New Lake Mary exit opens

LAKE MARY — Local commuters will have an easier path to follow home beginning tomorrow.

Beginning sometime after noon Wednesday, a new two-lane ramp will be opened from eastbound Interstate 4 lanes to Lake Mary Boulevard. The ramp was scheduled to be opened today, but rains Monday night forced the delay, a project spokesman said. The ramp is part of the $6.9 million replacement of the 24-year-old interchange.

Wednesday night, construction crews will be removing barrier walls along the eastbound lanes of I-4. The right, outside lane for eastbound traffic will be closed from 11 p.m. until 6 a.m. Thursday morning.

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Lottery Department on Tuesday released the following information on payoffs in its "Fantasy 5" game. The game produced seven first-prize winners on Monday night and each can collect $98,318.77.

The winning tickets were sold in Miami (2), Oviedo, Orange City, Jensen Beach, Opa Locka and Plantation.

In addition to the first-place winners, 801 people won $222.00 for picking 4-of-5, and 23,527 people won $4 for picking 3-of-5. The winning numbers for Monday night were 01-05-06-10-13.

Same birthdays run in the family

BATON ROUGE, La. — Melissa Anker, born at 12:12 p.m., turned 12 on Monday, Aug. 12 — a birthday she shares with her mother and her mother's mother.

The seventh-grader said she, her mother, Linda Lawson, and grandmother, Helene Hidalgo, usually get together to celebrate their birthday.

"The only problem is trying to find a present for both of them," Melissa said.

Ms. Hidalgo said shared birthdays seem to run in her family. "My son, my brother and an aunt all share the same birthday, and so do my grandson, a niece and a great-niece," she said. Her family isn't unique.

Motorist dies after freak accident

ELKO, Nev. — A German tourist was killed when a car jack his automobile ran over through the floorboard and impaled him, police said Monday.

Dietrich Alt, 46, of Herzogenaurach Hammerbach, Germany, was driving west on Interstate 80 in northeastern Nevada with his wife and two children when the accident occurred Sunday, the Nevada Highway Patrol said.

As the car drove over the jack, the tool flipped up and punctured the car's floorboard, tore through the driver's seat and impaled Alt through the groin area, a patrol dispatcher said.

Alt was able to pull off the road and remove the jack, but he collapsed on the highway, the patrol said.

He was pronounced dead Sunday at Elko General Hospital, the patrol said.

Principal Epps leaves

Seminole Principal Wayne Epps will take over Oviedo High School when classes resume.

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Wayne Epps, principal at Seminole High School for a decade, feels his job there is done and he is ready for a new challenge.

Epps will take over as principal of Oviedo High School on Aug. 26, two days after the start of classes.

"I'll be opening both schools," Epps said this morning. He would not speculate on who his replacement at Seminole might be or when one would be named.

There has been some pressure in the district to place a woman in the top spot at a district high school and there are at least two women in the candidate pool to replace Epps, district officials said.

Epps, a graduate of Seminole High School, said he has been considering the move to Oviedo for over a year.

"It will present a lot of exciting challenges and interesting opportunities for me," Epps said.

He said that he has seen Seminole rise from the bottom of the list in Seminole County test score rankings to the middle of the pack in the past few years.

He has taken the facility from an outdated relic to one of the finest campuses in the district.

With the support of a strong alumni association and the Sanford business community, Seminole High has a strong financial base to support many enhancement programs.

He hopes to accomplish many of the same things

Sanford to vote on recreation money

Oct. 8 referendum scheduled to raise $3 million for pool, two other projects

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The people of Sanford will have an opportunity to vote on a $3 bond referendum October 8. If approved, the money will be used for major recreation projects.

The Sanford City Commission voted unanimously last night to place the bond issue on the ballot. The total dollar value of the bond issue to produce a $3 million fund will be approximately $3.3 million, depending on the length of time determined for payment.

Two alternatives had been examined for repayment, one mill for six years, or one-half mill for seventeen years. The Commissioners accepted a recommendation from City Manager Bill Simmons that the longer payback at the lower millage rate be approved.

The recreational project involves three projects.

One, a swimming pool to be constructed at Seminole High School, will be used by the school during school hours, and opened to the public during non-school hours. The cost will be shared equally between the City and the Seminole County School Board. The City's share of the cost is estimated at $600,000, with the total cost of $1.2 million.

The second project is an athletic complex, also to be constructed near the high school. It will consist of four lighted athletic fields, and related buildings and facilities. Also included is a projected access road to the field from Airport Boulevard. The total cost is $500,000.

SANFORD — A new member has been named for the Sanford Airport Authority. Bob Hattaway will replace member Shirley Shilke, who has resigned.

Hattaway was named by Mayor Bettye Smith, during the Sanford City Commission meeting Monday night, to fill the vacancy. Shilke had submitted her letter of resignation to the city, effective Aug. 14. She did not give a reason. When the city approved Hattaway's nomination, it was specified that it became effective immediately.

This morning, a high-caliber meeting was underway at the airport. In addition to airport and city officials, a half-dozen members of the Florida Legislature were on hand. The delegation, chaired by State

Assessment dispute festers

SANFORD — A rumble of discontent over an almost certain dramatic increase in county property tax bills for older homes was felt in Sanford's oldest neighborhood, historic downtown, this morning.

"The tax madness has taken on a different turn," resident and president of the Sanford Historic Trust, Warren Skipper, said.

"I don't think it's fair," city commissioner for the district, Lon Howell said.

Last week, Merv Ozler, a Sanford homeowner, prevailed in a ruling by the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach when the court said Seminole County Circuit Court Judge S. Joseph Davis, erred in ruling Ozler could not have a jury trial to protest his county property appraisal.

In reviewing the case, the appeals panel wrote that older homes in Seminole County appeared to be given special treatment and were undervalued.

Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber said the base rate of all older homes was

"They're going to see some increases. To what extent I don't know. Thirty, 50, 100 percent would not be unusual."

-Appraiser Bill Suber

"One house went from $22,000 to $37,000. The other went from $37,000 to $72,000. That one is being remodeled. There isn't even plumbing in it," he said.

Suber said every home in the area was visited by an appraiser from his office to reassess values. Appraisers did not, however, go inside the homes, Suber said.

"We physically visited each property. People add on rooms, change air conditioning from units to central, put in pools and upgrade wiring. We take that into consideration. Someone financially unable to do these things will probably not see an increase in their bill," Suber explained.

Howell disagreed.

"There is no rhyme or reason to how they did it. They drove down the street using square footage of property. My home, which is totally remodeled, is worth less than one that has no bathroom but is bigger?" Howell questioned. "If a house is a shack and 4,000 square feet, its going to be taxed higher."

Howell said even though historic homes would be expensive to rebuild, past property tax appraisals

District governor issues challenge to Rotary

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Rotary Club of Sanford heard from Rotary District Governor Dr. Jack Bergner yesterday. The leader issued a challenge to the club for the 1991-92 year.

Introduced by club President Rocky Ford, Bergner was the featured speaker during yesterday's weekly noon luncheon held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Prior to his talk, he expressed his appreciation for the many activities undertaken by the Rotary Club of Sanford, including their flag project, help in the Golden Age Games, various fund raisers, bowling and golf tournaments, a blood bank, and its International Service work. "Yet you do all of this with a song in your heart," he said. He referred to the Sanford club as "The singing club."

In the main part of his talk, he reported he was giving all of the clubs in his district four challenges to accept as goals during his term as district governor. He asked that they "install and enhance communications between clubs, and from clubs to the district, strengthen memberships in the clubs, and strengthen their support of the Rotary Foundation." The fourth request was for assistance during the Rotary International convention, scheduled in

Attorney for Noriega was undercover

MIAMI — Manuel Noriega's former attorney was an undercover informant, but never revealed details of his client's defense, the government contends.

Raymond Takiff represented Noriega until just hours before the deposed Panamanian leader surrendered to U.S. troops in Panama in January 1990. Federal prosecutors acknowledged that he was secretly cooperating at the time with an unrelated judicial bribery probe.

In June, defense attorneys demanded a full court inquiry into whether Noriega's right to a fair trial had been violated, but prosecutors vigorously denied compromising Noriega's rights.

"The government did not use Noriega's criminal defense attorney as an informant against him," said the legal brief filed Monday by the U.S. attorney's office. "No information was either sought or obtained by the government on Noriega's defense."

Lead defense attorney Frank Rubino said Monday he was dissatisfied with the government's response, and he wants the judge to conduct a full hearing.

Noriega is set to go on trial Sept. 3 for racketeering and drug smuggling.

Watchdogs praise Gov. Chiles

TALLAHASSEE — A budget watchdog group praised Gov. Lawton Chiles and his staff for delaying cash releases to state agencies in anticipation of another revenue shortfall.

The action by the Governor's Office of Planning and Budgeting may have helped prevent disorder in some areas of state government, Florida TaxWatch stated in a report.

"We commend Gov. Chiles and his staff for their resourcefulness in handling the shortfall we now face," Dominic M. Calabro, president of the business-backed research and watchdog group, said Monday.

Forecasting a potential $500 million shortfall, officials changed the cash release schedule from the usual 25 percent per quarter to 23 percent in the first two quarters, 24 percent in the third and 30 percent in the fourth.

The state budget year began July 1 and runs through June 30, 1992. During the prior budget year, agencies were ordered to cut spending in the middle and toward the end of the year because of shortfalls.

State comptroller denies taking bribe

TAMPA — State Comptroller Gerald Lewis denied that he was influenced by political fund-raiser Jerome Berlin, who faces federal fraud charges.

Berlin, a Miami lawyer and Democratic Party fund-raiser, and New York lawyer Anthony V. Labozetta are on trial in Tampa on charges of conspiracy and fraud.

Berlin and Labozetta are accused of persuading brothers John and Lonnie Kilpatrick to pay them $100,000 on behalf of Lewis. In return, the comptroller's office would ease its investigation of trading improprieties at GIC Government Securities Inc.

Lewis has denied any knowledge of the scheme and both prosecuting and defense attorneys say he was not involved.

He testified Monday that Berlin, whom he had known since the early 1980s, called him in 1985 and asked the nature of the state GIC investigation because the Kilpatricks had contacted him to represent them.

"He indicated he was trying to decide whether he should represent them," Lewis said.

K-9 trials continue in Sanford

By NICK PFERFAUF

SANFORD — The Regional K-9 Trials, a police work dog competition, will continue through Wednesday of this week on the grounds of Seminole High School. The Sanford Police Department has one K-9 entered in the competition.

The event, with an estimated 44 entrants, got underway yesterday with initial exercises in obedience. Tests were made to determine the amount of control accepted by the dog, from the law enforcement officer partner. These included heeling, walking and distance.

Also yesterday, were the tests for agility, with dogs competing in hurdles, broadjumping and catwalk tests, in which dogs demonstrate their ability to climb a six-foot ladder, cross a catwalk stopping midway to perform some commands, and finally, dismount and return to the handler. Today's events include search competition, including an article search and a suspect search.

Wednesday will see the culmination of the events complete with tests of criminal apprehension, with attacking as well as protection of the handler to be considered.

The teams from throughout Florida, Georgia, and elsewhere in the southeast United States, will be competing for points. A total of 700 points is possible during these three days. An officer and dog scoring at least 560 points will become qualified to compete in the National K-9 Competition.

Although the public is invited to watch the series of tests each morning through their completion on Wednesday, a special public demonstration will be held Thursday, beginning at 7 p.m., at Seminole High School. Admission is free.

Insurance hike

Insurers ask 39.3 percent workers' comp rate increase

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Employer and employee groups say they'll fight a request by workers' compensation insurers to raise employers' premiums 39.3 percent for the coverage of on-the-job injuries.

The Florida Department of Insurance and Treasurer will schedule a public hearing after studying the rate request, Commissioner Tom Gallagher said Monday.

The filing announced Monday by the National Council on Compensation Insurance vice president Jim Nau came less than two years after the Legislature cut benefits to workers to trim employers' premiums.

Rising health-care costs forced the increase in spite of workers' compensation revisions in the 1990 legislative session and a 1991 special session, Nau said.

Without the changes, Nau said, "Our request today would be for an increase in excess of 70 percent."

The council makes rate filings on behalf of the companies that collect $1.7 billion in workers' compensation premiums a year in the state.

"I don't like hearing that they believe they need a 40 percent rate increase," Gallagher said. "We will go through it page by page and see how it's justified."

The Legislature in its 1990 regular session cut premiums employer pay for the coverage by 25 percent, effective in September 1990, and froze them until Jan. 1, 1992.

Nau said the request represented only a moderate increase over rates prior to the reforms and rate cut.

But it ensured that the Legislature will debate workers' compensation again, said Jon Shebel, president of Associated Industries of Florida.

Employers will demand controls on the rising health-care costs forcing premiums up, Shebel said. "They aren't going to like it a bit."

"Doctors, hospitals and chiropractors are going to find themselves having to justify why a bunch of things shouldn't be done to them," he said.

"We find it totally outrageous. But not surprising," Susan

Wilson, secretary-treasurer at the Florida AFL-CIO, said.

The labor group argued all along that problems with the workers' compensation system weren't due to the amount of benefits workers got, Wilson said.

Nau told a news conference the insurers had costs of $1.37 for every $1 of premiums collected in Florida in 1990 and hadn't had a year of positive returns in the state since 1982.

Premiums would increase an average of 39.3 percent, he said. Rates vary for some 600 job classifications from as low as 80 cents per $100 of payroll for low-risk office workers to $40 per $100 for high-risk roofers.

Boats major cause of manatee deaths

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Signs lowering boating speed limits designed to prevent manatee deaths are fully in place in only two of 13 counties where they were ordered by the Florida Legislature last year, officials say.

Full compliance may have lowered a boat-related death toll that has continued virtually unchanged so far this year, says Pat Rose, protected species administrator for the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

Boat collisions remained the leading cause of death for the endangered marine mammals. Thirty-three manatees died from colliding with boats or being slashed by propellers through July, compared with 31 deaths during the same period of 1990.

"You had better see some major differences two years from now," Rose told The Tampa Tribune for a story in Monday editions. "We expect boat deaths to be at least half of what they are now."

Rose and other officials blame the Florida Inland Navigation District, one of two districts that maintain intracoastal waterways on the state's east and west coasts, for the delay in getting speed limits adopted and posted.

The governor and state Cabinet have adopted rules for only five of the 13 counties with the highest numbers of manatee deaths. However, sign installation is complete only in Brevard and Collier, Rose said.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of a total of 3,817 feet of wire from the CSX Railroad transport area at the foot of west 6th Street in Sanford during this past weekend. According to law enforcement reports, an estimated 817 feet of the wire was apparently taken Friday, with the rest taken on Saturday morning. The total weight of the wire is estimated at 229 pounds. It was described as nine gauge insulated copper wire. Total value of the entire amount is $5,810.

Fish Game Commission finds car

The State Fish and Game Commission has informed the Seminole County Sheriff's office of an automobile located in Marion County. Specific details on how or exactly where the vehicle was found were not revealed.

The owner of the vehicle, a 1987 Chevrolet, was identified as Annie Scheuring, 3202 Tall Tree Lane, Sanford. According to her son, Barry, she is out of town on vacation but has been notified.

The Fish and Game Commission also reported it has apprehended a person apparently found with the vehicle, but his name was not revealed pending further investigation into the incident.

Man extradited from New York

Arthur Lee Knight, of William Clark Court, Sanford, has been extradited from Rochester, New York, to Sanford, following his apprehension by the Marion County, New York Sheriff's Department. He was wanted in Seminole County on a charge of violation of parole. He had been serving two years on parole since August 14, 1990, on a conviction of aggravated battery. Knight has been placed in custody at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Sanford woman charged with DUI

A Lake Mary Police officer, on routine patrol, reported finding a woman walking around her vehicle, at the Shoppes of Lake Mary Sunday. The car was reportedly parked opposite from the traffic direction, but the engine was running and the lights were on. Following a number of tests, Pamela Dealmore, 31, of 104 Westwind Court, Sanford, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. Following tests at the Lake Mary Police headquarters, she was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Several credit cards and the owners drivers license were found in the vehicle.

Adopt duck for race to benefit Girls, Boys Club

By VICKI BOGANN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — People are quacking up at Fun World in preparation for a big charity event in Orlando.

The Great American Duck Race will be held on Lake Eola in Orlando next month, but Sanford and Lake Mary residents don't have to go all the way to Orlando to adopt a duck.

"We've got things set up right here," said Syd Levy, owner of Flea World on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

Locals can go to the arcade at the family fun center and adopt their lucky duck.

The five dollar adoption fee will benefit the Boys and Girls Clubs of Central Florida.

There is a Boys and Girls Club in West Sanford on Perimmon Avenue and satellite projects in Midway and east Altamonte Springs. All three will receive financial donations as a result of the fund drive.

Duck adoption also gives donors the opportunity to win prizes. To that end, each entry blank is assigned a number that will correspond with a number held by a rubber duck at the race.

Ducks, wearing flashy racing goggles and sporting a bright green bill, will not be distributed at the adoption center.

State of county is healthy

Positive attitude solving problems

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Despite lean times fiscally, Seminole County is in healthy shape businessmen were told by county and school officials Monday.

"They're not insurmountable problems," said County Manager Ron Rabun. "With a positive attitude, we all as citizens can go a long way towards solving them."

Rabun joined with Sheriff Don Ealinger and assistant school budget director Mary Chambers at the Altamonte Springs Hilton to tell members of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce about the "state of the county."

The officials received a verbal pat on the back from Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs.

"They've done a pretty good job locally," Grindle commented.

Chambers said for the first time in her seven-year school financial career, Seminole County school officials had to develop their annual spending plan "backwards." She said budgets are normally prepared by first allocating revenues for existing programs then looking at what's left over for new programs.

"This year, we knew from the very beginning we didn't have enough money to do what we started out doing," Chambers said. "The best news I have today is we have a balanced budget."

Although the county is receiving less money for schools from the state, about 2,000 new students are expected this year and insurance and other costs have increased. Seminole County ranks 65th out of the 67 counties in state education allocations, Chambers said.

By increasing the student to teacher ratios by two and cutting other expenses, county schools were able to decrease the tax rate slightly while increasing the spending plan from $295.7 million last year to $316.4 million this year.

Rabun said when Seminole County is compared to 10 Florida counties and the city of Orlando, it ranks ninth in the amount of per capita spending. Seminole County spends an average of $766 per person, compared to over $2,200 per person in Lee County.

The county ranks 10th in terms of employees serving the population, Rabun said. Seminole County has 63 employees for every 10,000 residents, he said. By comparison, Orlando has 185 employees per 10,000, Orange County has 107 employees and Collier County has 125 employees.

"People are always saying there's a lot a fat in local government," Rabun said. "Sure, there's always areas and things we can cut. But Seminole County has had a pretty lean county government."

Rabun said the county faces decreasing housing construction, increasing federally- and state-mandated costs, increasing indigent health care costs, a potential for a threatened water supply. He described the problems as "warning signs."

Ealinger said he expects to improve law enforcement services in the county by January. He said the approval of 11 civilians, employees to perform non-emergency tasks formerly done by sworn deputies, he will be able to expand the number of patrol zones from 12 to 15. The cost of the 11 civilians will be about $280,000, compared to $600,000 for deputies, he said.

"To determine the quality of life in any community in this country, you have to first determine the quality of law enforcement in that community," Ealinger said.

Second deputy manager named

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff writer

SANFORD — A Collier County official could become the latest addition to Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun's team.

Monday, Rabun announced his decision to appoint Thomas W. Olliff his second deputy county manager. Olliff now serves as assistant to the Collier County manager for growth management and capital projects management. Rabun said he expects Olliff to notify him if he will accept the $62,000 offer in one to two days.

"He just seems to be a bright, bright, fellow," Rabun said. "He has impressed the heck out of people where he has worked."

If he accepts the position, Olliff will become the deputy manager in charge of what Rabun called "soft" public service departments, including Planning, Building and Health and Human Services. Rabun has already appointed Sharon Goode Laisure to become his deputy in charge of administrative departments. She will assume the position, which pays $70,000, in September.

Rabun said the salary difference between Olliff and Laisure was due to Laisure having 14 years government experience and a master's degree.

Olliff could not be reached Monday before returning to his Naples home.

According to his resume, Olliff spent his entire public service life working for Collier County. He first went to work for the county in 1984 after graduating from Palm Beach Atlantic College in 1983.

Olliff began working in Dec. 1984 as solid waste coordinator. Two months later, he was named fleet management coordinator. From Feb. 1986 to Feb. 1988, he served as assistant to the county manager, also serving as acting purchasing and fleet management director. He served a year as community development administrator before he assumed his current position in Feb. 1989.

Lawsuit may determine liability in land seizure

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County Expressway Authority liability challenge by the Florida Department of Transportation will intensify, expressway officials said this morning.

SCEA attorney Lonnie Groot said FDOT officials are planning to sue SCEA to have the courts decide whether SCEA or the state should pay any damages awarded to owners of land needed for the 12-mile expressway through Seminole County.

SCEA members voted unanimously in an emergency meeting this morning to authorize Groot to defend the agency against the FDOT claims it is not responsible for any damages.

Several land owners have claimed the SCEA reservation of their land between October 1987 and May 1990 prevented them from selling their homes. FDOT attorneys responded by saying it was not responsible for the reservations.

Groot said FDOT attorneys told him the lawsuit would be "friendly" and used to determine who should pay the damages if courts award them to property owners.

"Friendly lawsuit" is an oxymoron to me," Groot said. "Whenever anybody tells me I'm wrong, I don't consider that very friendly."

SCEA Director Gerald Brinton said the local road-building agency has no money to pay for any damage awards or court costs. The agency turned the responsibility for entire expressway construction project over to the state, complete with the toll-producing completed half mile, he said.

The project involves construction of a 12-mile expressway link between the existing half-mile section and U.S. Highway 17-92 at State Street.

All other SCEA monies are reserved for use towards the eventual construction of the final six-mile segment between U.S. Highway 17-92 and Interstate 4, Brinton said.

An attorney representing several expressway path landowners near Sanford said this morning he would prefer the agency with the ability to pay his clients be liable.

Don't ease up on Iraq trade rules

In light of Saddam Hussein's continued violation of the United Nations' cease-fire resolution, the Bush administration should be in no hurry to ease trade sanctions against Iraq.

Although the human suffering inside the war-devastated country is indeed tragic and felt most keenly by ordinary citizens, permitting Baghdad to resume oil exports is not likely to alleviate their plight.

For more than a decade, Saddam has deprived his citizens of Iraq's considerable resources in order to fortify his military power. American intelligence sources have reported that, even in the aftermath of the Persian Gulf conflict the Iraqi leader has diverted international relief supplies from his people to his army.

The U.S. government also believes Baghdad has gold reserves and other hidden assets in its central bank that could be used today to purchase food, medical supplies and other necessities. Such humanitarian needs are exempt from the U.N. sanctions. But the Iraqi government apparently continues to hoard its assets in total disregard for the anguish being felt throughout the country.

As long as Saddam remains in power, there will be no guarantee that the earnings from oil sales would be used for humanitarian purposes, even if they are funneled through a United Nations account. The record of Saddam's rule strongly suggests that much of those earnings would be applied, in one way or another, to rebuild Iraq's military apparatus.

Another compelling reason for not lifting the sanctions at this time is Iraq's nuclear weapons program.

Despite the passing of the July 25 U.N.-imposed deadline for Baghdad to declare an accurate inventory of its nuclear sites, there is ample evidence Iraq still is trying to hide elements of its arms program. In recent weeks U.N. observer teams have caught Iraqi authorities in the act of moving uranium-enrichment equipment in order to shelter it from international inspection.

Continuing the economic embargo can help thwart Saddam's attempts to revive a covert weapons program. President Bush, with backing from the allies, has threatened to renew air strikes against Iraq, if necessary, to disrupt the nuclear operations. But, considering the massive air raids carried out for six weeks during the war, this option would not necessarily wipe out Saddam's widely dispersed nuclear activities.

Lifting sanctions prematurely could encourage Baghdad's defiance of the U.N. cease-fire agreement. Nor would a removal of the embargo eliminate human suffering in Iraq. The State Department's draft plan for a limited relaxation of the sanctions should be put on hold for now.

Cut governmental waste

In regard to the recent push to raise our utilities tax, why don't our county commissioners, our state legislators and our congressmen realize that we working stiffs would rather see an elimination of waste in our government instead of more taxes.

For example, on the county level, our sheriff's department can't stop the drug dealers, but they can spend thousands of dollars and waste hundreds of man hours on those road blocks that violate our civil rights while trying to find someone with alcohol on their breath. They also waste hundreds of hours parked outside restaurants on Friday and Saturday so they can harass law-abiding citizens because they've had a beer. The sheriff's department, grossly overfunded like the rest of our governmental agencies, might be a good place to start cutting.

Cut the waste. Don't raise our taxes anymore.

Can the Democrats salvage Gates?

One of the Democrats' favorite tricks (and I'm sure the Republicans would use it too, if their roles were reversed) is to fasten onto some prominent presidential aide or appointee and savage him until he resigns or the Senate refuses to confirm him. The purpose of this exercise is to create a small pile of blame, in the hope that some of it will rub off on the real target — the president, of course.

Perhaps the most spectacular example of this in the Reagan administration was the job done by the Democrats and their media allies on Attorney General Ed Meese. Meese, however, was a tough old bird, as well as a highly able and honorable public servant, and the mud-gunners never managed to bring him down.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu has been the target of choice in the Bush administration. At the moment he is still in office, but the opposition is by no means finished with him and the prospects are not altogether reassuring.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bush's nomination of National Security Council Deputy Director Robert Gates as head of the CIA has given the Democrats another victim to kick around (since the Senate must consent to the appointment). They have not evinced much enthusiasm for the opportunity. Their attitude reminds me of a mongoose I once watched in India, being egged on by its owner to fight a cobra. The battle was instinctive and hence inevitable, and the mongoose was win; but its attitude, when hauled out of its sack to do its stuff yet again, was, "Must?"

Nevertheless the Democrats have worked Gates over, using a technique which London's Economist called "the death of a thousand cuts." No one cut is fatal, or even particularly harmful, but they add up to a potentially deadly injury.

In addition, the Democrats have gotten some unexpected help from Alan Piers, a small fish in the Iran-contra pond, who agreed to testify in special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh's interminable probe of that old scandal in return for a lighter sentence for having falsely told Congress he didn't know about the diversion of Iranian arms sale proceeds to the Nicaraguan contras.

Piers has sworn that his immediate superior, Clair George, the CIA's assistant director for covert operations (or head of the "Dirty Tricks Department"), had seemed to know about the diversion already when Piers mentioned it to him, and then ordered Piers to lie about it to Congress.

The Democrats argue that, since the late CIA Director William Casey knew about the diversion, Gates, as his deputy and Clair George's superior, "must" also have known about it — though he has repeatedly denied this under oath.

This "sandwich theory," with Casey and George as the two slices of bread and Gates as the ham, may sound irresistibly logical to people unfamiliar with the way an intelligence service works, but in fact it's as full of holes as a Swiss cheese.

For one thing, as Casey's deputy, Gates specialized in technical intelligence and watching developments in the Soviet Union; Casey kept the more dramatic feats of cloak-and-dagger intelligence to himself and those directly concerned with them (e.g., George). For another, knowledge of covert operations as risky as the fund diversion to the contras is strictly confined to those who "need to know".

Meese, however, was a tough old bird, as well as a highly able and honorable public servant.

Baker reclaims foreign policy

Motion is value-free and travel can be deadening as well as broadening, so the fact that Secretary of State James Baker is setting jet travel records doesn't mean much in itself. What does matter is that Jim Baker has single-handedly recaptured control of American foreign policy for the office he holds, disproving a generation of conventional wisdom.

This secretary of state, far from being eclipsed by the national security adviser, the head of the CIA or the Defense Department, has fenced in diplomacy for himself and fenced out his competitors. Given the authority he has amassed, it is even better news that he has used it in largely constructive — and successful — ways.

The explanation for his success begins with his relationship with President Bush. He is closer to the President than any other man currently in high office. Their friendship goes back a long way. They have worked together in good political times and in bad. It is often remarked that Baker is to Bush almost what Bobby Kennedy was to Jack, and it is just that intimacy which has given him so much clout.

But close ties are the beginning of the story, not the end. What Baker has done with the power provided by his personal ties with the president, what he has done to neutralize the power of others and the way he has focused his phenomenal energy are also important factors.

It is clear that he has been blessed by the luck of the historical draw in one all-important instance. Even so, while the end of the Cold War must be attributed primarily to Mikhail Gorbachev, the enthusiasm with which it has been taken up and expanded by the administration (after initial suspicion and foot-dragging) owes much to James Baker. He pushed hard and long, over the opposition of others within the National Security Council to take Gorbachev up on his word and expand its possibilities. In other areas, he has been equally dogged in his pursuit of solutions to seemingly intractable problems, such as the convening of a Middle East peace conference.

In the Middle East, he has had to be. The past is strewn with the failure of one "peace process" after another. But even if the Baker initiative fails, as well it might, what he has already achieved and the way he has achieved it in this frustrating quest deserve a prominent place in the history of American diplomacy.

He has literally refused to take no for an answer. He has also refused to play by the usual rules, employing public rebuke and public pressure on Israel as well as hardball tactics with some of the Arab states. Faced down and publicly humiliated repeatedly, seeming to abandon the effort almost as often, he has pursued the goal of a Middle East settlement with unremitting zeal for over two years.

Baker has his critics, and like any public official, deserves at least some of the criticism he has received. He holds everything close to the vest, so close that the power that his presence has invested in the office of secretary of state has not been passed on to the rest of the department. His is a tight ship with few deck officers and little sharing of information or authority, or so goes the complaint from foreign service professionals.

Nor is he much given to accepting public responsibility for failure, the most notable example being his teary refusal to admit that he grossly misjudged Saddam Hussein's intentions and character before the 1990 invasion of Kuwait. Master of the leak and cultivator of key opinion shapers on a scale unmatched since Henry Kissinger's heyday, he is not above toasting others overboard in order to lighten the load in rough weather.

Others have tried to reciprocate. Earlier this year, there was a brisk flurry of leaks out of White House mice "close to" the national security adviser, the vice president and Chief of Staff John Sununu. Baker's star was said to be setting. He had not been sufficiently pro-war, said some columnists. He was too eager for agreements with the Soviet Union, said others. His willingness to go nose-to-nose with Prime Minister Shamir might indicate an unbalanced antipathy toward the Jewish state.

Such assaults on a secretary of state in the past have often either been signals of an impending political castration or evidence of its accomplishment. Not so this time. Today, Jim Baker's position on the president's right hand is unquestioned and publicly unchallenged.

That matters as much for the public interest as it does for Jim Baker's. Since the secretary of state has the statutory responsibility for the conduct of diplomacy, he should have the power that goes with it. Divided authority is a curse that has afflicted every administration since Eisenhower's. Jim Baker has proved that it doesn't have to be, that the experts were wrong. If the president trusts his secretary of state, that person can rule as well as reign in American foreign policy.

He (Baker) is closer to the President than any other man currently in high office.

Brown-out faces a Bush beacon

WASHINGTON — One of President Bush's "thousand points of light" is in danger of a brown-out.

The Peace Corps is celebrating its 30th birthday, a life devoted to good works and deeds in the most forsaken and forlorn corners of the world.

In its three decades, more than 130,000 young Americans have devoted two years of their lives to the classrooms, cities and farms of Third World countries.

But the Peace Corps in recent years has fallen prey to pocketbook politics. It has had to fight a poor man's war in the 69 developing countries where the 6,300 men and women volunteers are deployed.

The recent birthday celebration came amid the program's most beleaguered period. Under the direction of Paul Coverdell, who recently announced his intentions to resign and run for the Senate from Georgia, the Corps has been under fire from Congress, humanitarian groups and even former volunteers. The complaints have ranged from declining enrollment to Coverdell's plane trips.

Coverdell's travels became a source of controversy when reports surfaced that most of his government-funded domestic trips were to his home state, raising early speculation about his political ambitions. Many of those trips included politicking at various GOP functions. A Peace Corps spokesman told us Coverdell's trips were part of his effort to recruit more minorities.

Coverdell is also criticized for having tainted the agency's image as a non-political aid program for the Third World and damaging morale.

The future will apparently be in the hands of a former legislator. Our associates Scott Sleet and Nick Budnick confirmed that former Rep. Claudine Schneider, R-R.I., is the White House's top contender to replace Coverdell. Schneider was considered one of the most liberal Republicans in the House and often clashed with the Reagan White House.

She has apparently been forgiven by the Bush administration for making one of the most memorable cracks about Vice President Dan Quayle, which some people apparently believe actually happened. She joked that Quayle told her: "I was recently on a tour of Latin America, and the only regret I have was that I didn't study Latin harder in school so I could converse with those people."

She will inherit a troubled agency in which some 2,000 qualified volunteers are turned away each year because of funding restraints. Only one applicant in four is accepted. There are 22 countries begging for volunteers and waiting in line until the U.S. budget situation changes.

The Peace Corps could meet the urgent need for technical assistance in many host countries, but it lacks the funds to support families as well as volunteers abroad. Congress made it U.S. policy five years ago to expand the volunteer corps to at least 10,000, a goal that seems out of reach given budget constraints. The Bush administration has been asking for an amount that is the equivalent of less than half the Corps' peak year in 1966 — though it is a dramatic improvement over the Reagan administration.

An investigation by the House Government Operations Committee, chaired by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., found that the Peace Corps suffered from declining enrollment, insufficient volunteer training, dwindling resources and other problems.

But the Peace Corps in recent years has fallen prey to pocketbook politics.

Rotary

Orlando, June 14 through 17 of 1992.

Bergner said the convention is expected to draw 38,000 to 44,000 Rotarians from throughout the world, and the Rotary Club of Sanford will be one of the host clubs.

He briefly discussed one of his personal projects for the year, involvement in health care for the elderly. He explained that surveys have been sent out to clubs in three major districts, to determine health care needs for seniors. "We have already learned that one-third of the population of our nation will be 55 and older by the year 2020," he said, "and here in Florida, approximately one-third of the population do not have money with which to pay their health care costs." He said, "Results of the survey hopefully will give us some ideas on how to go about helping in this area, and what Rotary's role in the help might be."

Bergner, from Oviedo, heads district 6880. He said, "The district presently comprises 40 Rotary Clubs in 5 separate counties, with a total membership of 2,350."

The third and most costly to the city is a complete recreation community center building and supporting facilities proposed for Pinecrest Municipal Park. The 26,580 square foot building will have offices, a gymnasium, weight room, handball courts, locker rooms, game rooms and other facilities. The total cost is estimated at $1,612,200. Eight lighted tennis courts and a youth baseball field will also be included at the park for an additional cost of $361,000.

Details concerning the overall bond issuance of the project is still being finalized. The City Commission's decision during Monday night's meeting was only to place the matter on the October 8 ballot, to seek citizen approval.

Not all citizens favor the project. Alfred DeLattibeaudiere, spoke against the swimming pool portion of the proposal during the meeting's public participation time. He expressed

Residents raise recycling efforts

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Residents throughout Seminole County stepped up their recycling efforts in July, tossing nearly 914 tons of glass, plastic and other recyclables in bins, an increase of 70 tons.

Although Casselberry has become the seventh city in the county to begin a curbside recycling program, the residential recycling rate still represents an overall increase for the unincorporated areas of the county and the other six cities.

The recycling figures for the seven cities and the non-city area of the county were released Friday by the Seminole County Recycling Office.

Residents of unincorporated areas, Sanford and Longwood actually backtracked in their recycling efforts a little.

In June, unincorporated residents recycled 845.5 tons of their garbage. But in July, they recycled 486 tons. In Sanford, residents recycled 72.5 tons in June, but about 70 tons in July. In July, Longwood collected 41 tons of recyclables, compared to nearly 45 tons in June.

Lake Mary recyclers stepped up their efforts. In July, residents offered about 38 tons of their garbage for recycling, up from the 36.5 tons collected in June.

Other Seminole County cities made substantial increases. Altamonte Springs residents increased their recycling rate from 55.4 tons in June to 88.4 tons in July. Oviedo residents increased their recycling from 40.4 tons in June to 62.4 tons in July. Winter Springs residents almost doubled their efforts, from 50 tons in June to about 95 tons in July.

Casselberry residents ended their first month of curbside recycling with 33.5 tons collected.

In other recycling efforts, Sanford residents produced 126 tons of yard waste. The county took in 200 tons of washing machines and other used appliances collected throughout the county at the county dump, along with 1,260 gallons of used motor oil. Another 786 gallons of used oil was collected at the county transfer station near Longwood.

Dead firefighter AIDS source investigated

Associated Press

MIAMI — Documents released since the death of a Hallandale firefighter who claimed he contracted AIDS while treating a patient have cast doubt on the source of his infection, a newspaper reported.

Medical summaries question whether John Gauthier was infected during his work or whether he caught AIDS during a period when he suffered other sexually transmitted diseases. The Miami Herald reported Monday.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta has no documented cases of on-the-job HIV transmission to emergency medical personnel. No state or federal agency has investigated how Gauthier was infected.

Lackluster conclusive medical data, the city of Hallandale's Pension Board voted 3-2 that Gauthier, who died July 30, caught the disease on the job. That meant his family would qualify for a larger pension.

But working papers of the city attorney, obtained last week under the public records law, question that conclusion.

"I am convinced that Mr. Gauthier did not incur his disease on the job and we have evidence in that regard," attorney Richard Kane wrote Aug. 7 to lobbyists about a proposed firefighter AIDS protection law.

As proof, Kane offered a summary of Gauthier's medical record that shows a history of syphilis, gonorrhea and genital lesions. People with sexually transmitted diseases are known to be at high risk for contracting HIV.

In addition, Kane wrote, Gauthier was arrested in 1980 and charged with indecent exposure, and unnatural or lascivious behavior. He was arrested in an adult bookstore — one that Kane said was frequented by homosexuals.

Gauthier had vehemently denied any homosexual encounters. His arrest involved a woman, he testified.

To his supporters, the evidence is part of a smear campaign by a city administration that has long feuded with the firefighters' union. Gauthier led the union for many of his 19 years in the Hallandale Fire Department.

"What you're talking about is a man who was very bitter against my husband," said Gauthier's widow, Dana, referring to Kane. "He's fought with my husband on union issues for 20 years."

Of the suggestion of homosexual activity, she said: "Kane had no evidence of any such thing. That was never proved."

During his pension hearing in June, Gauthier cited three cases in which he was exposed to the blood or body fluids of patients known to have AIDS.

First month of tax collections low

TALLAHASSEE — The first month of tax collections for the new budget year indicates that not nearly enough money is coming in to keep pace with the state's $29.4 billion spending plan.

Overall, tax collections were about $21.7 million less than projected, although sales tax collections did surprisingly well for the month.

The July revenue figures show that the collection of state sales tax, which makes up 70 percent of Florida's revenues, was actually ahead of projections.

Florida collected $670.8 million in sales tax during July, $11.3 million more than the $659.5 million state economists had predicted.

Airport

Representative Toni Jennings, included State Senators Dick Langley and Bud Gardner, and State Representatives Stan Bainter, Frank Stone, Art Grindle and Bob Starks.

Members of the legislative delegation had requested the meeting to learn more about the airport, focusing its attention on present and future growth potential.

Prior to the mass meeting, the airport authority held a regular meeting at 10 a.m. The discussion dealt mostly with consideration of various lease agreements for airport property.

At 11:15 a.m., the Sanford City Commission met in a joint meeting with the authority, to discuss the airport's budget. The city has had difficulty obtaining $60,000, budgeted by the airport authority, for payment to the city for services including fire and police protection.

The joint meeting then adjourned from formal session, but continued as a legislative workshop, with members of the legislative delegation. Early this morning, Airport Director Steve his opinion that the total cost of the swimming pool was too high. "I've dealt with every high price swimming pool in the area," he said, "and I don't know of a single one that costs over a million dollars." DeLattibeaudiere said he plans to do what he can to get the bond measure defeated.

If the proposal is approved, it will be several years before the actual work would begin. The City does not expect to sell the bonds until approximately June, 1992.

Cooke said, "We plan to present our master plan and traffic projections, as well as report on the just-completed Air Service Development Study." Cooke said the authority also intended to explain some of its future capital needs to the delegation, with assistance required from the Legislature.

"We have five million dollars of work going on out here right now," Cooke said. "And we want to show them our progress." After the meetings, a bus tour was planned of the airport facilities.

for Oviedo High School that he has done at Seminole, he said.

"I think now is a good time for a change," he said.

Gail Stewart, a member of Seminole's Local School Advisory Committee, said that the change in leadership can only be for the best for both schools.

"This is a very positive move for all involved," she said. "It is hard to remain fresh at any position when you've been there too long."

Stewart, who headed the local effort to bring the U.S. Justice Department to Sanford to investigate possibly racial-biased inequities at Seminole, said the school has made "marvelous leaps forward" during the last three years, thanks in part to Epps involvement with the parents groups, but she believes that "new blood" would help Seminole reach its fullest potential.

Though Oviedo is a larger and faster-growing school, Epps considers the move a lateral one.

"I hate to leave Seminole and Sanford," he said, "but Oviedo offers me some great opportunities."

Epps will be assisted at Oviedo by Karen Coleman, a fellow

Seminole graduate who is presently assistant principal at Geneva Elementary School.

Epps said that he was pleased with the appointment of Coleman because her "good, positive outlook" would help him "enhance the feeling of pride and harmony that he hoped to instill in the Oviedo community."

He said that now that Seminole is doing well, he wants to take on a new program.

"I'm not much for maintenance," he said. "I want to bring some new ideas to a new school and let someone bring some revitalization to Seminole."

were fair, considering the condition of the neighborhood.

"My thinking is that people who move into an old home in Sanford are taking a chance trying to bring a neighborhood up. The downtown area is a neighborhood in transition and it could still go either way. It could be great, but it could be a slum. I think our taxes here reflect the chance we're taking," Howell said.

Ozier, who owns a home built in 1968, protested his $89,000 tax appraisal when his neighbors' older homes were valued at $2,000.

"In my opinion, he (Suber) is illegally discounting property two percent a year and is apparently ignoring sales prices in an area. The newer properties in the area are carrying the tax load for the older ones," Ozier said. "I just want equal treatment under the law. I want to be treated like my neighbors."

Skipper said he feared big tax increases would hurt the re-creation of the downtown area.

"It's another obstacle to revitalizing the historic district. I think there will be a lot of unhappy homeowners suddenly getting a bigger tax bill. It discourages people from fixing up their homes if all they get is tax, tax, tax," Skipper said.

Howell and Skipper were concerned at the suddenness of the tax hike.

"If there's been a mistake on our tax bills all these years, why are they trying to catch it up all in one year?" Howell asked. "I think the county has a big shortfall and they're taking it out on us."

"I just want to know what they're going to do with all that money," Skipper said.

Bush to hear much more on abortion issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP News Analysts

WASHINGTON — Perhaps the abortion issue is not a matter President Bush needs to be concerned about now, as he said the other day. But the vacation isn't going to last.

Abortion policy is likely to become a nagging, disruptive problem as Bush campaigns for re-election in 1992, with action in Congress, the courts and, one way or another, the streets.

It is not a question that yields to the kind of compromise that makes politics work smoothly. It's yes or no, with militants on both sides. And the judgment to overturn or affirm abortion rights guaranteed since 1973 could come during the presidential campaign season, on cases now headed for the Supreme Court.

For the past 15 years, it has been a topic of presidential campaign debate, although the courts, not elected political leaders, have been in control. That made it an issue of slogans and campaign advertisements, with conservatives denouncing a practice that was beyond their political reach.

Bush had supported the right to choose abortion, but changed his mind more than a decade ago, and came to national politics as an opponent of abortion. An anti-abortion plank has become a fixture of Republican Party platforms. Bush, like Ronald Reagan, has successfully vetoed measures that would permit the use of federal funds for abortion.

Now the issue is about to confront the administration and the Republicans on multiple fronts. Abortion has not been a turning point topic in national campaigns, and it isn't likely to be one next year. But it can and probably will be a troublesome one — an emotional, no-compromise question with activists and demonstrators on both sides.

And it can be a pivotal issue in state and congressional campaigns.

There was an example of the problems that go with abortion politics in the administration's awkward handling of court action against demonstrators who defied a federal judge with their month-long blockade of two abortion clinics in Wichita, Kan.

The Justice Department filed a brief opposing a federal court injunction to stop the mass protests, which have led to more than 1,900 arrests. Bush and Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said they weren't siding with the demonstrators.

The attorney general, who is leaving the Cabinet to run for the Senate in Pennsylvania, said the brief involved only the question of jurisdiction, which the government said should be left to state courts, and was not intended to support the demonstrators.

But it certainly put the Justice Department on their side in court. And at least for a while, it put the administration off balance. The White House said it was a routine filing, not something that got or needed review by Bush's staff.

"This isn't a matter for the president to be concerned about, especially on the first day of his vacation," Bush said in Kennebunkport, Maine, last Wednesday.

He called it a jurisdictional question to be sorted out elsewhere, and denied that the brief was politically motivated.

There did appear to be more bureaucratic than political thinking behind an administration brief supporting the position of militant demonstrators, even though it only repeats one filed earlier in another case.

"Everybody has the right to protest," Bush said. "It ought to be done within the law."

But the abortion dispute is too emotional, volatile, even violent, to yield to homilies about the proper bounds of protest.

And Wichita problem is only one installment. Louisiana is asking the Supreme Court for a swift review of a federal judge's decision last Wednesday striking down the state's stringent new anti-abortion law. Appeals on three other laws restricting abortion also are headed toward the court.

Any of them could become the vehicle for a judgment on the basic question of abortion rights. The Bush administration argues that the 1973 court decision legalizing abortion should be reversed. By the time such a case could be settled, a majority of the court will be composed of justices appointed by Ronald Reagan, three, and Bush, two.

Abortion will be a major and almost certainly unanswered question when Clarence Thomas, Bush's Supreme Court nominee, faces Senate questioning in confirmation proceedings next month.

All of that points to a 1992 campaign in which abortion rights will be a recurrent issue. And it guarantees Republican dispute over the anti-abortion plank in the GOP platform. Abortion rights advocates say they'll fight to get the platform changed next year to recognize that everybody in the party doesn't agree with Bush.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 25 years.

Man wins $21 million in Maryland's lottery

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — A 33-year-old man who lives with his parents foresees a "major lifestyle decision" after winning a $21 million lottery jackpot.

David Moreland, an administrator for aerospace contractor Martin Marietta, said Monday he will share the prize — the biggest in Maryland history — with his parents, sister and brother-in-law. Beyond that, he said he has no plans.

"This is obviously a major lifestyle decision that requires a little bit of thought," said Moreland, who lives in Lothian.

Moreland said playing the lottery is his only vice, and one of his few hobbies is gardening. "I think I can buy maybe two wheelbarrows — one for the top of the hill and one for the bottom of the hill," he said.

Owner of Sentry Fence, Lou Gugliemello, outside with a few examples of the new PVC fence.

Fence Me In...With A Sentry Fence

Are you tired of the wide open spaces? Do you feel like you need a little more security in your life, a little more definition of what is yours? Then you need a fence from Sentry Fence.

Sentry Fence is the oldest fence company in Seminole and Orange counties. Established and owned by Lou Gugliemello, in February of 1973, the business is located at 731 U.S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood. Sentry offers just about any kind of fence or protective barrier imaginable. Horizontal shadowbox, stockade, vertical shadowbox, board on board, picket, estate and ranch fences in wood, and chainlink available in Galvanize, Aluminum and Vinyl coatings. There are three types of wood available: Southern native cypress, cedar shipped from the west coast, and pressure treated pine, treated against rotting and termites.

Through Iron Art, a division of Sentry Fence, ornamental courtyard gates, window bars, stair-rails and balcony rails are available.

Sentry is now distributing a brand new item for residential and commercial use, PVC fencing. This low maintenance product comes with a 25 year warranty.

Other items that Sentry Fence can provide are electric-gate operators for commercial and residential use, dog kennels, flupoles, roll-a-way protective pool fencing and "Radio Fence", an invisible pet containment system.

Sentry Fence offers installation or advice for those who want to "do-it-yourself". Sentry's installers are experienced, reputable and fully insured. An average backyard fence can be installed in two days. Iron window bars can be installed in one day. Free estimates are available on-site for business and residential. Sentry Fence has done work for Disney, the cities of Kissimmee, Orlando, Casselberry and Sanford as well as a multitude of homeowners in the Seminole-Orange-Lake-Volusia-Osceola county area.

Lou says his company is different because it has roots in the community. Lou has been a member of Casselberry Rotary for 25 years, and has sponsored a softball team for Sentry fence employees for the past six years. The team plays at Red Bug Park and have taken away two first place trophies and three second place trophies. The important thing to remember, Lou says, is that, with Sentry, you would be dealing with a well established company, not one man in a truck, who you'll never see again after you have given him your deposit.

So, if you are in need of definition in your life: defining your property, for protection, beauty, privacy or safety; Sentry Fence is the place to call, at 898-0877. Or come by their office at 731 US Highway 17-92 in Longwood.

Pope returns to former diocese

KRAKOW, Poland — Pope John Paul II returned today to his former diocese, starting a visit to his native Poland and Hungary to promote Roman Catholic values in the former Communist bloc.

The pope arrived from Rome on a special Alitalia DC-9 flying the flag of the Vatican and Poland for his second visit to his homeland in three months. He travels to Budapest on Friday for the first visit ever by a pope to Hungary.

He was greeted by President Lech Walesa, Polish Primate Josef Glemp and other church and government leaders. He was smiling and seemed comfortable among old friends as he extended personal greetings to each dignitary.

John Paul did not kiss the ground on arrival as he traditionally does because the trip is considered an extension of his fourth pilgrimage, a nine-day, 12-city tour in June.

The focus of this visit is the sixth Vatican-sponsored World Youth Day, expected to draw hundreds of thousands of young Catholics to Cascochowa, site of the Black Madonna icon and Poland's holiest shrine.

There are also sentimental stops on John Paul's 52nd foreign tour. His was to go from the airport to visit his parents' graves in Krakow. On Wednesday, he goes to his hometown of Wadowice, where a marble plaque marks the birthplace of the first Polish pope.

Hot, dry weather hurts crops

WASHINGTON — Unusually hot, dry weather across the Midwest is cutting into corn and soybean harvests this year, but cotton and peanut farmers may be looking at bumper crops, the Agriculture Department says.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board, which made its first production estimates for spring-planted crops Monday, estimated the nation's 1991 corn harvest at 7.42 billion bushels this year, down 6 percent from 1990.

Soybean production was forecast at 1.87 billion bushels, down 3 percent from last year, USDA said, and sorghum production is forecast at 565 million bushels, down 1 percent from 1990. The hay crop was estimated at almost 157 million tons, up from last year's 147 million tons.

Wheat production was estimated at 2.03 billion bushels, up slightly from last month's forecast but still down 26 percent from last year's bumper crop.

Clean water heads their way

TAYLOR, N.D. — The water that has flowed into rancher Loren Myran's house for 45 years resembles dark tea and makes bad coffee.

Like many in North Dakota, Myran has well water pumped into his home. Only 35 of 330 public water systems in the state use water from lakes and rivers.

But many residents of southwestern North Dakota who depend on w. water are licking their lips at the thought of getting their first taste in the next few years of clean and reliable water through the Southwest Water Pipeline.

The $133 million pipeline will be North Dakota's first major tap into the Missouri River, the state's best source of water for drinking and irrigation.

Huge bank merger announced

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A record $190 billion merger of BankAmerica Corp. and Security Pacific Corp. became the latest major banking alliance in an industry moving to shrink costs while bolstering competitive brawn.

The deal announced Monday is worth $4.2 billion and will form the nation's second-biggest bank. It easily surpasses two other bank megamergers announced in July.

It also will create a West Coast banking superpower, combining the two companies' 2,400 branches and 92,000 employees in 10 states.

The trend may benefit consumers, at least in the short term. Analysts say merged banks can more easily control operating costs, permitting them to hold the line on fees for services such as cash machines and checking accounts.

Bones may be germ victims

TOKYO — Dozens of fragmented skulls and thigh bones unearthed at a construction site are locked at an undertaker's storage area. Mysteriously, the government just wants to dispose of, not identify, the human remains.

Historians think they know the reason: The bones were uncovered where Japan's military medical school stood during World War II and could be the remains of prisoners who died in germ warfare experiments by the shadowy Unit 731 in northern China.

"Considering the cooperation between the medical school and Unit 731, the bones are highly likely to be the remains of Chinese and Russian war prisoners killed and shipped from China after the germ experiments," said Keiichi Tsunehashi, a history professor at Kanagawa University.

Asian nations have accused Japan of playing down or denying atrocities that Japanese soldiers committed during World War II. The government has never denied the existence of the unit, but has never acknowledged the nature of its experiments.

'Hot Shots!' tops in box office sales

LOS ANGELES — The parody "Hot Shots!" was top gun at the box office for the second week in a row.

"Hot Shots!" — which satirizes "Top Gun" as well as "Dances With Wolves" and "Gone With the Wind" — took in $8 million over the weekend.

Muscle guy Jean-Claude Van Damme's "Double Impact" was No. 2 with $7.6 million. Exhibitor Relations Co. reported Monday.

Arnold Schwarzenegger's "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" was third with $6.7 million and has sold $160 million in tickets in just six weeks. MGM-Pathé suffered the weekend's biggest disappointment with the poor showing of the John Candy film "Delirious." It was 12th with $1.8 million.

Summer releases fading from sight include "Mobsters," "Bill & Ted's Bogus Journey," "Body Parts," "Return to Blue Lagoon" and "V.I. Warshawski."

U.S. commutes getting longer

Associated Press

TAMPA — The average American is spending more time on the road or by rail to reach work as the recession, better highways and the urge to live in quieter communities take their toll on commuting.

On South Florida's Tri-Rail system, passengers travel an average of 36 miles each way, spokeswoman Gloria Jacaruso said. One-third of the average 7,000 daily passengers commute into Miami from as far north as Jupiter.

Nationally, the average commute increased from 9.2 miles to 10.9 miles between 1977 and 1989, according to Census statistics analyzed by the Tampa-based Center for Urban Transportation Research.

Many are driving farther because they cannot find work near their home, according to Gary Broech, director of the center. Broech said he expects that trend to continue.

Others commuters, taking advantage of newly completed expressway systems — especially in South Florida — want to live in the most up-to-date communities. And those residential areas are generally far from the urban centers of employment.

Typical is Davis sheet metal worker Joseph Turnbull. With the recession pounding the construction industry, he took the best job he could find — 70 miles away from home.

"I don't enjoy the job but with the economy the way it is, there wasn't much available," said Turnbull, 52.

Hostage talks progress Israel, captors appear willing to give ground

By OWEN ACCORIAN
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — Israeli leaders today discussed United Nations proposals aimed at a speedy resolution of the hostage crisis amid Iranian reports that a Shiite Muslim cleric seized by Israel may be freed by the weekend.

In Geneva, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said he would meet with an Israeli negotiating team Wednesday and he hoped they would "come with a reaction to what we discussed" Sunday.

"The initial reaction was constructive and I think we can build on it. Perhaps in a few days we will see much clearer," he said.

Perez de Cuellar said the two sides are "not that far apart. It is not an ocean. I would say it is a river."

The kidnapers have freed three Western hostages — Briton John McCarthy, American Edward Tracy and Frenchman Jerome Leyraud — since Thursday. They say further releases depend on Israel.

Iran's official news agency reported today that Israel may soon free Sheikh Abdul Karim

The initial reaction was constructive. Perhaps in a few days we will see much clearer.

-Javier Perez de Cuellar

Obeid, a Shiite cleric seized by Israeli commandos two years ago. His freedom is a key demand of Lebanese groups holding Western hostages.

There was no independent confirmation of the report by the Islamic Republic News Agency. The report, monitored in Cyprus, said Obeid would "possibly be reunited with his family next Saturday."

Israel's top adviser on Lebanon, Uri Lubrani, and a Foreign Ministry deputy director, Yohanan Bein, went to Geneva during the weekend to discuss the hostage issue with Perez de Cuellar.

Israel seeks the return of seven of its soldiers missing in Lebanon; the kidnapers said in a letter that freedom for the remaining Western hostages in Lebanon hinges on the freedom of unspecified detainees worldwide — including Obeid. The letter from the kidnapers did not mention the Israeli, some of whom have been missing since 1982. Israel has said it is prepared to negotiate only if it obtains information on its men.

Perez de Cuellar said today that question is "one of the main problems, one of the main concerns."

"If I could solve this problem almost everything would be solved. That is why I attach great importance to the whereabouts of the seven Israelis who are missing," he said. "I am working on it very much."

The Times of London reported today that sources in the Palestinian group Hizbullah claimed Monday to hold two of the missing Israelis. The report, which could not be confirmed independently, said the group was willing to swap the men for Arabs held in Israel.

The newspaper quoted the sources as saying one missing Israeli was being held by the Palestine Liberation Organization. The sources told the Times the four other Israelis are believed to be dead, and their remains are held by Palestinian groups.

Weed that ate South gets its festival

Associated Press

YAZOO CITY, Miss. — It's known as the vine that ate the South.

Like a beheaded worm, kudzu — pronounced KUD-soo — keeps on coming. It engulfs trees, telephone poles and anything else in its path.

The peaky weed will be recognized by the 12,700 residents of Yazoo City (with an emphasis on the YAA) with a festival Friday and Saturday.

But not because it's a noble plant.

"Kudzu's sou' is good with 'Yazoo,' so we came up with 'Kudzu in Yazoo,'" said Sandra Ragland of the Chamber of Commerce, which organized the event.

The vine was introduced to the United States from Japan in 1876 to help control soil erosion. It did the job — and then some.

In Japan, powdered kudzu is used as a starch and gelling agent. About 85 percent of Japan's kudzu harvest is used to make desserts. It's in everything from noodles to kudzu lemonade.

In the South, kudzu has a reputation as low as the fire ant. In some areas, it's everywhere, taking over back yards with a greedy vengeance. It kills trees and covers telephone poles and power lines.

"Kudzu's supposed to grow three feet a day," said Kirk Harpole of the Yazoo County Farm Bureau. "But anything to put Yazoo City on the map."

The Kudzu in Yazoo festival will include arts and crafts exhibits and a softball game. But there won't be a single kudzu product featured.

The main attraction is a pig barbecue contest — Yazoo's Hawg Day Afternoon.

Ragland hoped a local restaurateur would whip up some kudzu dishes, but none had the time. So there won't be any deep-fried kudzu leaves, kudzu grain coffee or kudzuaide.

Realistic fashion doll introduced

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Better keep an eye over your molded plastic shoulder, Barbie.

A fashion doll of less-than-perfect proportions is being introduced to give little girls a more realistic alternative to busty, long-legged dolls like Barbie.

The "Happy To Be Me" doll introduced Monday has big feet and short legs. And though not exactly dumpy, she's a bit hipper and has a slightly thicker waistline.

The doll's proportions reflect someone whose measurements are 36-27-38 rather than 36-18-33, said Cathy Meredig, the doll's creator.

"The 'Happy To Be Me' doll represents the end of the unhealthy fairy tale which implies that you have to be thin and sexy with expensive clothes and cars to be happy," said Meredig, founder of High Self-Esteem Toys Corp.

"By age 5 or 6 girls are concerned about body image," said Meredig. "By puberty, girls are dieting and developing eating disorders to counteract womanhood's natural body changes."

What happened to summer?

Church Softball League readies for Fall season

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — What a short summer it's been.

It seems just like yesterday that outgoing Sanford Church Softball League President Doug Atkinson was presenting the traveling trophy to Spring Tournament Champion First United Methodist of Sanford after they held off Markham Woods Baptist of Lake Mary for the title.

But in all actuality that was two months ago and the time for the start of the Fall League is just around the corner.

Monday morning new league President John Townsend and the planning committee announced that the 1991 Fall League will start Saturday, September 14 and run for 10 weeks. Weather permitting the regular season will end November 23, a week before Thanksgiving.

A one-day, single elimination tournament will be held following the conclusion of the regular season at an additional cost to the teams.

Last year's Fall League was one of the most exciting in several seasons as four of the six teams in the "A" Division tied for first place and the "B" Division went down to the final game before a champion was decided.

Central Baptist won their first "A" title by defeating St. Stephen Catholic of Winter Springs 5-4 in nine innings. First Methodist and Church of God of Prophecy also were in the playoff.

In the "B" Division Holy Cross Lutheran of Lake Mary edged Neighborhood Alliance Church by a single game on the final day of the season.

The league will accept up to 16 teams for the fall with returning teams being given first consideration. The spring league had 13 teams so room for expansion exists. New teams will be considered on a first come, first served basis.

"We don't want to turn anyone away," said Townsend. "But with only one field and the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays coming up it's just not feasible to have more than 16 teams."

This season all games will be played on Saturday at Pinehurst Park on West 24th Street.

The league will play under modified American Softball Association (ASA) Church League rules (3 balls, two strikes; one home run per team) with ASA certified umpires supplied by the Sanford Officials Association.

Cost of the league will be $180 per team. This fee covers the cost of the umpires, softballs, scorekeepers and field maintenance materials.

All entry fees and rosters must be received no later than Thursday, September 5. No late entries will be accepted because time is needed to set up schedules.

Anyone interested in playing in the league who's church does not have a team may play for another church as long as they meet league attendance requirements.

A coaches meeting will be held at Central Baptist Church, Monday, September 9 at 7:30 p.m. The special league rules will be explained at this meeting as well as the distribution of schedules.

Make checks payable to Sanford Church Softball League and mail registration fee and rosters to: Sanford Church Softball League, 207 Dogwood Drive, Sanford, Florida, 32771.

For more information, call John Townsend at (407) 323-7163 or Dean Smith at (407) 574-8474.

Chris Byrnes (left) of First United Methodist of Sanford and Erik Luce of Sanford Central Baptist are two of the big hitters from the Sanford Church Softball League. Byrnes led his team to the Spring League title while Luce is a key member of last year's Fall League champions. The two young men are expected to be important members of the 1991 Fall League which will get underway Saturday, September 14 at Pinehurst Park.

Registration underway for Girls Fall Softball League

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is accepting registrations for the first Sanford Girls Fall Slowpitch Softball League which will start Saturday, September 14.

Jim Adams, Recreation Supervisor and League Director, announced that the department will offer two leagues, the Junior League, for girls ages 9-12, and the Senior League, for girls 13-16 years of age. This will be the first time that 16-year-olds have been allowed to play in the league.

Girls must turn nine before January 1 and may not turn 17 before January 1.

This is the first fall activity that the Sanford Recreation Department has offered for the girls in a number of years and should prove invaluable for the development of girls softball players.

The Junior League will provide a good foundation for girls wanting to learn to play the game.

The Senior League will be a good place for girls who are trying to sharpen their skills so they will be ready to try out for the high school softball team next spring. It will also be good for varsity players who are trying to stay in shape and want a little competition until the high school season rolls around next February.

The formation of the Fall League was made possible by the success of the Spring League which fielded eight teams, four in each age group.

The Fall League is further evidence of the growth of Sanford sports and the Recreation Department's wish to provide recreational activities for all age groups. Just last year the department was unable to attract enough players to fill two teams let alone eight.

Everyone is invited to register as anyone who signs up will make a team. Adams hopes enough players register so that even more teams can be added to the two leagues and that Sanford can eventually send All-Star teams to state competition again.

All games will be played on Saturday at the Fort Mellon Softball Field on Lake Monroe.

Registration fee is $8 per person and players should bring a birth certificate with them when they come to register. Players can register at the Downtown Youth Center, 300 North Park Avenue, First Floor, Sanford City Hall.

The league is still in need of coaches and additional sponsors for the teams.

For more information call 330-5697 during normal working hours Monday through Friday.

Couple's bliss began in ladies' lounge

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about crazy wedding nights? My mother and dad have repeated this story often. Dad had relied on close friends to reserve the bridal suite in the Mallory — a lovely old residential hotel in Portland, Ore. As it turned out, the friends didn't think it was necessary to make reservations, so they didn't bother. Well, as luck would have it, there was a plumbers' convention in town that week and, needless to say, every hotel was filled to capacity.

The manager of the Mallory was gracious enough to find them a place to sleep for the night. The first "room" they were offered was a closet under the stairs with no ventilation. The second option was the Women's Lounge located on the main floor of the hotel right off the lobby. They chose the lounge.

The management brought in two roll-away beds and hung a "CLOSED" sign on the door. Dad said he unscrewed hundreds of light bulbs from around the vanity mirrors because he couldn't find the light switch to turn them off.

My folks said there were about eight toilets in the room, and they never used the same one twice.

All night long women were knocking on their door — trying to get in to use the restroom. They didn't get much sleep, but they had a lot of laughs and made the best of the situation. Their union produced five children, and lasted until mother's death six months ago — one month short of their 44th anniversary.

Dad's name is Leo Kacena. Mother's name was June. I'm their daughter.

JOY SPRINGER BELLFLOWER, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I read with sorrow your reply to "Forever a Baby" who couldn't understand why parents worry so much. You said, "It's every parent's nightmare that their child will be badly hurt or killed in an automobile accident." How true.

We worried about our two sons. One was fairly cautious — the other was a speeder. We got them through high school and thought we were home free.

On April 8, our youngest son decided to ride to town with a friend who had been drinking. The friend drove too fast, and both were killed in a one-car accident.

To "Baby" I say, "Be glad you have parents who worry about you and have rules."

We will never be the same.

HEARTBROKEN IN TEXAS
DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Please accept my condolences on the tragic loss of your beloved son. Perhaps your letter will serve as a reminder to others to be cautious about those with whom they choose to ride.

I recall an impressive ad promoted by Mothers Against Drunk Drivers: "Good friends don't let friends drive drunk!"

DEAR ABBY: I think I'm in love with my husband's best friend. (I'll call him Rob.) I have known him almost as long as I've known my husband. Very often, the three of us will go to the movies, bowling parties, etc. When Rob is with us, I always have a wonderful time. He keeps me laughing, and he's interesting company. When I go out with my husband alone, it's usually dull and boring. It's getting to the point where I'd rather go out with Rob than my husband.

When I know that Rob is out on a date, I get upset and jealous. Some weekends when I'm tired, Rob will come over and fix dinner for me and my husband. He does a lot of nice things for us that my husband will not do.

I think about Rob constantly. This man has never said or done anything to suggest that our friendship is more than friendship. Am I in love with Rob? Or just bored with my husband?

IN DOUBT IN TEXAS
DEAR IN DOUBT: Perhaps a little of both. However, if you value your marriage, it's time to break up the threesome. You and your husband should investigate outings for couples that offer a refresher course in how to rejuvenate a stagnant marriage. (Check with your church or a local college.)

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 65-year-old father of six; the youngest left the nest two years ago at the age of 26. Although I was divorced almost 15 years ago, I've always provided a good home for all of them and helped with college, cars, etc.

I retired two years ago, hoping to travel and enjoy my "golden years." That's when my 34-year-old daughter, "Jenny," divorced her husband after seven years on welfare and moved into my home with her 10-year-old son. Now I find myself cooking, baby sitting and cleaning house for the two of them, and I resent it.

I have enough retirement income to support myself comfortably and take a few trips, but

I shouldn't have to support Jenny and Junior, much less have them live with me so I can't feel comfortable having an overnight guest or a dip in my pool "au naturel."

So, my question is, How do I get rid of them? I think I've paid my dues, and now it's my turn. What do you think?

WADIT IN BUNNY CALIF

DEAR WADIT: I think it's time you gathered the gumption to tell Jenny that you love her, but your golden years are beginning to tarnish. Tell her quite frankly that you can no longer have her and Junior as your houseguests, so she will have to make other living arrangements. (Offer to help her relocate, if necessary.)

The alternative is to chicken out and sacrifice your privacy. The choice is yours, Dad.

DEAR ABBY: I came across this very unusual obituary in The Seattle Times. I did not know the person, but I thought it might be something you would want to share with your readers:

"Rowena L. (Brown) Edelbrock passed away on June 12, 1991. She left us with these thoughts:

"When I quit this mortal shore
"And money 'round this earth no more
"Don't weep, don't sigh, don't grieve, don't sob;
"I may have struck a better job.

"Don't go and buy a large bouquet
"For which you'll find it hard to pay.
"Don't stand around me looking blue;
"I may be better off than you!"

Abby, I think this poem is a winner, don't you?

LORNA ECHOFIELD, MOUNTLAKE TERRACE,
WASH.

DEAR LORNA: It is, indeed, a winner. It is inevitable that one day we shall all "quit this mortal shore," and to do so as light-heartedly as Rowena did makes the journey less grim.

Overeating may be linked to divorce

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could mental abuse have anything to do with weight gain? My husband of 35 years is divorcing me because of incompatibility, and my weight has increased 40 pounds this past year.

DEAR READER: Some people respond to stressful situations by eating more. Of course, with the increase in calories, weight gain is sure to follow. If overeating is the cause of your unwanted extra pounds, you should put yourself on a diet. As a start, I suggest eliminating snack foods, soda and candy; satisfy your urge to munch by eating raw vegetables or fruit.

In the event that your weight problem is not due to excess calorie-consumption, you should address the issue with your family doctor. Perhaps a thyroid disorder or some other metabolic imbalance is to blame.

Regardless of the cause of your weight gain, you must be experiencing a lot of turmoil and emotional pain from your impending divorce. I believe you might be helped by counseling, which will help get your life back on track.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss flatulence and include any available remedies. I don't eat cabbage, beans, cucumbers and the like, but still am plagued with this condition. My ileitis has been dormant for 11 years, I've had a GI series and sigmoidoscopy that have both been negative except for a trace of diverticulosis. What can the answer to my problem be?

DEAR READER: Excessive intestinal gas can be a real problem for some people whose intestines seem to be unusually sensitive to this condition.

Assuming the obvious reasons for flatulence — such as peptic disease and inflammatory bowel disorders — have been checked out and discarded, you may be helped by following a few easy dietary rules.

Be careful when swallowing. Any air you gulp in will pass through to your colon and cause gas. Therefore, eat slowly and chew thoroughly. Bloating can result from rushing your meals.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Who is the oldest regular bridge player in the world? My guess is Julia Chadwick of England.

Mrs. Chadwick's first love was tennis, for which she won many trophies. She was introduced to bridge at her tennis club in 1916. But bridge stayed in the background until 1950, when she and her husband retired. She has been a regular duplicate player ever since, winning many tournaments.

Today's hand is her favorite. If you avoid glancing at the East-West cards, you can test yourself. Following South's strong jump shift, North's jump rebid of four spades indicated a solid suit. After that, Blackwood led to seven no-trump. West led the heart jack. Now it's up to you.

If the spades were running, there were 14 tricks. But Mrs.

Chadwick wanted to allow for the possibility that an opponent held jack-fourth. Before testing the spades, she played off her six red-suit winners, discarding a spade from the dummy, while both opponents followed throughout. Next came the spades. East's discard on the second round being a blow.

The clubs have to be brought in without loss. How were they lying? Let's see — East had one spade, at most four hearts and at most five diamonds. If he had the club king, it couldn't possibly be doubleton. There was only one chance: Mrs. Chadwick led a club to her ace, and West unwillingly contributed the king.

How old is Mrs. Chadwick? She was 105 at her last birthday, crediting her longevity to a daily tot of whiskey and four sessions of bridge a week.
