Neighbors remain vigilant over drug trade

By VICKI DOSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - An undercover operation in the Lockhart community brought down a single drug dealing enterprise, but the neighbors are watching carefully to see how long a respite they have from illegal drug sales in their midst.

Neighbors, including John Curry, stood up more than two years ago and announced they had stood by long enough. They were not going to allow the drug trade, which had begun to take over their community, to stay.

"They were standing right on the street selling and doing the drugs." Curry said. "Kids we've known since they was small, we see them out there selling drugs instead of doing what they

Curry said drugs have been the most successful business enterprise in that neighborhood in years and the neighbors wanted to change that.

Taking on the dealers or users head on could be dangerous. It is also, largely, an ineffective way to fight the criminal element.

So, they organized. They marched, shouting their stand against drugs for all to hear. And they called the Seminole County sheriff's office every time they saw drug dealers or potential buyers or users hanging out on the street

"The best source of information for us is the people in the neighborhood," Lt. Jack Cash of the City-County Investigative Bureau (CCIB), who headed the undercover operation that resulted in eight arrests last week, said.

Neighbors had been complaining about activities in an unlicensed pool hall at 1802 Southwest Road. CCIB agents began a three month covert operation during which they were able to videotape drug transactions in and around the See Druge, Page 7A

Seminole girls make Christmas special

By KELLIE WERNER Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - While students all over the county are settling into their Christmas breaks, the girls on the Seminole High School varsity basketball team are making Christmas a little more special for members of the community

Sylvester Wynn, the first year head coach of the team, and his girls recently took a large Christmas card to the residents of the Good Samaritan Retirement Home and spent the evening with them.

Februa Henderson, a member of the team, said, "Everyone should get involved in the community. We all need to have a heart and care about those who are less fortunate than us-We should all be thankful for what we have and give to those who may not have as much

Bikes for all girls and boys

SANFORD - By now just about everyone in town is aware of the fact Sanford's firefighters do even more than save lives and put out fires.

They're also Santa's best bteyele repatrers.

Once again, a hundred or more boys and girls will be receiving handsome bikes for Christmas because of the generosity of the Sanford Fire Department and the Sanford

Kiwanis Club. Throughout the year folks have brought bikes and parts of bikes to the main fire station on French Avenue, where Sanford's good firefighters worked during their regular shifts to have the bikes rolling for Christmas. Christmas bikes for underprivileged children is a pet prolect of former Sanford City Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, who has not forgotten how the Kiwania Club in his home town of Minneola. Fla., bought him a bike during the Depression years.

A Kiwania member for 43 years, McClanahan has helped put a thousand or more youngsters on bikes through his efforts. He gives the credit to Sanford's firefighters, who have been special Santa helpers the past four years. "Without them.

.ake Mary grappies with what to charge landowners for new paving and drainage

By NICK PFEIFAUP Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - It took a long time. The proposal for paving and drainage projects in Lake Mary took several years to design. It took months and months of study and work. Thursday night, it took almost two hours to discuss.

And it still isn't over. It may take at least another month.

Following studies by the city. the city attorney, and engineering by Dyer, Riddle, Mills & Precourt (DRMP), the assessments to be levied against iand-owning citizens with which to pay for the latest phase in the project was believed to be set.

But in the past, each time a resolution regarding the matter was prepared and brought up for a commission vote, there was some stall which prevented it from passage.

Thursday night it was deja yous. The third resolution on the matter was scheduled for a public hearing. It pertained to Zone-8, which includes portions of Washington Avenue, Van-Buren Avenue, Fifth Street, and Fourth Street.

As the hearing began, Michelle Stevens, with DRMP, explained the methodology by which the assessments were made. She said the determination was made through Equivalent Traffic Units (ETUs), based on expected paved roadway traffic once the project is completed. She had determined an ETU would be equal to an assessment of $2,387,17. The charges would be made against owners of property abutting the streets where paving and drainage projects are to be made.

Of the 63 separate parcels, it was determined that all but 10 parcels would be rated at 1 ETU. and charged no more than $2,387.17.

City Manager John Litton explained that a vote of approval on the assessment level would 🗆 See Assess, Page 5A

Lake Mary, county OK economic incentive money

LAKE MARY — Q.E. Ceptial Services, a ne-ternal health and life mearance company, has sen granted $190,000 economic incentive package. Fifty percent of the money was granted by Sentinole County on Dec. 10. The remainder was approved by the Lake Mary city commission Thursday night.

Creecent Resources, a subsidiary of Duke Power Company, is in the process of purchasing approximately 40 acres in Primera. Crescent Resources intends to build several high-technology office buildings. The first is a six story 150,000 square fost office building which would be leased to G.E. Capital Services. to G.E. Capital Services.

The capital investment for this building would be approximately $17.2 million.

In addition, Q.E. is proposing to lease half of the six story 150,000 square foot office building to be constructed at Primera for its corporate headquarters, with the option to lease more space.

The new building would add 100 new jobs with an annual average salary of $35,000 and relocate approximately 240 people from its present location in Makiand.

The Lake Mary city staff has indicated the city could expect a reasonable return on the in vestment in less than two years after the property is placed on the county tax roll.

Now that it has been approved by both gov ernment bodies, the money for the scenesic incentive will come from Seminole County. The city would then reimburse the county for its share over a five year period beginning in October

When the request was brought up for a vote late in Thursday's city commission meeting, approval was granted, but on a three to two vote. Commissioners Sheila Sawyer and George Duryea voted against the request. The swing vote in favor of the package was made by newly elected commissioner Thom Greene.

Where county stands in agriculture

By Med PPSIPAU Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, Beb Crawford, Com-missioner, has released the 1996 Florida Agricultural Pacta publication. It is a breakout of agricultural products in the state, and in many cases, by county.

Seminole County was once known statewide and in many parts of the nation as one of the leading agricultural counties, especially when it came to crops. Cattle were also found grazing in many fields in the area.

Sanford was known as the "Celery Capital of the World" until a freeze wiped out not only the celery, but the ground's ability to grow it in future decades.

Now. Agriculture Secretary Crawford's latest figures indicate the county is heading more toward a residential area.

Crawford said Florida is the ninth leading agricultural state in the nation with annual farm cash receipts totaling nearly $6 billion. It also provides farm employment for more than 80,000 people a month, and generates over $18 billion in farm-related economic activity. He added that the state's 39,000 commercial farmers are the catalyst in an economic chain that stretches from the farm date to the state's supermarkets, with an impact of nearly $45 billion annually.

Much of the publication deals with where Florida stands in comparison with the nation, and at time with other countries of the world.

In many cases however, the farming is broken down by county. The following is a representation of information pertaining strictly to Seminole County

OCITRUS PRODUCTION -Seminole is listed as 24th out of 24 counties with over 1,000 acres devoted to citrus produc-tion. It is listed as 1,462 acres with 145,800 trees and a production of 274,000 boxes. OGRAPEFRUIT - While the county is 24th (above), there wa

Palm Beach county was by far the highest, recording a total of $1.17 million, almost 8800,000 over second rated Polk County

OAREA - Agriculture department figures show Seminole County has 30.2 per-cent of the total land dedicated to agriculture of some type. There were 362 farms listed. A reported 9,542 acres are crop and improved pasture and crop land, 50,100 acres in range and OBERF CATTLE - Seminole County was tied with Clay and Escambia counties for the total beef cattle, at 8,000 reported. Seminole reported 6,000 beef cattle however, which was more than double the combined amount of the other two counties, which had their listings classified as "calves and

Let citizens participate

Citizens who have attempted to bring a matter up for discussion and/or consideration before their city commissions often find themselves thwarted because of the length of time they have to wait.

Such is generally not the case in Lake Mary

Such is generally not the case in Lake Mary and a few other cities, where public participation is allowed early in the evening.

In Sanford however, the words "public participation" do not even appear as an itemised part of the agenda.

People can't speak at workshop sessions unless they request the opportunity well in advance. Then, at the regular meetings, they must sit through what they probably consider as some of the most boring lineup of items possible, before they are allowed to speak.

possible, before they are allowed to speak.

Even then, when the call goes out, "anyone else wish to speak?" Unless people are fast enough, the closing gavel will sound before anything can be brought up. That's the way it has been in Sanford for many years.

After Monday night's meeting, three of the five persons on the Sanford City Commission will be replaced. The official swearing in of a new mayor and two new commissioners will be held in January.

As one of the first orders of business for the new commission, we suggest including an official "citisen participation" segment in the agenda, and move it close to the beginning of the meeting.

In this way, they will be allowing the citizens to go to city hall, speak their piece, and not have to wait for any lengthy meeting to conclude before they can attempt to be

Naturally, the public participation should be only for those items not listed on the agenda. Most of the time, items on the agenda are opened for public hearings, offering the opportunities for people to speak for as well as against a proposal.

But for items not on the agenda, the people must be given the opportunity to speak. It's the only way we see that city leadership can be aware of what the PEOPLE think, and not just what is given them by members of the

We used Lake Mary as an example. Unfortunately, on many occasions, citizens want to use the public participation as a grand-stand, and don't really present anything which could immediately be considered as

It also has a tendency to make the meeting somewhat longer.

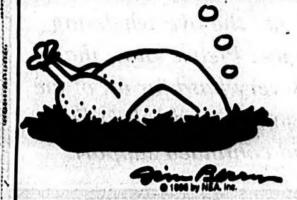

But most of Sanford city commission meetings have lasted less than 30 minutes in the past months. One even concluded in seven minutes. We don't believe this is the way a commission should treat the public that is responsible for their election to office.

Let's let the people speak out, and let's let them speak early in the meeting. Let us bring an end to what is an apparent belief that if we keep people sitting and waiting for a long period of time, they will simply go away.

The 90's, for all its apparent shortcomings, may be recalled in the future as a decade of activism. We have experienced in these last six years the rise of citisen militias, unibombers. Space Jams and all types of lunacy.

bombers. Space Jams and all types of lunacy. It is as if anyone with a pet peeve has come out of the closet, a universal outing on the frings, that has driven rational debate underground. Worse yet, it seems that beyond legitimizing the frings, we have embraced or become inoculated to it, to the extend that radical ideas course through the body politic, like a virus unchecked, weakening us in ways we have yet to realize. The restlessness of the times is reflected in Washington. Many of the proposals, to amend the Constitution, to abolish Federal agencies, which were easily dismissed as frings in the past, ring respectable today. It is with great unease that I witness proposal after proposal that would have been denounced as Orwellian, a scant 10 years ago are accepted as mainstream today, as our individual rights and freedoms, the essence of the American Democracy, evolved into something unknown, something Dick Nixon could not have something Dick Nixon could not have dreamed of. The activism of the nineties insidious in nature and form, may lead to changes for more profound than any dreamed up in the substance enhanced sixtles. I guess the revolution really is not going to be televised.

Restlesaness is reflected in our State Legislature. as we legislate and litigate, in areas that are nothing short of radical. The idea of the state of Florida auing the tobacco industry, to recoup medicaid expenditures on individuals who committed a volitional act, is radical. In one I watched the other day, our sister states that a child was removed from a parent, and the parent was put on probation for constantly delivering a child to school late.

I see Government, and I see Big Brother, taking children, regulating conduct and the consequences thereof, acting in a fashion, that would not have been accepted 10 years ago.

We have criminalized all conduct, and behaviors, and have lost the sense of privacy essential to the maintenance of a free society. For all the talk of reducing government, we have experienced an increase of government intrusion into our lives at every level, and we march ever closer to a police state. Do we really want to have a society where government legislates every minute encounter and aspect of life for the common good? Did we not just spend fifty years and hundreds of billions of dollars defeating the type of government that we are strangely beginning to emulate?

As we prepare for this new year, it is important that we review these calls to radicalism with restraint. Many things, which sound good as a proposal, are unworkable in fact. We should exercise particular restraint when tinkering with the Constitution under which we are governed. Doing something for the simple sake of being able to say you have done something, is a poor substitute for the statesmanship that we should demand from our elected officials. We should not drift too far either to the right or the left, but exercise extreme caution when doing things that fundamentally change the way we relate to our government. Restleasness as an Restleasness as an our government. environment in which we exist as a nation does not bode well for our collective future. Perhaps we should take a time out, until the year 2000, before we do real damage in the

There have been several songs recorded over the years titled "if Everyday Were Christmas." The songs point out the spirit of Christmas, and the attitude of people during the Christmas season. The main message is how wonderful it would be if that spirit carried on throughout the year. When you think about it, it could.

There's a wonderful Christmas song that you all know called "Winter Wonderland." I walked in that lane and I, and my brothers. and cousins played there. It is a lane about half a mile long leading up to a farm house on a hill called Sugar Hill. Our family seems to have always been there, long before the Civil War and until now.

I remember reading letters from Little Washington written during the Civil War and sent back home with instructions regarding the farm. We were the Sheriff, Judge, Justice of the Peace and built the church. Following generations owned the ice cream shop, the movie theater, and the bar. The next generation designed and built the factory, because there were no jobs.

All of that is gone now, except the lake and the farm house. It is still beautiful, and a real wonderland in the winter. It is probably snowing now.

I once went back for a funeral. I mentioned to the gentlemen next to me that the church was very full.

He looked at me in a puzzled way and said. These people are all your relatives, and so am 1.

Think about this ...

We have a new year ahead of us. There are many problems to solve. We have a chance to step back for a few weeks and appraise this past year and all that has taken place. If we wanted, the new year could be different. Think about it.

Think about this... I do not know about you, but I still have some Christmas shopping to do! I'll close this week by saying we all wish you a very wonderful holiday season! Please be sure to spend as much time with your families as possible. Take the time and make the effort to do all that you can to make this a safe Christmas. Most of all, share with others less fortunate.

to a school setting.
"They need to understand that there are people around them who are not as fortunate and could use some help. Everyone should give if they can and helping out in the community only serves to benefit all of us.

Since earning his diploma. Wynn has worked with children. He has taught at the elementary level and now teaches sports medicine, personal fitness, and basketball at the high school level in addition to coaching. He said that by far his most rewarding job to date was working with handicapped kide. Wynn said, "I worked with kids who made great achievements by doing the simplest tasks, things we do every day without even thinking about it. That's when I really realised what we take for granted. I try to see that on to my girls. If I see them taking something for granted, I want to take it away from them for awhile, let them see what it's like to be without. That's how you learn to appreciate something. In addition to all of the other lessons that Wynn teaches his athletes, he believes that the most important is the value of education. "I teach them that academics come first. I love kids and I hate to see them throw away their academics. Playing backetball is a privilege. You can't make it solely on your skills anymore. either. The first questions that college recruiters ask are 'what are her SAT scores?' and 'what's her GPA?

'They also need to know that if they want to get anywhere, education is the way. Therefore, my job is to make sure they have a basic foundation to take with them to college. If I can have one child, help one child to improve by making a life for herself, that means more to me than sending 500 students to college who can't cope."

Wynn believes that while he can help his players with academics and sportsmanship. social skills come with age and maturity. But he also believes that it's never too early to teach children to have pride in their community. He tries to show by example how important it is for his students to care about those around them and treat everyone like they want to be treated.

'One day these kids are going to be old. Hopefully this visit to the Good Samaritan will show them that there are people in our community who need us. I want? them to understand that they aren't always going to have their parenta, teachers, and coaches and they just might need some help from their community some day. If everyone could learn these lessons, we would have great communities for these kids to raise their own children in.

Wynn believes that the lessons he teaches his players are more important than winning. However, if he continues to care and promote that caring in his students, the community can't lose.

be for that amount, would not be increased, and may even be lowered if it were possible through lower costs than expected in the project.

After the commissioners approved the assessment amount per ETU, the next step was to adjourn the commission meeting and reconvene as the Board of Adjustment during which time objections would be heard.

Linda Doxtater, owner of parcel 97 was the first to approach the board. She explained that while there is more than one lot on her property, the in-tention is to build only one house. She asked the commission (acting as the board) to re-evaluate the assessment, and charge her for only one ETU. rather than two as had been

Wilson also cited parcel 50, on the opposite side of Fifth Street. which was almost three times larger than his client's property, but was only to be assessed for one ETU.

While it was explained that parcel 50 was listed as agriculture while Mason's property was commercial. Wilson responded that neither was developed and he believed this was unfair treatment to his

After the commission gave an indication that it would not favor lowering the number of ETUs on parcel 50, Wilson took another approach, and launched into an attack against the methodology used to determine ETUs.

He told the commissioners the way they had assessed differently with parcels 40 and 50, it was "unreasonable, and a violation of due process and equal assessment." He said it was in violation of the equal protection clause of the Conetitution.

He said his client would be willing to accept an assessment for one ETU rather than 21.3. but if the commission refused to agree to it, he would pursue complaints against the meth-

It was suggested DRMP might be able to come up with a defense on the assessments, but it would not be possible until the second meeting in January.

Commissioner Gary Brender. commenting that such a delay, and possible need to have the entire project re-examined and a new approach taken, commented, "I'm getting tired of this being delayed time after time. I'd rather get on with it and make a decision tonight."

During a lengthy discussion that continued, there was a question regarding whether the remaining assessments could be approved with the exception of parcel 40, which would be held up until a future meeting.

The answer however was apparently confusing, and no clear conclusion was apparent to the commissioners.

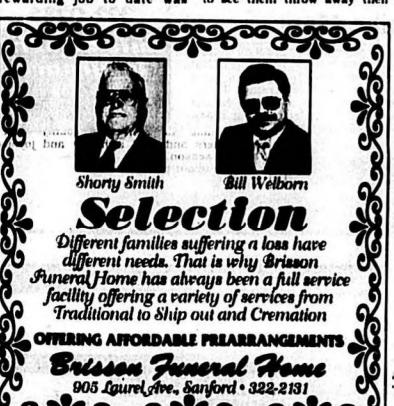

Mayor David Mealor suggested that the commission give in to the attorney's demands, and lower the ETU level on his client's property to one ETU. In response to a question regarding where the additional money would come from in lowering the level from 21.3 ETUs, the mayor said the city would probably have to eat the cost. "I wouldn't like it." he said. "but I believe it would be a great deal less expensive than if we had to go through this entire process again and redetermine the assessment methodology."

After further comments regarding the matter, the commission voted to table the remainder of the discussion and hold off on approval of the resolution, until the January 23 commission meeting. The postponement was approved on a unanimous vote.

During other citizen com-ments, Earl Fox, owner of one of the parcels, asked the city if his assessment for one ETU would climb if there would be a reduction in ETUs, and a subsequent loss in money for the city from the parcel 40 reclassification. Mayor Meslor assured him is would not affect his property.

Prior to Thursday night's meeting, city attorney Donna McIntosh had presented a list of 11 steps for the commission to follow in establishing (or denying) the resolution.

By the conclusion of Thursday night's discussion, the procedures had only gone through step eight. When it continues on Jan. 23, it will pick up with step nine. "Adjust and equalize the special assessments on the basis of justice and right."

New facility gives new hope to kids

Special to the Herald

MAITLAND - Throughout Florida, children ages 3 to 18, who are grieving over the death of a loved one, now have a safe place to go here in the central Florida area.

The New Hope Center for Grieving Children officially opened its doors on Dec. 6 in Maitland.

Although in operation prior to the grand openiing, the activities included the unveiling ceremony of the center's bright new sign by Cheryl Bradley, the director of the New Hope Center for Grieving Children and the showing of an interpretive painting of the New Hope Center's mission by five local artists.

Visitors toured the center, getting the chance to see its toy room, its water area, its paint splatter room, its dress up room, its sandbox room, its hurricane room and its teen room.

Each room is designed to involve children in activities and help them through the grieving Development here at Seminole Community College. I meet with small business professionals every week. One thing that always seems to arise in the conversation is the lack of good help. Everyone has their pet theories as to the shortcomings of the work force. We could spend several columns on the educational system, work ethic and family backgrounds and still not agree on the causes. Whatever the causes of a less than ideal work force, it remains the reality we must plan for and deal with.

Usually after a few minutes of commiseration, I ask about selection and training of your employees. I get a surprised look and normally a half-hearted explanation of the recruitment process. When I begin to question about the training, at best, I hear about on the job training. There is nothing inherently wrong with OJT if you are consistent and structured in its application.

For example, did you assign a mentor on your staff to the new employee? Think about t. The new employee tloes not want or need to be running to the boss about routine questions. Did you provide some form of erientation to the company? We assume that everyone understands what business we are in and what we do. I assure you that your new hire needs to be introduced to the big picture as it relates to your company. People are much more comfortable in performing a job if they understand how it relates to the rest of the company.

in today's global economy, a well-trained work force is a prerequisite for success. Are you providing the opportunity for your existing workers to up-grade their skills? Are you rewarding or providing incentives for employees that take courses or training in job related areas? If not, what kind of signal are you sending? Is the status quo good enough for your company? If so, don't be surprised when others surpass you in employee

What kind of training is available to small businesses? Depending on the number of employees and type of training needed, your needs can be met in many ways.

For example, if you are converting your computers over to Window's 95, call Seminole Community College at 328-4722, and enroll in a class at the Computer Institute, ext. 2036. If on-site training or a customized class is desired, a quick call to Andy Lee at extension 2340 will begin the process. Andy can set you up with many different types of training, not just computers.

As the only public, post-secondary institution in Seminole County, Seminole Community College actively trains the employees throughout the country. SCC is very interested in being responsive to your needs throughout the county.

Remember, your people are your greatest resource, and you cannot afford not to invest

Cash said that Leroy Hardy's pool hall has "two billiards tables, a leaky tollet and not much else." Most, importantly, the operation has no license to operate as a business. Though Hardy told, investigators he makes his money charging 50 cents a game for his customers to shoot pool. Cash said it would seem the only money-making enterprise in the building is the sale of crack cocaine and marijuana.

Cash said sheriff's deputies have tried and continue to try to patrol the area in marked vehicles. Their visible presence is seen as a way to deter drug sales, but Cash maintains that the traditional crime fighting methods are not enough.

Curry agrees.

"They're doing some good by arresting these guys in the pool hall. Then they tore down the abandoned houses. And they've cleaned up down to the (Southwest Food) Store," he noted. "But they need to be out here (in the marked vehicles) spending 10 to 15 minutes every couple of hours or so.

This past week CCIB arrested Hardy, 45, and charged him with possession of illegal drugs with intent to distribute: Rodney Conquest, 34, charged with sale of crack, possession with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphernalia: Zebronda Snell. 17, charged with possession with intent to distribute: Thomas Lawson, 25, charged with sale of crack: Doractt Solomon, 15, charged with possession of cannabia with intent to distribute: Bryant Bridges, 37, charged him with possession of drug paraphernalia: Marques Cornelous "Mooser" Howard, 25, charged with possession with intent to distribute drugs; and Perry Taylor, 38, charged with sale of Cash said CCIB agents intend to force Hardy to get a license to operate his pool hall if he wants to continue to do business there. "And the business will be playing pool." Cash said.

and Holmes engineers and from Stairs Property Management/ Realty. "We've had as much as $1,000 to buy new parts for the bikee," McClanahan said.

Battalion Chief Mike Haney has been one of the bike project leaders at the Fire Department. but just about everyone at all three Sanford stations has done repair work each day.

The bikes will be distributed

Christmas Eve by Kiwanis volunteers.

"We have requests from throughout Seminole County." McClanahan said. "No matter how hard we work, no matter how many bikes we come up with, sometimes it still isn't enough. Our goal is to get a bike to every single boy and girl who wants one.

"With help, we'll do just that. This year. Every year."

thine own mouths will we judge thee" (thanks Luke).

And with that thought in mind....!#! NENTHAYOR asks if Helen Stairs would step to the front of the room ...Oh, what have ye done, fair Helen, fair Helen. Oh, what have ye gone and done now? Have ye blatantly ignored City rules and knowingly tried to build a bathroom without requesting a building permit? THE HIGHTMAYOR wants to know why Helen Stairs, such a figure of public service and gavel dropping, would want to dodge the City's approval (or disapproval) of what she wanted to do with her own property......If it were her intention to change this office space to provide for residential usage (or semi-residential usage), then she would have to apply for special soning waivers. That means, had she proceeded properly, the building permitting office would have remanded her to the Planning and Zoning Board for approval. HMMMM. THE HIGHTMAYOR wants to focus on the right thing here. The purpose of the issuance of the permit is to insure the opportunity for subsequent inspect. ions...that prevent further rule breaking THE HIGHTMAYOR also knows that Helen Stairs is Chairman of Sanford's Planning and Zoning Board (the same one mentioned above). As such, she participates in deciding whether the city will allow someone else to do what they want with their own property...And THE NIGHT-MAYOR also knows that Helen Stairs serves on the Historic Preservation Board. As such, she again participates in deciding whether the City will allow someone else to do what they want with their own property. What was she HMMMM, again. thinking? is this muckety-muck getting stuck in her own mire...is she getting bogged down in lack of righteoneness.

THE HIGHTMAYOR, in righteous indignation, wants to know when the jury comes in and the judge goes out. Citizens who serve on these voluntary board are put there by the City Commission. Is there a watchdog here? or do we have different rules for different people. THE NIGHT-MAYOR believes that when someone else breaks the rules they are supposed to be upholding, they must be relieved of those duties. Is this issue, with fairness and justice for all, on the agenda for the next City Commission meeting?

Ho-hum. THE NIGHTMAYOR is tiring. T'is the season for a ho-ho hum. And so it in that THE HIGHTHAYOR wishes you all, each and everyone, a pleasant Christmas. I pray you are able to give to those you love, the happiness they seek...and that in so doing you take good care of yourselves.

What's Up in the NFL 1996...Week No. 17

Well here we are in the Final Week of the season and I'm feeling great!

Lest Sunday was full of surprises, and it looks like we're in for an exciting post-season. As predicted, the level of competition around the League has increased as teams battle for playoff slots. Teams like the Jaguars, the Broncos, and even the Panthers made statements that they are here to compate.

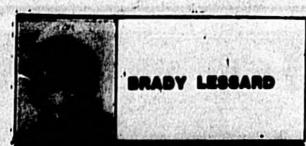

As for the LOCK OF THE WEST, once again I have produced. The ARISONA CARDWALS (+8) made me enough money to confirm my reservations to go to the Sugar Bowl, and gave the analysis of the sugar state.

Lies and I the opportunity to enjoy a nice dinner at Bay Hill Country Club.

Focusing on Florida's teams, let's talk abount the Dolphins. The long awaited debut of the Jimmy Johnson era has been a big failure. know what the critics say, "Give him time, he needs time." I agree with this to a point, but the Dolphine need to make some serious decisions prior to next season.

The first question they need to answer is whether Dan Marino represents the past or the future of the ballclub. The past few seasons the Dolphins have looked good until Marino gets hurt for a couple of weeks, then they fall apart. This has happened the last three or four years, and with his age they need to expect it again next

If they can't without Marino, the Dolphins will go nowhere. The scary thing for Miami fans and Jimmy Johnson, is they may have to get rid of Marino to learn how.

Let's take a look at today's schedule, and find some winners.

MIAMI (-4) AT NEW YORK Who really cares about this game? The two worst teams in the A.F.C. East do battle in this meaningless affair. I'm sure the Dolphins will win, but only because the Jets are so bad. Delphins 23, Jets 10.

TAMPA BAY (-2) VS. CHICAGO I think the Bucs will cover the spread, but I'm still upset with the defense this season. Bue-

JACESONVILLS (-0) VS. ATLANTA I:m sorry but I'm not sure the Jags should be giving up nine points, even to the Falcons. I suppose the reasoning is based on the fact that they are at home, a win gets them into the playoffs, and they are playing the worst team in the League. Solid reasoning. Jaguars 31, Paleons 17.

This is probably the best game of the day. Both squads are struggling to get things back together after recent mishaps. I think the edge has to go to Buffalo, but only because they are at home.

Bills 24, Chiefs 17. GREEN BAY (-11) VS. MINNESOTA

This is just too many points for a divisional rivalry. If I had to bet it, which I'm glad I don't. I'd have to take the points. Peckers 28, Vik-

BALTIMORE (-8) VS. HOUSTON A battle between two teams that showed promise early, but have folded as of late. I really don't care about the outcome, but do you realize that Vinny made the Pro Bowl? Ravens 28. Oilers 18.

Indianapolis (Even) at Cincinnati These are two fun teams to watch. The Colts have a shot at the playoffs, while the Bengals are trying to lay a foundation for next season. TOO CLOSE TOO CALL.

PHILADELPHIA (-8) VS. ARISONA This is a sad way for the Cardinals ot end their season. They have fought valiantly, but I don't believe that they can win at the Vet for the final playoff spot. The Eagles have too much to lose. I'm sorry Boomer. Eagles 20, Cardinals 17.

OAKLAND (-8) AT SEATTLE

The Raiders will get this worthless win, but end the season very frustrated. Look for the Bad Boys to return with a vengeance next season. Chesters 28. Seabowks 19.

Each week I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contemplation I feel most confident about releasing as my patented (on three continents) LOCE OF THE

After last week's win, and Christmas just around the corner, I'd like to give an early present in the form of my patented DOUBLE LOCK OF THE WEEK, which I am giving at no Charge. 03. When fishing over hard bottom, artificial reefs, wrecks, coral reefs, or any other submerged structure for bottom fish, turn the fish's head up toward the surface as soon as possible. 06. When surf flahing, learn how to read the water along the beach. Fish will be in the troughs that parallel shore. Perpendicular to the troughs are washouts. They allow water in the troughs to move back out to sea. Washouts constantly shift position but they're easy to see and are good places

Along the Gulf coast surf anglers should try wading offshore to the first sand bar parallel to the beach, usually less than 100 feet out. Cast back toward shore. This gives the bait the natural appearance of shiners will produce fish in the 8-12 pound range in local takes and in the river. As it gets colder, some river fish will move into the Wekiva to winter and spawn.

Shiners are particularly effective this time of year, because big base would rather feed on one large meal rather than spending a lot of energy chasing down a lot of tiny tidbits.

Huge winter flounder will dominate the action at Sebastian Inlet for the next month or so. Fish in the 6-13 pound range will strike finger mullet bounced slowly across the rocky bottom. Bluefish will also be thick this time of year.

Captain Jack et Port Canaveral

reports that offshore action is dependant entirely on passing cold fronts. A few days before or a few days after the passage of a front will usually find the ocean calm enough to fish. Shrimpboats anchored in 180-240 feet of water provide atructure for schools of blackfin tuna this time of year.

Large sheepshead will top the action at-Peace Inlet until spring. The hole at the tip of the morth jetties is the best spot for fish in the 6-10 pound class. Large live shrimp or fiddler crabs are the top baits for redfish and bluefish. Trout and redfish will be fair in Mosquite Lagoon.

Neighborhood celebrates holidays

Remington Oaks subdivision in Lake Mary held their own tree lighting celebration on Sunday, Dec. 15. Lack of a tree in the common area did not stop them. A hand made weeden tree studded with lights was their Christmas tree. J.R. Longsdorf started the event with a special prayer for the season. Entertainment was then provided by Carmen

Ames Quinn, vice president of the Crossings Master Association then lit Santa's tent. A fire truck, with sirens blasing, brought Santa in for a violt with all the children. (FAA rules prohibit reindeer from flying over the continental U.S. on all nights, others than Christmas Eve.) The children lined up to see Santa, and the adults lined up for the cookies and drinks.

The presentation of awards was last. Remington Oaks borrowed people from another aubdivision to judge the decorations. The first place winners were Pat and Matt Pye. second place went to Jennifer and Diana Pishbeck and third place went to Nortne, Andrea, Joe and Mark Eckstrom.

AARP hoets annual Christmes party

Everyone was dressed in the holiday best for the AARP's annual Christmas party. This year, the Lake Mary Chapter chose the Galleria in Lake Mary for the event. The company was delightful, and the food was delicious.

One of the guests was Dr. Mark Bergman. Dr. Bergman is the AARP District Director. He presented outgoing AARP President Norma Smith with a certificate outstanding service. Dr. Berginan also presented Norma with a past president's Bergman welcomed incoming president. Jim Carmona, with a magic coloring book to go in his AARP chapter handbook. The coloring book was to remind Jim to "stay within the lines." Dr. Bergman then inducted all the incoming officers. New officers are: Carmona, president: John Schlerman, vice president: Marge Carmona, secretary; and Jules Schnater, treasurer. New board members are Ruth Dresser, Tom Dresser, Addie Rossie, Dee Buckland, Norma Smith, Adella Barca and Mabel

Jim Carmona gave Norma Smith a plaque of appreciation for her service as the president of the Lake Mary AARP chapter. Paulce Stevens then presented certificates of appreciation to some of the volunteers that have helped her throughout the year.

Norma Smith recognized the men and women who had helped her so much over the last two years. She gave her volunteers AARp mugs with hand cream for the women and shaving cream for the men. Norma also officially handed over the chapter gavel to Jim Carmona.

The next meeting of the AARP will be Tuesday, Jan. 20 at 1 p.m. at the Frank Evans Center.

Seniors help bag candy for children

Lake Mary Seniors spent time Tuesday morning at the Frank Evans Center doing what they do a lot. Helping others. Eight seniors bagged Christmas candy for the Sheriff's Department to give out to children on Christmas Eve and Christmas. The seniors made 611 bags in one hour.

The Frank Evans Center will be closed for the holidays. They will reopen on Jan. 6.

Pat and Matt Pye are first place winners in the Remington Oaks decorating contest.

Students score high on human nature report card

Principal Dave Scott of idyliwiide Elementary used to like the taste of pork, but now he's not so sure.

Wednesday morning he lived up to his end of a bargain made with Idyllwilde atudents by kissing Hamlet the Pot Bellied Pig, after students surpassed their goal of collecting 3,000 cans of food for the needy.

Principal Scott promised to kiss the pig, owned by Idyilwilde students Elliot and Harrison Reed, if his students could collect more food than friendly rival Hamilton Elementary. Hamilton won last year's competition by co-llecting 3,400 cans of food.

This year idyliwilde students, led by the student council, rose to the occasion by collecting 3,318 cans of food. Hamilton was close behind with 2,718.

According to Principal Scott, The Salvation Army will distribute the food to local amilies in need. In recognition of their outstanding work. The Salvation Army will also present idyliwide with a trophy made from a grocery can which has been spray painted gold and mounted on

While Scott acknow ledged encouraging a little friendly competition, he stressed the importance of teamwork and teaching the children the importance of community involvement. The things they are learning will not show up on test scores, but they will show up on the human nature score card."

In the right spirit?

By Phillip Alder

The holiday decorations were up in the bridge club. The tall tree was decked out with numerous lights and candy canes. The Senior Life Master enjoyed this time of year. The club felt warmer, the members smiled more often, he was bought more drinks. Suddenly a hot toddy was put into his hand. "Thank you very much," said the SLM. "Sit beside me for a few moments. You remind me of an incident that occurred many Christmases ago." The SLM passed the young man a sheet of paper. This deal was written

South was Arhair Barber (explained the SLM). Put him in a red coat and he would have passed as Santa Claus, no questions asked. He was playing with the apple pie of his eye, Locretia Ness-Lomond. Relations between them had been more than cordial at the beginning, but then they started to play bridge together. Locretia was a much PHILLIP ALDER

In four spades, East took two club tricks, then switched to the heart 10.
After winning with dummy's ace.
Arhair immediately drew trumps. Yet now he had to lose two heart tricks, so finished one down.

"Nothing I could do," observed Arhair.

In a strained voice, Locretia said, "Play on diamonds immediately, using my trumps as entries. You can establish and cash the diamond jack as your 10th trick."

As they walked out of the card room, Arhair tried to defend himself. It was an error. Locretia finally lost her temper. She pushed Arhair into our tree. It was crushed, and when Arhair stood
