Sabotage suspected in crash

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Authorities scoured a 4-mile stretch of wreckage-strewn countryside today searching for clues to the explosion that destroyed a plane carrying President Zia ul-Haq, the U.S. ambassador to Pakistan and several senior military officers.

Acting President Ghulam Is Haq Khan said sabotage could not be ruled out and ordered an investigation into the Wednesday crash that killed everyone aboard the C-130 transport shortly after it took off from the city of Bahawalpur, 450 miles south of the capital of Islamabad.

Bush takes GOP reins tonight

NEW ORLEANS — Vice President George Bush accepts the 1988 Republican presidential nomination tonight with a nationally televised speech seen as crucial to his struggling campaign against Democrat Michael Dukakis.

The 64-year-old Bush described the prime-time address, expected at about 8:30 p.m. CDT, as "probably the most important" of his long political career.

The objective, he explained upon winning his party's nomination Wednesday night, will be to "come out of this convention with some forward motion, spelling out some of the differences with my opponent and saying where I want to take this country."

Voter numbers skyrocket

SANFORD — For the first time in history, Seminole County voters total over 100,000. The county supervisor of elections office indicates 101,794 people have registered for the Sept. 6 primary. The figure represents a 16-percent increase from when the registration books were closed for the first time in 1984.

Elections Supervisor Sandy Guard attributes the increase in voter interest to this being a presidential election year, the steady increase in population, and the larger number of deputy registrars aiding in volunteer voter registration sponsored by clubs and organizations.

"I deputized over 300 volunteers this year," Guard said. "That's the highest number ever."

Republicans have increased their majority in Seminole County. In Oct., 1984, they edged slightly over Democrats for the first time by less than a one-percent margin.

By the close of the books on Aug. 6,

Republicans had gained a 52-percent to 40-percent edge over Democrats.

Margaret Wimberly, president and a founder of the SAWTOC south Seminole County Republican women's club, said the national party has a drive on to register a majority of Republicans throughout the nation prior to the 1990 census when congressional districts will be redrawn.

Wimberly said her club registered 1,857 new voters this year, with about 60 percent of them registering as Republicans.

Store ordered to buy camera

LONGWOOD — Anyone bent on crime at Amoco Oil Co.'s billing station-convenience store will find himself on candid camera. Installation of an audio-video surveillance camera was made a condition of the city commission's approval of permission to build the store.

Marcus Marchena, representing Amoco, balked Monday night at the added expense of having to install the camera, when plans called for bulletproof glass windows to protect the clerk and bulletproof doors which could be lowered to keep out persons posing a threat to the customers inside and employees.

The motion to require the camera as part of the approval package was passed by the city commission 4-1 with Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis voting 'no'.

Dennis said she could not require anyone to install a camera until the city has an ordinance requiring them. Mayor Dave Ginter and Commissioner Hank Hardy wanted Amoco to volunteer to the installation, but Marchena said he did not have the authority.

The proposed requirement was tacked on as an afterthought by City Planner Chris Nagle on the Aug. 10 recommendation of Police Chief Greg Manning. The conditional use request had already been approved by the design review board in May and the land planning agency on June 22.

DeMarte said the camera was a "great suggestion." He said Amoco was "well heeled."

Tragedy haunts slain businessman's family

By WAYNE MIZE

SANFORD — Occasionally, an insignificant event can provide a simple and realistic reflection of much larger circumstances.

The lights have recently been turned off in Mr. C's Southern Fried Chicken restaurant on 2100 S. French Ave. and a "For Sale" sign rests in the window. The lights had been left on in Mr. C's since the night of April 29.

That was the night Litch Yu, the business owner, was stabbed more than 15 times by a man who wanted money to buy drugs.

Police have identified the murderer as Merle Coffield, who has so far eluded authorities. He was almost captured in South Carolina two months ago, and has seemingly disappeared.

The Yu family has continued to experience tragedy in the wake of Litch's murder.

Yu's father, Fu-Lai, was flying from Taiwan to the United States to administer to his dead son's affairs when he experienced a stroke, while in flight from Tokyo to Los Angeles.

Fu-Lai was in a Los Angeles hospital for six weeks before he was flown back to Taiwan, where he remains in a coma.

One of Yu's sisters and his adopted son Perry, beset by Yu's murder and a subsequent heart attack suffered by Yu's father Fu-Lai, have returned to their native Taiwan as if to gain strength to help overcome their suffering.

Yu's brother Lin Sam Yu, of LaPalma, Calif., has recently returned from Taiwan, while sister Wendy Liu has returned to Suspect Sanford's 'most wanted'

By WAYNE MIZE

SANFORD — Merle Coffield, 38, a known cocaine addict, is wanted on a first-degree murder warrant for the killing of Litch Yu.

Yu, 32, was murdered and robbed of approximately $100 at his restaurant, Mr. C's Southern Fried Chicken on 2100 S. French Ave., on April 29.

Yu was stabbed over 15 times, not counting "defense wounds" to his hands and arms, according to an autopsy report.

Coffield was positively linked to the crime by physical evidence recovered by police — a large knife and an empty cash box found a few blocks from the murder scene.

"Through our investigation, physical evidence, and interviewing people known to the suspect, we were able to establish probable cause and an absolute connection of Coffield with this case," said Steven Harriett, Sanford Chief of Police.

Thus Coffield became Sanford's "most wanted fugitive," according to Harriett.

Harriett said Coffield spent the money obtained in the murder robbery to purchase cocaine.

"We were able to determine how the money, which was a very small amount, was spent," said Harriett. "Our investigative results show it was just to purchase drugs, specifically cocaine."

Coffield had been in the Sanford area for approximately three months prior to the murder, according to Harriett.

He continues to elude authorities despite concentrated efforts by law enforcement agencies in the three states he is known to visit — Florida, South Carolina and Massachusetts.

Coffield is also wanted in Boston as a suspect in a brutal homicide. "The person was beaten beyond recognition," the police chief said.

Harriett said Tuesday Coffield was almost apprehended two months ago.

"South Carolina deputies went to a place we had developed through our investigation. It was a place Coffield was known to visit. Apparently, they just missed him," he said.

Case information on the crime and Coffield were entered into the National Crime Information Center computer, which allows any law enforcement officer across the nation quick access to information when a person is apprehended and is suspected of other crimes.

A $5,000 reward is still being offered by the Chinese-American Association and other organizations, for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Yu's killer.

Wanted posters throughout the state describe Coffield as being 5-6 and 140 lbs., with a mole on the Rocket leak repair ahead of schedule

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Rocket mechanics breezed through the initial phases of a tricky repair job to cut through a cargo bay bulkhead aboard the shuttle Discovery to expose and plug a persistent fuel leak in a steering rocket system.

The repair work began at 2:05 p.m. Wednesday when engineers with shuttle-builder Rockwell International, using a metal router, began cutting two holes in the rear bulkhead of Discovery's 80-foot payload bay.

The first phase of the space shuttle surgery was complete three hours later, and the repair team planned to cut two more holes through an underlying bulkhead overnight, exposing a leaky fuel line fitting today that is the target of the repair job.

The repair plan called for a hollow clamshell-like device to be bolted around the fitting and injected with sealant under 2,000 pounds of pressure. Once the sealant sets, the leak will be eliminated.

Engineers will use high-tech gas snuffers to make sure the leak is gone before removable panels are mounted over the bulkhead openings. The repair job could be completed over the weekend, clearing the way for Discovery's $100 million satellite payload to be installed in the cargo bay.

The repair operation was approved by NASA managers as the best way to fix the leak without having to haul Discovery back to its hangar for repairs, which would have delayed the first post-Challenger flight by several weeks.

As it is, NASA hopes to launch Discovery in late September, assuming no more problems crop up.

One potential problem, a hydrogen leak in a different part of the shuttle, apparently does not pose a threat to the launch schedule.

That leak, located in a housing around fuel lines carrying liquid hydrogen propellant into Discovery's engine compartment, was detected after last week's main engine test firing.

A 3.8 percent concentration of hydrogen was detected in the housing, apparently coming from a small leak involving a 4-inch hydrogen line, but engineers said Wednesday the allowable limit was 5 percent and that NASA managers probably would elect to "fly as is."

The steering rocket leak, discovered last month, was traced to a half-inch "dynatube" fitting in a fuel line located inside Discovery's left-side orbital maneuvering system pod, one of two mounted on either side of the shuttle's tail fin that house rocket engines used to steer and brake the ship in space.

The leak is so tiny that if a car tire lost air at the same rate, it would not go flat for several months. But because the propellant — nitrogen tetroxide — is hazardous and corrosive, NASA managers decided the leak had to be fixed before launch.

The problem for NASA was one of access. The fitting could not be reached without removing the rocket pod and that cannot be done at the launch pad.

But engineers with Rockwell International came up with a plan to cut through the payload bay bulkhead and then through the forward rocket pod bulkhead to reach the leak.

To prepare for the repair job, protective blankets over the air bulkhead were removed Tuesday and plastic sheets were arranged over the work area to serve as a barrier for any debris.

Fish, deer, gator poachers arrested

SARASOTA — State wildlife officers raided four locations in west-central Florida Wednesday and arrested five people for poaching and illegally selling redfish, snook, deer and alligator. Zolan Henry McAllister, 22, of Lake Suzy in DeSoto County, and Henry Clay Feindel, 25, of Northport in Sarasota County, were charged with 32 counts, including closed season possession of snook and redfish, sale of snook and redfish, possession of snook over the bag limit, sale of deer, and unlawful possession and sale of alligator.

McAllister was booked into Sarasota County jail under $100,000, with bond of $110,000 set for Feindel.

In addition, Lori Wood of North Port and Becky Hendry of Moore Haven in Glades County were charged with possession and sale of deer, Hendry also was charged with possession and sale of alligator, and Beverly France of Punta Gorda in Charlotte County was charged with conspiracy by taking orders for the illegal fish and game.

Death row questioning challenged

TALLAHASSEE — The special prosecutor investigating the state's death row appeals office says he did not violate ethical canons by questioning condemned inmates about their cases.

"We have conducted an investigation properly and according to ethics and standards. We've done nothing improper and don't intend to," said Leon County State Attorney Willie Meggs.

Meggs, appointed special prosecutor by Gov. Bob Martinez, declined further comment on his pending criminal investigation of CCR on numerous charges, including inducing witnesses to give false testimony.

Capital Collateral Representative Larry Spalding said Wednesday he had not confirmed statements that investigators representing Meggs have questioned inmates improperly.

Tow truck hauls DeSillers' BMW away

MIAMI — Maria DeSillers has lost her gold 1985 BMW to a curator who is working to recover personal items the woman allegedly purchased with donations she received for her late son's liver transplants.

A tow truck hauled the $13,000 automobile away at about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, after Circuit Judge Francis J. Christie ordered DeSillers to turn it over during a noon emergency hearing.

Karen Gievers, court appointed curator, wants DeSillers held in contempt for failing to obey Christie's order to turn over items she allegedly purchased from more than $680,000 donated nationwide — including $1,000 from President Reagan — for the liver transplants of her son, Ronnie.

Violence over oyster harvest defused

TALLAHASSEE — Closing the Apalachicola Bay to oyster harvesting has defused the latest threat of violence between oystermen and private leaseholders, a Department of Natural Resources spokesman said Wednesday.

Randy Lewis said that with the specter of bloodshed pushed aside, the department may be able to re-open the leaseholders' property to oyster harvesting Thursday.

The rest of the bay, including the public areas harvested by most oystermen, will remain closed until bacteria levels in the bay drop back to safe levels.

DNR closed the summer harvest areas used by most oystermen on Monday because rainwater runoff into the Apalachicola River had swept septic tank and sewage system overflow into the bay, raising the bacteria count to unsafe levels.

Such late summer closings are commonplace and seldom last more than a few days.

Home set for problem teens with AIDS

ORLANDO — A homosexual 15-year-old Pensacola boy who was involved in a child pornography ring is the only resident of Florida's first group home for troubled teens infected with the AIDS virus.

The boy's well-publicized case and the uproar it caused last summer in the Panhandle prompted the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to establish the home for sexually active teens not yet showing advanced symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

HRS opened the home Wednesday with 11 staff members, including teachers and counselors, and a $230,000 annual budget.

Orlando was eventually chosen for the home because the state still owned the defunct Sunland Center for the mentally retarded — which underwent an $85,000 renovation before opening as the group home — and neighbors and the community were more accepting.

Sit down, Willard, and behave yourself

By ROCKY SCOTT
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Former Florida Gov. Claude Kirk may not be at the head of the pack in the Democratic U.S. Senate primary race, but when it comes to humor, he has the field to himself.

At a news conference Wednesday, Kirk, wearing a straw hat, blue jeans, a pink striped shirt and glasses perched precariously on the end of his nose, meets the media with his dog, Willard.

As Kirk starts his remarks, the amiable pooch — having introduced himself to most of the reporters — wanders over to the podium.

Kirk claps his hands and says, "Willard, sit, they're going to take your picture." Willard sits and photographers snap away.

Kirk stares down at the dog and says, "Now we lie down." Willard does not lie down. Willard sits. "I don't know if he does that," mutters Kirk.

A reporter asks what kind of "dog" Willard is. "It's not a dog, it just looks like a dog. It's a person," replies Kirk, his voice swelling with mock gravity.

Well, the undaunted reporter wonders, what kind of person is it? "Oh, a chocolate Labrador person," is the reply.

"He's named for Willard F. Rockwell, the chairman of the board of Rockwell International," Kirk says. "He (Rockwell) complained and I said, 'Well, what do you think the dog said?'"

In a serious vein, Kirk begins to write on white piece of poster board in an effort to outline what he says are insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter's questionable connections to several insurance companies.

Gunter is considered the front-runner in the Democratic race.

But the board wiggles and sways and Kirk's writing becomes an indecipherable scrawl, giving rise to another one-liner.

"Elmer," he says to his media spokesman Elmer Rounds, "I hope we get a little flatter board. People out there are going to say, 'How are you going to vote for a man who can't write?'"

He says his "dollars for decency" campaign is going well. An accomplished story-teller with a baritone voice tinged with just a bit of the magnolia tree, Kirk says he has enjoyed his campaign swing across northern Florida.

That people remember him means a great deal.

"Everybody had a 'Kirk' story in every courthouse and every coffee shop and every 'power breakfast' that I attended in the various cities," Kirk said.

Willard's presence prompts another canine question: Is his presence significant or symbolic of anything in particular, a reporter wants to know.

"Only that he didn't want to stay in the truck," draws Kirk, obviously setting up another story — this one aimed at Gunter, new Florida residents and silly questions about dogs.

"I do really want to go into deep detail (about Willard's presence)," he says, hushy eyebrows rising like curtains on his face to set the stage for the yarn.

"Those of you who are from any part of Florida, other than immigrants and so forth, would know that there's an old phrase: a dog is good for two things: huntin' and runnin' cows."

"And very often you hear of somebody referred to as a 'dog that won't hunt,' and, of course, that's a reference to Gunter, meaning the dog is not worth a damn."

"But there are those of us who know that not only does the dog — if you do a smile toward Gunter — not only does he not run cattle, which is an important thing, but he protects cows."

Green sea turtles hatched

United Press International

MIAMI — A second clutch of green sea turtles has hatched at the Lost Islands nature preserve, defying conventional wisdom about the breeding habits of the animals, the Miami Seaquarium said Wednesday.

Dr. Gregory Bossart, a veterinarian at the Seaquarium, said the turtle nest produced 74 hatchlings.

Last August, the Seaquarium hatched nine green sea turtles in captivity, in what it described as a possible first in the United States. Green sea turtles are considered an endangered species.

The latest batch of turtles hatched from eggs laid by one of six adult female green sea turtles kept within the fenced preserve.

Coast Guard makes two sea rescues

MIAMI BEACH — The Coast Guard, aided by a 46-foot pleasure craft, rescued two Florida men and four Cuban refugees adrift in the Atlantic Ocean east of Key Largo Wednesday, a spokesman said.

The Cubans were spotted by a cutter on its way to pick up the other two men who had been rescued by the pleasure boat Legatory after spending three days adrift in a rubber dingy.

They were spotted 50 miles off Key Largo Wednesday by the Legatory, which took the men aboard and radioed the Coast Guard.

POLICE BRIEFS

Arrested for abusing ex-wife

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man, who allegedly beat his ex-wife and held her against her will in the Altamonte Springs apartment where they both live was arrested on complaints of false imprisonment and spouse abuse-battery.

Ronnie Pate, 35, of 605 Northlake Blvd., #76, was arrested at home at 1:04 a.m. today. He is accused of attacking Nanette Roberta Fox, of the same address.

Fox, who fled the house after alleged the beating and imprisonment reportedly said the trouble began when the suspect accused her of going out to meet another man. He allegedly grabbed her arm and hit her. When she tried to call police he allegedly pulled the phone out of the wall and pushed and shoved her.

He wouldn't let her leave, a police report said, and allegedly threatened to break her finger. Eventually, Fox was allowed to leave. She met police, who came to the house and arrested Pate. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Suspected burglar arrested

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man jailed by Altamonte Springs police as John Doe was identified as a Stewart man after he was jail d.

Richard Allan Pace, 32, allegedly refused to give police information when he was arrested at 10:48 p.m. Wednesday on counts of burglary to a vehicle, battery on a policeman and resisting arrest.

Pace, who had 577, was a suspected auto burglar from the scene of the crime, 5307 Twin Fairchild Funeral Home on State Road 436 to a nearby gasoline station, said the suspect's brother reportedly gave them his name, and records show he is also wanted in Palm Beach on a felony warrant.

Police allege Pace was seen by a witness as he burglarized a car at the funeral home and then fled to the Gate station on State Road 436. They allege he was uncooperative and resisted handcuffing when they found him hiding near the station's restroom. Pace is being held without bond.

Agents arrest two for drug sales

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City County Investigative Bureau agents report the Wednesday night arrests of two men who allegedly sold cocaine to undercover agents outside the Disco Food Store, Magnolia Avenue, Altamonte Springs.

Barry Wilmon Wright, 24, of 803 Brentwood Ave., Altamonte Springs, and Lloyd Edward Adams, 26, of 401 Longwood Ave., Altamonte Springs, are both accused of sale, delivery and possession of cocaine. Their bond is $1,000 each.

In the same area, agents also arrested Alphonso Hall Jr., 26, of 110 Ford Ave., Altamonte Springs, on complaints of loitering and prowling, and resisting arrest. Seminole County sheriff's investigators, who had been seeking Hall as the alleged thief of a $300 television from his mother on Aug. 8, added charges of grand theft and dealing in stolen property against him in that case. His bond totals $2,500, and he remains jailed.

Accused of forgery

SANFORD — An 18-year-old Longwood woman who allegedly cashed a stolen and forged $600 check at a Sanford bank Aug. 1, was arrested on complaints of theft and uttering a forgery.

Christina Renee Kenworthy, of P.O. Box 615-1473 County Road 427, was arrested after questioning at the police station at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Kenworthy reportedly told police she cashed the check at Empire Bank for someone else, to whom she gave all of the cash except for $100, which she kept. Police report the investigation continues. Kenworthy is free on $1,000 bond.

Fake cocaine leads to arrest

SANFORD — A man accused of offering to exchange what he said was cocaine for a carton of cigarettes outside a Sanford convenience store, was arrested after Seminole County sheriff's deputies recovered the reputed drug and determined it was not cocaine.

Michael Willie Wallace, 38, of 1316 Southwest Road, Sanford, was arrested at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, outside the Circle K, 2631 S. Sanford Ave.

Deputies who were called to the scene and confronted Wallace after the alleged offer of cocaine was made, report finding a discarded matchbox in the parking lot. Three witnesses reportedly identified the box as the one which held what Wallace allegedly offered as cocaine. The contents of the box were tested and were determined not to be cocaine.

Wallace was booked for with attempted delivery of a counterfeit controlled substance. He is being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Charges dropped in cocaine case

SANFORD — The Seminole State Attorney's office dropped a possession of cocaine charge against a 28-year-old Casselberry man arrested May 8 by Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

The charge against Kent Michael Weaver, of 103 Esplanade Way, was dropped Monday. Seminole County sheriff's deputies, at the time of Weaver's arrest on Granada Street, rural Altamonte Springs, reported they found a piece of cocaine in his car after another man was seen approaching his car on foot. Weaver was stopped as he drove away, and the other man ran away.

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

County wins annexation case

By J. MARK BARFIELD
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The county's annexation battle record has improved to a 5-2 edge over Sanford.

Seminole Circuit Court Judge Kenneth M. Leffler has ruled a proposed Sanford annexation of a 20-acre tract north of the unincorporated Sanford Heights subdivision was illegal because it created an enclosed enclave of unincorporated land north of it. State laws prevent voluntary annexations if they create enclosed pockets of unincorporated land.

The land, owned by Shirley Whittle, is between French Avenue and County Road 427 — both city boundaries. Land north and south of the Whittle property is unincorporated.

Leffler's decision marks the fifth time the circuit court has upheld the county's position in an annexation battle, says Lonnie Groot, county assistant attorney. The city won two cases, one in February and one in July last year, although the county has asked for a rehearing in the second case.

Two of the seven cases, one a county win and one a city win, are being appealed to the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach. Groot said arguments will be heard next month on each of them.

Sensitive to the county's image of routinely opposing annexations, Groot says the assertion is not true.

"We're not against annexation," Groot said. "We're against annexations that are illegal and don't meet the requirements of Florida Statutes."

"Over the last 10 years, we've challenged only seven of the 125 properties Sanford has sought to annex," Groot said.

Leffler himself is seeking to annex a large parcel of land into Sanford south of Lake Monroe. The county has opposed the annexation, saying it creates another enclave and an illegal "finger" of annexed land from the city to Lake Monroe.

Groot said Leffler's attorney has met with him in an effort to negotiate an agreeable annexation proposal. Groot said an agreement is possible.

Arguers arrested in drug dispute

By SUSAN LODEN
 Herald staff writer

OVIDO — A man who allegedly broke the window of another man's truck during a reported dispute over drugs is one of four arrested by Oviedo police in connection with the dispute, which reportedly resumed after the accused brick thrower was released from jail.

Donald Keith Brooks, 25, of 252 Academy Drive, Oviedo, was arrested at the police station at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday on a complaint of throwing a deadly missile. He was released after posting bond.

Brooks is accused of throwing a brick through the driver's side window of a pickup truck driven by Fred Watson, 36, of 150 Pineview St., Oviedo, during an argument over drugs at B.J.'s Market, Avenue B, minutes before the arrest.

Watson, and two other persons were arrested at about 10:50 p.m. in a confrontation with Brooks. In breaking up the dispute, police alleged that Sam and Fred Watson resisted them. Both were cited with resisting without violence. Mary Lee Watson, 36, of 150 Pineview St., allegedly hit a police officer when the men were being arrested. She was arrested on a complaint of battery on a police officer and resisting arrest. The Watsons are free on bond.

The later incident occurred at 1222 Harrison St. Police said when they arrived there were several people in the front yard and Sam Watson, 19, of 150 Pineview St., was arguing with Brooks. In breaking up the dispute, police alleged that Sam and Fred Watson resisted them. Both were cited with resisting without violence. Mary Lee Watson, 36, of 150 Pineview St., allegedly hit a police officer when the men were being arrested. She was arrested on a complaint of battery on a police officer and resisting arrest. The Watsons are free on bond.

Officer suspended for making threat

By WAYNE MIZE
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Sanford police officer has been suspended for 30 days without pay for threatening a man while the officer was on duty.

Police Chief Steven Harriett suspended Officer First Class Darrel Presley on Wednesday for conduct unbecoming an officer of the law.

The police department received a complaint from Billy Joe Bradley, 1707 Airport Blvd., that he had been threatened with bodily harm by Presley at his residence on Aug. 3.

Harriett said the two-week investigation into the allegation revealed that Bradley and Presley's wife, Rebecca, "had some kind of disagreement (at work) which led to the confrontation." Both Bradley and Rebecca Presley work at Scotty's, 700 S. French Ave.

"Presley's wife apparently asked him (Presley) to take care of the situation," said Harriett. Mrs. Presley took her husband to Bradley's house, where Presley confronted him, Harriett said. "The bad thing was he was on duty when he did this," the chief said.

Presley, a nine-year veteran of the force, had an unblemished record prior to the suspension, according to Harriett.

"He was a good police officer and he made an error in judgement," said Harriett. "In my opinion it constituted conduct unbecoming an officer."

Presley, who turned in his badge and weapon Wednesday, will not appeal the suspension, according to Harriett.

Thefts and burglaries are reported

SANFORD — Sheriff's deputies report $2,000 worth of tools belonging to Ronald B. Romero, of Bradenton, were stolen Wednesday from the bed of a truck at Sanford Boat Sales, 4130 Celery Ave., Sanford.

The 1980 Mazda pickup truck of Cheriez O'Neil, of 691 Encino Way, Altamonte Springs, was stolen between Saturday and Wednesday. The truck is valued at $4,000, a sheriff's report said.

Dorothy Wozak, of 3992 Radley Court, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies a $2,800 diamond ring was stolen from her house between Aug. 1 and Wednesday. Other jewelry with a combined value of about $1,600 was also stolen.

Sheriff's deputies report a $400 sound system was stolen between Monday and Wednesday from R.C. Speedway, 1200 Charles St., Longwood.

A $162 stereo and a $5 flashlight were stolen Tuesday or Wednesday from the car of Mary Beth Halstead, of 500 Orange Road, Mattland, a sheriff's report said.

Cassius Leon Stevens, 706 Brentwood Ave., Altamonte

Spring, reported to sheriff's deputies he was robbed of a $228 gold chain and charm and a $400 ring during a fight Aug. 7 in the parking lot of Joy gasoline station, 1375 State Road 436, Altamonte Springs. The loss was reported Tuesday.

Sanford police are investigating the theft of about $898 in cash from a safe at Popeye's Chicken restaurant, 2660 Orlando Drive. The theft was discovered by restaurant manager David Lau Tuesday. He told police the safe could be opened by a key or combination.

A lawn mower valued at $2,600 was reported stolen from the Action Mower Mart, 2588 S. Elm Ave., early Wednesday. Owner David Dudley discovered the loss and reported the theft to Sanford police.

The Gustafson's Dairy, Inc., office, 1300 S. French Ave., was burglarized sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday. A police report said a cabinet worth $120 containing $100 in cash was removed from the office.

Animal control problems being resolved

By J. MARK BARFIELD
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Animal Control officials said Wednesday many of the department's problems are in the process of being resolved.

"We still have a few rough spots, but in time, they'll be worked out," said Chief Animal Control Officer Tom LaCrosse.

Other animal control officers (ACOs) echoed LaCrosse, saying they have had no problems in past weeks.

A department-wide seminar on animal euthanasia was held this morning with animal control veterinarian Hank Kornick to show all department employees the proper method of injecting the animals and what happens to them as they die.

Wednesday was the last of the department-wide meetings with County Administrator Ken Hooper. Hooper has held the weekly meetings for the last six weeks in an effort to open up communication among employees and to air problems in the department, particularly with department director Bob McIntosh.

At Hooper's direction, McIntosh has begun taking management training classes and several employees said they've noted an improvement.

Several employees said they still occasionally have problems with McIntosh's attitude, saying he often gives them disapproving stares instead of telling them if they are doing something wrong, but Hooper said the management classes should eventually teach him the proper method of dealing with subordinates.

The shelter workers said the biggest improvement was a schedule of their assigned responsibilities had been given to them, clarifying any confusion over what their jobs entail.

The shelter workers had complained in the past that McIntosh often seemed to give contradicting instructions to them.

Other improvements include a list of suggestions given the dispatchers from the Public Safety Department to make their work more efficient and helpful for ACOs. The changes include uniformity in forms and a map book method of directing ACOs in the field to complaint locations.

Hooper said he would investigate a suggestion by ACO Richard Knapp to have ACOs given their rabies-preventative shots shortly after beginning work with the county. Knapp, who was bitten recently, will have to take the series of shots because as a new employee, he hasn't had the preventative shots yet.

Hooper said perhaps new ACOs should have the shots administered a week or so after they begin. The shots might deter people still doubtful about becoming an ACO from taking the job, he said.

Basic rights are threatened

The decision this week by the Longwood City Commission to require installation of a video camera as a condition of approval for the construction of a convenience store is troubling. The requirement was described as an afterthought of a city employee suggesting the action would be a deterrent to crime.

Several years ago similar action was taken in Miami. Video cameras were installed at intersections noted for high incidents of crime and activity at several locations was monitored by police at a central office.

The vast majority of those unknowingly spied upon were good, law-abiding citizens. Police were watching their every move. Maybe it was because it happened in 1984 that people suddenly realized the extent to which their privacy was being invaded. Wherever they moved in the blocks leading to those intersections, Big Brother was watching.

Reaction developed quickly and the police removed the cameras.

If a criminal bent on robbery were to approach the Amoco service-convenience store at Longwood sometime in the future, a sign indicating that the miscreant will be a star on the store's candid camera would probably stave off the attempt at crime. If he persists, and the criminal act is recorded, valuable evidence is available.

But a price must be paid for such security, and the reference here is not to dollars and cents. It's to the sense of individual rights.

Citizens of our nation have certain inalienable rights, and privacy is one. We also enjoy certain privileges based on payment of taxes. Protection by the federal government against foreign invaders is a right under the Constitution; protection against criminal elements within our county or city boundaries is a privilege for which we pay through our system of taxes. But there is also the temptation to trade rights for greater privileges at times. Absolute security can be gained through a dictatorship, at least for the totally committed law-abiding person. But individual rights are lost.

Certainly, this is not to suggest any move by commissioners in Longwood toward a totalitarian government. To the contrary, it is evident that their action was taken in an effort to protect law abiding citizens. However it was an act of intrusion into the operation of a business beyond the scope of previously enacted ordinances. Amoco was singled out for a social experiment and in the course of the action, a breach was made in a basic right of citizens — the right to come and go as they please without governmental surveillance, whether direct or mandated.

Every right granted a citizen by the Constitution is precious and must be preserved. Any breach, however small and however well-intentioned, is a threat to all rights and all citizens.

We hope the commissioners will reconsider their action and find a better way to achieve their otherwise laudable objective.

Great day arrives for George Bush

So, at last, the great day has arrived for George Bush. The long years of public service in just about every imaginable job except the presidency have come to their climax, and the Republican Party has given him its presidential nomination. And whaddya know, just at this point those opinion polls have begun inching up. It looks as though he really has a chance to win.

Admittedly, Bush isn't everybody's cup of tea. He does have the undeniable stigmata of a New England preppe: the tall form, the rather angular features, the deprecatory lingo. Even his virtues are the characteristic preppe virtues. A preference for understatement, a genuine desire to serve, a concern for honor. But I have a hunch that the liberal propagandists in the media, let alone in the Dukakis camp, have wildly overestimated George Bush's singularities and the distance they put between him and the American people. I suspect that the voters are going to conclude rather quickly, if they haven't already, that Bush is a thoroughly decent guy.

Let me throw into the scales, for what it may be worth, my own experience of the man. Shortly after the first Reagan administration began, I sought and obtained the privilege of spending about an hour with the vice president once a year, in a wide-ranging, off-the-record discussion. In those talks, the most recent of which took place less than a month ago, I believe I have gotten to know him reasonably well.

We came, of course, from different sectors of the Republican Party: I from its conservative, Reaganite wing, he from its older, Eastern, relatively "moderate" core. When we first began our talks, I was just about the only person who was stressing to him the strategic importance of the so-called "social conservative" voters, who had left the Democratic party during the 1960s in disgust over the consequences of liberalism, above all in social terms: the disintegration of the family, the sexual revolution, etc. These were quite obviously new ideas to Bush, and he didn't become or pretend to be an instant convert to my concept of a great anti-liberal coalition. Nor would I suggest for a moment that my little homilies were ever a major influence on his thinking.

But gradually, over a period of years, and largely (or so it seemed to me) because of his steadily growing admiration for Ronald Reagan, Bush's own attitude on many subjects began shifting perceptibly to the right. Especially after their triumphant re-election in 1984, carrying every state in the Union but Mondale's own Minnesota, I became confident that George Bush understood what a majority of American voters wanted, and that he felt altogether comfortable with it.

At the same time, he hasn't stopped being George Bush — nor should he. It is precisely the combination of Reagan's record and policies with Bush's own cautious temperament that produces what I expect the voters want this year: an administration that will respect, consolidate, and preserve Reagan's achievements without trying to dash out and redouble them.

George Bush's day has dawned. My guess is that he is going to make the most of it.

Reagan legacy paradoxical

NEW ORLEANS — The Republican Party that has been meeting in convention this week is a fascinating paradox. In some ways, Ronald Reagan has bequeathed it a sense of institutional self-confidence that its Democratic rivals can only pretend to feel. And in some ways, he has left it so out of touch with the changing American society that its pretension to national leadership seems almost ludicrous.

This paradox defines a challenge for Reagan's successor as nominee and perhaps as President, George Bush, that goes beyond simply winning this election. Bush, by his words and actions, can either present the GOP as a party capable of shaping a bright future for all Americans or make it seem a relic of the past. His choice of Sen. Dan Quayle as a running mate will be interpreted by many as an indication of the former.

What Reagan has given his adopted party is something it had not had for almost half a century before his 1980 campaign: a belief that it can succeed on the basis of its own principles. Reagan was and is a "conviction politician," not a nonpartisan hero like Eisenhower or a congressional pragmatist like Nixon or Ford. After the Goldwater landslide of 1964, it took Reagan 16 years to convince his party that his brand of conservatism made sense. But since 1980, most of the voters have believed him to be right.

What gripes the Democrats, and makes their pretensions of political optimism ring a bit hollow, is the almost daily reminder in the news that Reagan's theories about America are proving out. No one is ever going to cite him as a model of presidential management. The full tale of his detached, almost casual stewardship — to be revealed in the memoirs and histories starting next year — will be fairly hair-raising.

But as Michael Dukakis travels America these days promising "good jobs at good wages," he is confronted more and more often with the question he heard from a local reporter at a Cincinnati news conference last week: With unemployment at a 14-year low, how much better can you really promise to make things?

The prosperity of the two coasts is lapping inward, as U.S. manufacturing becomes more competitive in the world markets and exports rise. Oklahoma, a disaster area two years ago, now finds itself with a budget surplus. And many "Rust Belt" states are taking on a new glitter.

Sure, it's a "credit card" economy, with unjustifiable debts and deficits. But the budget problem is not unmanageable: It just takes a dollop of political courage and a bit of cooperation between the President and Congress, something either Bush or Dukakis is capable of achieving.

As for the world scene, the auguries have rarely been better. It turns out Reagan was right that a visibly strong America, ready to deploy its power in troubled areas, can be a force for peace. Dukakis, to his detriment, finds it necessary to deny this fact. But the developments in the Persian Gulf, in Afghanistan and, most of all, inside China and the Soviet Union are tremendously hopeful.

So when the Republicans say in their speeches here that they don't have to cloak their deepest beliefs, as the Democrats concealed their liberal instincts in Atlanta, there is an element of truth in the claim. But the paradox is that the GOP hardly seems aware of or capable of reflecting its new status as an agent of long-term change. That's because its composition is so rigid and so much of its leadership out of touch.

Watching the platform committee here last week was a mind-bending exercise. These are people who, in a period of looming shortages of skilled labor, still reject the notion of "affirmative recruitment and hiring" programs, aimed at the only large, untapped sources of available workers — women and minorities.

They are people who can listen, with no embarrassment, as one of their number says publicly that the words they have paraphrased for their platform — "Deep in our hearts, we do believe" — did not make sense to her until she was told they "came from some song."

This is a party where 100 white men and women can sit down with one black and one Asian to write the platform on which to govern a nation where ever-higher percentages of the people have a different skin color and ethnic heritage.

For all his splendid and generous personal qualities, George Bush is the living embodiment of the socially insulated Republican Party of the past.

Strange trip of trash ship

WASHINGTON — A huge freighter packed with Philadelphia's burned trash has been cruising the world for nearly two years looking for a foreign garbage can. The tale of the 466-foot Khian Sea is part of a larger U.S. trash crisis that has now prompted congressmen to consider a law banning the export of garbage to Third World countries.

The rusty, 17-year-old ship left Philadelphia in September 1986 with almost 14,000 tons of that city's incinerator ash. A Philadelphia waste hauling firm had hired Amalgamated Shipping Co. of the Bahamas, which said it could dump the ash on a man-made island in that country. But Amalgamated Shipping apparently did not have permission to make the projected dump. Rebuked by the government of the Bahamas, the Khian Sea embarked on a curious odyssey through the Western Hemisphere, stopping in Puerto Rico, Antilles, the Dominican Republic, Jamaica, Panama, Honduras, Colombia, Guinea Bissau and the Cayman Islands.

The shipping company tried unsuccessfully to pay someone in each of those countries to take the ash. At one point, the shippers wrote to Chile suggesting that it convert its northern desert into a landfill for U.S. trash.

Now, the U.S. Coast Guard is investigating the curious path of the Khian Sea. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., does not want trash shippers striking deals abroad that could later haunt the United States. At a congressional hearing on the issue, Conyers said he is alarmed by reports he has heard that the trash export business appeals to unscrupulous elements. Conyers is pushing legislation that would outlaw waste exports from the United States beyond those specified in current treaties with Canada and Mexico. "We can't just shop around for the poorest nation and ask them to cash in on their health and environment," Conyers said.

He and Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., noted at the hearing that there is no way to stop trash merchants from misrepresenting their cargo to make it more acceptable to the receiving country. Khian Sea shipping documents and communications seen by our associate, Jim Lynch, indicate that the Philadelphia ash has had more aliases than Butch Cassidy.

When it left Philadelphia, the load was labeled "incinerator ash." In Fort Lauderdale in March 1987, it was "general cargo." In Cayman Brae in December 1987, it was "bulk construction material." By the time it docked in Haiti in January, the load miraculously became "top soil fertilizer."

The shippers struck a deal in Haiti to pay a local firm to take the "fertilizer." The Khian Sea began dumping the ash on the beach of Gonaves, 75 miles north of Port-au-Prince. Environmentalists with Greenpeace found out and sent a team of investigators to warn the Haitian government. Haitian authorities then ordered the ash put back on the boat.

The Khian Sea took back only part of its load before sneaking out to sea in the middle of the night. A month later, the brother of the two Haitians who negotiated the "fertilizer" dump was indicted in Miami for alleged ties to cocaine smuggling into the United States.

Amalgamated Shipping would not comment on the activities of the Khian Sea. The ship's U.S. representative, Coastal Carriers, Inc., said it is only responsible for the ship when it is in U.S. waters. But a company spokesman claimed that the ash had not been misrepresented in any of the ports.

Market moderate, prices up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 4.45 Wednesday, was up 2.84 to 2028.80 shortly after the market opened.

Advances outnumbered declines 379-298 among the 1,212 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,945,100 shares.

Al Goldman, market strategist with A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis, said it was disappointing that the market Wednesday did not follow through on Tuesday's gains.

"We were in a short-term oversold condition and short-term sentiment had turned bearish, and we were in a position for a rally," Goldman said.

Tuesday's rally "really didn't have any oomph," Goldman said, adding that, based on the Dow Industrials' 140-point decline over the seven trading sessions prior to Tuesday, "We were entitled to a better bounce."

Hildegard Zagorski, market analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., considered the session to have been positive in the last analysis.

Dollar opens sharply lower, gold, silver open higher

United Press International

The dollar was sharply lower today in New York following reports that Commerce Secretary William Verity said a lower dollar against the West German mark would be positive.

Currency traders in New York said reported intervention by four major European central banks also weighed down the dollar.

Traders said the Deutsche Bundesbank and the Bank of France sold dollars for marks and the Swiss National Bank sold dollars for Swiss francs.

The Bank of England was also reported intervening in the market, buying pounds for dollars.

Market watchers said Verity told a West German newspaper, the Die Zeit, that a dollar at 1.80 Deutsche marks would be positive for U.S. exports and the world economy.

Before the report was published, in Europe, the dollar opened mixed against key foreign currencies. Gold prices rose.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened at 1.9135 West German marks, up from Wednesday's close of 1.9105.

The dollar faltered in Zurich, dropping slightly to 1.6015 Swiss francs, down from 1.605 and it opened in Paris at 6.4725 French francs, up from 6.4289, in Milan the dollar rose slightly to 1.414.25 lire from 1.406.3.

In London, the pound opened at $1.6935 compared with $1.6943 on Wednesday.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar strengthened against the Japanese yen in light trading, climbing 0.78 to close at 133.93 yen.

A commercial bank dealer said market sentiment apparently remains bullish toward the U.S. currency following the dollar's swift recovery against major foreign currencies, including the yen, after Tuesday's announcement of a bigger than expected U.S. trade deficit for June.

On the bullion markets, gold opened in Zurich at $429.50 an ounce, up $1 from Wednesday's close.

transferred to a secretarial position in the public works department last April in wake of the investigation of the police benevolent fund. The transferer did not reduce her pay, but she was placed on probation for six months.

She is appealing the transfer and petitioning to get her former job back.

Board members requested the recess so they can review the 121-page grievance package, which they only received Tuesday afternoon, and Hockenberry's 131-page affidavit.

The grievance board can recommend to City Administrator Gene DeMarie the April 14 disciplinary action against Hockenberry be affirmed, modified or reversed. The board will have up to 10 days to present its recommendations to DeMarie and he will have up to 10 days to announce his decision.

Hockenberry has been employed by the city for 13 years. She was suspended by Terry with pay on Feb. 22 along with Manning and Capt. Terry Baker based on an audit of the Police Benevolent Association Fund by management consultant Jeff Etchberger.

Because they fell under the Policeman's Bill of Rights, Manning and Baker had a hearing before a police review panel, which voted 3-1 evidence did not sustain the allegations against them or disciplinary action taken by Terry, who had told Manning he would be fired. Charges against them were reduced and they were reinstated at the same rank and pay.

Police Sgt. Russell Cohen was named to the grievance board by Hockenberry. Personnel Director Lois Martin was chosen by the city and Purchasing Director Rhonda Ledford was named by the city commission in place of Manning. Normally the department head would automatically be on a grievance board, but because Manning is personally involved, a substitute was named.

Hired in 1975 as police dispatcher, Hockenberry was promoted in 1978 to records clerk and in 1980 to secretary to the chief. In 1981, her classification was changed to administrative secretary.

In April she was transferred from the police department to the public works department with no loss in pay and placed on a six-month special probationary period with work performance to be evaluated after three months and at the end of the six-month period.

During the probationary period Hockenberry is eligible for any general wage increase granted to all city employees, but is not eligible for any merit increases or promotions. At the end of the probation, she will revert to regular employee status.

Terry offered to withdraw the six-month probation and issue a letter of reprimand, which would be removed from her file after six months if her job performance warranted it, but she would remain in the public works department. Hockenberry refused because she doesn't think she has done anything wrong and wants her name cleared and her old job back.

Hockenberry said the suspension, and accusations that she had "misappropriated public funds" were very embarrassing. "It was terrible at the beginning. I didn't want to see anyone, read the papers or look at TV. What bothered me was that I wasn't given a chance to respond," she said.

She said she was not given a copy of Etchberger's report or specific allegations against her, which were similar to those against Manning and Baker. Terry said he was told by the consulting attorney David Kornreich that the report must be kept confidential so as not to violate the rights of her two superiors prior to their hearing and if he released a copy to Hockenberry it would then become public.

Prior to the Etchberger report Hockenberry said no one had ever said she wasn't handling the records properly or had told her she needed training.

A high school graduate, she said she had taken some courses at Seminole Community College, including a basic bookkeeping course. She said she didn't understand the course and doesn't remember much about it.

left side of his face. He had a beard at one time, but may now be clean-shaven, according to police.

Harriett said the dragnet will soon tighten around Coffield, who is not known to use aliases.

"We are currently working with the FBI to charge Coffield with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, which will make him a federal fugitive," he said. Harriett said once the charge has officially been filed, the Federal Bureau of Investigation will take charge of the case.

Harriett is confident that one day Coffield will slip, make just a small mistake, and be caught.

He is also aware that Coffield has remained at large for 113 days.

"Maybe he's changed his whole identity," suggested Harriett. "And that is a possibility."

Florida and is working as a real estate broker in Winter Springs.

Vickie Yu, formerly of Winter Springs, along with Yu's son, have will remain in Taiwan. Perry will soon begin school there, according to a family relative, Shirley Yu.

Mr. C's once represented a future for Yu, 32, and his adopted 13-year-old son, Perry Chaling, then an eighth grade student at Jackson Heights Middle School.

Yu came to the United States in 1982 from Taipei, Taiwan, with high hopes. He adopted his son just over two years ago. Yu, his sister Vickie and his son, lived together at 1236 Rising Sun Blvd., in Winter Springs. Vickie was a nurse.

It was Vickie that found her brother lying in a pool of his own blood on the dining room floor of Mr. C's. She had gone to check on him after he did not come home.

"My sister works as a nurse and she helps save many lives," said Lin Sun, while attending the funeral of his brother. "Then she had to find my brother and there was nothing she could do."

Left behind is Mr. C's. The building's owners admit the restaurant is up for sale or rent. Yu rented the building.

Gert Royer, who with her husband, owns the building, said she got to know Yu, and his sister Vickie.

"One day, he asked me to tell him about Jesus," said Royer. "This was in December as I remember. So, I told him a little bit. He got so happy one day, I believe it was in January, that he went dancing outside where my husband was working on the building and told him, 'When I die, I'm going to heaven.'"

"Maybe I was suppose to tell him about Jesus. I really got attached to the little fellow."

Royer also remembers, Perry. "I always saw a little boy running around with him," she said.

Vickie's telephone number has been disconnected. "She was scared to live alone," said Royer. "So she moved back home."

Shirley Yu, said that one of the Yu relatives calls the Sanford Police Department once a week to stay updated with the investigation.

"We know they know who it is," said Shirley. "We also know they have not caught him."

The search for Merle Coffield continues.

FDR Jr. dies on 74th birthday

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., the third son of President and Eleanor Roosevelt, was remembered as a defender of democratic ideals and a fighter for the well-being of the community.

Roosevelt, a former congressman, died Wednesday on his 74th birthday of lung cancer at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr. lived by the values synonymous with the Roosevelt name," Gov. Mario Cuomo said. "He inherited a concern for the well-being of the community that he used to benefit his state and nation, defending democratic ideals with valor and serving in Congress and under two presidents."

Roosevelt was injured critically in June 1987 when he was thrown from a horse-drawn carriage near his home in Millbrook, N.Y., but had nearly recovered when he was diagnosed with cancer a year later.

Colombians plan to kill DEA agent

NEW YORK — The head of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in New York is under heavy guard because Colombia's most powerful cocaine cartel has threatened to kill him, a DEA spokesman said.

DEA intelligence from several sources indicates that the Medellin cartel, which federal officials estimate exports about 80 percent of Colombian cocaine sold in the United States, plans to assassinate Special Agent Robert Stutman, who heads the drug agency's New York office.

Federal officials say the cartel, which takes its name from the coastal Colombian city of Medellin where it is based, has terrorized the South American nation, killing its minister of justice in 1984 and the attorney general last year. The group also is believed responsible for killing scores of judges, narcotics agents and journalists.

Negotiations continue in nurses strike

SAN FRANCISCO — As negotiations continued early today in an attempt to end a strike of 2,200 nurses, Mayor Art Agnos said he was cautiously optimistic that a settlement was near.

"We've made significant progress," Agnos said emerging from the third straight day of talks. "Both sides got very serious. I think there is reason for optimism this will be settled."

The lengthy talks had broken off at 4 a.m. Wednesday and resumed at noon.

The nurses went on strike Aug. 2 at six affiliated hospitals and Aug. 6 against French Hospital, which is negotiating separately.

The strike forced closure of a number of emergency and operating rooms, and some critically ill patients had to be moved to other hospitals. Nurses were flown in from elsewhere to fill in.

Tonight Bush's big night

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — Vice President George Bush accepts the 1988 Republican presidential nomination tonight with a nationally televised speech seen as crucial to his struggling campaign against Democrat Michael Dukakis.

The 64-year-old Bush described the prime-time address, expected at about 8:30 p.m. EDT, as "probably the most important" of his long political career.

The objective, he explained upon winning his party's nomination Wednesday night, will be to "come out of this convention with some forward motion, spelling out some of the differences with my opponent and saying where I want to take this country."

Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana, the 41-year-old conservative selected by Bush as his running mate, also will be formally nominated for vice president tonight and will introduce himself to the nation with an acceptance speech.

Quayle faced tough questioning Wednesday on two matters that could dog the campaign — his decision to join the National Guard in 1969 rather than face possible combat in Vietnam and a link to a 1980 congressional sex scandal.

A senior Bush campaign official maintained early today that despite the flurry of news reports and speculation, no second thoughts about Quayle's selection were being expressed by Bush or his aides.

The Bush-Quayle ticket will leave town shortly after tonight's conclusion of the four-day 34th Republican National Convention, rolling out on a three-day joint campaign swing to the industrial Midwest. The first stop: Huntington, Ind., the senator's hometown.

At a news conference Wednesday, Bush promised he and Quayle will be like "a couple of pit bulls" offering the voters a "unified, forward-looking message" grounded on the Reagan administration's claims of peace and prosperity.

Israel deports Palestinians

JERUSALEM — Four Palestinians accused of anti-Israel activities were expelled from the occupied territories, and the Israeli military issued orders for another 25 to be deported despite international criticism of the practice.

A 9-year-old girl in the West Bank town of Jenin, 50 miles north of Jerusalem, was killed Wednesday during a clash between soldiers and Palestinian protesters. Palestinian sources said she was shot dead, but Israeli sources denied soldiers used live ammunition and said she apparently had been killed by a stone.

At least 240 Palestinians and three Israelis have been killed since the 8-month-old uprising against the 21-year Israeli occupation began Dec. 9.

Moslem attack kills 109 Soviet troops

KABUL, Afghanistan — Moslem rebels blew up a Soviet ammunition dump and eight helicopters in a rocket attack last week in northern Afghanistan, killing as many as 109 Soviet troops, a Western diplomat said.

A Soviet source with close contacts to the military Wednesday confirmed the assault took place and that eight helicopters were destroyed in the Aug. 10 rocket attack. But he said casualties were negligible and described the installation as a minor transport base rather than an ammunition depot.

GOLF

Mike Reid leads International

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Newly crowned PGA champion Jeff Sluman today tries to follow Jack Nicklaus, Tom Kite and Fuzzy Zoeller by advancing one step toward the biggest, annual, one-day shootout in golf.

Sluman, however, hopes he will have an easier time surviving the first-round cut at the $1.1 International tournament than those three players did Wednesday, when half the 162-man field opened the event at the Castle Pines Golf Club course.

The unique tournament, in its third year on the Nicklaus-designed course, features a point-scoring system and a cut each day. Those who survive start even in the next round and on Sunday there will be 18 survivors playing for $750,000.

Boxing coach Adams reinstated

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Ken Adams was reinstated as the U.S. Olympic boxing coach Wednesday after winning his arbitration case against the USA Amateur Boxing Federation.

Adams and the USA-ABF had agreed to binding arbitration after Adams was suspended for six months for allegedly assaulting another amateur boxing official.

Arbiter Charlie Glover presided over a hearing Sunday at the American Arbitration Association's regional office in Denver, and Wednesday notified the USA-ABF of his decision to reinstate Adams.

In his decision, Glover recommended Adams receive a letter of reprimand for his actions and a warning that any other such actions might be cause for dismissal.

TENNIS

McNeil, Kelesi victorious

MONTREAL — Seventh seed Lori McNeil of Houston and No. 13 Helen Kelesi of Canada each won Wednesday at the $315,000 Player's Challenge, advancing to a head-to-head meeting in the third round.

McNeil eliminated Sandy Collins, of Odessa, Texas, 6-3, 6-4. Kelesi defeated France's Julie Halard 6-2, 6-2.

In the only other singles match completed in the rain-delayed afternoon session, Sweden's Catarina Lindqvist downed Masako Yanagi of Japan 6-3, 6-4. No. 2 seed Chris Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was leading Canada's Rene Simpson 6-1, 1-1. That match will be completed Thursday.

In the evening session, ninth seed Zina Garrison of Houston blitzed New Zealand's Belinda Cordwell 6-0, 6-2, and No. 10 Barbara Potter, of Woodbury, N.Y., edged crowd favorite Carling Bassett-Seguso of Canada 7-6 (7-4), 6-3.

McNeil scored three service breaks in the first set and two in the second, winning the match by breaking Collins.

Ingram speaks on FSU inquiry

TALLAHASSEE — The following is a statement from Florida State University Athletic Director C.W. "Hootie" Ingram regarding the NCAA preliminary inquiry into the FSU athletic program:

"As a continuation of the preliminary inquiry into the Florida State athletic program, members of the FSU athletic staff and certain FSU student-athletes have visited this week with the NCAA. This was expected, and other visits may be necessary before the inquiry is complete.

"There may or may not be a specific reason for talking to certain individuals. In order to prevent an unfair conclusion, I do not intend to release any names.

"I am still confident that there are no major violations, but we will continue to fully cooperate with the NCAA and continue to respect their highly professional method of operation."

Altamonte loses for 1st time

Mexico claims 3-0 World Series victory

By MARK BLYTHE

TAYLOR, Mich. — After 16 consecutive victories, the Altamonte Junior All-Stars suffered their first setback Wednesday, dropping a 3-0 decision to Mexicali, Mexico, in the winners' bracket of the Junior League World Series.

Altamonte will now go into the losers' bracket where it will face Indiana today at 5 p.m. Mexico and Hawaii play in the winners' bracket final at 7:30.

"After going 16 games without a loss, I can understand the kids coming out flat," Altamonte manager Baird Lyons said. "I'm not disappointed at all. I still think we can win it. And this will make the kids that much tougher."

Mexico scored all three runs in the top of the fourth inning. After two outs, Vidal Urena doubled down the left field line just out of the reach of third baseman Naktia Roberts. Louis Ismael then went the other way, with a double down the right field line to drive in Urena. Jose Carlos Munoz then drilled a homer to straight away center, into the wind and some 320 feet away, for a 3-0 Mexico lead.

The three extra base hits in the fourth were only three of five hits given up by Altamonte pitcher Steve Tolbert. Tolbert finished with two

Davis gets start against Indiana

TAYLOR, Mich. — Pam Davis will get the start on the mound today as the Altamonte All-Stars try to stay alive in the Junior League World Series. Altamonte, representing the USA South, takes on Indiana today at 5 p.m. in an elimination game. Indiana upended the host team, Taylor, 6-5, on Wednesday while Altamonte fell to Mexicali, Mexico, 3-0.

Davis, who is believed to be the first girl to ever pitch in a Little League World Series, was the starting pitcher in the final Southern Regional Tournament game and went three innings before being relieved by Mike Lyons. Davis, a right-hander with a good fastball and excellent curveball, has a 3-0 record in tournament play.

"I have a lot of confidence in Pam and any other pitcher I might have to go to," Altamonte manager Baird Lyons said. "We're in the same situation as the other teams in the losers' bracket as far as pitching goes."

In other games on Wednesday, USA East (Philadelphia) eliminated Puerto Rico, 5-4, and the other winners' bracket game saw Hawaii rout Canada, 12-2. Hawaii and Mexico are the only unbeaten teams left.

The tripletail: Beauty or beast?

By JIM SHUPE
Herald fishing writer

My knees were braced against the gunnel as the big tripletail made a strong run towards the thick chain that tethered the marker buoy. I struggled to hold on as 25 pound test slipped from my hand-tight drag.

Luckily, the fish's initial surge fell short of the chain, and the tripletail was reduced to making short, strong runs in the open water around the boat. At times, the diving efforts of the fish were so strong that I could not keep my rod from resting on the gunnel. As I wrestled with this powerful fish, I mused over the whimsy about having "a tiger by the tail" and not being able to let go.

After what seemed to be an eternity, the slab-sided fish reluctantly came to the boat and was netted. My hands shook as the tripletail pulled down my Chatterton hand scales to the 25½ pound mark. This fish was a true monster by any standards!

Although the tripletail is a popular species on Florida's west coast, this fish is largely unnoticed or ignored on the east coast. How can such a strong and worthy opponent exist in oblivion?

First of all, the appearance of the tripletail does not lend itself to comparison with more attractive, streamlined salt water species. Slapped like a giant bream and being mottled brown in appearance, the tripletail is certainly an unlikely candidate for gamefish of the year. To make matters worse, the fish is rather squatly because the long rounded posterior lobes of the dorsal and anal fins extend back to the caudal fin, giving the appearance of having three tails. You will certainly not see many of these fish mounted on office walls.

To make the tripletail even more lackluster, it is an oddball fish and does not conform to expected standards of fish behavior. Although it is shaped like an overweight dinner plate, the tripletail will often jump out of the water for no apparent reason. The sight of an airborne tripletail is certainly not spectacular, and borders on the ridiculous.

As the old adage goes, "beauty is only skin deep." What the tripletail lacks in beauty and dignity, it more than makes up for in fighting ability and edibility. The flesh of this fish is very white, and resembles that of the grouper in both appearance and taste.

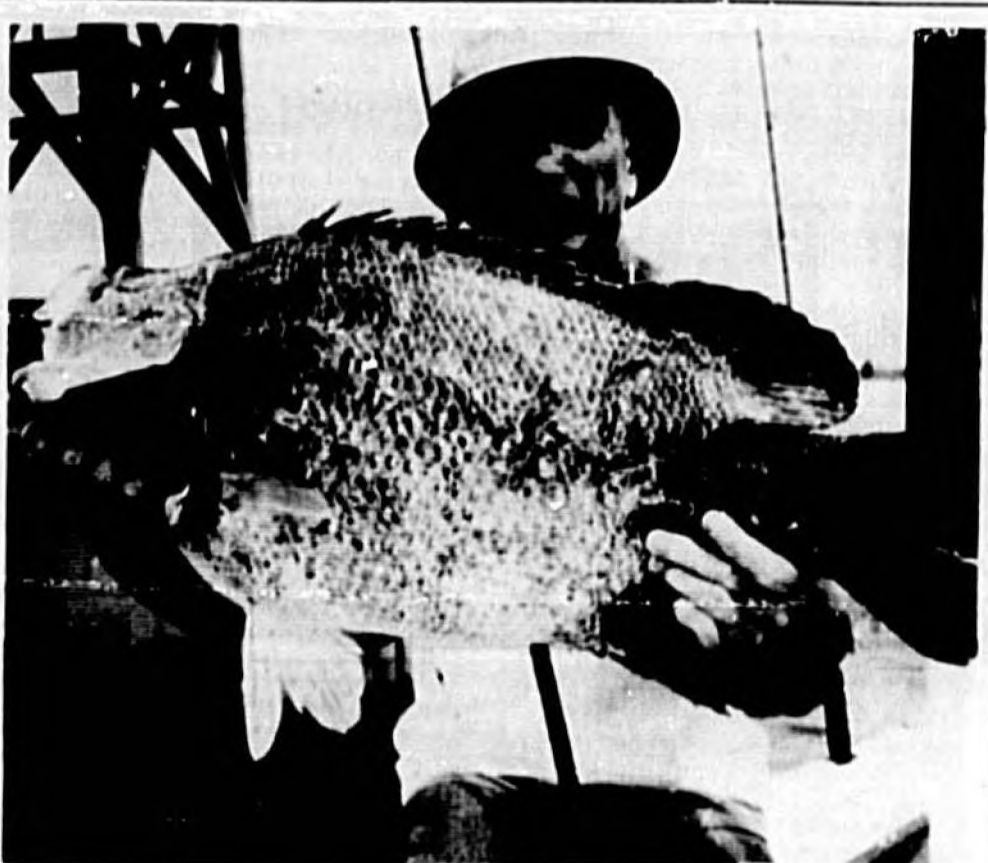

Would you like to learn more about this unusual fish? Make certain to read next week's column on angling tactics for this tasty game fish.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Tripletail love structure and can often be seen suspended under marker buoys, crab pots and floating debris.

FISHING FORECAST

Word from Lemon Bluff is that bass fishing is slow, but that bream and catfish are biting well in the river and Lake Harney. Worms and mussels are the best baits.

Jim Shupe props up a 23-pound tripletail he landed. The tripletail is one of the most obscure species of gamefish but is nonetheless a worthy opponent for any angler.

Steve Gard from Osteen Bridge Fish Camp has been working hard to upgrade his facilities. Bream and a few specks are still taking minnows and grass shrimp around the pillage of the new bridge. Bass fishing is holding up well in spite of the heat, with several fish over 5 pounds being taken regularly. Big catfish can be taken on cut bait in the deep holes.

Snook anglers practice catch and release at Sebastian, waiting for the September 1 opening of the season. Many fish in the 8-15 pound range are being caught on jigs and lures such as the Maverick. Work the jigs close to the bottom and the lures slowly in the current.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that the tropical depression really churned up the ocean and that fishing reports are few and far between. Look for dolphin and wahoo in 120' feet of water and you may still find a few king mackerel and cobia on BA and Pelican Flats. The buoy line is dirty, but may clean up in time for the weekend. Bluefish, flounder, and sheepshead provide steady action inside the Port, while some large trout and plenty of redfish are cruising the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

The extended marine forecast looks good for the weekend, so expect plenty of boats and jetties to be at the New Smyrna Jetties, Drum, redfish, whiting sheepshead, and flounder will be taking both live and dead shrimp almost as fast as the bait hits the bottom.

FSU chases elusive national title

By IRA KAUFMAN

TALLAHASSEE — Armed with a better stable of running backs than most NFL rosters and 13 starters returning from an 11-1 team, Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden isn't asking for much.

He just wants his Seminoles to be two points better this time around.

Florida State was a completed two-point conversion pass away from perfection in 1987 and finished No. 2 to Miami. The Seminoles will not have to wait very long for revenge against the Hurricanes, who rallied from a 19-3 deficit en route to a 26-25 triumph at Doak Campbell Stadium. The teams meet Sept. 3 in a nationally televised night game at the Orange Bowl.

"Here's two teams that finished 1-2 in the nation and now we pick up the battle right off the bat," says Bowden, whose biggest concern is at quarterback. "We've got to play Miami sooner or later. We can't just drop them ... can we? But whoever loses that first game is not out of it: If you lose it in November, that's a different story."

After a Game No. 2 breather against Southern Mississippi, Florida State travels to Atlantic Coast Conference champion Clemson and returns home for Big Ten champion Michigan State.

"We'll know by the end of September about big FSU," Bowden says. "This year, people are

If you drop that halo above our heads about 12 inches, you've got a noose.

— Bobby Bowden

talking about us and rightfully so."

Standout tackle Pat Tomberlin leads an experienced offensive line that will block for one of the nation's premier backfields. Tailback Sammie Smith gained a school-record 1,230 yards despite averaging just 17 carries per game. Of his nine touchdowns, seven were 25 yards or longer. Backups Dexter Carter and Victor Floyd — who recently broke his foot skipping rope — could start at most Division I-A schools.

"Sammie's got some of the same great assets that Herschel Walker has," says FSU offensive coordinator Wayne McDuffie. "He's got the size (6-foot-2, 221), the speed (10.31 in 100 meters) and the knack for making the right move in traffic."

Fullback Dayne Williams, a short-yardage specialist, returns after scoring 15 TDs as a junior. Bowden must replace superb tight end Pat Carter but look for wide receiver Ronald Lewis, who averaged 18.2 yards per catch, to establish himself as the Seminoles' key target.

Departed quarterback Danny McManus, who helped the 1987 Seminoles average 41 points per game, will be missed. Chip Ferguson, the MVP of the 1985 Gator Bowl as a freshman, tries to fill McManus' leadership role.

"Chip has won big games for us in the past," says Bowden, "but he's being pushed hard by Peter Tom Willis. Our offense has a chance to be really dangerous."

Derek Schmidt, the leading career scorer in NCAA Division I history, must be replaced at kicker while punting is another potential problem with the departure of Rick Tuten.

Nose guard Odell Haggins and left defensive tackle Eric Hayes are solid pass rushers while right tackle Steve Gabbard is better against the run.

One of Florida State's major concerns is at inside linebacker, where the departed Paul McGowan won the Hutkus Award. The other starter, David Palmer, is also gone while outside linebacker looks strong with the emergence of former defensive back John Hadley and redshirt freshman Howard Dinkins.

All-America cornerback Deion Sanders is one of college football's best athletes and also excels on punt returns. Stan Shiver and Dedrick Dodge are fine safeties but Bowden must find a cornerback partner for Sanders.

Tigers irritated after loss to Twins

United Press International

With their lead in the American League East beginning to shrink, the Detroit Tigers have begun finger-pointing as the losses mount.

Doyle Alexander expressed irritation Wednesday at having to throw over to first base four times just before surrendering the game-winning two-run homer to Minnesota's Dan Gladden in the seventh inning.

That helped Allan Anderson win his fifth straight decision and the Twins extend their domination of Detroit with a 2-1 victory.

Minnesota held Detroit to three runs in three games to sweep the series and make it eight straight victories over the Tigers. Detroit has lost five of its last six overall and holds a two-game lead over Boston in the AL East.

Alexander was irked at having to hold a runner on with two out and a 1-0 lead.

"There's a signal that the catcher gives to the pitcher to throw over," Alexander said. "I'm obliged to do that. We had the lead at that point. I hadn't seen that signal before."

"I don't mind throwing over there, but four times in a row? Give me a break. That's wrong. I disagree with that. All it does is break your rhythm."

"I'd got myself into a position to perhaps win a game without help. If you think a guy's going to steal, pitch out. I'm not sure I'd do it that way again, given the same situation."

Mike Heath, Detroit's catcher, had staked the Tigers to a 1-0 lead in the fifth with his fifth homer.

In the seventh, Al Newman singled with two out. Alexander, 11-8, threw over to first several times while running the count to 1-2, then threw over four times at 1-2. He delivered "a changeup down and out over the plate that wasn't a bad pitch until it went

"I guess he was concerned about me," said Newman, who has six steals this season after getting 15 last year. "I was going on the pitch."

The Tigers are 17-17 since the All-Star break. Detroit's hitting has diminished, but the club had maintained its composure until the outbursts by Hernandez and Alexander.

"I don't even want to hear that stuff," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said of Alexander's complaint. "I don't have anything to say. I hope people are smart enough to read between the lines."

"I hope you understand that had nothing to do with the outcome of the game. I hope you understand human beings."

Anderson, 11-7, was helped by three Minnesota double plays.

Indiana 11, Brewers 7
 At Cleveland, Joe Carter hit two solo homers and drove in three runs, fueling the Indians and harrying Mark Birkbeck, 8-6, his first loss in his last seven decisions. Carter's first homers since July 30 backed John Farrell, 13-7.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 1
 At Chicago, catcher Carlton Fisk, celebrating his American League record-tying 1,805th game behind the plate, hit two solo homers to spark the White Sox. Chicago starter Jerry Reusa improved to 9-7.

Yankees 11, Angels 7
 At New York, Rickey Henderson went 4 for 5 and broke a seventh-inning tie with a two-run single, lifting the Yankees. Henderson is batting .472 in his last 34 at bats. Detroit lost 2-1 to Minnesota. Stu Criburn, 4-2, took the loss. Scott Nielsen, 1-0, permitted two hits in two innings of relief.
Red Sox 7, Mariners 2

At Boston, Rich Gedman hit a two-run homer to help the Red Sox defeat the Mariners and draw with a two games of the front-running Tigers in the AL East. Boston improved its major league-best home mark to 41-20. Bruce Hurst, 14-4, won his fifth straight decision.

Royals 9, Rangers 6
 At Kansas City, Mo., Danny Tartabull knocked in three runs, including two during a four-run fifth that carried the Royals. Tartabull doubled in one run in the fourth and his two-run triple in the fifth allowed the Royals to grab a 7-3 lead and beat Jose Guzman, 10-10. Jeff Montgomery, 6-2, won in relief.

LaPoint, Tudor win for new clubs

United Press International

Dave LaPoint and John Tudor eased successfully into pennant races Wednesday night.

At Pittsburgh, LaPoint yielded three hits over seven innings in the Pirates' 2-1 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

At Los Angeles, Tudor allowed 11 singles in sparking the Dodgers to a 7-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In the last week, LaPoint and Tudor moved through trades from teams struggling near the bottom of their divisions to clubs fighting near the top. They are what many competing teams yearn for — experienced left-handers.

LaPoint went to Pittsburgh on Saturday from the Chicago White Sox for Barry Jones. Tudor was acquired by Los Angeles from St. Louis Tuesday for Pedro Guerrero.

"After that first pitch I felt pretty comfortable," LaPoint said. "I had a little bit of the jitters mainly because of the team being in the pennant race. I didn't want to be one guy to mess up."

The Pirates closed within 4 1/2 games of the first-place New York Mets in the National League East. Pittsburgh has longed to add another left-handed starter to join Smiley and the righty contingent of Mike Dunne, Doug Drabek and Brian Fisher.

"It's a lot more fun being on a team you know is going to win more than they're going to lose," said LaPoint, who was 10-11 this year for Chicago. "It's been a while since I've been in a race and it didn't take me long to get that feeling we're in a pressure situation."

LaPoint struck out two and walked none. Jeff Robinson worked the eighth for Pittsburgh and Jim Gott pitched the ninth for his 22nd save. Tom Glavine, 4-14, was the loser.

The Dodgers needed to add a lefty with the loss of one-time southpaw ace Fernando Valenzuela with a shoulder injury. Tudor is one of baseball's best left-handers.

He also is familiar with late-season pressures, having pitched on two pennant winners with St. Louis.

"Maybe we won't feel the loss of Pedro until we're in the World Series," catcher Mike Scioscia said.

Tudor posted his fifth complete game of the year and lowered his NL-leading ERA to 2.22. The left-hander, helped by three double plays, improved to 7-5 this season and 3-0 in four starts against Philadelphia.

Tudor, who reported to Dodger Stadium about 3 1/2 hours before gametime, walked two and struck out one. Phillies starter Mike Maddux, 3-3, surrendered 10 hits and two walks in six innings. The Dodgers lead the NL West by 3 1/2 games over Houston. "My location was pretty poor but I made good pitches when I had to," Tudor said. "I fell behind a lot of hitters, and when you're a pitcher of my style — with the (unimpressive) fastball I have — you can't afford to fall behind. I was lucky to win tonight."

Astros 1, Cardinals 0
 At St. Louis, Dave Meads, an emergency starter for the injured Bob Knepper, teamed with three relievers on a three-hitter and Glenn Davis scored on a wild pitch to lift Houston. It was the first start of the season for Meads. 2-0. Dave Smith earned his 22nd save. Joe Magrane, 2-7, was the loser.

Cubs 5, Cincinnati 0
 At Cincinnati, Rick Sutcliffe, pitching amid speculation he will be traded, fired a four-hitter to pace Chicago. Sutcliffe, 10-10, notched his ninth complete game. The Cubs reportedly are interested in trading the 32-year-old right-hander to a contender for prospects, Jack Armstrong, 2-6, was the loser.

Padres 4, Expos 2
 At San Diego, Tony Gwynn keyed a four-run sixth inning with a bases-loaded, two-run single to lift the Padres. Gwynn, who went 2 for 4, tied Atlanta's Gerald Perry for the NL batting lead at .321. Dennis Rasmussen, 12-7, was the winner. Mark Davis gained his 21st save. Bryn Smith, 8-7, took the loss.

Giants 4, Mets 0
 At San Francisco, Rick Reuschel silenced a New York attack that had generated 13 runs the previous day by pitching his fifth career two-hitter to lift the Giants. Reuschel, 16-6, became the fourth NL pitcher to reach 16 victories. David Cone, 12-3, matched his career-high of 12 strikeouts despite losing.

Labor strife still haunts baseball

By MIKE TULLY
 UPI sports writer

NEW YORK — The recent death of Baltimore Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams stirred a memory from former labor leader Marvin Miller.

Miller, onetime head of the Players' Association, recalled the day his successor, Don Fehr, cross-examined Williams during one of baseball's many arbitration cases.

Now retired and living in Manhattan, Miller shared the vignette with UPI the same day the Orioles gathered in Washington for Williams' funeral.

Miller says the incident occurred in a 1983 case when Williams appeared as a witness for the owners. A trial lawyer of national stature, Williams faced such a skillful attack from Fehr he finally said, "Mr. Fehr, I have to say my experience really hasn't been in the whole area of collective bargaining and you have me at a disadvantage."

Miller still chuckles at Fehr's reaction.

"Don stopped and put down his notes, smiled and said, 'Mr. Williams, when I was a young student and you were at the height of your career as a trial lawyer, if someone had told me that you, America's outstanding trial lawyer, were ever going to say to me 'you have me at a disadvantage,' I'd have said you were crazy.' It broke up the whole meeting."

No amount of humor can hide baseball's labor problems, however. Miller has yielded his role to Fehr. Barry Rona now serves as management negotiator instead of Ray Grebey and Lee MacPhail, who went before him. Even the Commissioner has changed, with Peter Ueberroth succeeding Bowie Kuhn. Players and owners have quarrelled their way into two strikes this decade. For three straight years, the union has charged management with violating their labor agreement. Nor should anyone believe the bitterness stems from baseball's anti-trust exemption, which came from the Supreme Court in 1922. The strife dates well back into the 19th century. Unless it subsides, another strike could take place in 1990.

This climate invites study of the only statistic that really matters at negotiation time — attendance. Baseball remains in business only because people care enough to pay. Players and owners alike should note that baseball fans are voting at the turnstiles.

With help from the Elias Sports Bureau, UPI surveyed all 26 big-league parks and found 17 increased their attendance from 1987 to 1988. Nine American League teams, including three of the four that set franchise records last year, have improved their gate. Eight National League squads can show a rise. Four major-league teams could reach 3 million and only one — Atlanta — appears in danger of missing 1 million. Both leagues could again wind up with record turnstile counts.

The enthusiasm extends to the minors as well. Indications showed the Buffalo Bisons were on the verge of breaking the minor-league single-season attendance record, until this year the property of Louisville.

Like many statistics, however, these can mean whatever you want. Which side, if any, are the fans endorsing? The union likes to define players as entertainers, which implies they draw the fans. Hall of Fame owner Branch Rickey said people come to watch a franchise, not players.

Obviously, the sides need each other. Organized baseball thrives because of its quality; players with skills need a structure in which to participate. Fans probably understand this better than the warring parties do.

Attendance figures also beg the question of baseball's revenue threshold. Crowds can grow only so big, especially in cold weather cities where clubs must battle hockey, basketball and cold for fan allegiance. At some point, even with television contracts, corporate sponsorships and creative marketing, the revenues could stop growing.

Of course, that hasn't happened yet. The right buy in the right city can still bring wealth and prestige. In 1980, for example, Doubleday Company purchased the New York Mets for $21 million. At the time, the Mets ranked last in the National League East and attendance had fallen to a franchise low. Today, the Mets draw 3 million per year, and are shooting for their second division title in three seasons. To even consider buying the franchise, you might have to start bidding at $100 million.

To the union, that kind of growth means baseball remains healthy and able to pay large salaries. Management says no one wants to undertake an investment in which so large a percentage of revenues must go to payroll.

Maybe someday, financial circumstances may settle all these disputes. Very possibly, however, the fighting will continue until then, even if an occasional joke breaks the tension in the arbitration room.

Agassi ousts Pimek

United Press International

LIVINGSTON, N.J. — Top seed Andre Agassi employed a powerful forehand Wednesday, eliminating Libor Pimek from the $125,000 Mennen Cup Championships.

Agassi, ranked fourth in the world and winner of five events this year, captured his second-round match 6-4, 6-3.

Agassi, of Las Vegas, Nev., scored service breaks in the opening game of each set and was never headed.

"I try to discourage my opponents by bearing down early and trying to get ahead," he said.

The 6-foot-5 Pimek of Czechoslovakia said he couldn't catch up to the booming passing shots of his 18-year-old opponent.

"He has an amazing forehand," Pimek said. "There aren't too many players who can hit like that."

No. 2 seed Slobodan Zivonovic had trouble subduing Leif Shiras of Milwaukee in the featured evening match. The Yugoslavian scored a 6-4, 6-4 victory in 85 minutes, but the normally strong server hit only two aces and connected on just 39 percent of his first serves.

Two other singles matches were played in the afternoon session. Fifth seed Yahiya Doumbia of Senegal routed Bill Scanlon of Dallas 6-1, 6-2 and Jeff Tarango, of Manhattan Beach, Calif., eliminated John Ross, of Gainesville, Fla., 6-3, 6-4.

The second-seeded doubles team of Houston's Sammy Gammalla and Marc Flur, of Durham, N.C., edged Charles Honey of San Antonio and Chris Kennedy, of Cary, N.C., 6-7 (4-7), 6-4, 6-4.

Roberts then followed with a walk but Mexico got out of the inning when Tolbert hit a sharp grounder to the second baseman, Jose Rosas, who tagged Roberts and threw to first baseman Francisco Madrigal for the inning-ending double play.

Altamonte had another chance to score in the fifth when Frank Harmer led off with a walk and, with two outs, Mike Elliott reached on an error. The two moved up on a passed ball but Anaya coaxed Johnson to pop out to end the threat.

Altamonte had another shot in the seventh when, with two outs, Harmer was hit by a pitch and Elliott walked but Johnson grounded out to end the game.

Reynolds blazes to 43.29 in 400

United Press International

ZURICH, Switzerland — Carl Lewis surged past Ben Johnson to win a 100-meter bonanza Wednesday night, and Butch Reynolds broke the 19-year-old record at 400 meters at the Weltklasse Grand Prix track and field meet.

The Lewis-Johnson confrontation, Reynolds' startling time of 43.29 seconds and Mary Decker Slaney's loss at 3,000 meters highlighted a glittering meet in which 30 past and present Olympic and world champions and world-record holders competed. Almost every final offered a preview of next month's Seoul Games.

In the richest race in track history, Lewis and Johnson agreed to meet in Zurich for a guaranteed minimum of $250,000 each. It was their first meeting since last summer's World Championships in Rome when Johnson set the world record of 9.83 seconds.

After one false start, Johnson broke superbly from the blocks. Lewis trailed almost the whole race but overtook the Canadian and won in 9.93. Calvin Smith of the United States took second in 9.97 with Johnson third in 10.00.

Lewis posted the year's fastest official time and equaled his personal best, set last year in Rome. Johnson held a five-race winning streak over the American, dating to 1985. Lewis leads 9-6 in head-to-head clashes.

"This is a Lewis season," the 1984 quadruple Olympic champion said. "I made my own race here. Johnson ran a good race and built a good lead, but he was never that far ahead and I felt confident I could take him."

Other winners included Holland's Elly van Hulst, who beat Slaney at 3,000 meters with a season's fastest 8:33.08, and Said Aouita, the multiple world-record holder from Morocco who took the mile in 3:50.84, sixth fastest this year. Johnny Gray of the United States won the 800 meters in the year's fastest time of 1:42.66 and Paula Ivan of Romania won the women's 1,500 in a season best 3:56.24.

Reynolds' historic performance wiped out Lee Evans' mark of 43.86 seconds, set at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics, and shattered the second oldest mark in track and field. Bob Beamon's record long jump of 29 feet, 2 1/2 inches — set 20 minutes before Evans' run at Mexico City — remains track and field's oldest record.

Reynolds was running in lane four with Cuba's Roberto Hernandez and fellow American Steve Lewis inside him. He powered down the home straightaway to finish 6 meters ahead of Danny Everett of the United States. Innocent Egbunike of Nigeria, silver medalist at the World Championships, led the first 200 meters but finished sixth.

Reynolds, who has threatened to break Evans' mark the last 15 months, celebrated with those close to home. His brother Jeff finished sixth in the "B" race a few minutes earlier.

"This world record is brilliant," said Butch Reynolds, holding high his brother's fist.

McCormick takes lead; Kimball competes today

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Bruce Kimball, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist charged with killing two Florida teens while driving drunk, begins competition today at the U.S. Olympic diving trials.

Kimball's first scheduled appearance is in the men's springboard preliminaries. He placed eighth in the event last month at the U.S. nationals.

Kimball is considered stronger in the 10-meter platform event, which begins Saturday. Kimball won a silver medal at the 1984 Olympics in the platform and was second at the nationals in the event, trailing only Greg Louganis in both competitions.

The meet opened Wednesday night with Kelly McCormick, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist, leading after preliminary dives with 528.90 points in the women's 3-meter springboard. Finals in the event are tonight.

"The pressure showed on the whole field," U.S. Olympic diving coach Ron O'Brien said. "Nobody was steady. I thought the top score would have been higher. Kelly is in a good position that allows her a slip, but she is by no means in a commanding position."

Twenty-two women and 15 men have qualified for the trials, which continue through Sunday at Indiana University Natatorium. The top two divers in each event advance to the Seoul Olympics.

Felony charges of injury and manslaughter while driving drunk have been filed against Kimball, who faces 45 years in prison if convicted on all counts. Two people were killed and six were injured in an Aug. 1 crash near Brandon, Fla., that has prompted emotional protests and requests that Kimball not be allowed to participate.

U.S. diving officials said Kimball, who is free on $10,000 bail, has qualified to compete and cannot be prevented from seeking a berth on the Olympic squad. Written protests by the father of one of the victims and the Hillsborough County (Fla.) chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving have failed to alter Kimball's status.

CYCLING TRIALS

HOUSTON — David Britton, who won a silver medal in the individual pursuit at the Pan American Games last year, Wednesday was the top qualifier for the semifinals in the event at the U.S. Track Cycling Olympic Trials.

Steve Hegg, the 1984 Olympic gold medalist in the event, 1984 Olympic bronze medalist Leonard Harvey Nitz and Frankie Andreu were the other three cyclists to qualify for Thursday's semifinals.

Finals in the event also are scheduled Thursday night with the winner gaining a place on the U.S. team that competes at the Seoul Olympics.

There were no finals Wednesday at the Attek Velodrome in west Houston. Time trials were held in the 200-meter sprint team pursuit qualifying event in addition to the quarterfinals of the pursuit race for men and women.

The pursuit race for women is not an Olympic event but the winner Thursday will go to Belgium for the 1988 World Cycling Championships.

Women's team routs Cuba

United Press International

FLORENCE, S.C. — Teresa Edwards scored 17 points Wednesday night to lead the U.S. Olympic women's basketball team past Cuba 102-69 for its third straight exhibition victory.

Cindy Brown, Cynthia Cooper and Bridgette Gordon each scored 11 points, and Suzie McConnell added 10 for the U.S. team, which controlled play from the start at Francis Marion College. Leonor Borrell scored 28 points for Cuba.

The two teams will play the fourth and final game of the series Saturday night in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Fran Harris of Texas was dropped from the U.S. roster before Wednesday's game, and a final player is expected to be cut later in the week to get the roster to the Olympic limit of 12. Clarissa Davis of Texas was dropped Monday.

Lightning isn't tame on phones

DEAR ABBY: Living in the section of the country with the highest annual occurrences of lightning, I was very interested in your recent article concerning lightning safety. More recently, many readers have written to you debating the safety of using the telephone during a storm.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I recently was away on business, and it was obvious that my boyfriend was taking advantage of my absence by spending many late nights out (always with a good alibi ready). One morning I called and asked where he had been all night because I called until the wee hours and he wasn't home. He quickly responded that he had indeed been home, but a terrible electrical storm had been going on and he was afraid to answer the phone!

Abby, this weak excuse might have flown, but he has one of those new cordless telephones! (By the way, this man is an engineer at the Kennedy Space Center.) Sign me...

RAINY DAY FOOL

DEAR RAINY DAY FOOL: If you don't sever your connection with this shifty space engineer, I predict stormy weather ahead—with little chance for sunshine.

DEAR ABBY: The person who said there is no danger in using a telephone during a thunder and lightning storm is in for a shock, if you'll pardon the pun.

Several years ago when I was at summer camp with the Michigan National Guard, one of my friends decided to make a telephone call during a thunderstorm. Ten minutes later he was back in the duty office with a sore jaw and a temporarily paralyzed arm! It seems lightning had struck the wires and traveled down the phone line and jumped to the braces on his teeth! It knocked him and two other men approximately 20 feet across the road.

JIM ANDERSEN, ANN ARBOR

DEAR ABBY: On July 2, 1970, our mother went to the bank to cash our father's paycheck. When she got home, our father, Ernie Craze of Mansfield, Ohio, discovered the bank had given Mom $100 too much. So, being the honest person he was, Dad picked up the telephone and called the bank to alert it of the error.

A lightning storm was going on outside at the time, and about halfway through the call, lightning struck! Dad dropped the phone and said, "Oh my God—my ear!" Those were his last words. Then he fell back dead. The cause of death: electrocution.

Dad left a wife of 34 years and five children. So, Dear Abby, please let your readers know that using the telephone during a rainstorm can be fatal.

THE CRAZES FROM MANSFIELD, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I am 77 years old and have had lots of close encounters with lightning. Once, while making an emergency telephone call from Crookston, Minn., in the late '30s, lightning struck the telephone wire and the results were electrifying! My arms stretched out sideways and every muscle in my body vibrated. I was told I lit up like a neon tube! Fortunately, I was spared because the line was grounded.

Diet pills often have side effects

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been taking Prolamine for 10 years and it has helped me to get control of my life. Is there any long-term health problem this medication could cause?

DEAR READER: Prolamine, one brand of "diet pill," contains phenylpropanolamine, an over-the-counter drug that is marketed as an appetite suppressant. This active ingredient is also present in other appetite-suppressant preparations — such as Appedrine, Control and Dexamtrim (which has been heavily advertised on national TV).

The four brands named above are manufactured by the same company. The manufacturer cautions against using Prolamine for more than three months. It should not be taken by anyone with a serious illness, such as hypertension, diabetes, heart or kidney disease, depression or thyroid disorder. The drug commonly causes nausea and dry mouth, but is also associated with headaches, dizziness, nervousness, sleeplessness and palpitations.

In my opinion, this — and any drug like it — is not appropriate for use in weight control. It represents a short-term stopgap solution to a chronic problem. When used as directed, Prolamine may cause weight loss for limited time — but with an unacceptable risk of side effects. Without a support group or a sound dietary program, people almost always regain weight after they stop taking appetite suppressants.

If you have taken Prolamine for 10 years, you have substantially exceeded the manufacturer's limit for therapy. I suggest that you stop the medicine and check with your doctor for a more suitable method of weight control.

To give you more information about a balanced approach to weight loss, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report. (C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Declarer's superfluous cue-bidding helped East-West beat four spades. Don't ask me why South bid four diamonds. Since he wasn't going to slam, why should he give the opponents more information?
East put his mind to work after the opening lead. Apparently declarer had controls everywhere. The defense might take three club tricks, but it would be child's play for South to take A-K of spades and ace of diamonds, and lead a spade to dummy's queen for the rest of the tricks. But what if cashing the ace of diamonds before leading to dummy would not work? East hoped his thinking was not lost on West. He overtook West's club queen with his king, played the ace and led his last club to West. West correctly reasoned that East did not hold either red ace and, for whatever reason, simply wanted his partner to continue with the last club. He did so. To discourage an uppercut, declarer played a low diamond from dummy. East shed his singleton diamond as declarer ruffed in his hand. Try as he might, declarer could no longer take 10 tricks.

Declarer can succeed against this defense if he has X-ray vision. He must trump the fourth club in dummy. When East discards a diamond, declarer can throw his diamond ace away and then start playing high diamonds from dummy. If East ruffs, South can overruff and play ace and a spade to the queen, drawing all the adverse trumps. And of course if East ruffs the fourth club, declarer simply overruffs, cashes the diamond ace and plays two high trumps ending in dummy for the rest of the tricks.
James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...
By Bernice Bede Osol
Aug. 19, 1988
In the year ahead you might find yourself involved in a unique arrangement where you will sincerely try to be of help to another and discover, in the process, that you are the one who derives the greatest benefits.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Knowledge is one thing and having the right contacts is another. Today you are very fortunate, because both are going for you — so use them.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Occasionally we are fortunate enough to be in the right spot at the right time to benefit from propitious developments. The aspects indicate you'll be well-positioned today.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Proponents for a cause you espouse will rally to your banner today. You may even gain supporters you would least expect to have on your team.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions in general should be pleasant for you today. There may be some responsibilities attached however, but you will not look upon them as tedious or demanding.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your unique talents and abilities will come to the fore today in situations that have elements of challenge. It isn't likely you'll finish as the runner-up.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something unexpected could develop today that will enable you to derive benefits from an unusual source. It will be a friend who will orchestrate matters for you.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What you cannot do on your own today can be accomplished with the assistance of an effective ally. You're not apt to have trouble finding the right person.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Where your career is concerned today, a number of situations can be utilized to your advantage. Exploring all of your alternatives increases possibilities for success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In managing a critical development today you might want to deviate from your normal way of doing things. If you get a bright idea, don't be reluctant to use it.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, there could be a sudden shift in circumstances regarding a matter you've been anxious to conclude. The alteration should make it easier to achieve desirable end results.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you may be required to make a hasty, important decision. Trust your judgment, because your assessment of situations will be wise.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your possibilities for personal gain are likely to be much stronger today than tomorrow. If you have a way of adding to your resources, move as quickly as possible.
