We welcome the action of the Seminole County Commission in voting for a $1.9 million bond issue to purchase rights-of-way and get the muscle to push along on overdue and greatly needed four-laning pro-

It is almost impossible to exaggerate or overstate the basic role which proper roads play in the planned growth of any area. When Sanford is viewed, the value of improved old roads and the construction of new access roads is obvious. Sanford is the largest city in the county. It alone possesses the three accepted means of transportation with available facilities on the land and water and in provement, even creation of the facilities which now must be put to use if the full growth of the city be

We have the railroad. Construction of the Port Sanford is within sight as the various contributing factors come together and release this potential. Air transportation is but holding its breath while the seemingly endless reams of red-tape unwind and the fate of the vacated naval air base is decided. But the roads, the highways, the access routes in every direction to and from Sanford and from here to the surging areas south and west where population ing. growth and industrial expansion is taking place are the Gordian knot that must be cut. The county commission has evidently started to sharpen its sword for this purpose. Spin that grind-steady, for this is not a time to waste one minute. Especially is this true in the matter of securing right-of-way. Our news columns have reported the specific roads where the moneys from the bond issue will be put to work. We urge that all Seminole coun-know their reactions. Road construction, apart from the large sums of money involved in building them, has a built-in controversial factor. This is the specific benefits which come to those sections with proper roads and the handicaps which confront those where roads are lack-

To properly forge ahead those in positions of leadership and trust in our city and our county must have vision and be bold. How perfectly unbelievable is the fact that the Florida Technological University, a stone's throw south of our county line, where youths from all sections of our county and our northern neighbors will seek high education, has no direct access road from major sections of Seminole.

This is a forgotten battle-line which has not been held as our forces have acted under diverse leadership. We believe that a unified command, a command which can stand-up to the forces which would deny roads. It involves the future or areas larger than Sanford and Seminole County their proper places in counties. What happened in the first proposal for In- the undeniably bright future must be formed!

Golden Groves

Florida and oranges-oranges and Florida! What a delightful combination! How natural! How generally accepted! A marriage of words which took place quite properly and now is regarded as definitive as well as socially

But like many such unions, there are consequent disagreements. In fact there are those who have watched the harmony of the relationship and would inject something quite foreign. All of this comment comes from the fact that our groves begin to look so healthy, the citrus promise of golden oranges, yellow grapefruit and brilliant tangerines will soon be fulfilled.

We can hardly wait. But we must. And we must gird our thinking to the point where preconceptions of the Florida groves with oranges dangling for the picking the year-round must be abandoned.

We take second-place to none in our delight in the tree-ripened fruit, the fragrance of the bloom, the taste-bud delight in the sectioned fruit or the juice-glass filled to the brim with Florida "sunshine."

But we would also note that this Florida-orange partnership had a black-lash in Miami where the Republican stalwarts held their national convention. Delegates, in many instances, wanted to go to the groves, pick an orange . . . wasn't this Florida? Didn't Florida grow or-

This however, was not to be. Certainly there was fresh orange juice and certainly Florida was well publicized by attractive promotions including orange coats, but we would not want to even mention the prices that were asked for the citrus products.

Soon our visitors from the north will be artive Welcome Stations, they will be driving along with sharp eyes for the native product in Citrus is, indeed, Florida's trademark, The groves and the markets are where they can be found. But happy is that Floridian with his own back-yard citrus trees or, better yet, a largehearted friend with heavy-bearing groves.

As we said—Florida and citrus—a happy Global Comment
