Bright Economic Report May Help Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In a major turnaround for the economy, the government reported today the Gross National Product grew at an annual rate of 1 percent in the third quarter on heavy consumer spending.

The jump in economic output in the July-September period followed a record 9.6 percent decline in the second quarter, the Commerce Department said.

The report, one of the last major economic barometers before the Nov. 4 election, could be a major boost in President Carter's battle for the White House with Republican Ronald Reagan.

The preliminary report of a 1 percent annual rise in the GNP—which measures the value of American goods and services in a calendar quarter adjusted for inflation—will be revised next month.

The government attributed the GNP rise to a sharp boost in consumer spending, including purchases of new 1981 model automobiles. Such spending has fallen sharply in the April-June quarter.

The report said economic output increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.2 percent in the third quarter of the year.

The Commerce Department said business stock inventories were drawn down sharply in the third quarter, falling by $17.9 billion compared to an $11.4 billion increase in the second.

Smaller inventories means manufacturers are drawing on stocks to meet production needs.

Layer, Hughes Debate Issues

By CHARITY CIARDO
Herald Staff Writer

Bob Hughes is concerned with communication and morale in the schools, but William "Bud" Layer says these aren't even issues.

A small but concerned group attended a debate Thursday between candidates Layer and Hughes, who are running for Seminole County Superintendent of Schools. The debate was held at the Welaka Building, 107 1/2 N. Oak Ave., Sanford.

Although both candidates were supposed to give short presentations of their issues, Layer mostly rebutted what Hughes said in his opening remarks.

Hughes, who spoke first at the meeting sponsored by Seminole County Resources for Human Needs Committee, said open communication with employees, agencies that work with the school district and board members is needed.

"We need communication to get information out to the public," said Hughes, who is the principal at Sabal Point Elementary, Longwood.

"A good public relations program should be set up," he said. Layer, who is running for his third consecutive four-year term, said the "best public relations program should be the kids' daily contact with their teacher and then going home and telling their parents they had a pleasant experience at school."

Hughes said "we need to provide a positive learning environment for the kids and those who work at the schools."

A safety program, especially reorganizing the school's parking lot, reorganization of the district office and a more positive employee morale were other issues Hughes brought out.

"When the teachers have a positive morale, then it carries over into the classrooms," he said.

Layer responded that he does almost everything Hughes said that was his platform.

"Low morale isn't an issue, because of three reasons," Layer told the gathering of 15 women.

Layer cited low teacher turnover, good test results among students and few grievances filed against the board by instructors as the reasons pointing toward good morale.

"We've got the top school district in Florida. We test our third, fifth, eighth and eleventh grade students in reading, writing and math.

Layer said grades three and five rank first in the state, while grade eight ranked second and grade eleven ranked third.

Hughes said the schools need to find out why kids are dropping out through meetings.

Layer replied that the number of dropouts in Seminole County was average. He said that the district has a program where a teacher works with students who aren't interested in learning.

Best, McCollum Avert Clash

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A personal confrontation between Democrat David Best and Republican Bill McCollum, candidates for Florida's 5th District seat in Congress, was stopped Thursday night.

During a debate at the Jewish Community Center in Maitland, the two were invited to question each other.

Best responded to two questions from McCollum, but refused to pose questions to his opponent. Best said asking each other questions was "calculated to deteriorate into a bickering match. I see no point in asking each other questions," Best said.

"I think he should have engaged in debate," McCollum said. "He calls me Billy and I suspect he thinks that irritates me."

Best apologized, saying McCollum grew up in the Brookville area, near where Best now lives.

"When I talk to people there they call him Billy," Best said.

McCollum asked Best if he supports Jimmy Carter for president and whether he will follow the party line and vote for Tip O'Neill for speaker of the House if Representatives, if elected, or vote for someone else for that office.

Best responded "yes" to the question on Carter. Concerning whether he would vote for O'Neill Best said, "I want to look at the qualifications of both candidates. I've got to best you first and plan to do that. I am not so presumptuous as to have already looked at the qualifications of the men (for speaker)."

The two candidates discussed such subjects as support of Israel, the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT), abortion, prayer in the public schools, the Equal Rights Amendment and Congressional ball out of New York, Chrysler and Lockheed.

Both gave their unqualified support to assisting and aiding Israel.

McCollum said while SALT is an admirable goal, the U.S. should not consider the treaty at the time because of Russian aggression.

Best said SALT is not based on the nation trusting the Soviet Union. "It's in the best interests of the United States to enter into negotiations for arms limitation. Our agencies are superior. We don't have to trust the Russians. We know what they are doing."

McCollum said he is opposed to abortion except in cases where a mother's life is threatened or rape or incest is involved. Best said he is personally against abortion and against federal funding for abortion, but he added, abortion is a personal decision made by a woman and her family.

McCollum favored allowing prayer in the public schools. Best said anyone could pray anytime he wishes.

McCollum said he opposes the Equal Rights Amendment in its present form. Best said some women need the Equal Rights Amendment. He added that he has doubts concerning the constitutionality of the time extension given for ERA ratification by the states.

McCollum said he is opposed to the federal funding of day care centers while Best said he favors the funding if it will enable able-bodied women to work and get off the welfare rolls.

About the Abcam investigation which led to the political downfall of current Congressman Richard Kelly, Best said: "I think it is wrong when government agents prepare the stage for a crime to be committed."

Cops 'Sting' 35 In Royal Flush Scam

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Some 35 persons are expected to face a variety of charges resulting from a three-month-long "sting" operation called "Royal Flush" and operated by Seminole and Volusia counties sheriffs' departments, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and DeLand and Orange cities police departments.

Law officers operated a phony store in DeLand and took in more than $150,000 in stolen goods ostensibly to force the arrests.

In Abcam-like fashion, the undercover agents were armed with video taping equipment, hidden microphones and recorded some 300 separate transactions.

A local FBI officer overseeing the operation said operating the DeLand second hand shop which took in the stolen goods cost about $15,000 to $20,000.

Right now none of the stolen items have been traced to Seminole County, the local FBI officer said.

"But we have lots of unidentified property" he said law officers will be reopening their shop next week to allow burglary victims to come by and try to identify some of the stolen goods. Details on the operation hours have not yet been announced.

The formal announcement of the arrests was to be made at a 2 p.m. press conference today at the Volusia County Sheriff's office in DeLand.

Jury Indicts 1, Clears 2 Others

By DAVID M. HAZLER

Seminole County grand jurors have returned one indictment for murder but cleared two other homicide suspects of committing crimes by calling the shooting deaths they were implicated in accidents.

A sealed indictment was handed down in the shooting death of Sanford businessman Francis McElroy, 41, found dead in his Geneva home on Sept. 22. Deputies say they were told by McElroy's 16-year-old son Gordon that

Indigent Care Funding, Utilities Top Seminole County's Priority List

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners agreed this week on their top four priorities for the coming year. They are:

- Accomplishment of an agreement with Hospital Corporation of America on how care for indigent patients will be financed at Seminole Memorial Hospital now that it has been sold to the Nashville firm. The county remains legally responsible for providing hospital care for those unable to pay.
- The assumption of the Tanglewood Sewer System into the county utility system and proceeding with the county's plan to hook-up with the new Iron Bridge sewage treatment plant south of Oviedo.
- Continuation of negotiations to obtain the Greenwood Lakes water and sewer treatment plant owned by the Florida Land Co. and operated by Central Utilities Corp. concerning their water and sewer service to county residents.

Implementation of the new "System 38" computer expected to be delivered in July. The sooner the computer is activated, the more money the county will save, said County Administrator Roger Neiswander.

In a work session this week the commissioners reviewed 33 projects brought forth by Neiswander.

At the suggestion of Commissioner Richard Williams the commissioners agreed to individually vote for each project by rating it 'A', 'B' or 'C'.

They agreed 'A' votes denoted projects that must be accomplished if nothing else is.

'B' votes were for projects that must be accomplished even if projects given a 'C' rating aren't.

And 'C' votes were for projects that must be accomplished even if individual departmental priorities aren't.

The county's four top priorities are those which received 'A' votes from all five commissioners. The commissioners agreed that the county's next highest priorities would be those which received at least four 'A' votes. They are:

- Major Road Improvements, particularly for Howell Branch Road and Maitland Avenue.
- Developing a transportation strategy.
- Developing a shopping strategy.
- Constructing a five-year traffic signals and intersections program.
- Continuing the Lake Mary Boulevard and State Road 438 transportation study.
- Continuation of construction of new fire stations.
- Making efforts toward locating additional space for the overcrowded Seminole County Health Department at first received three 'C' votes and two 'B' votes placing it in the 'C' category overall. But a plea from Health Department Director Dr. Jorge Deju resulting in one commissioner changing his vote from 'C' to 'B'.

Deju said the Health Department has taken a low priority for some time. He said a 'C' rating gives it the same priority as space consideration for 1981 through the year 2000.

"We're dealing with problems now," Deju said. "We have no space for growth which will leave us with a static health delivery system in the next few years as population continues to increase."

This argument apparently convinced Commissioner Bob French, who changed his vote giving the Health Department a 'B' priority.

None of the county's other department heads present at the work session made pleas for their units.

Of the 33 projects under review, French gave 25 'A' ratings. Commissioner Richard Williams, who will end his commission service Nov. 18, gave out 30 'A' ratings.

Commissioner Bob Sturm followed with 11 'A' designations. Commissioner Sandra Glenn gave 13 'A' ratings and Commission Chairman Bill Kirchhoff gave 7.

Kirchhoff said the county does not have the money to accomplish all of the projects that may be desirable.

"The purpose of the list was to budget the time of the staff and the money available. There's no point to making them all number one," Kirchhoff said.

Projects receiving three 'A' votes and overall status as 'A' projects are:

- The North Seminole 201 Study for upgrading and extending the Sanford/Lake Mary sewer system, the life safety code, the North Seminole Library Study, Sylvan Lake Park Development, organizational structure and management objectives and general strategy for county government.

Kirchhoff said he placed important on-going projects in the 'B' category.

The commissioners voted the following number of 'B' projects:

- Kirchhoff, 19; Glenn, 11; French, 6; Sturm, 11; Williams, 8.

Kelly's Abscam Trial May Begin Tuesday

Rep. Richard Kelly is expected to go on trial next Tuesday on charges of accepting a $25,000 bribe during the FBI's Abscam operation, but the woman reported to be his key defense witness may be unable to testify.

A psychic who reportedly was to testify in Kelly's behalf now is unable to do so, according to her doctor, because of health problems.

Kelly, R-New Port Richey, whose Fifth Congressional District includes Seminole County, will be tried in federal court at Washington, D.C.

Although Kelly maintained shortly after the Abscam story broke in February that he accepted the bribe money only to conduct his own investigation into "sleazy characters" and to look out for his interest, the Longwood psychic later revealed she knew of the FBI "sting" operation before it was made public.

Kelly has never admitted publicly that he talked to the psychic, Robyn Jamieson, reportedly meaning "Congressman — Fifth District."

Time magazine said recently Mrs. Jamieson was to be the chief witness called by Kelly's defense. To confirm her conversation with Kelly before the Abscam story broke, Mrs. Jamieson said she had discussed the call with various police officials and a Hollywood movie and TV actress, identifying Kelly only as "CJ," reportedly meaning "Congressman — Fifth District."

River Restoration To Be Slow

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

The state commission charged with revitalizing the St. Johns River has taken the first step toward actually beginning work on the waterway, but work is still almost two years off, a biologist working on the river says.

Meanwhile, the river is now running backward over its entire course due to the light rainfall this summer, he says.

Harold Moody, biologist with the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission called this week's action by the St. Johns River Water Management District Board "historic" but warned the board still "has a lot of steps to go."

After a lengthy meeting in Melbourne this week, the board voted on a preliminary plan calling for the purchase of marshland at the river's headwaters in order to insure enough water will be accumulated to keep the river running north to the ocean.

But instead of approving an exact plan of action, the board voted to ask the Army Corps of Engineers design computer models of the waterway to determine exactly what land should be bought and what changes in the water-flow should be made, he said.

The studies and design work will mean another two years before work begins, he said.

Moody said the plan was designed to avoid hurting any of the companies and persons with farms and ranches along the river while ensuring there will be enough water to keep it flowing all year long.

The board has been working on the problems of the St. Johns for several years and published the report which served as the basis for this week's action in early 1979.

But Moody warned he expected conditions on the waterway to worsen over the next two years unless "we have good luck."

A rainy season without a single tropical storm has depleted the amount of water at the south end of the St. Johns, allowing the water level to drop and the flow of water in the river to reverse.

The salt content of Lake Manatee has doubled recently, Moody said.

Poor water flow conditions this summer helped contribute to the algae blooms which ended in massive fish kills east of Sanford on the river and in Lake Jesno.

... Jury Indicts 1, Clears 2 Others

The youth heard a shot that day while outside the house on Lake Harney Drive and ran into the house, he said.

There he saw his mother, Mary Louise McElroy, 38, standing at the top of the stairs, holding a gun. She said she saw the youth and told him not to come up and walked into a kitchen off the stairway. Gordon told deputies he then heard two more shots, then his mother came out of the kitchen and called deputies, they say.

McElroy was found dead in the kitchen, killed by three .22 caliber rifle bullets, deputies reported.

The indictment will remain sealed pending an arrest.

In the second case under investigation by the members of the grand jury during the three-day session, Orlando Police Lt. Tom Heston was cleared of any charges in the Sept. 9 death of his wife, Norma Jean Heston, which was ruled an accident.

Mrs. Heston, 39, died at her home at 702 Wilshire Drive, Casselberry, when her husband accidentally fired a shotgun while loading it.

Information before the grand jury stated Heston was a gun collector, and was loading a break action 12-gauge shotgun that evening when he closed the breach on the skin between his thumb and index finger.

His hand tightened on the gun, pulling the trigger, the reports said.

The grand jury was also presented with the results of police and sheriff's department investigations which also called the Heston shooting an accident.

The grand jury in any charges a 20-year-old Fort City man in each of the Oct. 4 death of his half-brother, who is also his step-father.

The jurors heard testimony Allen C. Whetstone, 37, of 9339 Bear Lake Road, was shot because a defective shotgun was raised by Scott Whetstone on Oct. 3 at the home they share.

Allen Whetstone died 24 hours after he was shot following a domestic argument. Evidence and testimony showed Scott Whetstone had not deliberately fired at Allen but had simply closed the breach on his antique shotgun.

Two unrelated thefts of aluminum in Seminole County have resulted in additional arrests after persons allegedly tried to sell stolen metal.

Sanford police Thursday arrested their fifth suspect in the theft of a pickup truck and the theft of several thousand dollars worth of aluminum billets from a fenced compound in Sanford.

R. D. Owen Zippert, 36, of 220 Columbia Road, DeLary, was charged with two counts of grand theft and one count of burglary and ordered held in lieu of $5,500 bond.

He is charged with helping five other persons steal $6,000 worth of aluminum from Florida Extrusion Co., 2540 Jewett Ave., during the beginning of the week.

Four persons were arrested by Marion County authorities Tuesday when they allegedly tried to sell stolen aluminum to a company there.

Another man, who was arrested Wednesday by Sanford police, was also charged with helping steal the aluminum and a pickup truck from a Sanford man.

Sheriff's deputies arrested an Altamonte Springs man Thursday a day after he allegedly stole about $1,000 worth of scrap aluminum from a Casselberry company and sold it in Orlando.

Deputies say Albert Lee Cain, 30, of 520 Oak St., is one of at least two men who broke into the yard of the Water One Corp., in Casselberry and removed between 3,500 and 5,000 pounds of aluminum scrap in two pickup trucks.

The scrap was later sold to Aaron Scrap Co., Orlando, for close to $2,700, they say.

Cain was arrested at his home and charged with burglary and grand theft.

Casselberry Recreation Director Lewis Resigns

Casselberry Recreation Director Jill Lewis resigned Thursday only five months after she was hired.

Her resignation becomes effective Nov. 28.

Although she gave no reasons for the resignation, a spokesman from the city said Lewis might have been disappointed over not having enough manpower to do the programs she would have liked.

On Wednesday, Lewis said she was "disappointed" because the council made the biggest cuts in her department. She said she had expected the cuts, however.

"Usually resignation is the first department to be cut, because it is something you can do without," she said.

At this week's meeting, the council cut $20,000 from the department. The council also used one recreational maintenance position, lights for two tennis courts on Secret Lake and $4,000 in funds for a restroom facility.

The director described the cuts as "something we've got to learn to live with." — CHARTY CICARDO

Vets Officer To Speak

Ted Hansen, state service officer of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Florida, will speak on veterans survivor benefits at an 8 p.m. meeting today at the DAV Building on U.S. Highway 17-S, south of Sanford.

The presentation has been arranged because of the increasing concern of members of the various veterans organization auxiliaries about their entitlement to benefits from the Veterans Administration, according to Clinton Westbrook, Seminole County Veterans service officer.

Through the joint efforts of the VFW Post 10108 of Sanford, DAV Post 30 of Sanford, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and Westbrook's office, Hansen's appearance was scheduled.

Hansen is also a service officer for the Florida Division of Veterans Affairs in St. Petersburg and well versed in benefits for veterans survivors, Westbrook said.

Host post is the VFW Post 10108 Auxiliary with the DAV Post 30 providing the hall and other facilities for the speaker. The theme of Hansen's speech will be "Benefit entitlement for spouse, widow, child and other dependents."

Preceding Hansen's appearance, DAV Post 30 will have a spaghetti dinner from 5 to 7 p.m.

A question and answer period will follow Hansen's talk. Westbrook said all dependents and survivors of veterans and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Reagan Pulls 'Surprise' With Black Endorsements

By United Press International

The Ronald Reagan campaign came up with an "October surprise" of its own, getting two black leaders of the 1960s civil rights movement to endorse the Republican presidential nominee.

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, former head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Rev. Hosea Williams endorsed Reagan Thursday.

A third black leader, Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., recommended that blacks vote against President Carter, but he did not endorse anyone else.

Archaeologists Claim Find

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Archaeologists have found evidence of a prehistoric Indian people they believe traveled north to stalk herd animals for food and clothing 11,000 years ago, when the upper reaches of the continent were just thawing out from the Ice Age.

This is a major find, archaeologist Michael Granley of the Maine State Museum said Thursday. "It's undoubtedly a unique find east of the Mississippi River, because we have not only a habitation site but evidence of a killing ground where animals were hunted."

Aliens Policy Recommended

MIAMI (UPI) — One of President Carter's top aides says the country lacks a "coherent policy" toward illegal aliens, and must have one.

The problem of what to do about undocumented aliens is one that the next president is going to have to make recommendations to Congress about, Dr. Eugene Ekelsen, assistant to the president for intergovernmental affairs, said during a televised discussion on U.S. immigration policy Thursday.

Klansmen Protest Cubans

HALTOM CITY, Texas (UPI) — About 20 Robert Klax Klansmen milled outside a City Council meeting where angry residents protested the presence of 138 Cuban refugees brought to this Fort Worth suburb to work in the construction industry. Tension created by fears the men would take jobs away from area people and resentment about government subsidies was not helped by the arrest of one refugee on charges he exposed himself to two girls.

Would-Be Hijacker Jailed

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A Washington, D.C. man who officials say attempted to fellow passengers on an Air Florida flight that had a bomb in the package he was carrying faces attempted air piracy charges before a U.S. magistrate today. Bruce Alan Landry, 36, was turned over to U.S. marshals after the Boeing 727, en route to Washington from Miami, made an unscheduled stop at Jacksonville International Airport Thursday night. He will appear before Magistrate Harvey Schlesinger today.

Coast Guardsmen Await Fate

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two officers of the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn are waiting for a decision on whether they must face court martial for the January collision of their ship with a tanker which killed 23 crewmen.

A military hearing on the matter ended Thursday. Capt. Delmar Smith, the investigating officer, must recommend whether Lt. Cmdr. George J. Sepl or Lt. Jg. John Ryan should face a general court martial. Smith did not indicate when he would make a decision.

Attacks Veiled At Carter-Reagan Meet

President Carter was the aggressor and Ronald Reagan was the good guy in what may be their only joint appearance of the 1980 campaign.

The two met Thursday night at the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner, a charity function sponsored by the Roman Catholic archdiocese of New York — an event that is traditionally non-partisan although named after the former New York Democratic governor who lost the 1982 presidential election.

With the mood of the evening supposedly light and not filled with campaign rhetoric, Carter hit at Reagan's turnaround on aid to bail out New York City by saying "the point on his 'love New York' button is still wet."

Carter praised Reagan's style as "charming and gracious," but quickly added with that in view, he couldn't understand why "he is saying all those mean things about me."

Both men praised the Catholic church for — as Carter put it — "having a power even greater than the League of Women Voters" by getting the two presidential candidates together on the same forum when all other attempts have failed.

Reagan, in a veiled criticism of Carter, said "no one in America will rejoice more than I" when the hostages come home from Iran. But beyond that he had no harsh words for the president.

The two are not believed to have been on the same platform since a 1973 governors' conference in Lake Tahoe, Nev., when Reagan, then governor of California, spoke against a resolution proposed by Carter, then president.

Although he never mentioned Reagan or his supporters by name, Carter's intent was obvious as he closed his speech on a serious note with an attack on the "Moral Majority."

Weapons Found In Prison Founder's Day Sale

STARKE, Fla. (UPI) — Guards at Florida's maximum-security state prison found 10 weapons Thursday during a prison-wide shakeout of inmates prompted by the killing of one guard and attacks on two others.

Meanwhile, officials said the prison was "very quiet" as an indefinite "lockdown" of all Florida State Prison inmates followed two days of disturbances, which were brought under control only after the use of tear gas.

"When you don't have movement in the prison," said Department of Corrections spokesman Vernon Bradford, "it is difficult for disturbances to occur."

Bradford said the lockdown — in which all 1,038 prisoners are confined to their cells — will continue "until" the (prison) administration is convinced the inmates are going to stop misbehaving.

During Thursday's lockdown, teams of guards, carrying fiberoptic shields, searched for homemade weapons hidden in inmates' cells.

Bradford said 10 weapons were found, mostly pieces of aluminum stripped from food trays and fashioned into deadly "shanks (knives)." FSP Sgt. Clayton Strickland said four inmates will be charged with possession of weapons.

It was the sharp end of a spoon handle, which officials said was wielded by death row inmate Thomas Otis Knight, 29, that killed Correctional Officer Richard J. Burke, 46, last Sunday, touching off the current violence.

That led to a new rule requiring the handcuffing of any death row prisoner.

Iraq-Iran War
Ups The Ante

The war between Iraq and Iran is apparently not going to be a short one. It introduces a new element of uncertainty into the situation in the Middle East. There are new risks. There are also new opportunities to strengthen the position of the United States in that region.

We must be alert to take advantage of any opportunity. But the situation is complicated by the plight of the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran. We have to consider their welfare and work for their early return to this country. We must do nothing to endanger them.

But the war is forcing both Saudi Arabia and the United States into a closer relationship. The Saudis are agreeing to increase their oil production to make up for any losses in oil exports from Iraq and Iran. The Saudi action will be of great aid in maintaining a balance between world supply and demand. It will help to stabilize world oil prices.

At the same time, our country is moving additional radar and communications equipment and military personnel into Saudi Arabia, including four large radar planes, called AWACs. This will improve our ability to monitor the fighting. We will give information to the Saudis to help them protect their own air space.

The collapse of the regime of the Shah of Iran has brought about a rapid deterioration of Iran's military power, has destabilized the region and has resulted in the Iraqi attack. But the Iranian military resistance has surprised the Iraqis. And neither side has yet struck a decisive blow.

Not only the Saudis, but all the Persian Gulf sheikdoms, with their vast oil reserves, feel threatened. It is a time for this country to strengthen its ties with all of these Arab lands. We share their concern about the security of the oil fields and the tanker lane through the Strait of Hormuz.

Our fleet, lying off the gulf in the Arabian Sea, is described as the most powerful concentration of naval forces that has ever been gathered in that ocean. Once again, seapower proves its worth as a shield for U.S. policy.

We have the power. We must be prepared to use it if necessary.

German Stability

Helmut Schmidt's opponent in the recent Sunday elections in West Germany might have been more sympathetic to international objectives of the United States, but Schmidt's victory is an indication of German stability.

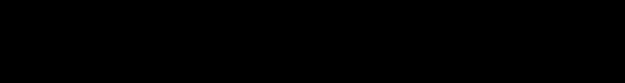

Or, in Schmidt's own words, "Germany remains predictable." Impressive gains made by the chancellor's coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats were scored in large measure by the minority partner Free Democrats.

And the misfortunes of the opposition Christian Democrats and Bavarian Christian Social Union were laid to the bitterness of the campaign rhetoric exchanged between their leader Franz Joseph Strauss and Schmidt.

Schmidt, who takes a more moderate position than his party, suggested that his coalition gains should improve detente with the Soviet Union. At the same time, however, he promised to seek no more seats in the influential German cabinet, indicating that he would continue to resist pressures within his party for radical change.

Schmidt is a known quantity. His party gains and his anticipated re-election as chancellor should prompt no discomfort in the United States.

Will Age Defeat 'Maggie'?

TACOMA, Wash. (NEA)—A stark photograph of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., flashes across the television screen while an unseen announcer intones, "When Maggie went to Congress 44 years ago, Franklin D. Roosevelt was president."

Another commercial begins with the same picture and a similar message: "This is Senator Magnuson. He's been in Washington, D. C., nearly half a century."

And another: "After 44 years in Congress, Warren Magnuson has become part of the problem rather than part of the solution."

The television spots are far more subtle than the blunt commercials used to defeat Sen. Jacob K. Javits, D-N.Y., in a primary election earlier this year, but the message is the same: The senator is too old for the job.

In a contest obscured by high-visibility races in other states where incumbent liberals are pitted against conservative challengers, the man who has served more in the Senate longer than any other current member is fighting his political life.

As chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee for 26 years, Magnuson was the principal architect of much of the consumer legislation approved by Congress in the 1960s and 1970s.

But Magnuson is 75 years old, and a series of injuries that make walking a slow, painful process for him give observers the impression of infirmity.

His first test at the polls this year came in mid-September, when Washington conducted its unusual "open primary" in which all candidates, regardless of party, are listed on a single ballot.

When those ballots were counted, Magnuson had received only slightly more than 37 percent of all votes cast.

Political observers here generally agree that the amazingly poor showing was at least partially attributable to Magnuson supporters, who assumed he was safe and decided to participate in a heated contest for the Republican nomination.

In that race, Slade Gorton, a 50-year-old progressive who has been the state's attorney general since 1968, defeated Lloyd E. Cooney, a conservative election commentator.

Gorton is an effective, energetic and astute candidate — but those attributes are almost irrelevant because the incumbent Magnuson is generally regarded as invulnerable.

Gorton is hardly oblivious to the political situation. In a television commercial that stresses Magnuson's longevity, and, in candid moments, his advisers refer enthusiastically to the senator's "longevity."

For Magnuson, "It's time to hang up," says one Gorton campaign aide. That's a decision for the voters to make, but few would disagree with the analysis offered by a neutral political observer: "Nothing can beat Maggie except his age."

Demo Chief Took Part In Vesco Plot?

WASHINGTON — The name of Democratic Party boss John White, identified by the code word "Blanco," is scattered like smudged fingerprints throughout the Justice Department's investigative files in a $50 million bribery case.

The huge payoff was offered by Libya to the U.S. ban on the sale of transport planes to the Libyan government. At the center of the bribery plot was the international aviator, Robert Vesco, who had close ties to the Libyans.

The scheming Vesco put Libya's United Nations ambassador, Mansour Rashid Kiklia, in touch with White. The contact was described by a free-wheeling Texas lobbyist named James Day, who was a good-bye-boy buddy of the Democratic national chairman.

IN AN INFORMAL QUESTIONNAIRE TAKEN BY THE SEMINOLE COUNTY MENTAL HEALTH CENTER IN 1978, THE CENTER FOUND THAT RESIDENTS FELT ALCOHOLISM WAS THE NUMBER ONE PROBLEM. RUNNING A VERY CLOSE SECOND WAS MARRIAGE AND FAMILY PROBLEMS WHILE THIRD WAS MENTAL HEALTH PROBLEMS.

There are many causes contributing to the national crisis of escalating hospital costs, but Texans may have come up with one uniquely their own.

It has to do, first things first, with hospital clothing — the loose-fitting blue scrub shirts and pants, coats, operating gowns and such that are provided surgical personnel.

The items at one Dallas hospital, according to a wire report, are disappearing at an alarming and costly rate. Replacements are running at more than twice the national average and last year alone racked hospital administrators for a half-million-dollar loss.

There apparently is no mystery as to what is happening to most of the missing garments. They are ending up on local dance floors, where the "Dr. Disco" look is in a big way.

The mystery is how to stop the linen losses. Efforts so far have been unsuccessful, so much so that the hospital's director of services has resigned in pique and with a suggestion that the pilferage has reached that level that indicates an organized ring may be involved.

Well, maybe, although it would take an awful lot of discoing to support a profitable market in hot scrub suits on that scale of business.

Meanwhile, the hospital continues its search for a solution to the problem. But the problem itself may have answered a question about disco — why it seems to have so many smooth operators.

As long as the deadline is Texas, this annual item might as well be disposed of early. On the Republican side, the major battles came when Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen died in 1969 and when his successor, Hugh Scott, retired in 1976.

Scott, following a normal progression, moved up from "whip." But the current Republican leader, Howard Baker, came from outside the leadership circles.

There should be only one race in the House, unless Wright loses the election. In three successive elections, Russell Long of Louisiana was chosen; Long was beaten by Edward Kennedy and Kennedy, in turn, was ousted by Robert Byrd.

WASHINGTON WORLD
Little Change In Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional leaders — Republicans and Democrats — seem to have nothing to fear from their colleagues. If there is to be a palace coup in January, the plans are a well-kept secret.

One or two may be in trouble with the voters. But that hurdle is crossed, their leadership posts are there for the asking.

There will be one, maybe two, changes among House Republican leaders, but these are being decided by retirement — not by an uprising among the rank.

All that is not surprising. In both the House and Senate, the pattern of the past indicates that leaders, once in place, do not budge on their own — except to move up — and are not put to the test by their followers.

They — the leaders — may take this as a sign of loyalty and deep devotion. The chances, however, are that the reluctance to challenge an incumbent stems from a fear of the consequences.

Like an animal, a leader wounded can be dangerous. And he has a great many options of making a colleague's career less pleasant — a "voluntarily" resignation, a reassignment of bills, perks and other favors.

As a result, there have been few efforts in recent years to depose leaders. In 1969, Rep. Andy Young of Alabama ended the 20-year reign of Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts as the House Republican leader.

Six years later, then Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan turned out Halleck. The House Democrats have been more traditional — brooking not even a few battles for the top spot.

The last three speakers all served as House Democratic leader until their predecessors. The lineage is Rayburn-McCormack-Albert-O'Neill.

The battles come at the lower level, such as

Auto Train's Trustee Seeks Exec's Removal

Auto-Train's court-appointed bankruptcy trustee Thursday filed court papers calling the company's president a "burden" and demanding a judge fire him.

Late Wednesday, Eugene Garfield filed a petition before federal bankruptcy Judge Roger G. Leland asking he be allowed to keep his $125,000 a year job as head of the bankrupt company.

Last week, trustee Murray Drabkin asked Garfield to resign. Then asked the court to order him fired. But a hearing on the request had been scheduled for next Monday, but that hearing will be delayed if Garfield's petition is granted.

Under bankruptcy law, the trustee appointed by the court to reorganize a company has the power to ask a judge to discharge executives and cancel company contracts.

Garfield's only chance of holding onto his job is to convince Whelan he should continue as head of the company he founded then brought to a $10 million debt.

Since taking over the company, Drabkin has taken several other actions to improve the financial picture. Auto-Train spokesman Tom Tucker said.

These actions have included spending money on long-deferred maintenance on Auto-Train rolling stock and the discharge of the wife of a company director paid $25,000 a year to oversee the company's two "boutiques," one at each terminal.

Glora Feldman, wife of Director Saul Feldman, last her job as assistant vice president for boutiques about a week ago, Tucker said.

Officially, the elimination of Mrs. Feldman's post is being called an "economy" measure. Her post is the only one which has been eliminated by the company, although non-essential jobs left open by attrition are not being filled, Tucker said.

Drabkin is also investigating a $50,000 a year consulting contract between Auto-Train and former Auto-Train Director Richard Tolbert, sources at the company and the Interstate Commerce Commission say.

A company source said Tolbert was awarded a $60,000 a year, five-year contract in 1972 when he left his company post. Several Auto-Train cars have been pulled from service so badly needed service can be done on the trains. "It's no secret Garfield deferred service," said Tucker, explaining conditions on Auto-Train cars deteriorated as the company debt mounted and less cash was available for repair work.

While the number of passengers the trains can take on each run has been reduced, Tucker said the company has managed to avoid turning away passengers with pre-paid reservations. The cars are expected to be back in service within a few weeks, Tucker said.

Auto-Train reservation clerks are now accepting ticket requests from persons who are owed refunds but would rather take trips instead.

ICC officials say Auto-Train owed people who cancelled reservations about $60,000 before bankruptcy was declared.

Glora Feldman, wife of Director Saul Feldman, last her job as assistant vice president for boutiques about a week ago, Tucker said.

Officially, the elimination of Mrs. Feldman's post is being called an "economy" measure. Her post is the only one which has been eliminated by the company, although non-essential jobs left open by attrition are not being filled, Tucker said.

Drabkin is also investigating a $50,000 a year consulting contract between Auto-Train and former Auto-Train Director Richard Tolbert, sources at the company and the Interstate Commerce Commission say.

A company source said Tolbert was awarded a $60,000 a year, five-year contract in 1972 when he left his company post. Several Auto-Train cars have been pulled from service so badly needed service can be done on the trains. "It's no secret Garfield deferred service," said Tucker, explaining conditions on Auto-Train cars deteriorated as the company debt mounted and less cash was available for repair work.

While the number of passengers the trains can take on each run has been reduced, Tucker said the company has managed to avoid turning away passengers with pre-paid reservations. The cars are expected to be back in service within a few weeks, Tucker said.

Auto-Train reservation clerks are now accepting ticket requests from persons who are owed refunds but would rather take trips instead.

ICC officials say Auto-Train owed people who cancelled reservations about $60,000 before bankruptcy was declared.

The Polish Folk Dancers of Polish National Alliance Lodge 3216 brush up on the skills they will be demonstrating this weekend as the PNA celebrates its 100th year. The dancers are (from left) Gerald Krallinger, Jennifer Rougeux, Erik Krallinger and Diana Krallinger.

Polish Alliance Birthday Sunday

WHAT: Polish National Alliance Day

WHERE: Orlando's Eola Park

WHEN: 2 p.m. Sunday

The members of the Polish National Alliance, Lodge 3216 in Winter Park, are planning to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of their organization with an afternoon of festivities Sunday in Orlando's Eola Park.

Activities will kick off at 2 p.m. with musical selections played by Orlando Naval Training Center Band, which will include the playing of "God Bless America" plus the Polish National Anthem.

After the invocation Congressman John Mica will read a proclamation he helped obtain from Gov. Bob Graham declaring Sunday as Polish National Alliance Day in commemoration of this centennial. The alliance, which was formed in Philadelphia in 1880, is the largest ethnic fraternal organization in the country, with membership of more than 300,000. There are approximately 140 members in the local lodge, which is located at 2408 Euston Road, Winter Park. The local lodge has been active for six years.

Following the opening address, the afternoon will be one of celebration with music, dancing, cultural displays and plenty of delicious Polish foods.

Colorful Polish Celebration Sunday

Many people of Polish descent and members of the lodge will be wearing Polish national costumes, many of which are handmade. Mrs. James Snodgrass, 2259 King John's Court in Winter Woods, will be wearing a lovely red and white dress she made, which is decorated with intricate, hand-stitched beadwork. "I've been sewing five hours a day for a month," she said, taking a deep sigh now that it is finally finished.

Other people in costumes will be the several dance troupes who will be performing throughout the afternoon. Representing the local lodge will be Genevieve Mosher, Eric Krallinger, Diana Krallinger, Gerald Krallinger, Jennifer Rougeux and Don Addington, who will perform a variety of Polish dances. Other entertainers will be the Poloniaise dance group from Titusville, the Bellevue dance couple, a Hungarian folk dance group, the Sweet Adelines, the Melody Trio Band, and the Orlando Pipes and Drums. Activities will center around the bandshell in the park and the public is invited.

Sophie Snodgrass puts the finishing touches on the beadwork of her costume.

Millions Witness 'Abscam'

NEW YORK (UPI) — While an estimated 40 million Americans watched Tuesday night, Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., took a $50,000 bribe from an FBI agent masquerading as an Arab sheikh and boasted of his connections with the Philadelphia city council and the Mafia.

"Money talks," he told the sheikh before a nation in audience. "Bull—walk." "Spend it well," said the sheikh.

The camera that filmed the sequence belonged to none of the three major networks. It belonged to the FBI, which set up a sting operation to tempt lawmakers to bribes in return for special favors in and out of the corridors of congressional power, and the quality of the film belied any journalistic professionalism.

"It looked like those pictures taken by bank cameras," said Marjorie Stein of CBS news. "Are they beautiful? No. But he hanged himself."

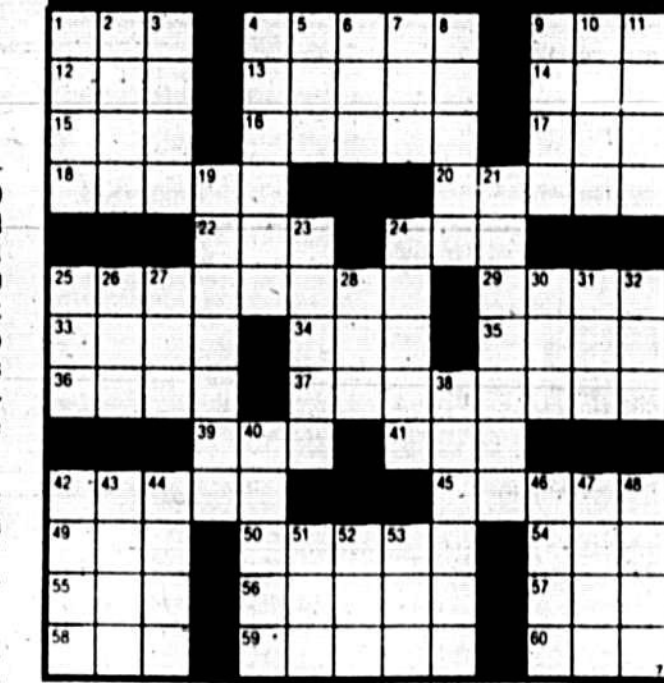

On the strength of the eye of the hidden FBI "Abscam" camera, Myers was expelled from Congress on Oct. 2. Tuesday he re-enacted his malfeasance on CBS, ABC and NBC as if he were a character on a television cops and robbers show. Half a dozen other House members are on similar performances following a U.S. Supreme Court ruling permitting the three major networks to broadcast the film. All three, now will make a bid for tapes involved in two other Abscam trials in Washington and Philadelphia.

ABC rode the fervor of 120 million baseball fans to the ratings championship for the week ending Oct. 12.

The top network television programs for the week ending Oct. 12, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. National League game (ABC); 2. Real People (NBC); 3. NBC Thursday Night Movies (NBC); 4. Dukes of Hazard (CBS); 5. 60 Minutes (CBS); 6. NBC Movie of the Week (NBC); 7. NBC Thursday Night Movie (NBC); 8. American League Championship (ABC); 9. National League Championship (ABC); 10. That's Incredible (ABC) and National League Championship (ABC) tie.

'Alexander' Puts Mississippi Man In 'Hog Heaven'

JACKSON, Miss (UPI) — A hog and a dog have made Wesley Perkins a celebrity of sorts. And he hopes the whole world may be reading in a few years about his pets and their exploits.

The article of the hog, "Alexander the Great", and his pit bull dog, "Lucky", have captured the curiosity of people of Jackson.

But the crowd-pleasing tricks are only a small part of the training Perkins is putting his pets through in a long-range plan to make Alexander the world's strongest hog.

"It's really a spectacular hog," Perkins says of the 500-pound Duroc-Jersey. "But wait until he gets full grown. That's why I named him Alexander the Great. He's going to be tremendous."

Perkins, 59, who spent 29 years as a ranger with the U.S. Department of Wildlife Conservation, said he has put Alexander on a carefully constructed training program that will have the hog pulling 3,000 pounds by the time he is four years old.

Perkins said he chose Alexander from about 20 other pigs on his farm because "his grandfather and father were big, strong hogs. He's got it in his blood."

Alexander, just eight months old, is already pulling about 3,000 pounds of concrete and people in a specially built wagon. Perkins plans for the hog eventually to tow a chain of cars and trucks totaling 15 tons.

Paulucci Wins Dorchester Battle

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The $10 million apartment complex, townhouses and a commercial area, dubbed Dorchester, is back on the planning boards for the 210 acre parcel at Rantoul Lane and State Road 84A in Lake Mary.

Paulucci Enterprises, represented in the Seminole Circuit Court by Abbott Herring, successfully fought off in court Friday an attempt to repeal the zoning necessary for the construction.

Visiting Circuit Judge Victor Wehle of St. Petersburg granted the development firm a permanent injunction against the city of Lake Mary, stopping the city from holding a referendum on Dec. 2 designed to let the city's voters decide whether the zoning should be repealed.

Herring and Massey had formally agreed on the facts concerning the council's rezoning the tract from agriculture to commercial and apartment zoning. They had also agreed that a petition had been filed by a citizens group to place the issue on the ballot.

All that was left for the court to decide was whether the proposed referendum to repeal the zoning would be legal. Judge Wehle, used as the basis for his decision a law suit from new Smyrna Beach, known as Andover V. New Smyrna Beach. The case held that zoning is not subject to a referendum.

Paulucci Enterprises' plan has been to construct 80 apartment units.

KAZARIAN BEATS THE PRICE!

By STACI BIEVENU

"IF YOU'RE UNDER 25: If you own a van or a pick-up, or if you just need immediate Auto Insurance coverage — you need to call me. Yes, according to Ralph Kazarian, "You may be paying too much for your Auto Insurance."

Mr. Kazarian is fully aware that we, as drivers, are tired of reading deceptive ads about how we can beat the high cost of our auto insurance, but there is something definite that sets him apart — specialization. He's an unusual man in his line of business, for he is willing to give hard-luck YOUNG DRIVERS a more-than-fair deal on their auto insurance.

"I feel that young people, in many cases, are unjustifiably charged high rates, and I know that many may be short on cash. That's why monthly payments are our specialty. Furthermore, there are a large number of drivers under 25 that are paying high rates due simply to their age; others are penalized because of their personal tastes in automobiles. Finally, customers who need minimum insurance coverage are turned away repeatedly. To overcome these situations is my whole reason for being in business."

Yes, this all sounds quite promising, but just how can Ralph Kazarian afford to offer a truly better price to you and me?

"I've shopped for years to find companies who offer the best possible rates for my particular customers. As a result, I represent 25 to 40 different companies who target their efforts to the specialized automobile and truck insurance market. This allows me to give my customers the insurance they need at the price they want to pay."

And Mr. Kazarian has proved himself to be quite successful in his approach. After 15 years in the business, he's established himself as an institution within the auto insurance industry in Florida. To prove his ambition and determination, he's opened nine offices in the last two years in the Central Florida area and has just recently remodeled his new Sanford office, which is located between Burger King and Flagship Bank on Orlando Avenue (323-2454).

So...if you're really interested in finding out how to get the insurance you need...at the price you want to pay — stop by one of Ralph Kazarian's auto insurance agencies...ADV.

'Royal Flush' Arrestees Jam Jail

Most Expected To Plead Guilty In Volusia Scam

By DAVID M. HAZLER
 Herald Staff Writer

Volusia deputies and Florida Department of Law Enforcement officials were busy Friday and Saturday arresting an estimated 77 burglars and theft suspects, as a three-month "raiding" operation involving four law enforcement agencies.

"Royal Flush," a fence operation run by undercover agents in a shop equipped with microphones and television cameras ended with a series of arrests of suspects shown allegedly selling stolen goods on about 43 hours of videotape.

The suspects have been charged with more than 130 separate crimes.

While reporters gathered at the Volusia County Sheriff's Office for information on how the scam worked, Volusia County deputies and Deland police pressed every available room into service as arrestees began arriving, brought in on warrants.

And a nondescript old building which had been an "antique" store for the last three months last month.

The building in Deland was the heart of the Royal Flush operation.

To its customers, law officers say, the shop was a place where stolen goods could be dumped quickly for about 10 cents on the dollar.

To law officers, the heart of the shop was a television camera and a videotape recorder which recorded every transaction taking place there.

Volusia County authorities have been able to clear 18 burglars so far. They think more will be cleared as soon as a whole mini-warehouse full of items believed stolen can be identified.

Deputies began making arrests Friday morning on the warrants, covering about 300 sales of allegedly stolen goods and one videotaped sale of cocaine.

Most of the arrestees are residents of Deland and western Volusia County, officers say. Most are fairly young and many have past burglary records, deputies report.

While Seminole County deputies worked with Volusia authorities they now say most if not all of the hot merchandise comes from the north side of the St. Johns river.

"They'd bring in (merchandise) and say 'I'll sell, we'll haggle with them and bargain them down,'" said one of the agents, who looked more like the kind of person expected to be running a junk shop and not running an investigation.

One of the difficult aspects of the case, he said, was turning away people simply trying to sell their odds and ends. "We'd offer them such a low price that they usually left and went somewhere else," he said, adding the state did have to lay out some cash for legitimate merchandise, first to fill the shop and then because some customers just would not be turned away.

In the end, about $10,000 was spent by agents on more than $137,000 in goods. Material not identified by the end of the investigation will be sold at public auction, law officers said.

The merchandise is being stored in two mini-warehouses in Deland. Items still unidentified include a small piano and several motorcycles.

The operation became so popular in Deland that one stolen gun collection was recovered before the property owner knew it was gone.

A deputy said as soon as he called, they were able to tell him his $1,300 gun collection had been in their hands for six hours.

John VanTrunk, head of the FDLE's regional office in Orlando, said most of the persons on tape probably will plead guilty and not go to trial, as soon as they find out they are on tape telling an undercover agent the goods they are selling are stolen.

The tapes cannot be made public until either the pleas or trial in order to preserve their admissibility in court, he said.

By late afternoon Friday, as arrestees began streaming into the Volusia Jail, death threats had already been phoned into the shop, agents say.

The agents, some of whom are charged during other investigations in the area, were on edge, at one point attempting to take a Herald photographer's film after they thought pictures of them had been photographed.

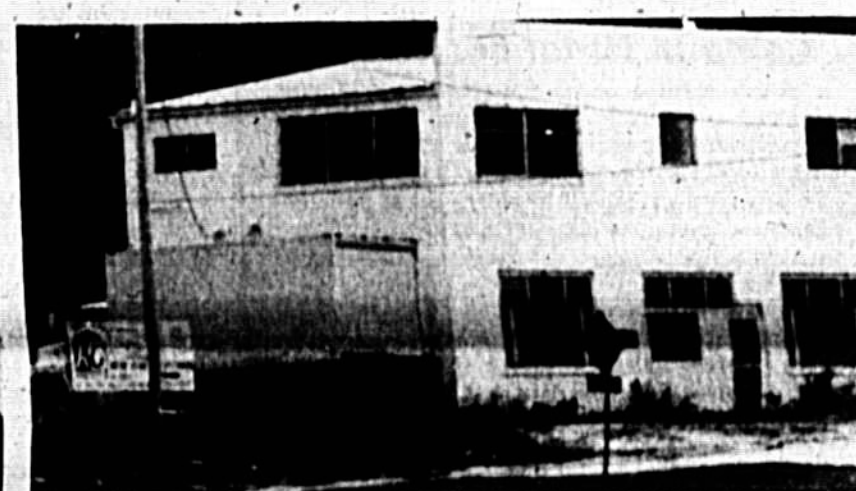

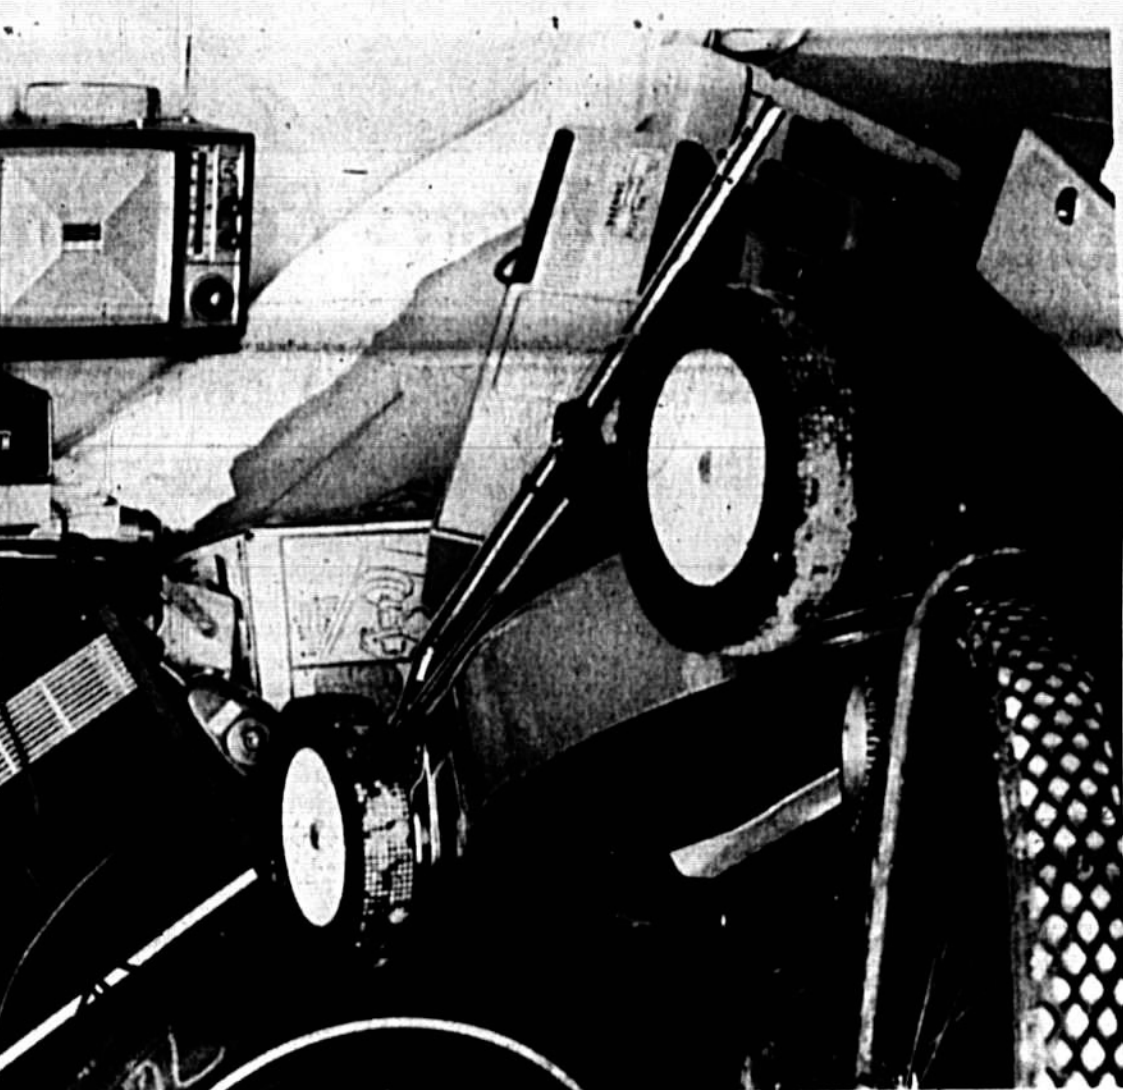

The sting operation was the first in Volusia, VanTrunk said, adding the agent in charge had worked two other similar operations.

One of the agents said the operation was called to a halt less than four months after the store opened on July 27 because "we were getting too many repeat customers (and) spending money just to get additional charges on people."

Originally, Seminole deputies were brought into the operation along with Orange City police, because it was believed the crimes under investigation had spilled over the county line and into the city south of Deland.

But while Orange City police have been able to make good cases, it now appears none of the stolen goods will be linked to the city south of Deland.

Seminole County crimes, officers say, were a school bus for 13 years (the first year as a

At left, some of the goods purchased by undercover "fences" were heaped in one of two Deland mini-warehouses. Many of the items have not yet been identified by their former owners, deputies say. National Lupus Week Draws Attention To Misunderstood Disease

By JANE CANNELBERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

Lupus, Erythematosus, commonly called Lupus, may not be a household word, but the American Lupus Society is trying to remedy that by declaring this week (Oct. 19-25) "National Lupus Week."

The society is trying to create a greater public awareness of the disease, which though not as well known as diseases such as Muscular Dystrophy, Multiple Sclerosis and Cystic Fibrosis, is more prevalent.

Lupus attacks females in a 7 to 1 ratio over males and mostly in the years between 20 and 40 — the child bearing years, according to Allamonte Springs dermatologist Dr. Jerome Africk.

The Discoid (DLE) form causes multiple skin problems and Systemic (SLE) form attacks internally and can damage or destroy any organ, Africk said. Some victims have a combination of both.

Just how serious the disease is depends upon what parts of the body are affected. It can be from mild to life threatening.

Africk, who sees an average of one new Lupus patient a week, said there is no cure for the disease, though using currently approved medications and techniques most Lupus is controllable.

Even a mild case can become serious if not properly treated. The cause of Lupus is not known and its diagnosis is sometimes difficult as there is no single set of symptoms or pattern to the disease. Early warnings include sun rash, chills, extreme fatigue, low grade fever (99.5 to 100.5 degrees), hair loss, chest and joint pain, swelling of hands and feet, Africk said. Lupus can be diagnosed by doing a biopsy on the patient.

It is not cancerous, malignant or infectious, but Lupus causes scarring and lesions, Africk said. Victims should stay out of the sun.

He also advised that certain medications such as tetracycline, and anti-hypertensive, can kick off the disease making it worse. "It can go into remission, but the patient never gets rid of it," said Africk.

If you want to learn what it really means to have Lupus, talk to someone like Lois Maheu, 48 Lakeside Drive, Sanford. Mrs. Maheu has had Systemic Lupus for 24 years and knows first-hand the physical and emotional toll the disease can take. Mrs. Maheu was seven months pregnant with her son, Marc, when she first began to display symptoms, which her West Palm Beach obstetrician first thought meant toxemia. Her daughter was 2½ at the time.

Fortunately for Mrs. Maheu, a young internist who had treated the disease while interning at Duke University was called in and recognized what she had and began treating it. "I've been going to him ever since," she said.

It took three or four years to get the disease under control and with the exception of a few flare-ups, it has been kept pretty well under control since then, she added.

"I was off of my medication for five years after moving to Sanford in 1967," Mrs. Maheu said. "I drove a school bus for 13 years (the first year as a substitute), but I had a seizure one night in my sleep and that ended that. I am retired on a disability from the school board."

"Lupus makes me tired, weak and anemic and I cry a lot," Mrs. Maheu said. "It's hard for our families to understand why we can't do the things they think we should and keep the house clean. This is the thing that depresses Lupus patients most."

Lupus is not a new disease and its existence has been recognized for centuries. Hypocrates, the father of medicine, discussed it (in his discoid form) in many of his writings.

For further information on Lupus, phone the foundation president, Elizabeth Dean, at 621-2394.
