

COUNTY HAPPENINGS

GENEVA ITEMS

Mrs. Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson of Orlando and Mr. McBride of Oviedo were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Moran. While here they were entertained at a very pleasant picnic on Lake Harney by their host and hostess.

Quite a good many from the Methodist church attended quarterly meeting in Oviedo last Saturday and Sunday. The presiding elder preached in Geneva Friday night.

Mrs. Bill Taylor and children are spending a few days camping on Lake Harney. On last Saturday Mrs. G. R. Nicholson and daughter had a pleasant outing with the campers.

There was a jolly pillow at the town hall last Saturday and again the desire for rice and chicken was satisfied.

Miss Vera Howard of Oviedo has been the guest of Miss Marie Daniel for several days.

Mrs. Oscar Nicholson of Daytona Beach is visiting here parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peters.

Mrs. Geo. Mathieux is expected home on Wednesday from a lengthy visit to relatives in St. Augustine and Jacksonville.

The merry dancers of Geneva were given another opportunity last Friday night to enjoy their new play piano at the hall.

Mrs. Long of Chuluota is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dan Hart.

Rev. Stones of Oviedo preached two able sermons at the Baptist church last Sunday. He and Mrs. Stones will be guests of friends until Friday.

Messrs. Beasley of Manchester, England arrived in Geneva last week. These young machinists are much pleased with Geneva and her people and we hope they will locate among us. At present they are with Mr. A. W. Davis.

Mrs. Jennie Prevatt left Tuesday to visit her daughter in Eau Gallie.

Evan Pattishall left Tuesday for Jacksonville for a visit to relatives. He was accompanied as far as DeLand by his brother Bert and sister, Miss Georgia.

Miss Cora Lee Tillis of Sanford is spending some time with relatives in Geneva.

Alfred Beggs of Titusville is visiting relatives in Geneva for a few days.

Mrs. C. A. Raulerson had a pleasant visit to Orlando last week.

Reed Dooly is remodeling the Phlem Prevatt place which he recently purchased, and when finished he will indeed have a pleasant home which will no longer be "bachelor quarters" after October.

Wise young man! There are others who might follow this young man's example.

Messrs. T. W. Geiger, C. A. Raulerson and J. T. McLain left last Tuesday for Ft. Pierce, thence by auto to Ocochobee with a view of investing in the new section now being opened up by the F. E. C.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Adams left last Monday by boat to Jacksonville. On Wednesday they take the boat for Baltimore, on to Washington and thence to Buffalo for the summer, returning in the fall to occupy their quaint little brown cottage on Buck Lake.

The election of teachers for the ensuing scholastic year resulted very satisfactorily for Geneva: Miss Agnes Clark, principal, Miss Mary Aulin intermediate and Miss Mathis primary. All these young ladies come well recommended and aside from the neighborly feeling already existing we extend them a welcome to our midst.

Geneva friends of Rev. and Mrs. Stones of Oviedo gave a very delightful fish fry on Lake Harney last Monday. An abundance of fish had been provided by Messrs. W. D. Ballard, David Speer and P. L. Chabbliss, and which were cooked just right and enjoyed as only a hungry crowd can enjoy fish. Many other good things were there to eat and a most delightful day was spent by all.

On last Friday afternoon Miss Daniel entertained the little folks of Geneva at a party from 3 until 5 in honor of Miss Vera Howard. Games such as children enjoy were played and an afternoon long to be remembered was spent by all. Refreshments consisting of cream, cake and home made candy was delicious.

News received from Mr. Gilmore and young grandson who are now in Clarksville, Texas, describes Mr. Gilmore as somewhat improved in health.

NO MORE HARDTACK

Army Bakers Sound Death Knell of Famous Food.

U. S. Soldiers No Longer Have to Break Their Teeth on "Cast Iron" Bread—Breadmakers Carry Outfit for Troops.

Vera Cruz, Mex.—Modern field organization has shattered another picturesque feature of war. Hardtack, which in every campaign story swapping contest has figured prominently as one of the privations which heroes must endure, is not used. No longer can it be the leading stage prop in sentimental romances of the sacrificing comrade who gave up his last crumb to a famished brother, of the dutiful son who used his last cake to write home to mother and went hungry for a week in consequence, or of profane O'Brien, who made a new vocal record when he broke an eye tooth on the durable army ration.

Fresh bread in big, soft rolls, as palatable as can be turned out by the most modern bakery, takes the place of the hardtack of other campaigns. It is all baked in the army ovens. Twenty-four hours after the troops landed in Mexico 6,000 pounds of bread had been baked and was being delivered, warm, to the different camps. Capt. E. S. Wheeler, who had charge of the field bakery, says that it is the most notable advance which has been made in army equipment in the last ten years.

Formerly an army in camp lived on hardtack for several months while the quartermaster's department was either erecting brick ovens and a bake shop or negotiating with some local baker for a bread supply. Now a real bakery is a part of the quartermaster's department of every division.

The bakery which went into operation over night in Mexico is turning out between 6,000 and 8,000 pounds of bread a day, which feeds some 10,000 soldiers and marines on shore duty. The equipment can be tripled in size and its capacity increased to 35,000 pounds daily. Four ovens are in use, while a full equipment for 12 ovens, enough for an entire army division, was brought on the transport.

There is no experimenting necessary to get the field bakery in working order. To the bakery crew conditions here are the same as they have been for months in the various army camps in the states. It will be the same from day to day, if the army is on the move.

A bakery crew consists of a captain and 65 men, enlisted as bakers. Captain Wheeler, who has charge of the field bakery at Vera Cruz is an artillery captain, detailed for four years in the quartermaster's department and assigned to the bakery.

Each oven is the nucleus of a separate unit in an army field bakery. One or twelve can be set up, each complete in itself. First is a sleeping tent for the crew working that particular oven. Next comes the mixing tent. In it are two mixing troughs, a corner for the sacks of flour, a bake table on which are scales for weighing the loaves and another on which the pans are stacked. Next comes the oven. On the other side of the oven is the store tent. It is inclosed in an outer tent of mosquito netting and filled with racks of wire and steel which will hold 5,000 pounds of bread in orderly rows.

The oven was designed in 1911 by Capt. Lucien Holbrook and Sergt. Patrick Dunn. It is of iron and steel, fastened at the corners and edges by clamps. Tents, ovens and all equipment are collapsible and can be folded and packed into a single escort wagon. Twelve wagons will carry the bakery for 20,000 men, or 10,000 loaves.

War has not started and the army is not on the march. The bakery is turning out what is known as "issue" bread. It is different from "war" bread. Six loaves of "issue" bread are baked at one time. Four of the loaves consequently do not have any crust on their sides. What is known as "war" bread is baked in separate loaves, has crust all over and will keep longer.

There are other differences interesting to the housewife or baker. "Issue" bread has 2 1/4 pounds of dough to the loaf, rises five hours, is baked one hour and weighs two pounds when cooled. "War" bread weighs two pounds when cooled, is raised for eight hours, has more sugar and no lard in the dough, is baked for 1 1/2 hours and will keep for a considerable length of time.

At 6 p. m. the bakers start mixing their dough. Before noon the store tents are stocked with fresh bread. At daylight the next day the regimental commissary wagons are loaded with the supply to be taken to the camp. It is very different from the days of hardtack, which it is said by veterans, was as hard as the boxes in which it was shipped.

Road to Happiness.

We expect the roads to happiness. Like those which lead to heaven, to be very long and especially very complex, says Jean First. Yet there are candid souls who go there by the simplest ways. And the road they pursue is the best one.

Useless.

Hands Off.

A farmer was going through an art institution where a number of models of ancient Greek sculpture was exhibited. He noticed that on each one hung a placard saying, "Hands Off." "What n thunder do they pay to sell ye every time that the hands is off?" he exclaimed at last. "Do they reckon we can't see it? An' why don't they never say anything about the arms and legs bein' off, too?"

Courtesy.

Courtesy costs nothing, but it often buys things that are priceless.

Main Thing.

At the end of a somewhat sweeping peroration the young lady said: "And now, Mrs. Smith, would you not like to have a vote and exercise the privileges of citizenship?" To which, says the Glasgow News, the lady of the straggling brush made a typically sensible reply: "I don't know, Guss," she said, agitatedly: "what would it cost?"

Today's Short Story Spirit of the Chamonix

"AND this is the place?"
 "It is."
 "Where is the ghost?"
 "The ghost, herr, is only to be seen by children. They describe it as a woman raking leaves. When she looks up at them they see only a skull instead of a face. She may be raking over there now. Yet we cannot see her."
 Annette, who was with me, looked at me with a frightened expression. We were in the valley of Chamonix surrounded by snowy peaks, among which Mont Blanc rose highest. Hearing of the legend, I had engaged a guide to conduct us to the spot the ghost was said to inhabit.
 "Your children hereabout," I said to the guide, "are doubtless under the influence of the legend. Imagination paints the image on the retina of the child's eye."
 The guide shook his head negatively. "If herr will bring a child here who has never heard of the legend he will know better."
 "That is a proposition which meets my concurrence. An American family arrived at the hotel this morning, among them a little girl of seven. What do you say, Annette? Shall we make the test with her?"
 "We will bring the child here," I added, then, turning to the guide, "and Herman, if she sees the ghost I will give you an American gold eagle for a memento of the occasion."
 "Thanks, herr; I consider myself richer by that amount."
 We succeeded in getting permission from the child's parents the next afternoon to take her to walk with us. I felt sure that if she saw the ghost she would see it. She was like a waltz from spirit land, large dreamy eyes—wonder eyes I would call them—the face of a child Madonna, sensitive lips, the figure of a sprite. She walked with us in silence, treading the ground so lightly that I sometimes wondered if she touched it at all. Annette could not keep her eyes off her, seemingly enthralled by her, though our quest may have had much to do with that.

 "As we drew near the spot we sought Annette weakened. I saw in her expression that she feared 'we would have evidence of the specter's presence. The child was walking before us, and Annette, sidling toward me, laid her hand on my arm, as before, this time clutching it in terror."
 We stood on the ground we had occupied the day before, looking out on the spot Herman had referred to when he said, "She may be raking over there now." The child stood a few steps before us, looking at the mountains, the valleys, anything, everything that made up the view.
 "Herman has lost his eagle," I said in a low voice to Annette. "She sees nothing unusual."
 "Thank heaven!" was the whispered reply.
 "What a desolate spot!" I remarked aloud. "Not a living thing here but ourselves."
 "Yes, there is," said the child. "There's a woman over there raking dead leaves."
 I felt a convulsive grip on my arm. I knew Annette needed support, and I put my arm about her to steady her. I confess I was startled myself.
 "Where?" I asked of the child.
 "Over there," pointing. "She sees us. There are only holes where the eyes should be."
 "Oh, come away!"
 It was Annette who wailed the words. But she had no power to go. My plan had worked too well. Its object—to excite in her that craving for protection which would throw her into my arms—had succeeded, but I feared the shock.
 That was a long while ago. Annette is my wife, but I have never ceased to regret that I uncovered her heart in a way so dangerous. She was long in recovering from the shock, and even now I do not dare refer to the matter. No explanation of the wonder has ever come to me. I have no theory concerning it and don't wish any. All I ask is that I and Annette may forget it.

Gossip From Washington

REPRESENTATIVE WYATT AIKEN of South Carolina often entertains constituents in Washington and tells an interesting story about one pilgrim to the capital.
 "He and his party," said Mr. Aiken, "arrived one Saturday afternoon, seeking to be shown, and I showed 'em—look them around the capitol, where they shuddered at the chamber of horrors and 'Oh, oh!' at the senate looking dignified and the house looking busy."
 "Then I drove them through the mall and by the White House, where I showed them a distant prospect of the president of the United States on the back porch."
 Then I took them to dinner and the theater and to bed.
 "Next morning I called around at their hotel early and mapped out a joyous day for them, embracing pretty much everything from Mount Vernon to movies."
 "Wait a minute!" exclaimed this fellow as we started toward the walking auto. "I always do this every day when I'm away from home."
 "Then he pulled out a postal card and a fountain pen and wrote:
 "Darling Wife—Another dreary Sunday! Lovingly, HUBBIE.
 "All set, boys!" he exclaimed as he dropped it in the mail box. "Now I'm ready for you!"

Secretary of War Garrison is a great friend of newspaper men. On a recent occasion he was being questioned as to the personnel of the government in the Philippines.
 "Who'll be the next governor-general?" asked one correspondent.
 "How long is a piece of string?" countered Mr. Garrison.
 "I don't know," said the inquirer.
 "Neither do I," replied Garrison, "and that makes it unanimous."

One day while Representative W. A. Watson of Virginia was being shaved by a colored barber, which, of course, meant learning all of the barber's religious and political principles, he assailed the Democratic party, which Representative Watson ardently defended.
 "Well, I tell you, judge," said the colored barber at last as if clinching the matter, "you all Democrats ought have enough sense to run a little place like Virginia, but you ain't got enough to spread around in running the whole country."

"Miss the trusts," said Senator La Follette at a luncheon in Washington.
 "Yes, oh, yes; when the trusts go we will miss them—we'll miss them like the widow."
 "A widow at her late husband's funeral happened during the burial services to drop her handkerchief into the open grave."
 "A young man gallantly offered to leap down and get the handkerchief for her."
 "But the widow shook her head."
 "'No,' she said; 'leave it there. I have done with tears now.'"

Representative Rucker of Colorado is actively interested in mining for precious metals in the mountains of his state. Not long ago a shift boss at one of the mines he controls had been handling, with fatal effect, that most capricious of explosives, a stick of frozen dynamite.
 "He took that frozen dainty in his hand and held it over a live flame," explained the superintendent to Mr. Rucker. "He wanted to thaw it out real quick, and he did. It thawed out with an enthusiasm that scattered him over the best part of Cripple Creek township, and when—"
 "What," interrupted Representative Rucker; "you mean to say that the fellow held a stick of frozen dynamite over a live flame? Why, I should think that would be about the last thing in the world that he'd do!"
 "It was," replied the laconic superintendent.

Senator John Sharp Williams, arguing against suffrage at a tea in Washington, said, with a smile:
 "These feminists know less about the nature of woman than the new cook knew about cooking."
 "Martha," said the mistress to the new cook, "I thought I told you we'd have curried chicken for dinner."
 "Yas'm," the new cook answered, "but the hostler was busy, and I ain't no hand with a currycomb."

An Old Favorite
A Lost Chord
 SEATED one day at the organ, I was weary and ill at ease, And my fingers wander'd idly Over the noisy keys.
 I do not know what I was playing Or what I was dreaming then, But I struck one chord of music Like the sound of a great Amen.
 It flooded the crimson twilight Like the close of an angel's psalm, And it lay on my fever'd spirit With a touch of infinite calm.
 It quieted pain and sorrow Like love overcoming strife; It seem'd the harmonious echo From our discordant life.
 It link'd all perplexed meanings Into one perfect peace, And trembled away into silence, As if it were loath to cease.
 I have sought, but I seek it vainly, That one lost chord divine That came from the soul of the organ And enter'd into mine.
 It may be that death's bright angel Will speak in that chord again; It may be that only in heaven I shall hear that grand Amen. —Adelaide Anne Procter.

SOFT SOAP.
 This Cleans the Skin Thoroughly and Quickly.
 If you form the habit of using the liquid soap on your skin you will wonder why you did not do so long ago, and you will hardly care to use cake soap.
 Soap jelly is best, since it does not clog the pores and is much more quickly and more surely rinsed from the skin.
 Try the following and see if you do not approve of it: Take a cake of your favorite soap, weighing about four ounces, shave it fine, then pour three quarts of boiling water over it. Allow it to stand where it will remain warm until all the soap is dissolved. Then remove from heat, and when cold pour it into a large bottle. If the soap is unscented a teaspoonful of any essential oil, such as oil of rose, geranium, bergamot, lavender or rosemary, may be added to the entire amount.
 Now from the larger bottle fill a convenient sized one to leave on the washstand. There will be no mussy or sloppy soap or soap dishes standing about.
 Women who are fastidious and who take good care of their skin seldom if ever use hard soap. Their favorite soap is purchased by the box and dissolved into soap jelly.

Drawing Room With Walls Finished In Natural Wood

A NOVEL way of arranging window hangings is illustrated here. The long wide windows have the upper panes of tinted art glass. The lace curtains are run on a brass rod just below the pane and fall to the floor. Side curtains of silk may be drawn over them. This room is handsomely finished in mahogany. Furniture and walls and ceiling are carried out in this wood.

Biggest Rubber Tree.
 What is believed to be the largest rubber tree in the world stands in the Brazilian territory of Acre, on the frontier of Bolivia. Its stem is 27 feet 2-10 inches in circumference at the base. For 120 days every year this colossal gives twenty-two pounds of rubber a day. At present prices this brings in $2,100 a year, or a fair interest on about $30,000, to its owners, a family of seven Sericigueros.

 Don't, if you are a singer, sing for too many drawing room charities. Many of these mean that the hostess is having a free show.

 Don't over dress; a simple frock is better than over elaboration, which is always bad form.
 Do cultivate a charming platform presence.

For fruit stains on linen smear the stains over with pure glycerine. Leave it on for one hour. Then wash the article in warm water, repeating a second time if necessary.
 To remove stains from fireproof dishes which have become brown from baking, try soaking them in a strong borax water.

RUSSIAN TUNICS.

Several Forms of These Are Featured on the Season's Gowns.
 Several forms of the Russian tunic are now being featured, such as the box plaited style, the side plaited effects, the tunics with plaited panels back and front, and the gathered overskirt set on at a line about five inches from the waist, says the Dry Goods Economist. The junction of the skirt yoke and of the over drapery is often marked by a one inch heading in the form of a tulle. These, of course, are more extreme models.
 The long apron drapery, which reaches the skirt edge in front and is slightly drawn up in the back, is a modified form of the long tunic. In some cases the lower portion is straight around the bottom. In others it extends in tapering outlines from a point slightly above the knees in front to near the skirt edge in the back.
 Each again, this line is reversed, the shorter line coming in the back, with a rounded point in front. An under skirt shows just enough to suggest petticoats. This under skirt may be a heavy material in matching or contrasting shade, or in net lace, girton Roman striped silk or moire.

Geneva is Prospering

Geneva, July 31.—Mr. C. E. Patterson, the genial and accommodating local representative of the East Coast Railway, is quite sanguine as to the future of Geneva.

Mr. Endor Curlett is likewise an optimist when talking of Geneva. He says that two years' residence in the state has convinced him that in the near future people will be coming to Florida to escape the heat of summer as well as the severity of winter.

Mr. Henry Tarbell saw the need of a lumber yard here last fall and his foresight has been rewarded by a flourishing business in that line.

Mr. Gordon Flynt, proprietor of the Geneva House, built a hotel in the fall of 1912, which he enlarged during the summer of 1913, but has found that the hotel has not grown as fast as the demand, and will again add to his building this summer.

Mr. C. A. Raulerson says that twenty years' experience has convinced him that the orange business is good enough for him.

Mr. A. J. Holder says that when he first came to Geneva, thirty-five years ago, the idea that vegetables could be successfully grown here was ridiculed, but he has proved to his entire satisfaction that it is possible to have fresh fruit and vegetable of his own raising any or every day in the year.

Where Will the People go to Church The publicity and reception committees of the Baptist church have made plans to accommodate a large number of people at church on next Sunday night.

CURRY DUE ON BOND

Habuss Corpus Proceedings Before Judge Bullock in Lake Co.

After twenty-one days' spent in the Seminole county jail pending trial for the killing of B. F. Bryan, D. W. Currie is out on a $20,000 bond.

The habuss corpus proceedings that brought about this release were argued before Judge Bullock at Tallahassee Thursday.

Currie was represented by Davis & Giles and Carl B. Robinson of Orlando and A. K. Powers of Sanford. State's Attorney Cary D. Landis was assisted by John C. Jones of Orlando and George A. DeCotte of Sanford.

The evidence gone over was practically the same as that heard on the two former occasions, at Oviedo and Sanford.

This disposes of the case until the January term of the circuit court in Seminole county.

WAR IN EUROPE BOUND TO OCCUR; NATIONS ARMED

THE AUSTRIANS BOMBARD THE CAPITAL OF SERBIA

REFUSE TO HEED OFFER OF RUSSIANS

THE WHITE BEAR WILL HELP HER SLAV NEIGHBOR AND EUROPE WILL COME IN

St. Petersburg, July 31.—In Russian eyes the dye is cast. Only a political miracle can avert war.

Russia does not waver in her determination to support Serbia and partial mobilization already has been ordered. There is every indication that the whole vast military machinery of Russia soon will be set in motion.

An imperial manifesto is awaited tonight.

Should Emperor Nicholas become generalissimo of the forces, as it is understood he will, an immense wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Russia. The political parties have sunk their differences. The general attitude is not "jingolistic," but one of resolute confidence in the justice of the country's cause and readiness to make all sacrifices.

The proposal attributed to Austria to discuss terms when Belgrade has been occupied is regarded as impossible. It is pointed out that before opening of hostilities Russia proposed to Austria a direct exchange of views, which Austria rejected.

London, July 31.—The day's events brought no relief to the suspense nor any diplomatic achievement to restrict the Austro-Serbian war to those two nations.

The events have made for pessimism. Direct negotiations between Russia and Austria, which gave the other governments hope of a compromise, have failed.

Athens, July 31.—The Servian legation has received the following telegram from Nish, dated July 29: "During the night, Belgrade was bombarded. Shells fell in various quarters of the town causing great damage. Several fell on the Franco-Serbian and the Andrejevitch banks. M. Andrejevitch, of the banking firm was wounded. Both banks have lodged a protest at the German legation."

An angry duel is proceeding at Vienna about 3 1/2 miles down the Danube from Belgrade.

WOMAN IS ACQUITTED

No Law Against Killing Editors Origin in France

Paris, July 31.—Madame Callaux is at her home today a freed woman, having been acquitted by a jury in the Court of Appeals of the willful murder of Gustav Calmette, editor of the Paris Figaro on March 18, and in statements to friends she declared that she owed her freedom to Maitre Labori's masterpieces speech to Maitre Labori's masterpiece speech of eloquence.

As the verdict of the jury was read after fifty minutes of deliberation, Madame Callaux staggered and threw her arms about the neck of her leading counsel, Labori, her hair falling over her shoulders and her hat upon the floor.

FOR BETTER ROADS IN UNITED STATES; BONDS TO COVER

SENATOR BRYAN HAS A SUBSTITUTE BILL FOR A LARGE SUM

FLORIDA'S SHARE IS NEARLY FIVE MILLION

OTHER NEWS OF THE WORLD AT LARGE COMPILED FOR BUSY READERS

Washington, July 31.—The enormous sum of $4,750,000 of Federal funds would be placed at the disposal of Florida for the development of good roads if the bill just reported from the Senate committee on post-offices and postroads as a substitute for the Shackelford bill, which has passed the House, becomes a law.

The bill provides that the Federal government shall issue fifty-year 3 per cent bonds to the amount of $500,000,000 in lots of $100,000,000 each for five years. States can participate in the use of the funds by issuing 4 per cent bonds, which deposited in the Federal Treasury would be exchanged for cash. The 1 per cent difference between the Federal and state bonds would be held in a sinking fund with which to aid the states in retiring the bonds.

An amended provision that the issuance of bonds shall not be begun before July 1, 1918. In this way the Democrats of the committee believe they have solved the vexatious problem of avoiding a heavy tax upon the credit of the government at the present time.

CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY

Doing Great Work in Providing Homes for Orphan Children

Four hundred and thirty-four children, homeless, orphan, abandoned, deserted, crippled, blind, diseased, abused, neglected and helpless, have been referred to the Children's Home Society of Florida, Florida's greatest charity, during the first seven months of the present year.

Death has been the chief destroyer of homes, while abandonment, cruelty, neglect, desertion, vice and crime, have each added to the loss of parents, the wrecking of lives and homes.

Only 12 of the 434 are now at the Receiving Home at Jacksonville. A good family home being found for every homeless and orphan youngster—but this dozen, all of whom are anxiously waiting for some good home to open up to them—and some good father and mother to love them.

Perhaps in a week two dozen more will be added to this number, so Supt. Marcus C. Fagg is hoping real soon to find good homes for this little flock as soon as possible. An average of two children per day are received and provided for by the Home Society the year round.

The oldest one of the present group waiting for good homes is Arthur, a fine lad of 15 years; then there is Omega; and excellent girl of 13 years; Lena, a smart, happy girl of 11 years; Edna, a full orphan child of 11 years; Minnie, a large girl of fifteen years; Lilly, a sweet little brunette of 8 years; Clarence, a three months old baby boy; Gene and Willis, brother and sister, 6 and 8 years of age, and Garrie and John H., another brother and sister, 6 and 8 years old, these last two sets of children hoping to find good home homes together.

By persistent effort the Home Society has done its great work this year and kept out of debt, but more funds must be secured at once if the great work is to continue out of debt.

Covington, the treasurer of the society for ten years will be delighted to receive applications for any of these children—all of them being well and ready to be placed.

The interest and help of every citizen of our state is earnestly solicited.

CATTLE RAISING IN THE SOUTH ONE LARGE ASSET

FUTURE WILL PROVIDE THE FINEST BEEF IN THE UNITED STATES

STOCK RAISERS ARE LEARNING NEW METHODS

THE BIG PACKERS NOW COME TO FLORIDA TO GET THEIR BEEF SUPPLY

Cattle will be one of Florida's greatest assets.

The Herald made this statement several years ago and each year has brought our prediction nearer the mark. The Sanford men who have been engaged in the cattle business for years have always made good money but the biggest money is yet to be made when the better system of feeding, eradicating the cattle tick and breeding to better beef cattle takes the place of the former haphazard methods of allowing the cattle to roam at will.

The Herald made this statement several years ago and each year has brought our prediction nearer the mark. The Sanford men who have been engaged in the cattle business for years have always made good money but the biggest money is yet to be made when the better system of feeding, eradicating the cattle tick and breeding to better beef cattle takes the place of the former haphazard methods of allowing the cattle to roam at will.

The cattle business in Florida is only in its infancy and no man can prognosticate on the future profits. The following from the Jacksonville-Metropolis in a despatch from Kalamazoo shows the trend:

The Cudahy packing houses of Kansas City were represented in Kissimmee this week by Mr. Bowen, one of their representative buyers who was in this section for the purpose of looking over the cattle situation in view of making an estimate of the number of cattle which could be purchased in this vicinity.

Mr. Bowen stated to E. L. Lesley that the Cudahy's would take all the available cattle from the ranches in this section from one thousand head up to ten thousand head or more. In fact they were ready to purchase all the cattle that could be secured here.

It is apparent that cattle are becoming more and more in demand and the people of the west are turning their attention to Florida as a section that is in line to become one of the greatest cattle producing countries in the United States. Florida as a cattle country is rapidly gaining a reputation in all sections, and to hold this distinction it will become necessary for the cattle men to get together and devote their energies to the industry on a larger scale than at any time in the past in order to meet the constant demands.

From all the cattle producing states and countries the reports indicate a depleted stock on hand. In Kansas it is far behind owing in a measure to the effects of the drought in that state last season when many cattle succumbed to the dry weather and consequent lack of feed.

The cattle men in this section will get together and later in the season make an estimate of the number of cattle that can be supplied this season.
