Sanford Man Gets Life For Rape Of Boy, 6

By Rick Brunson
and Deane Jordan

Claiming "the Lord knows I'm innocent," Clifford J. Milliken Jr. of Sanford was convicted Wednesday of raping a 6-year-old boy and sentenced to life in prison.

A circuit court jury of six men and six women with a Sanford firefighter as foreman deliberated 82 minutes before returning a unanimous guilty verdict at 4:21 p.m.

Milliken, clad in a dark blue polyester suit, stood looking slightly upward with his mouth open when the verdict was read. He showed no signs of emotion.

The boy's mother, who said earlier she had prayed for a guilty verdict, cried softly when the verdict was read in the silent courtroom. Susan Erlenbach, wife of prosecuting attorney Kurt Erlenbach, sat next to the boy's mother and gave her a handkerchief when she began to weep.

Milliken, 58, of 1210½ Magnolia Ave., was charged with sexual battery of a child under 11. His conviction carries a mandatory life sentence and requires him to serve 25 years before becoming eligible for parole. He was sentenced immediately after the verdict was read without the usual presentence investigation because under state law there was no other possible sentence than life.

It was the second time Milliken has been convicted of sexual battery in a 20-year history of lewd acts involving children.

Milliken was given a 100-year prison sentence in 1980 after being convicted of raping an 11-year-old Sanford girl. The sentence was reduced to 15 years in 1982 on a technical error by the prosecuting State Attorney. In the same year, his sentence was further reduced to 7½ years so Milliken could be treated as a mentally disordered sex offender. After the judge lost jurisdiction in the case, Milliken refused treatment and got out in 3½ years with time off for good behavior.

He was arrested in the latest incident April 17, just 53 days after his release from prison.

Maintaining his innocence to the end, Milliken told retired Circuit Judge Humes T. Lasher, from Dade County, before sentence was imposed. "The

High Court Scuttles Reason '84

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The $5 million political fight between doctors and lawyers over damage limitation in negligence lawsuits was stopped in its second round by a unanimous Florida Supreme Court Wednesday.

The seven justices will soon issue a written opinion stating their reasons for knocking Amendment 9 off the Nov. 6 ballot, but they notified elections officials and attorneys on both sides of the dispute that the "Reason '84" amendment was dead.

The Florida Medical Association had spent $3.6 million so far in its campaign to amend Florida's constitution with a $100,000 limitation on "non-economic" damages in negligence lawsuits. The FMA sought to hold down malpractice insurance by limit the amount patients could recover for pain and suffering, loss of companionship, mental anguish or other non-dollar losses from a botched treatment.

The Florida Bar and Academy of Florida Trial Lawyers, not wanting a limit on the 30 to 40 percent fees attorneys can get in negligence lawsuits, spent $1.5 million fighting the amendment. The lawyers warned that in limiting damages in malpractice suits, the amendment would also limit liability for drunken drivers, toxic waste dumpers, manufacturers of faulty consumer goods — even violent criminals.

In oral arguments last Monday, attorneys fighting the amendment said it was deceptively worded — making voters believe they were creating some new civil litigation rights, rather than limiting their potential recovery — and that the proposal improperly dealt with multiple topics. The court did not state its reasons for spiking the amendment, but said it would issue a written opinion later.

"Obviously, the fight for Amendment 9 is over," said Sergio Bendixen, campaign director of the FMA's "Reason '84" committee. He said he was "very disappointed and surprised" at the court's swift, unanimous decision.

Attorney Barry Richard, who argued against the amendment, praised the court for "not being intimidated" by the controversy in a year when two of its members are up for election.

"I think the significance of it is that it was decided in the most pressurized situation for the court," said Richard.

"Whatever it's based on, it's a clear message to these groups that they are not going to be able to buy their way onto the ballot and then say, 'Let the people vote,'" he said.

The FMA began a petition campaign last spring for "Citizens' Rights in Civil Litigation" — the ballot title of the amendment — and on Aug. 7 certified names of more than 440,000 voters to put the proposition on the ballot. The trial lawyers immediately formed FACT — Floridians Against Constitutional Tampering — to campaign against the amendment.

Leon County Superior Court Judge Ben C. Willis ruled Sept. 14 that the amendment did not violate the ban on multi-purpose constitutional amendments. He also said it was not improperly presented to the voters.

Both sides agreed to bypass the District Court of Appeal and go straight to the Supreme Court, with just a month remaining before the election.

In addition to the $100,000

The boy was taken to an Orlando hospital by his mother.

Financially Troubled FBI Agent Arrested As Spy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — FBI Agent Richard Miller, a father of eight children faced with mounting debts from a failing avocado ranch, apparently turned to a female KGB agent for comfort — and cash.

Federal investigators said Wednesday that it was Miller's personal relationship with Svetlana Ogorodnikova that led to their suspicion the 20-year FBI veteran was passing classified material to her and her husband. A long investigation resulted in the first arrest ever of an FBI agent on espionage charges.

Miller, 47, accused of selling the documents for $65,000 in gold and cash, was held without bail today after being fired. He was to be arraigned in San Diego today.

Ogorodnikova, 34, and her husband,

Nikolay Ogorodnikov, 51, were arrested late Tuesday night. The government said Ogorodnikova was a major in the KGB, the Soviet intelligence service.

Bail for the couple was denied when federal prosecutors argued that if the they were freed the Russians would use "the full force of the KGB to get them out of the country."

FBI sources indicated Miller, who lived with his family on a financially troubled avocado ranch in San Diego County, was having a sexual relationship with Ogorodnikova, who he met while acting in his counterintelligence capacity.

But an FBI affidavit indicated that agents believed Miller was more interested in money than romance.

The Rough Stuff School Staff Bargain Hunters On A Roll...

What is good 2-ply toilet paper going for these days?

After stalking the shelves, or more accurately, the warehouses, the school board's staff came up with what it thought was the best buy for your money. The price was put on paper and, in typical school board fashion, whiked through a hearing and approved in about three seconds.

What it got was 300 cases, or about 29,000 rolls, for $7,020. That's translates into about 25 cents a roll. Not a bad price considering what toilet paper is going for lately.

A roll of inexpensive 2-ply paper costs about 30 to 40 cents in local grocery stores. The school board is getting it for a quarter.

"They're getting a good buy," said Ed Welch, who purchases toilet paper for the Holiday Inn on state Road 46. "I'd like to be able to buy it for that."

He is paying about three cents more, albeit for good, hotel-grade stuff. The paper they get for high school students could double for sand paper in shop class. But Welch says it appears the school board got a fairly good bargain, even for the rough stuff.

Besides toilet tissue, the school board went shopping for tires recently.

The board bought 100 radial tires for its buses for $14,607, or $146.07 apiece. If the average consumer went to buy the same tire, he, she, would pay $385. That's because the state is the customer, says Greg Campbell, office manager of Goodyear's Truck Tire Center.

Other items in the board's latest batch of purchases: an $8,849 lawn mower. What kind of lawn mower costs the same as a 1985 Mazda? Well, it's called an Excel Hustler 275. It cuts a 72-inch swath of grass and has a 23-horsepower engine. But for almost $9,000 it might have been loaded with a fuel-injected turbo, air conditioning and electric windows.

State OKs $2 Million I-4 Bridge

The state of Florida is ready to commit $2 million or more of federal interstate highway funds to build a bridge across Interstate 4 between state Roads 436 and 434 to relieve the traffic jams on both highways.

Tom Lewis, assistant secretary of the state Department of Transportation, told County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn earlier this week that money for the bridge design and construction will be available within the next five years as the project is included in the state's five-year road program.

In exchange for the commitment, the state is requiring the county and the city of Altamonte Springs promise to build roads running from Palm Springs Drive through Crane's Roost Boulevard, behind the Altamonte Mall, on the east side of I-4 and from Montgomery Road to Douglas Road on the west side of I-4 to join the bridge on both sides.

District DOT engineer, C.B. "Bill" Benedict and his staff are to meet with Altamonte Springs and county officials early next week to discuss the project, dubbed "Center Street overpass" by Altamonte officials for the past 10 years as studies were conducted and builders were asked to commit right-of-way for the project.

Altamonte Springs City Manager Phil Penland said developers including DSJ Developments, Inc. and the Badcock Corp. have pledged right of way and some funding for the east side road while a large condominium project has promised right of way and funding for construction of the road on the west side.

"I think we are in a position to move," Penland said.

He said the biggest question left to be answered is whether the road should be two lanes or four lanes.

"We also want to make sure in the design of the road and bridge that a buffer area is provided to protect the properties of nearby homeowners," Penland said. "This is a good project for the city of Altamonte Springs and for everyone who travels 436. Altamonte Springs will work with the county and DOT. This will provide an alternative route off 436."

Penland said city estimated several years ago the construction of the three-mile stretch would cost about $200,000, but this doesn't include drainage.

New Selection Plan To Make Jury Duty Less Of A Hassle

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Jury duty may be less of an inconvenience in Seminole County thanks to a new way of notifying and directing the 6,000 people needed each year for trials.

The juror management system, which went into effect Monday, not only increases the efficiency of selecting jurors but saves the county money, according to Elaine RiCharde, judicial secretary, who designed the system with Lois Wallace, judicial administrative assistant.

According to Mrs. RiCharde, the primary benefit of the system, which was designed by selecting the best components of similar programs used in other Florida counties, is the savings realized by the telephone message system that will enable jurors to find out whether they have to report to the courthouse for service.

In the past, all potential jurors had to show up even if they were not needed or had a statutory reason for not serving. At $10 a day and 17 cents a mile for travel, having everyone show up all the time was expensive, Mrs. RiCharde said.

Now, jurors receive a summons and an excuse form allowing them to explain why they don't want to serve. If they fill out the form and if they do not hear from the county, they are excused. Those who are not excused have to call the courthouse to find out if they are needed.

The size of jury pools, selected from voter registration rolls, vary because of holidays, number of cases, availability of judges, and individual preferences of the judges.

Trial periods are three weeks long and either 105 or 150 jurors are needed each week and serve for one week. Juries are selected for criminal and civil trials in both circuit and county court, Mrs. RiCharde said. The jurors also serve on petty juries or on grand juries.

Under the jury management system, all jurors called for a certain week are administratively placed in a numbered group of 15 and given an individual letter. If, based on the court's workload, only 60 of 150 jurors are needed, they will be randomly selected. When the potential jurors call the courthouse, they will be told if they have to report or not. If the telephone system or the recorded message is not working, the potential jurors must report.

Mrs. RiCharde said that not only has the notification system been improved, but the jury summons has also been changed.

It now includes an excuse form to be mailed to the courthouse if a potential juror thinks he has a legal reason not to serve on a jury.

Optional but not mandatory reasons for not serving on a jury are that you are an expectant mother, a parent not employed full time who has custody of a child under 6-years-old, are age 70 or older, or served on a jury within the last two years as of Jan. 1 of this year.

You cannot serve on a jury, according to state statute, if you are a sheriff or deputy sheriff, a municipal police officer, no longer a resident of Seminole County, a convicted felon without restored civil rights, or under prosecution for any crime.

Besides information about jury duty, a map on the envelope shows potential jurors how to find the courthouse. The notification also contains a questionnaire to be filled out for use during the jury selection process, or voir dire.

The judge, state attorney and defense lawyer will have copies of the questionnaires while a jury is being selected for a case.

Among the questions on the form, besides name, occupation, address, and age, would-be jurors are asked if they have served on a jury, have a relative or close friend in law enforcement, or have been accused of a crime or been a witness in any case.

Mrs. RiCharde said other improvements in the system includes developing the computer capability in Seminole County to program, select, and print the jury rolls.

Prior to August, the job was contracted to Brevard County, and according to Mrs. RiCharde, lessened the control Seminole officials had over the selection list.

For example, after a potential juror has been notified of their selection for a jury pool, they can now be told not to report if the judge is on vacation that week or out of town for some reason. Prior to implementation of the new system, once Brevard County completed the rolls and the summons was issued there was no halting the course of events.

Ever wonder how prospective jurors are chosen?

Mrs. RiCharde said every January a magnetic tape listing all registered voters, about 75,000, is made by the supervisor of elections. The tape is placed in a two-key safe. A judge has one key and a clerk another and it takes two keys to open the safe. Routinely, they feed the tape into a computer.

The computer is then told how many jurors are needed and for what weeks. By a random recurring selection process, the computer chooses potential jurors while simultaneously comparing the subject's data with various lists to determine if the juror can be used.

If the computer picks a juror who has been excused, it automatically goes to the next random selection as it does if someone is no longer a registered voter. An incorrect address will also cause the computer to select another juror, Mrs. RiCharde said.

After the list is made up, the summons are mailed, she said.

Two months later, many of them will sit on juries.

She'll Walk In Space

Life Is An Adventure For Astronaut Sullivan

By Olive Talley
United Press International
Kathy Sullivan had a choice: explore Earth looking up from the ocean floor or looking down from the heavens. She chose the view from space and a career as an astronaut and now is poised to become the first American woman to walk in space.

Kathy Sullivan

For Sullivan, 31, who is set to fly Friday, life is an adventure.

An avid mountain climber, she has hiked across all but one of this country's mountain ranges and most major mountain ranges in Europe and Canada.

She speaks five foreign languages — French, German, Swedish, Norwegian and Danish — and holds a doctorate in geology.

"The underlying theme (in my life) is an interest in exploring the earth," Sullivan said in an interview.

The brown-haired, green-eyed Sullivan grew up in Woodland Hills, Calif., where her father worked as an aerospace design engineer at the Lockheed Corp.

Sullivan credits exposure to her father's work for helping her develop an "appreciation for and comfort with technical type things" and a technical approach to living.

But she says her interest in the space program evolved from her academic interests.

As an Earth sciences major at the University of California, Santa Cruz, Sullivan spent one school year as an exchange student at the University of Bergen, Norway. She received a bachelor's degree with honors in 1973 and then studied at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, where she took a doctorate in geology five years later.

During that time, she took part in a variety of oceanographic expeditions with the U.S. Geological Survey and worked as a researcher for the Geological Survey of Canada.

It was after she completed her dissertation on the structure and evolution of the continental shelf and deep seafloor east of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland that she was confronted with a major career decision.

"My options boiled down to a post-doctoral fellowship at a branch of Columbia (University) — which would have involved diving in a small submersible called Alvin down to thousands of feet below the surface of the ocean looking at the volcanic forms of the seafloor and all that — or NASA," she said.

"Either one is a direct kind of hands-on exploration of the earth in unique dimensions and I was finding I had a set of skills I could use to get involved in them," Sullivan said.

The lure of the astronaut corps won out. She signed on with NASA in 1978 as one of the first six women to break the astronaut sex barrier.

She is eager for her three-hour spacewalk, but attaches little importance to the distinction that she will be the first American female astronaut to walk in space.

"It's another one of those milestones I suspect is being kept on a number of people's scorecards, but I don't have that scorecard," she said.

And Sullivan laughs when she points out that her build — 5 feet 8 and 150 pounds — and her love for the rugged outdoors make her well-suited for the job.

"I am not your basic weak, frail female and never have been. It's been nice to find a place where qualifying for the (Los Angeles) Rams' front four is an asset rather than a liability," she joked.

CFRH Worker Donates Half Of Award

Special to the Herald
Histology Supervisor Sandy Dunn has donated half of her $1,000 Dr. Friet Humanitarian Award money to Central Florida Regional Hospital's Employee Support Committee.

Sandy Dunn

Sandy won the divisional award after competing with employees from 16 hospitals within Hospital Corporation of America's north Florida division. She is CFRH's 1984 Dr. Friet Award recipient. The award is named after Dr. Thomas Friet, Sr. who founded HCA.

Sandy, who has been with the hospital 15 years, said she appreciates the support she receives from the hospital's employees with the projects that just seem to find her, as she puts it.

"It (donating the money) was the only way that I could give the employees back the award," Sandy said.

For example, last summer Sandy had promised 50 deprived children a trip to Walt Disney World. After weeks of work raising the $1,000 needed to pay for the trip, one of the children's father left the state with the money. Not wanting to disap-point 50 children who had waited all summer for the trip, Sandy set out to gather money for the project.

She started the collection with herself by donating the $250 she had just won for receiving the Friet Award. A doctor wrote a $300 check, and the supervisor of the blood bank gave her $100. The rest of the money trickled in from employees who heard about her dilemma. Without asking anyone for a dime, in two hours Sandy had $1,000 and the trip was on again.

"Material things are not important to me," Sandy said. "I like people."

"I have several things I'd like to do with the other $500, at Christmas time I'll probably find a need for it."

Network Of Terror

Barbarism recently raised its savage head in Beirut once again when another truck-bomb blasted the U.S. Embassy annex, killing 23 people, including two Americans, and wounding 71 others.

This bombing was the third attack on a U.S. target in the Middle East during the last 18 months. The attack was the work of pro-Iranian terrorists. President Reagan, however, correctly placed the blame upon a "worldwide terrorist movement" that will stop at nothing to achieve its aims. Perhaps because of his meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, he did not mention Moscow's probable part in training and financing these fanatics.

The fact is that last year there were more than 500 terrorist attacks around the world, nearly half of which were directed against the United States. No attacks, insofar as we know, were directed at the Soviet Union or its allies. Although the Soviets officially denounce the use of terrorism as an instrument of national policy, they continue to support and use such organizations to advance their global goals.

Claire Sterling's book "The Terror Network" documents the Soviet connection with international terrorism. And subsequent studies have disclosed the degree to which Moscow provides psychological, logistical and ideological support to anti-Western violence.

In the first such official accusation, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz accused the Soviet Union of direct involvement with terrorists last summer during a conference on international terrorism. He reminded the "Free World" that major address that the best defense against terrorism is a series of preemptive and preventive actions against these groups before they strike. Such a defense, he said, depends upon an expanded intelligence network that can identify terrorists and their supporters. He called for a specialized strike force capable of hitting terrorists where they live.

These proposals were part of the president's anti-terrorist initiative that was sidetracked in Congress several months ago. Now, some of the same congressional critics who carped about the risks of the administration's assertive policy are calling for retaliatory action against those responsible for the latest atrocity in Beirut.

The lives lost in three terrorist bombing attacks in Beirut during recent months should convince Congress finally that a comprehensive strategy to combat international terrorism is the most effective means of protecting American lives and property both at home and abroad.

Open Senate To TV

Howard Baker has given up. He will retire from the U.S. Senate at the end of this year, not having succeeded in opening the chamber to live television.

That is a disappointment, not only for the senior Republican senator from Tennessee, who is the Senate's majority leader, but for Americans who had hoped to see and hear the debates of that great deliberative body on television.

The proceedings of the House of Representatives have been telecast for several years without serious consequences for the dignity of the House. There has been partisan bickering about members campaigning on the floor in front of the television cameras. But that is of minor importance, compared to the public benefits of televising debates such as the one earlier this year on the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration law reform bill.

It is harmless when the Senate insists on preserving tradition by keeping quill pens at each desk and sand to dry the ink of their signatures. But when a few senators object to unobtrusive television cameras, they are doing a serious disservice to the nation and to the Senate.

The electronic doors of the chamber that echoed to the speeches of Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun and Henry Clay should long ago have been thrown wide open.

Zero Hour For Pastora?

Ever since an assassin's bomb nearly got him, Eden Pastora, the one-time "Commander Zero" who has taken up arms against his old Sandinista comrades, has been keeping a low profile in Costa Rica. He has recovered from the wounds inflicted in the May 30 bombing, but his guerrilla organization, ARDE, has been split in two.

Pastora's faction remains resolutely independent of the biggest Nicaraguan "contra" group, the FDN, which he spurs as containing too many right-wing relics of the old Somoza national guard. But FDN is where the money is — leftover CIA funds and private contributions that have been taking up the slack since Congress voted last May to cut off the CIA assistance.

This means that Pastora must rely on his own fund-raising efforts. His former ARDE partner, Alfonso Robelo, more conservative than Pastora and not bound by his insistence on anti-Somoza purity, has taken his breakaway faction over to the FDN.

Robelo is the political leader; his military commander is Fernando "El Negro" Chamorro, another former Pastora colleague.

The split-up was generally peaceful, but like many divorces it involved an unseemly squabble over division of property. Robelo's loyalists reportedly swiped a helicopter that Pastora's group felt it was entitled to. In fact, one source said Robelo's men have all the ammunition, while Pastora's have all the guns.

Both ARDE factions say they'll be "in the news" again with military actions. As a practical matter, Pastora's absence on fund-raising trips will make cooperation easier between the various contra groups in the field, since he will no longer be in direct operational command.

Is Abortion A Religious Issue?

The persistence of the abortion issue is one of the most interesting things about the present presidential campaign. Both Governor Cuomo and Rep. Ferraro take the position that they are personally opposed to abortion, but are not prepared in their public capacity to impose their "religious" views on other people.

One can appreciate their political quandary, as they campaign as Catholics but come under attack by Catholic bishops, and also have to appeal to a variety of religious, secular and women's groups, many of which are "pro-choice." That is, support Roe vs. Wade, which essentially permits abortion on demand.

But abortion is not a "religious issue." It is purely an ethical one. The question does not turn on the special teachings of any religion, let alone on scriptural or mystical revelation. It has to do with medical facts that are not in dispute.

Let me hasten to say that I, myself, think that there are circumstances under which an abortion may be the least bad option. But this is not a religiously based view. It is an estimate of the sort that we make when we make a variety of other difficult decisions.

Much is made of the fact that the earlier philosophers and theologians who wrote on the question debated at great length the question of exactly when life begins. That question has been settled without possibility of contradiction by modern medicine. The fertilized ovum has a distinctive set of genes, and is a distinct entity separate from the mother. No one is even debating that any more, and it is in no way a "religious" conclusion. It would be true even if Jerry Falwell and Bishop O'Connor did not exist.

In his speech at Notre Dame, Governor Cuomo made the interesting point that the Catholic bishops are putting the heat on him and on Ferraro over the abortion issue — while other things the Catholic Church considers sinful, such as birth control, adultery, and divorce — are not on the Catholic legislative agenda.

The governor has a point. Though the church opposes all of these things, it does not propose to outlaw them, probably because the enterprise would be entirely quixotic. The church has given up condemning the taking of interest on loans. The bishops reply, however, that abortion is different, that it involves the actual taking of life, and therefore belongs in a different category from, say, birth control. They may be right about that, but from the standpoint of feasible public policy it is an intramural debate. The notion of outlawing birth control or divorce or adultery is historically preposterous.

But a genuine national discussion is underway about abortion, because people are beginning to grasp the medical facts. If the notion of an independent set of genes is a bit abstract, those photographs of a tiny human being are not. The creature, we now know, shifts its position in order to be more comfortable. It experiences pleasure and pain. When an abortion is un-

Modem In Every Home ...

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (NEA) — The company that provides most of the South with telephone service eventually could also supply the region with computers and equipment to link those computers to information data bases.

That integrated marketing program conceived by the BellSouth Corp. could be a major step in establishing a regional — and eventually a national — network linking millions of homes and offices by computer.

Until now, the computer industry has had only limited success in its efforts to sell home computers. Many of the initial buyers have been either "hackers" — dedicated hobbyists — or the upper-income people who invariably are "first-on-the-block" to buy new devices ranging from Cuisinarts to video cassette recorders.

Desperate to improve that performance, some computer makers have resorted to shameless marketing campaigns designed to instill guilt in those who don't buy their products.

Most common is an electronic-age version of the notorious sales pitch that attempts to convince parents that their children will receive a deficient education without a multi-volume encyclopedia in the household.

Earlier this year, for example, Commodore International offered the public a television commercial that portrayed a family at a railroad station as the parents proudly sent their teenage son off to college.

In the next scene, the young man returned home befuddled and bedraggled, disheveled and despondent. Why did he flunk out of college? Because his family didn't buy him a Commodore 64 computer.

Instead of that approach, many experts believe that the key to substantially increasing home computer sales lies in providing a simplified, economical link between computer-equipped households and computerized data bases.

That's precisely what's underway here in the South, where BellSouth's subsidiaries provide telephone service to approximately 13 million homes, offices and factories in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

In a three-city test to begin within the next few months, BellSouth will market a piece of equipment known as a modem, which allows computers to communicate with each other over telephone lines.

At the same time, BellSouth is negotiating with Commodore International to distribute its computers.

derway, it tries to evade the machinery.

Those are not "religious" facts, but scientific ones.

As the public consciousness of them grows, I imagine the question will be refined to one of under what circumstances it is permissible to kill the tiny human being. When the question is put that way, at least we will be talking about realities.

As an addendum, I would like to say that it seems to me that both Cuomo and Ferraro and for that matter Senator Moynihan are involved in an unseemly political scam. They are using their religious identity as Catholics to pick up Catholic and ethnic votes, but their "public" agenda is routinely secular and liberal. If the current controversies serve the purpose of flushing out these contradictions it will have served a useful purpose.

But the decision about abortion is persisting, and somewhere down the road we will arrive at some sort of generally acceptable ethical consensus about when and under what circumstances it is a decent option.

IN BRIEF

'Resistance Should Continue Until Israelis Leave Lebanon'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli troops will withdraw from southern Lebanon in six months, but guerrilla action against the occupation forces should continue until they leave, Justice Minister Nabih Berri said in a report today.

"The Israelis will, I think, withdraw in six months and maybe earlier. But in the meantime, the resistance (war) should continue — it must go hand in hand, complement and help the diplomatic efforts," Berri said in an interview published in the leftist newspaper Al Safir.

Shiite militias led by Berri are the backbone of the guerrilla war against the Israeli forces in south Lebanon. His remarks coincided with a continued wave of attacks against the Israeli occupation army in south Lebanon.

Labor Party Bans The Bomb

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — The opposition Labor Party has voted to banish all U.S. atomic weapons from British soil in a new policy of total unilateral nuclear disarmament.

The 1,300 delegates to Labor's annual conference in the resort city of Blackpool voted 4-1 Wednesday for the new policy, which would guide the party should it oust Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Conservatives from power.

The platform would dedicate the party to complete unilateral nuclear disarmament through the decommissioning of Britain's existing Polaris nuclear submarines and cancellation of its U.S.-designed Trident successor.

Police Hunt Mafia Hit Men

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — Police searched today for the hit men who defied a crackdown on Mafia activities in Italy and the United States and shot to death a rival gang member.

The bullet-riddled body of Sebastiano Pisciotta, found Wednesday in a field on the outskirts of Palermo, was the first gangland "execution" since Saturday when police began what one officer described as the biggest anti-Mafia operation of the century.

Lord knows I'm innocent. I have put my faith in the Lord God."

Two alternate jurors, who were dismissed when the 12-member jury retired to deliberate, said they would have voted to find Milliken guilty.

Defense attorney Vaughn Brennan, who has defended Milliken before, said he would appeal the decision because he believes there was not sufficient evidence to justify the conviction.

"I feel badly for Mr. Milliken," he said, adding that his client will have to spend his "senior years, the fruits of his life," in prison.

Assistant State Attorney Kurt Erlenbach, who was assisted by Assistant State Attorney Michael Peacock, said the parents and children of Seminole County should be pleased with the conviction.

"I'm very happy Mr. Milliken will never see the light of day again as a free man," Erlenbach said.

The victim's mother, almost speechless after the verdict, said through tears that she wanted to hug Erlenbach and was glad the jury found Milliken guilty as charged. However, she said, her son "is not the same child he was six months ago."

The prosecution relied heavily on the boy's videotaped testimony in which he graphically described what happened to him and identified Milliken as the attacker. It was the first time a child's testimony in a sex crime case was videotaped in Seminole County.

In closing arguments, Erlenbach told jurors to review the tape and determine whether they believed the boy or not. He asked them to consider whether a child could make up a story in April and retell it several times under questioning and not change the account once.

Brennan, however, discounted the boy's testimony as "fantasy" and told the jury to question if there was an actual sexual assault. He portrayed Milliken as a "citizen wearing the Air Force blue" who served his country with "honor." Milliken is an Air Force retiree.

Milliken's history of lewd acts began the month he retired, Dec. 1963, in Eau Gallie, Fla.

"This is not a bag of sand that is on trial," Brennan said pointing to Milliken. "It's a human being."

In convicting Milliken, jurors apparently declined to believe the contention of a defense expert witness who said some pedophiliacs, people who have a sexual desire for children, can benefit society.

Gerald Mussinger, a psychologist from Hillsborough County, said "There are pedophiliacs that make an excellent contribution to society."

Prior To Embassy Blast In Lebanon

'Bomb Warnings Not Heeded'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Given U.S. intelligence warnings that the Sept. 20 bombing in Lebanon could occur, there is "no logical explanation" why officials did not have effective security in place, a House committee says.

That, said House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., who asked for a report from the House Intelligence Committee. Indicates "someone did not heed the warnings and is guilty of a fatal error in judgment or an inexcusable administrative oversight."

The White House had no comment on the report examining the performance of the intelligence community in connection with the bombing.

But the State Department said it was still investigating the bombing and "will take full account of the issues raised by the committee."

"The decision to move most of our operations from West Beirut to the embassy annex was made on the basis of the best information available and all concerned agencies agreed this was the wisest course of action," a statement said.

"As the secretary (of State George Shultz) has said, if there was negligence involved, we will find it."

President Reagan — who has compared security plan delays to a slowed kitchen remodeling job and suggested U.S. spy efforts were weakened in the years before he took office — this week responded to criticism of his assessments of blame for the bombing.

Reagan said he alone was "responsible ... for our policy and our people being there. ... I'm not going to deliver somebody's head up on a platter."

The committee's report said officials in Beirut and Washington "should have been on full alert and should have taken every precaution possible" before the truck-bomb attack on the U.S. Embassy annex, in which three Americans died.

The committee took note of two earlier truck bombings of U.S. outposts in Lebanon's capital, in which more than 250 Americans died, and said "credible" reports a militant Moslem group threatened to strike another U.S. target were duly forwarded to the proper authorities in Washington.

While the threat was "never specific as to time or place ... it provided adequate warning that attacks might occur," it said.

Overall, concluded the committee, "Intelligence performance on the threat related to the bombing was adequate."

"This is the incentive for the developer to produce the same kind of quality housing for the 77 as the housing for the others. It puts the burden on the developer to hold aside those units. limit on non-economic losses in civil suits, the amendment would have required judges to grant summary judgments for doctors when a patient fails to prove losses in a malpractice suit. The amendment would also have mandated "joint and several liability" — limiting a doctor's liability to his or her responsibility for an injury.

The FMA said that provision was needed so a surgeon would not have to pay a million-dollar verdict solely because other doctors, nurses or laboratory technicians lacked insurance coverage to pay their share of a judgment. Opponents of the amendment said it would mean victims would receive only partial payment for their suffering, if medical practitioners failed to carry enough insurance.

The FMA promised that if Reason '84 passed, Floridians would save $14 billion in medical costs over the next six years. The doctors said the amendment would reduce malpractice insurance rates $1.5 billion — which they promised to pass along to their patients — and would eliminate about $12.5 billion worth of "defensive medicine."

Dr. Fred Coleman, the Jacksonville pathologist who headed Reason '84, estimated that the average hospital stay is extended by one day while doctors make additional tests, to protect themselves from lawsuits.

Tribe Stomps Lyman, 26-6

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole amassed over 500 yards total offense and the defense forced five turnovers as the junior varsity Tribe rolled to a 26-6 thumping of Lyman Wednesday night at Lyman High.

Seminole improved to 2-1 with the win and returns to action next Thursday night at Apopka.

After a scoreless first quarter, Seminole took a 6-0 lead in the second when quarterback Darryl Taylor hit Sonny Osborn for an 80-yard touchdown pass. Lyman came right back on its next possession and Gib Lundquist's TD passed tied it a 6-6.

Seminole came back late in the quarter to take a 12-6 lead as Stewart Gordon's seven-yard TD run capped off a 70-yard scoring drive.

The JV Tribe made it 19-0 in the third quarter as Gordon bulldied in from eight yards out and Mike Franklin booted the extra point. Dwayne Willis' interception set up the touchdown. Seminole's defense put a touchdown on the board in the fourth quarter when lineman James Burleson picked off a screen pass and rambled 20 yards for a TD. Franklin's kick gave the 'Noles a 26-6 lead.

Seminole had 440 yards rushing Wednesday night led by Gordon who had 105 yards and Eddie Banks added 91 yards on the ground. Taylor completed 3 of 5 passes for 106 yards and two went to Osborn for 89 yards.

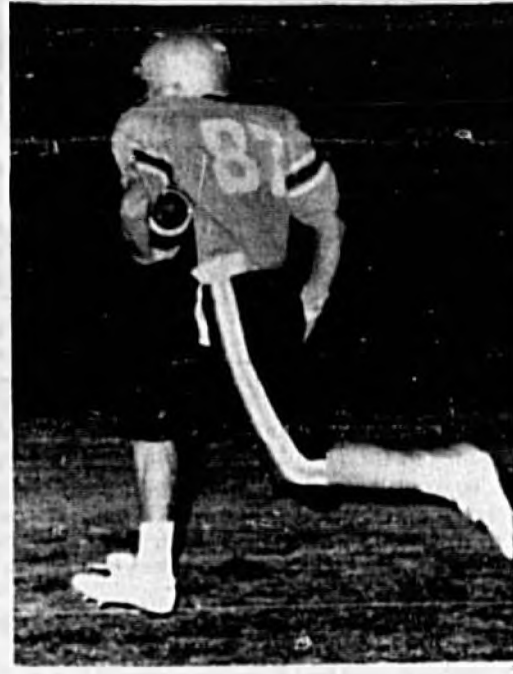

Herbert Hillary, left, picks up a first down in Seminole's 26-6 victory over Lyman Wednesday night. At the right, Seminole wideout Sonny Osburn leaves the defenders behind en route to an 80-yard TD. Quarterback Darryl Taylor hit Osburn with a short pass and the rugged sophomore did the rest.

The Seminoles had a number of defensive standouts Wednesday led by Troy Turner who had 13 solo tackles, six assists and recovered two fumbles. Keith Denton added eight solos and four assists. Horace Knight had six solo tackles and four quarterback sacks and Willis had two more interceptions. Willis now has five interceptions in three games.

"This was our best all-around game this year," Seminole coach

John Brady said. "We played well last week (12-6 loss to Lake Mary) but didn't put up enough points. Our offense did a great job moving the ball and the defense held Lyman back all night long."

Sting Defeat Blizzard, 3-2

TORONTO (UPI) — The Chicago Sting proved themselves deserving champions with a hard-fought series sweep of the Toronto Blizzard. Unfortunately for the North American Soccer League, they won't be around to defend their crown.

Forward Pato Margetic scored his second goal of the game with 8:27 remaining Wednesday night to lift the Sting to a 3-2 triumph over the Blizzard and a sweep of their NASL championship series.

It was the second victory in three nights for the Sting, who won the opening game of the best-of-three finale 2-1 in Chicago on Monday. It was also Chicago's second NASL crown in the past four years. The Sting, who are slated to leave the NASL for the Major Indoor Soccer League next year, defeated the New York Cosmos 1-0 to win the 1981 Soccer Bowl in a game played at Toronto.

"It (this championship) means more," said Chicago coach Willy Roy, who also guided the team to the 1981 title. "This year was an important one to win the championship. We believe in outdoor soccer and we will be back when the time is right to come back, when the league is better organized."

"The NASL will survive and it will grow and blossom into something great one day."

The Blizzard, one of four clubs committed to keeping the NASL alive, fought back from a 2-0 deficit before their hopes vanished with Margetic's goal.

"We took it a little bit relaxed after our second goal, but after their second goal we got to playing our kind of soccer," said Margetic. "This is a club that never gives up, that does not quit. We gave up two goals and then we came back to win it."

The verbal battles that occurred between the teams throughout the series continued in the dressing room at the end of the contest.

"Toronto has no class," said Chicago forward Kari-Helms Granitz. "They continually tried to injure our players throughout the game. They just don't play soccer. Toronto has to re-learn what soccer is. We deserved to win because we know what soccer is."

Blizzard president Clive Toye wasn't exactly the most gracious of losers.

"We didn't deserve to lose to Chicago in two games," he said. "It was a magnificent comeback. Nogueira made some incredible saves in the last two minutes. I'd hate to wake up in the morning as a cheat like Roy and Granitz."

IN BRIEF

Dunn Boots 2 More Goals, All Souls Ties St. James

ORLANDO — Jeff Dunn booted two goals but All Souls Catholic School had to settle for a 2-2 deadlock against Orlando St. James in prep soccer action Wednesday afternoon.

Dunn, who has four goals for the season, scored on a breakaway five minutes into the first half to give All Souls a 1-0 lead. Several minutes later, though, St. James knotted the game.

Ten minutes into the first half, Dunn took a pass from Chad Perce and kicked it home for a 2-1 lead. The edge stood up until just before halftime when St. James scored again.

Neither team could score in the second half or two overtime sessions. "We played a good defensive game in the second half and the overtimes," said coach Hal LeRoy, a former Lake Brantley High basketball standout.

Fifth grade goalie Donovan Tucker turned away eight shots for All Souls. The Sanford school has posted a 1-2-1 record. Saturday, it travels to Pine Hills to take on St. Andrews.

In a volleyball game Tuesday, All Souls took two out of three matches from St. James.

Shriver Serves Up A Lesson

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — High school student Michaela Washington got a tennis lesson from veteran Pam Shriver.

Shriver, ranked third in the world, routed Washington 6-1, 6-1 Wednesday night to advance to the third round of a $150,000 tournament.

"I spent most of my time watching Pam put the balls away instead of playing," said Washington. "I thought I was going to get sick out there."

Earlier, Alicia Moulton, JoAnne Russell and Rosalyn Fairbank posted second-round victories.

The week-long event is sponsored by Virginia Slims. Shriver of Lutherville, Md., pressured her 18-year-old opponent from the start. She won the first set by breaking Washington's service twice.

Playing under extremely windy conditions during the day, Moulton of Sacramento, Calif., ousted Kim Shaefer 6-7, 6-2, 6-3 while capitalizing on three service breaks in the final set; Russell of New York rallied past Anne White of Newport Beach, Calif., 7-6 (13-11), 6-3; and, in a match highlighted by 15 service breaks, Fairbank of South Africa, beat Betsy Nagelsen of Kapalau Bay, Hawaii, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

Colbert Looks For Redemption

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The 1984 Texas Open, its purse $50,000 fatter this year, is one of those late-season affairs that gives golfers like Jim Colbert a chance to redeem themselves from mediocrity.

Colbert, who won the Colonial National Invitation and the Texas Open and placed second in the Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Classic in 1983, said Wednesday that he has not been on his game this year.

"I've never been a star, but I've never liked being mediocre, I hate it," Colbert said prior to his pro-am round at the Oak Hills Country Club. "This year I've been very mediocre at the tournament players' level."

The tournament also offers Mark O'Meara a chance to take the top money spot away from Tom Watson, who is not playing. O'Meara is less than $40,000 away.

Other top 10 money winners in the Open include Tom Kite, 5th, and Bruce Lietzke, 9th.

Okamoto 71 Leads British Open

WOBURN, England (UPI) — The English weather was not about to get in the way of Ayako Okamoto.

Amid wet and windy conditions, the Japanese pro shot a 2-under-par 71 Wednesday to take the first-round lead of the $200,000 Women's British Open.

"It was bitterly cold and my fingers were numb at times," she said. "I've had two wins this year in the States but it would be really special to win here."

Okamoto, the fourth-leading money winner on the 1984 LPGA Tour, leads Britain's Dale Reid by one stroke with America's Amy Alcott one shot back in third.

The tournament is sponsored by Hitachi. Three straight birdies by Okamoto put her ahead in the chase for the $32,000 first prize at the Duke's Course at Woburn Golf Country Club.

Parsons Earns Big Pole Money

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — It's been a month since Benny Parsons has competed in a NASCAR Grand National race, but the preparations his team conducted during the break proved profitable — $44,000 worth.

Parsons produced four consistent laps Wednesday during qualifying for this weekend's 500-mile race at Charlotte Motor Speedway to claim the top starting spot and the richest pole award in stock car history.

"I never dreamed I could be that consistent for four laps," an elated Parsons said. "I knew the tires were going to stick so I hurried to get the first lap in. I have no idea of how I ran four laps so consistently."

64. Rafael Valle, Scott Byerly, Matt Gillen, Matt Ginther and Danny Kolinski led the defensive effort. Ginthea Matthew recovered a fumble.

In the Jackson Heights romp, halfback Travis Jackson and quarterback Terry Smith scored two TDs each while Erick Bryant added the fifth. Smith scored on a pair of two-yard jaunts and Jackson hit paydirt from 23 and 12 yards. Bryant's run was from four yards.

McGill Hodges was the leading ground gainer with 76 yards and Shelle Elliott chipped in 42. Smith led the defense with five tackles and a fumble recovery.

PEE WEE: WARRIORS ROUT TEAGUE, 28-0
In the Pee Wee Division, Tuskawilla's Warriors rolled to an easy 28-0 victory over the Teague Tigers behind the strong play of Jon Machules. Todd Carlson and Andy Malen. Machules scored on five and one yard dashes while Carlson muscled in from the one and Malen slashed in from four yards.

Tuskawilla fashioned the shutout behind the defensive talents of Eric Marks (seven tackles), Lee Wallace (five tackles) and Jason Akers (five tackles). Teague could manage just 41 total yards.

Offensively, Carlson's 27-yard pass out of punt formation to Malen was a big play in the third quarter. The Warriors piled up 217 yards for the game. Malen had 51 yards and Machules added 49. Thadd Wallace hit two passes for 17 yards. Craig Doyle had one grab for 12.

In another Pee Wee game, South Seminole and Rock Lake battled to a 6-6 stalemate. Darcy Garrett ran for 110 yards and Braniff Bonavenure totaled 38 and the lone score for South Seminole. Jerry Tucker completed 2 of 3 passes for 65 yards.

Thomas Cochrane, David Weisant and Matt Karnes led the defense for the Warriors.

Defense also dominated one game in the Junior Midget Division as Teague's Tigers put a second-quarter score on the board to nip Tuskawilla.

Van Pelt Ends 75-Day Holdout

Pro Football

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (UPI) — The financial burden of a $500 a day fine for 75 days was too much for former New York Giant linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who reluctantly ended his costly holdout to join the Minnesota Vikings.

The Vikings traded running back Tony Galbreath to the Giants in July for Van Pelt, who refused to report to training camp and missed the first five games of the season. The five-time All Pro linebacker had asked the Giants to trade him to a team in either Florida or California.

Even San Diego Begins To Think It's Year Of Cub

CHICAGO (UPI) — You should've seen him sitting in a corner of the otherwise empty dugout, sitting all by himself, looking for all the world like some eager, expectant kid hoping to catch a Santa Claus on Christmas morning.

It was a good 2 1/2 hours before Wednesday's game and Tony Gwynn certainly had no idea the Chicago Cubs were going to make it two in a row and push the San Diego Padres to the edge of extinction in their best-of-five National League playoff series.

Gwynn, the Padres' lefty-swinging right fielder who won the league's batting title easily this year with his .351 figure, was the only player with either team who had ventured out of the clubhouse. He had done it without any flourish or ceremony, so inconspicuously, in fact, that he sat practically unnoticed by the great majority of the media milling around on the field.

Finally, he was spotted, and one of the first questions put to him was what was he doing out on the bench so early when the Padres weren't due to take batting practice for nearly another hour.

What concerned Gwynn much more was the Padres' getting a quick jump on the Cubs, in the first inning, if possible, so as to be able to square the series before it shifted to San Diego for Thursday's third game.

"We got to put the pressure on them," said the 24-year-old batting champ from Los Angeles. If Wiggle (leadoff hitter Alan Wiggins) gets on and steals second, I'm gonna get him over (third), no matter what."

But things didn't work out that way at all. Wiggins failed to get on in the first inning, bouncing out to starter Steve Trout, who then struck out Gwynn. Gwynn doubled his second time up leading off the fourth inning for the Padres' only extra base hit among the five they got and scored their first run on Kevin McReynolds' sac fly later in the same frame.

But it was the Cubs who got on the board first with the help of Bob Dernier's heads-up base-running in the first inning and they led 3-0 at the end of three.

Dernier was thinking right along with Gwynn. "Our plan," he said after the Cubs' 4-2 win, "is to get as many runs as we can as soon as we can and we were able to do that in these first two games. I'm sure that's what the Padres are trying to do also."

It's a little amusing how people keep focusing so much on the Cubs' hitting and pitching. Hardly anyone pays that much attention to their defense, which gave them a big boost again Wednesday with Gwynn at the plate with one on and one out in the sixth.

His high bouncer appeared headed over Leon Durham's head for a possible double, but the Cub first baseman reached as high as he possibly could and speared the ball, beating Gwynn to the bag.

Wiggins, on first at the time, advanced to second and scored the Padres' final run on Steve Garvey's single, but the damage could have turned out much worse.

Quite honestly, I think even the Padres are beginning to think this is the Cubs' year.

Whitson Tries To Calm Chicago Storm

Thunder, Lightning Attack Chases Away Padres

CHICAGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres, with history staring them in the face and their backs to the wall, are looking for a way to stop the Chicago Cubs' "thunder and lightning" attack.

The Padres trail the Cubs 2-0 in their best-of-five National League Championship Series with Game 3 tonight at Jack Murphy Stadium after losing Wednesday 4-2 in Chicago.

No National League team has ever lost the first two games in the playoffs and come back to win.

Ed Whitson, a 14-game winner for the Padres with a 3-2 lifetime record against the Cubs, will seek to stop the Cubs from claiming their first National League pennant since 1945. If the Padres win tonight, a fourth game will be played Saturday.

Dennis Ekersley, 10-8, who did not face the Padres this year, will be on the mound for the Cubs.

Chicago grabbed a commanding 2-0 lead by turning to a different tactic — speed and pitching — after thrashing the Padres 13-0 in the opener.

Hobby Dernier, the Cubs' flashy leadoff man, set the tone by singling off starter and loser Mark Thurmond. Dernier then helped the Cubs steal a run by going from first to third on an infield out and scoring on Gary Matthews' infield out.

Ron Cey, who led the Cubs with 95 RBI, delivered an RBI double in the third, scoring Keith Moreland. Moreland scored when shortstop Garry Templeton's relay throw skipped past home plate.

Cey took third on the throw and scored on Jody Davis' sacrifice fly.

San Diego scored its first-ever run in the playoffs in the fourth. Batting champion Tony Gwynn got San Diego's first and only extra base hit — a double — and eventually came around to score on Kevin McReynolds' sacrifice fly.

The Padres added a single run in the sixth on Steve Garvey's RBI single. But Trout, who got 17 groundouts, was still in control.

Rainbow Trout ...hooks San Diego

Jody Davis ...RBI sacrifice fly

But Frey lifted Trout after the southpaw walked McReynolds in the ninth, setting the stage for Chicago relief ace Lee Smith.

The fireballing right-hander, who had thrown a warmup pitch to the screen, fooled Carmelo Martinez with a curve for a strikeout. Terry Kennedy then lifted a deep fly to left that Henry Cotto grabbed before hitting the vines to end the game.

Where There's $1 Million, There's Hope

Winn-Dixie employees, along with the Matching Grants Program of the Winn-Dixie Stores Foundation, have pledged $1 million to the American Cancer Society, Florida Division Inc., to fund construction of a Hope Lodge in Gainesville. The proposed facility will offer free lodging to cancer patients and their families traveling to Gainesville for

'I Loved Every Year Of It'

Jean Rhein, left, Director of Library Services of Seminole County, presents a plaque to Bernice Hughes, library assistant, on behalf of the library staff. Mrs. Hughes is retiring after 28 years of service to the library in Sanford and Seminole County Library System. Born in Sanford, Mrs. Hughes began her career May 1, 1956. She said after her retirement on Sept. 28, "I loved every year of it." And now she plans to do gardening and needlecraft as well as fishing and camping with the favorite men in her life, her husband of 48 years, Curtis, two sons and three grandsons.

Charming French Suitor Now A Jealous Husband

DEAR ABBY: After being chased for three years by a charming Frenchman who begged me to marry him at least 1,000 times, I finally said yes. We've been married now for four months, and now I'm afraid I made the biggest mistake of my life.

He was always jealous, but I thought he would change. I was wrong. Although I've never given him any reason to doubt me, he checks up on my every move.

If I say I'm going to my mother's, he phones her house to see if I'm there. If I say I'm going to the beauty shop, he phones me there. He says, "You should be happy I'm jealous. It proves I love you!" Well, I'm not happy, I'm miserable.

I am so fed up with his checking up on me, listening in on my telephone calls and going through my purse, I'm ready to end this marriage.

Could professional help straighten him out, or should I go ahead and divorce him now? Hurry your answer.

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: His jealousy does not prove that he loves you; it proves that he feels inadequate, insecure and unworthy of you.

Professional help may straighten him out, but now that you've already said "I do," don't say "adieu" without giving him a chance to shape up.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you ever heard of a case like mine before, but here goes.

My sister passed away in '78 and I still cry about losing her every day. We were very close. I know I'm not the only person who has lost a loved one, but I wonder if there is something wrong with me. I also cry about other things — things I see on TV, sad songs, poems I read, and even sad stories I read in the newspaper.

I took care of a neighbor's little boy for seven months, and when they moved away, I cried for a week.

Why do I do this? I'm 53 years old, have a good husband and a good life. People don't know how much I cry when I'm alone. If they did, they would probably think I'm crazy.

WEEPY

Dear Abby

DEAR WEEPY: Don't be ashamed to cry. Tears are healing. You seem to be crying at appropriate times, but you may be crying longer than you should. See your doctor for a checkup, and be sure to tell him what you have told me.

DEAR READERS: I believe the following inspirational message from The Wall Street Journal is worth passing along:

ONCE AN ACORN
"Sometimes to make it big, you first have to make it small. Conrad Hilton started out sweeping floors in a dusty New Mexico hotel. He cleaned up as owner of a famous hotel chain. John Paul Getty started with a $500 oil lease in Oklahoma and became one of America's richest men. David Packard baked the paint onto his first product in a kitchen oven. Forty-five years later, he was running a $4.7 billion company. There are anonymous men and women starting out today whose names will be household words in 20 years. Will one of those names be yours? Get started!"

HARRY J. GRAY, CHAIRMAN AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, UNITED TECHNOLOGIES

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE CAMBRIDGE BUM: I recently reread the letter you wrote to me in 1970. A reader requested it because he thought it contained a powerful moral lesson for young people. I agreed. You were 18 and wrote from prison in Cambridge, Minn., while awaiting trial for burglary and other charges. Many readers wrote to ask what happened to you. If you see this, please let me know. Write to Abby, Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Smoking More Harmful Than Being Overweight

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have smoked for 17 years. I have always been heavy, but when I quit smoking a year ago I gained 30 pounds. It was so easy to quit smoking. I just stopped.

I have tried many diets, but this is hard for me. I'm 5 feet and 6 and about 100 pounds overweight. I'm about ready to go back to smoking. Which is worse, smoking or carrying around all this excess weight? I used to smoke about a pack of cigarettes a day. I'm 32.

DEAR READER — I'd be very disappointed in you if you went back to smoking. The reason lung cancer is replacing breast cancer as the leading cause of cancer deaths in women is that so many women smoke. Besides, you might not lose your excess pounds if you quit, in which case you would be both overweight and hooked on cigarettes.

If I had to choose between being overweight and smoking, I would choose to be overweight. But you need not make that choice. You can lose weight if you simply stick to a good plan, which should include both a balanced low-calorie diet and a regular exercise program.

I have included a diet list from the four basic food groups, which you can use as a basis for a diet that will help you lose weight. In a new issue of The Health Letter, Special Report 17, Flexible Weight Control Plan.

Regular, frequent activity during the day probably helps keep the body's thermostat turned up and helps you use calories by producing body heat. A long exercise period, such as walking, is probably more helpful than a short intense period in terms of eliminating fat. Why? Because it takes quite a while for the mechanisms that mobilize fat for energy to take effect. Short-duration exercise is more apt to use muscle glycogen (glucose molecules) than fat for energy.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to reach out to a lot of people and the only way I know is through your column, because so many people read it. I wish more people could understand that nonsmokers are often allergic to chemicals in cigarette smoke. Cigarette smoke gives me a severe headache, followed by hot flashes and an overall paralysis of the body.

DEAR READER — I have, but I will do so again. There are many people who are allergic to tobacco smoke. It can trigger asthmatic attacks in some asthmatics. I don't think most smokers would deliberately do things that would harm another person if they were really aware of the effects of their actions. An innocent bystander in the checkout line may have trouble breathing because someone in front of her is smoking.

And tests have shown that cigarette smoke from the end of a cigarette is more harmful than the smoke drawn through the cigarette and inhaled.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Although suit-preference signaling can be overdone, it is a very effective weapon of defense when used correctly. At times the stage must be set properly for the method to be effective.

After East's weak two-bid in diamonds, South doubled, West inserted a nuisance raise, and North cue-bid four diamonds as a demand for South to select a major suit game contract. The four-heart bid ended the auction.

The opening lead was the three of diamonds. East knew his partner would not underlead an ace, hence played the 10, forcing declarer's ace. Declarer now tried the heart king and a second heart to the 10. East won the queen and cashed the king of diamonds.

At this point suit preference came into play. West had a choice of the nine or queen of diamonds. It would be expecting too much from the method to say that the nine of diamonds now demanded the lead of a club, dummy's lower-ranking suit. After all, the normal play to the second round of diamonds is the nine.

But for sure, dropping the queen of diamonds under partner's king would clearly say, "I have the spade ace." That was the play West made, and East dutifully led his singleton spade and got a ruff to defeat the contract.
