not

A 29-year-old Sanford man who allegedly dropped the beer he was drinking when spotted by Sanford police at about noon Saturday in front of 1506 W. 13th St., Sanford, was arrested on a charge of possession of an open alcoholic beverage in the city.

Robert L. Silas, of 1506 W. 16th St., was searched by the arresting officer, who reported finding marijuana in his possession. A charge of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana was added and Silas was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Rings, Cash Taken From Maitland Home

More than $65,000 in cash and merchandise were taken from the home of George Schnippel, 49, and Maxine Vickery, 59, of 200 Pine Wood Drive, Maitland, Sunday.

The two gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have burglarized their home taking $15,850 cash and two rings. The rings have a combined value of $50,000. Deputies reported entry was apparently made through a broken window, and drawers in the master bedroom of the home were "rummaged" through.

In another case, the thieves had a taste for flowers as they stole approximately $2,880 worth of them in two thefts from the Sand Lake Flower Company.

Richard Franklin, 44, of Sand Lake Flower Co., 3391 Sand Lake Road, Longwood, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that on Nov. 17 and on Saturday, an employee of that company, who was delivering an assortment of flowers from Apopka to Sanford, told Franklin he was robbed enroute to the delivery site. The combined loss in both incidents was $2,887 worth of plants. Apopka police and Orange County sheriff's deputies are also investigating the robberies.

In other matters, police reported: Gold and other metal valued at $1,000 was stolen along with $100 from Carbone Dental Studio, 2252 Winter Woods Blvd., Winter Park, between Friday and Sunday.

◆Dennis R. Phifer, 41, of 550 Mystic Wood, Casselberry, reported his 1986 Pontiac valued at $8,500 was stolen Saturday or Sunday.

◆Dennis E. Forgy, 36, of 936 Red Fox Drive, Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies that his son's $400 trombone was stolen from a classroom at Milwee Middle School, State Road 427, Longwood, Friday.

◆Two guitars, coins and camera gear were stolen along with other items Friday from the home of Neal Hunter, 31, of 290 Morning Glory Drive, Lake Mary. A sheriff's report said the goods have a combined value of about $2,000.

Count Blessings, Weather Is Warm

By Fred M. Cooper Herald Staff Writer

Since we don't have to worry about ourselves these days, weather-wise that is, we should be concerned with our brethren out in California with their quakes, and up north with their snowstorms.

And, really pray for the hungry and homeless in large urban areas where officials are even locking up empty buildings to keep them out.

Fortunately that's an area of life that doesn't pose an overwhelming problem in Seminole County, though we do have our less fortunate, and our hungry. Earlier this fall, as part of the Bicentennial celebration, officials at Lake Mary focused on the hungry and homeless but couldn't find any in the area.

We don't have to contend with cold weather, at least during this Thanksgiving Season. As a matter of fact, we have much to be thankful for. The temperatures during the next few days, including Thursday, will be up into the 80s during the day and drop only into the 60s at night. Sure, there's a chance of showers on Wednesday and Thursday but they won't be oppressive. Actually will help the lawns and flowers.

Our cousins in Gunnison, Colorado set the standard in low lows for the nation again — zero degrees. That's a big, fat ought. On the streets of Laredo you'd have basked yesterday in 87 degree temperatures, the high high.

Our California friends near San Diego are having a tough time. A significant earthquake rocked Southern California early today. 12 hours after the area was hit by two quakes, including one that measured 6.0 on the Richter scale. Today's tremor hit at about 5 a.m. and was felt as far away

Local Report

The high temperature reading in Sanford Monday was 75 degrees and the overnight low was 56 as reported by the University of Florida Agricultural and Education, Celery Avenue. There was no recorded rainfall. Partly cloudy with little or no chance of rain.

Area Forecast

Today mostly sunny and mild. High in the mid to upper 70s. Wind east near 15 mph. Tonight fair and mild. Low 55 to 60. Wind east 5 to 10 mph. Wednesday partly sunny and mild. High near 80. Wind east 15 mph. Thanksgiving day forecast partly cloudy and mild. Low near 60. High near 80.

Extended Forecast

The extended weather outlook, Thursday through Saturday, for Florida except northwest, mostly cloudy in the north and partly cloudy in the south. A chance of showers over the south through the period and over the north Friday and Saturday. Lows in the upper 50s in the north and low 70s extreme south through the period. Highs in the upper 70s north and lower 80s elsewhere.

First Bid $275,000 Over-Budget

English Estates Project Will Be Re-Bid

The Seminole County School Board has rejected bids on English Estates Elementary School construction work, deciding to re-advertise and re-bid the project, because the bids received were approximately $275,000 over-budget.

The board did accept a bid, though, for renovations Pine Crest Elementary School.

Bids on additions, renovation and remodeling to English Estates Elementary in Fern Park exceeded the budget by approximately $275,000. Consequently, the board decided to re-advertise and rebid on the base bid, as well as on three alternates bids—exterior modifications, a pedestrian walkway, and carpeting and base.

The board voted to approve a bid by Ruby Builders Inc., on additions and renovation work to Pine Crest Elementary in Sanford. Ruby Builders, the lowest bidder, also was awarded Pine Crest's Alternate 3 bid on new air-conditioning units. The total bid award to the contractor was $1,860,000.

Bids were opened Nov. 3 for the work at English Estates. Five contractors submitted bids ranging from $1,481,121 to $1,562,000.

Bids on English Estates were as follows:

—S & M Constructors, $1,487,000 as the base bid, $49,974 on Alternate 1, $1,183 on Alternate 2, and $14,346 on Alternate 3.

—Schmitt Builders, $1,562,000 as the base bid, $46,000 on Alternate 1, $100 on Alternate 2, and $15,000 on Alternate 3.

—A.D. Arnold Construction, $1,481,121 as the base bid, $39,000 on Alternate 1, $1,000 on Alternate 2, and $11,400 on Alternate 3.

—Mark Construction, $1,557,000 as the base bid, $43,000 on Alternate 1, $22,500 on Alternate 2, and $13,000 on Alternate 3.

—Aagaard-Juergensen, Inc., $1,547,000 as the base bid, $62,000 on Alternate 1, $2,300 on Alternate 2, and $14,300 on Alternate 3.

Bids on Pine Crest, which were opened Oct. 29, included three alternates bids—reroofing existing canopies and replacing rooftop air-conditioning units, replacing walkway canopies and installing new air-conditioning units, and new air-conditioning units.

Bids on Pine Crest were as follows:

—A.D. Arnold Construction Co., $1,805,000 as the base bid, $280,000 on Alternate 1, $570,000 on Alternate 2, and $177,000 on Alternate 3.

—W.W. Fagan & Company, $1,804,010 as the base bid, $371,100 on Alternate 1, $585,120 on Alternate 2, and $212,000 on Alternate 3.

—Indus Construction Company, $1,801,000 as the base bid, $370,000 on Alternate 1, $700,000 on Alternate 2, and $245,000 on Alternate 3.

—Ivey's Steel Erectors, Inc., $1,825,000 as the base bid, $330,000 on Alternate 1, $500,000 on Alternate 2, and $203,000 on Alternate 3.

—Mark Construction Company, $1,844,000 as the base bid, $320,070 on Alternate 1, $530,000 on Alternate 2, and $200,000 on Alternate 3.

—J.D. Pirrotta Company, $1,764,000 as the base bid, $287,000 on Alternate 1, $498,000 on Alternate 2, and $193,000 on Alternate 3.

—Ruby Builders, Inc., $1,655,000 as the base bid, $324,000 on Alternate 1, $537,000 on Alternate 2, and $205,000 on Alternate 3.

—Vista Constructors, $1,734,000 as the base bid, $254,000 on Alternate 1, $481,000 on Alternate 2, and $192,000 on Alternate 3.

—Winter Park Construction, $1,749,000 as the base bid, $293,000 on Alternate 1, $479,000 on Alternate 2, and $181,260 on Alternate 3.

New Lake Mary Sign Ordinance Proposed

Lake Mary City Commissioner Randall Morris has proposed Mayor Dick Foss and other city commissioners that the city's signage ordinance be changed in the cause of aesthetics and city welfare.

In a memorandum submitted to the mayor and fellow commissioners Thursday, Morris outlined three areas for proposed change:

—That Seminole County put restrictions on permits for signage on county-regulated properties on Lake Mary Boulevard, in order that signs conform to the city regarding height and size limitations. The letter suggested working with the county and adjoining areas on a comprehensive sign policy for areas affecting Lake Mary.

—That the mayor and commission explore the concept of "gateway" signs and landscaping at roadway entry points in Lake Mary. The letter suggested working with developers, landowners and the county to replace current city signs on Lake Mary Boulevard and other key road arteries.

City Planner Matthew West said the city's current "ugly chainlink fences with our seal slapped on it" may be replaced by lettering on imitation wood stating something like "You are now entering the city of Lake Mary."

—That the mayor and commission explore the economic feasibility and legal ramifications of the city owning off-site premise signs while enforcing off-site premise sign regulation. The letter suggested that businesses, civic groups and places of interest rent signs, putting the city in the sign business at little or no profit.

The third proposal would entail putting location names and directional arrows on signs, Morris said. Municipal entities would be allowed to use city signs, which would enhance aesthetics of signage on the main roads, he said.

Examiner: Was Death Linked To MD Shortage

WEST PALM BEACH, (UPI) — A medical examiner has ruled Jesse Jackson died of blunt head trauma, but is still investigating whether his death was linked to treatment delays caused by a neurosurgeon shortage.

Palm Beach County Medical Examiner Dr. John Marraccini ruled Jackson, 30, who died last week in the intensive care unit at Bethesda Memorial Hospital in Boynton Beach, died of "blunt head trauma."

Autopsy results will be completed Nov. 30, to determine whether the death was caused by a lack of adequate emergency medical treatment at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach.

Jackson was admitted to St. Mary's Nov. 11 as "John Doe," but was not treated by a neurosurgeon for 21 hours, when Dr. Douglas F. Martin of Boca Raton agreed to treat Jackson.

Five neurosurgeons on the St. Mary's staff quit earlier this year citing rising costs of malpractice insurance and increasing lawsuits against doctors. The nine neurosurgeons in Palm Beach County currently are reluctant to handle most emergency cases.

Witnesses told police they saw Jackson drinking heavily at a downtown bar, then walk a few blocks before he fell and struck his head on the sidewalk. Jackson's brother identified Jackson before he was transferred to Bethesda.

St. Mary's officials have threatened to close the hospital's emergency room next month because of the state's malpractice crisis and indigent patients who can't afford to pay their hospital bills.

A vote on closing the emergency room is scheduled at a Dec. 9 meeting of the hospital's board of directors.

Marraccini said the "apparent delay" of adequate medical treatment in Jackson's death is being investigated. "The significance of which is under evaluation."

At a nearby West Palm Beach hospital, Good Samaritan, several orthopedic specialists also resigned earlier this year.

This person thought he could drive as well after a few drinks as before. He was dead wrong. Don't make the same mistake.

Wrong Solution To Loan Problem

In 1978, defaults on guaranteed student loans cost the U.S. Government $200 million. By 1990, the annual cost is expected to top $2 billion. Students who fail to repay their loans are not simply taking money from the federal government—although that would be bad enough. They also are reducing funds available for other educational programs—not only for colleges but also for elementary and secondary schools. Secretary of Education William Bennett has caused to label the situation intolerable. But he has seized upon a solution that also is intolerable. He would prohibit loans to students attending schools with high default rates.

Frustrated by the rising price tag on defaults, the Senate recently passed legislation that would cut off loans to students at schools whose default rate exceeds 25 percent. The House properly balked at that provision and tied up the bill in conference committee. Stepping in where the House refused to act, Bennett proposed administrative action to stop loans at schools where the default rate exceeds 20 percent.

Educators have responded with a chorus of protest, and rightly so. While Bennett would hold them responsible for loan defaults, they have only a small, indirect say in who receives loans, and no role in repayment. Indeed, most who default have already graduated or dropped out of school. Bennett correctly wants schools to do a better job of counseling students on the amount they borrow and on their obligation to timely repayment. But he goes too far when he proposes making schools directly culpable for the financial behavior of former students.

Critics also point out that Bennett's proposal would eliminate loans for many low-income and minority students—even those who are good risks to repay their loans—to attend the schools of their choice. That's because the highest default rates are recorded at community colleges, trade schools, black colleges and other schools with large minority and low-income enrollments.

A more promising alternative is offered by Rep. William Ford, D-Mich. Ford would offer more grant money but no loans for students in their first and second years of college, when they are most likely to drop out and default on loans. For third- and fourth-year students, he would make available loans but no grants. Another creative proposal now being tested likens repayment to income level, on the theory that defaults can be reduced if students' monthly payments do not exceed a specified percentage of their earnings.

A loan program that generates $2 billion in defaults each year needs adjustment. Bennett unfortunately has reached for a simplistic and inequitable solution by dumping the entire problem on colleges. He should try again.

University Turns Down Historical Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington may be the center of the world to some folks.

But to officials at George Washington University, a few blocks from the White House, being in the nation's capital apparently has no special meaning.

White House aides asked the university to lend its big gymnasium as a press center for 3,000 members of the media who will be covering the summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, and the university turned them down.

The reason was that some 4,000 students use the gym and besides there is a basketball game scheduled during the period of the summit, Dec. 7-10.

The aides are shaking their heads over the university's lack of sense of history, its meaning and the educational benefits that having the summiteers on campus could accrue to the students.

But sports and exercise won out over the chance to be in the superpower spotlight for a few days. Which must say something about the university's priorities.

It is understood that some of the students, at least, do not agree with their academic leaders that sports should prevail over a historic event.

The summit meeting in Washington is being held for the formal signing of the medium range missile agreement. But in many ways, it also will be a public relations contest for the superpowers. It always is.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev is expected to be selling his "glasnost" approach to loosen up the Soviet bureaucracy and pouring on the charm. He wants to hold a news conference in Washington and that could last for two hours on television.

The White House says it has no objection to giving him that kind of exposure while he is in the United States.

But it also will put the president on his mettle to compete in a high profile way, possibly with a televised address to the nation.

Summit arrangements are not nailed down, but as it now stands, the substantive talks between Reagan and Gorbachev will be held in the White House, a setting that would limit press coverage to "pools" of reporters and photographers representing the entire corps.

A state dinner will be held at the White House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 8 in honor of Gorbachev and his wife Raisa. Although he rarely attends a reciprocal dinner when a head of state is in town, Reagan will make an exception during the summit and will attend a dinner the following evening at the Soviet Embassy, hosted by Gorbachev.

Plans also are being made for Gorbachev to address a joint meeting of Congress, Dec. 9, much to the chagrin of conservative lawmakers.

Author Kitty Kelley, biographer of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Frank Sinatra, has signed up with Simon Shuster to write a book about Nancy Reagan.

Frances Spatz Leighton has already written a book about the first lady for MacMillan.

And Mrs. Reagan has signed up to write her own memoirs for Random House when she leaves the White House.

ROBERT WALTERS

Yankees' Manager Erratic

NEW YORK (NEA) — New York Yankees principal owner George M. Steinbrenner III, whom many people in this city love to hate, avoided much of the opprobrium this fall that usually accompanies his temperamental change of the baseball team's manager.

A compulsive overachiever who equates losing with weakness, Steinbrenner long has engaged in a vain quest for a championship team. The most notable product of that frustration is his record of 14 managerial dismissals in the 15 years he has controlled the Yankees.

That, of course, has only demoralized the baseball club. The team that in the past so often captured championship titles it routinely inspired cries of "break up the Yankees," has not won a World Series since 1978.

A vain, combative man with little regard for the dignity of those who work for him, Steinbrenner has compiled this sorry record of managerial changes since assuming control of the Yankees in 1973:

January 1974: Bill Virdon hired to replace Ralph Houk.

August 1975: Virdon fired, Billy Martin hired.

July 1978: Martin resigned under fire, Bob Lemon hired.

July 1979: Lemon fired, Martin hired.

October 1979: Martin fired, Dick Howser hired.

November 1980: Howser "fired," Gene Michael hired.

September 1981: Michael fired, Lemon hired.

April 1982: Lemon fired, Michael hired.

August 1982: Michael fired, Clyde King hired.

January 1983: King fired, Martin hired.

December 1983: Martin fired, Yogi Berra hired.

April 1985: Berra fired, Martin hired.

October 1985: Martin fired, Lou Piniella hired.

October 1987: Piniella removed, Martin hired.

Thus, Steinbrenner and Martin are together again for the fifth time, a reunion that reminded one sports columnist of Sen. Sam Nunn's observation about the political leadership in Iran: "They're generally insane except for those occasional lucid moments when they're merely stupid."

JACK ANDERSON

Should This Man Run A Country?

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Alexander Haig's recent track record in the business world raises serious questions about what kind of president he would make.

During his four years on the board of directors of Allegheny International, the Pittsburgh-based conglomerate has been beset by Securities and Exchange Commission charges — which the company did not contest — as well as a flood of shareholder lawsuits claiming mismanagement and misappropriation of funds by company executives and directors, and a New York Stock Exchange threat to delist the company.

There is nothing to suggest that Haig ever claimed to be or was in fact in charge of Allegheny, which primarily manufactures consumer appliances among other products. But he was closer to the action than some, serving on the directors' executive and finance committees, which work closely with company management. And as a former chief executive of United Technologies, Haig might have been expected to have at least an inkling that a once-vibrant corporation was virtually crumbling around him.

Haig's connection with the troubled company was made painfully public at the Republican candidates' debate in Houston on Oct. 28. A process server posing as a reporter served Haig with a civil complaint against Allegheny, its officers and directors regarding a Texas real estate deal, Allegheny plans to contest the charges.

The SEC investigation of Allegheny began shortly after a Business Week story in August 1986. The article questioned the company's business practices and the extravagant fringe benefits it gave to its executives while its net worth and stock price plunged and its operating losses soared.

Two months after the critical article appeared, Robert J. Buckley resigned as Allegheny's board chairman and chief executive officer.

On Sept. 9 of this year, the SEC filed suit in federal court here, citing Allegheny's violations of securities laws and seeking an injunction to force corrective action by the company. Allegheny signed a consent decree the same day, admitting no wrongdoing but promising not to commit any more violations.

According to the uncontested allegations in the SEC complaint, which has been studied by our reporter Frank Byrt, basic accounting records and internal controls were not maintained from 1981 to 1985. This resulted in material misstatements of financial worth in company reports, the SEC said.

Among the unreported activities, the SEC said, were:

— Use of the company's five jets (the "Allegheny Air Force") for personal trips by executives and directors;

— Purchase of more than $100,000 worth of wine for personal consumption;

— Use of company-owned automobiles and luxury condominiums for executives' personal pleasure;

— Financial and legal services obtained by executives at company expense.

The uncontested SEC complaint also accused the company, its

WASHINGTON WORLD

Expect Kennedy Approval

By Arnold Sawicki
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In Washington, it is a good rule of thumb to expect few new laws to be enacted and practically no presidential appointments to be rejected.

This is just a matter of numbers. Every year tens of thousands of bills are introduced and hundreds of nominations are sent to Capitol Hill. Only a few hundred bills become law; only a very few nominations are turned down.

The rejection of any presidential appointment is news in Washington because of the unwritten presumption that the president has the right to choose his own underlings for the executive branch.

Any attempt to defeat a nomination, even at the level of district judge or second-level bureaucrat, is regarded as akin to drawing a sword in the presence of a king — if you're going to do it, you'd better not be bluffing.

In a more contemporary context, a challenge to a president's Supreme Court or cabinet nomination may be seen as the equivalent of nuclear war. It is the kind of battle that you can't afford to lose, but it may cost you far more than you wanted to spend to win.

President Reagan's nomination of Judge Anthony Kennedy for the Supreme Court vacancy left by the resignation of Justice Lewis Powell illustrates the kind of situation the winners in a nomination brawl can find themselves.

When Reagan nominated Judge Robert Bork, liberals and moderates beat him on the issue of ideology, showing him to be so conservative in his view of the Constitution that he seemed to ignore much of what has happened in the life of the country since 1787. Bork's rigidity, not the opposition's publicity, beat him.

Then Reagan nominated Judge Douglas Ginsburg, who some described as a "baby Bork." Ten years younger than Bork, he had left a shorter paper trail of his views and some who felt he was just as hidebound as the first nominee despaired of making a strong case against him.

They didn't have to: as a young adult of the 60's, Ginsburg dabbled in enough of the counter-culture to make him unacceptable to the ultra right-wingers.

JEFFREY HART

Our 1st President

In a recent column I called attention to the extraordinary changes that have taken place in our method of electing a president. The process has evolved outside the Constitution, which nowhere mentions political parties, and indeed was originally hostile to the very idea of political parties.

In the early days of the American republic it was even considered impermissible to campaign for the presidency. The office sought the man, not the man the office—and shut up, Mike Dukakis.

The dignity and reserve of our early political figures makes them seem, today, figures from another planet, no another galaxy. I find the following in a marvelous book titled "Presidential Anecdotes" by Paul F. Holler, Jr. (Oxford University Press):

"Even Americans who did not defy Washington were awed by his presence. In 1787, when the Constitutional Convention was meeting in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania's Gouverneur Morris boasted to Alexander Hamilton that 'he could be as familiar with Washington as with any of his other friends.' Hamilton replied, 'If you will, at the next reception evening, gently slap him on the shoulder, and say, 'My dear General, I am very happy to see you look so well,' a supper and wine shall be provided for you and a dozen of your friends.' Morris accepted the challenge. On the evening agreed upon, a large number of people were present when Morris entered the room, bowed, shook hands with Washington, laid his left hand on the latter's shoulder, and said, 'My dear General, I am very happy to see you look so well!'"

Washington, according to one report, "withdrew his hand, stepped suddenly back, fixed his eye on Morris for several minutes with an angry frown, until the latter retreated, abashed, and sought refuge in the crowd. The company looked on in silence." At the supper to which Hamilton treated him afterwards, Morris said ruefully: "I have won the bet, but paid dearly for it, and nothing could induce me to repeat it."

George Washington was not the sort of politician who says "Hyah fellah," in the manner of Nelson Rockefeller.

Another Washington anecdote from this same enjoyable book concerns the famous portrait of Washington by the painter Gilbert Stuart. "Washington did not enjoy sitting for portraits, with the result that he and Stuart seemed not to hit it off very well. At one point, in an effort to put Washington at ease, Stuart remarked, 'Now, sir, you must let me forget that you are General Washington and I am Stuart the painter.' But Washington's mild and apparently well-intentioned reply—'Mr. Stuart need never feed the need for forgetting who he is and who General Washington is'—irritated him."

Washington was an extraordinary figure, though today hard to know, somehow remote, perhaps masked from us by the enormous presence of Lincoln. We learn from the biographies that Washington's power to a great extent came from his dramatic disdain for power. He had defeated King George III, but he refused to become the American George I.

officers and directors of making "false and misleading" proxy statements to shareholders, by failing to report their personal use of company assets and their part in company transactions from which they benefited personally.

One question the SEC investigation did not answer was how the board of directors could have failed to be aware of what was going on throughout the years when Allegheny was being run onto the rocks. Net worth plummeted from $787 million in 1982 to less than $200 million today; since 1983, the company has posted operating losses of $271 million, and the price of Allegheny International stock has dropped from $35 to $5.

In addition to the $20,000 a year Haig is paid as director, he also received $50,000 a year as a consultant — until August 1986, the month the Business Week story appeared. A company spokesman said the consultancy was terminated at that time "by mutual consent."

By press time, Haig had not responded to requests for comment.

IN BRIEF

Shultz, Shevardnadze Meet On Final Details Of Weapons Treaty

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said their crucial talks are off to a good start to set the final details of a historic treaty to scrap short- and medium-range nuclear weapons.

The negotiations were scheduled to end today, but both officials said there was a possibility the two men could meet Wednesday over breakfast before leaving Geneva.

The meeting — the fourth in three months between the two negotiators — centered on completing a treaty banning ground-based intermediate-range nuclear missiles in time for the Dec. 7-10 summit in Washington between the superpowers.

Shultz described the first day's talks as "good, constructive and businesslike," indicating that his negotiations with Shevardnadze have been as good or better than expected.

2 Contra Leaders Plan Return

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A Contra leader says two comrades from the U.S.-backed rebel movement will defy a government ban and go to Nicaragua to present a cease-fire proposal to Roman Catholic Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo.

Alfredo Cesar, a civilian director of the Contras, said late Monday Alfonso Robelo and Asucena Ferrey, two other civilian directors, will travel from San Juan, Costa Rica, to Managua today despite a Sandinista ban on their return from exile.

In a telephone interview from Costa Rica, Cesar said the two leaders "are willing to run the risk of being jailed" in order to personally deliver the Contra peace proposal under the Central American peace plan that went into effect Nov. 5.

Cesar refused to say exactly how Robelo and Ferrey will travel to Managua, but rebel sources told United Press International the two leaders probably will use a private plane.

Iranian Gunboats Attack 2 Ships

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran, blamed for delaying U.N. cease-fire efforts, says its troops killed 900 Iraqis and wounded 2,000 others in a successful campaign to capture strategic heights in northeastern Iraq.

The battle report came as Iranian gunboats Monday attacked a Romanian vessel and a Taiwanese-owned container ship in the narrow Strait of Hormuz, seriously injuring three crewmen, shipping sources said.

The attacks at the southern entrance to the Persian Gulf raised to four the number of merchant vessels ambushed by Iran in 72 hours in apparent retaliation for a spate of successful Iraqi strikes on ships off the coast of Iran.

In land fighting at the Iran-Iraq border, Tehran said its forces attacked Iraqi positions in northeastern Iraq, killing and wounding hundreds of enemy troops and capturing strategic heights.

Tehran Radio said at least 900 Iraqi troops had been killed and 2,000 wounded in the Iranian assault Sunday on Haj Omran in northeastern Iraq during the third day of fighting in the area.

China Names Acting Premier

BEIJING (UPI) — China's nominal parliament today approved the resignation of Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang from his concurrent post as premier and appointed Vice Premier Li Peng as acting head of government.

The long-expected move ended Zhao's seven-year stint as the chief administrator of China's sweeping economic reforms and replaced him with Li, a Soviet-trained technocrat believed to favor a more cautious approach to change.

The official Xinhua News Agency said Li, 59, was appointed acting premier by the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, China's nominal parliament.

It said a new premier would be formally approved when the NPC meets in full session next spring. Analysts said Li is likely to be confirmed by the NPC.

Britain Panned In Pollution Meet

LONDON (UPI) — Britain, which dumps 5 million tons of sewage sludge into the North Sea each year, is facing criticism at the outset of an eight-country European ministers conference on sea pollution.

The two-day conference of environment ministers on cleaning up the North Sea began in London today.

The North Sea is one of the dirtiest seas in the world. Britain is the only nation that dumps sewage sludge directly into the sea, though chemical and industrial waste is washed into it from polluted rivers on the European continent.

"The finger has been pointed at the United Kingdom, which has the reputation of (being) the dirty man of Europe," Adam Markham, the British coordinator of the environmental group Seas at Risk, said at a news conference Monday.

Better Than National Average

State Students Run Up Scores In Math

Florida's 11th-graders scored significantly higher than the national average of their peers on a recent assessment of mathematic achievement, Commissioner of Education Betty Castor has announced.

On a scale of 0 to 500, Floridian students had an average score of 294.3. In a comparison with seven other participating states, Florida came in only behind Virginia students, who scored 299.1. The national average was 289.

"Because of the standard error in measuring that percentage, we can't say Florida is No. 2," said Santa Hokanson, program specialist with the assessment testing and evaluation division in the Florida Department of Education. She did say one could be 95 percent certain of the No. 2 ranking.

"Florida's scores in mathematics indicate that our state's emphasis on higher educational standards may be having a positive effect on student performance," Castor said.

On the assessment test, 56 percent of Floridians knew how to determine the angle measurements of triangles, while on the national average 49 percent knew how.

Knowledge of U.S. history also was assessed through the test.

Florida scores were slightly above the national average. The United States dropped an atomic bomb on Japan in World War II — 77 percent of Floridian 11th-graders knew that, whereas, nationally, an average of 68 percent of students knew that fact.

Florida's scores cannot be compared to last year's scores, since reading and writing skills were assessed then.

"We are gaining information that is useful to policymakers now and we are improving educational opportunities for children," Castor said of the assessment program.

Results of the test, taken in April, were received this fall.

The assessment project, a subset of the National Assessment of Educational Progress Test, was sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board.

Lake Mary Attorney Will Hold Workshop

Ned Julian, city attorney for Lake Mary, will conduct a workshop with various boards of Lake Mary to discuss the Sunshine Law and the powers and duties of the boards.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 30 at the Lake Mary City Hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

Julian has requested the presence of Lake Mary's mayor, Dick Fess, and members of the city's commission, planning and zoning board and board of adjustment.

Julian said because of the constant influx of new members on the boards, he makes it a practice to hold such informational meetings. He said the meeting is not prompted by any neglect of the Sunshine Law. The law requires that any business-oriented meetings between two or more officials within the same governmental body be open to the public.

Neither has the meeting been prompted by the commission being unaware of its powers concerning the hiring of a public works director, Julian said.

The city attorney informed city commissioners Thursday that City Manager Bob Norris had the power to appoint the public works director and that the commission did not have the power to vote down the nomination.

Earlier this year, Norris had recommended, but not appointed, Stan Welling for the post. The recommendatin of Welling, the acting public works director, and a friend of Norris, was rejected by the commission in a 3-2 vote.

"If he had made the appointment and we had said no, that would have been illegal," City Commissioner Randall Morris said.

"The real question is, is he going to go with the majority sentiment of the commission or is he going to go with his own call?" Morris said.

Now aware of his powers concerning the public works director, Norris is due to appoint someone to the position at the commission's Dec. 3 meeting.

Stripper's Mom Will Ask Court For Release

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — A lawyer for Theresa Jackson, convicted of mental child abuse in the suicide of her daughter, will ask today that she be released from a psychiatric hospital on her own recognizance.

Judge Arthur Franza will hold a 9:30 a.m. hearing in his Broward County courtroom today to determine whether Jackson, 40, should be released from Coral Ridge Hospital, a private institution.

Jackson was convicted Oct. 30 of provoking the suicide death of her daughter, Tina Mancini, 17, by forcing her to become a strip tease dancer.

Franza will sentence Jackson Jan. 7, and she could receive a 25-year jail term.

Defense lawyer Richard Lubin said he will ask Franza to release Jackson from the hospital, where she was sent to undergo psychotherapy.

A growing area code is like a good stock.
Eventually it will split.
Introducing Area Code 407. Beginning April 16, 1988.
Business is booming in Florida, and this growth means expanded communications needs for many of our customers. To provide for these opportunities, Southern Bell is creating a new area code—407—for the area north of the Broward/Palm Beach line to just north of Orlando. By creating this new area code we will be able to provide new telephone numbers well into the next century. If you live or work within this new area code, you might want to begin changing your stationery, checks and business cards during the next few months to reflect the change. (Your telephone number will not change, only the area code.) This may be helpful information for your customers and others who might call your business after April 16. If you have questions or would like more information about area code 407, please call us toll-free at 1 800 331-2355. We can also send you a free brochure about the changes. One more tip about this change. It's easy to remember when area code 407 will be in effect—it starts one day after a date that's unforgettable to all taxpayers.

Reagan Lobbies Budget Package, Vows Veto Of 'Bad Tax Bill'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even though he is trying to recruit support for a new $78 billion deficit reduction package, President Reagan says he will veto "any bad tax bill" that might be drawn up to implement the plan.

Reagan told a White House meeting with business leaders Monday he considers the plan, negotiated by his aides and about a dozen congressmen, a "good solid beginning" in trimming the deficit.

But he noted that the pact does not specify the sources of $23 billion in new taxes required during the next two years, leaving that task to congressional committees that will begin putting together the tax legislation next week.

"This agreement does not preclude us from vetoing any or all of the legislation that comes out of this agreement, and I will veto any bad tax bill," Reagan said.

But he noted that congressional leaders have assured him they share his desire not to change last year's income tax law. They also have said they will hold new taxes to levels set by their agreement: $9 billion in fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1, and $14 billion in fiscal 1989.

Reagan Warns Against SDI Limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan today chose the planning site for a controversial space-based laser weapon test to champion his "Star Wars" project three weeks to the day before opening superpower summit discussions.

Getting a jump on the extended holiday weekend, Reagan arranged a stop at a research laboratory in the high-technology environs of Denver to deliver a pep talk to workers who owe their jobs to his Strategic Defense Initiative.

During a two-hour visit to Martin Marietta Denver Aerospace in the Colorado foothills, the president was to receive a classified briefing on futuristic chemical laser and kinetic kill weapons before speaking to plant employees.

Reagan's message, keyed to his Dec. 8-10 talks in Washington with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, was clear Monday when he told a group of Republican Party activists that the SDI project "is not a bargaining chip" in the quest for a 50 percent reduction in strategic U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals.

Free Speech Stance Supported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court nominee Anthony Kennedy has a generally strong record on freedom of expression but is not quite as staunch an advocate of freedom of information, a study by a major press freedom group finds.

The organization, the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, takes no position for or against Kennedy's nomination. Jane Kirtley, the group's executive director, said Monday.

But she said free press advocates should be encouraged by Kennedy's decisions showing he "describes the notion of prior restraint" of the news media, supports press access to trial documents ordered sealed by lower courts and sets a tough standard for libel plaintiffs to win favorable judgments.

New Booster Tests May Delay 1988 Shuttle Launch Schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Work to test new shuttle booster O-ring joints is proceeding smoothly but a National Research Council review panel says additional tests are needed before the first post-Challenger flight.

It is unclear whether such tests can be substituted for others without threatening the already-tight processing schedule for the next shuttle mission, now planned for June.

But in a telephone interview from Washington, panel chairman H. Guyford Stever stressed that his report to NASA Administrator James Fletcher, submitted by letter Monday, made no mention of the shuttle Discovery's planned June blastoff.

The letter said that if the current schedule cannot support the additional tests, NASA should consider deferring other, less critical testing.

SDI Payload Described

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A "Star Wars" experiment set for launch early next year marks the most ambitious test yet attempted in work to refine concepts for a space-based missile defense system, an aerospace magazine reports.

The Strategic Defense Initiative payload is scheduled for launch in early February from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station atop a Delta rocket.

Aviation Week & Space Technology reported Monday that the $200 million, 12-hour mission will feature a variety of experiments designed to test battle management techniques and systems that can track multiple targets, a crucial consideration for a space-based defense system.

The magazine said about 250 radars and other sensors operated by the Defense Department and NASA around the world will take part in the Delta 181 mission, including instruments aboard a variety of aircraft.

Martinez Hosts Snorkeling Trip

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez hopes a snorkeling trip to the Florida Keys might make U.S. Interior Secretary Donald Hodel reconsider plans for oil and gas exploration off Florida's coast.

Martinez will accompany Hodel during the mid-January trip on stops in the Keys and a visit to a habitat of the endangered Florida panther, probably a spot in the Big Cypress National Preserve.

The pair will don snorkeling gear while in the Keys to view a live reef that would be threatened by oil drilling. They plan "a panther-tracking expedition" in southwest Florida to give the secretary first-hand knowledge about Florida's efforts to save its endangered official state animal.

"I am delighted to have the opportunity to show Secretary Hodel exactly what it is that we in Florida are fighting to protect," Martinez said. "When he sees the splendor of the Florida Keys, he will recognize how fragile this natural wonder is."

Shot At Point-Blank Range

Game Warden Buried While Friends, Relatives Mourn His 'Execution'

CRESTVIEW (UPI) — A game warden who was shot three times at point-blank range during a scuffle with a hunter was buried in a casket containing two poems written by his daughters.

"I have my own children. I feel for his family losing their father and their daddy," said Lt. Stan Kirkland, who attended the funeral of Ray Lynn Barnes Monday. "It's really unfair that his children will have to grow up without him."

More than 300 people were at the funeral of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission officer. He had been shot three times during a weekend scuffle with a hunter over an $11 license.

Barnes, 31, the first commission officer killed since December 1964, died about 5:30 p.m. CST Saturday when an assailant he was trying to arrest wounded him with a shotgun, then took the officer's .357 Magnum and fired at his chest and head.

Barnes was buried in his hometown. Three aircraft and a helicopter flew over the plot on a hillside at the end of the ceremony.

"He was a gem of an individual," said Kirkland, a spokesman for the commission. "He's going to be dearly missed."

Barnes is survived by his wife, Judy, and their two daughters, Keisha, 10, and Crystal, 7. Kirkland said he was particularly touched by two poems that Barnes' daughters had put in the casket.

Kirkland, who called the shooting an "execution," said it occurred 3 miles north of U.S. 90, west of Mosay Head, some 4 miles from Barnes' home in Crestview. He said Barnes was killed "over the cost of a hunting license."

A man identified as Steven Allen Strange, 25, of Mosay Head, surrendered to deputies within hours of the shooting. Strange was being held in the Walton County Jail in DeFuniak Springs Monday charged with an open count of murder.

"He apparently was being arrested for failure to purchase (a license)," said Kirkland. "There may have been other violations that we're not aware of. Obviously we can't question the officer and the suspect is not talking."

Kirkland said the two men apparently became involved in a scuffle.

"He (Barnes) was executed. He was shot in the knee by the suspect's shotgun, and knocked down by the suspect. The suspect got his service revolver and shot him point-blank once in the heart and once in the head," Kirkland said.

The suspect and an unidentified companion left the scene, and Strange surrendered to deputies Saturday night. Kirkland said Strange's companion was not implicated in the shooting.

"Everybody is kind of in a state of shock that Lynn's life was snuffed out like this. Everybody knows the hazards that a law enforcement officer faces," he said. "In this case, it was more shocking with an officer filled with promise and life."

"We've had a good number of people that have called and expressed outrage and concern over Barnes' death," said Kirkland. "He's being mourned by not only people in the community and his family but by others who know him."

The last Florida wildlife officer slain while on duty was Peggy Park in Pinellas County in December 1984 when she stopped a parolee, officials said.

Gunter Rejects Auto Insurance Increases

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter said he will reject requests for $10 million in auto insurance rate increases sought by six companies.

Gunter said Monday the increases were not justified by past and expected losses and the firms failed to demonstrate that reasonable actuarial judgment was used in seeking the increases.

He said the companies also failed to take into account trends in actual losses per insured and other factors that might affect the frequency or severity of claims.

The companies have until mid-December to justify the higher rates. The new rates would take effect Jan. 1, said a Gunter spokesman.

"They may have left something out (of their requests) or we may require some adjustments that will be easy for them to make," spokesman Otis Wragg said. "It's not a categorical rejection by any means. This just tells them, we've got a problem with this, and unless you can fix it we are going to reject (the increase)."

Companies requesting the increases included Michigan Mutual Insurance Co. and Amerisure Insurance Co., both of Detroit. The firms each sought 16.2 percent raises for new and renewal policies, which would have resulted in policyholders paying $1.45 million in increased premiums in 1988. The firms insure nearly 20,000 car owners in Florida.

Four Hartford, Conn., firms also are being refused rate increases. They include Travelers Indemnity Co., which sought an 11.4 percent increase for its 46,336 policyholders, an annual increase of $3.5 million; and Charter Oak Fire Insurance Co., which sought an 8.7 percent boost for 3,632 policyholders, for a total increase of $360,000.

Phoenix Insurance Co. sought a 14.5 percent raise for 47,159 policyholders, an increase of $3.51 million. Travelers Indemnity Co. of America sought a 13.1 percent boost for 12,415 customers, an increase of $1.12 million.

Seminolians Be Thankful

By Fred H. Cooper

Seminole County will be at least lucky to avoid this Thanksgiving. And you don't have to wait to give thanks. You can have it all: good food, good friends, and a great Thanksgiving. Today started with a spectacular sunrise and has continued just great. Temperatures are slowly rising and Several cities south of Panama, including Sarasota and Venice, already desalinate water. No city in Florida uses water. The West Coast Regional Water Supply Authority, which serves Pinellas, Hillsborough and Pasco counties, is experimenting with desalination in St. Petersburg.

Head a cute story this morning and thought you'd like to see it, even if it does concern a remote part of the U.S. Darlington, Wisconsin.

A deer that may have been running literally for its life, caused quite a stir at the Lafayette County Sheriff's Office Monday.

The white-tailed buck which may have been driving hunters on the opening weekend of hunting season, crashed through a window on the main floor of the nursing home about 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The animal landed on a empty bed, ran into a corridor and then burst through a second story window. The deer hit the pavement and dashed off to freedom.

Lake Mary Police Investigating Three Thefts

Three thefts, totalling a $595 loss, were recently reported to Lake Mary police.

Bobbie Wynn, 47, of 234 S. Short St., Lake Mary, reported that a key was used to enter her house and steal $210 between midnight Nov. 17 and 3 a.m. Wednesday.

She told police she placed the money in her daughter's dresser drawer and hours later found it missing. When Mrs. Wynn asked her daughter, Leigh Ann Wynn, 18, about the money, Leigh Ann said she had seen a man's face but thought she was dreaming. The man she described had moved out of the residence a week before.

Mrs. Wynn thought the man might have had a key to the home, records show.

Frank Lynn Nabette, 33, of 104 Commerce St., Lake Mary, reported that a pair of Dura-Silts, valued at $235, was stolen from the back of a truck between 5:30 p.m. Nov. 13 and 7 p.m. Wednesday. The theft took place at Magic Triangle, a business located at Rabette's address.

Donald Lockman Reid of 318 Raccoon St., Lake Mary, reported the theft of $80 in loose quarters and a broken window, a $70 loss. Reid, who was notified by his cleaning lady of the broken kitchen window, told police the burglary took place between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Investigations into the thefts are continuing.

Tiebreaker: Curry Runs Rams To Victory

Lake Mary Advances To Region

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — It was only fitting that the result of Monday night's District 5A-4 three-way playoff between Lake Howell, DeLand, and Lake Mary rested on the shoulders of the district's best running back: Lake Mary's John Curry.

Over the years, it has been Curry who has been the difference in a hoard of Lake Mary's games, and Monday night's playoff at DeLand's Spec Martin Stadium before 1,111 onlookers was no different.

Curry scored the winning touchdown against DeLand in the first mini-playoff, and added a touchdown and two-point conversion in the championship against Lake Howell to give the Rams an exciting 8-7 win and district championship.

"When you have the best back in the district, you have got to give him the ball," an elated Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said afterwards. "John has been our bread and butter all year, and we had to let him decide things."

The win advances the Rams into the state playoffs for the third time in the last four years. Lake Mary will play Jacksonville Sandalwood for the Region 2 championship on Friday night in Jacksonville.

Sandalwood, the District 5A-3 champs, is 9-1 and has posted six shutouts this season. In its district championship game last week against Jacksonville Terry Parker, Sandalwood whipped Parker, 49-0.

After Lake Howell running back Marquette Smith scored on a seven-yard touchdown run and Erik Bird added the PAT, Mary got the ball.

After Curry was stopped for no gain on first down, he broke a pair of tackles inside, made a cut to right, and dove into the right corner of the end zone to make the score 7-6.

Nelson, whose aggressive style has been evident throughout his coaching career, decided to go for the two-point conversion and the championship. After each team called time out, Mary put the ball on the left hash mark.

Quarterback Carlos Hartfield handed the ball to Curry on a simple dive play. Curry broke two tackles and barely squirted into the end zone for the winning score.

"I wasn't sure if I was in at first," an ecstatic Curry said inbetween handshakes. "I was really surprised that coach Nelson called a dive."

"I thought that we were going to go outside," Curry said. "I just wanted to make damn sure that I got in, and I barely did."

Nelson said that he didn't even think about kicking the ball and tying the game. "I was going to go for two all along," Nelson said. "If we would have kicked the ball and tied the game, we would have lost the advantage. And you can't do that in these type of things."

For Lake Howell, it marked the second straight year that it has ended its season in the district championship in a three-way playoff. Last season, the Silver Hawks fell, 6-3, in the district championship against Apopka.

"It is sure tough to come this close two years in a row," Lake Howell defensive coordinator Bob Irvin said. "We wish Lake Mary the best of luck. They have a lot of great athletes, and it was sure exciting."

"We are upset to lose, but we overcame a lot of adversity this year," Irvin, whose team finished 6-4, said. "We just can't seem to come out on top in these things."

In the first playoff, Lake Mary won the flip and opted to go on defense. DeLand running back Raymond Green picked up six yards on first down. On second and goal from the four, Bulldog running back Calvin Sutton was hit by Lake Mary's Brett Grocke and Terry "The Cat" Miller.

The collision jarred the ball loose, and Miller pounced on it at the goal line.

Lake Mary then got the ball. Curry picked up three yards on first down, and Hartfield added four on second down to give the Rams third and goal at the three. Curry took the handoff, cut to his left, and darted into the end zone to advance the Rams into the finale.

"In something like this, you can't afford to make that kind of mistake," DeLand coach Dave Hiss said. "But they deserved to win. We wish Lake Mary the best of luck, and they are going to have their hands full against Sandalwood." Last season, DeLand won their district, and faced Sandalwood in the Regional championship. Sandalwood prevailed, 26-21.

Lake Mary won the flip for the playoff against the Hawks and decided to go on defense first again. Howell surprised everybody when it lined up in an unbalanced shotgun formation with Smith at quarterback. Quarterback Jeff Neace wasn't even on the field.

Howell snapped the ball to Smith and loaded its line to the right side. The Hawks sent usual guard Jason Rosenblatt in motion to the right. On first down, Smith took the snap and picked up three yards. On second down,

Coaches' Play Calling Impressive

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — You've heard of Plato, Socrates, Aristotle...morons.

Well, maybe that's a little bit of an overstatement, but you still had to be impressed with the inventive and gutsy play calling of Lake Howell's Mike Biacaglia and Lake Mary's Harry Nelson and the way their players carried the calls out in Monday night's 5A-4 District playoff.

Biacaglia surprised the Rams' defense by coming out in shotgun formation, with freshman running back Marquette Smith twice taking the snap, and scoring on the Silver Hawks' second play of the tiebreaker.

After Lake Mary's John Curry turned in a spectacular run to pull Lake Mary within 7-6, Nelson already had made up his mind to go for the victory with the two-point conversion.

And Nelson stunned the Lake Howell defense by overloading the right side, then running a dive play up the middle with Curry twisting in for the conversion that gave the Rams an 8-7 victory and the district title on a night that packed practically a season's worth of excitement into 30 minutes before 1,111 fans at Spec Martin Stadium.

"I don't know how gutsy it was. It just seemed like part of my nervous system," Nelson said after the victory. "I had to go for it. If I went for the tie with the kick, we would have lost the advantage."

Lake Mary, which has won the district three of the last four years, goes up against 5A-3 champion Jacksonville Sandalwood Friday night at Jacksonville. It was the second consecutive district playoff loss for Lake Howell.

"It was a lot of excitement in a pretty short time," Lake Mary assistant Doug Peters said. "The guys were really up for this

Seniors Provide Big Lift For SHS

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

After a wait of six years, the Seminole High football program has finally risen back to prominence. The Fighting Seminoles, who last won a district title in 1981, compiled a 7-3 overall record and went unbeaten in District 4A-7 to claim a spot in Friday night's 4A-4 Region playoff against Land O' Lakes at Seminole High.

One of the major contributors to the team's success, and something that every championship team needs, is excellent senior leadership. The Seminole seniors have put in plenty of work on the practice field to make the Tribe a state contender in 1987.

"The seniors have been waiting a long time for this," Seminole senior linebacker Earnie "Sackman" Lewis said. "After the Lake Mary game, the seniors felt bad, but now we're in the state playoffs and we don't even think about that any more. What we've done this year will also mean a lot to the future teams."

Lewis, the second-leading tackler in Seminole County and a First Team All-State selection a year ago, believes the 'Noles have a good chance of advancing in the playoffs as long as they take it one game at a time.

"I feel that we're peaking at the right time," Lewis said. "We were almost at our maximum against DeLand (38-9 victory) but we can still play a little better. We made a few mistakes against DeLand and if we can cut down on the mistakes we are capable of playing even better and I see us playing that way throughout the playoffs."

At the midway point of the season, the Seminoles had a 2-3 record and had lost three in a row. But the seniors helped keep the team together and the 'Noles never stopped believing they could come back and win their remaining five games, which they did.

"We feel good about ourselves and the way we've stuck together," senior defensive back Leonard Lucas said. "And now we're looking for better things out of our team in the playoffs."

Rams Outlast Redskins, 30-26

Football

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Strong performances by the defense and special teams offset a low-voltage offense, helping the Los Angeles Rams win back-to-back games for the first time this season.

The Rams, 3-7 and already out of the playoff picture, put together their best game of the season Monday night in downing the NFC East-leading Washington Redskins 30-26.

"I think there was a question on our football team — I guess 'will' is the best word," Rams Coach John Robinson said. "But we got back some of the stuff we're made of. Our team played up to its talent."

The Rams ended a five-game losing streak against the Redskins, beating Washington for the first time since 1974 and winning at RFK Stadium for the first time since 1969.

The triumph avenged the Rams' 19-7 loss to Washington in last season's NFC wildcard game and spoiled a fine performance by Washington quarterback Doug Williams, who took over for the slumping Jay Schroeder to make only his second NFL start since 1982.

Los Angeles used a 35-yard fumble recovery and a blocked punt to score touchdowns and Ron Brown scored on a 95-yard kickoff return and a 26-yard catch. Mike Lansford added a 37-yard field goal, although he missed an extra point.

Williams, the seven-year NFL veteran who spent two seasons in the USFL, threw scoring passes of 17 and 5 yards to Monk and scored on a 1-yard run. He completed 24 of 46 passes for 308 yards, with one interception. The Redskins remaining points came on field goals of 22 and 29 yards by Ali Haji-Sheikh, who also missed an extra point.

The Rams' offense were out-gained 343-234 despite another productive evening from Charles White, who took over for the departed Eric Dickerson as starting tailback.

White, the NFL's leading rusher with 815 yards, gained 112 yards on 35 carries and scored a 1-yard touchdown in the second quarter, two plays after Nolan Cromwell blocked his third punt of the season. Mike Wilcher also returned a fumble by Williams 35 yards for a first-quarter score after a crushing blind-side sack by Gary Jeter.

"When you're struggling, it takes something to get you going," Cromwell said. "Tonight we made the big plays on special teams and that helped us through the penalties (11 for 98 yards in losses) and mistakes."

Washington, 7-3, remains two games in front of 5-5 Dallas in the NFC East. The Redskins, who rushed for just 66 yards on 22 carries, have lost two of their last three games.

"We're playing hard, but we're making enough mistakes to lose," Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said.

The Rams' defense, ranked fifth in the league last season, entered the game ranked 27th in the league against the pass and 24th overall.

Los Angeles secured the victory when LeRoy Irvin intercepted a Williams pass that bounced off Monk's hands in the end zone with 24 seconds left, one play after Monk dropped an apparent touchdown pass. The Rams also sacked Williams four times, with two of the sacks ending fourth-quarter drives.

Brown, the 1984 Olympic gold-medal sprinter, fielded a kickoff at the 5, cut up the middle and raced for a touchdown with 35 seconds left in the first quarter, outrunning Washington speedster Darrell Green the last 40 yards for a 14-9 lead. It was Brown's fourth career kickoff return for a TD.

"I just had to make it in or I would never live it down," said Brown, the winner of the 1987 NFL fastest man competition. Green was last year's winner.

Chatman Leads Gators To NIT Victory

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Freshman Livingston Chatman scored 25 points, including 16 in the second half, Monday night to rally 17th-ranked Florida from a 12-point deficit to an 80-69 victory over No. 19 Georgia Tech in the second round of the Big Apple NIT.

The Gators advance to Friday night's semifinals in New York.

The play of the 6-foot-7 Chatman overshadowed a 28-point effort by Georgia Tech's freshman Dennis Scott. Chatman connected on 11 of 17 shots in his first collegiate game.

The Gators, trailing in the first half after

Scott scored 11 straight points, responded by scoring 16 of the next 18 points and led 34-32 at halftime.

Georgia Tech, 1-1, went 5-26 without scoring before Craig Neal broke the slide with a bucket.

Georgia Tech took a 41-38 lead at the start of the second half on a 3-point basket by Neal. The Yellow Jackets built a five-point lead on a bucket by Tom Hammonds.

Chatman brought the Gators back by scoring seven straight points and Florida took a 47-44 lead with 10:43 left. The Yellow Jackets' final lead was at 53-52 after Dwayne Ferrell scored from inside.

A short jumper by Chatman put Florida ahead 54-53. The Gators never trailed again as they increased their lead to 12 points in the closing minutes.

Florida's 7-2 center Dwayne Schintzius finished with 14 points, Pat Lawrence added 11 points and seven rebounds, and Clifford Lett scored 10 points.

Hammonds had 12 points for Georgia Tech, while Ferrell added 11.

Suggestions To Reduce Problem Of 'Shielding'

In a recent article we wrote about the problem of glare from the navigational lights on our vessels. In this article we will offer some suggestions to reduce the problem by what is known as "shielding".

"Shielding" a navigational light points the light beam in the direction it is designed to shine. A sawed-off shotgun spreads shot over a wide area but with a normal length barrel the shot is confined to a smaller pattern. The same is true of the beam in a navigation light. If you place a flat sheet of metal under a navigation light, you can prevent the light from spilling onto parts of the boat beneath the light. The shield trains the beam to travel in the correct direction and also acts like an umbrella which shades the boat and eliminates glare.

As you increase the size of the shield beneath a navigation light, the height of the mast to which the fixture is attached may be smaller. If a shield is large enough, an all-round light need be no higher than the top of the operator's head when he or she is seated. A shield can also be shaped to throw a shadow which conforms to the exact shape of the boat.

Carl Carlson
HERALD BOATING WRITER

The best way to design a navigation light installation that does not produce glare is to sit in the seat at the helm station in the dark. With the navigation lights on, the boat operator should be able to turn in any direction and not see light from any fixtures or glare on the boat structure. If light or glare is visible, a light must be moved higher or a larger shield must be installed beneath the fixture. If a light is high enough and is well shielded, the entire boat will be in a shadow.

On some boats (less than 12 meters) there may be a better way to install the all-round light, if such is used, than back in the stern. First of all, remember that the all-round light is not a stern light. Make a removable pole tall enough and rigid enough to hold a shielded all-round light above the operator's head. The farther forward the all-round light is installed, the shorter the pole that is needed. The pole can be made even shorter if it is mounted on the console at the helm.

Masthead lights have vertical shields that aim the light 22.5 degrees above the beam on either side of the boat. On a small masthead light fixture, these shields are often too small and the light actually spills further to port or starboard and glare may fall on all or part of the boat structure or helm area. Extending the vertical shields two or three inches on the outside of the light fixture may be all that is needed to eliminate the glare. On boats where the masthead light is located on top of the windshield, simply shielding the light correctly should throw a shadow on the bow and prevent the light from spilling onto the console or windshield.

Some designers are attacking the problem associated with glare from masthead lights on cabin cruisers with radar arches.

Boaters tip: Another way to reduce glare and improve nighttime visibility is to use brushed metal surfaces on rails, cleats, hatches, etc. Try to avoid placing bright metal accessories in front of the helm position.
Have a safe boating day.

Oklahoma Regains No. 1, Miami No. 2

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Oklahoma Sooners regained a solid grip on college football's No. 1 ranking followed by three major independents with a shot at the national title.

The Sooners earned 48 of 50 first-place votes and 748 of a possible 750 points in voting Monday by the United Press International Board of Coaches. Oklahoma had been No. 1 from the preseason to last week when Nebraska surged ahead. But the Sooners defeated the Cornhuskers 17-7 Saturday at Lincoln, Neb., to regain their top rating.

That victory gave Oklahoma an 11-0 record for the regular season, the Big Eight title and an Orange Bowl berth opposite Miami, which moved up a spot to No. 2. The Hurricanes join No. 3 Florida State (up one slot) and No. 4 Syracuse (up two) as the last teams with legitimate opportunities to capture the national championship.

Miami, 9-0, needs to win its final two regular-season games against No. 11 Notre Dame Saturday and No. 9 South Carolina Dec. 5 then beat the Sooners in the Orange Bowl to gain the final No. 1 ranking.

"We have always had the policy of trying to get the two highest-ranked teams together," said Larry Adams, president of the Orange Bowl. "We have that now. Hopefully, we'll have that January first."

The lone loss for 9-1 Florida State was by one point to Miami in a game the Seminoles dominated. Since that defeat, Florida State arguably has been the nation's best team. The Seminoles need to beat Florida Saturday and have Miami lose at least one of its final two regular-season games, then have the Hurricanes beat Oklahoma. Florida State must then defeat Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl to be considered for the national title.

Syracuse finished its regular season 11-0 with a last-second 32-31 triumph over West Virginia. The Orangemen also must have Miami lose a regular-season game then beat Oklahoma. If that happens and Syracuse wins the Sugar Bowl, it would emerge as the nation's only undefeated team. However, the Orangemen may also need Florida State to get beat in the Fiesta to get the backing for the national championship.

Besides Nebraska, losses Saturday by UCLA, Notre Dame and Clemson ended their hopes of reaching No. 1 because they now have two defeats apiece. The win, lose & DREW

Cornhuskers only have one loss, but since Oklahoma can only end up with one loss, it is unlikely Nebraska would move ahead of the Sooners.

Nebraska dropped to No. 5. Sixth-ranked Auburn and No. 7 Louisiana State each soared three positions and are leading candidates to face Syracuse in the Sugar Bowl.

If Auburn beats Alabama Friday, it will go to the Sugar Bowl as Southeastern Conference champion. If Alabama wins, the Sugar Bowl will decide between the Crimson Tide and LSU. The Sugar Bowl has said it probably would take the higher-ranked team, Alabama, which beat LSU earlier in the season, fell from this week's rankings.

No. 8 Michigan State (Rose Bowl-bound) and No. 9 South Carolina (Gator) each leaped three places. UCLA (Aloha) plummeted five spots to No. 10 after being upset by Southern Cal.

No. 11 Notre Dame sank four places with a loss to Penn State, but still gained a Cotton Bowl berth. Oklahoma State (Sun) slid a slot to No. 12. No. 13 Clemson, which lost Saturday to South Carolina, fell five places and will meet Penn State in the Citrus.

No. 14 Southern Cal shot up four slots and earned a Rose Bowl berth against Michigan State by beating UCLA. No. 15 Texas A&M, which stepped back a place, plays Texas Thanksgiving night for the Southwest Conference title and a Cotton Bowl bid against Notre Dame.

No. 16 Tennessee (Peach) and No. 17 Georgia (Liberty) both dropped a notch. Penn State rejoined the ratings at No. 18 and Pittsburgh (Bluebonnet) slid two positions to No. 19.

Indiana, Tennessee's Peach Bowl opponent, returned to the top 20 in dropping from the Top 20.

The 1988 national champion will receive a $32,000 non-athletic scholarship from the Gerrits Foundation and UPI.

The 50 coaches vote for 15 teams each, with first place receiving 15 points, second 14, etc.

Jordan's 31 Propel Bulls Past Celts, 107-102

United Press International
The Chicago Bulls moved to the top of the Eastern Conference Monday night by beating the team that has held the spot the last four years.

Michael Jordan scored 31 points and rookie Scott Pippen added 20 to lift Chicago to a 107-102 victory over Boston at Hartford, Conn., snapping the Bulls' 16-game losing streak against the Celtics.

The victory improved the Bulls' record to 8-2, a half-game better than the 8-3 Celtics.

"It feels good, very good," Chicago Coach Doug Collins said. "Boston wins 60 games a year because they have respect and that's what I want our team to establish."

With the victory, the Bulls halted a combined regular season and playoff losing streak dating back to Dec. 17, 1985. Chicago had lost 10 straight regular-season games to Boston and was swept in the opening round of the playoffs by the Celtics the past two seasons.

Basketball

"Coming here 16 times and not winning," Jordan said, "tonight I came ready to win."

The Bulls trailed the Celtics 87-75 after three quarters, but outscored Boston 32-15 in the final period. The Celtics were again playing without All-Star forwards Larry Bird and Kevin McHale, both out with injuries.

"When I tell my grandchildren, (Larry)

Bird had 40 points and (Kevin) McHale had 42, and we pulled it out with defense in the fourth quarter," joked Collins.

Bird missed his fourth straight game with tendinitis in both ankles. McHale has not played at all after off-season foot surgery.

"You can't just lie down and die just because players are hurt," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "You do the best you can do. We just threw it away in the second quarter."

Said Collins: "I think if they had McHale or Bird they would have had someone to go to late in the game. But we didn't have to double-team them."

Dennis Johnson led Boston with 23 points and Danny Ainge had 20. In the only other game, New York strengthened its hold on the worst record in the Eastern Conference, dropping a

117-112 decision to San Antonio. Spurs 117, Knicks 112

At New York, Johnny Dawkins scored 26 points and Walter Berry added 20 points and 11 rebounds to give San Antonio its first road victory in 14 games dating back to last season.

Greg Anderson had 15 points and Alvin Robertson 14 points and 11 assists for the Spurs, 5-5, who overcame a 19-0 New York run in the third quarter.

Pat Ewing led the Knicks, 2-8, with 21 points, while Mark Jackson had 20 points and 15 assists and Kenny Walker 19 points.

"Tonight was a performance defensively that wasn't indicative of the way we've been playing," New York Coach Rick Pitino said. "We have to stop the bleeding. Right now it's very frustrating."

Sutton: Wildcats Will Go Duration With USSR

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton says his team will play the full 40 minutes when the seventh-ranked Wildcats host the Soviet National team Tuesday night at Rupp Arena.

"I was thinking about taking our players off before the end of the game, but that would be a disappointment to our great fans, so we will play the full 40 minutes and I will be on the bench the full 40 minutes," Sutton jokingly said during practice at Rupp Arena Monday.

Indiana Coach Bob Knight pulled his Hoosiers off the floor in Saturday's game against the Soviets with 15:05 remaining after he was ejected following his third technical foul.

Sutton declined to comment on Knight's action, but said he understood how frustrating playing the Soviets could be.

"I don't believe we will see a better team all season," Sutton said. "When they want to play, they are better than anything you see in college basketball."

Sutton said he will start four seniors and sophomore guard Rex Chapman. Rob Lock, who stands 6-foot-11, will start at center with 6-7 Winston Bennett and 6-9 Cedric Jenkins at forward and 6-3 Ed Davender at guard. The lineup was prompted by the size of the Soviets.

Basketball

"We are starting four seniors and one of the premier guards in the country," he said. "I think the starting lineup could vary from time to time depending on who we play and who is playing best at the time."

Bennett, who missed last season following knee surgery, said the team very much wants to win the game.

"On one hand it is just an exhibition game, but the Russians are coming and you want to defend your country," Bennett said. "The Russians do just about it all, so it's going to be quite a challenge."

Kentucky opens its regular season against Hawaii Saturday.

NEW MEXICO WINS
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Hunter Greene scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead New Mexico to a 77-66 victory over UCLA in the second round of the Big Apple NIT.

The Lobos, 2-0, built a 44-32 lead two minutes into the second half, behind Greene's 3-point basket, a 10-footer by Charles Thomas and a tip-in and free throw by Greene.

The Bruins, 1-1, cut the margin to 62-59 with 4:30 remaining on a layup by Greg Foster. The Lobos countered with a dunk and a free throw by Rob Loeffel.

A tip in by Miller put New Mexico in front 67-61 with 3:30 remaining. During the final 1:42, the Lobos hit 6-of-7 free throws, including four by Jimmy Rogers. Darrell McGee added 14 points for the Lobos and Kurt Miller had 10. Trevor Wilson led UCLA with 19 points while Foster had 12 and Dave Immel and Craig Jackson 10 apiece.

New Mexico advances to Friday night's semifinals in New York.

Melbourne Nips Lady Rams, 2-1

By Scott Sander Herald Sports Writer
In an early season preview of two of the state's best girls' soccer teams, defending state champion Melbourne edged Lake Mary, 2-1 on Monday night. The game was played in Melbourne.

The setback, the Lady Rams' first of the season, drops them to 2-1. Melbourne raised its record to 3-0. Lake Mary will return to action on Monday night when it plays host to Winter Park. Lake Mary will open its Seminole Athletic Conference play on Dec. 2 when its hosts Oviedo.

"We were a little nervous for about the first 20 minutes," Lake Mary coach Jody Betsinger said. "But we settled down after that and played a pretty good match."

"I was pleased with our effort tonight," Betsinger said. "Melbourne is a very good team, and we played right with them."

The Lady Bulldogs came out fired up, scoring a pair of first half goals. Lake Mary retaliated with its only goal of the night in the second half.

Christy Snow took a pass from Michele Mattingly and booted it home in to make the score 2-1. But that is as close as Lake Mary would get.

Melbourne, which has traditionally been an aggressive offensive team, was true to form on Monday night, outshooting Lake Mary 27-10.

"They are a very aggressive team," Betsinger said. "But our girls did a good job against them. They one of the better teams around, and we played well against them."

CORRECTION — It was incorrectly reported by Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle that Jim Guggenheim scored the goal in Oviedo's 1-0 jamboree victory over Lake Mary on Saturday. Actually, it was Duncan Jones who scored the goal.

CAPULES

(1) Oklahoma
Improved to 33-2 over the last three seasons with a 17-7 victory over Nebraska that sent the Sooners back to No. 1. In a Big Eight title and an Orange Bowl berth against Miami. All this despite the absence because of injuries of QB Jamele Holloway and RB Lydell Carr.
Next: Miami, Jan. 1 in the Orange Bowl.

(2) Miami
(9-0, No. 2)
Emerged from a second straight lackluster performance with a 36-16 victory over Toledo. The Hurricanes are playing their worst this season with Notre Dame and South Carolina posing dangerous challenges to Miami making it to the Orange Bowl unscathed.
Next: Notre Dame, Nov. 28

(3) Florida State
(9-1, No. 4)
The Seminoles were idle Saturday. They close with Florida men face Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl. With their only loss a 1-point loss to Miami, the Seminoles need a pair of strong victories and at least one Miami regular season loss followed by an Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma to gain the national title.
Next: Florida, Nov. 28

(4) Syracuse
(11-0, No. 5)
Dan McPherson tossed a 9-yard TD to Pat Kelly and Michael Owens ran for 2 points with 10 seconds left to allow Syracuse to close its regular season undefeated with a 22-31 triumph over West Virginia. The Orange need the same circumstances as Florida State involving Miami and Oklahoma, a Sugar Bowl victory and, perhaps, a Seminole bowl loss to gain the national title.

(5) Alabama
Auburn or Louisiana State, Jan. 1 in the Sugar Bowl.

(6) Nebraska
(9-1, No. 11)
Had most intangibles in its favor, but still lost for the fourth straight time to Oklahoma. That likely ended the Cornhuskers' national title hopes.
Next: Colorado, Nov. 28

(7) Auburn
(8-1, No. 9)
Idle Saturday. If the Tigers beat Alabama Friday, they go to the Sugar Bowl. If they lose, they likely will go to the Hall of Fame Bowl against Michigan.
Next: Alabama at Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 27

(8) Louisiana State
(9-1-1, No. 10)
Finished season with a 41-36 triumph over Tulane. Men to hope Alabama hosts Auburn. If so, the Sugar Bowl will likely face higher-ranked LSU than Crimson Tide despite Alabama's victory earlier in the season over LSU.
Next: Either South Carolina, Dec. 31 in the Gator Bowl, Syracuse, Jan. 1 in the Sugar Bowl, or Michigan, Jan. 2 in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

(9) Michigan State
(8-2-1, No. 11)
Defeated Wisconsin 30-9. Possess the nation's top rush defense (61.5 yards per game). Led by a carry and with leading rusher, Lorenzo White (1,499 yards).
Next: Southern Cal, Jan. 1 in the Rose Bowl.

(10) South Carolina
(8-2, No. 12)
Routed Clemson 20-9 in intra state rivalry. Since losing to Nebraska Oct. 3, have won six straight in dominating style. Are a serious problem for Miami and are headed for Gator Bowl against LSU, Alabama or Auburn. Next: at Miami, Dec. 5

(11) UCLA
(9-2, No. 8)
Trey Aikman was intercepted 3 times, as many as he had been in 10 previous games, in shocking 17-13 loss to Southern Cal that sent the Trojans to the Rose Bowl as Pac 10 champs. UCLA goes to the Aloha Bowl.
Next: Florida, Dec. 25 in the Aloha Bowl.

(12) Notre Dame
(8-2, No. 7)
Failed to finish with a flourish in losing 21-20 to Penn State when QB Tony Rice was stopped on a 2-point try with 31 seconds left. Will face Texas A&M or Texas in the Cotton Bowl.
Next: at Miami, Nov. 28

(13) Oklahoma State
(9-2, No. 11)
Thurman Thomas rushed for a school record 292 yards (1,613 on the season) and 4 TDs in a 27 victory over Iowa State. The Cowboys' only losses are to Oklahoma and Nebraska.
Next: West Virginia, Dec. 25 in the Sun Bowl.

(14) Clemson
(9-3, No. 8)
The Tigers gained a season low 75 yards rushing in losing to South Carolina. Clemson was unable to take advantage of a weak schedule with a national title run.

(15) Penn State
Jan. 1 in the Citrus Bowl.

(16) Southern Cal
(9-2, No. 10)
Rodney Peete (the nation's fifth-ranked passer) threw for 304 yards and 2 fourth quarter TDs in rallying USC from a 13-0 deficit to defeat UCLA and become surprise Pac 10 champs. Lost to Michigan State 27-13 to open season.
Next: Michigan State, Jan. 1 in the Rose Bowl.

(17) Texas A&M
(9-2, No. 14)
Boat Texas Christian (2-2). Play Texas Tuesday to determine the SWC champion and Notre Dame's Cotton Bowl opponent.
Next: Texas, Nov. 26

(18) Tennessee
(8-2-1, No. 13)
Jeff Francis returned to the lineup with 3 TD passes in a 34-22 victory over Kentucky. Will face Indiana in the Jan. 2 Peach Bowl.
Next: Vanderbilt, Nov. 28

(19) Georgia
(7-3, No. 16)
Idle Saturday. Will meet Arkansas in the Liberty Bowl.
Next: at Georgia Tech, Nov. 28.

RACING ROUNDUP

Sprague Wins Cracker 200

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Last February, 23-year-old race driver Jack Sprague moved from Spring Lake, Michigan to Kannapolis, N.C. to be closer to the NASCAR tracks and the key car owners and sponsors.

On Sunday afternoon at New Smyrna Speedway, Sprague took another big step in getting recognized as a top shoe by winning the Tenth Annual Florida Cracker 200 Late Model State Championship.

Sprague, who started racing at 16, "cut his teeth" on tough Wolverine state clay ovals such as Thunderbird Raceway and Winston Speedway. A former Port City Racing employee, he drove the late Howie strut car design prepared by Hamke Race Cars and Parts in Kannapolis, N.C. The 9-to-1 motor, which is owned by Sprague, was built by Golden Racing Engines in Michigan.

And then there's Jack's crew chief Rhonda who measures, mounts and changes tires, and pays her own way, but that's another story...

Moving up on the point on lap 82, after fastest qualifier/pole/sitter/race leader David Rogers lost a motor, Sprague led the rest of the way. But during the last five laps, he barely held off a hard-charging Lee Faulk, who after taking on fresh rubber on all four wheels of the Champion TV Rentals Firebird, came on super strong to give Jack a real run for his money.

Finishing third in a beautiful new Neil Bonnett Race Cars Buick, was former track champion Jack Cook. Jack was fast enough to win, but a "green" unscuffed set of tires did him in at the end.

ALL-PRO regular Donnie Strickland was fourth, followed by Mike Cope in Larry Moyer's V-8 powered Chevy. Mike, who was told on the radio that Strickland was several laps down, did not race him for positions, but as it turned out, Strickland also completed 199 laps and finished ahead of Mike. Sixth was Texan Rick Rapp who missed qualifying, started last and managed to stay out of trouble all day.

Rounding out the top ten were Stan Eads, Billy Gast, Jimmy Sills and Bill Posey who was more excited about his top ten finish than Jack was about his win.

From his outside front row starting point, Sprague led the first nine laps, with Rogers outfoxing him in traffic on lap ten. Rogers was very fast and getting faster as the race went on, but a blown engine cost him the race.

At half-way, ALL-PRO pilot Bobby Gill almost overtook Sprague for the lead, but was sidelined by a broken crank shaft.

Several hard crashes resulted in many badly wrecked and destroyed race cars in the 33-car field.

Among the other weekend winners were Daniel Keene, Late Models; Ed Meredith and David Russell, Limited Late Models; Gene Van Alstine and Matt Hruby, Four Cylinders; Gary Salvatore and Wray Shafer, Florida Modifieds; Wayne Marshall and Mike Kubanek, Roadrunners; Mike Keith, twice in Sportsman action; Michael Williams and David Scott, "A" Bombers; Donnie Funk twice in "B" Bombers.

LATE MODELS

Florida Cracker 200 Late Model State Championship — Fastest Qualifier: David Rogers, 18.557; 2. Jack Sprague, 18.572; 3. Daniel Keene, 18.592; 4. Lee Faulk, 18.595; 5. Jack Cook, 18.701; 6. Robert Lyon, 5.

Sprague Wins Again

ORLANDO — Not many local race fans had ever heard of 23-year-old Jack Sprague of Kannapolis, N.C., but after he scored a sensational last lap win in the 100-lap Super Late Model feature on Friday night at Speed World, his name was on everybody's lips.

Sprague, in a Robert Hamke-prepared Firebird, was in contention for most of the race. On the white flag lap, he darted inside of the lead car driven by ALL-PRO regular Bobby Gill, whose transmission had just popped out of gear, and took over the lead and the win.

The ALL-PRO point chase leader for most of the year, Gill, in the Vinyl-Tech/Boyd Engines Pontiac, had moved up on the point on lap 90, after leader Lee Faulk ran over a pop rivet and lost the handle because of a deflating tire.

Finishing third was local pilot Greg Froemming, followed by Mike Cope in the Larry Moyer Racing No. 1. All top four finishers completed the 100-lap distance, Greg Cecil was fifth.

Driving the only Ford Thunderbird in the race, Mark Walbridge started on the pole and led till lap 11. At that point, Faulk, who since lap one, had been putting extra heavy pressure on Portland, Oregon pilot, made a successful outside move for the lead.

Gill stayed glued to Faulk's back bumper till Sprague, the Big Ten Series points leader at Concord, N.C. Motor Speedway, wrestled the runner-up away from him on lap 31. At half-way, Faulk led Sprague, Daniel Keene, Gill, Froemming and Cope.

Angel: 25 Year Jai-Alai Vet

When Angel Olabarria, a 25-year Jai-Alai veteran, decided to come to United States to play at the Orlando-Seminole Jai-Alai Fronton, he had one big problem: his name.

Olabarria, 39, was playing under the name "Chasio." But Olabarria changed his playing name to Angel for a very good reason. His brother was playing under the same name at the Tampa Fronton.

Like many Jai-Alai players, Angel has logged his fair share of miles. He began his professional career in November of 1963 in Zarragoza, Spain. Angel, a native of Barriaga Vizcaya, Spain, began to learn to the game in his country.

In 1968, Angel saw opportunity knocking and decided to go the Philippines to play. In 1970, he entered the U.S. for the first time, playing at the Daytona Fronton.

In 1974, however, Angel returned back to his homeland of Spain. While in Spain, Angel won the world cup in 1975 and 1977.

In 1976, Angel returned to U.S. playing in Bridgeport, Conn. In 1983, Angel played in Biarritz, France. He and partner Bolivar won the "Champion on Champions Tournament."

Angel has been playing in Orlando since 1984. "I really like the fans in Orlando because they understand the game and appreciate good Jai-Alai." Angel, a Fern Park resident and recent father, said, "I think that competition in Orlando is the best in the state."

Angel said that his specialty is the overhead shot that bounces off two walls. "That one is my favorite," Angel said. "I am really enjoying myself here."

WINNERS — Fausto had the hot cesta last week, raising his in the money pocket 28 points. Fausto had an impressive week, posting 11 wins, five seconds, and six thirds in a total of 42 games.

In the early singels games (2-4), Pierre has taken over the lead with 12 wins. He is followed by Ricardo with nine. Pardo, who was tied for the lead last week, has been moved to the feature singels game.

The feature singels games are still lead by Eduardo with nine wins. Urquidí is close behind with seven.

The only player to win more than one game this week in the feature doubles game was Echano, who won two games. The front court leader in the game is still Charola with eight. The back court leader is Mendi with eight. Arca is close behind with seven.

Andia still leads the I.T.M. percentage with a .484 mark. Bob and Mikel are tied for second with a .423 percentage.

Andia is still leading in most wins with 43. Casim is second with 40, while Fausto is third with 36.

OCA-LAKJO — Two games have been played in the Ocala-Orlando Tournament so far. Orlando's team of Urquidí and Bob are tied with Ocala's team of Castanos and Carra with 17 points.

Ocala leads the overall tournament, 43-37. The tournament will be played in Orlando on Friday and Saturday, with a 10-point game scheduled. The 13th game will also be featured.

Smith took the snap, read a great block by Rosenblatt, and dove into the end zone.

On second and goal from the 10, Curry used his quickness to turn the corner for the touchdown. "When it was stuffed up inside, I had no choice but to bounce outside," Curry said. "I just kept my legs going and dove in."

Nelson then called time out. "He came in the huddle and said that we were going for two," Lake Mary guard Eric Birle said. "I was a little bit surprised, but I thought we could make it."

"Coach Nelson asked us what was open. Todd Wright and I said that the dive was open," Birle added. "So we loaded the right side of our line, and went with it. I was holding my breath because I wasn't sure if John got in, but he just did break the plane."

"I can't tell you how great I feel right now," Curry said. "We have worked hard all season, and this definitely makes it worth it."

"This was sure exciting," Nelson said. "I was really keeping my fingers crossed on that two-point play, but I had confidence that John would get in."

"There is nobody else who I would rather have with the ball," Nelson said. "He has made a lot of big plays for us in the past, and these were the biggest of all tonight."

for Friday's region contest. The outstanding support of the school and the community, particularly in the last few weeks, has made a difference for the 'Noles this season.

"It's nice to have this kind of support," senior quarterback Jeff Blake said. "I've seen it before at Seminole, but not since I've been playing here."

The 'Noles were particularly happy to see a big home following in last week's game at DeLand.

"We recognize the support we're getting now and we're happy to have the whole community behind us," Lewis said. "When we came out against DeLand and saw all those people, it gave us even more spirit."

Coach Roger Heathard has also noticed the increase in support and says it has been a big lift to the team.

"The support has been tremendous this season," Heathard said. "Not only from the school but the Sanford community. We really appreciate the support we get from groups like the Optimist Club. It really means a lot to the kids."

With a victory over Land O' Lakes, Seminole would take on the winner of the Satellite-Middleburg contest. But the Tribe has only Land O' Lakes on its mind this week.

"We're going to try not to get too confident," Blake said. "We just want to go out and play ball the way we are capable of playing and keep the same tempo we've had the past few weeks. We don't want to get too high or too low."

playoff and they had a positive outlook coming in. They felt from the start that they were going to win.

The night started with Lake Mary playing host DeLand in the first non-breaker with each team getting four plays to score, starting from the 10 yard line.

DeLand moved the ball six yards on its first play, but Calvin Sutton fumbled on the second play and Terry "The Cat" Miller recovered for Lake Mary at the goal line. The Rams then won the first nebreaker when Curry scored from four-yards out on third down.

"The ball popped up on the guy's (Sutton's) shoulder and I wiped it off," Miller said of the fumble. "I tried to get it out of the air, but it fell to the ground so I just jumped on it."

"After we got the fumble, I knew we were going to score," Miller added. "There aren't many teams that can stop us from the 10."

Lake Howell, which gave Lake Mary its only district loss during the regular season, came out in an unusual offensive set as quarterback Jeff Neace was not on the field and Smith lined up in shotgun formation. Smith made an outstanding run on second down and leaped in to complete a seven-yard touchdown. Erik Bird's kick gave the Hawks a 7-0 lead.

"They caught us off guard with the shotgun," Peters said. "It's something we weren't expecting and Lake Howell did a good job with it."

Lake Mary then took over and got the touchdown on Curry's determined effort to set up the exciting climax.

"As soon as we scored I knew we were going for two," Lake Mary quarterback Carlos Hartsfield said. "We stacked up the right side, then went with John (Curry) up the middle. Coach (Nelson) made the right call."

Curry, the Rams' senior workhorse, carried on each of Lake Mary's six offensive plays Monday night. And Nelson said he wouldn't have it any other way with the championship on the line.

"When you have the best back in the area you have to go to him," Nelson said. "We were

Stocks Open Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 9.45 Monday, was up 12.44 to 1835.52 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 548-254 among the 1,146 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 10,013,000 shares.

The stock market managed a modest advance Monday in slow trading when some last-minute buying capped an uneventful day in which stocks had drifted at slightly lower levels for most of the session.

In addition to the fallout from the budget agreement reached late Friday in Washington, "investors also are waiting for more conclusive evidence about what effect the October slide will have on the overall economy," said Anne Gregory, publisher of the Merrill Lynch letter.

"If news about the budget or the economy is regarded as disappointing, we probably will see a near-term test of the 1750-to-1800 zone in the Dow" industrial average, Gregory said.

Rainbow Futures has been denied site approval and change of use approval by the Planning and Zoning board, for a new facility at 2895 Orlando Dr. and is appealing to the City Commission, at the Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation. The letter was not discussed at Monday's meeting.
- City commissioners adopted an ordinance to establish new water and sewer rates, and water and sewer development charges. Sanford Utility Director has said that the increase will probably amount to no more than one or two dollars per month for the average user.
- Commissioners unanimously voted to consider purchasing Indian Mound Water System. The city must hold a public hearing on the proposed purchase before the final decision on the purchase can be made.

Dollar, Gold Higher On Major Markets

The dollar opened higher in light trading on major world money markets today following news that several major European central banks cut interest rates. Gold jumped higher.

Traders in New York said the dollar moved higher on momentum created by key interest rate reductions by several European central banks.

The cuts, dealers said, were the first signs that at least those banks are viewing the outcome of the U.S. budget deficit talks as positive.

The West German Deutsche Bundesbank lowered its money rate to 3 3/4 percent from 3 1/2 percent. The Bank of France cut its rate by 0.25 percent and the Dutch Central Bank reduced it rate to 4 percent.

Dealers said the dollar benefited from the decision by the West German central bank to trim the interest rate on a securities repurchase tender.

They said the cut appeared to be a goodwill gesture towards Washington by Bonn officials.

But in Amsterdam, a currency dealer said he still feels the long-term sentiment towards the dollar is bearish.

In Japan, the dollar closed at 134.93 yen, down 0.44 yen from Friday's close of 135.37 yen. The markets in Japan were closed Monday for a national holiday.

GNP Revised To 4.1 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. economy climbed at a 4.1 percent annual rate between July and September, improving the odds of the government meeting its growth target this year, the Commerce Department said today.

The better than expected figure was likely to cheer economists and financiers, because it means the economy was stronger than had been thought in the days before the Oct. 19 stock market crash.

Also Tuesday, the government said corporate after-tax profits rose 5.2 percent in the third quarter, the best showing in a year.

The Bureau of Economic Analysis last month estimated the gross national product had risen at a 3.8 percent annual rate after inflation during the third quarter. It changed its mind Tuesday after discovering more personal spending and ministration building to relieve other officers, an Atlanta hostage identified only as Officer Newman told officials over a two-way radio. "Back off. These people are very nervous. These inmates have knives. They think you're gonna assault. They're watching you on television."

Shortly before that incident, the Cubans had objected to a helicopter hovering over the prison yard.

"If he come in again, you know what to do," one Cuban told another over the walkie-talkie.

At Oakdale, Warden J.R. Johnson said today that two hostages were shown to officers at the rear gate of the prison.

"They are continuing to keep their commitment (not to harm the hostages)," he said.

Johnson said "there was a positive reaction" among the Cubans last night when Attorney General Edwin Meese offered individual hearings for the Cubans before any are deported.

"They are very paranoid," Johnson said.

Johnson said 1,000 lawmen and seven armored personnel carriers were standing by outside the prison.

"We have all the manpower and absolutely all the equipment we need," he said. "We're ready for anything."

Leadership of the Cubans appeared to be the problem in Atlanta, where FBI SWAT teams reinforced guards and U.S. marshals.

Meese offered case-by-case reviews to the rioters Monday and a moratorium on deportations mandated by a U.S.-Cuban agreement to send undesirable detainees back home to the Caribbean island, which triggered the uprisings.

There was no response from convicts at Atlanta or the Allen Detention Facility in Oakdale.

Meese set no deadline, saying, "The purpose of this moratorium is to permit a full, fair and equitable review within the laws of the United States of each individual's status with respect to his eligibility to remain in the United States."

The approximately 200 American inmates in the Atlanta prison are separated from the Cubans and were unharmed, officials said.

Johnson said the Oakdale prisoners "don't want to go back. Some have said, 'What's the point? I'm going to get killed if I go back anyway. I might as well get killed here.'"

Weeping relatives of the Cuban prisoners gathered across the street from the Atlanta prison and one youngster carried a hand-scrawled sign pleading, "Please, don't kill my daddy."

At least 12 of the 30 injured people were taken to Atlanta hospitals for treatment, including four inmates with bullet wounds.

An executive assistant to Atlanta Warden Joseph Petrovsky said shots were fired twice Monday — warning shots at noon and another round of unexplained shots at about 3:30 p.m.

Two Georgia National Guard helicopters tried unsuccessfully to douse the fires by dumping 250-gallon buckets of water on the flames. Firefighters, fearing they would be taken hostage, were limited to pointing water cannons at the fires from outside the stone walls.

Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., said he got no explanation why Atlanta officials did not increase security after rioting erupted in Oakdale. "Common sense tells us that would have been necessary after Oakdale," he said. "We should have been better prepared."

"We anticipated there might be some problems" resulting from the U.S. Cuban immigration agreement, said Michael Quinlan, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Quinlan said prison staff was instructed to "be on the lookout."

"We thought we were on top of it," he said. "Obviously there were some ... leaders in the group who had other plans and we were not privy to them. Up till the very moment of the Oakdale disturbance there were no reports of any potential anxieties or threats."

Gladys Miranda visited her husband, Eladio, Sunday and "I could tell something was happening," she said. "Something was wrong. I could smell it."

Representatives of the rebellious Cubans in Louisiana met with Sen. John Breaux, D-La. Breaux said he told them of Meese's moratorium offer and it "gave them something to consider" but they had no immediate response.

intact." He said the proposed route will cut off only two subdivisions from the rest of the city, and that the expressway would also bridge all roads in the area rather than cutting them off. He said he strongly disagrees with those who say the expressway would cut the city in two.

McClanahan also told the commission that Monday afternoon he had called 20 Sanford residents to ask their opinion on whether the city should file suit against the Expressway Authority. He said that one person said Sanford should bring suit, but that 19 said "We don't want you spending our money to fight that battle."

Mayor Bettye Smith stated that her opposition to the expressway proposal has been recorded in several newspapers for several months. She said, "I hate the idea of it coming through Sanford."

However, she also noted that the city is entrusted with taxpayer's money and that as such, city money has to be used wisely.

"I am not willing to take money out of this pocket or this pocket to bring suit against the Expressway Authority. I cannot vote with good faith to spend taxpayer's money to go to court in a case we probably wouldn't win," Smith said.

But she did say that as a private citizen, she would contribute her own personal funds to any citizen's group that might raise money to bring suit against the Expressway Authority.

Commissioner Mercer said that it is a shame the city can't have a referendum to vote on the issue. When residents present at the meeting were asked for a show of hands from those who would support the city going to legal battle against the Expressway Authority, the majority raised their hands. In reference to questions about whether the city could win such a fight, Commissioner Whitey Eckstein said "How do we know for sure we can't win, without any research (to prove we can't)."

Attorney Ned Julian, representing City Attorney William Colbert's office, explained, "The city would have to show that the Expressway Authority was arbitrary and capricious in its decisions and I don't think we can do that."

When it came to the vote, a motion not to bring suit passed. McClanahan, Thomas and Mayor Smith voted not to bring suit against the Expressway Authority. Voting against the motion not to bring suit were Commissioners Eckstein and Mercer.

hair and a receding hairline.

Officer Rick Nuss, of the Winter Park Police Department, said his department is getting plenty of leads in the case that are being checked as quickly as possible. "Our detectives (WPPD) are working very hard on following the many, many calls we're getting on the case," Nuss said.

Thus far Nuss said none of the leads have been very helpful.

When asked if the announcement of the rewards were a reason for the high number of calls police are getting on the case, Nuss said, "Well, it isn't hurting." He said that with the $10,000 offered by the Caruso's father, a reward offered by Crimeline and a matching reward offered by the WPPD, the calls should continue for a while.

One of the most important areas of the investigation is finding out who George Williams is, and whether or not that's even the true name of the man Caruso was last seen with, according to Nuss.

Nuss said that, like most disappearance cases, the longer it takes to find Caruso the slimmer the chances are he'll be located unharmed, or even at all.

While, Nuss said the case will never be closed if Caruso is never found, there still comes a time in a missing persons investigation that you begin to realize the chances of finding a person are becoming very small. He added that the WPPD will continue to use all the manpower available in the investigation as long as possible.

"We just hope the leads keep coming in on this case," Nuss said.

Reagan Lobbies For Budget Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even though he is trying to recruit support for a new $76 billion deficit reduction package, President Reagan says he will veto "any bad tax bill" that might be drawn up to implement the plan.

Reagan told a White House meeting with business leaders Monday he considers the plan, negotiated by his aides and about a dozen congressmen, a "good solid beginning" in trimming the deficit.

But he noted that the pact does not specify the sources of $23 billion in new taxes required during the next two years, leaving that task to congressional committees that will begin putting together the tax legislation next week.

"This agreement does not preclude us from vetoing any or all of the legislation that comes out of this agreement, and I will veto any bad tax bill," Reagan said.

But he noted that congressional leaders have assured him they share his desire not to change last year's income tax law. They also have said they will hold new taxes to levels set by their agreement: $9 billion in fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1, and $14 billion in fiscal 1989.

In an earlier meeting with Republican activists, Reagan said the broad outlines of the plan indicate the tax provisions would not force heavy burdens on the average American.

He praised the negotiated agreement, saying, "We have committed ourselves to a fiscal path that will lead to continued economic growth and opportunity and provide a solid base for economic stability in the future."

Economists have singled out the federal deficit as one cause of last month's stock market crash, and some predicted substantial gains once an accord was reached. But trading was up only slightly Monday, with the Dow Jones industrial average climbing about 9 points in slow trading.

Informed at midday that trading was slightly off, Reagan replied, "They probably haven't looked at it (the negotiators' compromise) yet."

The government reported Monday it overspent itself by $30.74 billion in October, partly because of some multibillion-dollar accounting tricks employed to make the last fiscal year's books look good.

The $30.74 billion deficit was the fourth biggest in the past 25 months and far bigger than the $25.29 billion deficit racked up in October 1986, the Treasury Department's monthly spending statement showed.

One reason why October spending was higher than usual was that some $2.8 billion worth of Defense Department expenditures — paychecks, mainly — normally paid by Sept. 30 were doled out Oct. 1 instead.

That one-day shift pushed the expenditures out of the 1987 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, and into fiscal 1988. The Defense Department then resumed its policy of issuing paychecks on the last day of the month, meaning that it had a double payroll to meet in October.

Consumers Flock To Gobble Up Turkey Bargains

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Thanksgiving price war between grocers in Chicago has caused turkey prices to drop to as little as 17 cents a pound.

"We've got three: a 17 pounder; a 14 pounder; and an 11 pounder," said Mary Anne Tronchetti, 45, who bought her turkeys at Cub Foods for a mere 18 cents a pound.

"If they're good turkeys, we'll eat them for Thanksgiving and then use them for sandwiches. And if they're dry, we'll feed them to Muffin, our dog, because they're cheaper than dog food," said Tronchetti, who got a total of 42 pounds of turkey for $7.58.

Local grocers say they have been pricing their turkeys low to try to entice customers to do all their Thanksgiving shopping at one store. But they blame the price war on Cub Foods, which started the battle on Nov. 2 when it broadcast a radio spot touting a "temporary price reduction" of 28 cents a pound for turkey.

Two other grocery store chains, Jewel and Dominick's jumped into the fray, first offering turkeys for 19 and 29 cents a pound respectively, with a $50 dollar purchase. They then dropped their prices to 18 cents a pound and Cub was forced to follow suit.

The Treasure Island chain decided to go one better, selling turkeys for 17 cents a pound with a $50 purchase.

"If you look around the store, there's a turkey in every cart, everybody's got one and a lot have two," said Jim Halston, the assistant manager of a Dominick's on Chicago's Northwest Side.

"We can't keep up with the turkey sales," Jerry Grochocki, assistant manager at a Jewel on the city's North Side, said Grochocki, whose store has been getting a truck load of turkeys delivered daily. "This is definitely the lowest price they've ever been."

The closest competition was in Los Angeles, where one grocery store offering a free turkey with a purchase of $75. But elsewhere in California, turkey prices ranged from 37 to 88 cents a pound.

Close behind were Albany, N.Y. and Indianapolis, where some stores were offering birds for as low as 29 cents a pound. Turkeys in Virginia and Georgia could be had 39 cents a pound.

In Washington, D.C.; Detroit, Mich.; and Seattle, Wash., turkey prices were around 59 cents a pound.

Seminole MADD Chapter To Conduct Candlelight Vigil

The Seminole County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving will conduct a Candlelight Vigil at 8 p.m. Dec. 7 at Winter Park Civic Center, 1050 W. Morse Blvd., Winter Park.

The purpose of the Vigil, according to Beth Freeman-Bridges, Seminole County MADD Chapter president, is to provide a setting in which family and friends may remember, in a special way, their loved ones who have been killed by drunk drivers. Everyone is invited to attend and support the victim families.

The Candlelight Vigil also begins a period of "hope for a less violent future" for MADD as it sponsors other programs and projects during December to prevent holiday drunk driving crashes. Among them is the "Red Ribbon Campaign" in which citizens are encouraged to tie a red ribbon to their left car door handle as a sign to America that they hope for a safe holiday season and a stop to drunk driving.

For additional information, please contact Bridges at 323-5340.

SCC Presents 'The Preacher'

The Seminole Community College Fine Arts Theatre will present Tartuffe (Alias: "The Preacher") an American version of Moliere's comedy translated and adapted by Robert Strane and Eberle Thomas and directed by Paul M. Wegman. Tartuffe will play Dec. 2-5 at 8 p.m. with a matinee at 2 p.m. Dec. 6.

This updated version of Moliere's classic comedy has all of his familiar characters dealing with hypocrisy, only this time in Kentucky during the Civil War Reconstruction Era. Strane and Thomas first premiered this translation/adaptation while at the Asolo Theatre in Sarasota.

The SCC Fine Arts Theatre Box Office opens Nov. 23. Hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For reservations call 323-1450 or 843-7001 extension 399. General admission is $5. Senior citizens and students $4.

Ag Center To Hold Open House

The Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service will hold its Holiday Open House at the Sanford Agriculture Center from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Dec. 3. The open house will focus on educational presentations by the extension agents featuring topics such as care of poinsettias, hollies and mistletoe, selection of Christmas trees and fast gifts from the kitchen including hors d'oeuvres and breads and spreads. Refreshments will be served.

The center is located at 250 W. County Home Road off 17-92 south of Sanford at Five Points near Flea World. For more information, please call 323-2500, ext. 175.

Library Sets 'Dad's Day Out'

At 10:15 a.m. Dec. 5 the Central Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System will offer a special Preschool Story Program, "Dad's Day Out," just for fathers and children, ages 3-5.

The program will include stories about fathers, the holidays, songs and other fun activities.

The Central Branch is located in the Seminole Plaza at the intersection of Highways 17-92 and 436 in Casselberry. Call 339-4000 for more information.

Free Concert Sunday In Park

The Cultural Arts Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber will present another "Greater" concert in the park at 3 p.m. Nov. 29 in the Centennial Park gazebo.

Betty Reagan, chairman of the Cultural Arts Committee, invites everyone to this free concert featuring the Seminole County Band in a holiday concert. The 80-musician community band is under the direction of Dr. Bill Hinkle.

Alzheimer Group Plans Festivity

The Sanford Alzheimer Family Support Group is a very active group of caregivers and family members of Alzheimer patients. They meet every month on the second Thursday, 7 o'clock at Howell Place in Sanford. Meetings are open to new members and visitors who are interested in sharing their experiences in dealing with Alzheimer's disease.

The December meeting will be a Christmas party on Thursday, Dec. 10, at 7 o'clock.

For more information, please contact Betty Bruestle at 323-2392.

Miss Altamonte Pageant To Get Underway Dec. 6

The Miss Altamonte Springs Scholarship Pageant announced today that the "Kick Off Meeting" will be held at 2 p.m. Dec. 6 at the Ramada Inn in Altamonte Springs.

The Miss Altamonte Springs Scholarship Pageant, a preliminary for Miss America, plans to award $10,000 in scholarship money to winners of the 1988 pageant, to be held on Feb. 28, 1989.

Contestants will compete before a five member panel of certified judges and live audience in the areas of personal interview, swimsuit, evening gown and finally, talent, which counts 50 percent of the total score. Five finalists and three non-finalist winners will be awarded cash scholarship monies to further their educational and career goals and the new Miss Altamonte Springs will compete at the Miss Florida Pageant in June.

Anyone interested may write the pageant at Post Office Box 2088, Altamonte Springs, 32701, or call 899-0501, evenings.

Students Make Giving Trees

Each grade at Lake Mary Elementary School made a "Giving Tree" to celebrate the Thanksgiving season. Students, grades K-5, wrote on leaves why they are so thankful this Thanksgiving. The leaves were then attached to branches on a tree trunk. Why are the children so thankful? Stephen Simon said, "I am thankful for my family."

Father Suggests Bridesmaids Wear Something Old, Not New

DEAR ABBY: The other day, my wife and daughter and I were talking about our daughter's upcoming wedding. Since our daughter has a closetful of expensive dresses she's worn only once, I made what I thought was a very good suggestion: "Why not let all the girls you want in your wedding party just pick out the prettiest dress they have hanging in their closets and wear it? For those who don't have one or can't afford to buy one, let them borrow one of yours, or another friend's. Guys rent tuxedos for weddings; why should girls have to buy an expensive dress to wear only once? A lot of girls are left out of weddings because they can't afford to buy a dress."

Well, Abby, my suggestion went over like a lead balloon. What do you and your readers say?

PRACTICAL ALABAMA DADDY

DEAR DADDY: You are indeed practical, but if each bridesmaid were to wear the prettiest dress she found hanging in her closet, the bridal procession would look more like a garage-sale fashion show than a wedding.

Nice try, Dad, but I'm afraid your idea would never play in Birmingham, Montgomery or Tuscaloosa.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who used to be a good friend, but now he won't talk to me. This is why: My husband was diagnosed as having Alzheimer's disease about six months ago. His memory is very faulty and he has to be watched all the time, but there are times when he is quite all right, so I am keeping him home as long as I can.

Well, I do not drive, and my husband is not able to drive anymore, so I sold his car. This neighbor asked me several times to sell it to him, but I refused. Instead, I sold it to a man who does not live in our neighborhood because I was afraid that if my husband saw that car in our neighborhood he might insist it was his car and want it back.

I know I did the right thing, but the neighbor who wanted to buy it first is still not talking to me. Do you think I did the right thing or not?

HURT FEELINGS

DEAR HURT: I think you did exactly the right thing by selling the car to someone who did not live in your neighborhood. If you explained this to your neighbor and he still refuses to talk to you, shame on him.

DEAR ABBY: "Mrs. Whipple's" problem with her mother stealing toilet paper from motels brings to mind an incident that happened to my wife during a trip last year.

We stopped at a motel for the night and on leaving in the morning, my wife asked the manager for the address of the manufacturer of the excellent little coffee maker that was attached to the wall of our room. "I can give you the address," he said, "but this would be much easier — and cheaper." Then he reached under his desk and brought out a screwdriver and handed it to my wife.

"Pry it off the wall and take it home," he said. "The one in your room is the only one that hasn't been stolen!"

Maybe he was just kidding, but he certainly didn't act like it.

VIRGIL IN BANDON, ORE.
DEAR VIRGIL: I think he was just kidding. Since you didn't take him up on it, we'll never know.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know Perry Como? If you don't know him personally, maybe he will see this and make my dreams come true. I cannot find Perry Como's record. "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," I have looked everywhere — I even wrote to Canada, but nobody has it. I am willing to pay $100 for it. Please help me, Abby. Thank you with all my heart.

EMILINE SIMMERMAN

DEAR EMILINE: I don't know Perry Como, but maybe someone who has "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" will sell it to you. Please send me your address in case I get lucky. (P.S. You have excellent taste. Frank Sinatra says Perry Como is the finest male vocalist in the business.)

Sheila E. Drummin' Right Along After A Solo Career

Despite a successful solo music career and a promising film debut, Sheila E. wrapped up a world-tour opening for Lionel Richie by stepping back into a band. Her performance in 1985's "Krush Groove" was the only pleasing thing in the movie.

Video Beat Ethlic Ann Varc

In the new Prince concert movie "Sign O' the Times" and on the upcoming U.S. tour, Sheila E. will be seen behind a drum kit. In a soft, articulate voice that belies her fish-netted appearance, the California-born percussionist explains her decision:

Video Beat Ethlic Ann Varc like singing, and because people wanted to see me sing. I was away from my timbales more than I wanted. I have to keep trying to prove to people that I can play, keep trying to make them take me seriously as a musician. Why don't you like to sing? Because I don't know how. I can't sing. At least, I don't think I can. You've done a good job of bluffing it. I fooled a lot of people! I don't mind singing so much; it's just that if that were all I did, it wouldn't be fulfilling.

Are you worried about falling back into the "Prince's sexy protege" mold?

I never was a "Prince protege sex symbol" who doesn't have any talent and lets him write all the songs.

On my second album, "Romance 1600," I wanted so badly to change that image that I cut off all my hair and wore collars up to here and sleeves down to there, and tucked my pants into my boots. You couldn't see a stitch of flesh anywhere! I was so uncomfortable, but I had to let people know I was serious about playing.

Now I'm sitting behind a double-kick drum kit, and I can wear anything I want.

How are you different from Vanity, Apollonia, et al.?

I'm a musician. I was brought up listening to music — I don't know what they were brought up doing.

Is "Sign O' the Times" the first movie you've mixed sound for?

Yes, Prince just called me one day and said "Can you help me out? I'm totally exhausted." I said, "No problem. What do you want me to do?" "Mix the movie." And I said, "No way! I can't do that!" He said, "Sure you can."

He's always saying that. After we sang "Erotic City" together, he talked about me having my own career. I said "I can't," and he said "Sure you can." He has more confidence in us than we have in ourselves, and it makes us stronger.

So I flew to L.A. and mixed the sound. It took 12 days, 14 hours a day. Actually, I thought I had only spent a week at it, but another had somehow passed me by. It was hard work.

If you were to form another solo project, who would be in your fantasy band?

'Hope And Glory' Is A Funny And Lyrical Film

FILMETER What's new in movies and video Robert DiMatteo

IN MOVIE THEATERS HOPE AND GLORY (PG-13) English director John Boorman is best known for his explorations of machismo ("Deliverance") and mysticism ("The Emerald Forest"). Here, Boorman casts a fond eye back on his own childhood during the London blitz of World War II, and the result is an astonishingly funny and lyrical film. Boorman's version of the blitz is seen through the eyes of an impressionable young schoolboy named Bill Rohan (Sebastian Rice Edwards), who finds it thrilling. The constant bombings, beautiful barrage balloons overhead, a German pilot parachuting to the ground, air raid shelters and gas masks, the cancelling of school — these are the marks of a full-scale lark to a child.

But "Hope and Glory" gives us much more than a boy's charming myopia. The darker aspects of the war are always an undercurrent, with tragedy sometimes bubbling to the surface. The portrait extends to an entire family. While the men are away fighting, the women come into their own — in some ways a tremendous release for them, and something the movie captures especially well.

"Hope and Glory" moves easily among its gallery of characters. There's Bill's tough, resourceful mother (Sarah Miles), who has an affair in her husband's absence with a close family friend (Derrick O'Connor). And there's Bill's strong-willed, self-absorbed teenage sister Dawn (Sammi Davis), who becomes romantically involved with, and is eventually made pregnant by, a Canadian soldier.

The movie moves from the rubble-strewn London suburbs to Bill's grandparents' house on the Thames. This final section is a nature idyll that wraps the film in the magical aura of a fairy tale. In one marvelous sequence, the children are fishing, and having no luck, when a bomb is dropped in the river — stunning all the fish and supplying a feast for the family dinner. The whole movie has a richly observed, keenly acted mixture of fear, danger, beauty and pleasure. GRADE: 4 stars.

CRY FREEDOM (PG) "Gandhi" director Richard Attenborough and screenwriter John Briley have brought their liberal sentiments to bear on the story of South African black activist Stephen Biko (Denzel Washington) and his friendship with liberal white journalist Donald Woods (Kevin Kline). Once again they've come up with a movie more noble and well-intentioned than first-rate. This time, too, there's an unfortunate aspect to the film's dramatic emphasis. Focusing on the Woods's political awakening and subsequent escape with his family from South Africa, the movie eclipses the story of Biko, whose probable torture at the hands of the Afrikaner police resulted in his death.

The subsequent inquiry into Biko's demise, recorded in the play "The Biko Inquest," exposed a kangaroo-court situation that would have been far more gripping and relevant than the escape-movie melodramatics favored here. It's as if the filmmakers didn't think a black man's story could hold our interest.

The irony is that all the best parts of "Cry Freedom" center on Biko, superbly played by Denzel Washington. Biko's death half way through the picture diminishes its subsequent impact. But it's still a frequently impressive movie, filmed on a big, colorful canvas. GRADE: 3 stars.

NEW HOME VIDEO

THE NIGHT OF THE HUNTER (not rated) MGM/UA, $24.95. This 1955 film is the only one ever directed by Charles Laughton, with a script by James Agee. It's a wonderfully peculiar fable — part scary, part funny and completely unpredictable. Robert Mitchum gives one of his best (and creepiest) performances as a fake preacher who marries a widow (Shelley Winters) to get at some money her first husband stole and hid. Mitchum fools the widow, but her kids are on to him. GRADE: 3 1/2 stars.

(Film grading: 4 stars — excellent, 3 stars — good, 2 stars — fair, 1 star — poor)

Asians Accused Of Syphoning Kenyan Billions

By Patrick Meese
NAIROBI (UPI) — Deyling the dollar's worldwide weakening, the black market value of a dollar in Kenya is soaring daily — if you can find a taker.
Reports from the usually bustling street corners of Nairobi say tourists are no longer being approached by currency spivs offering to "change dollar, good rate."
The market is dead and the illegal money changers are out of a job.
But, so far, a month-old government crackdown on "economic sabotage" has mainly affected the Asian community — Kenyan citizens of Indian and Pakistani descent, who play a major role in the economy of the East African country.

So far, seven Asians, including five bankers and two traders, have been charged with failing to remit to the government a total of $84 million in foreign currency.
Like most African nations, Kenya does not allow its citizens to keep money outside the country. Any foreign currency earned by a Kenyan must be remitted to the Central Bank of Kenya and exchanged for Kenyan shillings.
Economic analysts believe the illegal foreign currency holdings uncovered so far are only the tip of an iceberg.

In a recent report, the International Monetary Fund said at least $1.3 billion was illegally held by Kenyans outside the country. Some estimates indicate the total may be as high as $6 billion, or 13 times Kenya's total foreign exchange reserves of $442 million.

Strapped for foreign cash, Kenyan President Daniel arap Moi's government recently began negotiating with the IMF for a $170 million credit to help cover an expected balance of trade deficit of up to $200 million in 1988.

Monetary sources indicated that Kenya, given its good record for servicing its $4 billion foreign debt, will likely get the money.
But creditors have exercised strong pressure on Kenya to put its own house in order and ensure at least some of the money syphoned during the years is remitted to Moi's financial authorities.
Observers believe donor pressure largely contributed to the crackdown on what the official Kenya Times referred to as "economic saboteurs" and "crazy parasites."

But Nairobi's weekly Financial Review said "the cash crackdown has given rise to fears in some quarters that it is open season on Asians in Kenya."

And the seven Asians charged with defrauding the country are unlikely to find much sympathy from "indigenous" Kenyans, many of whom are resentful of the Asian community's often ostentatious wealth.
The 80,000-strong community dominates much of the import-export business, commerce and industry.
"Asian-bashing" is common, both in parliament and in the press.

Flavored German Mineral Water A Hit In Midwest

By Elizabeth Braden
OLATHIE, Kan. (UPI) — A former Midwestern school principal and a West German bottler have joined forces to quench the trendy American thirst for fruit-flavored mineral water.
Europa Distributors Inc. was formed in the Kansas City suburb of Olathe about 18 months ago to market Chappelle European Sparkling Mineral Water, which has been sold since 1984 by Kaiserbrunnen AG of Aachen, West Germany.
The mineral waters in Aachen were known to the early Romans, who came to drink and be healed by what they believed was the water's special qualities, according to Europa's marketing pitch.
The Chappelle name comes from an area of Germany once called Aix la Chappelle, and the water was mainly sold, until recently, in West Germany.

Europa's president, James R. Smith, a former teacher, coach and principal in the Olathe School District, was introduced to the product by two former students who have always been an entrepreneur, said Smith, who owns about 10 percent of the company. "I did lots of things on the side, as most teachers do."
Smith's Europa has become the sole distributor for Chappelle in the United States and Canada.

He wanted to distribute Chappelle in this country because he liked the taste and believed it would sell well, but knew a few changes had to be made to accommodate differences in the European and American markets.
"We as a company didn't understand their market and they didn't understand our market," Smith said. "We've had a difficult time convincing them of the needs of the American market."

For example, Europeans do not like fruit juice in their mineral water, Smith said, but six weeks after his request, pear juice was added to the Chappelle natural mineral water, and both were shipped to the United States.

"It's just the difference in taste," he said. "They didn't like the pear and it's our best seller."
The drink contains 10 percent real fruit juice and comes in pear, lemon, orange, grapefruit and pineapple flavors, with apple on the way.

"All of those are products produced just for the United States," Smith said. "They don't even use those over there."
Also, Europeans drink bottled water instead of tap water and they purchase mineral water by the case.

Kaiserbrunnen executives finally were convinced that Chappelle would be better marketed in the four-pack size, Smith said, and that Chappelle executives liked their beverage to Perrier, PepsiCo's Sprite and Coca-Cola's Sprite to explain the taste of their product.

Perrier, though, is not mineral water, it is natural water with an essence of flavor, said Jeff Orscheln, marketing director for Europa.
"We've gone one step further and added the juice," he said.

"With the juice in it, it gives us a uniqueness, and we have a niche in that market," Smith said.
Sprite and Perrier are carbonated, Smith said.

Clocks Vs. Computers Culture Clash

By John M. Leighty
UPI Feature Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — At some computer workstation, an automatic alarm clock within the system reminds users what time of day it is.
"It prevents burnouts," said one federal government employee who works with the latest high-speed computers.
"The computer speeds up the thinking process and relieves the doldrums of an eight-hour day."
For others, however, the computer has become a time trap, monitoring their progress and forcing them to produce information at a faster, more frantic pace.
Speed, speed, speed. It seems to be a byword of a high-tech industry hurtling itself at a breakneck pace toward the future regardless of the consequences to society and basic human values.
The rippling-down effect of the nanosecond culture is contagious. A billboard ad near a San Francisco commuter route reads, "Who has time to go grocery shopping?" and offers a service that will buy and deliver bags of food for busy people.
At Stanford University, philosophers have written computer programs to teach students logic at a pace far faster than classroom instruction. In Silicon Valley, Apple Computer's Macintosh development team wears T-shirts reading, "Working 90 hours a week and loving it." Store clerks are becoming faceless drones as they rush customers through automated check-out counters.
Computers are always waiting for instructions, which they respond to in measures of a nanosecond, or a billionth of a second. Once programmed, the modern machine can carry out a set of orders with the illusion of intelligence, unrelenting a sequence of events into the future without further human assistance.
Clocks, invented in the 14th century, allowing industrialization and commerce to mushroom by replacing the time sequence of natural biological and physical rhythms with hour-dominated working days. Computers have now taken time and crunched and organized it at a speed beyond the realm of anything humans can experience.

Control? The recent stock market crash, caused in part by investment computers pre-programmed to react to a formulaic set of events, has given a signal that faster is not always better.
"It's a major warning to us," says Jeremy Rutkin, president of the Foundation of Economic

Turner Broadcasting In Big Leagues

By David Vesey
UPI Business Writer
ATLANTA (UPI) — Ted Turner, looking fit and clearly in good spirits, greeted a reporter in his spacious office on the ninth floor of the CNN Center, formerly the Omni International, in downtown Atlanta.
The chairman and founder of Turner Broadcasting System Inc. was cordial, relaxed and funny, cracking jokes and laughing heartily. But when the conversation went astray, Turner was quick to get it back on track.
"C'mon, c'mon, c'mon," he snipped.
"Ask questions!" This is an interview, not a talk show!
The words underscored one constant about Robert Edward Turner III, according to a longtime employee.
"Control," the employee said. "He's got to be in control at all times — even when he's being interviewed."
In recent months, Turner's total control of his cable empire has been eroding.
Because of long-term cash-flow problems, Turner this year was forced to bring in partners. They are major, big-time and rich players in the cable industry who, the theory goes, are capable of wresting control of the TBS empire, if they want, from the man who built it.
But it hasn't happened yet.
And, to hear Turner talk, it probably won't.
"So far, Turner and his new partners are — at least publicly — all smiles and embraces.
"There hasn't been any conflict," Turner said. "All there has been is harmony and friendly enthusiasm."
Turner's longtime second-in-command, Robert Wussler, agreed.
"Six months in, the relationship has been terrific," he said, adding that the new board

Ex-High School Coach A Success In Insurance

By Rhonda Cook
DULUTH, Ga. (UPI) — Coaching high school football for $10,000-a-year was fine, but Art Williams realized he wanted to play a greater game in life — to "save middle America."
Less than 20 years later, and with the help of thousands of Williams converts, the former high school coach has built a multibillion-dollar life insurance company.
Now, A.L. Williams Life Insurance Co., a subsidiary of A.L. Williams Corp., along with little-known Massachusetts Indemnity and Life Insurance Co., and A.L. Williams General Agency, underwrites more term life insurance policies than any company in the United States, according to industry figures.
Moreover, the value of the policies Williams wrote last year was more than the combined value of the two next-largest companies — Prudential and State Farm.

Williams, 45, also offers three mutual funds and a credit card at 13 percent interest and is expanding into real estate, home mortgages and accident, health and auto insurance.
Williams wants to expand into banking as soon as the industry is deregulated, and he passionately preaches "buy term (life insurance) and invest the rest."
"I want to save middle America," the stocky Williams said. "I believe A.L. Williams is a company of destiny."
It is the never-ending Williams enthusiasm and optimism that has infected more than 180,000 employees with a fervent, evangelistic selling style with a single-minded focus on selling inexpensive term life insurance.

He formed his first agency, the A.L. Williams General Agency, in 1977 with a staff of 85. He attributes the sudden tremendous growth of the agency, independently owned by Williams, the corporation and its largest subsidiary, A.L. Williams Life Insurance Co., to luck and being in the "right place at the right time."
"He hit this country like a bomb," said a Prudential agent who criss-crossed the country teaching agents how to fight A.L. Williams. "They didn't know what hit them."
Williams sends his flock — 85 percent of whom are part-time workers — into 49 states and Canada to sell policies. He claims his policies are spread "across 250,000 kitchen tables a month."

"One of the things I preach to the guys — one of the key principles is you have to be a crusader," Williams said.
Williams said the use of part-timers keeps administrative costs down and "you can hire better quality people, people who don't see insurance as full-time work."
"I have the best extra-income business in the country so I can hire the cream of the crop," he said.
Williams avoids high-pressure sales and any insurance who closes a deal on the first visit is fired, he said. "Don't sell policies. We save people money."

Williams said he first realized what he considered the "continued existence of different types of policies when his father died."
"He had too little of the wrong kind of insurance and no savings," Williams said. "My mother was devastated."
Later, he learned he could buy a $100,000 term life insurance policy — which pays only death benefits — for what he was paying for a $15,000 cash value life insurance policy — a more expensive plan that pays interest on money paid above the cost of the policy.

"The more I realized, the more bitter I became," Williams said. "The industry has screwed and misled the consumer. Cash value insurance is a rip off."
Williams has his critics, some of whom consider his statements irresponsible and his use of part-timers harmful to consumers.

"Insurance is an important financial service and the people out there giving advice on how much insurance to buy and what to buy should be dedicated to making a career of it," said Joseph Belth, an insurance professor at Indiana University.
Williams' salespeople augment their initial training with weekly Williams pep talks and other programs broadcast almost continuously over a $9 million private satellite television network.

Critics also complain that Williams employees intermittently persuade clients to transfer money from existing cash value policies to term insurance.
"What A.L. Williams is doing is wrong for the consumer and represents a disservice to the public," Belth said. "Some policies should be replaced and some should not. But anybody who says all policies should be replaced is not acting in the public's interest."
Belth and other critics also have complained about Williams' passionate criticism of the insurance industry.

"Williams is a part of the insurance industry and he is a critical of it as if he's not a part of it," said Richard Skipper, associate professor of risk management and insurance at Georgia State University. "Some of the criticisms he has leveled are justified to varying degrees. Some of them have been unfair. Some are simply wrong."

Federal Agents Guard Jackson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson Monday became the first Democratic presidential candidate to receive Secret Service protection.

Jackson said the security was necessary because of the "growing danger and preclauseness of the threats" against his life.

"We must be able to have in our country open, free and fair elections without the threat or actual occurrence of terrorism," said Jackson, the only one of six declared Democratic candidates to receive Secret Service protection so far.

Vice President George Bush has protection because of his office but none of the other Republican candidates do.

Jackson, citing a number of threats, requested the early protection Oct. 8 and was notified Saturday the request was granted. Jackson spokesman Frank Watkins cited revelations of an alleged "Black November" plot by Ku Klux Klan members in South Carolina to kill Jackson, a civil rights leader and the only black candidate.

The 24-hour-a-day protection began at 8 a.m. Monday when Secret Service agents appeared at Jackson's Washington hotel. A full Secret Service detail and motorcade accompanied Jackson to the State Department for a series of meetings related to his weeklong foreign trip.

A Secret Service spokesman confirmed the protection had begun and referred further questions to the parent Treasury Department, where a spokesman declined to comment.

Secret Service protection does not normally begin for major candidates until January of the election year. A special board headed by Treasury Secretary James Baker and including congressional leaders decides early cases. Jackson also received early protection in 1983, when he ran for president the first time and federal bodyguards accompanied him on three foreign trips.

Jackson told reporters at the State Department he will leave Tuesday on a "humanitarian mission" to Kuwait, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia and possibly Jordan and Ethiopia. He said the department had been "quite supportive" and he spent almost an hour with Deputy Secretary John Whitehead.

Jackson said he would meet heads of state, U.S. ambassadors and U.S. servicemen and their families while in the Persian Gulf, may see King Hussein in Jordan to discuss the recent Arab summit and will confer with African leaders attending an Organization of African Unity Conference in Addis Ababa and visit famine areas while in Ethiopia.

The Pentagon denied Jackson's request to visit U.S. warships in the Persian Gulf. But Jackson said he would meet U.S. servicemen on land "to assure them of our love for them and care for them."

"While there necessarily may be debate and division in this country about our policy in the gulf, there is no division over our support for them," he said.

Jackson said he would assess alternatives to the administration's Persian Gulf policy, encourage a negotiated settlement of the Iran-tran war with an arms embargo against both combatants and express support for the U.S. hostages held in Lebanon.

Reagan Refuses To Discuss Pardons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan refused Monday to rule out pardons for central figures in the Iran-Contra scandal, deferring such decisions to "some time in the future," as his aides tried to scotch rumors of holiday season reprieves.

"This is a subject that I have not and will not discuss at this time," Reagan said when asked during a photo session whether pardons would be considered before independent counsel Lawrence Walsh concludes his criminal investigation.

As to when the issue might be addressed, Reagan said only, "Let's say sometime in the future."

The touchy matter of pardons for Rear Adm. John Poindexter and Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North met with a stubborn response from White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater in the face of news reports that kept alive interest among reporters.

Instating any comment on the matter "just lends credence to idle speculation and ill-founded rumors," Fitzwater told reporters. "We don't discuss pardons. Period." He called the talk of pre-emptive pardons for "a media phenomenon."

However, the cauldron of conjecture kept bubbling with a New York Times report of "a hot, widely discussed, wholly unconfirmed rumor" spawned in Capitol Hill, that Reagan will issue pardons this week on Thanksgiving Day, from his California ranch.

"Nobody's talking pardons but the press and some people outside the White House," one senior presidential aide barked to a reporter. "The only thing the president's going to be doing Thursday is calling turkey."

Newswatch reported that first lady Nancy Reagan is "adamantly opposed" to pardons for North and Poindexter. As White House insiders have suspected for some time, Newsweek said she fears pardons would stain the Reagan legacy just at the time a superpower arms accord appears likely to strengthen the president's place in the history books.

"She has nothing to do with pardons," said Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Elaine Crispin. "She isn't talking pardons with anybody."

Try as they may, however, the president's men have been unable to erase suspicions that he will use his broad authority under Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution — "to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment" — to shield his former aides from prosecution.

Part of the reason is a clamor from the far right for Reagan to come to the rescue of aides whose possible misdeeds were committed in what many conservatives regard as the line of duty, in furtherance of valid policies.

Reagan has done nothing to quell the speculation. Indeed, he has kept the option alive through an assertion — first delivered July 31 and repeated since — that he heard nothing in weeks of testimony before the Iran-Contra committees to indicate laws were broken.

That belief, viewed together with the legendary loyalty Reagan has been known to exhibit toward subordinates, would seem to suggest a potential for pardons, despite fears of political repercussions — like the backlash President Ford suffered after pardoning his predecessor, Richard Nixon.

A decision to pardon the principal players in the scandal also would be certain to face a hostile reaction within the Reagan family, if not from the first lady then from first daughter Maureen.

Maureen Reagan, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, made her views known earlier this year when she proposed North and Poindexter be court-martialed for "treason."

On Dec. 2, 1986, in a address to the nation, Reagan asked for appointment of an independent counsel.

Neurofibromatosis Not Always Inherited

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — We know a family whose son has neurofibromatosis. The mother says her doctor told her it was inherited. She says there was nothing like this in her family, so guess who is to blame? How can it be blamed on one side or another when only one in 10,000 have it? Isn't something like this a combination of many genes?

DEAR READER — Neurofibromatosis occurs in one out of 3,000 births. It is characterized by skin spots that are well-demarcated and are the color of coffee with milk, hence the term "cafe au lait" spots. In addition, the disease is associated with nerve tumors, bone abnormalities, precocious puberty, learning disorders and seizures.

The condition is inherited as an autosomal (non-sex-linked) dominant pattern, meaning that 50 percent of affected individuals will produce children who have the disease. The specific gene has not been identified. Males and females are equally affected.

Because only 50 percent of patients have a parent with the condition, the remaining 50 percent are presumed to reflect new mutations — that is, half the patients have a new genetic abnormality that is not acquired from a parent.

This observation is an important one, because it removes the burden of responsibility from parents who do not have the disease. If the parents of the child you mention do not have neurofibromatosis, then the boy must have developed his genetic defect apart from them.

The treatment of neurofibromatosis has been the surgical removal of nerve tumors. Investigators have become very excited by a recent report that described how doctors are using ketotifen, a mast-cell stabilizer, to treat the disease. Mast cells, where histamine is produced in the body, can often be found in the nerve tumors of neurofibromatosis. Ketotifen shows promise in managing the disease and may well improve the outlooks of people with the disorder.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
The futility of trump leads on certain auctions is highlighted by this hand from a team match held last March in Holland. At one table West led a trump, and declarer lost only to the A-K of spades and the king of diamonds. At the other table the king of clubs was led. Declarer won and played a spade to the queen. East took the king and returned a club. When East won the second spade lead, he continued with still another club. Later, when he won the king of diamonds, he was able to cash the club jack to set the contract. Although this defense was best, declarer should still have prevailed.

Since he will need to play diamonds eventually, he may as well play a diamond in dummy's queen at trick two. East will win the king and return a diamond. The play will then proceed: club ruff, A-K of hearts (declarer discarding a diamond), a heart ruff and another club ruff. Now a diamond is played from dummy and declarer ruffs with his jack or 10 of spades. West cannot overruff, so declarer can now play a fourth club to ruff in dummy, and another diamond will allow him to make a 10th trick with his remaining trump honor. Although declarer is fortunate that West cannot overruff the third diamond and that East cannot overruff the fourth club, he has no choice but to play for this lie of the cards when the diamond finesse fails. How much easier it would have been with a trump lead!

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...
By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
NOVEMBER 25, 1987

You will assume a more visual role in an important enterprise in the year ahead. This new position of authority will also provide you with some perks you haven't received before.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't revive an issue that angered you in the past concerning a person who is now essential to your present plans. Let sleeping dogs lie. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This looks like it will be a mixed day for you financially. Wise management of your resources is essential now if you hope to remain in the black.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a possibility that you may ignore the sage advice of a concerned friend; you may do something today that will not serve your best interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although you may be tempted to do otherwise, manage a critical career situation from behind the scenes today, even if another takes the credit for your handiwork.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tread cautiously today if you get into a philosophical discussion with a pal. You may be able to make your points, but you might not be able to keep a friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though you might not receive the full support of an associate today, you should still be able to achieve an objective in which this person will also share.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless your good intentions are properly engineered today, there's a chance you'll create a situation that will pit one person against another. Both will be upset with you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You tend to be a trifle possessive today. This could cause problems if you don't use tactful measures to obscure your feelings when dealing with others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't make impromptu commitments with friends without first consulting your mate. Your ideas might not fit into his or her plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) For the sake of your own productivity today, pace yourself sensibly workwise. The more you rush, the more careless you're apt to get.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There may be a contest today between your prudent judgment and your extravagant impulses to see which rules your purse. Don't tilt the odds in favor of the latter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A material issue could be the reason for a nasty family dispute today, especially if in-laws are involved. Try not to be the one who provokes it.
