60,000 Bulgarians protest

SOFIA, Bulgaria — The largest pro-democracy demonstration in four decades occurred Sunday in Bulgaria's capital. About 60,000 protesters jammed Sofia's main square to demand political reforms. The rally came two days after a shakeup in the ruling Politburo and on the eve of a crucial Communist Party plenum.

Food stolen, cook injured

SANFORD — Katie Mae Brinkley, 40, returned to the kitchen of the Sanford boarding house where she lives and found another boarder eating the fish and rice she had just prepared.

Brinkley, who is three months pregnant, told police she lectured the man for taking her food and offered to cook something for him. She said he left the kitchen and returned in about one minute. Brinkley said James Perry Jr., 40, told her to "look" just before he allegedly hit her in the left side of the head with an axe handle.

Brinkley was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital for a 2-inch cut to her head. Perry, of 1413 W. 13 St., was jailed on a charge of aggravated battery. He was arrested at the boarding house at 1:47 p.m. Sunday following the incident.

No winner in Lotto drawing

TALLAHASSEE — No one picked all six winning numbers in this week's Florida Lotto drawing as the jackpot rose to an estimated $13 million for next week. Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

The winning numbers in Saturday's drawing were 41, 10, 16, 43, 19, and 40.

Although nobody won the grand prize, more than 198,000 tickets qualified for smaller prizes. Payouts were:

□ 195 tickets matched five numbers to win $4,312.50.

□ 9,669 tickets matched four numbers to win $127.

□ 186,894 matched three numbers to win $6.

The jackpot is estimated each Sunday, based on Lotto sales projections for the next seven days, funds from rollovers and projected long term interest rates. The estimated prize for Dec. 16 is $13 million, if paid to a single winner in 20 annual installments.

Change expected at port

By SHAD GORDON
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Port Everglades Steel Corp., the Port of Sanford's oldest and largest tenant, is expected to announce on Wednesday an expansion of its warehouse and distribution facilities.

The company now has a 50,500-square-foot warehouse in the industrial park, located near the Highway 17-92 and Interstate 4 junction west of Sanford. The building is owned by the Seminole County Port Authority and leased by Port Everglades.

The company, headquartered in Fort Lauderdale, is a subsidiary of Titan Industrial Corp. of New York, the nation's largest privately held steel distributor. It also has offices in Tampa and Jacksonville.

The Sanford warehouse and distribution center distributes steel products used in commercial and residential construction throughout central Florida.

Neither port nor company officials would comment today on the details of the company's expansion plans in Sanford.

The announcement of the expansion is expected to be made Wednesday afternoon at the Omni Hotel in Orlando.

Brian Gordon, president of Port Everglades, is scheduled to be joined there by Sandra Glenn, chairwoman of the Seminole County Board of Commissioners, and Harry Hagle, chairman of the Seminole County Port Authority.

Dennis Dolgner, port director, said Port Everglades became the port's first tenant in the fall of 1970.

The Port Authority, a public, non-profit board, was

School board to consider policy change for less strict ceremony requirements

By VICKI DeGOSSEN

SANFORD — While Seminole County ranks among the toughest in the state in graduation requirements, the school board will consider changing their policy to make it easier to take part in commencement ceremonies. They will take up the issue at their meeting tomorrow at 3 p.m.

Also at the meeting, the school board will consider out-of-zone transfer requests for two Goldboro Elementary School students who were exposed to portions of an R-rated horror movie during a physical education class.

If the board changes their commencement policy, students who have completed 23 of the 24 credits required for graduation may participate in graduation ceremonies. They will not receive a diploma at the ceremony, rather a certificate of completion with the understanding they will attend summer school and complete the missing credit before receiving their diplomas. In the past, students needed all 24 credits completed before they were allowed to participate in ceremonies.

Most classes are worth one credit, while some electives are worth a half credit. School officials say making up the missing credit during summer school would be an

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission tonight will hear final reading of an ordinance designed to improve safety of convenience store workers.

County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley said in a letter to the Sanford Herald she will re-introduce the ordinance to the county commission tomorrow. The county commission first considered the regulations in February.

The ordinance would require two store employees on duty from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. Other provisions include installation of security cameras and drop safes, clearer visibility through store windows and improved lighting in store parking lots.

Parents want to keep band, chorus in 'wheel' schedule

By VICKI DeGOSSEN

SANFORD — You might call it the Wheel of Confusion.

According to Willie Holt, the new director of middle school education, many parents are confused about the recommendations of the middle school task force. The task force presented the results of its two year study to the school board last week.

One recommendation from the group's report was that a broad range of musical experiences should be included in the middle school exploratory program, sometimes called the "exploratory wheel," and the curriculum "should not include year-long band and chorus classes which are inconsistent with the middle school philosophy."

Reading the statement out of context, Holt explained, parents have concluded that their children's band and chorus classes will be stopped immediately and demoted to an after-school club activity.

Not so, says Holt. "Implementation of such a move is a long range goal," Holt explained. "It is not our goal that we will discontinue band in the middle schools."

There will be a great deal of study on the subject and the alternatives in the months and

Lake Mary police, firemen join forces in new facility

By SUSAN LOREN

LAKE MARY — "Horses settle in. Police officer just move."

Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale's salty comment on the new $1 million operations center on Rinehart Road shows he is uncomfortable with the police and fire department's new station house.

Lauderdale said his military background made him more at home in the old temporary station house at 145 E. Wilbur Ave. "I'm not very comfortable here. I guess I'll get used to it," Lauderdale said of his new digs.

Hardest for Lauderdale to accept is the presence of four, blue velveteen recliners to accommodate firefighters who will be stationed at the facility for 24-hour shifts. "I'm not use to troops sitting around the building," he said. As he walked through the building, Lauderdale turned out electric lights he said were left on by some of the departments 13 civilian workers who provide clerical and support services to both police and fire emergency workers.

Lauderdale said Lake Mary police officers, except for himself, his captain and two investigators, will rarely be seen in the station house. They report in and then hit the road, either on patrol in cars or on two motorcycles. "You won't ever find a police officer here at night," he said. The Florida Highway Patrol also operates a sub-station out of the police station.

Relocating to the new station house has made no difference in police operations, except "I can't holler across the hall anymore," Lauderdale said. "We don't do anything differently. The officers don't get to hang around. The investigators just have more space. All I care about is getting a

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

PSC joins probe of Bell pay phones

United Press International

MIAMI — The Florida Public Service Commission has joined a state investigation of Southern Bell to determine whether accounting mistakes in its pay phone revenues resulted in higher phone bills for customers statewide.

Southern Bell has already admitted it understated its pay-phone income in revenue reports to state and federal utility commissions. Commission attorney Debra Schiro said the agency wants to determine whether Bell gave the correct revenue figures to the PSC.

Southern Bell spokesman Mike Branigan said the phone company is "fully confident" it gave the PSC the correct revenue figures.

Under state law, the commission monitors utilities' revenues and expenses to make sure their profits are not excessive. If the commission decides profits are too high, it can order refunds to customers or rate reductions. If revenues are understated, profits appear smaller.

Schiro said the review is in a preliminary stage and the commission has no evidence that Southern Bell understated its revenues to the state.

She said the review was prompted by a request for assistance from the Florida attorney general's office, which launched a probe of Southern Bell's pay-phone operations last month.

Schiro said the commission would help the attorney general's office audit Southern Bell's revenue statements, as well as review whether any incorrect figures affected customers.

High accident rate recorded

MIAMI — The most dangerous place for motorists in Duval County is the intersection of Interstate 95 and the Dolphin Expressway, where 239 accidents occurred in about six months, a traffic study showed.

Twice as many accidents occurred at that intersection than at any other single location in the county, according to Metro-Dade Police records of accidents between Jan. 1 and mid-July. The Golden Glades interchange ranked as the second most accident-prone place, followed by the road network through Miami International Airport.

The computer analysis showed that 15 of Duval County's most dangerous spots are either on expressways or where expressways cross major roads.

Pilot arrested for drinking

PORT LAUDERDALE — Police arrested a Miami Beach pilot on charges of flying under the influence of alcohol after a sloppy landing at Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport.

Pilot Ignacio Goldenberg made three passes at the runway, nearly hit some trees and made "a really terrible landing," a police spokesman said.

Goldenberg, who told police he is a real estate developer, was arrested Sunday afternoon.

Continue search for Orlando man

ST. CLOUD — A search resumed today for the body of an Orlando man who apparently drowned when his fishing boat capsized in East Lake, Fla., Sunday.

Curtis Palmer, 35, was last seen by his fishing partner early Sunday when a five-foot wave hit their boat. His partner, Mike Cooper, was found unharmed about 3:30 Sunday morning. Investigators said boating conditions at the lake were poor, with strong winds and temperatures in the 30s, when the two friends set out Saturday night. They were participating in a fishing tournament.

Investigators think alcohol may have been a factor, since the boat debris contained a nearly empty bottle of whiskey.

Fire cause sought

FRUITLAND PARK — Central Florida fire investigators are still trying to find the cause of a weekend fire that killed a woman and two children.

The fire at a travel trailer near Fruitland Park on Friday left the three bodies so badly burned that investigators have been unable to positively identify the bodies. But church officials said Jane Ellen Turner and her twin 3-year-old sons, Daniel and Donald, were in the trailer.

The boys' father reported the fire, saying he was at a nearby store when he saw the flames and called for help.

Inmates' drug habits surveyed

CLEARWATER — The Pinellas County Sheriff's Office is conducting a drug study among jail inmates, hoping to compile a statistical portrait of drug use among those accused or convicted of crimes.

Jail officials are questioning about 300 prisoners about their experience with drugs, looking for specifics that can help them prevent crime and improve enforcement.

Among the questions they are asking is whether the prisoners have used "ice," a smokable form of methamphetamine, that health officials say is even more dangerous than crack cocaine. In Florida, a pound of crack cocaine is worth 16 times as much as a pound of a low-mess cocaine produced by smoking crack.

So far, law enforcement agencies have found no evidence of the drug in the Tampa Bay Area.

Oil leases in effect

TAMPA — While Florida scrambles with federal officials to keep oil tans like Shell and Mobil away from its coastline, two massive oil leases covering 3.7 million acres of submerged land have been virtually forgotten.

The leases grant a little-known company called Coastal Petroleum Co. oil and gas rights to state waters off Florida's Gulf Coast from Apalachicola to Naples, extending just beyond 10 miles from the coast.

The leases, issued by the state in 1941, also entitle Coastal to some or all of the mineral rights under Tampa Bay and Charlotte Harbor as well as lakes Okechobee, Kissimmee, Apopka, Panossee and a handful of others.

It also covers submerged lands under the Hillsborough, Manatee, Alafia, Peace and Myakka rivers and parts of the St. Johns and Suwannee rivers, and others.

All told, Coastal leases 3.7 million acres of submerged lands, some of the state's most ecologically fragile property, for which it pays the state $60,347 a year.

Coastal has one office, in Tallahassee. It employs a president, a secretary, some occasional consultants and "a whole fleet of lawyers," said its president, Phillip Ware.

Extending dialysis deadline advocated

United Press International

TAMPA — The government has an obligation to kidney dialysis patients and should extend the Feb. 1 deadline for a new change that threatens to end at-home treatment for 3,000 patients, a former health chief said.

Bruce Hytner, who retired in 1985 as staff director of the health subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Congress "threw out the baby with the bath" when it cut the Medicare payment rate for at-home dialysis by 50 percent.

After hearing evidence that a Miami company had made excessive profits from at-home dialysis, Congress voted last month to cut the payment rate for the treatment by 50 percent. The company, Home Intensive Care Inc., said it will stop treating its nearly 2,000 patients across the United States by Feb. 1 when the payment rate changes.

Paying for nurses or technicians to administer dialysis to people in their homes "is not worth it," said William Vaughn, an aide to Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., current chairman of the health subcommittee.

"We have repealed payment for mammograms (to screen for breast cancer) and 4,000 women will die each year as a result. We have 20 percent of children in this country without health insurance," said Vaughn.

"If money came from heaven like manna we could pay for this. But it doesn't and we have to make choices."

But the patients who will lose the home care they were getting say the alternatives are bleak. For some, who are bedridden, it means being transported on a stretcher three times a week to a dialysis center at a cost of up to $750 a month.

For others, it will mean quitting jobs or school because the four to six hours of treatment at a center conflict with their schedules.

Hytner, now head of a Tampa advocacy group for kidney patients, said the government overlooked some patients' desperate need for an alternative to treatment at a dialysis clinic, and should at least negotiate on the cost of at-home treatment.

Hytner's organization and others are lobbying Congress to extend the Feb. 1 deadline so patients can have more time to find a spot at a dialysis center.

Kidney patients, regardless of their age or income, are covered by Medicare because 30 years ago, they were the first patients for whom a life-saving but prohibitively expensive technology became available.

At the time, kidney patients were dying because of lack of money and an inadequate supply of the new dialysis machines.

"Medicare, obviously, cannot cover what happens to everyone. But for whatever the reasons initially, Medicare did make a commitment (to cover kidney patients)," Hytner said.

"Once having assumed that obligation, do you say, 'Now that we've saved your life we don't give a damn what that quality of life amounts to?'"

"I don't want to say, 'Here's your treatment, live with it, but don't tell me your family is falling apart or your life is miserable?'"

Hytner said reports are filtering in from across the country that some patients may opt to die rather than go back to centers for dialysis.

Migrants fail to find better non-farm jobs

United Press International

BALM — Despite a sweeping immigration law granting amnesty to more than a million migrant workers, farm laborers are still finding it difficult to leave the fields for better-paying jobs, government and social experts say.

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 granted amnesty to more than a million Mexican and Central American migrants long hidden on farms throughout the United States. Growers feared the workers would leave for easier jobs with steady salaries, but a Sunday report in the Tampa Tribune says that hasn't happened. Labor surpluses have been reported on farms in California and along the East Coast, labor experts said.

"In my opinion the situation hasn't changed significantly," said Richard Minca, an expert on migrant workers with the U.S. Department of Labor. "There's always been an abundance of farm labor in this country, at least going back to the mid-70s. On average there's a fast outflow of workers from farm work into other areas, but there's also been a much faster inflow."

While many farmworkers were illegal, generations of them have been U.S. citizens, unable to break out of poverty.

Javier Calderon, 29, has been a tomato picker, a mechanic, an orange picker, a carpenter, a strawberry picker and a janitor. Each time he breaks clear of the fields, hard luck and economics push him back in again.

Now, he picks peppers in southern Hillsborough County for about four hours a day, supporting his wife and three children on his $50 a week salary.

"I had a job in Houston as a maintenance man in an apartment building, but when the economy went, so did the job," Calderon said. "I'm trying to get a job here as a mechanic. I've got the skills, but you've got to speak and write English and I don't. I've tried to learn it, taken some classes, but I'm just not any good at it."

Isolated in rural pockets of poverty, many migrants have large families.

Stenstrom's PTA struggling with growth at school

By WENDY DUBOIS
 Herald staff writer

OVIEDO — The overcrowding problem at Stenstrom Elementary School is raging out of control and the PTA wants something done. The problem is deciding what to do.

Miriam Stenstrom, the president of the Stenstrom Parent Teacher Association (PTA) said current conditions are unacceptable in a school designed to accommodate 775 students, there are 1,136 enrolled.

"Students are getting an education, but they are being taught in planning areas and resource rooms," she said. "These resource rooms are maybe 15 feet by 11 feet and the teachers have to stack the furniture just to fit the 25 students into a reading circle."

However, there is some friction between the parents and a special committee appointed by the school board to solve the problem. The committee has suggested the school implement double sessions. Some parents oppose the idea.

Double sessions shorten the school day to five hours. Half the student population would attend classes from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m., the others would be in class from 1 to 6 p.m.

The PTA surveyed parents about different scheduling options. While only 436 of the 1,136 surveys sent out were returned, Stenstrom said it is a representative sampling.

Only one quarter of the respondents indicated double sessions would be their first choice of how to deal with the problem. Sixty eight percent of the parents chose the option of building a "portable school," either on property already owned by the school district (such as Lawton or Geneva elementary schools) or on rental property.

Stenstrom, which opened in January of 1989 at its current location, was previously a portable school on the campus of Lawton Elementary School.

There are presently a dozen portable classrooms on the Stenstrom campus to accommodate the overflow population. There is no more available land at the site on which to place additional portables as the school's population increases.

According to Stenstrom, there are no plumbing facilities in the portables and trips to the bathroom take a great deal of time away from the learning period. Fourth and fifth grade students are being asked to bring water jugs to school to avoid trips to the main building to get drinks.

Twenty-eight percent of the parents would prefer to have the school remain in the district as their children could attend school in less crowded conditions.

Fifty-seven percent of the parents preferred to try and rearrange the current facilities and fit all the students into the available space, included in that group was the option of a modified school calendar (year-round school) as a way to more effectively use existing space.

Stenstrom said if state guidelines on the amount of space required for each student are followed, only six additional classrooms could be created from the available space at the school.

"We have the need for much more than that," she said.

Most of the parents opposed to the double sessions said such a schedule would disrupt family life as well as decrease the quality of education.

"You'd have little children up in the wee hours of the morning to be in school at 7 a.m.," Stenstrom said. "Others would be in class until 6 at night. That's much too late for some of the youngest children." Currently, students do not report to class until 8:30 a.m. and are done for the day by 2:50 p.m.

Lake Mary officials rezone 60 acres for residential use

LAKE MARY — Park Avenue Country Club Road between County Road 427 and Broadmoor Road.

Park Avenue has proposed access to the subdivision by Lealie Lane. But commissioners say that intersection, marked by a sharp curve, is already made too dangerous by speeding drivers along Country Club Road. The safe alternative, they say, is access by North Road, located south of Lealie Lane.

"I have heartache on access by Lealie Lane," Mayor Dick Foss said. "If it's too costly, then the project is unfeasible."

The city commission voted 4-to-1 last week to approve on first reading an ordinance rezoning the parcel from agricultural to residential use after Park Avenue representative John Byrnes presented the firm's plan to build up to 50 homes on the parcel. But commissioners cautioned him that careful planning was needed before the development could be allowed to generate 500 more daily trips on

UCF fights a 'white' image

United Press International

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida is trying to boost the state's lowest minority attendance figures but is meeting resistance from blacks who say they are reluctant to attend the "white school."

Ask UCF student Brian Covington, who tries to encourage high school students in his home town of Winter Haven to attend the school. He says many of his fellow blacks have heard only one thing about UCF: it is an all-white school.

"The University of Central Florida is still considered a white school," the business management major said.

"I sell the school to a lot of other guys. I tell them good things about the university, but I also tell them you can't socialize like you can at FAMU (Florida A&M University) or Florida State."

UCF's new president, Steven Altman, said he is committed to changing the school's dead-end ranking among Florida's nine public universities in terms of minority enrollment.

"It's a high priority for me to see this institution diversify the nature of its student body along racial, ethnic and geographic lines," Altman said. The percentage has fallen in recent years to 3.7 percent. Systemwide, the figure is 9.1 percent, down from 10 percent in 1977.

The system has added black faculty, but black enrollment has been declining at most campuses while a larger proportion of blacks have been attending FAMU, the traditionally black university.

In 1988, blacks comprised 67.1 percent of the FAMU student body, compared to 9.3 percent at Florida International University, 6.6 percent at the University of North Florida, 6.5 percent at Florida State University, 6.1 percent at the University of Florida, 5.2 percent at Florida Atlantic University, 5 percent at the University of West Florida and 4 percent at the University of South Florida.

UCF has been aggressively recruiting minority students but faces numerous obstacles. With minorities comprising only 2.8 percent of the faculty, the school does not give the impression of being a place where blacks can get ahead, said African-American Student Union President Richard Sherrod.

Black prospective students also are deterred by the lack of student organizations to help them cope with college, say area guidance counselors.

UCF is still suffering ill will among central Florida blacks from a dispute last year over fundraising and control of the McKnight Center for Excellence, a program providing after-school tutoring for disadvantaged students, the Sentinel reported.

Recruitment efforts away from central Florida are difficult because of a lack of dormitory space. Minority students who do attend UCF say they were attracted by the chance to play sports or by special programs.

St. Lucia must be very happy

If you let the inebriable weather scare you away from the annual Christmas parade in downtown Sanford on Saturday, you missed a fine show. It was, in one sense, the tasty icing on the deliciously successful St. Lucia Festival.

The festival, and the parade — both the fruits of extensive volunteer effort — are a tribute to the good that results when people in the community dedicate themselves to a worthwhile cause.

Thousands of youngsters and grownups lined the parade route despite a chilly wind and a cold drizzle. Hundreds more participated in the parade itself. To watch the participants and listen to the spectators, the event clearly was a joyful success.

This year, Alison Parrish supervised the organization of the parade, traditionally sponsored by the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees. Working with organizers of the city's first St. Lucia Festival, parade volunteers altered its route to accommodate the festival, which was conceived to celebrate Sanford's Swedish roots.

The festival was the brainchild of the Future of Sanford Committee, chaired by Mayor Bettye Smith. A festival subcommittee, chaired by Kay Bartholomew and staffed by more volunteers, gave residents of the Sanford area a seasonal celebration that was fun as well as educational.

The weekend's events are a demonstration of how a sense of community — and community pride — are fostered when ingenious ideas and hard-working volunteers are combined.

Everyone involved deserves commendation. We look forward to next year's events.

What happened on the Iowa?

With every passing day, the Navy's report on the causes of last April's gun turret explosion on the battleship Iowa becomes more questionable and its allegations against the seaman who it says caused the blast more unfair.

The blast, which occurred during a firing exercise in the Atlantic, killed the seaman and 46 other sailors. Although the Navy has withdrawn the charge that the seaman, Gunner's Mate 2nd Class Clayton Hartwig, had a homosexual relationship with another member of the Iowa's crew, it continues to insist that Hartwig was despondent and suicidal and that he deliberately caused the blast. But in recent weeks, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has found that the chemical residues, which the Navy says prove that a detonator — meaning sabotage — caused the blast, could as easily have come from a solvent used in the Navy's investigation.

That's only one sign of the dubiousness of the Navy's conclusion. Since the Navy's own investigator made his original findings, he has changed his explanation of what triggered the blast — originally he said it had been an electronic detonator; he now says it probably was a chemical device. Even before the April explosion, crewmen and their families had been reporting accidents on the ship, incidents not mentioned in the Navy's report.

Those charges are compounded by the fact that, at the time of the explosion, the Navy Sea Systems Command was conducting experiments on the Iowa's guns without the knowledge of the ship's captain and by the fact that, as alleged by Rep. Mary Rose Oskar of Ohio before the explosion, only a fraction of the gunnery crew members were adequately trained.

There are conflicting reports about Hartwig himself. Some of his shipmates regarded him as depressed, others did not; several said that Hartwig was looking forward to a new assignment in London, and that he lacked the technical skills to build the kind of device that allegedly caused the blast.

There'll now be inquiries by both the House and Senate Armed Services committees and by the General Accounting Office into the blast and the conduct of the Navy's investigation. Those inquiries are more than justified. The Navy may still turn out to be right, but both the evidence and the methods of the Navy investigation raise grave doubts that, rather than pursuing the truth, some Navy investigators were so eager to take the blame off the Navy that they were willing to destroy the reputation of a man who served honorably and is no longer here to defend himself.

Celebrating ourselves six times over

"We must learn to enjoy each other's proximity." — S. Radhakrishnan, philosopher and former vice president of India.

The splendid uniqueness that the world knows as America blossoms with a wondrous happiness at this time of the year. It's my favorite six-week period, a time of exultation and proclamations of joy — not joy for one blessed event but joy for the six-fold plenitude of who we are.

It's also a time to become inundated with many-eyed opportunities to party ourselves into bedazzled. Between Thanksgiving and the first week of the New Year, Americans now celebrate six different historical, religious and ethnic holidays. I call these celebrations, with an eclectic vengeance, the American Festival of Holidays.

No other nation comes close to such festive conviviality in such a short period. I write a variation of this column every year to reaffirm that the United States of America is a composite of the Different Peoples of the World. This year, the column is to help educate Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

With one of the nation's highest median family incomes, this elegant enclave is about as typically American as Mahatma Parbhu's recent self-concocted mental hoochies. Recently a news story reported that only 55 percent of Bloomfield Hills' school children will celebrate Christmas.

"What about Kwanzaa?" I asked school district spokesperson Penny Cumber. "That's one I don't know about," she admitted. So — as Count Basie might say — here is Stone's annual American Festival of Holidays primer for 1989.

1. Thanksgiving (Nov. 23): It commemorates gratitude for the Pilgrims' first successful harvest with a feast for invited native Americans. Today, merchants have hustled the holiday into an inauguration of the Christmas shopping period.

2. Hanukkah (Dec. 22): A Jewish commemoration of the Maccabean victory in 165 B.C. over the Syrian tyrant, Antiochus IV. In the Temple at Jerusalem, a small cruse had just enough oil to light the holy lamps, but it burned miraculously for eight days. During the eight-day celebration, shamash (candle) is used to light the other eight candles in the menorah.

3. Christmas (Dec. 25): One of the two most sacred celebrations in Christendom, it commemorates the birth of a Jewish child, Jesus Christ.

4. Kwanzaa (Dec. 26): A seven-day celebration for African-Americans that begins the day after Christmas. Kwanzaa (Swahili for "first fruits," a phrase also found in the Bible) was inaugurated in 1967 by an archaic cultural nationalist, Dr. Maulana Ron Karenga. This youngest of the holidays attempts to celebrate the African heritage by de-emphasizing the excessive commercialism of Christmas. Each day, starting with Dec. 26, a child lights a different candle to celebrate each of the Swahili-named seven principles.

5. New Year's Day (Jan. 1): Originally designated as the first day of the New Year, it now celebrates the major college football bowl games.

6. Los Tres Reyes Magos (Festival of Three Kings) (Jan. 6): Puerto Ricans and many Latinos celebrate this holiday (the Christian Epiphany) when the three wise men — always interracially depicted — paid homage to the new-born babe in Bethlehem.

What about Kwanzaa?

DAVID S. BRODER

Bush: Manager or leader?

WASHINGTON — The Malta summit was likely the last major act of George Bush's first year as President. In thinking about what we have learned of his qualities, the newly published book, "On Leadership," by foundation president and former Cabinet member John W. Gardner offers some distinctions that are helpful.

Bush clearly has shown himself a good manager, which in Gardner's definition means "prevailing over processes by which the organization functions, allocating resources prudently, and making the best possible use of people." But management is not leadership.

Gardner offers a checklist of six attributes which, if not exhaustive, are at least suggestive of traits that distinguish leaders. Of those six traits, the evidence so far suggests that Bush may possess only two.

Leaders, says Gardner, "have the political skill to cope with the conflicting requirements of multiple constituencies." Bush showed that skill in the 1988 campaign, knitting together diverse factions of the Republican Party. As President, he has shown an instinct to "reach out" to constituencies beyond his party. His politics tends to be inclusive, not exclusionary.

The second quality he regularly displays is one Gardner described this way: "In thinking about the unit they are heading, they (leaders) grasp its relationship to larger realities..." Bush has shown great sensitivity to the presidency's role in the national government, to Washington's role in the federal system and to the United States' role in NATO and other international partnerships. He is not so caught up in gratifying his own ego that he forgets others' feelings and needs. That is one reason he has earned the trust of Mikhail Gorbachev and other foreign leaders.

But the other four Gardner criteria pose challenges Bush has yet to meet.

First, he says, leaders "think longer term — beyond the day's crises, beyond the quarterly report, beyond the horizon." This is the "vision thing" Bush has so often derided, and its lack threatens to limit the success of his presidency. He came to office explicitly affirming that Ronald Reagan had set the nation on the right course and believing that all he had to do was make the fine-tuning adjustments to hold it steady.

Now it turns out that one era of history — the Cold War — is ending and a whole new set of challenges confronts him. The situation cries out for a President capable of imagining and describing the shape of a new world order and defining America's role in it. Bush has yet to show he can do that.

Second, Gardner says, leaders "reach and influence constituencies beyond their jurisdictions, beyond boundaries. Thomas Jefferson influenced people all over Europe. Gandhi influenced people all over the world." This is, at the moment, the biggest difference between Gorbachev and Bush. The Soviet leader is playing a far weaker hand than our President. But he has found a way to reach across national boundaries and ideological barriers and move people with the power of his ideas — even though many of those ideas are borrowings from the West. Bush has yet to attempt this feat of leadership, let alone succeed at it.

Third, says Gardner, leaders "put heavy emphasis on the intangibles of vision, values and motivation and understand intuitively the nonrational and unconscious elements in leader-constituent interaction." This is Bush's confessed area of weakness. As he told reporters on Malta, seeking some sense of what the summit had meant to him, "The emotional part is hard for me to describe because I'm not an articulate emotionalist."

This lack underlines the aspect of the Bush presidency that should be most worrisome to his political advisers: his inability to move and mobilize people with a public address.

Fourth and finally, Gardner says leaders "think in terms of renewal, (while) the routine manager tends to accept organizational structure and process as it exists." The structural changes Bush has advocated — the line-item veto, for example — are far from the heart of the challenge the nation faces. At bottom, he is a status quo man, comfortable with American life as he has known it.

It is the challenge of national renewal that America must meet, if we are to find a substitute for the great task of confronting totalitarianism on which we have focused for the last half-century.

That is the leadership challenge that confronts President Bush. It is one he has still to meet.

Bush clearly has shown himself a good manager.

U.S. Customs takes it easy on Congress

WASHINGTON — Dozens of members of Congress will soon be winging homeward from official trips overseas, their luggage bulging with Christmas presents for the folks back home. Many of them will slip through customs without declaring a single knick-knack or paying the import fees that customs charges ordinary citizens.

When hotel magnate Leone Helmsley said taxes were for the "little people," she was expressing a sentiment common to nouveau royalty. Apparently some members of Congress feel the same way about customs duties. Smuggling is de rigueur for congressional scoundrels, according to an Army sergeant who worked as a military escort on congressional overseas shopping sprees.

Sgt. Cloyd Riddle has told Army investigators looking into the escort assignments that some members of Congress and their spouses slip foreign goods into the country without so much as a mention to the customs agents. Escorts like Riddle should know. They act as a sort of congressional moving company during the trips. In addition to lugging baggage and boxes from one stop to the next, they are in charge of wrapping the more fragile booty in plastic bubble wrap so it won't be broken.

When the big military jetliners bring these congressional delegations back to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D.C., customs agents collect the same forms that all Americans must fill out to declare foreign-made goods. Riddle told Army investigators that some lawmakers and their spouses declare nothing, even though they bought plenty.

For anything costing more than $400, returning American travelers are supposed to pay a 10 percent duty. Even if they bring back less than $400 worth of souvenirs, they are supposed to declare them. "They are breaking the law no matter how you look at it if they are not declaring it," a customs official told us.

The only way to catch congressional smugglers would be to search their luggage. But customs agents are understandably reluctant to shake down a member of Congress, especially when the standard procedure is to search bags only if the traveler fits a smugglers' "profile."

The Army inspector general was officially investigating not Congress, but the Army office that escorts congressional travelers. But the more interesting parts of the probe obtained by our associate Stewart Harris reflect badly on the lawmakers and their spouses, not on the poor escorts.

Those people joined the Army to see the world and ended up seeing it as congressional lackeys. While lawmakers are meeting with whatever foreign dignitaries can be rounded up to justify these "official" trips, their spouses are bused to shopping bazaars, several escorts told Army investigators in sworn depositions.

The shopping tours are arranged by staffers from the American embassy. The red carpet treatment may include a van, a driver and an embassy officer. One State Department official told us that the salaries and transportation costs for these shopping sprees probably run about $50 an hour.

In Paris, a gift shop has been built inside the embassy. It takes up valuable floor space, but it could be worth the sacrifice. More than one foreign service officer has speculated that the shop was installed so lawmakers and their spouses could shop without dragging diplomats all over the city.

Customs agents are understandably reluctant to shake down a member of Congress.

Delta 2 blastoff reset for today

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Engineers worked to fix problems with a fuel pressurization system aboard an Air Force Delta 2 rocket in time for a one-day-late blastoff today to put a $65 million military navigation satellite into orbit.

The slender 980 million Delta 2, equipped with nine strap-on solid-fuel boosters for extra lift-off power, had been scheduled to take off at 12:55 p.m. EST Sunday from launch complex 17 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

But the flight was put on hold after engineers noticed problems with a regulator used to keep a second-stage helium system at the proper pressure. Pressurized helium is used to force pro-pellants into the second stage engine's combustion chamber.

An Air Force spokeswoman said military tracking equipment was hooked for a second launch attempt at 12:54 p.m. today, assuming the problem could be fixed in time.

Perched atop the slender rocket was the fifth of 31 new $65 million Global Positioning System — GPS — "Navstar" navigation satellites designed to tell military units their locations to within 53 feet anywhere in the world.

The most recent Delta 2-GPS launch was successfully carried out Oct. 31, giving the program the GPS satellites, equipped with atomic clocks accurate to one second in 300,000 years, continuously broadcast radio signals coded with timing info Friday night.

Officials with Titan-builder Martin Marietta Astronautics Group of Denver lobbied for a Saturday launch try but the Air Force ruled the Delta 2 had priority and moved the Navstar launch up one day from Monday to Sunday.

It typically takes 48 hours between flights to prepare military tracking equipment for the launch of a different rocket. Because of the Delta launch, the test flight of at least one Trident submarine missile this week and the planned Dec. 18 launch of the shuttle Columbia, the Titan 3 flight was delayed to Dec. 30.

The Delta 2 is built by McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif. Twenty-one such rockets were ordered in the wake of the Challenger disaster to carry GPS satellites into orbit that originally were to have been launched from space shuttles.

The GPS satellites, equipped with atomic clocks accurate to one second in 300,000 years, continuously broadcast radio signals coded with timing information.

Computers in receivers small enough to carry by hand can determine how long it takes a signal to arrive and thus how far the receiver is from the satellite, whose position and velocity are known. Combined with data from other GPS satellites, the user can pinpoint his or her location to within 53 feet anywhere in the world.

White House denies hinting to China

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration denied it had "hinted" to China by sending a delegation to Beijing, and said the surprise overture was designed to improve relations and avert additional tragedy.

Secretary of State James Baker said Sunday that while President Bush deplores the bloody crackdowns against democracy demonstrators in Beijing's Tiananmen Square last spring, he wants to ease tensions — and expects hard-line Beijing to show some movement.

Cable News Network, quoting unidentified administration officials, reported that a major reason for the weekend trip was to try to persuade China not to sell ballistic missiles to Syria or Libya.

Baker would neither deny nor confirm the report. A White House spokesman denied it, saying Beijing had recently assured the administration that it had planned no such weapon sale.

U.S. advance team to Colombia

WASHINGTON — A U.S. delegation will spend this week in Colombia to prepare for an Andean drug summit that President Bush plans to attend despite a recent wave of drug-related violence there.

The interagency team, led by assistant secretary of state Bernard Aronson, will help develop an agenda for the meeting that the administration hopes to use to escalate the war on drugs in South America.

Police officers are also being cross trained to operate water pumps for firefighters, he said.

His police officers, Lauderdale said, are also qualified to neutralize possible fire and safety hazards at the scene before attempting to routine police work, such as traffic problems.

The building became the new home of the police department and support services on Sept. 7. On Jan. 6, 1990, Lake Mary's first full-time firefighters will come on duty to supplement the services of 27 volunteer firefighters, who will continue to operate out of an older station house downtown. Both the nine firefighters hired and the volunteers will be under direction of volunteer Fire Chief Robert Stoddard, with Lauderdale acting as Public Safety Director and Police Chief, he said.

"This will be the first response station," Lauderdale said of the new facility.

The building was constructed on city-owned land, and Lauderdale said about $30,000 in construction costs were saved by building a unisex bathroom for firefighters. That unit has two totally enclosed shower and dressing units and two totally enclosed toilets housed within a locker room.

There is a dorm of four beds for the firefighters and Lauderdale said if both male and female firefighters are on duty they will wear "sleep uniforms," white sleeping and lounging around.

The communications center of the building, which houses both the 911 emergency radio system and a conference room-command center, was constructed independently of the police and fire services wings. If or if there was other structural damage to the wings, the center of the building is expected to Police officers where he needs to be.

The new public safety facility is shared by police and fire services as well as by ad, administrative support and dispatch staffs which serve both the police and fire divisions. The police department also has seven reserve police officers.

The new, 20,000-square-foot metal building, built to withstand the strongest hurricane, is designed specifically to function as a public safety facility with unified services provided by police and firefighters, Lauderdale said.

The move to the new facility in Lauderdale said, "the culmination not just of a building, but of a philosophy." The philosophy of the public safety concept, he said, is for all police officers to be trained as "first responders," with qualifications just short of an emergency medical technician. That qualifies them to immediately tend to injuries at the scene.

Lauderdale said he operates the public safety department with five of his 29 sworn officers trained as public safety officers. They are state-certified as firefighters, police officers and emergency medical technicians.

stood and still in the operations base for public safety services in the city.

Lauderdale said costs were cut in furnishing the building because the volunteer firefighters assembled the furniture from Mrs. The police chief's office, he said, was furnished for less than $500.

His officers, he said, will independently furnish an exercise room in the building and will work to enclose a patio built outside the firefighters' clubhouse.

The Sanford commission unanimously approved the ordinance on first reading Nov. 27, when the widow of a slain convenience store employee gave her support to the legislation.

Ruby Allen told the Sanford commission the ordinance may have saved her husband, Herbert M. Allen, 46, who died in a Nov. 18 armed robbery of Circle K, 1806 W. First St.

Lobbyists for convenience store chains and retail groups have opposed the ordinance, saying it places unfair controls on private enterprises. Representatives of 16 chains and retail organizations have petitioned the Sanford commission against adoption of the ordinance.

Sanford will become the fourth Florida city to adopt convenience store regulations if the ordinance is approved tonight. Gainesville first adopted the safety measures in 1986 after an increase in crime and violence at the all-night food stores.

The city commission will meet at 7 p.m. at city hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

years to come, Holt promised. "It isn't a decision that can be made overnight," he said.

One of the reasons the task force made this recommendation was simply an attempt to involve more students in the band experience.

According to Gene Brewer, chairman of the task force and principal of Tulewilla Middle School, the purpose of the middle school "exploratory wheel" curriculum is to give students an "introduction to a broad range of subject areas so they can find the subjects they most enjoy." Having found their areas of enjoyment and, perhaps, expertise, the students will be better prepared to make appropriate and educated scheduling decisions in high school and college.

Holt promised that students, parents, administrators and outside sources will be consulted as the task force seeks to make a decision on the band and chorus issue.

"We're looking to get the results of some studies done by the National Association of Middle Grade Education and the middle school division of the National Association of Secondary School Principals," Holt added.

According to Holt, Seminole County has been a pioneer in the middle school concept in Florida. There have been middle schools in this district for more than 20 years, while there are other districts which have yet to implement such a system.

"We've been successfully offering a variety of subject areas to students for two decades," Holt explained. "We want to keep our options open and see if there are better options available for the students."

While the middle schools may one day abandon year-long band and chorus programs and place the experiences on the "exploratory wheel," it is a long time down the road.

"Perhaps students in band and chorus are not receiving the full benefits of the wide-ranging sixth, seventh and eighth grade experience," Holt said. "And that is the main goal of the middle schools."

He promised, however, that the issue would be studied carefully before any decisions were made to remove band and chorus from their current status in the schools' curriculum.

Bucks tip Trailblazers

MILWAUKEE — Jack Sikma scored a season-high 30 points Sunday night and assistant coach Mike Dunleavy, activated earlier in the day, added 9 points in the fourth quarter to rally the Milwaukee Bucks to a 107-104 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Portland led 70-66 entering the final period and extended the margin to 73-66 on two free throws by Clyde Drexler.

The Bucks, who snapped a four-game losing streak, then ran off a 20-4 spurt, taking an 88-76 lead on two free throws by rookie Frank Korvet with 6:57 remaining. Korvet had 7 points to fuel the spurt.

The Trail Blazers pulled within 94-88 on a free throw by Jerome Kersey, but Sikma hit five free throws as the Bucks extended the lead to 99-88.

A three-pointer by Terry Porter pulled Portland within 101-99 with 1:34 remaining, but Sikma's 10th free throw put Milwaukee on top 103-99 with 47 seconds left. Sikma made 17 of 18 free throws.

Breland belts Ozaki in fourth

TOKYO — Mark Breland of Brooklyn, N.Y., stopped Japanese challenger Fujio Ozaki in the fourth round of their scheduled 12-round title bout at Tokyo's Korakuen Boxing Hall Sunday to retain his World Boxing Association welterweight crown.

Referee Julio Cesar Alvarado of Panama stopped the bout 35 seconds into the fourth round after the ringside doctor ruled the Japanese fighter could not continue because of a gaping cut over his right eye.

The 26-year-old Breland, weighing 146.1 pounds in his third title defense, outclassed the 148.6-pound challenger from the start with his overwhelming height and reach advantages.

In a torrid exchange of blows in the third round, Breland opened a two-inch cut over Ozaki's right eye just below the eyebrow.

Mullins doing well after injury

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Paralyzed Ole Miss football player Roy Lee "Chucky" Mullins continues to be a "happy-go-lucky guy" with a sunny disposition in spite of his devastating injury, a technician at Baptist Memorial Hospital said.

Mullins, 20, was left a quadriplegic during a game with Vanderbilt University on Oct. 28. Doctors said there is little hope he will regain much movement from his neck down.

"He has a big smile. He puts everybody at ease," said nurse Ethel Kubanka, who helps care for Mullins.

Mullins remains in the intensive care unit. He cannot speak because of a breathing tube in his throat, but nurses said he communicates by mouthing words.

His hospital stay has been brightened by a visit from President Bush and letters from well-wishers all over the world.

HOCKEY

Robitaille heads Kings victory

QUEBEC — Luc Robitaille scored twice and added three assists Sunday to pace the Los Angeles Kings to an 8-4 victory over the Quebec Nordiques.

Robitaille's 22nd goal of the season at 15:06 and Brian Benning's first of the game at 17:46 of the first period gave Los Angeles a lead it never relinquished.

Benning's second goal came at 3:41 of the second period. Wayne Gretzky, who assisted on four goals, fed Benning with a nifty pass which he sent high on the stick's side to beat goaltender Ron Tugnutt to give the Kings a 3-1 lead.

Despite opening the scoring at 10:42 of the first period on a goal by Lucien DeBlois, Quebec trailed 2-1 at the end of the season.

Forty seconds after Benning's early second period goal, Dave Taylor scored his 15th of the season to give the Kings a three-goal lead.

In other NHL action it was Winnipeg whipping Calgary 4-1; Buffalo beating Washington 4-3; Philadelphia pounding the New York Rangers 4-2; and Chicago crushing Vancouver 7-1.

Seminole coach honored

Brauman to coach Junior Olympians

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Seminole High's Ken Brauman has been named by the Athletic Congress of America to coach the jumping events for the National Junior Olympic team this summer, which will take the U.S. team to Bulgaria to compete in the World Games.

Brauman has had previous experience with this type of work when he coached the team in 1987, and was chosen again last year in a meeting in Washington D.C. when the team visited Cuba and Canada.

"I'll be responsible of the horizontal jumpers, the triple and long jumpers," Brauman said. "I'll probably work a lot with the high jumpers and pole vaulters as well."

The team will be comprised of the top athletes 20 years old and younger. One of the top athletes Brauman is expecting to work with will be University of Florida's Dion Bentley, who broke Carl Lewis' national high school long jump record last season with a leap of 26-6.

"The team will be selected in June at the national qualifying meet in Fresno, Ca.," Brauman said. "There will be a wide range of athletes, from college freshman and sophomores to high schoolers, depending on the age of the competitors."

Brauman is looking forward to his second campaign at the helm of the Junior National team and is looking to repeat his success of the first time.

"It will be an enjoyable experience and should be very interesting," Brauman said. "It's not everyday you get to travel to an Eastern Block country and see how people live."

This year's tour will begin June 18th in Tallahassee with the U.S. team taking on the team from the Caribbean Islands. The U.S. squad will then travel to Columbus, Ohio, for another qualifying meet before its trip to Bulgaria.

"This is a great opportunity," Brauman said. "It's nice to be a part of something like this."

Seminole graduate Clifton Campbell was part of the Junior National team in 1986 and still is part of the 4 X 400 relay team that holds the Junior World record in that event. Campbell also placed third in the open 400 meter dash in the meet.

"We won't return till late August," Brauman said. "It's an honor to be involved with the Junior National team."

'Noles edge Wymore Tech

From staff reports

EATONVILLE — Robert Moore and Bernard Eady formed a potent inside-outside attack to lead Seminole to a narrow 75-73 victory over Wymore Tech Saturday night in boys' basketball action at Wymore Tech Career Center.

The Tribe improve to 3-2 on the year with their third win in a row. The Wildcats sustained their first loss of the season, falling to 3-1.

"Wymore is a bona fide team," Seminole coach Greg Robinson said. "They are very good. They have several tough players."

Moore led the Seminoles with 25 points as Eady connected for 20. Brandon Cash contributed 11 with Carlo White doing a strong job on the boards.

"We controlled the game until (Carlo) White got into foul trouble in the third quarter," Robinson said. "Then we couldn't control the boards the way we were and they managed to get back in the game."

Seminole led 55-45 midway through the third period before White went to the bench with his fourth foul. On the next three possessions, Cory Chandler, who finished with 19 points, scored eight points on two three-point field goals and a twisting layup.

Michael Bowman, who led all scorers with 26 points, dominated play for the next few minutes and the teams headed into the final period with Seminole holding a 49-48 advantage.

Moore and Eady triggered the Tribe early in the quarter and then helped their team play even with the Wildcats. Seminole led 74-70 with 18 seconds to play before a last ditch effort by Wymore.

Chandler knocked down a long range three pointer and the Wildcats quickly fouled Moore with 13 seconds to play. Moore managed to hit the front end of a one-and-one but the second was off the mark.

The Wildcats rushed the ball up the floor but came up short on a last second shot by Bowman.

The Tribe has turned their season around in a hurry after dropping its first two games in the Rotary Tip Off Tournament. Seminole returns to action Tuesday night against Daytona Beach-Maitland.

Ram wrestlers come up short in Christmas tourney

By TERRY BODENHORN
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Another Lyman Christmas Wrestling Tournament has come and gone, once again leaving the Lake Mary Rams frustrated at not giving a better showing.

Not once in the school's nine-year history (the tournament is 18 years old) has Lake Mary won the team title. This year, the Rams were a disappointing eighth, tied with Lyman at 84 points. Defending Class 4A state champion Sarasota won the two-day event with 120 points.

"I was was shooting for the top five," said Lake Mary coach Doug Peters, who was an individual champion in the tournament when he was a student at Lyman. "Traditionally, we have not done well in the Lyman tournament. Coming out of football, we're always about a month behind."

"I am pleased that our finish shows we can score some points. We don't have the individuals we've had in the past. But we have a real solid team." Peters pointed out that the Rams had six wrestlers reach the semifinals in their respective weight classes. All were beaten, but two — Adam Van Diver (145 pounds), Carl Bergman (180) — came back to grab third place finishes. Bart Buchanan (135), Tom Henning (152) and Chris Israel (220) finished fourth.

"We're all up a weight class," said Peters. "We met some tough competition. We had six in the semifinals." □ See Wrestling, Page 2B

Late three-point shot beats SCC men

From staff reports

COCOA — Derrick Murdock hit a 25-foot three-pointer with 10 seconds left as Cincinnati Technical College beat Seminole Community College 80-77 in the second round of the Brevard Christmas Classic Saturday night.

Murdock's shot stopped a tremendous comeback effort by SCC as the Raiders had fought back from 10 points down with less than nine minutes to play. It was SCC's third loss in a row.

SCC forced a five-second violation with 40 seconds left and tied the game five seconds later when Herb Brown took a nice feed from Eric Hylton and drove the baseline for a layup.

The Raider defense forced CTC to take a long three-pointer that missed, but Mike Eubanks grabbed the offensive rebound and passed to Brian Kelly, who took a dribble then tossed the ball back to Murdock for the game winner.

T.J. Scaletta's three-point attempt at the buzzer came up short.

The loss drops the Raiders to 10-6 while Cincinnati advances to 8-2. Central Florida Community College defeated Brevard Community College 73-71 in the second game of the night.

"We're snake-bit right now," said SCC coach Bill Payne. "We make them take a couple of bad shots late in the game and we can't grab the loose ball. They finally get it and turn it into a long three. We are also in a bad shooting slump right now. I just hope we come out of it soon."

The game was SCC's fourth straight on the road and their third game in four days. There's no rest for the weary as the Raiders play again tonight when they return home to play Indian River Community College. It will be SCC's last home game before the Christmas holidays. Game time is 7:30 p.m. at the Health and □ See Men, Page 2B

SCC women drop two games at home

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — It was a lost weekend for the Seminole Community College women's basketball team as it dropped two home games, 65-53 to Broward Community College and 73-43 to Chipola Junior College.

"It was a bad weekend. We looked like a bunch of elementary kids out there," said SCC head coach Ileana Gallagher.

The losses drop the Raiders to 3-5 on the season. Things don't get a lot easier as SCC hits the road for three games in three days starting Thursday night, when the Raiders travel to Ft. Myers to take on Edison

Community College. Then they travel to the east coast to play Miami-Dade North Community College on Friday and Miami-Dade South on Saturday.

Friday night's contest with Broward stayed close throughout with the final margin being the biggest lead of the game. Both teams started slowly with Broward leading 13-8 with 10 minutes gone in the contest. Broward led at the half 35-28.

Maureen Cahill and Patricia Wilson led the Broward first half scoring with nine points each. Dana Carr and Carolyn Kuhl had six points each to pace the Raider attack.

The Raiders fought back to cut the lead to one 49-48 □ See Women, Page 2B

Vincent takes command, rallies Magic past Lakers

United Press International

ORLANDO — Sam Vincent says he has struggled to take command this season, one of his primary roles as a point guard for the Orlando Magic.

Sunday night, before a boisterous sellout crowd of 15,077, Vincent came back into the game with 6:28 left to ignite a stunning 23-4 burst that resulted in a 108-103 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Vincent sat on the bench in the third period while Reggie Theus kept the Magic from disappearing, then scored 11 of his 21 points in the fourth period. That contribution, along with teammates Jerry Reynolds and Terry Catledge, sparked the Magic after the Lakers built a 99-85 lead with 6:28 remaining.

"The main thing (Magic Coach) Maitly (Guokas) told me when I was on the bench in the third period was that I needed to take the ball to the hole more," said Vincent, who dished out a game-high 10 assists. "It's my role to do what it takes to win a game, but Maitly told me to quit settling for the 15 to 18 footers. When I realized their big guys were staying at home on their men, I was able to take it to the hole."

"So much of playing the Lakers is realizing who they are. Once we cut their lead to five points, our confidence level shot up," he said.

When Vincent connected on a 15-foot baseline jumper for his fourth field goal of the rally, the score was tied 103-103 with 1:16 left. Catledge grabbed an errant Reynolds' shot and just beat the 24-second clock, giving the Magic a 105-103 advantage — their first lead since an Otis Smith tip-in put Orlando ahead 39-38 with 4:53 left in the first half.

Mark Acres and Vincent sealed the victory and snapped Orlando's four-game losing streak with three free throws in the last 12 seconds. The Lakers failed to score in the final 2:47 as the crowd continually chanted, "Beat, L.A., beat L.A."

"I'm the captain and I have to take the blame," said Laker guard Magic Johnson, who shot 3 for 16 from the floor, missing all seven of his second-half attempts. "Tonight was my fault. We're used to people gunning for us. I should have made sure this didn't happen."

Catledge wound up with a team-high 26 points and 12 rebounds. Theus scored 12 of his 20 points in the third period. Reynolds contributed 14 points.

James Worthy of the Lakers scored 31 points, but it was first-round draft choice Vlade Divac of Yugoslavia that stole the show in a first half that ended with the Lakers leading 55-43.

Divac grabbed eight of his 13 rebounds before intermission, adding 12 points and three blocked shots in 23 minutes off the Los Angeles bench.

Byron Scott added 17 points and Johnson 14 for the Lakers, who placed six players in double figures.

"We should be 18-1 instead of 14-5," said Los Angeles center Mychal Thompson. "We've blown four games and that's what makes it so frustrating. Teams with Magic, Worthy and Michael Cooper don't give away games."

Medicines can lower white blood cell count

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 52-year-old female with leukopenia. I've had many tests, including bone marrow. My hematologist referred me to a specialist in a teaching hospital, and the specialist thought my blood pressure medicine could have caused this. They haven't done anything but keep a close check on me. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Many medicines, including antibiotics and drugs for hypertension, can have harmful effects. These often take the form of an allergic reaction, which affects the bone marrow where most new blood cells are made. When the bone marrow is damaged, the number of blood corpuscles diminishes in the bloodstream.

You seem to have an insufficient quantity of white blood cells (leukopenia) that was a complication of your medical therapy. In this case, it would be appropriate for your doctors to stop your medicine and give you another type.

The physicians were correct in adopting a wait-and-see approach, because once the offending agent is withdrawn, your bone marrow should recover and produce the proper number of blood cells. Introducing a new type of blood pressure medicine while monitoring your condition would not affect the outcome.

If, during a few weeks of observation and re-testing, your blood count does not return to normal, the doctors have a problem. They will either have to treat your leukopenia—with medication or transfusions—or consider other possible causes for leukopenia, such as immune deficiencies or malignancies.

The specialist should be able to monitor your case. Thank you for writing. Your letter serves as a reminder that all medicine has the potential—albeit small, in most instances—to harm as well as heal.

WHAT IS RUBBER BRIDGE?

By James Jacoby
Rubber bridge can be played for matchsticks or a king's ransom. Whatever the stakes, a declarer you want to guarantee making your contract. It's different at duplicate bridge, where your score is compared with the results at many other tables. An overtrick or two can make your score better than all others. In today's deal South took advantage of such an opportunity. West mistakenly led the queen of hearts (better to lead the club king and look at dummy). Declarer assumed that West held six clubs, and the queen of hearts was likely to be doubleton. South won the ace of hearts and played a spade. Nice! Up came the king. Next came the A-Q and two more spades, picking up East's 10. The contract was now safe, with overtricks if the diamonds split. But the defenders' distribution had to be considered. West apparently had started with six clubs and the lone king of spades. What if he also held four diamonds? Entries were lacking to play queen and 10 of diamonds, but declarer could lead the 10 of diamonds and watch for the defender's reaction. Alas, West could not resist putting in the jack. The ace won in dummy; back came a diamond to the queen, and the suit ran. What would happen if West did not cover the diamond 10? With a certain nine tricks, declarer could not afford to let the 10 of diamonds ride, since the defenders would quickly take four more tricks if they won a diamond.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By Bernice Bode Cool
Dec. 13, 1989
 In the year ahead you are likely to do better in ventures where you can express your individualism than you will do in arrangements you share with partners. Try to be your own person.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) What you don't have in your head you'd better be prepared to have in your feet today, because steps may have to be retraced in any bum decisions you make. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're not apt to work too well under pressure today, so don't let things pile up on you. Begin with the toughest jobs first and get them out of the way one at a time.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you are likely to be judged by the company you keep, so be extremely selective regarding your companions. A poor choice will make you look bad.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Guard against inclinations today to take things out on innocent bystanders. If someone gives you a bad time, focus on this person instead of looking for scapegoats.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Ease up if you find your ideas conflict with those of your associates today. You may be inclined to lock in on insignificant details and this could cause complications.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If possible, try to avoid debt spending today, especially if it carries a high price tag and long terms. You might be asking for a prolonged annoyance.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you and your mate have a major disagreement today, try not to bring in innocent bystanders. Involvements of this type could make things really serious.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not promise to do things for others today where you'll know going in your might not be able to fulfill your commitment. It's better to be honest.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Disappointment is a possibility if you expect someone to do for you today what you recently did. To be on the safe side, lower your expectations.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Be on guard today where your career is concerned. Don't let your opposition draw you into a competitive arrangement where the odds are stacked against you.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very careful today to think before you speak. If not, there is a chance you could put yourself in an embarrassing position due to careless comments.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Before making any financial investment at this time, be sure you have all of the facts and know exactly what you're getting into. If you're impulsive, you might regret it.
