ROUSING SENDOFF IS GIVEN GATORS BY LARGE CROWD

Students And Gainesville People Flock To Railway Station

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA, GAINESVILLE, Dec. 7.—(INS)—The Fighting Gators are enroute to Knoxville, where Saturday they will meet the Vols of Tennessee and seek to clamber over them to the highest peak ever attained by a Florida eleven.

Victory would bring to an end a brilliant campaign that had no defeats and no ties to offer, as during Florida of at least half interest in the Southern conference championship. At the same time Georgia Tech will be making the same issue against the Georgia Bulldogs at Atlanta, and the title angles involved give the two games Saturday more significance than any previous games played in this season.

With 1500 students cheering a farewell and encouraged by the lively air of Florida's 75 new band, the Gators entrained for Jacksonville at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. They arrived at Knoxville Friday morning, working out there in the afternoon on the field where the battle with the Vols will take place Saturday.

Last Home Workout

Coach Bachman sent the Florida eleven through a last drill home soil at 1 P. M. Thursday. The session was devoted to a break signal drill. Bachman projected the squad in good condition and on edge for its greatest feat of the season. Only Joe Bryan, veteran tackle, is not expected to be in shape. Joe has been under a physician's care at Jacksonville, but he met the team there this afternoon and is making the trip. Bachman said that he expects to see a bitter battle between the Gators and Vols, but that he believes Florida will remain unbeaten and untied. The coach said that his team is prepared to carry on a continuous attack against the Tennesseans.

The send-off given the Gators was the greatest this historic little college town has ever witnessed. Forming on the campus, the students paraded to the station, and there staged their thrilling demonstration. Even the great Florida band—with its shining and blaring instruments—had trouble being heard in the matter.

Many Students Going After the "Gator special" had steamed from the station, the students quickly dispersed, for hundreds of them had an important matter at hand, start of a general pilgrimage to Knoxville.

Some will leave by special train tomorrow, while others all afternoon were speeding out of town in automobiles. And others, so the campus story goes, will make the trip by train—but no on the Pullman cushions or coach plush, but by the method that leaves cinders in the eye and soreness in the muscles.

Sentiment here in Gainesville is that the Gators will win handsily, possibly by two touchdowns but that a battle of such intensity

MIZELL RETURNS TO TECH LINEUP FOR LAST GAME

Tech Is Favorite To Win While Gator Is Doped To Down Vols

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 7.—(INS)—Warner "Mighty" Mizell, who has been confined to a hospital with influenza, is again ready to trot on the gridiron, and will step against the Georgia Bulldogs here Saturday afternoon. Mizell, returned to the lineup yesterday.

Tech is a prohibitive favorite to win Saturday and thereby maintain a perfect seasonal conference record, but Georgia is expected to play with the old-fashioned spirit that always marks these contests.

The Bulldogs, it is averred in some quarters, might even finish another upset to frame with the dozen others that have staggered gridiron goings this year.

Florida's Gators, now enroute were expected to arrive in Knoxville late today for their battle with the University of Tennessee Saturday. The Gators will have an overnight stay in which to become acclimated before going against the Vols.

The Gators go against the Tennesseans with the odds in their favor by a slight margin. The game is a crucial one for the two teams that have gone through the season without a conference defeat. Tennessee has the slight edge of a tie game against its

After today's game here Coach Alexander plans to give to a Tornado a week's break in training before sending them into a season of hard practice for their game with California in the bowl boss on New Year's Day.

Grid Star May Be Backed By Biddle For Boxing Career

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(INS)—The new Queensberry firm of Biddle and Bronson, consisting of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., millionaire financier of Rome de Vos, Belgian middleweight, and Jimmy Bronson, who was Gene Tunney's chief adviser in Philadelphia and Chicago, may add some new members to the stable in the near future.

It has become almost a settled fact that Bronson will handle Al Lassman, New York university football star and heavyweight boxer, when he turns professional next summer. Under such an arrangement Lassman could be carefully developed, as there will be no incentive to have him rush along for the money he could draw starting out as a pro.

All boxing men who have seen Lassman in action against college heavyweights brand him as a rare prospect. He is remarkably big for his age, has strong hands and is a wicked hitter.

It is in prospect that anything can happen. There is the hope, of course, that the day will be fair and the field dry, to give the Gator speed merchants their best opportunity.

understood to have been wrapped up and sent home, prepaid, while the association was grooping about the draft. It probably will be announced during the American League meeting next week and if it doesn't include Oscar Foulke, it isn't just on the level.

They say too that Harry Heilmann has played his last game of ball in a Detroit uniform and may be summering in Chicago next season. If Falk's name was also heard about, very recklessly in this connection. The Cleveland Indians they say, likewise are willing to barter with the Sox, which is only as it should be. The Cleveland Indians are ready to barter with almost anyone and almost without provocation. Last we heard the draft question finally will be turned off. It is said, at West Hill in Indiana, in early January. Maybe after that is done, we will all have time to turn our attention to something interesting.

Personal Honesty

Are you honest? You are the only one who can answer his question with absolute certainty. Others may say you are honest or dishonest, but these are merely suppositions.

Personal honesty is a quality which is difficult to keep. Of course, few are honest in the strictest sense of the word.

There are three main reasons why we so frequently break the virtue of honesty. First, we think by doing so we will attain some wish or desire.

Second, we deceive ourselves. We often tell something which is not true in the sense in which we know it was taken by the listener.

The third reason is: we do not believe we will be caught. Some of us think we can keep on committing dishonest acts and still be called honest.

Jack Sneed.

Inferiority Or Superiority Complex

This thing of saying "I can't" is absolutely nothing less than weakness. How much better it would be if we could face squarely, no matter how difficult, all propositions put before us with the grim determination of succeeding.

Of course there are certain exceptions to every rule, but those whose brain cells have failed to develop to maturity are to be pitied, not scorned or laughed at.

For example, consider a child in the lower grades. Here it is that will-power and self-confidence may be developed or retarded. The teacher should consider while starting this little mind on Life's Great Highway, that these two necessary elements must be guarded and cherished.

We must believe in our own ability. An inferiority complex sets up mental barriers which are difficult to surmount. In the classroom this question of inferiority and superiority plays a great part.

Let us consider those people with superiority complexes. They believe themselves superior and more capable of advancement than their fellowmen.

Pete Schirard.

Defense—And How

Some people disgust us! The way some of our respectable grandmothers sit around and talk about how innocent young girls were in the old days is enough to disgust anyone.

We are as innocent as they were, but we are not ignorant! If our grandmothers could see into our minds and read what is truly there, they would understand.

BRINGING IN THE FLOCK

A GIRL'S PHILOSOPHY

Very few people understand the philosophy of the boys and girls of today, especially of the girls. The parents of today worry and ponder a great deal as to what their child is doing and thinking.

The best way for parents to understand their children is to be companionable. Most parents will confess that they encourage confidence. Perhaps they do that with a thing, but most likely they go about it in the wrong manner.

A young girl is very sensitive and needs someone to turn to, someone who will be truthful, youthful, understanding, sympathetic, loving, and helpful.

The average girl of this generation, especially of the smaller towns, has about the same ideas on the following subjects. We feel that the greatest virtue today is frankness and we carry that idea out to a very great extent.

THE REAL CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

"Do your Christmas shopping early," "Don't open until Christmas," "Christmas Greetings." This is the season when these phrases greet our eyes in every place.

There are around us those to whom a small part of our generous Christmas would mean much. How happy we should make these needy people feel if we were to give them some clothes and food.

Few people realize the happiness, peace, and joy of the true Christmas Spirit. One's happiness at Christmas does not depend upon the number and expense of the gifts which he gives or receives.

VIOLATING TRAFFIC ORDINANCES

If we remember correctly, a few years ago we read about automobile accidents of one nature or another, periodically every day.

The people seem to take such a gloomy view on the subject that they are beginning to feel that the...

Necessity Of Laws

Janita McMiller

Laws! What are laws? Why do we have them? These questions never arise in the minds of most people, and they do not realize how much injustice to themselves, to others, and to their country they commit when they disobey laws which seem trivial to them.

Laws, as we understand them, are rules made by the people to regulate their justice, liberty, and safety. Sometimes we hear some say that they are free because they live under so many laws and restrictions.

Very often we disregard a very small law, and the result is a signal, beyond the speeding limit, or disobey some other law, and look that it does not matter, but it does.

Some laws are essential to the maintenance of our safety and liberty, let us each endeavor to understand and obey them.

The Sanford Municipal Library is situated in a very attractive part of the city. It is a large, modern building of Spanish design, with a "cave" and "shrubbery" surrounding it are typical of Florida's beauty.

Upon entering the high arched door, one first comes to the library's desk in the center of a large room. Behind it there are high shelves filled with books. There are two other entrances to this room. The one on the right leads into the children's department. This is usually good for a city of the size of Sanford and contains the best and latest story books in addition to several sets of splendid encyclopedias.

On the left is found a large reading room for adults. This is one of the most delightful and comfortable spots that can be imagined. A person may sit in the library before a huge open fireplace and spend any afternoon comfortably reading.

Until five years ago Sanford had no beautiful library and only a few books. Now there are more than seven thousand volumes, seventy periodicals and seven newspapers in the three rooms combined. We are proud of this improvement and thankful for the opportunities and pleasure which our library affords.

SANFORD ENJOYS ENVIABLE PLACE IN STATE CENTER

Strategic Location Is Boon To Progress Of The City Substantially

By Grace Entaminger

Sanford is located in the south central section of Florida, on Lake Monroe, which body of water is the heart of navigation on the St. Johns River. The distance between Jacksonville and Sanford by water is one hundred and ninety-eight miles, and Sanford is midway between Jacksonville and Tampa, on the trunk line of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, approximately 125 miles from each of these points. Sanford is in the central part of what is generally termed Peninsular Florida.

Sanford is Florida's twelfth largest city. The population in 1920 was 10,800, and in 1925 it is estimated at 11,000, or an increase of approximately 100 per cent.

The citizenry of Sanford is made up of the best people from the other 47 States in the Union. Sanford's population can be termed distinctly American, and free from any objectionable foreign elements. About 25 percent of the population are negroes.

The Sanford Chamber of Commerce receives annually hundreds of inquiries for employment. It endeavors to place individuals who make personal appreciation. It is very unusual practice to employ anyone at long distance. To those who are seeking employment in Sanford, the suggestion is offered that if possible, a visit be made. There are generally openings for skilled mechanics in the building trade, but to those desiring clerical positions, especially during the winter season, applicants for such positions are greatly in excess of openings. Experienced stenographers, as a rule, find it easy to secure employment. Farm labor is mostly by negroes. Employment for automobile and other mechanics is generally governed by the amount of floating population during the winter season.

In conformity to the system of the State of Florida, all Sanford schools are under the direct supervision and control of the county superintendent who is assisted in this work by the supervisors and trustees of the special tax school districts. In the Sanford district of Seminole County, there are special schools, high school, grammar school and three primary schools and schools for colored people.

Sanford is charged visitors by the school authorities. The Seminole High School is on the accredited list of both the State College and all institutions of higher learning in the southern group of states. This permitting graduation of this school admission to any reputable college.

Sanford boasts of having churches of practically every denomination. The church buildings reflect not only the general prosperity of the city but also the numerical strength of their congregations. They are well attended, well supported and their pulpits filled by able men. With the powerful support of Sanford's church organizations, the city of Sanford is ready to develop along these lines which have always been acknowledged as essential to its material development.

The following are Sanford's leading civic organizations: the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club and the Lions Club. The Womens Club is particularly prominent in social and civic work.

Sanford is the railroad center for central Florida. It is the connecting point for Lakeland, Ocala, Leesburg, Fort Pierce, Kissimmee and other communities on branch lines which terminate at Sanford.

Sanford is one of the principal terminals of the Orange Belt Auto Line. This company operates bus lines to all East Coast and Central Florida points.

Sanford is particularly and justly noted as its hotel accommodations. In the matter of conveniences these hotels are modern to meet the term tourist. Rates are reasonable, and are furnished with attention.

The favorable climate in the winter, which usually brings a large number of tourists to the State, is in Sanford's climate. The numerous resorts which they visit in winter. It is true that the climate is not ideal for the winter months, but for only a few months of the year.

MUSIC OF TODAY IS OUTGROWTH OF AGES OF EFFORT

Development Traced From Old Tom-Tom Tunes Of Cave Men

By Marguerite Garney

The music of today is the result of the uncultured music of long ago and of the tedious labors of many great musicians. Few of us realize how many years have been spent in the development of music and the instruments which give us so much pleasure today.

There has been music since the earth was first inhabited by man. Of course when we say music we do not mean the beautiful compositions of melody, harmony and rhythm which we have at the present time. However, there has always been some crude form of music in which man has expressed his emotions, his love, his hate, his height or peak of his shipments occur during March, when daily shipments total one hundred cars. We could name many reasons why we, the people of Sanford are proud of our city and want to tell the world about it, but we will let them visit us and see for themselves.

and his sorrow. Even the wildest savages of the early ages sang their mysterious songs of triumph after a victorious battle. Later there were the Indians who danced and sang by the light of the moon and the stars, keeping time to the weird music of the tom-tom. All this was music, but of a rough form, created by the uncivilized people who lived in the early ages.

There is a myth which the Greeks tell of a beautiful wood nymph called Syrinx. She was frightened by the god Pan and called upon the water nymphs to protect her. So in order to shelter her from harm, they transformed her into a water weed which swayed and sighed in the wind. One day as Pan was walking along the seashore, he heard the reeds whispering in the breeze. Surprised at the sound, he rushed to the reeds and grasped one of them. The sound immediately ceased and Pan sighed sadly, but as he sighed he was delighted to hear the sweet music come from the reeds again. In this way he learned that by blowing upon the hollow reeds he could make beautiful music. This is what the Greeks claim to be the origin of their instrument called the syrinx or "pipe of pan."

From the Bible, we learn that even the ancient Hebrew people had their music. At that time Jubal was known as "the father of all those who handle the harp and the organ." Also in the temple of king Solomon there were thousands of priests with their trumpets and harps. The psalms we read from the Bible are really the words to Hebrew songs. They were sung or chanted by large choruses in the Hebrew temples. Although the Hebrews were lovers of music, they left no manuscripts and their music was memorized by musicians who passed it on to others.

Now we come to the Greeks, the first people to leave any records of music. At first the form in which it was written was very crude. The musical notes were represented by the letters of the alphabet and written above the words of the songs.

It was not, however, until the Christian era that the first steps were taken toward real music. This was in 590 A. D. when Pope Gregory the Great revised the music of the church and introduced the "Gregorian Chant." Then, something later the young monk, Guido of Arezzo of Italy declared that he was dissatisfied with the music and introduced a system of setting square musical notes on a staff. It was a system similar to the one used today.

Palastina born in 1521 is said to be the first composer to have really considered music very seriously. Following his death in 1594 there were no more great masters until the coming of Handel and Bach.

Some of the present musicians who have given us great compositions are Debussy, Strauss, Rachmaninoff and many other great artists. Interest in good music should be promoted in all our public schools. There should be a teacher in every school to instruct pupils in right singing and to help organize choruses and orchestras. We should study music for we cannot appreciate it unless we understand it.

ALEX VAUGHAN TELLS SOME OF EARLY HISTORY

Community's First Name Was Mayfair While Mellonville Was Later Adopted

10 Families Lived Here In Civil War

Pioneer Recalls Gen. Sanford's Work And Other Events Of Day

By Rose Hurt

In an interview the other day, one of Sanford's pioneer citizens gave us some interesting incidents about the history of Sanford.

Alexander Vaughan said that his father came to this vicinity before Sanford existed. He arrived in December of 1837 by boat down the St. Johns, and landed a place called Mayfair. The dock was a little beyond the place where the Hotel Forest Lake now stands.

This little settlement, was merely a station for a few regular troops occupying Florida while it was a territory. Mr. Vaughan told of an interesting incident which occurred a month before his father arrived at Mayfair. One night in November a large number of Indians surrounded the little station and fired on the soldiers. The killed only one man who was Captain Mellon. The name Mayfair was changed to Mellonville by the soldiers in honor of Captain Mellon.

The soldiers were greatly outnumbered, but they had two crud gun-boats anchored in front of the dock, in which there happened to be some soldiers. When they realized what was happening the immediately fired upon the Indians. The guns on the boat were stationary so that the shots fired merely tore some of the limbs from the trees. As these branches began to fall the Indians became thoroughly frightened. With screams of terror they fled into the forest and never came back. They believed some God was working in evil.

Mr. Vaughan said that when the Civil War broke out there were only ten families in this vicinity and from these homes five boys left never to return.

Mr. Vaughan told of the dreadful years of '92 to '99 when Sanford was completely isolated. The Union Army held what is now Volusia County and the Confederates held this side of the river. There was not a store within 100 miles in which to get supplies of any kind. Though there was a store at Gainesville and another at Palatka, they could not be reached on account of war conditions. Every garment had to be manufactured in the home. Every mouthful of food had to be raised or killed at home.

These 10 families were the real pioneers of Sanford. They grew their own cotton, set their own looms and made their own cloth. For the first year every one wore white clothing as there were no dyes. The following year dyes were made from berries.

Mr. Vaughan gave an incident from his own family life. Toward the end of the war, though general conditions were better, their salt gave out. This was serious. Mr. Vaughan's father had a smoke house, in which he kept all the smoked and salted meats. He dug up the soil from under the smoke house and rinsed it many times in water and then let it dry. It was black but it was salt, which is one of the necessities of life. Knowing that this could not last, Mr. Vaughan said that his father and uncle slipped out under cover of night and went to Oak Hill at the head of an river. They brought back all the salt that two mules could haul. They carried a large part of it, fearing that the soldiers of either side would take it.

Mr. Vaughan said that after the war people began settling here. In 1869 General Grant sold General Sanford the grant which is now Sanford.

In speaking of the development of Sanford, Mr. Vaughan said that the first store that was built was in the present location of the Wright Grocery Company. There was a house on First Street used as a post office.

The first hotel was the famous one built by Mr. Vaughan himself in 1872. It is now known as Sanford Avenue. By this time there were a few houses in Sanford though they were all shacks.

The next hotel was the famous Sanford House built in '74 on the lake front. Many of the citizens of Sanford have pleasant memories of the good times in this gay hotel.

Mr. Vaughan gives a description of the first railroad which ran from Sanford to Kissimmee. President Grant was here and turned the ground to start work on the new road. When it was completed very inhabitant of Sanford boarded the flat cars and made a glorious trip to Orlando. The track of the railroad was very narrow and the engines so small that a modern locomotive would make five of them. At this end of the line the track ran out on a dock where the freight was transferred to the boats and taken to Jacksonville.

From that time Sanford grew from '75 to '94, the country was a state of amazing development. The "orange fever" set in and everybody planted orange groves. Mr. Vaughan reported there was prosperity on every hand. Then came the disastrous freeze of '94. The groves were frozen and people deserted Sanford by the hundreds. Houses valued at $10,000 to $15,000 could be bought for less than five hundred dollars.

Sanford was in a serious condition and money was scarce. Something had to be done. To remedy the situation the inhabitants began truck farming. Celery became the foremost production. Mr. Vaughan said that this was the only thing that saved the county. Sanford slowly but surely climbed to the top again.

Mr. Vaughan has the utmost faith in Sanford. He watched it go down under the freeze and saw it climb back to higher heights. Although Sanford has been injured in the boom and the bank failure, it is climbing again. His belief can not be shaken because Sanford has a firm foundation.

Mr. Vaughan thinks that the county is in good condition and that it will not be long before the same can be said of Sanford, "Our City Substantial."

Sanford Is Ideally Situated As Trade And Shipping Point

By Zelda Varn

Sanford is the largest inland commercial city in Florida due to its situation on the St. Johns River and its railroad center. Seminole county has been called the biggest little county in Florida.

The St. John's Transportation Line operates three times a week freighting vegetables and fruit between Jacksonville and Sanford. Much of the commerce of Sanford is not sent by boat however, as Sanford is the railroad center for all of central Florida. A large part of our produce is sent by railroad, especially that which is going to inland cities and states.

The following statements of vegetables and fruit shippers from Sanford and Seminole County was prepared from Railroad Records:

Celery, 6542 carloads. Mixed Vegetables, 371 carloads. Escarole, 308 carloads. Lettuce, 303 carloads. Peppers, 111 carloads. Romaine, 78 carloads. Beans, 71 carloads. Squash, 11 carloads. Potatoes, 10 carloads. Chicory, 2 carloads. Citrus (estimated) 600 carloads. From the following statistics we can readily see that Sanford is a thriving commercial center.

Murrow Is Named State Auditor To Succeed W. V. Knott

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 6. Appointment of W. St. Murrow, assistant state auditor, as state auditor, succeeding W. V. Knott, recently appointed state treasurer, has been announced by Governor Martin.

Mr. Murrow is a native of Thomas county, Georgia. He attended school at Gainesville and graduated at Mercer university in the class of 1892. He has served as a bookkeeper, printer and telegrapher, and later was cashier of a bank at Jasper for more than 10 years.

Mr. Murrow entered state work in 1915, when he was appointed by Comptroller Ernest Amos as a county finance expert. He was later made bank examiner, state auditor, and upon creation of the state auditor's department, was made an assistant state auditor. He was appointed acting state auditor when Mr. Knott was appointed state treasurer.

The governor also announced the appointment of E. G. Hauslet, of Orlando, as assistant state auditor to fill one of the several vacancies still existing in that department.

Much Constructive Work Is Accomplished In High School By Boys' HI-Y Club

Representative Organization Carries On Activities Under McKay's Supervision; H. C. Waters Jr. Heads The Club

By H. C. Waters Jr.

In preparing to see man lived alone. Later he found it necessary to unite with others for protection. From this unity grew nations.

Today the same thing is taking place. Not only among nations but among the youth of his world. This unification is not for the purpose of protection but for the accomplishment of good.

One of the greatest and possibly the strongest is the Young Men's Christian Association, or a really known as the Y. M. C. A. This organization has many phases under its supervision.

In nearly every high school here is a branch of this great organization called the HI-Y Club. This club is composed of the most representative boys in the school. There is in the Seminole High School just such a club. Possibly most of the citizens of Sanford have not heard of this club, which has been in existence for about four years. During this time it has accomplished many things in behalf of the school.

In carrying on its work the members have the aid and counsel of the principal of the school, Mr. McKay.

The fact that the club has such a man for its advisor is an asset. By this arrangement the principal is able to get a direct view of the student body from the members. In the meetings of the club the different regulations of the school

New Kind Of Cotton Is Found In Texas

WACO, Texas, Dec. 4. (AP)—Farmers and students of cotton life have been greatly interested in a variety of cotton from the covered near Waco, Texas. The fleece is a much known type discovered in a single stalk of the cotton growing in the banks of the Brazos river about the year 1850. He has grown cotton for many years, carefully selecting the best each year. He has had a fine number of cotton plants in his field. He has been successful in growing them.

The publication of the first high school paper, known as the Celery Leaf, is a very important step in the development of the school. The present officers of the club are: President—H. C. LAWTON TELLS HOW SCHOOLS ARE OPERATED

General And Special Tax Levies Imposed To Raise Funds To Meet All Expenses

School Control Is Vested In Board

10,000 Pupils Enroll In County, Sanford Having 60 Per Cent

By Natalie Earnworth

In explaining how the schools are operated, Mr. Lawton said that the school board of the county is the governing body. This tax levied upon general school tax all property of the county, and a special tax of ten cents on the citizens of each of the six special districts, a portion of the mill state tax distributed in taxes of the one cent, one cent and one fourth cent. These taxes combined together a revenue of approximately $2,000,000 per year. The county superintendent stationed in Sanford, the schools are operated in which consists of a board of public instruction. This board is composed of three members representing three districts of the county, but elected every two years by the county at large. The present board includes Fred Williams of Sanford, chairman; J. H. Longwood and M. E. Kelly of Geneva. The secretary of the board is the County Superintendent who is elected for a four year term. As the board meets once a month, practically all the duties of the administration are delegated to the superintendent. The county unit system provides

Mr. Lawton reported that there are 150 teachers in Seminole County and they had 100 percent membership at the recent state convention. Seminole County also recently won the State Health League award which was due to the services of Miss Mary Graves. This also was due to the various cafeterias in the schools operated by the Parent Teacher's Association. These facts will help to explain how our school system is run and we all will have a better understanding of how the schools are financed.

SYSTEMATIC WAY OF RUNNING HIGH SCHOOL PRAISED

Student Asks Patrons To Discourage Criticism That Is Unfair

By H. C. Wilcox Jr.

Not only by the people of Sanford, but in all localities in which there is a high school, unjust criticisms are directed toward the school in general and members of the faculty.

Of course it is understood that everything can bear criticism to a certain extent, but on the other hand one must bear in mind that the faculty of a school has a very heavy job. Imagine a school having about 500 students enrolled, the majority of whom are under sixteen, (by under sixteen the writer means those students who have not as yet become old enough to understand the true teachings of a high school). The instructor of a subject must know the individual characteristics of each one of these students, both upper and lower classes, before the task of training the mind can be started.

Our high school is managed in a systematic way, just as our business hours are. It would be worth your time to visit our school and see the way in which the work is carried on.

The routine of each day's work is set at all simple. Each class takes up a period of 45 minutes. At the end of this period a bell rings for a five minute recess. At the end of this recess a bell rings for the beginning of the next class. This routine is followed immediately and the same routine is followed in every class.

At the end of the given five minutes all are quiet and work is resumed. The student is allowed to enter a class after the three minute bell is rung, unless he has a permit from the principal.

This may seem a little strict, but it is a fact, much to the credit of our present faculty.

When you hear slanderous remarks about the school or faculty, find out the truth before forming an opinion. The advice of a few narrow-minded people will not help you. The student is allowed to enter a class after the three minute bell is rung, unless he has a permit from the principal.

The majority of the students of the high school will tell you that they are pleased with things as they are. Only those who have done something wrong will contradict this statement. If you hear a student say anything against the school, just ask him what offense he has committed. You will all want to hit the nail on the head.

The members of the senior class do not only think that they have the best class in school, but also that they belong to the best school in the state of Florida. One will not find an ineligible player on any of the A. H. R. teams, much to the credit of our worthy principal, Mr. McKay.

Perhaps it is partly true that this modern age of youth is wilder than that of previous years. But at the same time in addition to being wild it has a lot more sense than that knows right from wrong. The writer can say this for a fact, because he happens to be one of this wild group. When a person accuses us of wrong which we know we have not done, like an arrow it drives to the heart. Yes, we have hearts too, although some of them may seem hidden.

We do not try to appear to have more sense than our superiors, but at the same time we are not to be fooled, neither do we like to be treated as babies. All we ask is a fair chance. Will you give us this chance? Thanks.

You can please all of the people all of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can please all of the people all of the time.

Ex-Wife Sues For Breach of Promise

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Violet Marchant is suing her ex-husband for $50,000 damages for breach of promise to marry her while they were engaged.

It is reported that the plaintiff was engaged to the defendant for a period of two years and that she had incurred considerable expenses in preparing for the wedding.

The defendant, it is said, had a change of heart and refused to marry her, leaving her with a large sum of money in debt.

The case is expected to be tried in the near future.

With the aid of Mr. Wolf of the Y. M. C. A., the officers and sponsors of the club have prepared a well organized program for the current year.

Among the events are, the banquet for the football team parents night, mothers and daughters banquet, educational tours to St. Augustine, and the boat trip.

Interesting Facts About Presidents are Furnished By High School Pupil Here

Washington Wore No. 13 Boots And James Monroe Was Last To Wear Knee Breeches Van Buren First To Ride On Train

By Grace Oviatt
Many writers have sung the praises of our more eminent statesmen, but I write to present some interesting details of certain men who have not held the world's attention.

George Washington's little hat is scorned by many writers who spare the more misleading truth that he was born with a gold spoon in his mouth. He was one of the same clay as most Americans who have won high leadership and like them, he cut his teeth in the crust of poverty. From the bare soles of his feet, which were in No. 13 boots, to the top of his head, Washington measured six feet two. His enormous hands, with their knobby knuckles, required gloves, specially made, massive yet lean, his sinewy frame always remained under two hundred pounds.

Without a child of his own, Washington always had a large family to support. He adopted or brought up nine children belonging to relatives, and forty-one relatives received bequests at his death.

Do you know who were the two tallest and who were the two shortest presidents? George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were the two tallest and James Madison and Ulysses Grant were the two shortest.

Our last President to cling to the ancient knee breeches cockade and sword was James Monroe. He was as plain and as easy as an old shoe. When a newly arrived European diplomat saw a bald-headed, watery-eyed man in a striped serjeant's coat, a dirty waistcoat spotted with ink, sitting at a White House desk, he wondered that the President should have such a slovenly clerk until he was dumbfounded to find that he was in the presence of the President himself.

John Quincy Adams holds the record of having been the youngest and the oldest public servant. From boyhood, when he was a secretary of legation at the extraordinary age of fourteen, until he fell at his post in the halls of Congress in his eighty-fifth year, he was in the service of his country fifty-five of those sixty-seven years.

At fourteen the "nature youth" was secretary of the American legation in Russia. He was the first American minister to knock at the Brandenburg Gate. He led a very simple life in the White House. Getting up at five, he built a fire, read his daily portion of the Bible and took his walk or swim while the government clerks were still asleep. One morning as he was enjoying himself in the waters of the Potomac, somebody stole his clothes from the bank.

What must have been the surprise of a passing boy when a short, fat, bald-headed man who was pacing the shore in a state of nature, shouted at him to run up to the White House and tell Mrs. Adams for a suit of clothes for his birth Hiram Ulysses Grant. Although simple and modest by nature, he yet preferred classical Ulysses to homely Hiram, and so he parted his name in the middle. As he was starting for West Point he became fearful that his name would nickname him Hug, and he turned H. Ulysses around making it Ulysses H. On his arrival at the military academy he found that his name had been changed again by the cadetship. This neighbor of the family having named that Ulysses' middle name was Simpson, because his mother was a Simpson. Since the government never changed the name on the roster U. S. Grant he had to remain ever after. The cadets nicknamed him "Sam". James Abram Garfield was the last President to come from a log cabin. He is the only President who saw himself nominated.

Grover Cleveland was the only President who served two terms which were not consecutive. His second marriage, which was to Miss Polson, was the first one in the White House. Theodore Roosevelt was with Jackson the most popular of our Presidents. With the exception of Lincoln, he was the most outstanding character that we have had in the Presidency. Having overcome the dread of a farm, the second farmer's son since Lincoln. In the days of his youth, he was John Galois, having been named for his father, but the Stephen (Grover Cleveland) and Thomas Woodrow Wilson, he dropped his first name when he went out into public life.

Who was the first western President? It was William Henry Harrison. He was the first President to die in office.

John Tyler was the first President by succession. James Knox Polk was the first President whose nomination was reported by telegraph.

Zachary Taylor was the first United States army man to be President, the second and only one being General Grant.

Millard Fillmore's daughter installed the first library in the White House.

Franklin Pierce was a roasting youth who did not let his studies interfere with his pleasures. When he discovered in his junior year that he stood at the foot of a class, his first thought was to drop out of college altogether rather than to give up his diversions. For three months he rose at four and retired at midnight and gave to studies all but four of the twenty-four hours. He graduated third in his class.

Did we have a bachelor President? Yes, it was James Buchanan. Disappointed in one love affair, he never took another woman to heart.

Abraham Lincoln is our first President to be born beyond the boundaries of the 13 original States. With no tradition of a colonial or Old World origin, he was in truth, "New Birth" of our new soil, the first American.

Lincoln's law partner found his informality a trial. Their office was to him only a shelter, and his desk a footrest. He wrote on his knee; he kept no books and he filed his papers in his tall stove-pipe hat until it was full, when he dumped its contents in a pile and wrote on top of the pile "If you can't find it anywhere else, look in here."

What were the last words of Abraham Lincoln? The last words, "There is no place I should like so well as Jerusalem."

Our only President who never went to school was Andrew Johnson.

Ulysses Simpson Grant's life was a failure until he was thirty-nine. The most interesting fact about his life was the changing of his name. He was named at

EXPLORER AVERS AFRICA SOON TO BE MINUS GAME

English Naturalist Is Bitter In Attacks On Hunters Of Animals

LONDON, Dec. 8. — Predicting that within twenty years there will be no big game left in Central Africa, Cherry Kearton, the famous English naturalist and explorer, bitterly attacks big game hunters who shoot just for the fun of destroying.

Kearton, who knows Central Africa as well as any man living, recently returned to Durban, South Africa, after a journey through big game country lasting several months, during which he filmed wild animals in their natural surroundings.

"The country was strewn with expeditions," Kearton said. "There was a trail of destruction in many cases outrageous. In places where I once encountered thousands of head of game there was no living creature."

Unnecessary Killing
"Near Nairobi, Kenya Colony from where the majority of big game expeditions nowadays start there is so much game killed and wounded every week end that on Mondays vultures can be seen circling on every side."

Athor S. Verney, another English big game hunter, who is leaving London shortly to shoot big game in India for the American Museum of Natural History, New York does not see eye to eye with Kearton, however.

"There is more danger of game becoming extinct in India than in Africa, because the game laws there are not so strictly enforced," Verney said.

"In my opinion, however, there is no reason to fear a shortage of big game. The finer specimens are undoubtedly being shot out both in India and Africa, but there is no danger of the various species being wiped out altogether."

The chief trouble nowadays, according to Verney, is that many people, the majority of them of the "new rich" type take up big game hunting as kind of joy ride.

Elephants Scarce
"They seem to think it is rather the thing to do," Verney said in explanation. "They go out with the animals they wish to shoot or hunt in the morning and shoot them."

"This party explains why so much game is merely wounded. You see, one of the ethics of shooting big game is that, having wounded an animal, you must either gnally dispose of it or follow it up until you entirely lose track of it."

"Fortunately the game laws around Kenya are very strict, and I know there are plenty of rhinoceros. I have seen as many as half a dozen in a day. Lions, too, are very plentiful in certain districts."

"Elephants with big tusks are very scarce. Still I do not foresee a shortage of big game, because the game laws are carefully enforced, and there is an increasing agitation to make them even more strict."

INDICTED FOR MURDER

ATLANTA, Dec. 8. — (INS) — Charged with the slaying of Hal Davis, Atlanta business man, in a "Peach" triangle, W. L. Shippey, warehouse clerk late today was indicted for murder. Shippey confessed to the slaying to police, claiming he shot Davis five times because he resented the latter's attentions to his wife.

Visit To Municipal Zoo Is Described By Girl Student In Letter To Friend

Dear Mabel:
This afternoon I overcame my natural aversion to being anywhere near a Police Station and made a visit to the zoo. You should have seen the queer things I saw! I sauntered down the path leading to the first cage, and there I saw two immense bears. One was a Canadian bear, and the other was a Florida bear. They looked very lazy, but I didn't feel like bothering them to find out, I am so kind-hearted that way.

A few cages down I saw a very peculiar animal in the cage with three squirrels. I don't believe he has a name, but he looks like a cross between a pig and a squirrel. You can draw your own conclusions as to his funny appearance.

And you should have seen the baby owl! Really, he looks ever so solemn to be so young. One look at that fellow makes all my Seniors dignity come back to me.

There were foxes and a wolf there, too. I liked the wolf best. He was so doggish looking. I'll admit I was wondering why they had shut up that beautiful dog when I heard someone say that it was a wolf. Sometimes ignorance is not so blissful!

And snakes! My dear, don't you just loathe the squirmy, hideous things? One actually stuck out his tongue at me! And, as he couldn't reach me, I promptly returned the compliment.

Of course there were monkeys there. Ringtails and Rhesus. Now figure that out. Anyway, they looked so human that I felt right queer, and I hastened to the next cage.

I just love little brown furry rabbits. And I found two there. I did want to take them home with me—but besides the advice of my very active conscience, I was still quite close to the long arm of the law.

I know you have seen the alligator, otter, turtles, and the sword fish. Ugly things, aren't they? But of all the water animals I love the ducks best. Gee! I'd like to swim as well as they do.

As I was looking at the old one someone said "Look in the cage behind you!" I whirled around and help us Hannah! There was a cage of hoard, sagely, white mice! Light! I don't even think they're cute.

I loved the deer, though. Aren't they pretty things? I've always had a dead-end weakness for horses.

My dear, I actually tried to touch the parrot to sing our High School song and the dumb brute simply refused to sing a note, or repeat a word. Well, some animals and some people just can't learn!

I almost forgot to tell you that I saw some guinea pigs, white rabbits, and a mouse. They're so love a reason out they're so collegiate you know! I saw that huge eagle, too.

I'm going again soon. Mabel. Don't you want to go with me? But I know you do. Just say you will please me. I adore animals! My dear!

As ever,
MARTHA FITTS

Dog's Gratitude Is Best Characteristic

By Elliot Betris

A good dog's gratitude is one of his most admirable characteristics. When you have done some kind thing for your pet, doesn't it make your heart swell to see him wag his tail, to hear his joyous barks, and to watch his movements, as he tries to express his appreciation?

Now if being grateful is a fine quality in an animal, it is even finer in a human being. We naturally have more sense and more intelligence than dogs, and if a dog knows enough to appreciate what is done for him, shouldn't we be ashamed of ourselves if we are not?

Yet all too frequently human beings are ungrateful, careless or thoughtless enough to forget their benefactors, and other expressions of appreciation to those who have favored them.

Beautification Has Become Keynote In Florida Civic Work

By Lucille Holt

Impressive efforts to beautify home grounds, parks and public buildings are the most prominent activity making Florida the beautiful land it is unimagined to be.

The agencies should be made more beautiful. The beautification of natural vegetation should be either restored or replaced. Street trees should be planted to the curb, and the wild flowers should be preserved. By doing so with our boards and rubbers, the state will be improving its highways one hundred per cent.

The homes of our state should be surrounded by more shrubs and should give a neat and restful appearance. In keeping the back yards and alleys perfectly clean and planting hedges to make a neat border, property owners are adding a great deal to the appearance of their homes.

Think back to the days of the early city, and give the citizens a place of recreation. More are needed in our cities, for a beautiful park which is carpeted with stretches of lawn and planted with our native palms and shrubs, makes a lovely landscape for the tourists to enjoy.

With the help of all its citizens, Sanford can make this city one of Florida's most beautiful.

Benefits Of College Education Are Given By Seminole High School Girl

By Minnie Lou Hunter

If a young man or woman is completing a college course, it is not only for the sake of the degree, but for the sake of the education and the opportunity to keep looking toward that goal. It is a very important thing to be a young person, and to be a young person, you must be a young person, and to be a young person, you must be a young person.

Benjamin Franklin was a very wise man. He said, "Education is the best investment you can make." He was right. Education is the best investment you can make.

Education is the best investment you can make. It is the best investment you can make. It is the best investment you can make. It is the best investment you can make.

By Minnie Lou Hunter

When you see the stars and stripes displayed, stand up and take off your hat. Somebody may laugh at you. It is in the blood of some to do all expressions of noble sentiment. But do not pay any attention to them! When the Glory comes along, salute, and then say what they please. No matter where you are, if you hear the "Star Spangled Banner" being played, get up even if you are alone, stand there, and don't be ashamed of it!

Of all the symbols since the world began, there is none other so full of meaning as our flag. That piece of red, white, and blue means five hundred years of struggle upward. It is the flag, grown flower of ages fighting for liberty. It is the century plant of human hope in bloom.

Our flag stands for humanity for the opportunity to all people. Other flags mean a glorious past, ours a glorious future. It is not so much the flag of our fathers, but the flag of our children. It is the flag of tomorrow.

The tribute to the flag is offered to the country in appeal to all men and women of all races, so that they may come to understand that our flag is a symbol of liberty and learn to love it.
