

Stewart Says—
Meet News Sources
in War-Torn Europe
Cannot Be Traced.

CHARLES P. STEWART,
Central Press Columnist,
LEADS news columnists Europe
in stories in these war years. It's too much destroyed by the various belligerent governments.

Dispatches from England
now considerably
less than full and negative, due to impressions
by the censorship office, but apparently they don't outright lie. Continental titles evidently are they tell the truth but gradually turn out to differ from subsequently revealed facts.

For many years Britain's big news gathering and distributing agency has been Reuters. It corresponds to our own International News Service and our Associated Press United Press. The name of the man at Reuters is John Bull.
In England alone, it has correspondents and a public throughout the world. Undoubtedly it's pretty handicapped by today's London censorship, but it seems to remain as honestly independent as is permitted to it.

Germany's essential agency used to be Wolff. It always was subsidized by the Berlin government, but apparently it is privately owned.
Now it has vanished from the scene, supplanted by the frank-tional D.N.R., headed by Herr Goebbel. Through him, of course,
Hitler dictates everything

Russia's agency, under Soviet rule, is Tass. Comrade Stalin's service, naturally.

Stefan is Stefani; France's is Havas. Stefani and Havas chronically have been governmentally subsidized but theoretically independent. Stefan still pretends to be so though it isn't, needless to remark.

Havas Is Gone

But Havas, as anything but a name, is no more. It never was as anything as our American agencies or as Stefani. Never was it a news agency—although Reuter's was—and the December, though, it was announced from Vienna that an information office had been established there by the Faust regime.
Havas had been bought out and that, nonetheless, the agent will remain and do what he can. That anything else is unlikely.

New Raid Bases For Nazis In Rumania Are Seen Possible

German bombers concentrated overnight on south Wales and southwestern England while British war planes attacked Brest and Cherbourg in occupied France.

About 3,000 British subjects in Nazi-held France have been placed in internment camps because of "military necessity," the Germans said.

Thousands of ground crew men concentrated on or near all the major landing fields in southern Britain "indicated predictions that the Nazis may be arranging hopping-off places for new action in the Mediterranean."

Jenkins Says All Wrong Auto Tags To Be Exchanged

Some Models Of 1941 Cars Are Affected By Weight Limits

Auto tag purchasers who have bought "plain" tags for certain models of 1941 cars that have been found to go over the weight limit for this tag are requested to call at the Court House and exchange these tags for "D" tags, says Fred D. W. Jenkins, motor vehicle commissioner of Orange County. Tax Collector John D. Jenkins said today.

"The 'plain' tag and the registration card should be returned to the tax collector, together with $5 additional; then a 'D' tag will be issued and the 'plain' tag will be sent to the Tallahassee office for cancellation," Mr. Jenkins said.

The matter refers only to the new models of 1941, which have been found to require a tag costing $15.35 instead of $10.55, as listed in the weight manual, Mr. Jenkins reminded.

Cars affected by this change are:

AIRMEN FROM OVERSEAS

From The Times of London)
Who are these that come from overseas?—and the oceans, Commingling the glows come out of the south?—In the glory of spring? They are not among us?—With purpose in the eyes, with a smile on the mouth. Those are they who have left the familiar faces. Sights, sounds and scents of familiar land. Taking no care for security promised a fortnight ago. Sweetness of hope and the future hope had planned.

A modesty has drawn them; Britain, standing alone Cries in the darkness, not to be overcome.

Though the huge masses of hate
Were hurled against her—
When comes the night of freedom Soon, are they faced with incomparable comrades, Britain's flower, and Britain's pride.

Against all odds, despising the hostile Temer, the ways

On jorneys long in the ways
Of the wind-swept sea.

From afar the battle for our ancient Island, the masters of Mourning and suffering, masters of The skies.

They stand in the night by the burning and captive,
And the unbroken hope to their brave and valiant replies.

And the incredible things, from
The winds, coming, and coming,
Over the peaceful sea.

How shall we think them? Truly
There are no words.

And no song worthy of them.

The Right To "Editorialize"

In renewing the license for radio station WAAB of Boston, as is necessary under the law if the station is to continue to operate, the Federal Communications Commission held that no station should be permitted to take sides on any issue and warned the station against continuing past practices which had led it to "editorialize" and "color the news."

"Radio can serve as an instrument of democracy only when devoted to the communication of information and the exchange of ideas fairly and objectively presented," the Commission said specifically. "A truly free radio can not be used to advocate the cause of the licensee. It can not be used to support the candidacies of his friends. It can not be devoted to the support of principles he happens to regard most favorably. In brief, the broadcaster can not be an advocate."

In other words, the owner of a radio station cannot participate in the debates and controversies of the day. As a private citizen, the Constitution guarantees his right to free speech, but when he becomes a radio station owner, the Federal Communications Commission takes this right away from him. Others, we presume, may go on the air and have their say. But he may not. In the public interest, because he happens to own the station, he must keep his mouth shut.

If a thief is running for mayor against an honest and upright citizen, the radio station owner cannot urge the election of the honest citizen. He cannot "advocate." The cannot advocate the construction of a hospital, the improvement of our schools, the enforcement of drunken driving laws. He cannot urge decent honest principles and practices in business dealings. He cannot teach Christianity to the people.

So far the newspapers of the country have not been brought under the Federal Communications Commission, but efforts have been made in this direction. Efforts have also been made to set up an entirely new commission dealing with newspapers alone, partly to give more jobs to the unemployed, and partly to make sure that nothing "contrary to the public interest" is advocated by the newspapers.

If a newspaper had to go to the Federal Communications Commission every six months, or, every year, to get its license to do business renewed, and if the Federal Communications Commission had the power to deny a license to a newspaper because it had "advocated" something or other, as apparently it has with respect to radios, freedom of the press would soon become just another memory of the horse and buggy age.

Then maybe everybody would have the right to "editorialize," except the editor.

The Female Of The Species

While self-assertive men, who shout, and glare and bang across the table, may cause their wives to feel miserably inferior, there actually isn't any reason for the women to be bullied or intimidated by such tactics, according to William Moulton Marston, noted psychologist. In an article in Your Life Magazine he says:

"Mental measurements prove that women are men's equals and very probably their superiors. Comparable groups of men and women were tested at Johns Hopkins University. The women did more mental work in given time than the men and performed their brain tasks more accurately."

The writer cites, among other points, the following statistics to prove his point that there is no need for women to have inferiority feelings:

1) Women own seventy percent of the country's accumulated wealth.

2) Women spend eighty-five percent of the national income.

3) Five million wives in the United States are gainfully employed and 2,600,000 of them are supporting wholly or in part, their husbands or their families.

4) Women know how to handle men better than men know how to handle themselves, according to a Hunter College vocational expert.

5) Women live longer than men, have more resistance to disease and extreme temperatures, and suffer fewer accidents than men, according to insurance statistics.

"Men do not really enjoy being made to work by the helpless 'little woman' who can't do a thing without some big, brave man's assistance," Dr. Marston concludes. "The thrill of masculine superiority fades quickly under the stress of irritating demands on a man's time and attention. Quiet, self-confident competence on a woman's part wins masculine admiration every time. All you have to do is expand your natural, feminine conviction that men are only little boys, after all, to free yourself from belittling dependence upon the more susceptible though harder driving sex."

are expected to be the next

Pledges At Stetson Give Boys A Break

DELAND, Jan. 18 — Sorority pledges at Stetson University are giving the boys a break at the same time that they break them in to a drowsy week. It all started when one of the three senior sororities, Alpha Xi Delta, ordered its pledges to refuse all invitations from date-seeking males until all mid-term examinations had been completed. The boys to some extent put up a howl of resistance, but rumors have it at Stetson that some of the men are secretly relieved and feel that they too will get some studying done during exam week.

In order to aid the prospective sorority sisters in their abstinence from dates, signs have been painted and will be worn by the Alpha Xi pledges on their backs. "Boys Beware," or "I am an Alpha Xi, so stay away from me—till after exams," or "Positively no dates till exams are over" are just a few of the sample placards.

THIS IS OUR MOST SPECTACULAR BARGAIN EVENT OF THE ENTIRE YEAR!

All Exhibition Space Sold Out At State Fair

TAMPA, Jan. 18—(Special)—

Two weeks away from the formal opening on Tuesday, Feb. 1, the Florida State Fair reports a complete sell out of exhibition space in the 24 mammuth fireproof buildings and an unprecedented demand for grandstand seat reservations for Gasparilla Day, Feb. 10 and other special events.

Dr. Hilliard is reported to be one of the most popular speakers.

Clattering hammers in every building mark the rush of activities of scores of artisans who are preparing the elaborate county exhibitions, the Florida National Exhibits, honey and floral shows, cigar industry exposition and the countless other displays that make up the nation's fourth largest fair. Entries have never been so great.

General Manager P. Strader reported in pointing out the record participation rate is reflected in the $40,000 in cash premiums offered this year.

Never in the 26 years of operation of the Florida State Fair has preparatory work been so well advanced, Manager Strader says. The huge new stage to accommodate Frank Withers' great musical spectacle "Salute to Freedom" has already been erected and is ready for opening night.

Two new buildings, the Florida Building and the Florida State Building, are now ready for opening night.

Building the first of the two new buildings, the Florida State Building, took 10 months.
