Kwiatkowski Challenges Decision

Commission Knocked On Split Legal Staff

Evening Herald

Democratic Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski today challenged the county commissioners intent to abide by last year's decision to hire an in-house legal staff to handle all the county's legal matters.

Kwiatkowski's challenge came during a commission meeting after Director of Public Works Jack Schuder informed commissioners he has solicited names of four persons who have applied for the position of utility attorney.

Kwiatkowski accused fellow commissioners of deviating from their decision to allow the new in-house legal staff to handle all legal matters — including those of the utility department. He said the commission is trying to "piecemeal" the legal responsibilities out to various attorneys.

Former Utility Attorney Edmund Woolfolk, an associate of County Attorney Tom Freeman, resigned his position as utility attorney last year shortly before Freeman himself announced he Commission Chairman Dick Williams responded to the criticism by stating that the commission has officially approved an advertisement which asks for a utility attorney separate from the lead attorney who will be in charge of the in-house staff. Williams also informed Kwiatkowski that he personally has written a letter to Seminole County attorneys advising them the position of utility counsel is available.

With Kwiatkowski dissenting, the commission then agreed to consider four applicants for the position of utility attorney at a special meeting on Thursday

Kwiatkowski said he opposed the motion because he did not feel the commission is sticking to its original intent of allowing the inhouse legal staff to handle all legal matters. Commissioner Bob French said it was his understanding that a utility attorney is needed now. The county has advertised for a $28,000-a-year attorney to act as a department chief for a new legal staff. Although 12 applicants have applied for the position, a final decision is not expected for at least two to four months. Meanwhile, Shuder said he advertised for a utility attorney on advice from the entire board and not just on instructions from the commission chairman. Shuder said the following persons have applied for the utility position: Harvey Alper of Altamonte Springs and the firms of Graham, Markel and Scott of Winter Park; Gray Evans, Harris and Robertson of Orlando; and Shinholser, Logan and Moncrief of PLAINS, Ga. (AP) - President-elect Carter today made public a tough ethics code for top government officials and pledged to free himself of any possible conflict of interest by turning over his prosperous peanut business to trustees who will lease or sell it.

The ethics code requires presidential nominees, starting with Cabinet members, to divest themselves of any holdings that could conflict with thei," government duties and to submit detailed statements of their personal wealth.

In addition, for the first time, they must sign a pledge to remain in government for their full appointed term, unless dismissed sooner. They also must agree that for two years after leaving government they will avoid any private job that would cause be to deal with their old departments or Another announcement said Carter's interest in Carter Farms Inc., which consists of agricultural real estate in this area, and Carter's Warehouse, a partnership that buys peanuts from area farmers for subsequent marketing, will be transferred to a special trust.

It was not immediately clear what would happen to $25,781 in common stocks owned by Carter's wife, Rosalynn. A Carter aide. had said last September that Carter would sell his stock holdings if elected. Carter's interest in Carter Farms was valued at $348,444 on Dec. 31, 1975, and his

Expert Gets Rise Out Of Condo Farm farms would be next door to condominium apartments."

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP)- An agricultural official who remembers two-story chicken houses is proposing high-rise farms where climate and "rain"

"We have to compete with developers for land — the only way we have to go is up," says Lewis Watson, the agricultural agent for Broward County. Watson says that high-rise farming in a condominium style may come in the next decade in such places as South Florida where there is a large demand for land.

"You don't use new lands for this," he says. "Buildings like these could be built in areas where you can't farm in traditional ways. I foresee the time when condominium

The farms would be in glass-enclosed, multi-story structures with sprinklers to provide water. "You could introduce a controlled amount of liquid fertilizer to each plant through the sprinkler system," Watson says. Heat or climate control also would be automatic - delivering "seasons" and providing warmer day temperatures and cooler night temperatures as needed. "Someone might want to offer shares in the building similar to the way a condominium apartment complex works," he said. "A lot of folks who might want to do some work and add their money as investment could get in on the idea. Something like this offers a broad spectrum of investment, work and management to people."

He says he got the idea for high-rise farms from a study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture titled "Agriculture: 2000," which projects conditions on the farm at the turn of the century.

Watson says the multiple-story idea isn't all that new. A Virginia native, Watson remembers two-story hen houses when he was a boy and says three-and four-level greenhouses have been used for years. He says high-rise farms would work in most areas but would be cheaper in South Florida because of natural warm temperatures, humidity and sunlight. "It's a concept that has to be given serious consideration. It's not a science fiction thing," he says.

Punching Up Prices Points To Inflation

The steel industry isn't alone in raising prices. "At many companies, the order of the day is to move prices up," according to The Wall Street Journal. "They cite margins squeezed by everrising costs and sluggish demand."

It is contrary to the law of supply and demand for prices to rise when demand is down. But fixed costs, such as taxes and depreciation, force the unit cost of production up when the volume of production sinks. And company managers don't want to get caught with their profit margins down.

They can raise their list prices, but in many industries competition is forcing manufacturers to discount and sell below list rather than shut down their production lines. The free market remains dominant, as it should be.

The rampant list price increases are alarming, however. They have a kind of panic effect. The annual rate of increase in the industrial products segment of the wholesale price index went up at an annual rate of 11.6 per cent in the months of September, October and November. That kind of price jump produces an inflationary mentality.

Politics is certainly a factor. Industry knows that during the interregnum period the White House has no power to jawbone against price increases. And there is a fear that when Jimmy Carter is inaugurated, price controls will become more likely, even though he now disavows any intention to impose them.

But responsible business executives should use the same restraint that they recommend to responsible representatives of organized labor. Price increases should not be demanded in order to beat anticipated inflation to the punch or to beat price controls to the punch.

Price increases are justified only when absolutely necessary to compensate for increases in

Some obituaries have called Daley the "last of a breed." He may have been. The voting maching he had tuned to such perfection had begun to sputter. Many Daley associates are in jail for official misconduct.

And the finest final tribute to Daley may have come from the man who put them there. Gov.-elect James R. Thompson, until recently a U.S. attorney, said of his death, "a part of Chicago died today and I am saddened. . . . '

The Interregnum

They call it an interregnum, which in the strictest sense is a temporary suspension of government. But the near-three-month period between the election of a president and his inauguration is no such thing, of course. President Ford is carrying on in Washington, even though he is unlikely to do anything spectacular. President-elect Carter is being briefed on the inner mysteries of government at home and road and lining up his Cabinet. He, too, is powerless to act.

The country is marking time. And that's not all bad. The leisurely pace of the transition is an indication of the stability of our government and the confidence the American people place in it. We can risk the socalled interregnum, despite the pressing issues, and that is a gamble that probably wouldn't be possible in any other nation. There will be no upheaval and the world is well aware of that

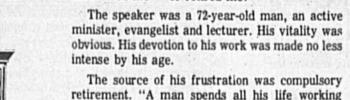

In a way, the interregnum is sort of comforting.

Thus with all the doom-saying we are accustomed to hearing, it is refreshing when a group of experts, who are not idle speculators, come up with some encouraging prognostications about America and the world at the turn of the next century.

Top executives and planners with Continental Oil Co. were asked to take a peek at 2001 and these are some of the things they saw, as reported in a recent edition of the company's Seminole Commission Okays Growth Plan Concept Herald Staff Writer County commissioners Tuesday night agreed to provide future municipal-level services to areas outside city limits wash my scalp regularly with not covered here - the common by adoption of the concept of Seminole's comprehensive acne without the dermatitis.

plan - the first state mandate plan in Florida. County planners want the board to designate South Seminole County as the area to receive "urban services." In turn, county areas in North Seminole would be encouraged to petition the cities - Lake Mary and Sanford — for annexation as a means to receive the "super duper" urban services as envisioned by the county's planning presented by county planners at Tuesday night's session. Democratic Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski argued that adoption of the plan as envisioned by planners is in opposition to the free enterprise system. "I personally object to any type of plan in which we commissioners try to control growth," Kwiatkowski

Several commissioners disagreed with concepts

Under the present concept, commissioners would

"define and enforce" an urban development pattern for Seminole county to determine where "tax dollars will and will not be spent to support urban development." Kwiatkowski said spending dollars for "super nifty" services in designated areas would attract private industry only to those areas where government was willing to provide the better level of services. "We'll be acting as a private industry; I don't think that is what county government is all about," Kwiatkowski The commission okayed the concept, but officials refused to go all the way and designate areas where tax dollars will and will not be spent to provide urban-level

However, County Planner Bill Kercher said this morning planners will stick to the concept that South Seminole County will be the target area, and unincorporated areas of North Seminole will be encouraged to seek annexation to the cities of Sanford and Lake Mary.

Seminole's comprehensive plan results from a 1974

state law which states this county must have a plan adopted by Oct. 1 of this year. Other Florida counties that do not already have plans must have theirs ready by July 1, 1979. Some areas have voluntarily adopted plans - well ahead of the state-mandated deadline. But Seminole's plan will serve as a model for those counties required to meet state law by the 1979 deadline.

The concept would allow the commission to define the term "county-wide services" to be supported by countywide taxation. The areas designated to receive urbanlevel services would be taxed extra through the creation of municipal service taxing districts. Kwiatkowski opposed designation of South Seminole as such an area. "The county should encourage growth in North Seminole," he said. Kwiatkowski said South Seminole residents are pleased with county "farm house services" in return for "farm house taxes."

Exec. Asst. Roger Neiswender said public hearings convinced planners that the general public wants to know specifically what areas will contain what types of growth in the future.

"First," Neiswender said, "The county couldn't provide urban-level services to all parts of Seminole County. It's

So, the executive assistant added, the planning staff needed to know if Seminole wants to be in the "urban services business.'

The term "urban service" means the county would provide the same or better services to county residents as hose services being provided by city governments. Theoretically, according to Commission Chairman Dick Williams, areas designated "rural" could be charged lower taxes. But Kercher said county-wide taxes could remain the same, they could be reduced, or, they could

It all depends, Kercher added, on the level of services county commissioners decide to provide. Commissioner John Kimbrough also voiced some criticisms. The plans called for priority to be given "core" areas in provision of county-wide services. Kimbrough said that should be done, but only when it's feasible and

Last night's decision, Kercher said, gave his staff direction for two month's work. Then on March 15, the concept will be reevaluated by commissioners. A series of public hearings will be held on every aspect of the plan before its final adoption in October.

Gramps' Widow Shares Baker Joy

By NORM OSHRIN Herald Editor Tuesday was a joyful day for Mrs. Louella Dirksen of DeBary, She spent a lot of it on the phone - three separate times, in fact - all with calls from Washington, D.C. The first came from her daughter, Joy, who told her mother she had attended church services at 7:30 a.m.

"Why so early?" Mrs. Dirksen asked. It was a special service, Joy explained. And for it she had ordered a bouquet of marigolds for the altar. Mrs. Dirksen liked that. It stirred memories. Her late husband, Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen, had led the campaign to make the marigold the national flower. And what better day to recall it than on Jan. 4, 1977, the day that would have been Sen. Dirksen's 81st birthday? He died in 1969. Later in the morning, Mrs. Dirksen got a second call. Again it was from daughter, Joy

"We've gone up to the Capitol," she reported. "I'm not sure whether he's a candidate, but. . ." The "he" was Joy's husband, Howard Baker, Republican senator from And "he" turned out to be a winning candidate — today he is the Republican Minority Leader, stepping into the shoes wern for so long by his late father-in-law. Mrs. Dirksen liked that, too.

"I was so pleased when I heard it. He has so much ability. I know he'll do fine; he's quite capable," Mrs. Dirksen said today. "I think he can cooperate with President Carter and he can show his ability. It's a challenge. . ."

The third call from Washington came at 9 p.m. Tuesday. This one was from her son-in-law, Howard Baker. "Did you hear? I sat in gramp's seat today," he said.

Fisher was ordered suspended by Councilmen J. R. Grant, June ormann and Lawrence Goldberg on the recommendation of then Mayor James R. Lormann on Aug. 30 and fired on Lormann's recommendation with the consent of the same three Sept. 13. Connell, then a councilman and Anderson, voted against the Lormann's recommendation for Fisher's suspension urged demotion for failure to properly supervise his department in that he failed to act to stop misdeeds of which he had prior knowledge: and mismanagement of city equipment and materials. The charges filed by someone in the city to stop Fisher from collecting unemployment compensation have not been made

McKinzy indicated Tuesday, however, the charges include that Fisher made wrenches and diverted the revenues resulting from sale of the wrenches to his own use; that he condoned and permitted the growing of marijuana on city property and that he used ity equipment for his own gain. Witnesses for Fisher testified that he had been a good and faithful employe during his tenure and had never been No Lost Pay For Suspended 6, Page 3A reprimanded by city officials during his service before the Aug. 30

Helms said that he (Helms) as either chairman or co-chairman of the water department was fully aware and approved Fisher's fabrication of a wrench in 1973 from materials given by a supply house. Several of the wrenches were later sold to the supplier and the resulting funds were kept by Fisher to reimburse him for a water cooler he purchased for the water department in 1971, Helms said. Several of the wrenches are still used by the city, he

Fisher testified that he had one day seen a city employe watering a plant that he thought might be marijuana, but that after he looted up a picture of marijuana plants in the encyclopedia, he went back to the spot the next day and the plant He said he reported the incident to the police department.

Fisher also testified that he had leased a welder for the public works department from James Reiter, a city businessman and former councilman and that it has not been returned to Reiter since he (Fisher) left the city employ. This is the equipment the city is alleging it owns and that Fisher had used. Fisher also testified that the city council made it impossible for him to properly supervise his department since they provided no transportation for him to be in the field watching over the men, no radios to keep in contact with employes and no secretary to keep up to date inventories and keep his office at the city garage open while he would be in the field. Mitchell testified that he, also, is not being provided with equipment to function as the sewer and water plant operator and no transportation to get around to the several city plants. Anderson said he knows of no wrong-doing by Fisher. Connell said he found last week that none of the other employes ordered suspended by the city council have served any time off the job and none have received a loss of pay.
