TARIFF BILL IS PASSED BY BIG VOTE IN HOUSE

Republicans Win Great Victory For Law Insuring Highest Protective Tariffs Yet

By William S. Neal
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The new Hawley tariff bill, revising the Fordney-McCumber law of 1922 to a new high level, passed the House late yesterday by the overwhelming vote of 264 to 147, with two voting present and 12 paired.

The smashing Republican victory found 20-30 moderates deserting their party leaders to support the highest protective tariff bill ever enacted, while an even dozen Republicans voted against it and two kept silent. The measure now goes to the Senate where it awaits an uncertain fate, which may not be decided until late Fall. Severe criticism already has been voiced in the Senate against the House bill.

Republican leaders proclaimed the new measure, as a prosperity builder, which fully renews the party's campaign pledge to provide more tariff protection for "pick industries" and agriculture. It was denounced as equal fare by Democrats as a "robber tariff," which will boost the cost of living $400,000,000 a year and severely check America's fast-growing foreign trade.

Considered in the House under a special rule which virtually nullified Democratic and independent opposition, the bill was passed almost as framed by 15 Republican members of the ways and means committee, augmented by last-minute concessions to the "farm bloc" and the textile and leather industry.

The final vote came after Rep. George E. Tamm, minority leader, made a futile effort to amend the bill to the way and means committee with instructions to rewrite it and to make the tariffs equate difference in cost of production at home and abroad and to take away tax power granted the President under the flexible provisions.

The outstanding "bills" included Rep. James M. Beck (R) of Pennsylvania, former solicitor-general, who charged that the new section enlarging the President's power is a surrender of the constitutional duty of Congress.

The Democratic side, Miss Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida congresswoman and daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, who long fought Republican high tariff bills, cast her vote for the measure because of protection given Florida fruits, vegetables and tobacco.

Among the chief increases provided in the bill, which reduces 20 percent of the rates in the Fordney-McCumber act, are one cent on brick, lumber, wooden motion picture textures, rayon, plate glass, pottery, tools, also, leather, and many chemicals and metals; wheat, corn, flour, butter, sugar, milk, potatoes, wool, hides, vegetables, fruits, wool, hides, and live cattle.

PROCLAMATION

Thursday, May 29, 1929. Memorial Day will be observed throughout the nation, and hundreds of thousands of people will devote a portion of their time on that day to attend the services and to show their respect for their soldier dead and their appreciation for the loyal and faithful services performed and the love and devotion to the nation displayed by the soldiers of our country from the earliest days.

Believing that the people of Sanford, Florida, are as loyal, as appreciative, of the great service rendered by our soldiers who have passed to the great beyond, and as patriotic as the citizens of my community in this or any other state, I, as mayor of the City of Sanford, Florida, do call upon our good citizens to turn out and attend the Memorial Day services, which will begin at 11:00 A. M. on Thursday, May 29, 1929, in order that we may not be remiss in our duty to those brave men of our nation who on land and sea in the past have born of unequal courage, loyalty and patriotism and who staked their all to preserve the welfare, peace and honor of our nation.

NELSON GRAY,
Mayor of City of Sanford, Fla.
Dated this May 28, 1929.

500 Storm Jail And Lynch Young Negro

ALAMO, Tenn., May 29.—(INS)—A mob of 500 men today stormed the jail here and lynched a 17-year-old negro. The man was reported from the jail a few hours after he had been brought there this morning from an adjoining county, where he was caught. The prisoner was accused of attacking the daughter of a white woman before he was lynched. He was arrested early today after the woman, prominent in this country, was found in her home in an unconscious condition.

OPEN REBELLION CARLTONS PLAN HITS HOUSE OVER

Continuation Of Dead-lock Is Threatened By Proposed Action

TALLAHASSEE, May 29.—(INS)—Open rebellion again broke out in the House of the Florida assembly today when administration forces attempted to enforce consideration of Governor Carltons' tax revision program for county land retirement.

A motion by Lewis A. Giltz, County J. to informally press the measures to take up Senate measures resulted in a vote of 40 ayes to 34 nays. McNamee, of Putnam, in the chair, ruled that it took a two-thirds vote. Appeals were being taken from his decision which held the bill adjourned until the time for adjournment had arrived.

Threats were made that a motion would be made to kill the Governor's program in a straight vote to indefinitely postpone consideration of the program.

He moved in continuation of the double adjournment day and the standing of all legislation so far passed by the House and completed by the Senate.

The House today passed the Senate bill.

Approximately $20,000 was shaved from the total department by the Senate in consideration of the general revenue bill.

Memorial Day Talk Marks Kiwanis Meet

An address by the Rev. Martin L. Glaser in the "Significance of Memorial Day" was the feature of the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Yacht Club tomorrow at 12:45 today.

The program, in charge of F. T. Wilson and G. H. Bullock, will include the observance of Memorial Day, and a number of songs of the States were sung by the club members. Mrs. A. M. Phillips, removed two rings, "Remember" and "Always My Mother," respectively.

W. E. Ensminger of Longwood visited speaker briefly on the triple winter fish and game bill which had just passed the House. He was being read up in the Senate, he said, adding that those who are interested in the measure should write to Senator Patrick on it.

Miss Pearl Robson was the accompanist for Mrs. Phillips and she read red several poems from the book for the enjoyment of the audience.

Burns To Get Hearing For Determining Fate

CHICAGO, May 29.—(INS)—Robert Elliott Burns, magazine editor, was scheduled to have hearing before Governor L. L. Emmer at Springfield today to determine whether he would have to return to Georgia to serve out a six-to-ten-year sentence on the chain gang, from which he escaped seven years ago.

A hearing was called at Springfield on a requisition sent by Governor L. V. Hardwick of Georgia for Burns' return. He was released for participation in a $3,000 robbery. Since his arrest a number of friends took up the fight to obtain his freedom.

INQUISTORS OF LAW CONDITION BEGIN BIG TASK

Hoover's Commission Gets Started With No Indication About Effect On Dry Laws

By George R. Holmes
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Given on unlimited scope and all the time in the world, President Hoover's law enforcement commission squared away today to the monumental task of determining what makes the American tempo, its laws, and how to remedy them.

It will be years, more likely two years, and perhaps even longer before the commission will attempt to report a verdict. Hearings are to be held, witnesses examined, expert opinions sought, surveys of statutes digested, this and some more.

Although the commission is to meet weekly, the fact may be delayed and however much it may delay, it is to be expected that it will be able to do its work in a short time.

Both President Hoover and his Commissioner of Internal Revenue, George T. Wickenden, carefully avoided direct mention of干杯的程序 in their exchange of addresses, but the chairman informed the association that the relation of prohibition to crime must be considered and expected upon him.

He said that the commission's first task is to determine the nature of the association between the enforcement of the禁酒令 and the reduction of crime.

There were two striking and significant utterances. In Mr. Hoover's remarks in the commission's opening session, the chairman of the local committee pointed out that the relation of prohibition to crime must be considered and expected upon him.

"We are under no illusions as to the difficulty of our task. We know there is no shortcut to the minimum, but we have confidence in the fundamental honesty and right-mindedness of the American people and their readiness to support sound methods of reform when the existence of evil is exposed and practical methods for their eradication submitted to popular judgment."

Special delivery service will be given as usual on parcels containing perishable items will be delivered on the half hour.

Miss Pearl Robson was the accompanist for Mrs. Phillips and she read red several poems from the book for the enjoyment of the audience.

Borah Opposes Debt Reduction By Nation

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(INS)—Any concessions made by the United States in reducing its own claims to reimbursement from Germany, reparations should be mediated upon, French representative of the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement, Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, declared at the White House today after conferring with President Hoover.

Borah declared he was opposed to making any reduction in the American claim, no matter how slight, until France ratifies the agreement to pay her $4,000,000,000 debt, which has now laid in a pigeon-hole in the French foreign office for three years.

Lindbergh's Whereabouts Still Remains Puzzle As Reporters Search Nation

By JAMES J. KILGALLAGH
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 29.—With public fancy and imagination continuing to pose them to any one of the score of reports in many parts of the United States, Col. Charles Lindbergh and his bride remained definitely among the missing today.

All efforts until now to learn whereabout the young couple were, however, have been nothing but the slight. With the aid of his bride, the young aviator and his wife, Anne Spencer Morrow, were spending their honeymoon very doomed to absolute silence.

By some masterpiece of strategy planning, in which dozens of willing friends, pledged to secrecy, apparently aided Collier and Morrow in their search for the missing couple.

Although the couple were, however, known to have been in the vicinity of Long Beach and certainly in the Los Angeles area, they have not been located.

Police, however, have been unable to learn whereabout the young couple were, however, have been nothing but the slight. With the aid of his bride, the young aviator and his wife, Anne Spencer Morrow, were spending their honeymoon very doomed to absolute silence.

In the face of these reports, one can only wonder what the honey moon had entailed everyone to believe "showy" planes at the New York State to chase drivers off the track, and driving themselves at some speed into the Morrow home.

Jumping from an airplane in full flight and dangling beneath for several minutes while another plane landed for rope with which to effect a rescue was the experience of Harold Williams, a Melville flier who has since decided to abandon parachute jumping forever. Williams was not injured but he had a thrill which he would not like to repeat every day.

Parachute Jumping

The experience of Harold Williams, who leaped out of a parachute hoping to land quickly and safely upon the earth, only to find that some of his ropes had become fouled in the lower wing of the plane and that he was to be left dangling in mid-air until a rescue could be effected, makes one wonder just what it is like to take a more successful ride in a parachute.

Jack Cope, who has had some experience with parachutes having made more over two thousand jumps throughout the vicissitudes of his existence, describes for Popular Mechanics a jump in which he fell 3,400 feet before he pulled his rip cord. It is not altogether an unpleasant sensation, or one that caused any real perplexity among youthful fliers, if we are to believe the statement of Mr. Cope, who says:

"I was dropping feet first, and there was a terrible rush of air past my ears. Then I was rolling over and over on my side next head over heels, and the rush of air hurt my ears. I reached over, grabbed the release ring and pulled. Something seemed to have put a pillow under me and I had fallen into it. The chute was open. I swung back and forth as if in an old-fashioned rope swing."

"I saw the ground coming up to meet me. I grabbed a handful of ropes, pulled down and held, and the swinging motion ceased. Then I grabbed another handful, pulled hard this time and almost stood still in the air. The next instant, my feet hit the ground. My legs were forward and I sat down, but got up again quickly and ran straight into the parachute to turn it inside out and spill the air out of it so that it wouldn't drag me. Everything was O.K. A few seconds later, they told me I had fallen nearly 3,400 feet before pulling the release ring."

That is not so bad. One might well expect, in dropping three or four thousand feet to experience great difficulty in breathing. Those who have driven in automobiles without windshields at great speeds know something of the trouble in breathing when too much air is rushing by. But parachute jumpers say that it is not hard to breath when falling through air. Perhaps it is for the same reason that persons, ordinarily extremely dizzy when perched on a lofty building, do not have the same sensation when riding in an airplane.

Latin American Development

The perfection of the airplane and the organization of air transport lines are bringing Central and South America many days closer to the great centers of commerce and population in the United States. But at the same time, other lines of development such as the railroad are going steadily forward, presaging an even greater future for the nations which lie to the south of us.

One would not be warranted in saying that there is any boom in South America, but it is nevertheless a fact that roads are being built, bridges constructed, cities laid out, and big developments planned, at a rate which far surpasses anything previously seen in Latin America. The Guatemalan trade commissioner, Robert M. Igne, recently sent the following report to the United States department of commerce, showing railroad expansion in Central America.

"The International Railways have accepted delivery of the line from Metapan to Salvador, near the Guatemalan border to San Salvador, including the branch line from Texia Junction to Ahuachapan via Santa Ana, and a regular scheduled service is being operated over these lines. The opening of this line will help American exports in the Gulf ports and on the Atlantic seaboard in trading with Salvador. In 1928 Salvador's total imports amounted to more than $19,000,000, of which slightly more than 50 per cent came from the United States.

"Previously the distance, both in time and actual miles, from Santa Ana to Gulf ports of the United States was nearly as great as from Liverpool to Santa Ana. In all, the actual transport time approximated 18 days and, in addition, delays were practically necessary for connections. Merchantmen from New Orleans, for example, had to pass through the canal and along the Pacific Coast to Acapulco, and thence by rail. The new line will enable shipments to be made in less than half the time previously required, which advantage should be of material assistance to American exporters."

The modern, high-compression, high-speed motor demands an oil that will stand up under the excessive heat generated and will function as near perfectly as is humanly possible under the conditions prevalent in today's motors. The problem has been to secure in one oil the best qualities of the finest paraffine and naphthalene crude oils. In our laboratories we have perfected a blend of lubricating oil made from two crude oils. It has advantages only to be found in a two-base oil. If you regard your motor with the affection you have for a favorite dog (as some of us do) you should at least try
