Bubble bill moves to Senate

GENEVA — The "Geneva Bubble" protection bill will soon be taken up by the Florida Senate. Sponsored by Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Altamonte Springs, the bill (SB-2184), contains the same wording as Rep. Marvin Couch's House bill (HB-1343), said Siegel's aide, Justin Rickman. Siegel's bill has not been assigned to a committee as yet.

The bill would establish a special task force comprised of state and county officials and environmentalists to study whether existing state and local laws protect the Bubble, Geneva's isolated drinking water supply. They must report their findings and any recommendations to the Senate president and House speaker by Dec. 1.

Controversial topics discussed

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will take up two controversial topics Tuesday, girlie shows and signs.

In a 10:30 a.m. worksession, commissioners will consider elimination or delay of their 1989 requirement that businessmen lower their on-premises signs to 15 feet or lower. No businesses had voluntarily met the requirement and two were granted exemptions by commissioners. County staff is not recommending a change, but if pressed, will recommend another "grace period" until Dec. 1, 1996.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, commissioners will hold their first public hearing on proposed changes to the county adult entertainment ordinance. The changes would increase the distances required between such businesses and homes or churches that few new ones would be allowed. Another change would allow "lap-dance" performances between employees, but not with customers.

The final hearing and adoption vote is scheduled for Oct. 23.

Administration hours addressed

SANFORD — With the addition of year round schools to the mix of Seminole County schools it has become increasingly difficult to maintain the district's traditional four-day work week during the summer. The school district returned to a five day work week last summer, but fine tuning of the schedule is still required.

According to Supt. Paul Hagerty, the work schedule that allowed almost all employees to work Monday through Thursday, could not be reinstated because year round schools require administrative support every day in the summer just as they do in September through June.

The school board will be asked to change the summer five day work week to five and a half hours per day, five days a week for five weeks. Last year the board had authorized the schedule for four hours per day, five days a week for six weeks.

Hagerty said that the change will not cost the district any additional money if it is approved by the school board on Tuesday.

Violence in schools tackled by cross section of citizens

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — This has been a violent year in the Seminole County schools and in the community as well.

At least 10 young people have been expelled from district schools for bringing weapons onto school property. One young man's girlfriend was injured when a sawed off shotgun he had brought from his car into a school parking lot accidentally fired.

Two young men, both under the age of 15, are presently in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility charged with murdering a 20-year old man during a robbery attempt.

"There is a tremendous amount of violence in our community," said Dr. Edie Valentine, drug prevention specialist with the school district, who is a member of the newly-formed Violence-Free Communities and Schools task force. "We have got to come together to help solve this problem."

The task force met for the first time last week and tried to decide what their priorities and chief concerns should be.

"We are just getting started," Valentine explained. "We've had some preliminary discussions and the response from the community has been very good."

While much of the focus of the group will be on young people and on the schools, Valentine said that a cross section of the community is represented on the task force and that when plans are finalized, they will be presented to the city commissions and the county commission as well as to the school board.

"The group represents a strong cross-section of the community," Valentine said.

Norris Jennings, who heads the DUI instruction unit of the Central Florida Safety Council and who was a candidate for the Seminole County School Board in 1992, said that the group has concluded that it is the responsibility of the community to find a solution to the problem of violence in the community.

Students not too bothered over violence

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Violence in the schools has been on the rise this year, but students are not so concerned with it.

"It doesn't bother me," said Lauren Smith, a seventh grader at Sanford Middle School, who was taking a few minutes in the sun during her lunch. "There isn't much violence really. You hear about kids bringing a gun to school a couple of times of year but they aren't shooting anybody. They're just showing off."

City manager under review

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The City Commissioners are conducting a review of City Manager John Litton. The review is normally done on an annual basis.

"We should have done it by the end of last year," said Mayor Lowry Rockett, "but because we had new commissioners coming on board, we felt it better to wait a few months so we could know more about the position and make a better evaluation."

During Thursday night's City Commission meeting, Commissioner George Duryea suggested separate evaluations be written by each member of the commission, then given to the others for a wider observation. "Each of us knows what is required of the City Manager," Duryea said. "So we should be able to look at certain items and find out if they are being handled as required."

Rockett called for copies of the qualifications for city manager, used when Litton was originally hired, to be given to each member of the commission for informational purposes.

City Attorney Ned Julian, responding to a question regarding the sharing of the written documents, determined it would not be in violation of the Sunshine Law. "If you each write something up, you can give it to another commissioner for information," he said, "as long as you don't actually discuss your findings without being in a formal meeting."

Since Litton's last evaluation, a number of changes have occurred in the city staff over which he has supervision. Conflicts with department heads emerged in May of last year, and escalated by July. As a result, the city's Director of Public Safety, Charles Lauderdale, resigned in July.

The following month, the city's Finance Director Robert Lockridge submitted his resignation.

Festival a success; 'Best in a long time'

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The 1993 St. Johns River Festival arts and crafts show was a success. "Many people told me it was the best we've had in a long time," said Dave Farr.

Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, served as chairman for this year's event. "The biggest crowds were on hand Saturday," he said. "Sunday the sky was slightly overcast and the turnout was low in the morning, but after the churches let out, the place was packed once again."

Farr said he was unable to determine how many visitors were on hand for the two-day event. "I don't know if it was the largest turnout or not," he said, "but from what people told me, this is the best in many years."

Inmate seeks another delay on illegal dumping

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Incarcerated full-time now, Oviedo dumper Juan Adriatico has asked for yet another delay in county enforcement of illegal dumping dating back to March 1989.

In Adriatico's Feb. 22 letter to the state Department of Environmental Regulation, Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr., and county commissioners and officials, Adriatico has asked them to "put everything on hold" until he is released from jail. Brierton said Adriatico is due to be released March 16 at a minute past midnight.

On Dec. 8, county commissioners granted Adriatico a 91-day delay from foreclosure action.

"It wouldn't cause me any heartburn. This whole situation isn't as bad as everyone thinks it is."

giving him to March 9 to hire a county-approved consultant to formulate a property cleanup plan. Development Review manager Glenn Semanisin said the consultant has been hired and approved, but no plan has been submitted. March 9 is Tuesday.

Seminole County attorneys have asked a circuit court judge to drop an Sept. 28, 1989 Adriatico lawsuit against the county seeking to declare the code enforcement actions unconstitutional. The suit was filed the same day that the Code Enforcement Board found Adriatico had failed to comply with their original June 22, 1989 order to cease dumping on the property and to remove fill in the wetland areas.

Adriatico was taken off his daytime work-release status on Feb. 20 after he attempted to re-enter the county jail with a .22-caliber bullet in his shirt pocket, said jail director Dave Brierton.

On Adriatico Mobile Homes stationery, which includes the statement "Business operated according to Biblical principals," Adriatico wrote "The purpose of this letter is to appeal to your

Lotto rolls over again

TALLHASSEE — Florida's Lotto Jackpot has soared to an estimated $37 million — it's highest in more than a year — when no one picked the lucky six numbers for the second straight week.

"This $37 million jackpot estimate will add excitement to the game," Lottery Secretary Marjia Mann said Sunday. "It has been more than a year since we've had a Lotto jackpot this large."

The six numbers, drawn late Saturday, were 2-8-11-32-38-44.

More than 408,000 winning tickets were sold for last week's game, which had a rollover jackpot of $20 million — up from $8 million the week before, and 381 of those tickets are worth $1,404 each for having five of the numbers.

There are 20,555 four-of-six tickets, worth $62.50 each, and 387,955 three-of-six tickets worth $4.50 each.

Plane goes down in rough

KISSIMMEE — A four-passenger plane crashed onto a golf course almost immediately after takeoff from Kissimmee Airport, injuring the pilot and one passenger, federal aviation officials said.

The Piper Cherokee came down on the Kissimmee Golf Course Sunday afternoon, less than 1,000 feet from the runway. The plane was completely destroyed, said Mary Ann Casano, spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

The pilot, Larry D'Or of Winter Haven, was being treated at an Orlando area hospital for lacerations to his head and one eye.

Passenger Fred Montesano, 38, of Orlando, was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center then released after being treated for a 4-inch cut in his forehead, a hospital spokesman said.

Cops cleared in death of Volusia woman

DAYTONA BEACH — The Justice Department has found no evidence of wrongdoing in the shooting death of a Volusia County woman by a sheriff's SWAT team sharpshooter.

Deputy George Hernlen killed Helen McConnell with a single shot from a .308-caliber rifle after she pointed a .22-caliber pistol at him during a standoff in Oak Hill on July 27, 1991. Joel Frink had called the sheriff's office to say Mrs. McConnell, 61, missed a dinner engagement and she was depressed and suicidal.

After firing at least a dozen shots from a shotgun and pistol, Mrs. McConnell went to her back porch and aimed the pistol at Hernlen. He shot her in the right chest. An autopsy revealed she had a blood-alcohol level of 0.28 percent.

Oak Hill resident Ray Goodrich later asked the FBI to investigate whether the woman's civil rights were violated, claiming there were inconsistencies in the official accounts of the shooting.

Girl killed after kidnapping laid to rest

ST. JOSEPH — In the same church where Jennifer Renee Odum prayed every week, her family and friends said goodbye to the 12-year-old who was killed after she disappeared from her bus stop.

In life, Jennifer touched hundreds with her giggles, clarinet playing and daredevil water-skiing. In death, she touched even more.

"If you didn't know her directly, you had a child who did," said mourner Revae Barthe. "I don't think this will ever be forgotten by this community."

Jennifer disappeared Feb. 19 after getting off her school bus 200 yards from home in this rural Pasco County community. Her body was found six days later in an abandoned orange grove about 10 miles away in Hernando County. She died of a blow to the head apparently within a day of her abduction. No arrest has been made.

Nearly 1,000 people, including about 200 schoolmates and 50 relatives, attended her funeral Friday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Southern Bell seeks billing change

TALLHASSEE — Southern Bell is pursuing a fundamental change in billing that would wipe out unlimited local calling, but Florida's largest telephone utility realizes "political considerations" must be countered.

Internal memos between executives at BellSouth Corp., Southern Bell's Atlanta-based parent, are among records found in a state inquiry into the proposed "local measured service" plan.

The memos obtained by the state's consumer advocates with the Public Service Commission indicate Southern Bell has intended to do more than simply offer a new billing option.

Executives in charge of marketing and regulation agreed in 1990 that residential flat rates should be the top priority for price increases, company documents show. "Usage-based pricing" with per-minute charges was a priority.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Sinkhole gobbles up yards threatens homes in Volusia

ORANGE CITY — Hundreds of people came out to gawk as a sinkhole threatened to devour at least two homes after it had already consumed part of a street, a utility pole and a stand of trees.

The 140-foot-wide, 100-foot-deep chasm began forming silently overnight and by early Sunday was within 20 feet of Sharon Ellis' home.

"I'm not enthusiastic or optimistic that we're going to be moving back in," said Mrs. Ellis, who had packed all of her possessions in a nearby moving van. She has lived in the home with her husband, Will, for a decade.

Yellow police tape cordoned off the area around the Ellises' home and that of their neighbors, Bob and Judy Garrett. The two families had been evacuated and put up in a hotel Sunday afternoon, police said.

A state geologist was expected today to evaluate the hole and any danger it presents.

Late Sunday, the foundation of one house had begun to tip upward, leading police to believe it could disappear at any time.

"Chances are its liable to go into the hole, especially if we get some rain, which they are predicting," said Orange City police Sgt. Frank Ubienski.

Sinkholes form when the earth collapses into underground cavities within limestone. They usually are triggered by changes in the water table.

"We kind of knew that it was big and all, but that doesn't help you until you get here and see it," said a stunned Judy Garrett, who heard about the hole while visiting in Miami.

As neighbors helped pack up the Garretts' possessions, a group of men lifted the Garretts' small pickup truck off the cusp of the crater, then pushed it to safety.

About 300 feet southwest of the sinkhole a second smaller hole had formed and had grown as wide as the house it approached Sunday night, Ubienski said. The shaky ground had caused structural damage to the walls and foundation, he said.

Fleisty freshmen seek change

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLHASSEE — The 68 newcomers to the state Legislature have proven to be a fleisty group in this year's session, bringing fresh ideas to some shopworn problems — but sometimes finding they can't change the world.

The freshman class elected in 1992 is the largest in a decade, and they've made their presence immediately felt in the 160-member Legislature. They are the product of the agonizing process of redistricting, done every 10 years to reflect the new federal census.

They've asked a lot of questions, delayed important bills when veteran lawmakers aren't forthcoming enough and tried to change some of the rules that allow longtime incumbents and majority parties to dominate.

"They've kind of brought a refreshing attitude," said Senate President Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville. "They make people think."

They've even managed to have some fun.

Last month, the 47 House newcomers decided at one of their frequent meetings — Democrats and Republicans alike — to put to a vote a rules change that would allow only representatives elected in 1992 to become speaker, chair committees and even park on the first Capitol parking deck.

It passed, catching some veterans flat-footed.

A main instigator, Democratic Rep. Mimi McAndrews of Royal Palm Beach, said the rules change was intended as a joke but showed the freshmen can accomplish things when they band together.

"Most of us won on the platform of change. We don't want to vote party lines all the time," McAndrews said.

The 19 Senate freshmen fought for change in that chamber's rules, winning a provision that each of the committees have parity among Democrats and Republicans but losing a bid to reduce the powers of the president.

Bikes have fun, spend bucks

By BOB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

DAYTONA BEACH — With vegetable oil glistening on her body and cabbage matted in her hair, Peggy Leonard reveled in the adoration of thousands and thousands of cheering, drinking bikers.

To the raucous cheers of the leather-clad, tattooed throng, Peggy and Heather Alexander shed their tops and began wrestling in a slimy pit filled with coleman at the Cabbage Patch in rural Volusia County.

When Peggy tossed Heather onto her back and pinned her in the cabbage and oil, the frenzied throng of about 20,000 erupted in cheers.

Cars and motorcycles were parked along eight miles of roadway near the Cabbage Patch site, where tons of beer and motorcycle memorabilia were on sale.

This is the 52nd year for Bike Week, which coincides with motorcycle racing at Daytona International Speedway. But many bikers are only in town for the party.

"What bike faces?" said a patch sewed onto the leather vest of a biker on Main Street, where a large part of the action is. For several blocks, Harley "Hawgs" are parked side by side, making it look like they would topple like dominoes if they were accidentally knocked over.

Other bikers are part of the passing parade, cruising up and down the street filled with shops selling food, leather goods, helmets and black T-shirts.

"It's the bikes and babes," said Ken Steigerwald, a traffic studies supervisor of Orlando, who sat on his Harley Davidson, watching the passing parade.

Charles D. Marshall pilots a Harley with the message "Jesus Loves You" painted on the back. Marshall is an evangelist with "Motorcyclists for Jesus."

"I am going to witness to as many as I can. We've saved 48 in two seasons," said Marshall, from Kenova, W.Va..

"After I got saved after a bad wreck, I've been doing it ever since," he said.

The bikefests take rides to various bars around the county and enjoy such events as the Bike Bash.

In that event, a Japanese motorcycle is drained of its oil. The engine is operated until it fails. The cyclist then take turns smashing it with a sledge hammer.

Daytona Beach tourism officials say those coming to this motorcycle mecca are big spenders on everything from hotels to restaurants to T-shirts and leather goods.

In the 10 days of Bike Week, officials estimate the bikers will leave $200 million in cash, said Georgia Turner, an official with Destination Daytona, the convention and visitors bureau.

Al Tolley, a spokesman for the Daytona Beach Police Department, said the crowd had been well-behaved, averaging about 25 arrests over a 24-hour period, mostly for disorderly conduct or indecent exposure.

Homeless shelter now open

ORLANDO — What looks like a giant parking garage is actually a solution to Orlando's downtown homeless problem.

Florida's largest homeless shelter has drawn national praise and donations from Mickey Mouse to Shaquille O'Neal, and backers say it is the most efficient way to care for Central Florida's homeless.

"This ain't the Ritz, but it's a doorway to hope," said Michael Poole, a former bank president who runs the shelter. "It is a place for the people who can't fit in anywhere else."

More than 5,000 people have slept in the shelter since May instead of beneath Interstate 4 and in makeshift shacks.

The three-acre center in a poor area west of downtown has drawn raves from community leaders and police, but some neighbors complain about the location and competing shelter managers criticize lax rules. One national expert says it may be too large.

By setting few conditions on admission, the Coalition for the Homeless of Central Florida has served 200,000 meals in just a few months.

Police have increased patrols in the downtown area and the neighborhood around the center but were surprised how the shelter reduced trouble calls blamed on the homeless.

"We used to have people who smashed car windows with a brick for a little change," said police Sgt. Pete Gauntlett. "We had to go to the public library 12 times a day because of complaints about people panhandling, bathing and drinking there."

The homeless coalition was started in the mid 1980s. Leaders gradually forged a plan to create a computer network to track the homeless, survey their needs and help their children.

Their achievements have been impressive: a nine-unit apartment on the site, lockers for people's belongings, a temporary family shelter with the state's first public school at a shelter.

But the pavilion has gotten the most attention. The sparse 12,000-square-foot building with a heated concrete floor, ceiling fans and a tin roof cost $430,000. Yellow lines have been drawn around 21-square-foot sleeping areas.

Open 24 hours a day, the pavilion offers showers, two donated meals a day served largely by volunteers, and drug and mental health counseling. The coalition has spent only $400 on food.

The key difference between the pavilion and most shelters is its "non-coercive environment," experts say. Even those who are 'runk or uncooperative are allowed to stay for several weeks. Residents aren't forced to go to work, church services or seek treatment.

When a planned addition is finished in July, education, drug treatment and medical help will be just steps away.

"We realized that for years we'd all been cherry-picking the homeless population," Poole said. "We only took the ones that you could dress up, fix up and push back out in the world."

Why teen curfew won't curb drinking, driving

The problem seems straight forward enough. Teen-age drivers are involved in an increasing number of traffic accidents, many involving alcohol, most occurring at night.

Since it is illegal for them to have alcohol anyway, give police the right to pull their driver's licenses if they are caught drinking and driving.

The National Safety Transportation Board's report calling for states to impose curfews on teen-age drivers is unrealistic. It is wrong to paint all teen-agers with the same broad brush of condemnation for night driving, or even drinking for that matter.

Many responsible teens work after school and on weekends, during hours that would find them in violation of a proposed curfew. And most teens do not drink and drive.

Local police officials see that the proposed curfew is unenforceable and possibly unconstitutional. The curfew law on the books in Sanford now is not generally enforced due to lack of staff, both in the police department and the courts.

Police cannot set up roadblocks to catch that 17-year old out after 10 or 11 p.m. or whatever the arbitrary hour of curfew. Courts have enough to handle without having to deal with teens out after curfew.

Education, common sense and communication between the young drivers, their peers and adults are the keys to the problem. Parents need to set rules about when the teens come home, and what they do when they are gone. Adults must set an example for young drivers: No matter how old you are, nobody should drink and drive. Parents must be willing and available to pick up a teen if they can't drive, or if their friends are drunk, to keep everyone out of harm's way.

Teens need to be taught to be responsible, not just have their privileges taken away because of the actions of a few.

Equalize spending

The election of President Clinton has brought both promise and challenge for people who want to see expanded public, mass and rail transit and increased rail passenger service. This promise and challenge can best be illustrated in the just released economic plan of the president's. On the one hand, he has increased the monies going for mass transit, high-speed rail and AMTRAK; on the other hand, he increases by almost five times more ($8.5 billion) the monies going for highway construction alone. When the proposed stimulus package is localized to Florida the imbalance grows ($295.9 million for highways and airports; only 6 million for public transit and rail). Now we favor public, mass and rail transit and rail passenger service for economic, environmental and energy reasons but we also favor them for a reason dear to the president's heart: they create more jobs than spending on highways and airports. For example, the president has estimated that 5.6 billion spent on highway construction will create 83,000 jobs. If the President's entire $8.5 billion highway increase were shifted to the aforementioned transportation alternatives, by the president's own figures he would create approximately 383,000 more jobs than if he left the spending in the highway category!

It is important, therefore, that you contact the president, Senators Graham and Mack, and your local congressman and urge them at a minimum to equalize the overall spending between public, mass and rail transit and highways and airports. You also need to let your elected representatives know that you want to see expanded rail passenger service from Florida to other parts of the country; they in turn need not only to come up with the monies for equipment and operating purposes but also must push AMTRAK to get going. For specifics, AMTRAK, which is set to start three times a week service between Los Angeles and Miami this April via Orlando, Jacksonville, Tallahassee and Pensacola, could have started daily service last October because they have at least 10 different trainsets which sit around for more than 24 hours at a time which they could use but have not. Also, this service did not start because AMTRAK did not press CSX to finish track improvements by the original deadline and because they are continuing to insist you still only deserve three times a week service. All other routes in the country are daily except one!

In addition, ask Governor Chiles and your state and local officials to (1) at a minimum, equalize spending between highways/airports and public, mass and rail transit and (2) create a statewide rail network which serves all areas of the state as well as bringing expanded rail passenger service to the state from AMTRAK (FDOT is supposed to release their statewide rail study in late March). Thank you for your help in making expanded public, mass and rail transit and rail passenger service in Florida and across the nation a reality.

Chancellor Fernandez didn't get it

Word of the dismissal of New York schools' Chancellor Joseph Fernandez has gone around the nation. He was even celebrated as he fell, by Peter Jennings as Person of the Week on "ABC News." Most of the stories about him wondered how this boldly innovative educator could have been treated so unfairly. His ally on the New York City School Board, President H. Carl McCall, said to Fernandez on the fateful date: "Maybe we didn't deserve you."

Editorial writers and columnists explain that Fernandez had been the victim of a conspiracy by right-wing bigots. Yet during the final public meeting on Fernandez's fate, a black man from Brooklyn provided the actual reason so many parents wanted Fernandez out.

Fernandez had forgotten that compulsory public education does not include the state's authority to cancel a parent's right to deal with the moral education of a child. Said the black parent: "I am trying to raise two boys, 8 and 6, and nobody from the government is going to take my place in telling my sons what is sexually right and wrong."

On the same day, a young black woman, also not from Manhattan — where Fernandez had his strength in the West Side liberals and newspaper editorial writers — said furiously: "I send my children to school to learn math and English, not to read 'Heather Has Two Mommies.'"

Fernandez's intentions were admirable. Children, he strongly believes, must learn that because people are different — in color, in religion, in sexual preference — they should not be regarded as alien. And so, he instituted the "Children of the Rainbow" curriculum with such gentle books as "Heather Has Two Mommies," "Daddy's Roommate" and "Gloria Goes to Gay Pride."

The chancellor gave the clear impression that this curriculum — or something very much like it to be chosen as alternatives by local boards and approved by him — was mandatory. And it had to start in the first grade. A hairdresser in Queens, with a child in the second grade, was bewildered. Her kids, she said, "think sex is kissing. To teach them that homosexuality, a boy kissing a boy, is OK — I think they're too young to understand."

Fernandez would not be moved until it was too late — until large numbers of parents outside of Manhattan fiercely rebelled at the chancellor trying to take away their authority as parents in these matters. Finally, he said that the curriculum was not mandatory after all; it was advisory.

But these parents also remembered their losing battle with the chancellor over making condoms available in the high schools. Fernandez did not understand that some parents wanted the option to keep their own children out of the program. What other parents' children were certainly their business, but their own kids were certainly their business.

A parent, for instance, cannot force a school to prevent an entire class from reading a book. But, an alternative book can be provided that particular child.

I send my children to school to learn math and English, not to read 'Heather Has Two Mommies.'

GOP budget list cuts deep into entitlements

WASHINGTON — It's been 43 years since Sen. Joseph McCarthy first made headlines by brandishing a list of alleged communists working in the State Department. Last month Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., pulled a modern version of McCarthy's stunt when he reached into his jacket pocket during a hearing of the Senate Budget Committee.

"I have in my pocket a list of $216 billion in painless budget cuts that just about everybody would agree with, including you. I'd be glad to provide (it) to you," Lott told Budget Director Leon Panetta, waving it around during the hearing.

Panetta called Lott's bluff: "Let me have that list. I want to see those painless cuts." Lott folded the paper and put it back in his jacket pocket. Later, a Lott spokesperson told a reporter that the list would be revealed in a few months.

We recently obtained a copy of Lott's list. Those "painless cuts" are as hollow as McCarthy's list of communists. The cuts indeed add up to $216 billion — but they'd hardly be pain-free and would certainly be visited on the most vulnerable members of society. These kind of details don't buttress the GOP argument that there's a pain-free, tax-free alternative to Clintonomics.

To reach $216 billion, Lott would endorse raids on programs serving the poorest of the poor, and the neediest of the needy. The young, the old and the sick would take the biggest hit.

According to Lott's one-page document, 85 percent of the cuts are earmarked for entitlements, with the balance of the cuts, some $32 billion, coming from programs that include:

About $8.8 billion through a Defense Department civilian hiring freeze; $6.2 billion by repealing the Davis-Bacon Act, a wage provision law; $250 million by allowing advertising on public broadcasting; $2.5 billion by ending subsidies on "unused Amtrak routes"; $2.8 billion by cutting Congress' budget; $1 billion by consolidating the intelligence agencies; $500 million by barring "U.S. payments to international anti-consumer organizations for coffee, rubber" and tropical timber; and $1.1 billion by replacing "the commitments for new housing construction with vouchers."

Compared to entitlements, however, these savings add up to relative loose change. Approximately half of all federal spending goes to entitlements and other mandatory programs (excluding net interest payments). From entitlements, Lott lops off $184 billion. Over the next five years, he would cap the growth of non-Social Security mandatory spending, allowing increases for new beneficiaries and cost-of-living adjustments only.

These programs provide the webbing of the social "safety net": Medicaid and Medicare, food stamps, child nutrition programs, Aid for Families with Dependent Children, unemployment compensation, civil service retirement, military retirement and disability, veterans' benefits, student loans, and farm price support programs.

At the outset of the Clinton administration, Panetta issued a simple challenge to critics: "Put up or shut up." So far, he has found no takers among Republicans like Lott, the secret list notwithstanding.

Today's young defy labeling

Pity the younger generation, those in their late teens, 20s and early 30s. They have been discovered by the people who specialize in such things, put under the definitional microscope and found terminally lacking. Grungy dressers, politically cynical and existentially pessimistic, their resentments are said to run as deep as their aspirations run low.

My advice to the so-called Baby Bust generation is to take no notice. Ignore the nattering as best you can. The old folks are engaging in relatively harmless group-think which, despite its long, dishonorable and heavy-breathing history, causes little real harm. Generations aren't herds and labels aren't prison bars. If the past is any guide to the future, most of today's young are going to defy the stereotyping and do their own thing in ways that will confound the experts. It has always been thus.

This is not to say that the current younger generation does not march to different drums than those which beat out the rhythm for the Baby Boomers. The Boomers, the immediate predecessors of today's Busters, are a statistically unique set of people. Born between 1946 and 1964 in the greatest population leap in American history, they are 75 million of today's 253 million Americans, some 36 percent of the total.

More importantly, they came along during a time of unprecedented economic expansion. The nation was growing at home, leading abroad and engaged in mortal struggle with the Soviet Union. Social mores were being stretched, ripped, altered and redefined in ways that reverberate throughout today's society. Divorce rates began to soar. Sexual activity started earlier and became far more open. A new world was supposedly aborning.

That has not been the background upon which contemporary young Americans have been asked to perform. They are the children of divorce. Economic growth has stagnated. Smaller in numbers than the Baby Boomers, they do not currently look forward to the same bright vistas that greeted the Boomers. Their generation has witnessed more public failure than success, more scandal than moral triumph. The binding glue of the Cold War has not yet been replaced by a unifying equivalent. The system doesn't seem to work as well as it once did.

But memory is a quirky thing, and in our country, we tend to forget the past almost as quickly as we leave it. Other generations have faced bad times. Virtually every generation in this century beginning with the "Lost Generation" of the "Roaring Twenties" has been given labels that were more facile than accurate. And generation after generation has defied the categorizers and confounded the analysts. I speak with some personal authority, as a member of the "Silent Generation." That was what Life Magazine called us in 1957, the year I graduated from college. We were buttoned-down conformists, went the line, who wanted nothing so much as to join the organization, follow orders and tend our private gardens and families. There wasn't a rebel in the bunch. Life suggested.

Within five years journalism had discovered and discarded the "new conservatism" on campus, then rushed to detail the advent of the "New Left." After that, the deluge. There was the "greening of America," bell-bottom trousers and all, then the "me generation," and then the Yuppies. The measurers and inventors of such things told us that young Americans went from being selfless to selfish within a decade. Some now announce signs of a trend back toward the altruistic.

Even when the labeling is half-right, it misses the point. Despite our youth-beatified culture's eager insistence to the contrary, the course of national life is not usually set by young people nor much affected by them. Occasionally they act as shock troops on the cutting edge of change, but for the most part they are impelled by it, not its originators.

As for the quickie labels themselves, their claim to universal application has always been a lie. Most young Americans in the 1920s did not drink bathtub gin, dance their nights away or rebel against conventional morality. Most college-age students in the 1960s weren't anywhere near a college and only an infinitesimal fraction of those who were joined or supported the New Left. And much of the leadership of the social revolutions of the 1960s was provided by "silent" men and women from my much-maligned generation.

It's worth remembering as you contemplate the facile psychobabble about the "twenty-somethings" that has descended on the national dialogue. As always, most of it is hot air.

Generations aren't herds and labels aren't prison bars.

Trade Center bombing could be 'the beginning'

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The investigative skills and dumb luck that cracked the World Trade Center bombing case with stunning speed have not dispelled the greater fear of U.S. law enforcement: that Americans may be facing a new wave of organized terrorism, this time on their own home ground.

Although Americans and their institutions have been victimized in scores of bombings, skyjackings, assassinations and other politically driven acts of violence over the past 25 years, few have occurred in the United States itself.

Officials credit this to several factors: the distance from the centers of revolutionary ferment, the easy availability of U.S.-related targets abroad, Washington's laugh-sati-terrorist policy of no negotiations and swift armed retaliation, and the efficiency of its law enforcement in solving such crimes.

But with the end of the Cold War unleashing a new surge of nationalist and religious zealotry around the globe, officials say there is no reason to assume the brazen attack on a symbolic heart of capitalist democracy was simply an isolated event.

A day after the trade center blast, Gov. Mario Cuomo said it was "just a hint of what they have grown accustomed to in some other great nations, like Britain." He added, hopefully: "I don't expect that we'll ever see things like that here. We are stronger than that, and we have better law enforcement."

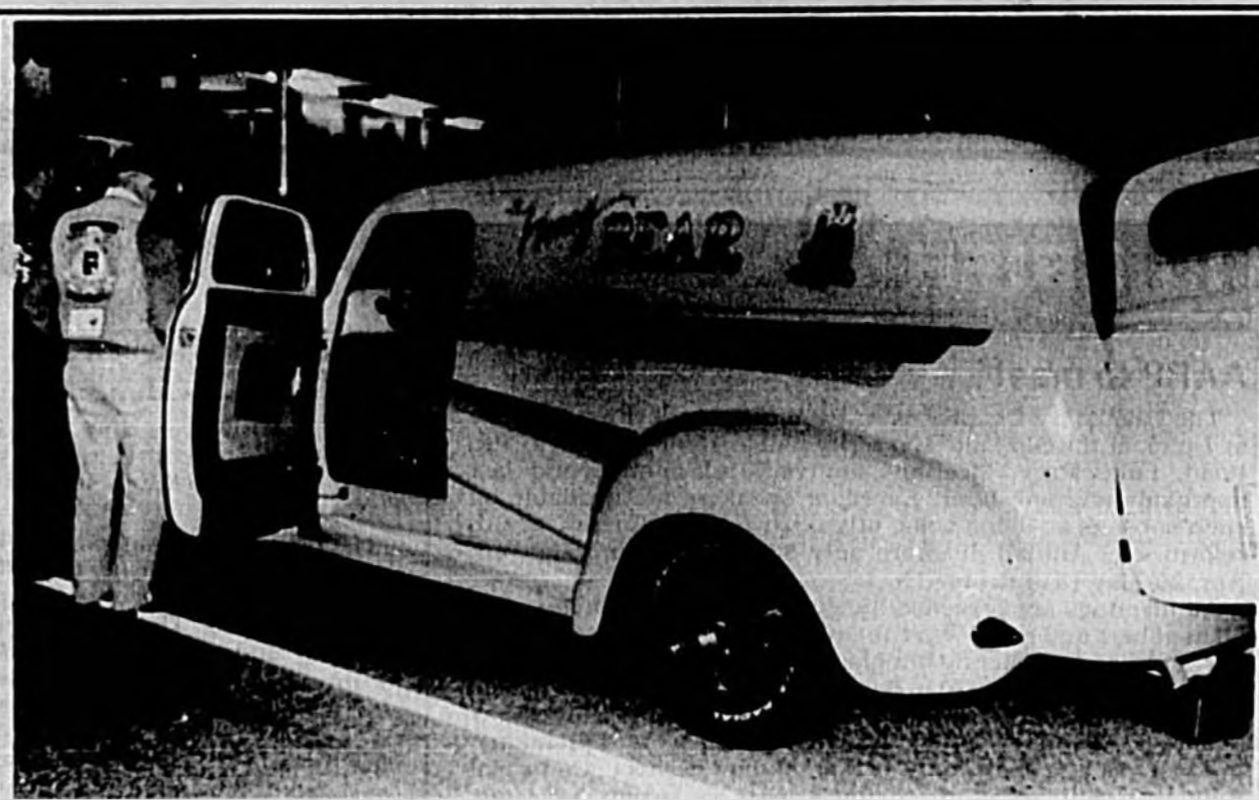

In an ABC-TV interview on Sunday, CIA Director Robert Gates called Iran responsible for most Middle East terrorism at present, but said it was "too early to say" whether such activity was coming to U.S. shores.

Others, closer to the smell of death in the trade center's shattered underground garage, are less optimistic, citing the possibility of a holy war against the West.

That concern was reinforced when FBI agents found bomb-ingredient chemicals in a New Jersey storage space reportedly rented by Mohammed A. Salameh, the 25-year-old Palestinian already held as a Trade Center bombing suspect.

A 1988 Pentagon report said that among significant actions by Arab terrorists in 1968-88, there were 69 against Israeli targets, 35 against Arabs and 57 in Europe and elsewhere. Of 33 major attacks on Americans, none occurred in the United States.

Cruisin' with the oldies

Beautiful automobiles from the past cruised into Sanford Saturday night for a show sponsored by the Sanford Historical Downtown Waterfront Association. Old timers remembered and younger folks dreamed as they soaked in the beauty of the vehicles like this 1948 Chevrolet panel truck. The truck, which has been meticulously restored and nicknamed Honey Bear, drew an appreciative audience among all age groups.

"It's the little guys trying to be big shots."

Karisha Middleton, another seventh grader, said that she has heard a lot about students bringing weapons to school, but she's never seen any guns or knives on campus.

"I guess they must be here, but it's not like they're waving them around in the classroom or something," she said.

David McCormick, a sixth grader, said that he was scared at school sometimes, though he has never seen a gun or a knife.

"I'm scared because I keep hearing that all these guys are bringing guns and stuff to school," he said. "It's scary if it's true. I don't know if it's true or not, though."

Another young man, who did not want to be identified, said he'd been thinking about carrying a gun to school "just in case."

He said that he is sure that some of the "bad students" have brought guns to school, though he's never seen one and he thinks he could protect himself better with a gun if he were confronted by one.

The festival was the 20th of its kind held in Sanford. It was originally held in the fall of the year, but was moved to the springtime several years ago.

Farr commented, "Most of the artisans and craftsmen said they did a real, good business in selling their wares during the weekend, and many of them said they will certainly be back next year, so it could even be a bigger event."

In addition to selling the materials, the arts and crafts were also judged for the show competition. Ruth Weasel of Ocala received the $800 "Best of Show" award for her painting, "Dolphin Swimming."

"I think we need to do something like teach these dummies who use guns that they can be just as cool without them," she said.

Mary winners were Bettye Reagan. She received an Award of Merit for her graphic, "They Still Have their Place in the Sun," and honorable mention for "New Orleans French Quarter." Margaret Temple of Sanford, received honorable mention in the oil and acrylic category for "Parrot."

Almost all of the arts and crafts on display were hand made. Ginny Stadig of Sanford commented, "The items I sold were made by five of us who owned the "Cranberry House" in downtown Sanford. After we closed, we had many items left over, so we set up a booth at the arts and crafts festival." She continued, "We not only had a wonderful time, but we sold quite a few of the items as well."

"We've got to come together on this issue," he said. "The community has got to become involved if we are to ever make changes."

The task force has assigned members to various committees to look at possible solutions to the problems of violence in the community.

Subjects from after-school programs, family life assistance, youth activities and educational alternatives, will be studied by the various committees before being brought back before the full task force for further discussion.

"Of course there's a problem," said Valentine. "We are working toward the solution."

The task force will meet twice a month to try to forge a viable plan that they can present to the community. The next meeting will be on March 31.

whether they would support the installations.

Beary recommended a public hearing be held to include residents of all three roads, to determine their wishes.

Regarding county graphs on the speeds of motorists along the roadways, Beary had observed that with 1,000 cars per day, only 26 percent of them were exceeding the legal speed limit.

"That seems like a lot of money to spend for just a handful of speeders," commented Commissioner Gary Brender.

Commissioner George Duryea agreed with Chief Beary that a public hearing be held. He suggested residents of all three of the roads should be called together to voice their opinions.

"I'm not sure what good an additional speed bump hearing will do," Brender responded. "Maybe another survey should go out, this time, to residents in all three streets."

Following extensive discussion, the commissioners gave a concensus vote to call for the public hearing. "We should seek responses from the complete area and all of the people," said Mayor Lowry Rockett.

Friday, Litton announced that the public hearing on the speed humps has been scheduled for Thursday, April 15, beginning at 7 p.m., in the commission chamber of the Lake Mary City Hall.

He indicated residents of all three streets involved, as well as those on streets connecting to them will be invited to the meeting to provide further input before the matter is pursued further.

sense of fairness. The Lord and I handle the business end of my marriage. My wife has babies to raise. She is not astute in our financial affairs."

The letter brought two reactions from county commissioners. Commission chairman Bob Sturm, who has opposed large fines and foreclosure proceedings against Adriatico, said another delay is fair.

"It wouldn't cause me any heartburn," said Sturm. "This whole situation isn't as bad as everyone thinks it is."

"If we grant him a delay, what'll be his next excuse?" said commissioner Larry Furlong. "He wouldn't be in jail if he cleaned up his property in the first place."

Adriatico was jailed Oct. 19 when Eaton revoked his one-year probation and sentenced him to work-release for failing to comply with his Sept. 27, 1991 sentence to clean up his property. Adriatico was found guilty of environmental crimes for dumping dirt and other materials on wetlands on his property.

The conviction stemmed from a 1990 DER complaint filed with the State Attorneys Office.

Brian Carr, DER regional enforcement chief in Winter Park, said his office is currently preparing to take administrative action against Adriatico for failing to remove fill placed on his property during the late 1980s. He said the administrative process was set aside until the criminal process could be completed.

"If he's not going to follow a judge's orders, he's not going to follow ours," said Carr.

Carr said he too, would be willing to delay action against Adriatico until he is released from jail.

"I'm not going to go to a jail cell to discuss this with him," Carr commented.

Bob Stoddard, who was hired as Lake Mary's first full-time fire chief in April, resigned from his position this past week. He said he had been supplied with wrong information regarding his job by Lauderdale when he was first hired. He said it prevented him from obtaining necessary certification to continue in his position, forcing him to retire.

Rockett urged the commissioners to hold their interview sessions with Litton done, and written reports completed within a week, after which they can be distributed, and brought up for a public evaluation discussion at the next commission meeting scheduled for March 18.

Learning can be exciting, fun

By SARABECCA ROSIER
Herald Columnist

LAKE MARY — Holy Cross Preschool Storytime recently held its registration for fall classes.

The preschool began in the fall of 1988 and has basically offered uninterrupted service on an ever expanding basis. They offer both morning and afternoon classes for three- and four-year olds. The staff includes four teachers and a director. In addition to classroom facilities, they provide activity areas such as their recently upgraded playground with new developmentally oriented play equipment and a tricycle track.

Their purpose is very important to them and that is to enrich and promote relationships for the child and family. Their desire is to make the child's first learning experience positive and enjoyable. Enrollment is open to any sex, race, color, national and ethnic origin. They do not discriminate.

The programs include free time to explore, a hands-on environment to discover, structured large and small group settings to listen and discuss as well as enrichment through field trips and guest presentations in the classroom. Most months there is a scheduled outing for parents and children.

They are extremely proud of their parent volunteer program. They are the classroom helpers who form an integral part of the family and school partnership. The program also enables them to keep pre-school tuition lower than if they staffed the preschool entirely with paid teacher aides.

Applicants may choose from two tuition plans. Plan A reflects the philosophy of the partnership that exists between school and family. They urge parents to select Plan A and afford themselves the opportunity to participate in their child's learning experience by serving as a parent classroom helper about four weeks during the year. Plan B is for those parents who cannot serve as classroom helpers. Naturally, Plan A also reflects our cost savings through volunteerism, according to the director, Pastor Dave Schilling.

Pastor Dave also pointed out that the children are either in the afternoon three- or four-year-old class, parents may choose to add an additional weekly class to the child's program. These "option days" will be held 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Friday afternoons and will provide an extension to the basic program through enrichment activities. We will offer one class for 3-year-olds and one class for 4-year-olds.

Pastor Dave loves his position and enjoys seeing the excitement of these young children experiencing new things, such as flying a kite for the first time.

"The school is play-oriented so that the joy of learning is infused into the children," he said. "Flying kits is science and they learn aerodynamics."

The parent classroom helper does not necessarily always have to be the parent. The program has had aunts, uncles, older brothers and sisters who can share with the child at preschool and then share at home what you see in the class.

One of the mom volunteers, Linda Forbes, said that her son, Bryan has been there for two years and just loves his three-day program. He has made some good friends that he plays with on the days he is not in school.

Registration will continue as there are openings on a first-come, first-serve basis said Pastor Dave. There is a student and parent enrichment fund or scholarship aid fund for families with special financial needs on a limited tuition assistance. After all, we are a ministry and helping people is what it's all about.

For further information or explanation of the programs available, please call Pastor Dave or JoAnn at 333-0797.

A happy 90th birthday to a special woman

On Wednesday, Feb. 24, the Lake Mary Woman's Club held its luncheon meeting at Timacuan Country Club.

One of the highlights of this meeting was the birthday celebration of a longtime member, Virginia Francisco, who turned 90-years-young the following day. The club honored her with a birthday cake.

Virginia has been a member of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs for a total of 50 years and is presently a member of the Lake Mary Woman's Club.

Virginia was born and raised in a country hotel owned by her parents in Antioch, Ill. She has painted, rode horses and been a skier all her life. Virginia participated in showing Boxer dogs from coast to coast.

She was a former member of Deerfield Beach, Florida Woman's Club and came to Lake Mary in 1979. She is a widow with five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Virginia has entered a painting in the district art show in Orlando. Hats off to a fine lady and may you enjoy many more years.

The Lake Mary Woman's Club will hold a gigantic "White Elephant Yard Sale" on Mar. 13, Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 365 E. Lake Mary Blvd., according to Paulie Bundeche.

They are going to have a gourmet basket filled with a lot of special items, baked goods, jewelry, baby and children's clothes, arts and craft items. Also, there will be hot dogs, coffee, and Pepsi cola.

Mark your calendars for this event. The Lake Mary Woman's Club has two main events a year in order to raise funds for a scholarship for the Hacienda Girls Ranch as well as help a family, or families, at Christmas. Beggars help Cancer Society
The American Cancer Society, Sanford-Lake Mary unit, had an event involving some people from the Lake Mary/Heathrow area. It was the annual Winn-Dixie/ACS "Celebrity Beggars" at all three Winn-Dixie stores in the area. A percentage of the sales from 4 to 8 p.m. held on Feb. 4 goes to the Winn-Dixie Hope Lodges (one in Gainesville and one in Miami). The lodges are for cancer patients and their families who are undergoing treatments for cancer at nearby cancer treatment centers.

The people involved were: Winn-Dixie at 1485 Airport Boulevard; the Rev. Tony Black, Church of Christ; Astronet Corporation executives Burt Fairchild, Kathy Rodriguez, Dave Freeman and Tak Imamura. Also, Dave and Joyce Farr, Art and Phyllis Grindle and Wayne Doyle, publisher, Sanford Herald.

Winn-Dixie at Lake Mary Boulevard and 17-92; Bill Dodd of AAA Public Affairs, Darwin Boothe, principal of Lake Brantley High School; Dr. Beverly Boothe, Seminole Community College; Admiral Richard and Jean Fowler; Delores Lash and Joanne Lucas; Sandra Goard and Donna and Duke Adamson.

Winn-Dixie at 1514 S. French; Bobby Douglas, vice president, SunBank; Lacy Domen, editor, Sanford Herald; John and Juanny Mercer; the Rev. and Mrs. Hinton, Church of the Nazarene; Dr. Robert Smith and Mayor Bettye Smith.

Winn-Dixie had bright red aprons marked "Celebrity Bag-gers" and presented each with a lovely wicker basket of fresh fruit. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves while working for this worthy cause.

ORLANDO — Nick Anderson scored 36 points and Shaquille O'Neal added 23 and 15 rebounds as the Orlando Magic defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 110-95 on Sunday.

The win ended a two-game losing streak for Orlando, while the Clippers have now lost two in a row and four of their last five.

Danny Manning led LA with 18 points. Loy Vaughn added 17 and Ron Harper 16.

AROUND THE STATE

Lawson wins death-marred 200

Lawson of Upland, Calif., passed Scott Russell on the final turn of the last lap to win by .051 seconds, his second straight victory in this race. He took his Yamaha high on the banked track while Russell of Santa Ana, Calif., stayed low in his Kawasaki.

"I don't believe it. I'm stunned," said Lawson, who averaged 105.936 mph. "The bike won. I was just along for the ride. The thing was so fast I was basically holding on."

Cats hold off Gators

GAINESVILLE — Fifth-ranked Kentucky squandered most of a 17-point second-half lead Sunday before making 12 free throws in the last five minutes to hold off Florida 85-77.

Jared Prickett made five free throws down the stretch and Travis Ford added three to finish with 23 points. Jamal Mashburn, scoreless from the field in the second half when he took only one shot, had 16 points for Kentucky (23-3, 13-3 in the Southeastern Conference).

Lions earn shot to defend state championship

From Staff Reports

LANTANA — Having learned the lessons taught by losing close games, the Oviedo Lions are now winning close games and are now two victories shy of repeating as the Class 4A boys' basketball state champions.

Oviedo (21-11) defeated Lantana-Santaluces 68-66 in overtime Saturday night for the 4A-Section III title and a berth in next Thursday's semifinals against Miami Senior at the Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center.

In their five postseason victories, the Lions have won one game by eight points, another by four, a pair by two, and the other by one.

"We lost a lot of close games early in the season," said Oviedo assistant coach Ken Kroog. "Eight of our 11 losses were by five points or less. Three were in overtime."

"Things have turned around a little bit for us. The shots that weren't falling in at the beginning of the year are falling in for us now."

The win over Santaluces was Oviedo's ninth win in a row and 13th in its last 14 games.

Devon Green led the Lions with 19 points 16 rebounds, four assists, and five steals. Randy Wright added 14 points (including the game-winning basket in overtime) and six rebounds while Chris Braxton contributed eight points and seven rebounds.

Ben Boss chipped in with 14 points that included a shot at the buzzer to tie the score and send the game into overtime. He also had five assists.

According to Kroog, the Lions' late charge into the state semifinals has been helped along by several factors.

"Earlier this season, a lot of teams were really up to play us," Kroog said. "I'm not sure how up our kids were at that time. People were pointing to us as if we were playing their best games against us."

DOUBLE TAKES

Turning heads

In duplicate displays of determination, the Lake Mary girls' (left) and Seminole boys' (right) basketball teams made impressive runs through their respective post-seasons before finally losing Saturday night. The Lake Mary Rams, unranked all season, advanced all the way to the state championship game. Seminole's Arrow Force One, which didn't have a winning record, made it to the sectionals before bowing out.

Rams earn overdue recognition

From Staff, Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Given the opportunity to prove themselves, the Lake Mary Rams did that and more.

Playing in the Class 4A girls' basketball tournament this past weekend at the Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center, the Rams did the unthinkable on Thursday, upsetting top-ranked Miami-Noland.

On Saturday, they went after the unimaginable but came up short, losing to Pensacola Washington, 61-45, in the state championship game, a decision that did nothing to cloud the Rams' accomplishments this season.

"I'm really happy with how the girls played and what they accomplished," said Lake Mary coach Anna Van Landingham. "I'm very proud of them. They're a good group of girls."

"They never got the recognition they deserved until they proved themselves. They had to go out every game and prove to everyone else how good they were. That's what I told the girls all season. And they did it."

In the state championship game Saturday night, Lynetta Henderson scored 19 points, including 15 in the second half, to lead Pensacola Washington to the title. The Wildcats (27-11) led 25-17 at halftime and pulled away gradually over the final two periods.

Karen Morris led Lake Mary (28-6) with 14 points. LaShawn Merrick and Diane Duber contributed 13 and 12 points, respectively.

Henderson's 19 led all scorers, and Chairman Leslie followed at

Family ties had early beginnings in athletics

We've discussed ... OK, I've discussed and you've read (I hope) the various roles that athletes can take in an individual's life, roles that transcend the playing field.

This past weekend, on a trip to Detroit to attend the funeral of my paternal grandfather, I rediscovered one of the roles that sports has taken in my life, one of genealogical interconnection.

It begins with shared experiences. Since I grew up in Massachusetts and my dad's parents lived in Michigan, I didn't spend much time with my grandparents except when their or our vacations brought us together. Not surprisingly, what memories I do have of my grandfather are largely athletic in orientation.

For example, my grandfather, who (the family legends say) played a level of professional basketball in the pre-NBA days, taught me the fine points of how to play first base. He worked with me, showing me the footwork necessary to keep my foot from getting stepped on and how to stretch to get a throw

SPORTS

It sounds like a Rockwell-ian cliché, but my grandfather also taught me how to fish, taking my brothers and I on short excursions and buying us our first rods and tackle.

As adults, we made the transition to golf. Actually, I made the transition, since my grandfather was an avid golfer long before I became interested in the sport. It wasn't an activity frequently shared (twice, if that), but it was a common experience, something we could talk about, sharing stories of extraordinary feats and catastrophic outrages.

Perhaps more important to our relationship — between my grandfather, father, brothers, and myself as well as my uncles and male cousins — was that sports gave us an arena of mutual interest, something we could talk about together (the operative word being "together").

Like most families, music tastes varied wildly, even within the same generation. Politics and religion were/are sure ways to start an argument. Ditto for fashion, hairstyles, and makes of cars.

While we had each had our favorite teams and players, sports gave us the opportunity to assert a level of individuality without personally contradicting the position of a loved one. How many topics fit that description?

I find this worth writing about because I believe that my family isn't unique in this aspect. Athletics provides a thread that can run from one generation to another and beyond. And while I disagree that sports are the stuff of which eternal bonds are made, they do provide a way for those bonds to be formed.

There's a line from the movie "City Slicker" that sums this up perfectly: Daniel Stern's character commented that (and I'm paraphrasing) no matter how bad things were between me and my father, we could always talk about baseball.

Maybe because, in the grand scheme of things, sports is relatively unimportant that is able to span generations. The simplicity (fair or foul, safe or out, win or lose) and timelessness (the bases are still 90 feet apart, the baskets 10 feet high, and the football field 100 yards long) provide a constant frame of reference.

From there, we can debate the qualities of our favorite players/teams in comparison to those put forth by another generation, knowing even if it's subconsciously that we're right and nobody's wrong.

And isn't that what brings a family is all about?

starting to come around. Our defense and pitching are keeping us in the games. Everyone's tired, including the coaches. If we can get through this week unscathed, we should be all right.

The major cause of the weariness — the building of a press box/concession stand and other improvements to the Seminole Field complex — will end this week with the grand opening of the new facilities at noon next Saturday prior to a 3A-District 5 game with Leesburg.

That contest will cap a week that includes SAC battles with Oviedo on Wednesday and Lake Mary on Friday.

best hitter at the top of the order so he gets the most at bats.

Pantelias put his idea to use in Saturday's Mid-Florida Conference battle at Santa Fe Community College with outstanding results.

Moving hot-hitting Demetry Beamon, who had spent the majority of the season batting ninth, to leadoff, the Sanford freshman responded by going 2-for-3, scoring two runs and driving in another as the Raiders beat the Saints, 5-3.

The important conference victory came on the heels of an 11-1 trouncing by non-conference foe Brevard Community College on Friday and improved SCC's record to 10-7 overall and 4-3 in the MFC, just a game back of Santa Fe, which fell to 11-6 overall and 5-2 in the conference.

The Raiders will stay on the road to play conference-leading Florida Community College at the Jacksonville school's North Campus starting at 3 p.m. Tuesday, before returning home to play a doubleheader with Hibbing Community College from Minnesota on Wednesday starting at 2 p.m. at Raider Field.

Beamon earned his promotion to the No. 1 spot by going 6-for-10 and reaching base 10 times in the previous three games this past week. He ended the week going 8-for-13 (.615).

He led off Saturday's game with a single to center and moved up to second when the throw back to the infield was wild. Fellow freshman Isaac Cruz, from Spruce Creek, then ripped his fourth triple of the season, and third in four games, to score Beamon. Cruz then scored on a double by Oviedo's B.J. Calapa, chasing Saints starter Mike Michaud (2-2).

After a walk to Ray Hagar and a wild pitch moved the runners to second and third, Oviedo freshman Erik Jordan scored Calapa with a

Termites cause alarm

It's the season for pesky insects to invade homes

Termite swarming is causing alarm for many local residents. The insects or their wings are being found inside on window sills and outside as they emerge from the ground. Adult termites can be distinguished from true flying ants by their thick-waists; ants have an indented or "wasp-waist." Since termites feed on wood, the mere sight of the intruder causes most homeowners to fear that their home will be destroyed. Termites are social insects that live in colonies. The most common types found in this area are drywood and subterranean. However, a relatively new pest, the Formosan, is spreading in nearby counties.

At certain times of the year, usually in the spring during the daylight hours, winged adults emerge from the colonies in great numbers. This is usually when termites are first noticed. Mating occurs during these flights and new colonies are started.

The appearance of winged termites in the house is an indication of probable infestation although individuals sometimes come in from outside. Termite wings break off shortly after their flight, and even though the actual swarming is not observed, the presence of discarded wings indicate that a colony is nearby. Since termites are attracted to light, their wings are often on the floor beneath doors or windows.

Peak swarming periods for termites occur January through May in Florida. Winged subterranean termites emerging from the ground near the house does not necessarily mean the house is infested, but it is a good reason to check further. Termites working in homes or other buildings usually come from colonies already established in the soil. Perhaps the termites beneath the house or in the soil nearby have been feeding on scrap lumber, roots or tree stumps left in the ground when the house was built. Drywood and furniture (powder-post) termites do not require contact with the soil for moisture. You may notice coffee ground sized pellets under old furniture or around baseboards or other wood trim indoors where they have been feeding. Damaged wood often goes unnoticed; exterior surfaces usually must be removed to see the damage. However, galleries can be detected by tapping the wood every few inches with a screwdriver handle. Damaged wood sounds hollow, and the handle may even break through into the galleries.

Subterranean termites can be prevented by using approved pesticides on the soil around and under the home. This treatment is required on all new construction, but unfortunately is not always done adequately. Contractors must have the soil under concrete slabs treated, but often overlook the perimeter of the home after the backfill is pushed up to the walls. New research at the UF/IFAS Research & Education Center in Ft. Lauderdale indicates that a coarse sand barrier under slabs is effective in preventing invasion by the Formosan and other subterranean termites. Drywood termites must be destroyed by removing the wood they infest, or in extreme cases, tenting the home.

Drywood and subterranean termites require completely different control methods; therefore, correct identification is crucial. Immatures (workers) are virtually impossible to identify. If in doubt, bring several soldiers, winged specimens or wings to the Agriculture Center.

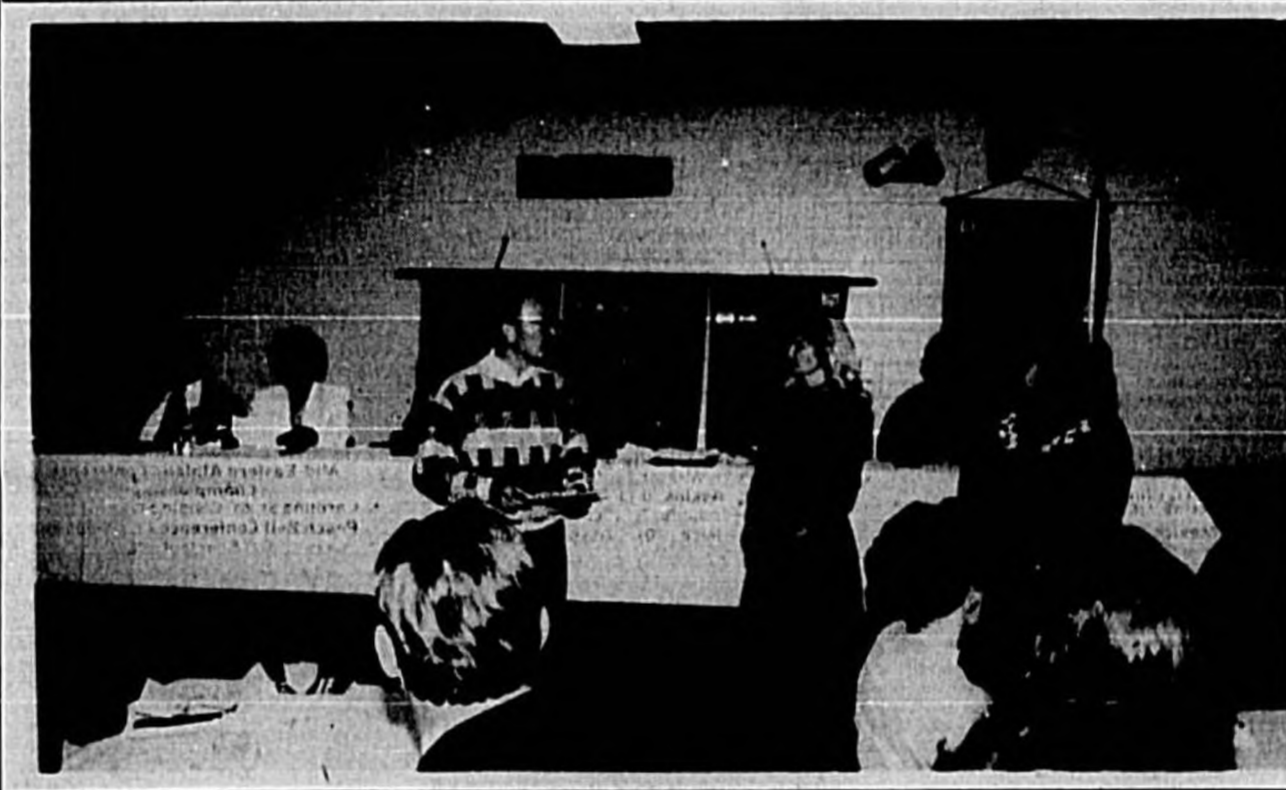

Termites do not eat the house overnight. You will have time to have them identified and evaluate various control methods, but don't wait too long. Use caution when purchasing pest control services. Shop around and take time to make a wise consumer decision.

Get several free estimates. Have the salesman show you actual live termites and damage on your property. Simply seeing the damage does not indicate that there are live termites active now. Damage could have been caused previously and past treatment may have killed the colony.

Have the salesman certify "in writing" that the premise or structure is infested, listing the type of pest and that a treatment is required. Read the proposed contract carefully and ask the salesman to explain parts that are unclear. Ask for a copy of the label of the pesticide used and a copy of the Material Safety Data Sheet (MSDS) for your records.

If you are still concerned, consult your attorney regarding what is actually covered. Some contracts cover free retreatment if the same type of pests reoccur and cause damage.

Stop by the Cooperative Extension Service at the Agricultural Center to get fact sheets on subterranean termites, drywood termites, Formosan termites, or purchasing pest control services.

Midkiff joins Sanford Kiwanis

Obit not place to chastise smokers

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised to see that you agreed with "Long Islander," who wanted obituaries to state whether persons who had died of lung cancer had been habitual smokers.

In the first place, an obituary is hardly the place to chastise the deceased for self-destructive habits. Secondly, if we are going to use death notices as object lessons, what about other unhealthy vices? Shouldn't obituaries read: "Harry gave himself a heart attack because he sated everything he ate, and he never met a fried food he didn't like"? Or, "Jane's death from skin cancer was brought on by her 30-year quest for the perfect tan"?

ADVICE

Abby, I'm sure you wouldn't approve of using such remarks in an obituary, yet you seem to encourage using the fact that a person had been a habitual smoker in that person's obituary because it supports your personal anti-smoking campaign.

In case you're wondering, I have never used tobacco in any form, but I can understand why smokers recent being singled out for public abuse.

In your column, you keep reminding people to show compassion and understanding for alcoholics and drug addicts, but nicotine addicts (for you) are fair game. Why?

Frankly, the anti-smoking campaign is beginning to resemble the Prohibition-bashing of the early '20s. Perhaps those who have a public forum — such as yourself — should tone down the criticism, and concentrate on advocating a generally healthy lifestyle.

A MODERATE TEXAN

IN FREEPORT
DEAR MODERATE TEXAN: Please forgive me if I sound like a fanatic, but over the years I've heard many a smoker say, "I'm sorry I got into this terrible habit." But I've yet to hear anyone say, "Gee, I'm glad I'm a smoker."

DEAR ABBY: "Embarrassed in Illinois," who didn't know how to vote should not feel embarrassed. He or she is not alone! I'm a librarian for the city of Dallas, and I assist hundreds of people each year with the somewhat complicated procedure of voting.

Most public libraries have voter registration cards available. On the day of election, if the voter is registered but doesn't know where to vote, we will look up the precinct number from their address. (This number is also on the card they received in the mail.) We can also tell them where to go once they have their precinct number from a list published in the newspaper.

Tell your readers not to worry if their card is lost; if they are registered, they can still vote.

Also, tell them not to feel embarrassed about asking questions at the library. We don't always have the answers, but we can put them in touch with someone who does.

And last of all — we promise not to laugh.

LIBRARY LADY

DEAR LADY: Thanks for encouraging people to ask questions.

There is no such thing as a stupid question — there are only people who are afraid to ask questions because they're afraid they'll look stupid.

How to cope with urinary incontinence

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from urinary stress incontinence. The problem is embarrassing and uncomfortable. Kegel exercises have been recommended. Can I handle this myself or does a gynecologist have to be involved? Is there an alternative to bladder suspension?

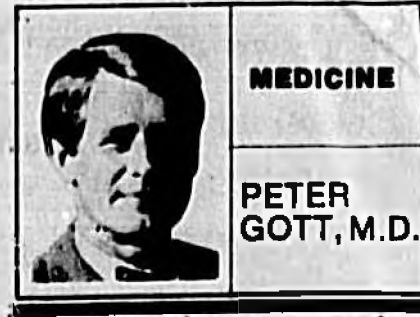

Femina cones, manufactured by Daomed Corp., are plastic, tampon-shaped weights that are inserted into the vagina for a few minutes twice a day.

DEAR READER: Stress incontinence is an extremely common affliction that has been estimated to affect up to 30 percent of adult women. Marked by involuntary leakage of urine, incontinence may occur during laughing, straining, sneezing -- even walking or standing. The condition is caused by the age-related weakening of muscles that control the flow of urine; this can be worsened by multiple pregnancies and other anatomical abnormalities, such as a "dropped womb" when the uterus sags into the lower pelvis.

Several years ago, A.H. Kegel, an American gynecologist, invented a set of exercises which, by strengthening the muscles of the pelvic floor, improved women's continence. Kegel exercises are simple, safe and easy to perform; they can be taught by any experienced gynecologist. Basically, the exercises, performed several times a day, consist of tightening the muscles around the vagina and anus.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The British royal family received more bad publicity in 1992 than during the previous 200 years: since the reign of George III. But I think the queen is guilty only in that she trained her eldest sons too well in the ways of the monarchy.

As Neil Shand said, "Prince Charles is planning to record his own version of Frank Sinatra's hit 'My Way.' He's going to call it 'One Did It One's Way.'"

The success of a contract may depend on the presence or lack of a key king or queen, but sometimes it doesn't -- as in today's deal.

Declarer had four potential losers: one heart, two diamonds and one club. However, after East's opening bid, he wasn't worried. After winning trick one with dummy's club ace, South drew two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy and took the heart finesse. Unexpectedly it lost. West led his second club; East won with the jack and exited with a heart. Now South had to find the diamond jack. Thinking East must have that card to get up to 12 points for his opening bid, declarer played a diamond to dummy's king. East won with the ace and returned a diamond. South finessed his 10 and finished one down.

North was unsympathetic to his partner's protestations about bad luck. "After drawing trumps, just lead back a club."

"But East wins and switches to a heart. The finesse loses...."

"What finesse? You don't finesse. That queen is a right royal red herring. You win with the ace, ruff your last club and exit in hearts. Whoever wins with the king must lead a diamond. Finding the jack for you!"

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 9, 1993

Some of the financial lucky breaks you felt were denied to you last year could be revitalized in the year ahead. What transpires could be well worth the wait indeed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A joint endeavor that you're presently involved in has good probabilities, but it could also have potential problems. Be optimistic, but be cautious as well. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A partnership arrangement that you're presently involved in can work out well today, provided both of you are operating on the same timetable. If not, the results could be disappointing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Strive to be diplomatic and tactful today where your career is concerned. Avoid criticizing associates, because this could create problems where problems shouldn't exist.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not take a gamble on something today that could cost you what you have already gained. Lady Luck, unfortunately, is a trifle fickle at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't rely on worldly goods to make you happy today. Your real blessings could very well come from things that are not of a material nature.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are patient today, you should be able to turn a negative situation around to your advantage. However, do not expect instantaneous results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial conditions look rather promising for you today, but you must keep your expectations within reasonable bounds. If what you anticipate is unwarranted, you may be disappointed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Endeavors you personally manage today could turn out to be beneficial for you. However, you might not do as well in a situation where you have to work through an intermediary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Individuals who make the big game promises to you today are apt to be the ones who perform the least. Your best breaks might come from someone who is quietly working behind the scenes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you've been hoping for can be achieved today, primarily through your own efforts and not those of others. In fact, it might be wisest to keep outsiders out of the picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An important objective is achievable today, provided you don't quit when you encounter resistance. Challenges should stiffen your resolve, not dissipate it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Make your intentions clear to your associates today, because if your motives are misinterpreted, your partners might work against you instead of for you.
