Tex Richard May Put Off Heavyweight Bouts This Year Due To Public Apathy

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—There appeared to be more than a possibility today that Tex Richard would declare all bets sold to the ring man on his heavyweight circuit this winter and, folding his tent like the Arabs, as silently take it on the flat of his feet out into the night until better times and saps are plentiful. The sap is supposed to run better in this spring, anyhow, and it is figured that a guy like that might start running toward a box office, not knowing any better. Right now, he seems to be running home every night and the supposition is that he does it to save car fare.

Anyhow, a lot of people appear to be turning up absent every time they have a boxing show in New York and so the good word is that Richard simply won't tolerate it much longer. It takes plenty of money to pay off a heavyweight and, somehow the boy friend has gotten out of the habit of using his own.

Therefore, they say he may call off his heavyweight program, or whatever may be left of it, until the outdoor season, meaning that the Sharkey-Heenev fight may be due for another ride on the old carousel—around and around and around. This fight was postponed some weeks ago because Sharkey injured the ankle on one of his hands very severely. A recent bulletin from Boston carried the information that he has resumed training, which caused so much cheering that it could be heard distinctly in the next room.

The idea all along has been that one postponement or several might be necessary before the populace could work itself up to the point a state of mind rarely achieved where paying became a pleasure, outside of the saloon that used to be on the corner is now the second floor rear behind a peep hole and a push button.

At that, the Sharkey-Heenev affair becomes an outdoor chat in the event that the boys adhere to their present plan of tossing Dempsey in with Tunney again without further preamble. Tunney says he will be ready in June for that first championship fight he talks about and a natural smoke-up for that event would be a Sharkey-Heenev fight about five weeks in advance, thus getting the saps well covered along the beaten track to the main entrance.

Richard, of course, is not outlining his plans from a soap box at high noon. He has informally scheduled the Sharkey-Heenev fight for early in Jan. and maybe he will see his way clear to go thru with it then. But the chances are he won't; that is, not unless there is more enthusiasm for the proceedings displayed.

Many New Records Are Established By Athletes In Track And Swimming

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(INS)—Those two dual sports, track and field and swimming, blew themselves to the customary profusion of records during 1927. Johnny Weissmuller and Martha Norelius alone accounting for more than thirty marks between them in the various phases of the land. Men's marks alone stand out records were being established on the circuit and in the pits, the best of which were set by Carl's performance in vaulting 14 feet to a world record.

Carl also established a new indoor mark of 14 feet 9 1/2 inches, in each case surpassing the records of Charles Holt, the nimble Norwegian. Other noteworthy records in a list of many were the following:

440 yard relay: Newark A. C., 41 seconds; 100 yard hurdles: Johnny Gibson, Indiana, 52.3-5 seconds; 800 yard relay: University of Southern California, 1:25.4-5; 100 yard dash: Bob Bowman, Newark A. C., 9.3-5 seconds.

The latest merely equals the world's record now on the books, the international federation having indicated that it will not accept Charles F. Johnson's mark of 9.5-10 seconds because of its aversion to the tenth second watch. Another effort that went into the discard was D. Hays Hubbard's leap of 26 feet 2 1/4 inches in the broad jump, this being disallowed because it was noted that it lacked official height.

The A. A. U. champion hip should be secured.

In a statement issued just prior to the submission of his annual report, Col. Greeley took issue with recent statements of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association which implied, he said, that there is no danger of a timber shortage and that extensive forests as a whole are continuing to grow timber.

Col. Greeley protested against "creating public misconceptions as to the gravity of the forest situation," contained in a nationwide lumber trade extension campaign.

While declaring his sympathy with a liberal use of wood, the chief forester asserted that an "optimistic portrayal of the situation as to timber supply and re-growth," made by the lumber association, "could not be accepted as accurate."

The latest report of the Forest Service, according to Col. Greeley, shows that "our timber supply is being used so much faster than it is being replaced by new growth, and that most of our lumber still comes from diminishing virgin forests."

"Need will undoubtedly appear for intensifying the protection of forests from fire on critical drainages of the Mississippi through enlarged cooperation between the States and the Federal Government. Forest planting should undoubtedly be promoted aggressively on abandoned or eroding farm lands and denuded forest lands where erosion and run-off are now serious."

State Cooperation
National leadership and the need for national action should be fully recognized, Colonel Greeley declares, but the fullest measure of cooperation with the States and landowners immediately concerned.

Horse Racing In Britain Is Having Difficulties Which Threaten To Stop Sport

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Horse-racing in England has just concluded the poorest season it has ever experienced, excluding of course, the war years. Not only has there been a tremendous falling off in attendance, but betting has been extremely low.

In a country where it has long been the greatest sport, it was not natural that a sensation would be caused when the startling disclosures of the 1927 season were published, indicating that should horse-racing lose its popularity at the rate it did this year, the sport might be almost extinct within a few years.

Blame Betting Tax

There are numerous reasons to account for what is termed the "most critical period in English racing history," but the newly imposed "betting tax," stands out the strongest. In the opinion of racing men, this has proved a decided failure, of "the Sport of Kings," unless abolished, and supplemented by the totalisator.

Introduced this year as a means of providing the Chancellor of the race-course officials may best be summed up in the following words of one of their embers.

"The past season has been most unsatisfactory and unless something is done about it, there is a dark future before English racing. That the betting tax had done the most harm this year, there is no doubt. The bad weather had not been sufficient to account for the great falling off."

Seminole Board Holds Up Money Coming To City

 For their insurance. When issued without proper authorization and without value received, time warrants the county said, cannot be deemed collectable even when in the hands of a third or so-called innocent party.
 Mr. De Coates denied any knowledge of the transaction wherein the warrants were turned over to the county. He said that he had been criticized for advising the Board to refuse city warrants as security and declared that his advice, given more than a year ago, was not based upon knowledge of the litigation. The warrants' basis upon a state law that the county could accept only municipal, county or federal bonds as collateral for deposits.

The Board postponed action until January on whether it will make formal demand of the First National Bank for the full amount of county funds deposited in the Sanford Bank and Trust Company. It was revealed that the county attorney had handed down an opinion which in effect stated the First National was liable for the full amount under the provisions of an agreement entered into between that institution and the Seminole County Bank at the time of the absorption of the Sanford Bank and Trust Company.

Fred R. Wilson, attorney for the bank, asked for a delay in the matter and the Board granted it. It was explained that the agreement between the banks was to the effect that all claims against the closed bank would be met on a "pro-rata" basis between the Seminole and First National. With the closing of the former bank, the question was raised as to whether the First National would be liable for the full amount of the claims or for only its share of 50 per cent. The First National Bank, the Sanford Atlantic National Bank, the Bank of Ocala and the Bank of Longwood were all designated as depositaries for county funds.

Thornson, chief aviation machinist's mate, H. Benson, Seaman and G. Brown, aviation machinist's mate. A fire is expected to recover. The Langley is believed to have suffered considerable damage, her deck being bulged out and the maindeck torn up over a radius of some twenty feet. The gasoline reserve tank which exploded had a capacity of 150,000 gallons. How much gasoline it contained at the time has not been established.

Parallel Of Remus Case Seen In Death Of Pretty Woman

BRIDGEPORT, N. J., Dec. 21.—(INS)—A parallel of the Remus case is seen here today in the shooting of Mrs. Isabelle James Sheehan, 32, for which Frederick Piani, 7, an iron pipe salesman, was today arraigned on a murder charge.

Piani is alleged to have confessed he shot and killed the pretty widow, with whom he is said to have been friendly, and then attempted to take his own life.

Like Mrs. Remus, Mrs. Sheehan was in her automobile when she was attacked. Mrs. Charles Longson, who was held as a witness, said Piani's car swerved across the road to block the Sheehan car, and then stopped. Mrs. Sheehan immediately got out, apparently badly frightened, and started to run through the woods. Mrs. Longson said she cried: "My God, it's Fred." Piani jumped from his car and ran after the woman. Then, according to Mrs. Longson, he put his pistol into his mouth and fired the one missing shot.

PINEAPPLES PLENTIFUL

ALTHOUGH the peak pack of 78,699 cases, or 1,507,845 cans of pineapple put up on July 17th last year by the largest company in Hawaii was not equaled this year, word comes from the islands that there will be no shortage of this succulent fruit. In August last year this company packed 420,083 cases as compared with 661,547 cases this year, and the probabilities are that the final figures for September will show more pineapple packed during that month this year than last.

The biggest production month last year was July, and the night shift was started this year in the biggest fruit cannery in the world in June 28th. This cannery packed some 66,000 cases on that date, and for about a week it packed between 60,000 and 70,000 cases a day. After that the pack decreased to about 50,000 to 60,000 cases a day for the next ten days, and then, on account of some extremely wet weather, the pack dropped off, and the night shift was discontinued on July 30th.

How Such Records Are Made

The secret of good canned pineapple is speed. The quicker this juicy tropical fruit can be gotten out of its jacket and into the can, the better. This is because there is something more than food to be preserved. That something is its elusive flavor, and this is why the process of canning has been perfected in Hawaii until the total time between the removal in the cannery of the shell of the ripe fresh fruit and the finished product is 27 minutes, 58-3/5 seconds.

Here are the steps. Out from the Ginaca machine to the trimming table shoots the "pine" minus shell, core, and ends. A moving belt carries it on to the slicer and then to the packing table, where it is sorted into cans according to grade and color by women wearing rubber gloves. The time required for these processes is 91-1/5 seconds from fruit to can.

Then follows the vacuum process, syring, exhaust, and sealing. Time 8 minutes, 22-2/5 seconds. Finally comes the cooking, lacquering the can, drying the liquor, and cooling the can. Time 17 minutes, 55 seconds. This, totals 27 minutes, 58-3/5 seconds, as stated above.

Is Pele Responsible?

The Hawaiian Islands are full of picturesque folk lore, and some of the natives think that Pele, Goddess of Plenty, is responsible for their abundant crops. Last July the Volcano of Kilauea, the stellar attraction of Hawaii's National Park, flared to the stars for the first time since 1920. Kilauea is a peak 4,000 feet high on the slopes of Mauna Loa which reaches a height of 15,875 feet.

The return of lava to this volcano caused a great celebration among the native Hawaiians. To them the fire in the pit means that their goddess, Pele, has returned, and that prosperity will come with her to stay. On the day the volcano erupted natives were making sacrifices all day long at the fire-pit by throwing many herbs and various tokens sacred to the fire goddess into the fire and fumes below.

Within a few minutes after the fire had been sighted by the watchman at the Volcano House, the whole country was lighted up by the brilliant glow. Four huge fountains, each spurting molten rock to a height of two hundred feet appeared. The fountains are an awesome spectacle. Thousands of fragments of red-hot rock are periodically flung out of the crater like giant skyrocket. Jagged cracks open up in the black mass of lava, exposing the red-hot molten rock below. The pattern of these cracks is constantly changing as Pele promises prosperity.

Where the Pineapples Go

The pineapples, the fruit of this prosperity, are exported from Hawaii to the mainland at the rate of about 35,000,000 worth a year. They have been flowing in a constantly increasing tide into the kitchens of American housewives ever since this industry was founded a little more than a quarter of a century ago.

From these kitchens they go into various dishes. They are served alone, in fruit cocktails and salads, combined with meats and fish because they are a powerful aid to the digestion of protein, made into sauces and many desserts, and even cooked with vegetables, such as sweet potatoes, tomatoes, and breakfast cereals such as rice.

make careful observations of any situation which may explain the disaster, or enable officials to reconstruct the sequence of events within the ship after she went down. In his connection with the S-4 will be especially sought, by the first diver into the wrecked control chamber.

POEM OF DOOMED SAILOR

Like a epitaph over the grave of the submarine S-4 today a poem written by Walter Bishop radio operator aboard the sunken submarine, who is believed to have perished.

He dashed it off in his spare moments some months ago and sent it to his wife, who resides in the capital with their small baby. In it he described the daily perils and the rigor of life aboard the "pig boats" as the submarines are known in navy parlance.

Some of the stanza follow:
 "You've no doubt heard the people rave
 "Of battleships, spotted and clean.
 "But stop! Have you ever heard a word
 "Of life on a submarine?"

"I shall try to tell you the story.
 "Now that I think I may
 "And am hoping that you'll hesitate
 "Ere going your busy way.

"In the cankerous mind of the devil
 "There festers a fiendish scheme
 "He called his cohorts round him,
 "And designed the submarine.

"They planned and plotted to do their worst
 "In perfecting this awful thing.
 "And since completing their hideous work,
 "Are awaiting the end it will bring.

Then followed numerous stanzas describing the life aboard, including these:
 "Yes, daily we make a lisky dive,
 "While uncle Sam, with his Brim- ming cup,
 "Bets a dollar while we're alive,
 "A dollar to nothing we won't come up.
 "We curse and mutter 'neer again,
 "Until we get paid off.
 "But the blamed old life will drag us back,
 "No matter how we seaf.
 "We all come back, come back for more,
 "And there, friends, is the rub.
 "We like the life beneath the sea,
 "Life in a damned old su."

celery for harvest after January 1. However, a winter such as last year may mean an equal or greater production this year. Up to December 12 about 1,500 cars had been shipped from the Delta which was somewhat less than total shipments on the corresponding date a year ago.

"Shipments are now running from forty to fifty cars a day. Peak shipments should be reached around the first of the year. A heavy movement may be expected however until February 15, depending upon future weather and prices. Los Angeles and San Diego counties in Southern California are the main producing areas outside of the Delta. The acreage in these districts is as follows: Los Angeles—450 compared with 500 last season. San Diego—500 compared with 600 last season. These districts produce more celery to the acre than does the Delta. Last season total shipments from these areas up to May 1 was about 2,500 cars. This year production will be somewhat less because of the decrease in acre-

The dog's memory for names and faces is amazing. He was introduced to several members of the class by name—persons he had never seen before. Later, when their names were called, he walked to each student without hesitation and laid his head on that student's lap.

The university authorities do not admit that the dog has reasoning powers. They did say that he is "remarkably sagacious"—perhaps more so than any animal of which there is a record. For some reason scientists refuse to concede that animals can think, no matter how intelligent they may be.

Admitting that animals can think, it should follow naturally that they have souls. And that would get the scientists into hot water. But it is powerfully perplexing thing to account for the intelligence of such a dog as Fellow, whose owner says dogs "think through their noses."

In his youth Herbert was taught by a Hindu animal trainer that animals can smell human emotions. He says that "animals can detect fear in human beings. When a man is afraid, a chemical reaction takes place in his body. The animal smells the change, and it sets up a similar reaction of fear in the dog. Then he may bite in self-defense. A man afraid of a dog will seldom be bitten. You can't fool a dog by acting. When he smells you he knows the truth."

Dr. Albert A. Murphree

All Florida mourns the passing of Dr. Albert Alexander Murphree, president of the University of Florida, whose untimely death on Tuesday removed one of the most prominent college presidents of the South and one of the outstanding educational leaders of the country.

Few college presidents have met with such success as that which has attended the efforts of Dr. Murphree as head of the University of Florida. Under his guidance that institution has grown from a handful of students in 1909 to an enrollment of more than two thousand in 1927.

Dr. Murphree has performed an outstanding service for Florida, his adopted state, and has given us a university which, though supported solely by state funds, is many years ahead of its time when compared to the normal growth of institutions of higher learning.

To the student body of the University of Florida and its hundreds of alumni, scattered from one end of the nation to the other, the loss of Dr. Murphree is irreparable. To them he was the personification of all that is kind, lovable, honest, courageous and God-fearing.

To Strut Again

The verdict yesterday afternoon of the Cincinnati jury, finding George Remus not guilty on the ground of insanity of the charge of murdering his wife in Eden Park last October, smacks strangely of a similar verdict rendered some years ago when Harry K. Thaw was tried for the murder of Stanley White.

"Insanity", writes Dr. Hart, well known alienist and student of psychopathic cases, "is merely a matter of degree; everyone is more or less crazy". The degree of insanity possessed by George Remus is not so great as to have prevented him from amassing a huge fortune in a vast and intricate bootlegging business, or from winning, as his own lawyer, an apparently almost hopeless case against some of the shrewdest prosecutors in the country.

We do not know whether this miscarriage of justice is just another instance of the sentimentalism of irresponsible jurors, of the facility of capital punishment, or of the power of the all-mighty dollar, but it is only reasonable to believe that as long as such cases as this are laid, unpunished, before the eyes of the public, the stimulus to crime will ever become greater.

Here was a man of education, trained in the theories and practice of law, a successful Chicago attorney, who abandoned his profession to take up what he knew to be open violation of law for the sole purpose of creating for himself great wealth. His plans worked to perfection until government agents caught him and sent him to the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

He was no sooner released than he began laying plans for the further outwitting of law and order. However, matrimonial difficulties intervened and the sudden death of his wife led to his great struggle for life in which he showed himself possessed of as active and clever a mind as any man could want. But with it he revealed the terrible, un governable temper which must have provoked the murder.

Such a mental attribute is no more insanity than is a strong desire for cigarettes or coco cola. It is purely and simply a lack of will power, and a display prompted by always getting one's way. It is a childish characteristic not yet outgrown in manhood. Boys and girls of eight or ten, when denied an ice cream cone, are often seen to throw themselves on the floor, kick and scratch themselves, and tear out great handfuls of their own hair. They are not regarded as insane; they are usually given a spanking and sent off to bed. But in Remus' case they evidently spared the rod and spoiled the child.

The jury's verdict will not be regarded by the public as a kind act toward George Remus, but rather as an affront to law and order and as an injustice to the people of the country. The inevitable result will follow. There will be a trial by a sanity commission. He will be adjudged insane and placed in an asylum, there to remain for a few years until like Harry Thaw he will be released upon the public to strut about, blustering, damning, and frightening women and children until some day his stormy path will cross a real hurricane and his heavy lead-laden body will be lowered to its final resting place.

OR WOULD IT? TAMPA TIMES

Detroit has a German police class by name—persons he had long that knows 300 words, according to a story in Capper's Weekly. He proved that he knows them by passing an examination before an animal psychology class at Columbia university, New York city.

This dog is owned by Jacob Herbert, who has trained him for four years, and is named Fellow. The psychologists who tested him say that Fellow—five years old—has the intelligence of an 8-year-old child. For an hour the dog was before the class, showing that he understands a great many words spoken in ordinary tones without gestures, or even seeing the speaker.

Fellow obeys hundreds of commands that may be spoken from the other side of a closed door. Among those tried on him before the Columbia students were these: "Go to the door; put your feet on the radiator; turn around; sit down; get on the table; jump off; stand up against the wall; look out of the window; do it again; go to that lady in the back row and put your head in her lap." There were others, all obeyed in a flash. There was no set order of commands. Members of the class were asked to suggest them.

The dog's memory for names and faces is amazing. He was introduced to several members of the class by name—persons he had never seen before. Later, when their names were called, he walked to each student without hesitation and laid his head on that student's lap.

The university authorities do not admit that the dog has reasoning powers. They did say that he is "remarkably sagacious"—perhaps more so than any animal of which there is a record. For some reason scientists refuse to concede that animals can think, no matter how intelligent they may be.

Admitting that animals can think, it should follow naturally that they have souls. And that would get the scientists into hot water. But it is powerfully perplexing thing to account for the intelligence of such a dog as Fellow, whose owner says dogs "think through their noses."

As Brisbane Sees It

Any Bull Fight Heaven... Canaries Will Sing... What Schwab Will See... Modest Dr. Mary Walker.

LINDBERGH saw two Mexican bull fights on Sunday. A savage bull is chosen of a race bred for fighting. It is tormented with numerous small wounds until infuriated and then killed by a skillful butcher who is the nation's hero in Mexico and Spain.

HORSES are disabused, an occasional man is killed. Women look on and sigh for the great killer. So it has gone since the small-waisted bull fighters of Crete escaped between the bull's horns, 5000 years ago.

BULL killer, and spectators believe when this bull fight days are over they are taken up to heaven in which they associate through eternity, on intimate terms with theirer on the universe. They must have a poor opinion of His taste.

THE International Canary Roller Breeder's association is holding a singing competition in Brisbane. Birds winning will be exhibited. Music is very old, birds were singing and whistling on earth millions of years before men came, with their grand organ and marvelous musical machinery.

What taught birds to sing? How does evolution account for it? It was not part of the survival of the fittest, for a single bird must attract the attention of its enemies. Before they ever heard music, the females could not know enough to insist on a musical mate.

BE THAT as it may, teach your children singing and playing. Include some musical instruments in your Christmas gift collection. First come the music machines that caught all the family. But do not forget this statement by Henry Ford, who plays the fiddle. "Every child should be taught to play some instrument for himself, and not live and die a mere listener."

SCHWAB, wise man, says he would not change anything, not even one minute in his past life. He wants to live 20 years more—and he will—to see wonderful changes coming. He will go to Europe by airplane and see every rich man's front yard an air terminal. He will see school children study geography from the air, see passenger transportation at 200 miles an hour on the ground and 400 miles an hour in the air.

HE MAY even see this nation build an adequate fighting air fleet, after it has done its duty to battle-ship builders and armorplate makers, by handing them the millions they need.

TIMES change swiftly. Dr. Mary Walker, who used to call on Charles A. Dana at the old New York Sun office, dressed in trousers, truck coat and stove pipe hat, was arrested for wearing "immodest clothes." She really looked twice as modest as a cigar store Indian, when this and other Sun reporters saw her.

POLICE Commissioner Thomas of Sterling, Ill., says no lady may appear in a public dance hall unless she wears bloomers. She may wear anything else but bloomers are de rigueur, for reasons that the public will grasp, in these sport-skirt days.

EARTHQUAKE in Burma frightened inhabitants, a loud roar lasting 10 seconds accompanied the shaking. Guatemala's finest temple at Rangoon was badly damaged, but that will not shake faith in Buddhism.

THAT IS the convenient thing about pagan religions. When anything goes wrong, the pagan priests tell the faithful "it's your fault. Your donations have been inadequate." Nothing is ever wrong with the pagan god supposed to control earthquakes, or at least protect his own temples. Even fundamentalist, Christian churches put lightning rods on their steeples, which seems strange.

WITH THE last stock market days of the old year approaching, wise gentlemen predict boom times for 1928. Gold shipments of three millions a day mean little. In fact, they are healthy. D. C. Forbes, who knows his ticker and the men back of it, retains Scotch caution, but even he is optimistic. He says 1928 will see 5,000,000 automobiles manufactured. That means prosperity for many industries, and what is more important, fresh air for many families.

ONE THING is certain, we can afford peace with $3,000,000 gold export a day better than war, which, according to Mr. Mellon, cost us $60,000,000 a day every day we were in it, and all wasted.

they were to tell the truth on some people there would be great consternation. And what a blessing such a sixth sense would be to human beings. Or would it?

Popular Serial Of Stage Life Reaches Screen In "Becky" At Milane Today

"Becky," the Cosmopolitan picture coming to the Milane Theatre, Thursday, is a film adaptation of Raynor Selig's famous Cosmopolitan newspaper serial which has held millions of readers spellbound during the last few months.
 The picture, which was filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Sally O'Neil in the title role, is one of the most interesting stories of the American stage that has ever found its way to the screen.
 Little Miss O'Neil plays the title role of a little Irish-Jewish shop girl with an ambition to become a grand opera singer. Discharged from the department store, by an unscrupulous employer, she meets a young man of doubtful character in fact a very crooked crook.
 Through his love for the girl he is regenerated and it is not until after the heroine's adventures on the stage and in society that she spurns the hand of a rich man to wed the now regenerated pickpocket. Owen Moore plays the role of the crook.

Humor And Pathos Are Seen In Film Screen In "Becky" At Milane Today

That fundamental yearning of the human soul, to make our children better than we are, has led many a parent to heroic sacrifice and has been the cause of innumerable hardships and heart breaks.
 While this parental unselfishness has been the subject of countless books and "heart interest" stories in the press, it has remained for the moving picture to glorify it most fully. Unusual stress has been laid on this theme through the medium of the screen recently by George Sidney in his latest FBO production "Clancy's Kosher Wedding," which comes to the Milane Theatre today.
 The emotional interest which Hyman and Mrs. Cohen, played by George Sidney and Ann Brody, display over the money they have saved through years of privation to send their daughter Leah to college shows vividly the pride which parents of any class take in fostering the advancement of their children.
 What might be considered the shrewdest story of a lifetime is given in two sentences, when Cohen, after counting his savings, says, "I've got almost $800." To which Mamma Cohen replies, "It takes $1200 to learn her good." The pathos and laughter which are apparent in this scene typify the entire picture, which bases its appeal on the simple and fundamental emotions of the audience.

Congressmen Will Narate Story Of Their Lives For Congressional Directory

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The seventieth biennial edition of the Congressional directory is when every senator and representative has the opportunity to paint himself in the biographical section, it is off the press.

The sketches reveal some queer ideas of what constitutes qualifications for congressional seats, and some weird and awe-inspiring sidelights upon the personal, political and family chronicles of the individuals who make the laws.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of the 17th Texas District retains again the honor of the longest biography. It covers more than a page of arate type, most of the space being taken up with a recital of his ten-year-old feud with the American Federation of Labor, his mortal enemy.

The shortest biography this year is that of R. J. A. Guilan of New York, who takes the distinction from Senator Garaway, of Arkansas. Garaway's biography is only 12 lines in length. It reads: "T. M. Garaway, Democrat, June 1860; La Guardia's biography reads: "Firello H. La Guardia, and no more space as the biography of his district, which embraces a section of Eschima's Fifth Avenue.

Vanities Revealed

The biographies reveal some striking congressional vanities, the most pronounced being a pride in having been born on a farm, and a weakness for minor election returns. If all the farm-born members brought a knowledge of their birthplace to Capitol Hill, the pecking problem of agricultural relief could be solved in five minutes. There are a few farm-born members, natives, in Indiana—Boys, Sprunt, of Illinois; born in New Brunswick; Sabath, of Illinois; born in Czechoslovakia; Carley, of Brooklyn born in Ireland; and Sen. Wagner, of New York, born in Nassau, Germany.

As for the election returns, some of the members go back into the misty past and record the results of long-forgotten local elections, to prove that the "voice of the people" has called them insistently ever since they ran for justice of the peace or chairman of the school board in the cross-tick settlement.

Rep. Joe Crail, of Los Angeles, California, a unique "double" biography which might be a flood in "The Story of Joe and Charley," the latter being his twin brother. A leafless public is informed that the congressman and his brother "were born in Fairfield, Iowa, on Christmas eve, 1877; they resemble each other in appearance, have always dressed alike and are pleased to be mistaken for one another" and that when they were in the army, one was made a corporal and one a sergeant "so the officers could tell them apart."

Other Reports

Other interesting facts recorded for posterity in the Directory: Rep. Tarver, of Georgia is one of the champion congressional sinners. He lists himself as a member of the Masons, Odd Fellows, W. O. W., J. O. U. M., P. O. S. of A., D. of A. and I. O. R. M.

Rep. Joe Manlove, of Arkansas, a young man was a sprinter, jumper, and hurler; record of 100 yards in 10 seconds; also played football basketball and baseball.

Rep. William E. Cohen, New York, is an "honorary deputy chief of police."

Observations on a recent tour of Europe convinced him that "the Alphas did to Austria what they didn't dare do to Germany."

The new European political setup proved of particular interest to Rees. A part of his tour covered Vienna, the famous old city on the aquatic famous "blue Danube."

Vienna, a city of 2,000,000 population has been left without sufficient territory on which its population could "live," explained Rees.

"The best and most influential people of the city are all anxious to have Austria join Germany. Vienna must have connection with some other state in order to prosper."

This union with Germany may come, although the people of Austria know that it will not be permitted now by the League of Nations.

Rees characterized as a political crime the creation of many small states in Central Europe; and near East, holding this action to constitute a constant menace of war.

The present sub-division may lead to war as none of these states are safeguarded properly," Rees said. "One much larger state would have been more conducive to stability than the small ones."

Rees returns Vienna as the natural trade center of Europe, with its vast railway center and in addition the Danube.

15 Dakota Buffalo Bought As Nucleus For Alaskan Herd

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 20.—American buffalo are to become one of the lures for big game hunters in Alaska according to an announcement of the Alaska Game Commission. Fifteen of the animals will form the nucleus of the herd it is hoped to develop for future utilization in the chase. The animals are to be brought from South Dakota, where their range is similar to the open prairie-like interior regions of Alaska.

Contrary to popular belief "the snows of the interior do not attain feet, and fall upon a frozen surface, being shipped by the winter winds into windows and often practically denuding large areas, where lichens and grass which cover something after the manner of "prairie wool" abound."

The buffalo will be given freedom in the earliest season, and extends from the Seward Peninsula on the west and north to the main Alaska range to the Yukon into Canada and along the Alaskan coast.
