

Sanford Faces $1.50 Tax Rate Hike

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford's new city manager has submitted a $12.4 million budget for fiscal year 1985-86 calling for an increase in the property tax rate for the first time to Sanford residents since 1979.

City Manager Frank Faison recommended Monday in his proposed budget that property taxes be set at $1.94 per $1,000 assessed valuation, a 30 percent increase over this year's rate of $1.44.

The proposed budget includes funding all city departments except the Sanford Airport Authority, which is expected to submit its budget at a later date.

If approved as presented, the total budget will be about $2.5 million more than the $9.9 million the city commission approved for this fiscal year.

While the proposed $4.94 tax rate may not be approved fully by the commission, a poll of the commissioners, available for comment today indicates some type of increase can be expected.

Commissioner Milton Smith said a tax increase is needed

"Because we're putting things in our budget that should have been in there years ago." He pointed out the need to upgrade the city's parks and public areas, as recommended by the Scenic Improvement Board in its recent report to the commission.

But Smith predicted there would be few complaints from residents about a tax increase because, "People will see their money working. We need to do this in order to meet the peoples' needs and give them more pride in the city."

Commissioner David Farr said he thinks with all the new housing and apartment construction now underway in Sanford, there would be enough added to the tax base which might not require a tax increase. But he said the revenues that will come from that new construction won't be realized for another year after completion, since they are put on the tax rolls this coming November, but tax payments aren't made until the following November.

Commissioner John Mercer said he hasn't examined the budget yet and Commissioner Robert Thomas could not be reached for comment. Mayor Bettye Smith was attending a luncheon in Orlando honoring a delegation from China.

Here is how much it is estimated it will cost in 1985-86 to operate the city's departments under the proposed budget. The figures include the estimated 1984-85 expenditure, followed by next year's estimate.

Administrative Services $218,087 — $326,507.
Engineering and Planning $280,443 — $382,630. Finance $247,386 — $287,344. Parks and Recreation $652,295 — $943,446. Police about $2.1 million — $2.4 million. Fire about $1.3 million — $1.5 million. Public Works about $1.5 million — $2 million. Refuse $848,200 — $1,023,455. Water and Sewer and $2.4 million — $3.05 million.

The comparative figures for operating the city administration are as follows: City Commission $53,305 — $38,726. City Manager's office $101,839 — $99,424. Legal services $55,735 — $63,689. Assistant City Man

Sanford Welcomes Chinese Visitors

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford laid the planks for a bridge of friendship all the way to China Monday, as the city hosted a 10-member delegation of business and political leaders from that country at a luncheon and tour of the area.

The visitors, from China's southern port city of Guangzhou, and about 30 of their Sanford counterparts ate, drank, laughed and exchanged gifts at a luncheon at the Skyport restaurant.

The Chinese, each wearing a "Golden Age Games" baseball cap, then embarked on a 1½-hour sightseeing tour of the city, including stops at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Hamilton Elementary School and a Winn-Dixie grocery store.

The delegation is in Sanford for a week of negotiations with Orlando Helicopter Airways Inc., a Sanford company, which landed a 15-year, multimillion contract with the Chinese earlier this year. The contract is expected to be finalized this week, according to company spokesmen.

The luncheon was marked by gaily and well-wishing with the Chinese and Sanfordites swapping smiles and business cards. Although language was a barrier, the two groups skirted it by using two interpreters and the universal language — laughter — to fill in the gaps.

The luncheon was opened with a prayer and the pledge of allegiance. Sanford Commissioner Milton Smith, who offered the prayer, voiced thanks "for the fellowship with our friends from China."

At the head table, Guangzhou Mayor Tang Guo Liang, flanked by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and Orlando Mayor Bill Frederick, remarked how well he was enjoying the steak dinner. Mrs. Smith and Frederick recalled fond memories of their recent trips to China.

At another table, one delegate laughed Commissioner David Farr how to write and pronounce his name in Cantonese, the major dialect spoken in southern China.

In a more livelier section of the banquet room, Henry Schumacher, of the Sanford Airport Authority, and delegate Lu Li He split a carafe of wine.

"Bottoms up, bottoms up." He kept saying in Cantonese.

Before the dinner ended, the two embraced and Schumacher called He

"The next mayor of Sanford."

The two groups watched a video presentation about Orlando and then toasted each other.

Mayor Liang then presented Mayor Smith with books about Guangzhou and a perfume coin embossed with a cow — the Chinese symbol for good business dealings. Mayor Smith presented Liang with a key to the city.

No Discipline For 2 Deputies In Sex Set-Up

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Two Seminole County sheriff's deputies, the object of an internal probe after allegedly mishandling the investigation of a sexual assault case, used poor judgment, but will not be punished.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said today he will counsel deputies John Negri and Glenn Nagata so they will know how to handle such a situation should one arise again, but they will not be punished for making what he called an "error in judgment."

That poor judgment involved the deputies allowing a 14-year-old boy to meet with an Orlando man who allegedly sexually assaulted the boy as they sat in the man's parked car, which Negri and Nagata had under surveillance.

The incident occurred in the parking lot of the Krystal restaurant, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, at about midnight on June 26.

Earlier in the evening the boy's father said he overheard his son on the telephone with the suspect, apparently making a date.

The boy, under the father's supervision, made the date and then the father called the sheriff's department and asked for deputies to join the investigation, sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

The deputies had about 30 minutes to get to the restaurant parking lot and to tell the boy what to do and how to signal them if he needed help while dealing with the man, Spolski said.

Spolski said Negri and Nagata, both patrol deputies, were at fault for not turning the case over to sheriff's detectives who normally handle that type of investigation. But they said they didn't have time to call in detectives, Spolski said.

When the suspect arrived at the restaurant, the boy got into the man's car, despite being told not to do so both by his father and Negri and Nagata. The boy failed to signal that he was in trouble as deputies watched the car for about 20 minutes and saw movement in the vehicle, Spolski said.

When Negri and Nagata moved in to arrest the man the boy told them that as they had been watching the man had performed a sex act on him, according to a report written by Nagata. Charles Roy Stallings, a 36-year-old real estate broker, was

SCA Votes To Disband; Head Start Fate Uncertain

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Community Action is disbanding and the fate of the local Head Start program is uncertain.

Notified that the state will urge the federal government to deny funding to Head Start while it is under the control of SCA, the SCA board of directors with seven members present Monday night voted unanimously to relinquish sponsorship of the program and to dissolve the agency as of Aug. 31.

They urged the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to designate the school board as the new sponsoring agency for the program.

But two members of the school board — Pat Telson and Bill Kroll — were reluctant today to say whether they would support a school system takeover of the program designed to give three- and four-year-old children from underprivileged families educational experiences prior to their going to public school.

Kroll said if accepting the program would mean a commitment for additional money, "our budget is strapped."

He said, "Everytime I ask for something from the budget committee, it is shot down. I am told there is no money and I assume there would be no money for Head Start."

Mrs. Telson said while the Head Start program has been successful, "I can't tell what the school board would do until I look at the budget and look at

Serviceman Killed In Auto Crash

David S. Wilkins

A 19-year-old Sanford man stationed at Ft. Stewart Army Base in Georgia was killed in a car accident early Saturday.

Pvt. David Scott Wilkins, son of Kenneth and Betty Wilkins, 812 Cherokee Circle, Sanford, died at about 6 a.m. Saturday.

An Army spokesman gave this account of the accident: Wilkins was travelling East on Georgia Highway 119 when his 1978 Pontiac Trans Am hit a National Guard Low Boy and burst into flames. A Low Boy is a piece of military equipment used for hauling heavy military hardware.

Wilkins attended Seminole High School in Sanford and had been in the Army less than a year.

An Army spokesman said Wilkins was a Tank Systems Mechanic in the Armored Tank Division.

Dearborn Fans Great Team; Banquet Next

After greetings from 15,000 enthusiastic fans in Dearborn, Mich., Henry Ford's home town, a banquet is in store for Sanford's weary road rally team after it rolls into Pittsburgh tonight.

Company headquarters of the firm sponsoring their vintage car in the cross country race are located in Pittsburgh.

Although fatigue seems to be catching up with them, Don and Jerry Gross are running 36th in the pack of 75 and are only 7½ minutes off the ideal time despite retracing one route because they missed a check point and the breakdown of their stopwatch, said Patty Austin, Jerry Gross' secretary at his Sanford architectural firm. At the start there were 120 entries of which 99 qualified to make the 3,000 mile or so rally race.

The Grosses left Detroit for Pittsburgh today anxious for the rally's completion Thursday in New York City.

"Jerry said they're just going on adrenalin," Ms. Austin reported today. The duo cruised into the Motor City at 7 p.m. Monday in their 1932 Deluxe Model A "Jenny Steamcleaner" and left for Pittsburgh 6 a.m. today, she said.

There the team will be feted at a dinner in their honor by the "Jenny Steamcleaner" firm. The elder Gross, who's driving the vintage auto, has a local steam cleaning business using the "Jenny Steamcleaner." Ms. Austin said.

The team will be helicoptered to the banquet site, she

IN BRIEF

Heat, Flames And Wind Torture Southern Calif.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Firefighters faced searing temperatures, under dry brush, feisty winds and arsonists in their battle against brushfires that have leveled some 70 homes and charred more than 35,000 acres in Southern California.

Massive fires raged today in Los Angeles, San Diego, Ventura and Riverside counties, and several small brushfires added to the reddish-brown clouds of smoke that climbed from the hillsides surrounding the Los Angeles Basin.

There was no loss of life, although dozens of minor injuries were reported, mostly to firefighters who suffered in record heat. It was 107 in Los Angeles Monday and temperatures in the deserts soared to 115 with little relief in the weather forecast. The low humidity turned heavy brush into potential torches.

Residents of the San Diego neighborhood of Normal Heights, where 64 homes and 18 outbuildings were destroyed Sunday, tearfully surveyed the devastation Monday.

Fire inspectors said an arsonist was responsible for what started out as a simple brushfire but quickly exploded into the most destructive fire in the city's history.

Another 20 houses were badly damaged and Gov. George Deukmejian declared a state of emergency. Damage was estimated at $8.5 million.

Senator: Fire The Cheesy Rats

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The officials responsible for inspecting the Mexican-style cheese plant linked to more than 50 deaths in the nation's worst outbreak of food poisoning this century should be fired, an angry state senate committee says.

The inspectors, the chairman of the Senate Committee on Toxics and Public Safety Management said Monday, are not capable of handling the responsibility of the public's health and should be relegated to doing "cattle brand inspections in Bakersfield. Fire the rats," he snapped.

State Sen. Ari Torres, D-Los Angeles, said officials failed to adequately inspect Jalisco Mexican Products Inc., maker of the Mexican-style cheese linked to the deadly outbreak of listeriosis, a bacterial disease particularly dangerous for babies, pregnant women and the chronically ill.

The angrily worded report called for the removal of all state Department of Food and Agriculture personnel responsible for inspecting Jalisco's suburban Los Angeles plant.

The committee also found that the three-month period between the county's identification of a possible epidemic and the recall of all Jalisco cheeses was too long and may have contributed to a "substantial" number of deaths.

Execs Sentenced For Murder

MAYWOOD, Ill. (UPI) — A judge who sentenced three executives to 25 years in prison for the work-related death of an employee says the men were as guilty of murder as someone who places a time bomb in an airport and runs away.

Cook County Circuit Judge Ronald J.P. Banks Monday sentenced the executives for their murder convictions in the cyanide poisoning death of an employee at a plant run by the now-defunct Film Recovery Systems Inc. of Elk Grove Village.

President Steven O'Neil, plant manager Charles Kirschbaum and plant foreman Daniel Rodriguez are believed to be the first corporate officials held criminally liable for the work-related death of an employee, prosecutors said.

The former executives were found guilty June 14 in the Feb. 10, 1983 death of Stefan Golab, 61, an illegal Polish alien who worked over tanks of cyanide solution used to remove silver from exposed X-ray film.

Europeans Launch Satellite In Search Of Halley's Comet

KOUROU, French Guiana (UPI) — A French rocket company today launched a spacecraft owned by 11 Western European nations on a bold journey to Halley's Comet — a once-in-a-lifetime mission the United States passed up because of budget problems.

The European Space Agency probe called Giotto was mounted atop a 155-foot-tall Ariane rocket at a Guiana Space Center launch site on the edge of the Amazon forest. It blasted off about 7:15 a.m.

The countdown began Monday under the direction of Ariane Space Inc., a company formed five years ago to compete with America's space shuttle for the world's satellite-launching business.

In addition to color pictures snapped four times a second from the West German camera, Giotto carries instruments to determine the chemical makeup of the gases around the nucleus and to reveal the composition of its dust particles.

Gromyko Now Soviet President

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev today named Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as the country's new president and installed a newly appointed member of the ruling Politburo in his place.

The appointment of Gromyko, 75, to the largely ceremonial post of president, where he would meet visiting heads of state, freed Gorbachev to concentrate on the domestic problems he has made his main concern.

Gromyko was relieved of his duties as foreign minister and Eduard Shevardnadze, 57, appointed to full Politburo membership only Monday, was named as Gromyko's replacement in the crucial post.

Exxon To Appeal $1.9 Billion Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Exxon Corp. says it will appeal a ruling by a special federal court ordering the world's largest company to pay $1.9 billion for allegedly overpricing crude oil from a Texas oil field.

...world's largest business accused of overpricing crude oil; similar cases pending against other oil companies

The ruling Monday by the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals upheld what could be the biggest fine against a single defendant. It involved a dispute between Exxon and the Energy Department over the price of oil from the Hawkins Oil Field near Tyler, Texas.

Exxon spokesman Henry Beathard said the company would decide whether to ask the special court, set up in the 1970s to handle energy disputes, to reconsider the case or ask the Supreme Court to order a trial.

In Houston, S.J. Reso, Exxon executive vice president, said: "We are extremely disappointed."

"We do not think it is proper for such an important suit to be decided without a trial," Reso said, adding that the Energy Department's stand "is contrary to the intent of the regulations and would have had the effect of discouraging additional domestic oil production."

The special court's decision upheld a 1983 ruling by U.S. District Judge Thomas Flannery, who ordered Exxon to pay $495 million for overpricing oil from the Hawkins field from 1975 through 1981.

The refund, with compounded daily interest charges, is the biggest awarded under a 1973 law that set up a two-tier price control system on domestic oil production to encourage domestic exploration after the Arab oil embargo.

The law allowed companies to charge higher prices for domestic crude oil produced after a certain date. President Reagan lifted price controls shortly after he took office in 1981.

The Energy Department charged that Exxon improperly classified oil from the Hawkins field as "new oil" when it should have been classified as "old oil," which sells at a lower price.

Rayburn Hanzlik, administrator of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, said his office is "extremely pleased" by the ruling.

"There are a lot of smiling faces around here," he said. "The court decision sustained the position the department had argued during the court process. We won on every count."

He predicted the decision would help the department in 450 similar cases involving between $3 billion and $4 billion. The largest remaining case, against Texaco, involves about $1 billion, he said.

Exxon argued that government regulations were applied retroactively to oil from the Hawkins field — one of the largest oil fields in the continental United States.

The special court also upheld Flannery's decision to order restitution paid to the Treasury, which would distribute the money to the 50 states for energy conservation.

Exxon, which owns 67 percent of the Hawkins field, also argued that 2,500 other owners should be liable for any judgment. But Flannery said it would be too difficult to determine individual liability and said it would be up to Exxon to try to recover money from other owners.

Bomb Intended For Mid-Air Blast?

ROME (UPI) — A bomb planted in a suitcase bound for the Spanish capital that exploded at Rome's international airport and injured 15 people may have prevented a mid-air blast aboard a Madrid-bound airliner, police said today.

The explosion late Monday ripped apart the baggage handling section at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport and cracked a wall next to a conveyor that carries baggage to arriving passengers.

Police said 15 airport employees were injured and taken to hospitals.

Airport and Carabinieri para-military police evacuated the airport and halted all flights for 29 minutes while firefighters put out a small fire.

Baggage handlers said the suitcase, described as a soft, wine-red sack, had the brown tag of a Middle Eastern airline and was with luggage to be shipped to Madrid.

Police said today the suitcase was to have been put on a Madrid-bound flight that was scheduled to take off at 7:30 p.m. Monday, but a delay by the baggage handlers prevented the transfer. The suitcase bomb exploded at 8:02 p.m.

Investigators said the delay may have prevented an explosion and crash aboard the Madrid-bound jetliner.

The incident at Rome airport was the latest in a series of terrorist attacks on aviation targets and the third bomb attack Monday in Europe.

A bomb exploded in a crowded British Airways ticket office in downtown Madrid Monday, killing one woman and injuring 27 other people. In a second attack minutes later, gunmen shot out the windows of a nearby Jordanian airlines office and hurled a grenade inside. No one was injured in that attack.

Outside Athens, Greece, an automobile loaded with propane tanks exploded Monday in a parking lot and destroyed four cars, most of them belonging to U.S. military personnel stationed in Greece. No one was injured.

In other recent bombings against aviation targets, an explosion at the Frankfurt International Airport in West Germany on June 19, and at Tokyo's international airport on June 23, left a total of five people dead.

A bomb is also suspected as the cause of the crash of an Air-India jet off the Irish coast on June 23 that killed 329 people on board.

At an emergency meeting following the blast at the Rome airport late Monday, airport, aviation, police and fire officials decided to examine with X-ray equipment all bags being held in transit overnight.

The officials said they would meet again later today to discuss new security procedures. Security has been tight at the airport — considered a crossroads between Europe and the Middle East — since Palestinian guerrillas bombed a Pan American jet and hijacked a Lufthansa airliner there Dec. 17, 1973, killing 32 people.

But officials said they have not made it a practice to check baggage in transit because this would mean long delays in transferring it between planes.

Army Corps 'Sandbagging' Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has accused the Army Corps of Engineers of "sandbagging" taxpayers with a $50 million project to rebuild beaches for the benefit of condominiums and hotels in Miami Beach.

Proxmire gave his monthly "Golden Fleece" award to the corps Monday, saying it had already spent $33 million on a beach "nourishment" project to pump sand onto 10 miles of Florida beach fronting "costly condominiums and naughty hotels."

Another $17 million, he said, remains "in the pipeline."

"The corps is really sandbagging the taxpayers on this one because one large storm could easily sweep away all this sand," he said.

The Wisconsin Democrat selected the Corps of Engineers for the dubious distinction because he viewed the project as July's "most wasteful, ridiculous or ironic" use of tax money.

"The corps' efforts are making it easier for those staying in these pleasure palaces to bathe, but the average taxpayer is taking the bath," he said.

The project, he said, is part of "a costly, never-ending and futile effort" to rebuild the beach by dredging sand offshore and pumping it onto the beach for $5 million to $6 million a mile.

Proxmire cited studies by geologists and marine scientists that he said show such efforts destroy beaches they are intended to save.

A corps spokesman expressed "disappointment" with Proxmire's criticism of the project, saying it was "not deserved."

"The corps, in constructing the project, is carrying out a mandate of Congress, of which Senator Proxmire is a member," he said.

The spokesman said the "nourishment" also is meant to provide hurricane protection for the area and local funding will meet 41 percent of the cost expected to reach $94 million when it is completed in 1993.

He said similar beach erosion projects also are under way in Georgia, New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Man Who Ran Over Hitchhiker, Didn't Help Jailed

By Deane Jordan Herald Staff Writer

A Casselberry man who stopped his car, walked back and stared at the crumpled man he had just run over and then drove away without summoning help has been sentenced to 90 days in the Seminole County jail.

Randy Reiss, 22, of 325 E. Seminole Blvd., was also ordered by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. to complete 500 hours of community service and make whatever restitution to the victim that probation and parole officials deem appropriate. Davis also suspended Reiss' driver's license for 5 years. The victim, Shawn D. Smith, 23, of 1995 Casselwood St., Winter Park, survived his injuries.

According to police reports, Smith was hitchhiking while standing in the road on the striped line between the right and center lanes on state Road 436 at 12:45 a.m. on Aug. 4 when a Thunderbird traveling about 45 mph hit him.

According to eyewitnesses, the impact threw Smith about 25 feet. They said the car stopped. Reiss got out, walked back to Smith, bent over him, then returned to the car and drove away.

One of the witnesses followed the car and copied the license plate number and gave it to police. Reiss was arrested about an hour after the incident.

Reiss pleaded no contest in November to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident with injuries.

In other court action: —Victor Ferdinand Blue, 18, of 4559 Douglas St., Sanford, arrested Jan. 25 on a charge of uttering a forgery after trying to cash a stolen check. He was sentenced by Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor to 360 days in the county jail and 5 years probation. He was also ordered by McGregor to pay the victim $475 in restitution.

Inmates Control Prison; Free Last Hostage

ONLY, Tenn. (UPI) — Hundreds of convicts — enraged over Tennessee's new striped jail uniforms — seized control of Turney Center prison, torching the chapel and cafeteria and holding fellow inmates hostage for several hours early today.

Five people were injured, including one prisoner who had a heart attack.

Officials said a prison guard was taken hostage shortly after the rioting erupted Monday night, but he was released about 1 1/2 hours later.

Ten inmates — all in "protective custody" cells at their own request — were taken hostage by the rioting convicts, but Warden Larry Lack talked them into releasing all 10 hostages, who were freed one by one. The last hostage was freed about 3 a.m.

"We tried to convince them they had nothing to gain by keeping them," said State Correction spokesman John Taylor.

Taylor said there was "extensive damage" to the units housing the inmates and the prison cafeteria and commissary were gutted by fire. He said the convicts had also burned the chapel at the medium-security prison about 55 miles west of Nashville.

The rioters — angry because of new striped uniforms, tiny cells and poor food — warned authorities there would be violence if they attempted to reclaim the facility.

At a news conference with about 15 reporters, two spokesmen for the rioters — James Bragg, 32, of Akron, Ohio, and Michael Garrard, 29, of Clarksville — said the prisoners were prepared to fight.

He said the inmates were upset about the new uniforms with striped pants and shirts stenciled "Department of Corrections" that were mandated by the Legislature last year after a rash of prison escapes.

Environmentalists: Acid Rain Worse Than Believed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists say a closer look by the Environmental Protection Agency at damaged lakes and streams shows an acid rain problem in the Northeast and upper Midwest that is worse than originally believed.

The National Clean Air Fund, an arm of the National Clean Air Coalition, Monday released copies of EPA regional maps showing wide areas where lakes and streams had been harmed by acidity.

"The maps show that surface waters susceptible to damage from acid rain are more seriously endangered and distributed over a broader geographic area than previously reported," said fund spokeswoman Susan Buffone.

The maps are more detailed versions of a national EPA map that in 1982 showed areas where lakes and streams had been damaged by high acidity.

Releasing its analysis of the regional maps, the fund said the EPA documents had been available for the past year but had not been highly publicized.

Deborah Sheiman, a research specialist for the Natural Resources Defense, said "the difference is startling" between the national map and the two regional maps.

She said the groups had not been able to determine exactly how much more damage there was in the areas but noted it was clear that certain sections, such as Cape Cod, Mass., and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, were "much more seriously affected than we believed."

She said the data used by the EPA in compiling the maps may not necessarily have been more current than the data used in the 1982 map but it was more complete.

The Northeast regional map, she said, used 10 times more data and the Midwest map used 100 times more data than the 1982 national map.

EPA spokesman Chris Rice said the agency questions the fund's interpretation.

With Congress mired in a fight over how to cut the federal deficit, legislation to find a way to pay for an acid rain cleanup is stalled. The administration has refused to push for a cleanup program, arguing that more research is needed.

"We believe this is exactly the kind of information that would compel the administration to act," said Sheiman.

Hawkins: Pentagon Downplaying Scope Of Alcohol, Drug Abuse

Sen. Paula Hawkins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, has accused the Pentagon of covering up the number of military personnel who abuse drugs and alcohol, despite claims from the brass that the problem is on the decline.

"The scope of the problem of drug use in the military remains unfathomable," said Hawkins, chairwoman of a Senate Labor and Human Resources subcommittee that held a hearing last week on the problem of drug and alcohol abuse in the military.

"Each year the testing procedures are changed," she said. "Each year the directors of the responsible offices are changed. Each year the computation formulas are changed."

"The Department of Defense is keeping this secret," she charged.

Hawkins questioned the accuracy of new studies showing a drop in drug use in the military in recent years. She said members of Congress have been repeatedly frustrated in attempts to get information from the Pentagon.

"I demand to know how many soldiers use illicit narcotics, how many pilots use alcohol," Hawkins said. "I want hard evidence. All we have now is anecdotal evidence and that does not bode well."

If the problem were decreasing, as top Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers testified, Hawkins questioned why, in 1984, there were 60,024 positive drug tests in the Navy, 35,514 in the Army and 8,055 in the Air Force.

"If there is good news — if drug use has gone down, as is claimed with the results of the voluntary Drug Prevalent Survey — then in 1984 why were there 18,637 dismissals from the armed services for drug and alcohol related problems?" she asked.

J. Jarrett Clinton, a deputy assistant defense secretary, told the subcommittee that progress in combatting the problem "has been substantial" recently but, "We have not yet rid ourselves of the drug abuse problem."

Army Maj. Gen. William Sweet testified that there has been "a continued downward trend in admitted drug abuse to the lowest level since we began tracking in 1974." But Hawkins criticized the Army's plan to conduct 260,000 fewer urine tests for drug use next year — a 9 percent decrease.

To combat Army alcohol abuse, Sweet said that, effective Aug. 20, "alcohol will not be served to military personnel on duty."

Air Force Maj. Gen. Thomas Baker claimed a "major decline in drug abuse" but said a recent survey showed that "the prevalence of alcohol abuse among Air Force people increased."

U.S. Marine Brig. Gen. Gail Reals said a 1980 survey showed that 37 percent of the Marine Corps abused drugs or alcohol, but that figure dropped to 17 percent in 1983 and to an estimated level of less than 10 percent today.

Court: Anti-Retarded Law Based On 'Irrational Prejudice'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In striking down a Texas ordinance that excluded homes for the "feeble-minded" from areas zoned for apartment living, the Supreme Court has reaffirmed the rights of the retarded but refused to carve out a special constitutional niche for them.

The justices, in a 6-3 ruling Monday, said the ordinance "appears to rest on an irrational prejudice against the mentally retarded."

The ruling, while a victory for handicapped advocacy groups, did not extend the same constitutional safeguards previously granted to blacks and women.

Justice Bryon White said the "mentally retarded, like others, have and retain their substantive constitutional rights in addition to the right to be treated equally by the law."

However, White said the retarded already have protection under federal and state law from discrimination and if they were made a special class other similar groups such as the "aging, disabled, the mentally ill and infirm" could require the same treatment.

"We are reluctant to set out on that course, and we decline to do so," White wrote for the majority.

The ruling came in a case from Cleburne, a city of 20,000 about 25 miles south of Fort Worth.

Attorneys for the city had asked the high court to uphold a zoning ordinance that allows boarding homes, fraternities, dormitories, hospitals and nursing homes in apartment districts, but requires special permits for homes "for the insane or feeble-minded."

The ordinance was challenged when the Cleburne Living Center was denied a permit to house 13 mentally retarded people in a large four bedroom home at 201 Featherston Street. The house, purchased by Jan Hannah in 1980, has been vacant pending high court action.

The city said it denied the permit to control population, avoid congestion in the streets and ensure fire safety, among other reasons.

Under the ordinance, the same house with the same number of occupants

Constitution Protects Unmarried Couples

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has let stand a lower court decision that says the constitutional right to privacy protects unmarried couples who live together.

The justices, without comment, refused Monday to take up an appeal by the city of North Muskegon, Mich. which was ordered to pay $35,000 in damages to a police officer fired because he was living with his girlfriend.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the firing violated the officer's constitutional right to privacy.

The city argued that privacy rights should not extend to "felonious off-duty extramarital sexual activities by law enforcement officers."

The case involves Richard Briggs, who was employed part-time by the North Muskegon police department from 1969 until February 1977.

He was fired, according to court records, after he admitted to his superiors "he was cohabiting with a woman not his wife while he was still married."

Briggs' behavior, the police department said, was in violation of Michigan law, which states, "Any person who shall commit adultery shall be guilty of a felony."

Even if that law is unconstitutional, the department argued, it should have the prerogative to hold officers to a higher standard than the public at large.

The department said Briggs' conduct reflected poorly on his fellow officers and adversely affected the city's ability to enforce and uphold laws.

North Muskegon officials urged the court to review the Briggs' case because they said lower courts are divided on the matter.

Many courts "have held that extramarital heterosexual activity, including unlawful and adulterous activity, is not constitutionally protected and may be proscribed and prohibited by public employers," they said. "On the other hand, other courts have reached opposite conclusions."

would have been permitted if the occupants were not mentally retarded.

The ordinance was declared unconstitutional by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last year.

Although restricting the location of group homes may be appropriate in some cases, the appeals court said, Cleburne's reason for doing so reflected "deep-seated historical prejudice against the mentally retarded."

Experts say hundreds of neighborhoods across the country have faced similar disputes since the early 1970s when mental institutions came under pressure to return mildly and moderately retarded people to the community.

There are more than 6.5 million retarded people in the United States, court records show. About 60,000 of them live in some 6,300 group homes established during the "deinstitutionalization" era.

The Reagan administration had urged the justices to reverse the lower court. Government attorneys said the special needs and disabilities of retarded people often require special legislation that might not stand up under equal protection analysis.

Also Monday, the court left intact a Pennsylvania State University rule forbidding students from hosting Tupperware parties and other profit making events in their dormitory rooms.

The justices, without comment, rejected an appeal filed by Penn State coed Kathy Johnson who said she has a constitutional right to host a demonstration for a firm that sells china, crystal and silverware.

The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last year that Penn State's regulation is constitutional because of the school's interest in maintaining dormitories "as a residential and study area for its students and in preventing their use as a rent-free merchandise mart."

But attorneys for Johnson, who challenged the rule along with American Future Systems Inc., said it does not just affect commercial companies, but also "religious solicitations, political fundraising activities (and) Ethiopian aid drives."

"The regulation in this case prevents far more than a Tupperware-type party among a group of students in their home away from home," Johnson said. "The Young Republicans or Young Democrats would be barred from meeting with a small group of their supporters in a dormitory room if the subject of financial support was to be covered during the political discussion."

She said the rule "strikes at the heart of the privacy rights and intellectual freedom of college students."

Johnson, one of 13,000 students who live in Penn State residence halls, was recruited by American Future Systems as a host for sales demonstrations. The company frequently holds such demonstrations on college campuses as a way to market china and cookware and offers door prizes if at least 20 prospective buyers are present.

The Student Association of the State University of New York entered the case as a friend of the court in urging the justices to consider the appeal.

"The university, absent evidence of illegal or dangerous activity, should have no more right to control the association of people in student dormitory rooms than a landlord has over a tenant," the student group said.

Penn State officials defended the rule, which they said in no way restricts the free speech or association rights of students.

The college allows one-on-one sales demonstrations and permits telephone and mail solicitation, they said, and also allows groups such as American Future Systems to rent space at an on-campus hotel for marketing events.

Cinderella Was Never Like This

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — A 17-year-old American debutante was taken off an exclusive European tour after she threw a glass of champagne in the face of Austrian Prince Willy von Thurn and Taxis and called him a "swine."

Chara Lewis, 17, a member of the National Debutante Society from Washington, D.C., approached the prince at a ball at which she was to be coming out Thursday night, threw champagne in his face and smashed the glass at her feet.

She did so "in honor of her family and all American women," her mother, Susan, quoted her daughter as saying. No other explanation was given.

After the incident, Chara swept out of the ballroom, leaving her gloves, purse and a silver rose behind.

Mrs. Lewis said when she and her daughter went back inside to retrieve her belongings, the prince came out shaking his fists at the two women and yelling "get out of Austria."

The prince, the Austrian organizer of Debutante Holidays Abroad, revoked their tickets to the ball and said he did so because other parents requested that the two women not be allowed to attend the event.

"She complained so much she embarrassed the other girls and their parents," Von Thurn and Taxis said, adding Mrs. Lewis ordered her daughter to throw the champagne at him.

"But even the daughter is a known troublemaker in Washington, I can tell you that," he said.

Longwood Woman's Roommate Jailed In Attempted Rape

A 29-year-old Longwood man has been charged with attempted sexual battery and aggravated assault in connection with an attack on his female roommate.

Linda Sue Davis, 23, of 1341 Carlton St., Longwood, told Seminole County sheriff's investigator Greg Futch that she was in her bedroom at about 7:30 p.m. Monday when the suspect knocked on the door and asked for a match.

Ms. Davis said her boyfriend, who lives with her, had just left. When the man entered the bedroom he began making sexual advances to Ms. Davis, Futch's report said.

She said she spurned his advances and he threw her to the floor and began to disrobe. He pulled up her dress and attempted to rape her, the report said, but she struggled and the man could not complete the assault. He hit her in the mouth during the struggle and kicked her in the abdomen when she stood up, the report said.

The man took a knife from his pocket and told Ms. Davis he would cut up her and her dog if she told anyone of the attack, the report said.

Futch questioned Ms. Davis at Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs at about midnight. She appeared to be very upset and had a swollen lip, he reported.

From the hospital Futch went to the suspect's home and arrested him at about 2:10 a.m. today. Dwight David Ballard has been charged in the case and was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

KICKING WOMAN

A woman who allegedly pulled the keys from the car her husband was driving during an argument has been charged with battery on a sheriff's deputy who reportedly tried to subdue the woman along a Winter Springs road.

Seminole County sheriff's deputy Janice Walthera reported the woman, who was abusive, uncooperative, cursing and apparently intoxicated, kicked Ms. Walthera as she was being placed in a patrol car. She had been charged with disorderly intoxication and the battery charge was added, a sheriff's report said.

Marianna S. Huggins, 31, of 1290 Oklahoma St., Oviedo, was arrested at 9:02 p.m. Saturday on Center Street at Lake Drive in Winter Springs. She has been released on $5,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court July 15.

COKE IN CAR

A woman allegedly seen "snorting cocaine" in a car parked at a Casselberry bar has been charged with possession of cocaine. Casselberry police said she told them her male companion had nothing to do with the drug and he was not charged.

Police were conducting a narcotics investigation when they spotted the pair in the car at Bentley's, state Road 438, at about midnight Saturday, a police report said.

Dorothy Teresa Geary, 24, of 6541-B Roble Drive, Winter Park, has been released on $5,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court July 15.

SON BATTERED

A 38-year-old DeBary man has been charged with battery, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest without violence after Sanford police intervened when they allegedly saw him beating his son.

Police reported the suspect was restrained after they stopped the attack. When placed in a patrol car the man allegedly tried to kick out the rear window. He was described by police as being very irate. He was cursing and said he should have killed his son, Charles Sheaffer Jr., 19, a police report said.

The pair were fighting, Sanford police Capt. Herb Shea said, because the son had allegedly kicked the suspect's truck and damaged it.

Charles Augustus Sheaffer of DeBary was arrested at his son's

TRAFFIC STOP POT

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who stopped a car after seeing it weave on Howell Branch Road in southeast Seminole County charged the driver with driving with a canceled license and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana.

The pot charge came after the deputy found a marijuana cigarette in a cigarette pack in the suspect's shirt pocket, a sheriff's report said.

George Keith McKinight, 32, of Orlando, was arrested at 2:41 a.m. Sunday. He has been released on $500 bond.

The burglar appeared to have passed through his shop to break into Our Antiques Market next door at 5455 Lake Howell Road. Deputies reported being unable to reach owners of that business, so they have not determined what if anything was stolen.

Vietnam Poet's Letters From Hell

How could a militarist regime which forced the most powerful nation in the world to retreat from Vietnam be threatened by an ailing poet?

Vietnamese poet Nguyen Chi Thien was first arrested in 1958 for trying to publish a literary magazine in North Vietnam. After leaving prison in 1961, he joined an anti-government group. He was arrested again and has been held for a total of 23 years in communist prisons.

In 1979, during a brief time between jail terms, Thien sneaked into the British Embassy in Hanoi and gave the diplomat a manuscript of more than 400 poems composed in captivity and a letter denouncing the government as a dictatorship. He was arrested immediately and has not been freed since. His words speak for thousands of Vietnamese trapped in prisons and re-education camps.

"My poetry's not mere poetry, no, but it's the sound of sobbing from a life, the din of doors in a dark jail, the wheeze of two poor wasted lungs, the thud of earth tossed down to bury dreams, the clank of hoes that dig up memories, the clash of teeth all chattering from cold; the cry of hunger from a stomach wrenching wild, the throb-throb of a heart that grieves, forlorn, the helpless voice before so many wrecks, All sounds of life half lived, of death half died — no poetry, no."

Thien's poems, translated into English, have been published by Yale University Press under the title, "Flowers from Hell." Some have been transcribed into songs by Vietnamese singers. Scholars say they are some of the finest poems written in the Vietnamese language during this century. International PEN, the professional writers' organization, and Amnesty International have pressured the Vietnamese government for Thien's release. But Vietnam merely shifted him from a jail in Haiphong to Hanoi's Hoa Lo Prison, once called the "Hanoi Hilton" by U.S. prisoners of war. In the title poem, Thien writes:

"Flowers from hell — real blood has watered them, blood mixed with animal sweat, with parting tears, blooming in prison, sickly, starved and cold, they reek of damp and mold, look gray as mud."

Bullets failed to stop communism from controlling Vietnam. Perhaps, like the lichen that splits huge boulders, poetry will take root in the crevices of the Vietnamese soul and, nurtured by human suffering, one day break the grip of totalitarianism. Then is a freedom fighter whose words will never be silenced.

Bumper Sticker

It's hard these days to find a car that doesn't have a bumper sticker pasted on it. Our highways have become flooded with moving billboards, and instead of watching the road, drivers are straining their necks trying to read the messages.

Time was that the back portion of a car was reserved for the license plate and car registration. Occasionally a faded bumper sticker from a past election might sneak by.

But now motorists proudly advertise their favorite passions, restaurants, religions, sporting teams and odd expressions. There is a bumper sticker for everyone.

These xenophobic sayings seemed to make everyone dash to the back end of their autos to attach their own pronouncements.

Perhaps yet a new sticker — "I Brake For Bumper Stickers" — is needed on our bumpers to avoid rear-end collisions.

Obscure Ill Takes Fun Out Of Operation Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One problem with having an obscure ailment that only a few people ever heard of, let alone tried to pronounce, is that it makes it difficult to tell anyone about your operation.

I figured I couldn't very well take time off for surgery without some explanation, so I asked my doctor how to identify the affliction.

"Dupuytren's contracture," he replied. "Gad!" I exclaimed. "I must be worse off than I thought!"

From various reference works, I learned that the contracture was named for Dr. Guillaume Dupuytren, a 19th century French surgeon and anatomist.

As to whether Dupuytren personally contracted it, or merely discovered it among his patients, was not made clear. However, I suspect the latter.

A medical doctor once told me that if you meet an adult with adenoids, tonsils and appendix intact, you can be pretty sure he's a surgeon.

I assume that also is true of the palmar fascia. Anyway, Dupuytren's contracture has remained fairly rare. Otherwise, there probably would be at least a half-dozen diets, exercises and forms of treatment less drastic than surgery. Also cheaper.

The Dupuytren's Contracture Cookbook — now there's a title to reckon with. It should contain recipes for dishes you can whip up with one hand. In my case, the condition was marked by a progressive failure of the little finger of the left hand to straighten up and stir right.

Eventually, I was told by medical authorities, other fingers would follow the pinkie downward, rendering one hand effectively ineffective, at least for two-handed recipes.

As a matter of fact, one source describes the contracture as "a condition marked by fibrosis with shortening and thickening of the palmar fascia."

Pray don't ask me what the palmar fascia is. I didn't pursue the research that far. I only know the prognosis is a "flexion contracture of the fingers into the palm."

The operation takes about an hour and necessitates the type of bandage that apparently is popular with barroom brawlers who hurt their hands punching out on bigger patrons. Anyway, I was asked repeatedly if I had tried to deck someone bigger than I am.

Actually, I am basically right-handed. If I were going to swing at someone's chin hard enough to require a bandage that large, I would never do so with my left flat. But you know how journalists are. Always jumping to the wrong conclusions.

"Heavens no!" I would demur, implicitly making the point that physical violence is unseemly. "I had an operation."

"Oh," would come the inevitable, albeit sympathetic, next inquiry. "What was your trouble?"

"Dupuytren's contracture," I would answer, and that always ended the conversation.

Nobody, not even a journalist, likes to show total ignorance.

The bandage is gone now, the stitches have been removed and I have pretty much regained normal use of my left hand. Next time, though, if there is a next time, I hope I contract something a bit more commonplace, like terminal dandruff.

Capital Creates Jobs

Vital issues are in danger of being lost in the national debate over tax reform. Too much of the discussion, in this commentator's view, is being focused on the "fairness" issue.

Well, what is a fair system of taxation? Certainly, fairness is a proper goal, but it would take a Solomon to answer that question with perfection. What should be self-evident is that everyone wants to pay less, everyone wants to shift the tax burden to someone else.

There's nothing wrong with pushing, shoving and lobbying over provisions of the tax law. For better or worse, the U.S. is a society that recognizes special interests: farmers, old people, young people, manufacturers, importers, miners, and others.

Is there a national interest that surmounts this struggle? From time to time, a national interest position emerges, but it isn't instantly recognized. It may be at variance with special interests, albeit legitimate interests. Definition of the truly national interest and acceptance of it may mean a conflict with popular political rhetoric.

The country has an overriding national interest in capital formation because that's what makes jobs possible. It's been estimated that it takes $50,000 or more to create each new job — a real job, not a public make-work job. Where would this capital come from if those who are in a position to create jobs — hire people and equip them with tools and other facilities — are discouraged from accumulating it?

American politicians are all for jobs, but they aren't so strong in supporting tax provisions that make job creation possible. Liberal legislators do their very best to prevent companies from retaining earnings.

In the current "tax reform" debate, someone needs to speak up for retained earnings. And someone needs to stress that business does the best job of saving money for investment. The individual who gets a tax break may spend what the IRS returns, which is good for consumer-oriented business. It pumps up the economy. However, the real advances in the economy come from corporate retained earnings which are plowed back into new plant and equipment. And companies must have incentives to do that.

When depreciation rules are tightened and when investment tax credits are stripped away, business will have disincentives to invest. They won't risk money on new machinery essential for modernization and job creation. Unfortunately, there aren't many members of Congress who seem to understand that or who have the political courage to stand firm against the populist tide.

If business isn't allowed to retain earnings sufficient for new capital formation, the losers will be the young Americans who need new, high-skill, high-pay industrial jobs.

FBI Offices Slow In Reporting Complaints

WASHINGTON — When complaints of criminal misconduct are leveled at FBI agents, the bureau's Office of Professional Responsibility is supposed to be notified forthwith. This is an obvious step to avoid the possibility that a regional office will cover up wrongdoing.

But a recent audit obtained by our reporter Stewart Harris discloses that several FBI offices have been remarkably slow in letting the front office know about such charges. One local office, for example, took 50 days to notify OPR that one of its special agents had been accused of

JEFFREY HART

Reynolds' Defeat

Defeat of the confirmation of William Bradford Reynolds for assistant attorney general takes a great deal down with it.

Not everyone who is crucified by the United States Senate is unworthy. A current Supreme Court justice has told me that Judge Clement Haynsworth, a Nixon nominee, was an outstanding candidate for the Supreme Court. He was done in by Senators Birch Bayh and Teddy Kennedy, whom it would be genial to call mediocrities, with the then potent support of organized labor.

Edwin Meese, nominated for attorney general, barely escaped from the piranhas, who wished to do to him what the real fish do to a cow who wanders into the Amazon River. Meese and the president held firm, and Meese is now attorney general and may even still own the offending cullinks.

Falling with Meese, the piranhas circled Mr. Reynolds. Reynolds' point of vulnerability was that he believes in the rule of law as traditionally understood, that is, that he law should treat all equally, and, in the old phrase, "not be a respecter of persons." Even as president, Nixon was not "above the law."

This Republican view of law must be understood as benefiting the weak and the minority interest. If the application of the law results from social status or organized lobbying, then those interests will always get their way. The lobbyists will always win out over the lobbyists.

But that is what has happened, and Mr. Reynolds' vulnerability now was that he is against it on principle.

The organized lobbies in favor of racial and gender quotas have succeeded in reversing the plain language of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. If you yourself are not the direct beneficiary of an organized lobby, this piece of congressional legislation is not for you, and you will very likely be the victim of discrimination. Which, of course, the legislation outlaws. The outrage is that a piece of legislation that aimed at ending discrimination has ended up legitimizing it.

The sponsors of the original act guaranteed to us that no such thing could possibly happen, and had they been unpersuasive the act would never have passed.

Yet exactly the opposite has happened. The language of the act has been tortured through executive orders and bureaucratic directives to mean just its opposite. It is Mr. Reynolds' adherence to the original language, to the promises of the act's sponsors, indeed to the promises of Hubert Humprey, that earned him the title "white man's lawyer" from New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis.

Odd I do not recall Mr. Lewis describing any lawyer who worked to make the law favor blacks as a "black man's lawyer." Nor do I remember him describing any lawyer who worked for preferential treatment for women as a "women's lawyer."

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Reynolds is not a "constituency" lawyer of any kind. He believes, as most Americans do, and as all republican political theorists, do in equality before the law.

Despite all that, Mr. Reynolds was smeared as a presumptive "racist," the final leftist mud-ball. Thus columnist Mary McGrory — putting it delicately — found it difficult to reassure herself that Mr. Reynolds does not dislike blacks.

And she comes up with another bizarre formulation, which tells us much about current leftist groupthink. She thinks that Mr. Reynolds, as the official in charge of civil rights policy in the Department of Justice, has shown "insensitivity" to his "constituency." Big news, Mary McGrory: the "constituency" of the Department of Justice is every American, each of whom has "civil rights" — but not special privileges.

Cubs' Baseball Nostalgic

CHICAGO (NEA) — On this muggy summer afternoon, the Chicago Cubs are in a slump of historic proportions. Indeed, the team is on the verge of setting a new record for the longest losing streak in the entire 109 years of its existence.

Nevertheless, Wrigley Field is packed with diehard fans. Almost 35,900 — only 1,400 less than the stadium's capacity — have paid the price of admission to cheer for their "Cubbies" and to perpetuate a tradition unique in professional sports.

The Cubs entered this game against the New York Mets after losing 13 consecutive prior contests, including five games in which they failed to score a single run — but abysmally poor performances on the field are an integral part of the team's charm.

The Cubs last won a World Series in 1908 and have not captured a National League pennant since 1945 — a dreadful record matched by no other team in the major leagues.

For loyal Cubs fans, however, whether you win or lose isn't as important as how you enjoy the game. "What we have here is pure nostalgia," explains one team official. "This is baseball as the game was played in the 1940s and 1950s when life was simpler."

Indeed, baseball on Chicago's North Side is more than a business, more than even a game. It is a revered way of life whose traditions are enshrined at 71-year-old Wrigley Field.

There is no domed stadium, no artificial grass, no electronic scoreboard and — most important — no lights to illuminate night games. Of the 26 teams in the major leagues, only the Cubs play all of their home games during the day.

Powerful interests want to change that, however. Organized baseball receives a substantial share of its revenues from the television stations and networks that pay for the rights to broadcast the games.

The broadcasters, in turn, earn their money from advertising — and the rates charged for commercials during "prime time," when the audience is at its peak, are far higher than during the afternoon.

The team's owner is pressing both the state legislature and the state courts for approval to install lights. The matter now is before the Illinois Supreme Court after a local judge rebuked the owners in a scathing opinion.

"The scheme which has major-league baseball trashing a residential community and tinkering with the quality-of-life aspirations of countless households so that television royalties might more easily flow into the coffers of 25 distant sports moguls... is repugnant to common decency."

analysis has concluded that, under Fidel Castro, Cuba has become a colony of the Soviet Union. Declares the document: "Cuban submission has been complete," and Castro has become a "self-critical member of the team."

Sanford All-Stars Sweep Openers

Grayson Slugs Homer As Nats Drop Leesburg

TAVARES — The best offense is a good defense. Sanford Little Major League all-star teams have not necessarily lived by those words in the past.

But, in the last week of practice leading up to the Florida Little Major League Sub-District Tournament, the Sanford National and American league teams ate, drank and slept defense.

And, Monday night, they played it. Did they ever.

The Nationals opened the tournament by playing errorless defense and riding the five-hit pitching of Scott Sesiak to a 2-1 victory over Leesburg.

Sanford National returns to action tonight at 6 against Orlando-Bruton, which drew a first-round bye.

In Monday's second game, the Americans got a strong pitching performance from Eric Washington who tossed a two-hitter and was backed by an error-free defense en route to a 4-2 victory over host Tavares. The highlight of that game was a triple play pulled off by the Americans in the first inning.

The Americans have tonight off and play again Wednesday night at 8 against the winner of the Sanford National-Orlando matchup. The way things looked Monday, it wouldn't be surprising to see the two Sanford teams battling it out for the tournament title.

Sanford National manager Al "Skip" Mitchell was definitely pleased with the way his team played in the field Monday.

"I knew the defense could play ball," he said. "We've got 15 kids who know how to play defense. They understand baseball and they're thinking all the time."

"We have a very fundamental team," assistant coach Rick Taylor said. "It's been a long time since a Sanford team didn't make any errors in a game."

All of the scoring in Monday night's first game was done in the first inning.

Leesburg, which also played excellent defense, loaded the bases with no outs against Sesiak as leadoff man Rick Isbill walked. Don Dickson singled and Scott Harp walked.

Josh Crane then tapped one in front of the plate and Sesiak tossed to catcher Darrell Canada for the first out. Fay Poquette then lofted a fly ball to deep right field for the second out but Dickson tagged and scored on the play for a 1-0 lead.

With two outs, and runners on first and second, Mark Nibleek smashed a shot up the middle but Sanford second baseman Anthony Roberts got to it in time and stepped on second for the force out and the third out.

Roberts' defensive gem set the stage for Nationals' as they went on to make a number of run-saving plays the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, Sanford scored twice in the bottom of the first and it turned out to be all the Nationals needed. With one out, Brian Grayson rifled Nibleek's first pitch well over the fence in left field to tie the score at 1-1.

"I like hitting on the first pitch," Grayson said. "At first I didn't think it was gone because I hit it real high. Then I saw the ball rolling in the street."

Leesburg threatened again in the top of the second. With one out, Brian Hammond lined a single to left center and took second on Jeff Luger's bunt. Isbill followed with a two-out single to center and Hammond was waved around third. Center fielder Al Dixon got the ball to shortstop Alonzo Brundidge who wheeled and fired a perfect strike to Canada to nail Hammond at the plate and end the inning.

Sanford got out of the top of the fourth when Canada threw out a runner trying to steal third after Sesiak had struck out Nibleek for the second out. The Nationals went down quietly in the bottom of the fourth as the score remained 2-1.

The Nationals used their gloves to turn back another Leesburg rally in the top of the fifth. Hammond walked to lead off the frame and Luger followed with a bunt single. Isbill tried to bunt the runners up but Sesiak alertly fired to third for the force out.

Dickson then stepped up and hit a sinking liner toward right field. Roberts made a fine running catch and noticed that Isbill had not tagged to go to third. Roberts then ran in and tagged second for an inning-ending double play.

"I've always played good on defense," Roberts said. "I knew I had the catch all the way and then I noticed the guy didn't tag up."

Sesiak allowed five hits in the game, all singles, struck out one and walked five.

Clinger Starts Triple Play, Americans Roll

By Chris Flister

TAVARES — The Sanford Americans may have started the day on a down note when it was learned ace pitcher Derrick Taylor and Tony Chavers were ruled ineligible for the all-stars because they are 13 years old.

But the Americans put it behind them early as they scored twice in the top of the first and never looked back en route to a 4-2 victory over Tavares.

The Americans flashed some defensive brilliance of their own with first baseman Harvey Clinger and second baseman Erskine Howard leading the way. Ironically, Howard was moved up to fill Taylor's slot on the roster.

Sanford got to Tavares starter Darrell Davis for two runs on one hit in the top of the first. Tony Duval led off with a base hit and, with one out, Floyd Henderson was awarded first on catcher's interference. Albert Anderson followed with a walk to load the bases but Davis struck out Al Perkins for the second out.

Clinger then coaxed a walk to force in Duval with the first run and Henderson scored on a wild pitch for a 2-0 lead.

Tavares started a rally in the bottom of the first when Barney Vaughn walked to lead off and Kevin Carroll dropped down a bunt single. Tony Marella then ripped a liner toward the right field corner and Clinger turned a sure hit into a triple play. Clinger reached up and stabbed the liner out of the air, doubled Carroll off first and fired to shortstop James Jackson at second to complete the triple play.

"That was something," Sanford American manager Ethel "Bootsie" Jackson said. "Harvey (Clinger) made a great catch and he knew just what to do after he caught it."

Each team went down quickly in the second inning and Sanford increased its lead to 4-0 with a pair of runs in the top of the third.

Henderson ripped a single to left to lead off and Anderson drilled a shot over the centerfield fence for a two-run homer and a 4-0 lead. Davis walked the next two hitters and Tavares then went with Marella in relief and he retired the next three hitters in order to get out of the inning.

A controversial call almost cost the Americans a run in the bottom of the third but they turned the home team away with the 4-0 lead still intact. Brian Ford walked to lead off but was forced at second on Jason Wright's grounder.

Wright then tried to steal second and the throw had him beat. The throw was to the right of the bag and Jackson went off the bag to get it. Wright didn't slide and he and Jackson collided. The ball jarred loose and Wright was safe but the umpire ruled that Jackson had interfered with Wright who was awarded an extra base.

With one out and a runner on third, Washington reached back and struck out John Campbell for the second out. On ball four to Vaughn, Wright tried to score when the ball eluded catcher Perkins. Perkins got to it fast and tossed to Washington covering and he slapped the tag on Wright for the third out.

In the fifth, Ford led off with a walk, took second and third on wild pitches and scored on a passed ball. Washington didn't let the sudden wildness upset him though as he came back to strike out the side.

In the bottom of the inning it was Howard's defensive work that secured the win for Sanford. Carroll tried to bunt his way on and Washington bobbed the ball for a second. But he picked it up and fired to Howard covering first. Howard stretched for all he was worth and kept his foot on the bag for the first out. Howard then knocked down Marella's hard grounder and tossed to Clinger for the second out and the second sacker made it 3 for 3 in the inning when he caught Cris Greseman's pop up for the final out.

"Erskine (Howard) is something else," Jackson said. "He's quite a second baseman."

"That was something," Sanford American manager Ethel "Bootsie" Jackson said. "Harvey (Clinger) made a great catch and he knew just what to do after he caught it."

Each team went down quickly in the second inning and Sanford increased its lead to 4-0 with a pair of runs in the top of the third.

Henderson ripped a single to left to lead off and Anderson drilled a shot over the centerfield fence for a two-run homer and a 4-0 lead. Davis walked the next two hitters and Tavares then went with Marella in relief and he retired the next three hitters in order to get out of the inning.

Juniors Run Over Port Orange

Cox Strikes Out 13, Brinson Hammers 3 Hits In 6-2 Triumph

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

PORT ORANGE — As early as the first inning it was no secret as to what Sanford all-star manager Jim Lucas had in mind for Port Orange in the first round of the District 4 Florida Junior Major League baseball tournament.

Run, run and run some more.

Even though his team trailed by two runs, it was off to the races. Sanford literally stole a run in each of the first two innings to tie the score, then added four more in the third with some aggressive baserunning. Ronald Cox did the rest with a four-hit pitching performance and 13 strikeouts as Sanford posted a 6-2 victory over Port Orange Monday night.

Sanford, 1-0, meets Holly Hill Wednesday night. Holly Hill had a first-round bye. Lucas said Mike Merithe would be on the mound. A win Wednesday puts the locals in Saturday morning's 10 o'clock championship game. In Monday's other game, New Smyrna Beach held on to nip Ormond Beach, 7-6. Port Orange plays Ormond Beach tonight. The loser is eliminated.

Lucas said he knew from outset he would have his team running. "That's a nice feature," said Lucas about his team's fast feet. "If we get on base, we're going to move. It pretty much shook them up tonight."

The first shakeup came in the bottom of the first. Port Orange had taken a 2-0 lead in the opening inning against Cox. Two flyballs to right field which fell for hits, a solid single by Steve

Baseball

Floyd and a safety squeeze bunt did the damage.

It didn't take Dwight Brinson long to get one run back. The swift center fielder beat out a roller to the second baseman for an infield hit. He immediately stole second and advanced to third when the catcher's throw trickled into center. Ray Williams chased him home with a groundout to the first baseman.

"We were nervous at first," said Brinson who led Sanford with three singles. "After the first inning we got into the game. We've got the speed to beat anybody, so we use it."

In the second inning, Sammy Edwards socked a one-out double to left center off losing pitcher Herman Murgenerger. Jimbo Lucas struck out for the second out and Jeff Smith fell behind on the count, too. Edwards, though, aggressively swiped third and came around with the tying run when the throw went into left field.

In the third, Sanford added three base hits to its speed to take a 6-2 lead. Bernard Mitchell walked and stole second to open the inning. Brinson lined a single up the middle to chase home Mitchell for a 3-2 edge. Brinson moved to second on the throw and then went to third when the second baseman misplayed a pickoff attempt. He scored on a wild pitch.

Williams, one of Sanford's best burners, followed with a flyball to right field. When the right fielder dropped it, the speedy second sacker was on the third base. "Coach says when the ball's hit, don't look at it, just run," said Williams. "We could have run every time tonight."

Cox helped himself next when he roped a single to center for a 5-2 lead. He then stole second and third. Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud struck out but Mike Merithe produced a 6-2 lead with a groundout to third base.

While the speed was taking care of the early deficit, Cox, a hard-throwing right-hander, made sure it stayed that way. He was almost uncatchable after the first inning as he allowed just one more hit. He finished with 13 strikeouts including a string of six in succession early in the game.

"Ronald has got a tendency to throw his curve too early," said Lucas. "He's got to show them his fastball to make his curve more effective. Then they have something to fear."

Catcher Edwards said that's what Cox did until the second time around when he noticed Port Orange was crowding the plate. "They started hugging the plate so we threw the curveball first and then came back with the fastball," said Edwards. "Ronald got both pitches working after the first inning. Then he was more effective."

Cox said his first-inning troubles were due to nerves. "That was my first time pitching in a real big (all-star) game," he said. "I felt good after the first inning. Then my arm started working."

Bochy Makes Ryan Pay For Overstay

When a pitcher stays in the game too long, the batter can hit the ball too far. That's what happened Monday night when Nolan Ryan inexplicably remained on the mound despite blowing a late 5-3 lead.

N.L. Baseball through with his sacrifice fly. The Astros scored twice in each of the first two innings, with Denny Walling belting a two-run homer in the first after being given a reprieve.

Bochy, who entered the game in the top of the inning to spell Terry Kennedy behind the plate, handed Ryan his sixth loss against eight victories.

The Padres got three runs in the second on a two-run homer by Martinez, a triple by Garry Templeton and a squeeze by Hoyt.

IN BRIEF

Cage Hall Of Fame Inducts 1st Females, Thurmond, Cervi

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — History was made in an induction ceremony Monday as the Basketball Hall of Fame Monday welcomed its first three female members including the late Senda Berenson Abbott, known as the "Mother of Women's Basketball."

Abbott and two other legendary women's coaches, L. Margaret Wade and Bertha F. Teague, were among seven people enshrined in the new Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame, an $11.4 million structure which opened Sunday.

Also inducted were former players Alfred N. Cervi and Nate Thurmond and former coaches W. Harold Anderson and Mary Harshman.

The new additions bring the number of people inducted into the Hall to 150.

Abbott, an instructor at Smith College in Northampton, Mass., who died in 1954, is credited with organizing the first women's basketball game in March, 1893, two years after Dr. James Naismith invented the game in nearby Springfield.

Smith College Athletic Director Lawrence Fink said the compelling to have Abbott, known as the "Mother of Women's Basketball," enshrined for several years.

"The main thrust of this is that it is an historic moment for women's basketball," Fink said at Monday's ceremonies. "It is taking a giant step forward here."

Teague, who never played the game but was a phenomenally successful coach, said she is not upset at being passed over in previous years by the Hall of Fame Honors Committee.

FSU Ticket Sales Are Booming

Orlando area season ticket sales for Florida State University football have already exceeded last year's level. Overall, non-student season ticket sales have passed the 23,000 level, according to Chris Allen, FSU's area ticket chairman.

Allen said he is hoping for a 50 percent increase over last year's level. "With F.S.U.'s outstanding recruiting year, we could double season ticket sales," he said.

Florida State's Campbell Stadium will have a seating capacity in excess of 60,000 for the coming season. Construction on the stadium is ahead of schedule. New restrooms and concession stands along with a new concrete ground surface will make Campbell Stadium a very comfortable place to spend a Saturday evening.

Call 422-2800 for ticket information.

Nehemiah Wants Double Force

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Renaldo Nehemiah, freed to run track after an epic decision by the IAAF, said Monday he would attempt to be the first athlete to become a force both on the track and the gridiron.

An arbitration committee of the IAAF, the international ruling body of amateur track and field, last Tuesday voted to return amateur status to a number of professional football players who were also former track and field stars.

Among those affected by the decision were Nehemiah, who pressed the case; Chicago Bears wide receiver Willie Gault; Los Angeles Rams wide receiver Ron Brown; New Jersey Generals running back Herschel Walker; San Francisco 49ers nose guard Mike Carter; and Green Bay Packers wide receiver Phillip Epps.

Lakers Give Walton Physical

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Free agent Clipper Bill Walton, who has until the end of the month to sign an offer sheet with another NBA team, Monday was given a physical Monday by Los Angeles Lakers doctors. It was reported in the Los Angeles Times.

Laker general manager Jerry West confirmed that team doctors had examined Walton, 32, but said negotiations with the center have just begun.

"There's nothing imminent whatsoever," West told the Los Angeles Times. "I saw Bill in San Francisco (during last week's NBA meetings) after he was tested by the Cell they have to decide if they will retain free-agent forward Bob McAdoo, who reportedly will earn more than $900,000 next season."

O-Twins Take Knoxville In 10th

KNOXVILLE — Mark Funderburk slugged his 19th homer and Dan Baugie socked a two-run roundtripper in the 10th inning as the Orlando Twins pulled out a 6-4 victory over Knoxville in Southern League baseball Monday night.

Monday's win moved Orlando into first place in the East Division with a 5-3 record for the second half. The O-Twins played again tonight at Knoxville at 7:30.

6 Tigers, Strong Additions Show Way For Americans

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

With six players off his Top Team Tournament champion Tigers and a number of excellent players from other teams, manager Mike Morro feels the Altamonte American League all-stars could go a long way — say Williamsport Pa.

Morro said his players have been talking about a trip to Williamsport and he wouldn't be surprised if the dream comes true. Last year, the Altamonte National League was runnerup in the Little League World Series.

First things first, though. The Altamonte Americans open play in the District 14 Division 2 Tournament Tuesday, July 9, against Oviedo at Eastmonte Field in Altamonte Springs.

"Just about all the kids talk about is Williamsport," Morro said. "They don't see any National Leagues or Ocoee or any other team, they just think

Baseball

Williamsport, that's where they think they are going."

Five of the six players from the Tigers team will most likely be in the starting lineup when the tournament begins. Either Chris Jackson or Chuck Lamb will open on the mound. Chris Koepke will be behind the plate. John Jump in the infield and "Downtown" Terry Brown in the outfield.

The other player to make it from the Tigers is Kevin Morro who will see some action on the mound. Morro is the only 11 year old on the team.

Of the remaining players, Morro is not sure who will start except for one, Jared Soto, who will be in center field.

"He's the best center fielder in both leagues," Morro said of Soto. "He's super fast, has a very strong arm and scoops up anything that goes out in that area."

Soto played for the White Sox during the season and another selection from that team is Jeff Jackson. T.J. Gluffrida and William Thompson were tabbed from the Indians. C.J. DiFlumerio, Jeff Hester and Eddie Howard from the Yankees and Steve Shelman from the Angels.

"The team is solid all the way around," Morro said. "We have great team speed, a lot of contact hitters and a lot of power. We have 10 boys that have hit home runs this year. Best of all is the pitching, which has been proven in Top Team Tournament play. We also picked up a third pitcher who is of the same quality of Jackson and Lamb."

"The biggest plus, aside from the main things, is their desire," added Morro. "They have the desire. We'll be ready when we open up on July 9."

Showers Curtail Big Duel

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — In the End of the Month Late Model Championship on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway, LeRoy Porter held off David Rogers until lap 42, when heavy rains came to curtail the 50-lapper and put an end to the night's activities.

So Porter took the win over fastest qualifier Rogers. David started sixth on the grid, took over first place from early leader Joe Middleton on lap six, only to spin in spewed oil seven laps later, while leading the race.

Rogers then had to restart in the back of the strong 16-car field, and could not make it back to the point, although he had been right on Porter's back bumper for several laps before the rains came.

Bruce Lawrence was third, followed by Greg Froemming and the Champion TV Rentals Firebird of Bill Oremovich.

Street stocker Joey Warmack, who took the Good Sportsmanship Award at last season's banquet, dominated that division by winning the heat and the main, besting Bill Kinley, Junior Simmons, Ted Mitchem and Paul Mitchell.

As the rain persisted for hours, the drivers voted not to wait any longer and go home. So the feature events in the thundercar, four-cylinder and roadrunner division were cancelled.

COMING EVENTS: On Thursday night, July 4th, at 8 p.m., a 100 lap enduro has been slated, along with feature events in the thundercar and four-cylinder divisions. Also on the card is a giant demolition derby, The Great American sack race and a fireworks display.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Brothers-in-law Mike Aulby and Steve Cook defeated Jeff Bellinger and Tom Milton 224-209 Monday to win the $125,000 Showboat PBA Doubles Classic.

Cook of Roseville, Calif., needed a mark in the 10th frame for the victory and rolled a strike.

Lane Sets Tone, Stars Top Generals

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Midway through their season, the Baltimore Stars returned to the right course. Early in their first-round playoff game against the New Jersey Generals Monday night, their "return right" put them on course toward defending their U.S. Football League championship.

Return specialist Garcia Lane set a pair of records with two first-quarter punt returns to the right side, giving the Stars a leg up on their 20-17 victory.

"That definitely set the tone for the first half," said Lane, whose 91-yard touchdown return and 127-yard return total are both league playoff records. "A big play like that gets everybody pumped up."

The Stars, who battled back from a 1-3-1 start this season to make Sunday's semifinal round against the Stallions at Birmingham with an 11-7-1 record, jumped out to a 13-0 first-quarter lead and were never headed. The Generals, by virtue of committing the greater number of blunders Monday, ended their season 11-8.

"It was one of those games where whoever made the last mistake would be the team that lost the game," said Generals head coach Walt Michaels. "Of course, we had to make it."

The last mistake was an in-

Football

terception thrown by Ron Reeves when the Generals were driving for a potential game-tying or winning score with 1:03 remaining. New Jersey would not even have had their shot had Stars quarterback Chuck Fusina not thrown an interception with two minutes left.

Most of the crowd of 26,982 at Giants Stadium thought the biggest mistake of all was Michaels' decision to start Reeves and keep Doug Flutie on the bench. Flutie, who had suffered a broken collar bone a month ago, declared himself fit to play and practiced with the team last week, but the $5 million 1984 Heisman Trophy winner watched from the sidelines.

While Fusina threw three interceptions, he did manage to throw for one touchdown and run for another, enabling the Stars to hold their lead throughout.

ager, $101, 880 — $114,055. Also budgeted is $75,000 for debt retirement.

To pay for the proposed $12.4 million package the city must get about $1.8 million in property taxes (calling for the $4.94 tax rate) with the rest coming from nonproperty tax revenues.

The city would get about $3.6 million in revenues from a combination of gas and utility taxes, electric franchise fees and fire and casualty insurance taxes. It would get another $283,600 from a combination of professional and occupational licenses, building inspection permits and other miscellaneous fees.

About $1.8 million in revenues would come in from shared revenues from the state and county, like cigarette taxes, sales taxes, mobile home licenses and occupational licenses.

About $151,000 would come from fines and service charges, such as fees clubs pay to use the civic center. Interest earned, along with other rents, leases and sales, would account for $460,263. Cash carried forward from this year would total $90,000. All of the above revenues make up the $8.2 million general fund.

Another $4.3 million in revenues would be raised for the water and sewer utility fund. These revenues come from the sale of water, sewer charges, connection fees, hydrant rentals and service charges.

The anticipated revenues for the general and utilities funds would go to support the $12.5 million proposed budget.

The biggest bite out of the taxpayer's property tax dollar is for the police department. The police department represents $1.43 of the $4.94 per $1,000 assessed valuation, followed by the Public Works Department at $1.18. The Fire Department is next with 94 cents and then the Parks and Recreation Department at about 11 cents. The Engineering and Planning Department will garner about 22 cents of the $4.94 figure, followed by Administrative Services at 19 cents and Finance at about 16 cents.

Utilities are paid for by charging the residents directly through user and connection fees, not property taxes.

In his budget summary, Faison said the proposed increase in the property tax rate, which would generate $553,000, is needed primarily to help offset the loss of $327,000 of federal revenue sharing funds and more than $226,000 the city is expected to shell out in overtime pay next year.

The increase is only a proposal and could be lowered by the city commission during budget hearings later this month.

The way the city, as well as many municipalities, computes overtime was recently changed by a Supreme Court decision, which said police officers must be paid overtime for hours worked over 43 and firefighters for hours over 52.

The increase in property taxes is also needed to pay for a "modest" 4 percent cost-of-living pay increase for city employees, effective Oct. 1, Faison said.

Faison said the increase in the tax rate and spending reflects the effects of rapid growth and mandates, such as the overtime rule, imposed by the state and federal government. The city's coffers are also being drained by a growing number of people who use city services but who are exempt from paying property taxes.

It may be alarming to note that over 35 percent of Sanford property is exempt from taxation, Faison wrote, compared with 10 to 15 percent of tax exempt property in Seminole County.

While Sanford residents have enjoyed lower taxes and smaller government in the past, growth is changing that, Faison said.

"The future of Sanford, and most Florida communities, is closely related to the community's willingness to effect changes in the years ahead," Faison wrote in the summary. "For many years, Sanford has been noted for its stable, local government; declining tax millage; and for providing municipal services at lower costs and with less employees. This conservative posture is threatened by rapid growth and mandates promulgated by state and federal governments."

Specific new expenditures and items that were tagged for increased spending in Faison's summary were:

- The creation of two new departments — Administrative Services and Engineering and Planning. While the two departments are actually the compilation of nine existing city divisions into two units, the four additional employees hired to head them will cost taxpayers about $145,000. The four additional staff members are: a city engineer and city planner for the engineering and planning department and a director and budget analyst for the administrative services department. Faison said. "The additional staff will provide increased productivity coupled with increased efficiencies."

• Utilities expansion. The city also needs to spend about $658,000 more next year to repair, replace and expand its utilities system, Faison said.

• Building and Zoning. The building and zoning division needs more inspectors to keep up with the increasing number of houses popping up around town, Faison wrote. This will cost about $40,000, according to the proposed figures.

• Data Processing. The proposed budget also shows about a $12,000 spending increase in the data processing division. This is for more programming equipment and one data processing technician. Faison said the city has invested $100,000 for computer equipment in the past but is using only half of its capacity. The equipment and technician will make the system more useful, he said.

• Scenic Improvement Board recommendations. About $152,000 is budgeted to implement the SIB's massive plan to beautify the city. The city commission is scheduled to hold hearings to discuss the proposed budget July 9, 10, 11, 16, 17 and 18 at 4:30 p.m. each day at city hall before adopting a final version.

charged with sexual battery on a minor and committing a lewd and lascivious act.

When questions arose over the boy having been used as "ball," and conflicts between Nagata's written report and Negri's verbal account of the incident surfaced, Polk asked Lt. George Hagood to investigate the handling of the case, Spolski said.

Hagood found that Nagata made errors in his report, Spolski said, including misdating it and over estimating the distance the deputies were from the suspect's car. Nagata had said the vehicles were 250 yards apart, but Hagood, Spolski said, determined that Negri's estimate of 80 yards was more accurate. Spolski said Negri had not read Nagata's report before it was turned to his supervisors.

Both Negri and Nagata have clean records with the department, Polk said. He added that it's easy to play Monday-morning quarterback in the case.

"I have to run the department," Polk said, "on not what the public is going to say, but what's best for the department."

Polk said he doesn't believe the flap over the deputies' actions will have any effect on the case which has been turned over to the Seminole State Attorney.

Assistant State Attorney Ralph Eriksson said today he has not reviewed the case material, so cannot comment on what, if any, damage Negri's and Nagata's actions might have on the case.

the personnel that would be required. I have to look carefully."

She said she would have to discuss the matter with the staff, particularly Carey Ferrell, assistant superintendent for business and finance. Ferrell is not in his office this week and School Superintendent Bob Hughes is on vacation.

After hearing letters from the planning division of the governor's office and the state Department of Community Affairs saying they would not recommend approval by the federal government of funding for the Head Start program because of Community Action's past financial problems, Eddie Tossie, a board member and the school system's director of vocational education, urged the group to stop its fight to exist.

The letters, copies of those sent out to the federal government, said SCA still has "unresolved costs" concerning some nearly $40,000 it received in federal funds over the years for weatherization programs.

Marcel Thompson, Community Action president, said there may also be some problems about $25,000 the organization received for Head Start.

Thompson had no explanation for the questions about the funds.

In hearings more than a year ago, Amos Jones, then executive director, told state officials that the differences with the federal government over the $40,000 were mostly bookkeeping differences and were being negotiated at that time. Jones testified before a hearing officer of the state Department of Community Affairs that the problem was not one of missing funds.

Tossie told his colleagues on the board that the directors had given lots of effort to save the Head Start program, especially over the past three months. "We have risen against odds and found obstacles in our way every step forward," he said.

Thompson said it "hurts to see St. A die. (But) We can't go on with it."

Meanwhile, Rev. James Johnson, another board member, said good efforts are never wasted.

And Portia Spencer, director of Head Start since the program began here in 1967, said the agency had worked unflinchingly for the program.

When children talk to each other, older people talk to each other," she said.

The group then cruised the downtown and lakefront area.

"It's a beautiful town. Very nice," said Mal Quan Sheng, looking at the redeveloped First Street business district.

The next stop was Central Florida Regional Hospital, where the group inspected a CAT-scan machine, the intensive care unit and the pediatrics ward.

The tour bus then took the delegates through the cabbage patch countryside around Sanford before stopping at the Winn-Dixie grocery store at Country Club Road and Airport Boulevard.

The delegates oohed and aahed over the stacks of watermelons and other produce lining the aisles of the store. They also seemed impressed with the bar scanning checkout equipment.

The delegates also perused with curiosity the selections on the oriental food shelves. Guangzhou is noted for its exotic open air markets, which offer a vast array of food items — from shrimp to snakes.

On the way back to the airport, the delegates marked the differences between Sanford and their home city.

The biggest difference, according to Miss Dai, is that greater Guangzhou, with its combined metropolitan and suburban population of about 8 million, is so crowded while Sanford has lots of elbow room.

She also noted there are many more cars here, while in Guangzhou most people walk or travel by bicycle.

Ms. Fang, who said she is one of many women represented in Chinese government, said she hopes there is "better friendship" between her country and the United States.

She said she hopes many more Americans come to Guangzhou, which she said is "an open door for other countries."

said, though they're not sure how awake they'll be. In the morning, they will set out for Philadelphia.

Fatigue seems to be catching up with the contestants and the grueling rally nears a close, she said.

Some of the drivers were so tired they had to be lifted from their cars, Ms. Austin reported.

Jerry Gross reported the contestants have met with enthusiastic crowds in most of the towns they've traveled through.

Chicago and Detroit, scheduled stops, were at the bottom of the team's list as places to visit on a rally, Ms. Austin reported.

She said the team's mechanics, who follow in another car, slept with the "Jenny" because they feared Chicago ruffians would strip it during the night. Each night the "Jenny Steamcleaner" is draped with an official flag of the city of Sanford.

While in Chicago, the support team realigned the aging car's front wheels, Ms. Austin said. The team is called the Chicago Connection because Don Gross is from the Windy City.

Ms. Austin said she has no doubt that the team will finish.

"The Grosses are very determined men. They do what they set out to do," she said.

Wednesday's drive to Philadelphia will be followed Thursday by the final leg into New York City for a rousing race finale and announcement of the winner who will take a $100,000 prize.

After the race, Jerry will fly back while his father and road crew trailer the the Model A back to Sanford, Ms. Austin said. —Deane Jordan

Mayor Smith introduced the Sanford business people, saying "These are people who can get you together with other businesses in town." The two groups mingled for awhile, before the Chinese left for their tour.

Before the tour, Liang, dressed in a powder blue sportcoat and tan slacks, told reporters through an interpreter that the contract with Orlando Helicopter would help boost the tourism industry and step up the technological advancement of his 3.25 million population city, formerly known as Canton.

"It is necessary for China to develop helicopters and this kind of industry," he said. The Chinese, in addition to buying 10 helicopters from the Sanford company, plan to form a joint venture whereby the company and the city of Guangzhou will build a helicopter plant near the Guangzhou airport.

Arthur Bates, a Hong Kong-based marketing agent who arranged the deal for Orlando Helicopter, said a final agreement was near.

The Chinese boarded a bus for the tour, which was led by Mayor Smith.

The group toured classrooms at Hamilton Elementary School and was lectured on the Seminole County school system by Karen Coleman, the school board's public relations director.

Seminole schools are "much more advanced than in Guangzhou," according to interpreter Li Shuo Dai, who lives in the city. She said school facilities here were more modern, although she added Chinese students are given the same strict regimen of language and math courses.

After leaving the school, Mayor Smith and Liang agreed to have students from Hamilton write students in Guangzhou.

'Go Home, Teen-Ager' Column Hits The Spot

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: When I read your column about whether the parents were guilty of child abuse for making their sons, 9 and 11 years old, walk to school and back after they were kicked off the school bus for bad conduct, I was reminded of this column (enclosed). I've had it for many years and still think it hits the spot.

I raised eight children, and they all walked to and from school everyday. It never hurt any of them.

Please run it again. It's as good now as it was when I first read it at least 15 years ago.

MRS. J. GALLAGHER, PHOENIX

DEAR MRS. GALLAGHER: So do I. And here it is:

"Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teen-ager: 'What can we do? Where can we go? The answer is Go home!'"

Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves, mow the lawn, shovel the walk. Wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some floors. Repair the sink, build a boat, get a job.

"Help the minister, priest or rabbi; the Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Visit the sick, assist the poor, study your lessons. And then when you are through — and not too tired — read a book."

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe your recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again."

"In plain, simple words, grow up; quit being a crybaby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like an adult."

"You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibility your teen agers around; (2) regardless of our limitations, everybody can do something for somebody.

DEAR ABBY: Spruce gum is scarcer than hen's teeth. Please let your readers know that we are trying to get someone in spruce gum production because our supplier has retired.

I hope that the College of Forest Resources at the University of Maine at Orono will take up the challenge and become the world's only spruce gum producer. (Maine has about 7 million acres of spruce trees.)

Sorry we can't supply your readers now.

DEAR MR. ANDREW: I am also sorry — sorry that I was misinformed when I personally telephoned your company three times to verify the availability of spruce gum.

Many readers — especially professional athletes — want spruce gum. They say it keeps the mouth moist and has none of the drawbacks of chewing tobacco.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to give other young mothers a good piece of advice. It's about glass baby bottles.

My toddler was running down the sidewalk with one when he tripped, the bottle broke and stabbed him in the chest!

Fortunately, all he needed was four stitches, but the damage could have been much worse.

Glass baby bottles are fine for infants but for older babies they're a no-no.

DEBBIE IN ROYAL OAKS, MICH.

DEAR DEBBIE: Thanks for caring enough about others to share your shattering experience.

parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, helped, appealed, begged, excused, tolerated and denied themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit. This they have done gladly for you are their dearest treasure. But now you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego, instead of common sense, dominates your personality, thinking and requests.

"In heaven's name, grow up and go home!"

DORIS BURVILLE, OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: You frequently tell a correspondent, "Your letter made my day!"

Well, Abby, listen to this. After miles of avoiding tailgating trucks and speeders hurrying to report areas, I slowed down as I drove through the small town of Shafter, Calif., where apparently some kind of doings was in progress.

Crossing with the green light were about 25 teen-agers pushing wheel chairs containing senior citizens, apparently from some nursing home.

I called out, "You young people are doing a marvelous job!" Abby, they answered me in sign language!

Believe me, that made my day!

DR. VELMA RITTER, TAFT, CALIF.

DEAR DR. RITTER: Thanks for two important messages: (1) There are plenty of terrific

Supreme Court Rejects Review Of Anti-Trust Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court avoiding a dispute over sales practices in the computer market, refused Monday to review a ruling preventing Data General Corp. from linking the sale of certain computer hardware and software.

The justices, without comment, let stand a federal appeals court ruling that found Data General violated antitrust laws by forcing customers to buy the physical components of its computer system and the programs and data as well.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco ruled in June 1984 that Data General illegally forced computer manufacturers who wanted to use its software programs to purchase the electronic brains of its Nova computer.

The appeals court said the sales strategy illegally prevented other computer manufacturers from using electronic computer brains that were compatible with the NOVA software but not built by Data General.

Tying arrangements are illegal under U.S. antitrust laws if they "unreasonably" restrain trade in a commodity because the manufacturer has a such a dominant position in the market that potential competitors are squashed.

The dispute pits large computer manufacturers against small computer firms who emulate parts and programs of computers built by the giants. The small firms are able to sell the parts because they are compatible with the machines built by the large firms.

The lower court ruling will not have a direct effect on computer users, but left undisturbed allows other computer manufacturers to build their machines to read and use Data General's NOVA software.

While the dispute came out of the highly competitive computer field, other manufacturers were concerned the ruling against Data General could erode their ability to control peripheral goods and services and their franchises.

Joining Data General in its appeal to the court was Mercedes-Benz of North America, which argued the lower court ruling would prevent it from forcing its franchisees to use authorized parts and provide authorized services.

In the Data General case, the appeals court ruled against the firm in a lawsuit originally filed by Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. and Digidyne Corp., manufacturers of software for use in the NOVA.

Data General, at one time the second largest minicomputer manufacturer in the country, refused to sell its Nova system unless buyers also purchased the "instruction set" software that worked with the Nova machines.

The firm forced its package on some buyers who would not have bought the full package if they were free to choose other compatible equipment made by other firms, like Digidyne and Fairchild, the lower court said.

By 1979, 93 percent of Data General's NOVA computer sales were made to "locked-in customers" forced to buy all parts of the system, documents at the original trial showed.

Data General claimed the software operating system program was protected by copyright and therefore could not be reproduced by competitors.

But the appeals court said the copyright only conferred "some advantages" on Data General not shared with competitors. The computer maker was still prohibited from requiring buyers to purchase its computer hardware and software instructions together.

Government Bans Oral Chelation Pills As Fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has begun a crackdown on "chelation therapy" capsules and tablets, which it says are fraudulently sold for the prevention or treatment of heart disease and circulatory disorders.

The Food and Drug Administration began warning manufacturers that chelation products must not be sold for medical purposes, FDA spokesman Bruce Brown said Monday. Producers have 10 days to stop distributing the product or face seizure, court injunctions and further action.

"There is, of course, no evidence that these products are of any value," Brown said. "They're all worthless. They're potentially threatening — what we call an indirect threat to health."

"If someone, instead of seeing a physician, buys one of these products and uses it, they are contributing to their own physical as well as economic demise. It makes money for the promoters and that's it. It is a gross fraud."

Brown said the FDA action does not apply to so-called chelated vitamins, which are generally sold without medical claims, but to chelation therapy specifically aimed at treating or preventing a disease through sales pitches, brochures or labeling. Such promotion brings the product under jurisdiction of federal drug laws.

Chelation tablets and capsules have been sold through the mail, over the counter and door to door with claims that they will reduce arterial plaque and improve circulation, the FDA said.

The products usually consist of vitamins, minerals and amino acids, the FDA said.

True chelation agents are substances that combine with metals and are used to combat poisonings by heavy metals, digitalis overdoses and excess calcium. In that therapy, physicians inject FDA-approved chelating drugs.

However, the agency has neither received nor approved any marketing applications for a non-prescription oral chelation product nor has it approved clinical trials in humans for any such formulation.

The FDA began its investigation of the products a year ago, Brown said.

Those most vulnerable to the manufacturers' claims are the elderly, he said, who are concerned about the expense of health care and looking for a "quick fix" after a diagnosis of heart disease.

Heart disease is a category that consists of many ailments, including high blood pressure, angina or chest pain and coronary artery disease, which occurs when arteries to the heart are narrowed and clogged with fatty substances.

All require medical treatment.

Dr. Ray Evers, who runs a chelation clinic in Cottonwood, Ala., said he does not use chelation products sold over the counter or door to door but protested, "I don't think the FDA has the right to come up against it because they're just food and not drugs."

Ten Finalists Selected In Teacher-Astronaut Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ten teachers dreaming of the stars since childhood and now aiming for "high adventure in space" have been named as finalists in the space agency's program to send the first lay person into orbit.

But only one of the finalists — six women and four men who range from a biologist who once named a turtle "Sputnik" to an English teacher hoping for "a chance to play Peter Pan" — will board the space shuttle Challenger with its astronaut crew in January.

The 10 finalists, selected from 114 semifinalists, will travel to Houston next week where they will undergo more testing before the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announces its selection of the teacher-astronaut around July 23.

"I just turned 40 a few weeks ago. How many 40-year-olds do you know who get a chance to play Peter Pan?" asked finalist Richard Methia, who teaches English at New Bedford High School in New Bedford, Mass.

NASA Administrator James Beggs introduced the finalists at a news conference Monday and said they "represent the best of the best candidates in the teacher-in-space program."

"Their experiences, backgrounds and lives may differ," he said. "But our 10 finalists have much in common: daring, selflessness, motivation to expand educational horizons beyond the classroom, enthusiasm to communicate the space flight experience, dedication to excellence in their profession and a commitment to fire the imaginations and illuminate the talents of their pupils."

"Above all, they share a dream. To be part of the high adventure of space travel and to tell the world what it's like," Beggs said.

There were 11,416 applicants to the program established by President Reagan in August. All had to propose a project, describe their philosophy of teaching and explain how they would share their experiences on their return.

Besides Methia, the finalists are Kathleen Anne Beres, Kenwood High School, Baltimore; Robert Foerster, Cumberland Elementary School, West Lafayette, Ind.; Judith Marie Garcia, Thomas Jefferson School for Science and Technology, Alexandria, Va.; Peggy Lathlaen, Westwood Elementary School, Friendswood, Texas; David Marquart, Boise High School, Boise, Idaho.

Also included are Sharon McAuliffe, Concord High School, Concord, N.H.; Michael Metcalf, Hazen Union School, Hardwick, Vt.; Barbara Morgan, McCall-Donnelly Elementary School, McCall, Idaho, and Niki Mason Wenger, Vandevender Junior High School, Parkersburg, W.Va.

The 10 teachers professed longstanding fascinations with space. "At the age of 9, I named my turtle Sputnik," said Beres, who climbs mountains in her spare time.

McAuliffe, a Girl Scout and scout leader for 25 years, said her goal would be "to bring back the wonder of it all," recording her experiences the same way pioneer women aboard wagon trains heading West did a century ago.

Reagan and NASA are calling the teacher the first private citizen in space. Although private corporations have sent employees on shuttle missions to perform various experiments, the teacher-nominee will have no monetary or government interest in the flight.

The chosen teacher and a runner-up will report for 114 hours of flight training in September.

Syria Arranges Cease-Fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's two most powerful Moslem militias agreed to a Syrian-mediated truce and ended intense street battles that left at least six dead and threatened to escalate into a war for control of the capital.

After the fighting died down Monday, members of the Druze Progressive Socialist Party headed by Tourism Minister Walid Jumblatt and Nabih Berr's Shiite Amal militia jointly patrolled the city streets.

The patrols were issued strict orders to shoot anybody caught violating the Syrian-mediated cease-fire.

The gun battles Monday broke out during morning rush-hour and forced thousands of people to stay home while others were trapped in businesses and offices.

Rocket-propelled grenades smashed into cars and apartments while militiamen fired anti-aircraft guns mounted on trucks, using the heavy-caliber weapons to fire at gunmen a few hundred yards away.

Ambulances sped along the city's deserted streets.

Police sources said at least six people died and 163 were wounded in the first major clash between the two militias since they seized control of most of west Beirut in February 1984.

Uninfected Mother Giving AIDS To Child Unlikely

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I heard recently about mothers who have no trace of AIDS giving birth to infants who have the disease or soon develop it. What are the chances of this happening to an expectant mother? Why is this occurring more frequently?

causing faintness in certain people. This is called Subclavian Steal Syndrome.

It's possible in your case that, in association with post-exercise low blood pressure, some artery is shunting blood inappropriately away from your eyes or visual center. If you are exercising violently, you might consider less strenuous activity. On the other hand, if blurry vision is all you get, you might choose to ignore the visual abnormality unless it progresses.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019

DEAR READER — Although AIDS was first discovered four years ago, it is now reaching explosive proportions. As of January 1985, 7,857 cases (with a mortality rate of virtually 100 percent) had been reported in the United States. Researchers are now learning the genetic structure of the virus but they are still a long way from finding a prevention or cure.

Certain conditions increase the risk of AIDS. In a recent study, 73 percent of cases occurred in homosexuals and bisexuals, 17 percent in intravenous drug abusers, 3 percent in Haitians and 1 percent each in hemophiliacs, heterosexuals and blood-transfusion recipients.

AIDS is still a relatively rare disease. A pregnant woman or her infant would not contract it unless the woman belonged to one of the high-risk population groups. Despite the incomplete data regarding the transmission of AIDS, it's safe to conclude that the chances of an uninfected mother transmitting the disease to her baby are extremely unlikely.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Several times I have had blurred vision about half an hour after exercising. What could cause this?

DEAR READER — Yours is an unusual complaint for which I have no definite answer. I can think of one possibility, however.

Certain otherwise normal arteries have the felonious tendency to "steal" circulation from other blood vessels. A well-known culprit in this enterprise is the subclavian artery, at the base of the neck, which can steal blood from the carotid artery.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Difficult hands require hard and careful inspection. An astute declarer will knit his brows and frequently come up with the right play. When a hand looks easy, declarer should still be careful. "What can happen that's bad?" is the question he should ask himself. If he can answer that question, he should do what he can to guard against calamity.

Today's deal looked easy. But declarer was farsighted enough to be wary. Six hearts would easily be made unless all four of the outstanding trumps were with West. That was unlikely, but South still laid the groundwork to give himself a chance against even that bad split.

Declarer won dummy's club ace, came to hand with the diamond queen and led a heart toward dummy. West played low and the queen won as East showed out. Declarer now ruffed a club, played a diamond to dummy's king, and ruffed another club.

The stage was now properly set if West held the right number of cards in each side suit. The diamond ace and A-Q of spades were cashed, and South's third spade was led to dummy's king.

Now the last club was played from dummy and trumped with the king in declarer's hand. West could do nothing but overruff with the ace and lead away from the 10-8 of trumps. (The Q-3 of trumps was in dummy and the 9-7 in declarer's hand.)

Anyone who casually played a high heart from dummy at trick two would go set, since West would grab the ace and sit back to make another trick with the 10-8-6 of trumps.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JULY 3, 1985

Measures will be taken in the year ahead that will help you build a materially secure future. Wasteful habits will be replaced by prudent ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extremely careful today where investments are concerned. Don't take foolish gambles based upon hearsay information from people you know socially.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't force your mate to deal with people he or she finds distasteful or boring today. No one will have a good time, including yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your critical faculties will be sharply attuned today. This is all well and good, provided you use this quality constructively instead of being merely a nit-picker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A pleasant luncheon or dinner could turn sour today if the person with whom you're sharing the good time fails to pick up his or her fair portion of the tab.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Domestic rumbles can be avoided today if you're not too insistent that everyone in the family marches to the tune you foot. Let them play their own music.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Under most circumstances, you are rather easygoing, but today you might step out of character and find fault with everything your companions do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make it a point to be extra prudent in the management of your resources today. If you lack financial discipline, money will slip through your fingers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) People important to your career will closely scrutinize your behavior today. Do nothing that could cause them to lose respect for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A negative attitude will prove self-defeating today. Instead of worrying about all the reasons why you can't do something, start thinking of the reasons why you can.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your friends will love you for what you are today, although this could be a trifle difficult for you to accept. You may think you'll have to buy their good will with favors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In important career matters today, keep non-aligned parties out of the act. It will prove best to go it alone, rather than depending upon lukewarm supporters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your day will not be productive if you fail to follow an organized schedule. Don't let non-essential activities override priority events.
