"We Got To Go To Patching," Old Negro Declares

"We got to go to patching," I don't know how long it will take us to get to patching," the elderly expressed sentiment of a long time resident of the city, Willard Mackie, former Negro lawyer, who is known hereabouts as "Old John". He figures on conserving what he has including clothes, both from necessity and to aid the nation in the war effort. Americans have been asked not to purchase articles they do not need and to repair any that can be serviceably fixed.

"I was raised amongst white folks in Georgia, and they taught me never to steal but to go a begging," the old darkey said emphatically, while gently approaching Fire Chief Mack Cleveland on the subject of obtaining an old shirt or something. If pressed, however, the old fellow will mention "lifting" a blazer or two while a youthful slave in Georgia.

Give 'em Death

Sanford's one-man crime wave has created considerable excitement, has brought many a sleepless night to nervous dwellers, and has resulted in more houses being looked up at night than has been the usual custom.

Only a few weeks ago we warned our readers that there is danger in these unusual times of increased crime. It has always been during war periods, and for this reason we urged everyone to take added care to lock up houses tightly, to call the police promptly, and to report any suspicious characters.

Of course, the best punishment for such an offender is to be killed on the spot. But surely nothing less than a hanging is deserved by all house-breakers, and we hope the day may come when such a law will be passed for we feel it will act as a healthy deterrent for anyone who has such a low regard for the sanctity of a man's home.

The American spirit of tolerance of ideas and religion was well expressed in the life and writings of Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin led the movement which resulted in a hall being built in Philadelphia to accommodate any preacher of any faith who wished to speak in the temple of his city.

It was like Franklin to put humor into even this subject, about which he thought so seriously. He turned into Biblical language an old story, called it A Parable Against Intolerance, and having memorized it, delighted in reciting it to read it aloud to scholars and clergymen as the fifty-first chapter of Genesis. It is the story of how Abraham, having refused hospitality to an infidel, was first primed by God. When Abraham tells the Lord that he has turned the infidel away, God says, "Have I borne with him those hundred ninety and eight years, and notwithstanding his rebellion against me, and couldst not thou, that art thyself a slinger, bear with him one night?"—St. Augustine Record.

Dear Soldier: This is the hardest task we have had, yet to do. We must report to you 'out front' the death of a former friend, a comrade in arms, a Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps.

Fernandez Makes Good After Leaving Third For Outfield

BOSTON, Aug. 14. (AP)—Scatter-armed "Nanny" Fernandez, whose throws from third base have endangered the populace all season, finally has discovered that he is an infielder. He is a big league outfielder.
The Coast leaguer, whose batting facts led the Braves to put him on the line for $75,000 on the line, seemed well on his way to a new National league error record at third base until Casey Stengel, manager in desperation, shifted him to the outfield.
"Nanny" who answers to the name of Froilan and traces his descent back to old Castile, was all that you'd want fielding the ball but his throws were wild and wonderful. In fact the first base stands quivered every time a ball went his way. Most of his throws, and they were plenty, were on throws.
"But you can't keep him out of there," insisted Stengel. "The kid can hit, he's got what it takes and we've got to have him in there."
"Nanny" got his chance in the outer garden two weeks ago and —believe it or not—he hasn't had an error since he's been moved out to left field. Not only that but he's been playing the field in dazzling splendor, making almost impossible catches and long and accurate throws to every base, gradually moving up his batting average and leading
