Old Krakatoa

"Nature on the loose" is the only expression which we can think of to describe the picture of a number of historic volcanic eruptions showing at the Milanese this week.

A picture shows Krakatoa, not in full eruption, but merely taking its limbering up exercises, shooting flames and clouds of smoke into the air such as no battery of "Big Berthas" could possibly equal.

So loud was the explosion that it was heard on other islands more than 150 miles away. A tidal wave was caused which spread out through the Pacific wrecking giant freighters, and completely inundating small islands.

Perhaps even more amazing, though less dangerous, was the quantity of rock and dust which was hurled more than seventeen miles into the air, where in the upper air currents parts of it were carried completely around the earth's surface.

One has a mighty feeling of littleness when he sees, even in a picture, one of these volcanoes in eruption. Vesuvius is shown, in one of its milder moments, sending out huge streams of lava which spread out over the countryside like giant streams of molasses flattening out houses and stone buildings as if they were made of straw and completely covering them up with a substance which, when cooled, becomes as hard as granite.

Governor Raps Advocates of State Sales Tax

"Every one of us has been fighting to keep our feet on the ground, reduce our obligations, wash out boom burdens," he said.

"I tell you that Florida today is a sadder investment than ever before and before this year is out, Florida will be blazing the trail of a new day for all the rest of the nation to follow."

He said in 1926 the bonded debt of the state's political subdivisions amounted to $850,000,000, while at present it is $550,000,000, "still a lot too much to owe."

The governor declared schools will not be closed in Florida in these counties, "that are making proper efforts to pay their share of the burden."

In a short luncheon talk, the governor toasted the health of President Roosevelt, from whom greetings were received.

ROYALISTS RIOT IN PROTEST OVER STAVISKY DEATH

Bitter Demonstration Taxes Energies Of Scores Of Police

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Royalists rioted near the chamber of deputies last night in angry protest against what they alleged to be the part of high-placed officials in the $40,000,000 collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop and in the death of its founder.

Shouting "Down with the assassins!" "Down with the assassins!" and swinging canes, the crowd attacked policemen stationed as guards in the district, ripped up iron tree protectors, broke lamp posts and blocked traffic over a mile-square area.

Scores of persons, including many women, were taken to police stations, but soon were released, and hundreds of spectators were massed in the big Place de la Concorde to watch the bitter demonstrations which taxed police facilities to the limit.

Inside the parliament halls an air of almost equal tension prevailed. The re-organized cabinet paced the lobbies, trying to negotiate a truce with angry legislators and hastily patching fences to avert a threatened overthrow.

The tide of sentiment, nevertheless, seemed to be turning in favor of Premier Camille Chautemps after Serge Stavisky, the mysterious captain of underground finance, shot himself—or was shot by secret service men, as opposition newspapers charged, in order to prevent him from telling too much about the pawnshop scandal—when cornered Monday afternoon.

A heavy guard of mounted and foot police was rushed to the Place Bourbon to surround the chamber building as the papers attacked a police report that the founder shot himself to avoid arrest and urged a public demonstration.

The premier, the virtual national chief of police in his capacity as minister of the interior, promised an overhauling of the police department and his friends expressed confidence that the government would weather the storm of Thursday's debate on the scandal in the chamber.

An autopsy, it was officially announced, established that Stavisky was a suicide, but the socialist newspaper Action Proletaire charged police killed him, fearing his testimony.

The socialist organ Populaire and the communist Humanite also attacked the police version of the death yesterday morning in a hospital in Chamonix.

"Work in Play and Play in Work" was the subject of a talk given by the Rev. Martin J. Bram before the members of the Seminole High School P. T. A. at their regular meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the school auditorium.

Mr. Bram stressed the importance of teaching children to utilize their leisure time profitably either in work or play, and demonstrated the results gained by mentioning the most popular games which demand application and study in order to be played intelligently.

Mrs. F. S. Vernay brought up the question of having the Parent-Teacher Association in the high school sponsor social activities there, emphasizing the ultimate good results attained by creating the desire for entertainment of that type early in education.

She also stated that the religious life of youth is not left to chance and that the social life should be supervised also.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. J. C. Grison who requested those present to discuss Mrs. Vernay's topic at home and with others interested as there will be more discussions of this kind at the next meeting, Tuesday evening, Feb. 9, at which time "Father's Night" and "Founder's Day" will be observed.

ROBBERS KIDNAP WOMAN WHO IS USED AS SHIELD

Later Released After Being Carried Away by 4 Desperate Men

HANNIBAL, Mo., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Four gunmen, described by yesterday as "desperate robbers," yesterday kidnaped a woman, fought two battles with peace officers and escaped in an automobile stolen from the woman's home. Mrs. Roy Carpenter, 40, wife of a high school teacher, later was released, after she had been used as a shield for the abductors in their encounters with officers.

Scores of northeast Missouri officers and civilians had joined in the search for the four men and their captive, when word of Mrs. Carpenter, 40, wife of a high school teacher, later was released, after she had been used as a shield for the abductors in their encounters with officers.

Pursuit of the men started earlier in the day after officers said they had stolen a motor car from a garage here. They fled toward Monroe City, A. J. Schneider, police chief, and J. O. Barker, traffic patrolman, took up the chase.

The robbers' automobile ran out of gasoline near the Carpenter home and the men entered the yard to steal another car.

Mrs. Carpenter came from a nearby field to learn who the men were. They forced her to sit in the rear compartment of her small coupe. Apparently aware they were being pursued, the bandits lay in wait for the officers' car near a bridge in front of the Carpenter home.

As Chief Schneider and his aide drove up the men opened fire. The officers, taken by surprise, leaped out of their car and returned the fire, but the robbers escaped in the car with Mrs. Carpenter.

The police started in pursuit and met the robbers coming out of a bluff lane they took by mistake. Another gunfight followed in which the officers' car was disabled and their ammunition exhausted. The robbers fled north into hilly country.

Chief Schneider said the robbers attempted to capture him and his aide during the last encounter.

"Well, so—so boys, you might as well surrender," he quoted the robbers as shouting.

"I told them we couldn't hear them as the radio was going too loud in our car," the chief related. "Then they said, 'Well, we can hear you and you might as well give up. We've got the drop on you!'"

I told them to go to hell—that if there was any surrendering to be done they would have to do it. We were out of ammunition at this time. Our guns were empty and the bluff worked and they started taking away and we were powerless to stop them.

Heard officers said they had no way to the advance of the robbers and a report they might have been convicted escape from a jailhouse at Columbus, Ohio, was heard at Columbus where it was said none had escaped.

Johnson Modifies Auto Code Working Hours

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—High S. Johnson Monday approved a modification of the automobile code which will permit the motor plants to work their employees 40 hours instead of the original 35 hours a week fixed by their codes.

Johnson justified this increase in working hours, the first action of its kind ever taken on an NRA code, by saying that increased purchases of cars next spring would, at the present 35-hour schedule, result in bringing to Detroit and other manufacturing centers an excessive number of workers who would have to be laid off immediately after the spring production rush had ended.

MAJOR LEAGUES LOOK FORWARD WITH CONFIDENCE

Winter Pennant Races Begin As Result Of Wholesale Trading

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Baseball fans have been able to look forward in January to an interesting major league season with the confidence the magazines about the season of the 1934 pennants.

The years the pennant races in the American league have been the address about the winter and spring there on through the winter, overshadowed by the fact that the National league has been staging. Naturally, gate receipts suffered.

But this year the American league has been balanced more evenly than in half a dozen seasons. As the powerhouses have all moved from the top, the weak team has come up to meet them and the result is a fine spread of strength that should keep the pennant slipping from going to one side. The legislation of Sunday baseball in Boston in 1933, now in Pennsylvania, adds to the few changes that have come into the life of a club owner.

By Connie Mack, who shattered

Seminole High Has Visions Of Victory Over Orlando Tiger

With two victories to their credit, both over Northwestern conference foes, members of Coach Leonard McLucas' Seminole High School basketball squad are looking forward to their third tilt of the season, against the Orlando Tigers in Orlando Friday night.

The Tigers are admittedly one of the better teams in Central Florida. They are veterans of play, three of the five members of the first squad having played together for the past three seasons. A victory over the Tigers would definitely establish Seminole High as a championship outfit of the finest kind, and this week's practice sessions are pointed toward such a victory.

Coach McLucas is of the opinion that last Saturday night's rough-and-tumble victory over the Dayton Athletics, reluctant though the movement was, in order to make major league clubs of the White Sox and the Red Sox, goes most of the credit. The White Sox are dangerous again, building on the groundwork of Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, Bob Earnshaw and Mule Haas.

Boston, of course, looms as a positive menace to navigation around the American league. Rich Ferrall catching Moses Grove, Rube Walberg, George Fingers, Henry Johnson, Dusty Rhodes and Bob Welland presents a staff the equal of any in the league. Carl Reynolds, Dusty Cooke and Roy Johnston are a neat outfield. Chalmers Cissel, Eddie Morgan, Bill Werber and Bill Walters aren't a champion infield, but Yawkey's checkbook isn't empty yet, either.

Connie Mack still has plenty of ball club in Philadelphia, despite the sale of his stars, and has a real kick only in the pitching department. The Browns have a keen, fighting leader in Rogers Hornsby, and have definitely stepped out of the push-over class. Cleveland was only a shade under the top flight last year and the Indians will do better now that they're back in their old stadium.

The loss of the world series to the Giants took some of the starch out of the Washington Senators and certainly wiped away any inferiority complex the rest of the league might have developed through 1933. The Yankees are rebuilding quietly, holding tightly to their wallop of past seasons and carefully bringing in new blood to mix with the old timers. That's still a club that for one year can catch fire and blast the rest of the league into submission. It needs only the spark.

The National league was forced into the background by the American league's spectacular bartering, but while the trading there has been more orderly, it was more to the point.

The Cubs got Chuck Klein, and his bat should provide the difference between a contender and a champion. The speeding up of the ball will take something from the Gaiety's pitchers and add it to the hitters of the Cardinals and the Pirates. The Braves need only to come up with a better first baseman and one more outfielder to threaten another 1914 rally.

While the Cincinnati Reds consider new ownership are making a game and desperate fight to be ready for the opening of the campaign, only the Brooklyn Dodgers seem definitely to have evaded the uplift fever. Always unique, on the ball field and off, the spirit remains today in the national offices.

But then Brooklyn doesn't need a winner. The faithful term out there, whether or no. As far as the treasury is concerned, that's all that matters.

Roosevelt Writes Another Chapter In New Deal History

The President's goodhumoredly chaffed the writers a little by telling them that there was nothing in the budget about the expenditure and revenues for the fiscal year which ends next July 30 that was not available to every correspondent since last June 16, so that it should not be news. But he pointed out items which are news. He explained how much more could have been spent under Congressional authorizations, than has been spent, and when and how the unexpended portions will be spent. He "brake down" some future items which were not broken down in the budget message or the 989-page budget itself.

The President called correspondents by their first names as he answered their questions about the more than ten-billion-dollar budget spent this year, about a prospective 1934 deficit of $7,500,000,211, about a national debt of $29,847,000,000, about $3,000,000,000 additional which will be needed for emergency expenditures during the coming fiscal year, about another $1,114,000,000 which he will ask Congress to appropriate for the current fiscal year, and about ten billions which the government must borrow in the next six months. Occasionally he asked an informed correspondent about some detail not entirely familiar to him. It became an exchange of information at times, but the President remained the real source of information about what was characterized as the most brutally frank budget message ever sent to Congress.

Some correspondents there recognized in the budget message ideas which the President had discussed with them informally, in some beach, buccaners every first and last of the season. Every club has one game in its make-up during which style and finesse are thrown overboard and fighting spirit runs riot, he stated and added that "I hope the boys got rid of all that spirit last Saturday night."

Seminole High must meet another strong team in the form of the DeLand Bulldogs here on Saturday night. It will be the third home game of the season, and every effort will be made to establish a season's record of no defeats on the home court.

Private, for it is said that he talks more freely with newspaper correspondents—he knows them with any other group—and members of his own staff say that the confidence of these strictly private talks have never been violated.

What the Washington press corps thinks of President Roosevelt's regular press conferences may be discerned, without asking for comment, by observing the number who attend every semi-weekly press conference, no matter what is going on elsewhere in town. No correspondent feels safe in staying away from the President's conference. The comparatively small Oval Study is crowded with more than a hundred correspondents every time, a larger number than ever attended their President's press conferences.

President Hoover started out with considerable popularity with the press, established during his days as Secretary of Commerce when the department he headed became a major news source for the first time. He announced the abolition of the "White House Spokesman." Elaborate plans were made for different categories of news that which would be given out in formal statements; that which could be attributed, in indirect quotation, to the President or the White House; that which could be used as "background" but could not be attributed to the President; and that which was strictly confidential.

The rule was made, however, that every question must be submitted in writing, in advance. If the President wished to answer a question, he did so, and further questions might be asked about the same subject. If the President did not choose to answer, the question could not be asked orally, nor could a story be written saying that the question had been asked and no answer was given. No oral question could be asked about a subject not previously discussed by the President in the same press conference. This rule also prevailed during the Coolidge administration.

At first, Hoover answered many questions. He gradually answered fewer and fewer. Toward the end he rarely answered any questions asked in writing, and almost no question was asked orally, even after a subject had been discussed. As his Administration drew to a close, press conferences were rarely held at all.

As the policy of ignoring questions developed and as many press conferences were canceled, the number attending the Hoover press conferences dwindled progressively, until often only the few correspondents assigned constantly to the White House, covering as other news sources, attended the press conferences on the rare occasions when they were held. Only a few would be gathered around the President's desk on those Tuesday's and Friday's when press conferences were usually held. The press conferences often lasted only three or four minutes.

Now the mob begins to gather some time before the appointed hour for the Wednesday morning and Friday afternoon conferences, and those who have to ask questions or who have to get every word said stand in line as near to the President's office door as they are permitted to go. Sometimes nearly a hundred are standing there, waiting for the signal, trying to get near the front, with guards keeping a lane clear between them so that the Presidential callers may find their way out of the executive offices. A terrific rush then takes place to the President's office. Then the conferences last from 15 minutes to 30 minutes, everybody standing until their backs ache.

Hoover, early in his Administration, began the practice of having favored newspaper correspondents play medicine ball with him and some of his cabinet members and lesser officials in the morning, inviting them to his Rapidan Camp for the week-end, and otherwise, seeing them privately.

While President Roosevelt sees many newspaper correspondents privately at informal dinners, at tea, and so on, the talks they have are not for publication. Furthermore, the number he sees in this way is rather extensive. He refuses to give private interviews.

Coolidge apparently had no such favored group. His press conferences continued somewhat larger than were Hoover's at the end, and he answered more questions but the questions had to be submitted in writing and any answers were attributed to the fictitious "White House" spokesman.

President Harding was cordial and jovial with the press, but gave little real news at his conferences. President Wilson was the first to inaugurate regular press conferences, and permitted questions to be asked orally until the War. The earlier President "Teddy" Roosevelt was accused of using the press to send up "trial balloons," causing a story to be written about what the President intended to do, not attributed to the President, to see what the public reaction would be. If it was unfavorable, he disclaimed any authority for the prediction.

President Roosevelt is a close reader of newspapers, and does not depend, as Hoover began to do, upon the clipping and summaries provided for him.

No correspondent here can remember a time when all correspondents felt as free as they do now to ask the President any question he may want answered, whether it be trivial or important, favorable or unfavorable to the Administration's policies. Some times, only a chuckle or a wince-crack is given in reply, but often significant information is brought out.

Cannon Must Be Tried For Law Violations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The supreme court told Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Monday that he had to stand trial on charges of violating election laws while opposing the election of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Miss Ada Burroughs of Richmond, Va., who was treasurer of the "headquarters committee anti-Smith democrats," will be tried also on the same charges. Cannon directed the committee's work which helped put Virginia, Texas, North Carolina and Florida in the republican column for the first time since reconstruction days.

The court, Monday did not pass on the question of the Southern Methodist churchmen, guilt or innocence. It merely held the validity of the indictment which charged Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs with law violation for failure to report contributions made to the committee by E. C. Jamason, a wealthy New Yorker.

FULL STORY OF BANK SCANDAL TOLD IN PARIS

Cabinet Goes Before Deputies To Admit Guilt, Promise Full Drastic Punishment

PARIS, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—The Stavisky scandal storm broke with full force on the government of Premier Camille Chautemps in the Chamber of Deputies today. The cabinet went before the chamber and sought to avert its overthrow by a frank admission of "faute and negligence" and promises of drastic reforms and punishments in police and judicial procedure. Deputies opposing the government charged that corruption in the government, parliament, and press enabled Serge "Handsome Alex" Stavisky, who killed himself Monday when police closed to upon him, to fleece the public of more than $40,000,000. Stavisky founded the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop, leaving with his assets about three weeks ago.

BREKENDAH, Iowa, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—Twelve years ago Charles Hale, Jr., of Middland, Mo., began saving his pennies. He would find a penny a day in his pocket after his round on a rural mail route. Yesterday he loaded his savings—three wheat sacks and a large box full of the copper—into his old automobile and traded the car and contents for a new model. The automobile dealer did not bother to spend his change, but weighed the coins and found he had 85,000 pennies in the pile. The coins were taken to St. Joseph, Mo., for an official count.

Product Could Be Sold In All But Few Counties, Says Attorney

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—Repeal of the state prohibition amendment next November, Attorney General Landis ruled yesterday, would legalize manufacture and sale of liquor in counties where there are no local prohibition laws. He called attention to a section of the proposed amendment providing for county elections at the general election of 1934 to decide whether the sale of intoxicating liquors may be permitted. This section also provides for such (Continued on Page Four)

Stockholders of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank, meeting in annual session at the bank yesterday afternoon, heard with satisfaction from their new president, Peter J. Walker, Jr., of Jacksonville, R. O. Shindler, Jr., A. Newman, Mr. Feitner, J. L. Ingley, and Joe Cameron, as 1934 directors, this latter group formally elected the following persons as officers for 1934: John T. Walker, Jr., as chairman of the board; Peter J. ## Miss Ruth Mettinger To Head State Bureau

Miss Ruth Mettinger of this city is the new director of the bureau of public health nursing, State Board of Health, according to an announcement released this week by Dr. Henry Hanson of Jacksonville, state health officer. Miss Mettinger, who has been Southeastern director for the National American Red Cross after having served for several years as Florida director, will leave Red Cross service about Feb. 1 to assume her new position. She was at one time a member of the state's board nursing staff, and her addition will bring the staff to six members as Dr. Hanson slowly is rebuilding the personnel which was reduced because of limited finances some years ago.

Crews Start Work On 21 County Schools

CWA crews this week began the assignment of repairing and remodeling 21 county schools which have been in need of work on roofs, floors, and walls for many months. Principal work will be done at Lyman School between Longwood and Altamonte Springs, and at Southside Primary School in Sanford. The roofs at these schools have been in a poor state of repair for some time, and plaster that was loosened by water dripping through the roof has fallen away from ceilings regularly. Tennis, volleyball, and basketball courts are to be installed at many of the smaller schools around the county. It was announced by Elton J. Houghton, architect, who is in charge of these CWA projects.

ANOTHER CUT IN WORK HOURS SEEN POSSIBLE

Industry To Be Asked To Reduce Present Scale If Business Improves As Hoped

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—A further general shortening of work hours will be proposed to American industry next month by the national recovery administration if the improvement of business develops to the point officials expect. Hugh S. Johnson told newspapermen yesterday that "if business turns up I think we can reduce substantially the average of 40 hours a week now prevailing in coded industries, adding: "Not only that, but I think business is going to." He said he did not contemplate a universal 30-hour week or any other definite figure but explained that hours virtually had to be decreased or increased by rights, which suggested an average of 32 working hours a week as a possible objective. He will propose the general reduction plan to a gathering of the directing committees for the 200 coded industries at a meeting he will call for Feb. 15. That session is to go over the entire code regime for the purpose of abating out inequalities between competing industries, discriminations between manufacturers. (Continued on Page Two)

Debate Is Started As To Tag Sale Head-Line

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—Automobile owners and officials yesterday began lining up on opposite sides of the question of whether the time to acquire 1934 automobile license tags should be extended beyond Jan. 15. Even while Governor Rholtz was absent, there came telegrams to his office taking opposite views. In the name and for the sake of common people of the state give us 20 days more on auto tags," telegraphed W. L. Walters of Lake Hamilton. Similar messages came from other sections. The opposite view was taken by B. A. Williams of Tavares, president of the Florida Association of Tax Collectors, who wired "Any extension of time for securing auto tags would work a real hardship on tax collectors of the state. Fees are so small they would not pay for the extra force required to handle it time extended. Governor's consideration in the matter greatly appreciated."

3 Known Dead In Blaze Destroying Dime Store

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—The death toll in a spectacular midnight fire and ten cent store fire was raised to three, known dead today as the body of one fire captain was recovered, and those of two others were sought in the basement of the building. The victims were Captains Edward Hees, John Peterson, and Charles Hoffmann. They were trapped when the three-story outer wall of the building, occupied by the Woolworth Company, toppled over, endangering the lives of hundreds of spectators at the height of a conflagration which caused $250,000 damage. Belief that the bodies of other victims, some of them spectators, might be found under the debris was expressed by firemen. The cause of the fire is unknown.

State Cabinet Decides That Mules Are Costly

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—This may be the age of the motor vehicle, but because mules come too high the State Girls' Industrial School at Ocala is going to have to get along with the three already there—and the tractor. The state cabinet, presided over by Secretary of State R. A. Gray in the absence of Governor Rholtz, learned at its meeting yesterday that mules cost around $150 or $200 a head. "That's too much," the cabinet agreed. So for the time being the school will have to worry along with three mules and a tractor, already in service there.

Delegate To Peace Sessions Says Best National Defense Is Good-Will Of Other Nations

Stating that international peace depends upon the charitable feeling of every person toward his neighbor, Miss Anna Dill Gamble of Washington, D. C., presiding travel agent who was presiding during the peace conference in Geneva, gave a talk on "World Peace" at the luncheon held Wednesday at the Valdez Hotel with 75 persons present, including members of the board of the St. Augustine Diocesan Council of Catholic Women who were here for their quarterly meeting, women of the parish of All Souls Catholic Church, and others from Central Florida. In her talk Miss Gamble told of the theory of Hugh Gibson, delegate from the United States, who said that the United States land borders are not defended and stated that the best defense of a country is the good will of its neighbors. Later in her talk she told of the various plans of the different countries on disarmament and contrasted the two theories on that subject of Bruning, who thought that all nations should "arm down" to Germany, and of Hitler, who believed that Germany should "arm up" to the other countries. After a dradlock had been formed as the conference by all factions concerned, Miss Gamble stated that Poland came forward with its theory on "moral" disarmament or goodwill to one's neighbor. Following the close of the conference, Miss Gamble went to (Continued on Page Four)

HOUSE SEES GAG RULE USED BY LOYALISTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—Administration loyalists arrayed themselves in the House today to jam through a renewal of Federal economy powers wanted by President Roosevelt, despite discontent over the "gag rule" procedure which they relied upon. Defeat of the contested rule would provide a decided setback for the Democratic forces, but leaders are not expecting any more difficulty than was experienced in the special session. With the Senate calendar bereft of major legislation, committees set about adjusting their differences with the House over the liquor tax legislation. In view of the opposition by the President, the Senate reversed itself, and struck out of the House bill an amendment placing heavy excise taxes on liquors from nations in default on their war debts. War debts lighted a colorful flare of congressional debate yesterday to lead disputants toward penalizing backward debtors. Close behind, with fate yet to be settled, was President Roosevelt's recommendation, backed by the Federal Power Commission, for ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada under which a gigantic power and navigation system would be built. In the high blaze of Washington developments to which international affairs brought much fuel, impending dispute over recognition of the Soviet Union, and the refusal of two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to vote for committee approval of William C. Bullitt, of Pennsylvania, as ambassador to the Soviet Union of Republic. The Bullitt vote in committee was 14 to 2. The war debt penalty was attached to the liquor tax bill pending in the Senate. An amendment was adopted, in the face of an urgent request by Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee that the revenue measure not be loaded down with controversial matters, calling for imposition of an excise tax as well as the usual tariff duties on liquors from countries in default on their war debts. Staunch advocates of debt payments to full contained the amendment of Senator Clark (D., Mo.), proposing the excise tax, was admissible. The House has to act on the amendment, in which the Senate previous one in which the Senate would kill the present law against (Continued on Page Two)

Federal Expenses Pass Three Billion Dollar Mark Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(A.P.)—Federal expenditures for the first year today passed the $3,000,000,000 mark, leaving $800,000,000 to be spent before June 30 to fulfill President Roosevelt's budget estimates. This budget estimates put the total government outlays for 1934 at $4,000,000,000. Nearly half of the estimates for routine government costs has been spent but only about $1,500,000,000 of the $7,000,000,000 which the President estimated for recovery. The deficit stands now at $2,000,000,000, less today than the same date of last year, but by the end of the year the deficit is estimated by the President to be in the neighborhood of $7,500,000,000.
