Aviators Continue Endurance Flight

MICHAEL FIELD, N. Y. Jan. 12.—(INS)—Charles Chamberlin and Roger Williams, circling above this field, 1000 feet in under a heavy sky, had been in the air twenty four hours at took off from Roosevelt Field, nearby, yesterday at that time, in an effort to break the endurance record now held in Germany. Chamberlin hopes to remain in the air from 55 to 60 hours. A slow drizzle was falling as the Bellanca monoplane circled over the field at 75 miles an hour, the most economical speed in point of fuel. The plane carried 471 gallons of gasoline when it started. At 10:30 Chamberlin dropped a note to A. R. ...

Sanford People Take Precautions To Avoid Black Cats On Friday The 13th

Today is Friday the Thirteenth, a case you had forgotten to remember it. It's the same as any other day, only different, any way,
the calendar makers have decreed that the thirteenth shall fall on Friday, black cats to the contrary notwithstanding.
It really isn't so bad as all that,
because President Coolidge has tried his trip outside the borders of the United States since he took the oath of office. He begins his mission of good will this afternoon, and all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't stop him just because it is the thirteenth and Friday at that. So if the President can stand it, mere man should try to make the most of it.
And while everyone is doing his best to make the day an ordinary one, it might be well just for continent's sake to give the black cat a wide berth. No certainly has reared bad luck on some occasions, for instance when he is conversing with his loved one on the back fence and you are trying to snatch fervid winks. Then, too, one can never tell when one of the ebony fellows may follow you home and deliver a new family on your doorstep.

Subscriptions Are Received To Swell Hall Fund To $33.33

The Herald's fund for Robert E. Hall, Lake Mary youth who recently lost his left arm in an accidental shooting, was swelled today by contributions totalling $18.13, bringing the subscriptions to $33.33. The list now stands:
Previously acknowledged $15.00
Fred T. Williams 5.00
Col. Theodore Roosevelt Camp
Feb. 13, 1922 3.33
J. S. W. V. and Auxiliary 33.33
Total $33.33
"The youngster is one of the most deplorable boys I have ever seen," said Mr. Williams in presenting his check for $5. Mr. Williams also brought in the donation of the Spanish War Veterans and Auxiliary members, who last night took up the collection on the occasion of their annual installation of officers.
Incidentally there are some interesting facts in connection with that subscription. It involves the
have always been a lucky number to the local camp. For this reason the collection was made $13.13 and it was authorized to be paid over to this paper on Friday the Thirteenth.
The number "13" has also figured conspicuously throughout the history of the Col. Theodore Roosevelt camp. Its charter roll contains 13 names, was formally organized on Friday, Feb. 13, 1922 and in the thirteenth camp in the state. The organization was also host to the thirteenth state encampment.

Robert Cobb Enters Race Today For Clerk Circuit Court

The race for clerk of circuit today became a three-cornered affair with the announcement of Robert A. Cobb, who is not the least superstitious about entering the campaign on Friday the Thirteenth.
Mr. Cobb has resided in Sanford 18 years coming here in 1910 from Live Oak where he was born and where he spent his early childhood.
After completing a high school course, Mr. Cobb entered the United States Navy and was in the service for 17 months during the world war.
In 1919, Mr. Cobb became connected with the Sanford Truck Growers Association and has been with this firm for nine years, the last six being in the capacity of secretary and treasurer.
Mr. Cobb is a member of the American Legion, the Lions Club and Chamber of Commerce, being prominently connected with the activities of each organization.
The candidate boasts the distinction of being the youngest man to announce for a county office thus far in the campaign. If elected in the Democratic primary to hold the office for nine months to fulfill the duties of his office to the best of his ability.

Walsh Relates Possible Reasons For The Trading Of Hornsby To The Braves

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A twenty-four hour inquiry, conducted on a thousand-mile front in six or eight of our principal cities, into the labyrinth of details surrounding the Hornsby matter today seems to have narrowed the explanations of that amazing business down to the following explanations:

1.—That a threatened break between Charley Stoneham and John McGraw, which would have resulted in McGraw stepping out and Hornsby stepping in as manager of the Giants, has been averted and that, in consequence, Hornsby had to be traded.

2.—That Hornsby's dominating personality resulted in disunion of the ball club and that McGraw had to trade him to restore harmony.

3.—That Hornsby's admitted flair for gambling on the races had resulted in other players with the club becoming addicts and that too many of them were interested in what happened in the third race at Pimlico to do the club any particular good.

Of course, the backstairs loungers, inspired by the memory of what had gone before in basketball, immediately saw in Hornsby's passing to Boston a possible hint of something beneath the surface of the deal, but, seemingly or at least as far as the eye could reach, all of the cards had been laid on the table. Last year, Hornsby wasn't wanted by a man for whom he just had won a world's championship. Today, he had been passed along by another, who, previous to 1927, had spent the greater part of his declining years wishing that Hornsby was with his ball club.

He would seem to be the kind of man, therefore, who is wanted by everybody else except the agent who happens to have him.

Taking the three explanations in the order of their plausibility, we can first consider the casual threat of a break between Stoneham and McGraw. It is a possibility that might have resulted in Hornsby becoming manager. The stand-out contention here involves the question of Stoneham's date to quit a post which Hornsby was to take over as manager. The report was that during the greater part of the summer and fall, Hornsby had been professing to his wife, who is more natural than that, that either both should deny the Hornsby rumor at its inception.

That would have fixed everything, it seems to me, and the Giants still might have had their star hitter and field leader.

But if the alleged break actually existed and now has been healed, what might the man most deeply concerned be expected to do? He would get hurriedly rid of the player's whose existence threatened his status.

Of course, the two remaining explanations may have been contributing factors in the trade. It was openly declared that Hornsby and Burleigh Grimes had engaged in a club house brawl last summer. In a statement from Chicago, Freddy Lindstrom not only names Grimes as no friend of Hornsby's but also himself and Eddie Bush. In consequence, if one man is having trouble with at least three others, the natural conclusion to be reached by any manager is that it is exactly three times as easy to get rid of one man as it is the three others.

Lindstrom also indicated that there were pro-Hornsby and anti-Hornsby elements on the club. The former, in its support of the star, might have carried its admiration all the way to the third race at Pimlico or what-had-they. The Giants, therefore, may have decided that they would do well to part company with the source of this aloof inspiration, merely to keep the boys' minds off the race track and on the ball field.

Brands As Lie Declaration Of Charles Stoneham That He Had Sought To Jeopardize Position Of Johnny McGraw

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12.—(INS)—Branding as absolute lies, the allegations of President Charles Stoneham, that he had at any time sought to undermine John J. McGraw and gain the management of the New York Giant, Rogers Hornsby, the heavy-socking second-sacker traded Tuesday night by that club to the lively Boston Braves, today declared emphatically that he still was in a daze over the whole transaction.

Stoneham, principal owner of the Giant, yesterday was quoted as saying Hornsby had been turned over to the Braves for catcher Frank Hogan, a comparatively rookie and Jimmy Welsh, an average outfielder, to "avoid future conflict in the management of the Giants."

Some folks inclined to the belief that Hornsby's tendency to bet on horse races hastened his departure from Manhattan. Others had a hunch that he had been involved on ball games. Then a lot of folks suspected that he had been a trouble-maker on the club, and inclined to "ride" his teammates.

"Ever since the news broke on Tuesday night I have been swamped with telephone calls and telegrams from all parts of the country, my newspaper friends and fans, all asking me what it is all about. I have a stack of Bibles before me and I would swear a holy oath that I am at a loss to explain," Hornsby said today.

It was suggested to the right that possibly he had been consigned to Boston with a view of bolstering up attendance at games by the snubbed Braves field, one of the finest parks in the world. The demon fence buster was disinclined to talk on this subject.

Immigrants Must Answer Questions Of Foolish Nature

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(INS)—Should a prospective immigrant to the United States know why a chicken crosses the road? Rep. Celler (D., N. Y.), today was "engaged" in a tilt with immigration and health service officials over questions put to would-be immigrants when they are examined by consular agents abroad.

Here are some of the questions which Celler says an immigrant must answer before he gets a passport visa and a place in his country's quota: "How many more feathers has a goose than a turkey? "What does a mouse do when the cat's away? "How does a rabbit run? "What is the difference between a fly and a butterfly? "Which is heavier, a pound of corn or a pound of feathers? "How many teeth has a crow? "How long is a rope."

"While these questions, the health service explains, are directed in the nature of a psychopathic examination, I contend that it is an unfair way of determining an immigrant's mentality," said Celler.

Police Seek Three In Connection With Recent Kidnapping

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 12.—(INS)—Two men and a woman were being held today by New Orleans police on charges of kidnapping and holding for ransom two Russians, whom the men are alleged to have imprisoned in a rooming house after smuggling them into the United States from Cuba.

Additional charges of violating the anti-smuggling laws are expected to be filed against the trio by federal immigration inspectors. Those held without bond are Eva Gray, 22; Aurelio Alvarez, 33; and Julian Prado, 48.

The two aliens, Laile Kravetz, 22, and Abraham Wyaskralsky, 33, were discovered by police on information furnished them by Benjamin Hyman of Detroit, Mich., an uncle of Kravetz, from whom the alleged kidnapers demanded a $300 ransom for his nephew. Kravetz and Wyaskralsky alleged that they paid the two men arrested $50 apiece to smuggle them into New Orleans from Havana. They have been held prisoners since Jan. 5.

- THE HERALD'S PROGRAM: Economy in city and county administration; Economy water rates to Jacksonville; Construction of St. Johns Inland River Canal; Investigation of possible irrigation of building program—houses, hotels, apartment houses; Community Chest; Completion of city beautification program; A new and modern hospital.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY: GOD'S PECULIAR KNOWLEDGE—O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprisings; thou understandest my thought afar off.—Psalm 139:1,2. PRAYER—We thank Thee, O our Lord, that there is not a thought in our mind but Thou knowest.

THE SOUTH: I've lived in Ohio and Kansas, I've lived in Wisconsin and Maine, From coast to coast I've traveled, But to locate seemed in vain. I've heard of the lovely Savannah, Of Florida's matchless beach, I've sailed the Atlantic ocean, And heard of the Georgia peach. So I'm going South and see it, And taste of the Paradise there, Among the pines and cotton, There is freedom from every care. Where eyes shine bright with laughter, And the ring of dancing feet, Make life a joy forever, So I want to go South to a treat.

Yes, I want to go South and be happy, I want to go there and meet Some lovely maidens who live there, For the girls in the South are sweet. —L. B. Terre Haute, Ind. "Caucious Cal" hasn't anything on us. We've eaten celery from the Rumbley Brothers farm too. It is said to be quite an impossibility for two musicians to live together in harmony. —Dothan Eagle. Don't be too good a Samaritan and give strangers a lift on the road. Too often they turn out to be bandits. To some fellows, the largest known diamond is the ace. —Bradford Herald. But to most of us, the largest known diamond is our municipal ball park. Wilbur says the American navy is too small, that we need $725,000,000 to develop it properly. It isn't that navy that's too small; it's the men at the head of it. Lady (to trusty): "Are you sure you have time to show me through the penitentiary?" Trusty: "Yes, madam. I have ninety-nine years." —St. Augustine Record. Eight thousand persons attended the first running of the dogs at the Elucayne Kennel Club, and according to the dispatches from Miami there was no betting. Not even a little bookmaking on the side? A fortune-teller predicts that 1928 will be a great year of misfortune, evidently overlooking the fact that 800 radio broadcasting stations will be closed during the year. —Southern Lumberman. Al Capone has called upon the chief of police in Miami and promised to be a good boy as long as he is in that city. In Los Angeles he made the same proposition, but he was run out of there just the same. Bandino's coins show a rebel cutting the head off an American Marine. When General Lejeune reaches Nicaragua and starts "investigating," somebody else's head will come off and it won't be a Marine's. Clem Shaver wanted to censor the speeches of everyone at the Jackson Day dinner last night in order to avoid the possibility of a row. If that is the only way the Democratic party can get together, it might as well disband. Centenarians: (Dedicated to certain anglers) The honest hen unshred goes, For praise she'll really beg, The way the rooster struts and crows, You'd think he laid the egg!

"An Eye For An Eye"

Incredible as it may seem to us now, there was a time in England when one hundred and sixty offenses against the law were punishable by death. The early history of Massachusetts reveals twelve crimes against society which might be expected to result in hanging. As civilization has progressed, and we have come to realize that there is such a thing as murder by the state as well as by the individual, capital punishment has been limited in England to four offenses and in this country, in most states, to two.

In several states we find that the penalty of death has been abandoned entirely, convicted criminals of the worst type being punished by life imprisonment. This is the practice in Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Maine and Kansas. A number of foreign countries, notably Holland, Rumania, and Portugal and to a large extent Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, have also given up capital punishment.

Whether the exaction of the death penalty for serious offenses is the most efficacious means of deterring crime is of course a debatable question. We would never for one minute hold that our views are irrefutable. Mere logic compels us to believe, however, that the continual setting of a bad example by the state for criminals to follow does not act as a sedative for violence. It is difficult for the state to say that "it is wrong for you to kill but right that I should," and be understood.

Plato, ancient Greek philosopher, in his Gorgias, says: "Everyone who undergoes punishment, if that punishment is justly inflicted, ought to be made better thereby and profit by it, or serve as an example to the rest of mankind, that others, seeing the sufferings he endures, may be brought by fear to amendment of life."

The people of the United States are today being treated to the gruesome details of last night's sordid affair in Sing Sing prison. A man and a woman were there executed for the murder of the woman's husband. If ever a crime in the history of this country merited capital punishment, this one may well be pointed to as a fine example. We have only the highest commendation for the despatch with which the courts functioned and the firmness with which Governor Smith withstood attempts to gain a commutation of sentence.

Yet we doubt if these two depraved creatures have been made to profit by their execution, neither do we believe that society itself, now that it has rid itself of two more murderers and fed itself upon all the ghastly accounts, which the newspapers, out of concession to the demands of the public, would print, has benefited thereby. We hold that life imprisonment would have served as a sufficient protection to society, would have set a better example, tending to lift from the mire rather than drag down, would have through the prolonged activity of a remorseless conscience, resulted in greater punishment to the culprits, and at the same time would have offered them some opportunity to atone for their crime.

While we concur in the prompt and thorough carrying out of the laws as they stand, we believe that the progress of civilization can go on only through the amending of such laws as tend to retard it. There will be in a few days, the despatches say, a bill introduced into the legislature of New York to abandon capital punishment. We should like to see such a bill introduced into our own legislature.

Facts About Florida

Under the caption, "Do You Know That —," the Florida State News furnishes some interesting facts concerning Florida that are well worth reading. Some of them are familiar to most of us, but few persons in this state, if any, are acquainted with all of the facts that are given. The Herald passes them on to its readers for their perusal.

James Gadsden, Andrew Jackson's adjutant, the man who negotiated the treaty with Mexico, and for whom the Gadsden Purchase and Gadsden County were named, was the first Federal Judge in West Florida.

The father of Prince Archille Murat, who lies buried in a cemetery at Tallahassee, was a King of Greece.

Pimms Green, a negro, bodyguard for General Whitefield during the Civil War, and who served tea to General Stonewall Jackson, the great Confederate leader, after the General was wounded, was a native of Jefferson County.

Diatomite, a rare mineral being produced in large quantities in Lake County, is recovered from the bed of a lake near Clermont with dredges.

Micanopy bears the name of one of the most active Seminole chieftains in the Indian War of 1835.

The Presbyterian Church at Monticello was built a hundred years ago of brick transported to Florida from Virginia by ox teams.

Governor John W. Martin is a native of Marion County.

The twin community of River Junction and Chatta-hochee has two postoffices.

The largest satsuma orange grove in the world is near Round Lake, in Jackson County. It covers 1,000 acres.

Wewahitchka, Gulf County, Bristol, Liberty County, and Crawfordville, Wakulla County, are the only ones of the sixty-seven county seats without a railroad.

Florida ships hundreds of tons of Spanish moss which is utilized in the manufacture of mattresses and automobile cushions. Wewahitchka, is the center of the industry.

The Federal Bureau of Fisheries is authority for the statement that the largest big-mouth black bass in the United States are found in Lake Okeechobee.

Millions of pencils used in Europe are made of cedar shipped to Germany from Florida. The center of the state's cedar industry is Crystal River, in Citrus County.

Port Tampa was the principal point of embarkation for American troops during the Spanish-American War.

THROUGH THE WINDOWS of bootlegging, murder, general crime, the Scranton Sun (W. H. Hallstead, II, publisher) has been for some months tossing editorial bombs. Nearby shanty towns were special targets for attack. Wide-awake criminals and sleepy municipal destroyers were flayed valiantly. Criminals found paths of their depravity hindered. Sixteen sticks of dynamite went off at the back of the Sun office. New Year's Eve celebrants in the explosion area were bruised, cut by flying glass. The shop was shaken; partly shattered. Police called it crime fighting against the Sun's crusade. —Time.

THE AVERAGE CITIZEN must be a good citizen, if our republics are to succeed. The stream will not permanently rise higher than the main source; and the main source of national power and national greatness is found in the average citizenship of the nation. Therefore, it behooves us to do our best to see that the standard of the average citizen is kept high.—THEODORE ROOSEVELT

As Brisbane Sees It

Two Hundred Miles of Coast. Bring Money and Brains. Will They Ghost Meet? Lives Are Cheap.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Jan. 13. Among our 48 states, California stands fifth in wealth, climate and scenery, as it Los Angeles editor remarks, not included. A 250-mile motor trip from San Simeon, south to Ventura before noon today, convinced this writer, and would convince anyone, that California, in the future, will have wealth greater than the present total wealth of the United States.

THE SUN, almost uncomfortably hot shines on fields covered with deep, green new grass and clover. Thousands of cows, in the dairy district north of San Luis Obispo, seem almost bored with their luxury, as they stand knee deep in rich pasture.

Part of the time, the wide concrete road runs close to the ocean, more of it runs through fertile valleys, round green high hills on either side providing unlimited grazing lands.

WHERE The velvet green carpet is stripped off on hill sides the earth below is black as soot, rich as Texas black wax land, and with "spring" crops well advanced.

There is wealth of all kinds in this land, its mines, oil wells, and water power. But the great wealth, permanent, inexhaustible, is in the soil.

A RUN of a little more than 200 miles takes you to Ventura, where hundreds of men are working their wells out in the ocean, and running temporary oil pipe lines along the road side, dozens of welders uniting the pipe joints with gaseous fire, fed from tanks.

VENTURE COUNTY holds hundreds of millions of barrels of oil. Only the beginning of that wealth has been developed. But the wise citizens of Ventura County seek to develop industries, and tell you that $8,000,000 worth of manufactured articles were produced in the county last year.

CALIFORNIA IS not recommended to the man without money, who has made his failure elsewhere. But the man with some money, plenty of energy and intelligence, who understands manufacturing will find a good field here.

IN THE excellent Santa Barbara Press you read these headlines: "Second Marine Plane Crashes in Nicaragua, Was Obsolete Craft." You read also in the Los Angeles Herald, just arrived with late news, that Secretary Wilbur, before the house naval affairs committee today, urged the importance of a great navy, and the spending of $700,000,000 at least.

WE NEED a big navy to impress other countries, although in real war, we should have to hide it away from submarines and airplanes. But what about a few fighting planes not obsolete? Can no the earth's richest country provide safe fighting machinery for its fighting men?

What do Secretary Wilbur and the President think of sending men up in obsolete planes that crush and risk men's lives? Is there any excuse for that? What impression does it make on other countries? Even if we can afford our men's lives more easily than we can afford to be despised by our enemies.

A SUGGESTION MISUNDERSTOOD WATERBURY REPUBLICAN

President Coolidge's muddled state of mind with respect to further efforts, in behalf of world peace is revealed by his reaction to the suggestion, made Monday by 432 prominent people representing 47 of the states, that he re-open discussion of the reservations set up by the Senate as a condition of the adherence of the United States to the World Court.

The President's comment upon the suggestion discloses that he, and some of his senatorial advisors, quite failed to grasp the import of the suggestion. Both the President and the senators with whom he has conferred seem to have gained the impression that the suggestion contemplates a modification of the position taken by the Senate. That is not so. The letter from the 432 citizens made it plain that only the resumption of negotiations with a view to clearing away misunderstanding of the Senate's position is desired.

It is not suggested that the wording of the reservations be altered or that the ambiguous fifth reservation be given a radical interpretation unacceptable to the Senate. It is simply proposed that the President be assured that the United States understands his reservation in its reasonable, traditional meaning, with the hope that they will thereupon accept the reservations in their entirety and so make it possible for the President to have the signature of the United States affixed to the protocol of signature of the court. It would be an insult to the intelligence of the Senate to suggest that the great majority of its members do not themselves understand the reservation in the sense in which it is proposed the President should define it.

The letter from the 432 citizens has been transmitted to the State Department. The President's attitude suggests that it will be buried there. But we may hope that Secy. Kellogg and his associates may take a clearer view of the letter's meaning and influence the President.

Consider the diplodocus THE diplodocus was the most gigantic Animal that ever lived. It was eighty-five feet long and weighed scores of tons. Yet despite its tremendous bulk it had a brain the size of an English walnut. Millions of years ago the diplodocus flourished. But when conditions changed, it was unable to adapt itself to a new existence. Other animals less strong, but more intelligent, invaded its domain. And so, with the unceasing march of progress, its race died out and vanished. It is just as necessary today as it was in the Upper Jurassic period to keep abreast of the times. Conditions are changing under our very eyes. New inventions, new products are constantly being brought forward to make life easier and happier. Billie Dove Stars In Feature Picture At Milane Theater

The loveliest of stars, Billie Dove, contrasted with a villainous-appearing collection of pirates, slavers, the riff-raff of the Gulf, will be seen with Gilbert Roland and Noah Beery in "The Love Mart," which comes to the Milane Theatre today.

This George Fitzmaurice production for First National Pictures offers a brilliant and romantic story of the days when the country was young and yet old in traditions.

Gilbert Roland plays the masculine lead as Victor Jallot, gentleman and master of fencing. Noah Beery is the villainous Capt. Remy, slave-runner, Armand Kalliz, who was recently seen in another Billie Dove picture, "The Stolen Bride," appears in this film as a Creole dandy. Emile Chautaud, eminent actor and former director; Boris Karloff, Andre Lanoy, Raymond Turner and others, are in the fine supporting cast.

The picture is by Benjamin Glazer and was based on Edward Childs Carpenter's "The Code of Victor Jallot."

For sheer drama, colorful entertainment and general picture-giveness, this is one of the best films of the season.

GUEST OF HONOR
Mrs. Jack Lightner was the guest of honor at a most delightful surprise party tendered her Wednesday evening by a number of her friends at her home 1128 East Seventh Street, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. "Near-sighted Policies Stunt National Development"

says The Saturday Evening Post

"Near-sighted policies which are focused on the 1926 dime and cannot perceive the 1936 gold piece should no longer be permitted to stunt the splendid national development that we have the right to expect."

Man Who Would Take Judd Gray's Place For $1000, Killed By Friend

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 13. (INS)—"For $1000 I would take Judd Gray's place." Three hours after uttering this statement during a poker game early today in a fashionable downtown hotel, Marcus Thompson, 41, stone cutter, lay dead, shot by Guy Swain, 61, a friend.

A friendly poker game had kept Thompson, Swain and two other men playing until after midnight. "For one thousand dollars I would take Judd Gray's place," suddenly remarked Thompson.

"For $250 I would kill you as dead as Judd," responded another player. Thompson reached into his pocket, tossed the other speaker a pistol and $250 in cash. "Do it," snapped Thompson. Swain grabbed the pistol to prevent the "bluff" from being carried out.

Thompson attacked Swain, knocking him down. Swain fired from the floor and Thompson fell. Swain fired four more times at the prostrate form of Thompson. All the bullets took effect. Before Thompson died early today he was asked why he made the remark about Judd Gray. Thompson replied, "I have nothing to live for." Thompson's home is in Holly Springs, Miss. There was no ill feeling between Thompson and Swain and none of the other four men had been drinking, said police. Swain is held in jail.

wants, no Democrat is going to get what he wants."

The Missourian was the last speaker. Either by accident or design, he was not called upon until nearly three o'clock this morning, after everyone else had spoken. But when he got the floor he drove sleep from the heavy eyes of the diners, and aroused their raptures of enthusiasm as he vividly portrayed the record of the Harding and Coolidge administrations.
