Recovery From Heart Attacks

DEAR DR. LAMB — About four months ago I had an attack of chest pain and was hospitalized for 18 days. The blood tests were OK, but the electrocardiogram showed that I had a myocardial infarction. About six weeks later I went back to the hospital and had enzyme tests that showed I'd had some more heart muscle damage and so I was hospitalized. After I got out of the hospital that time I didn't have any more chest pains. I take infarctal four times a day and walk about one mile a day for exercise.

will you recover at this point. The chest discomfort that you are experiencing with exertion suggests that you still have some problem of providing sufficient circulation to your heart muscle. This is probably due to the blockage of your coronary arteries that caused the heart attack in the first place. The tightness or squeezing across the chest is a frequent way that inadequate circulation to the heart muscle causes discomfort.

I'm glad you have quit smoking because that should help a great deal. In addition, I'd like to make every effort possible to decrease your weight to the point that there is no evidence of any significant fat deposits under your skin, regardless of what the bathroom scales read. The thinner you are and the longer you stay that way the better the chance you may have of clearing out some of the fatty-cholesterol deposits within the arteries of your body.

There have been some good experiments done on monkeys that demonstrate reversal of fatty-cholesterol deposits when the diet is completely changed. You should also be on a very low-fat, particularly low saturated fat, and a low-cholesterol diet and limit your salt.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, After the Heart Attack. It will provide you information on what kind of program a person should follow after they have recovered from heart attack. Primarily it's the same kind of program we wish everyone would follow before they had one.

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 14, 1978. A new personality, far more independent and strong-willed than you've possessed in the past, could be developed this summer. It will open new channels for your creative talents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) It would be difficult to keep things hidden from you today. Your natural detective instincts are especially astute and keen.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) There is something that you can now do if you put your mind to it to benefit your career. When the boss sees you're serious, you will get his cooperation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An excellent day to go to your friends for counsel or to do things over. You'll be able to see conditions much clearer once they are discussed.

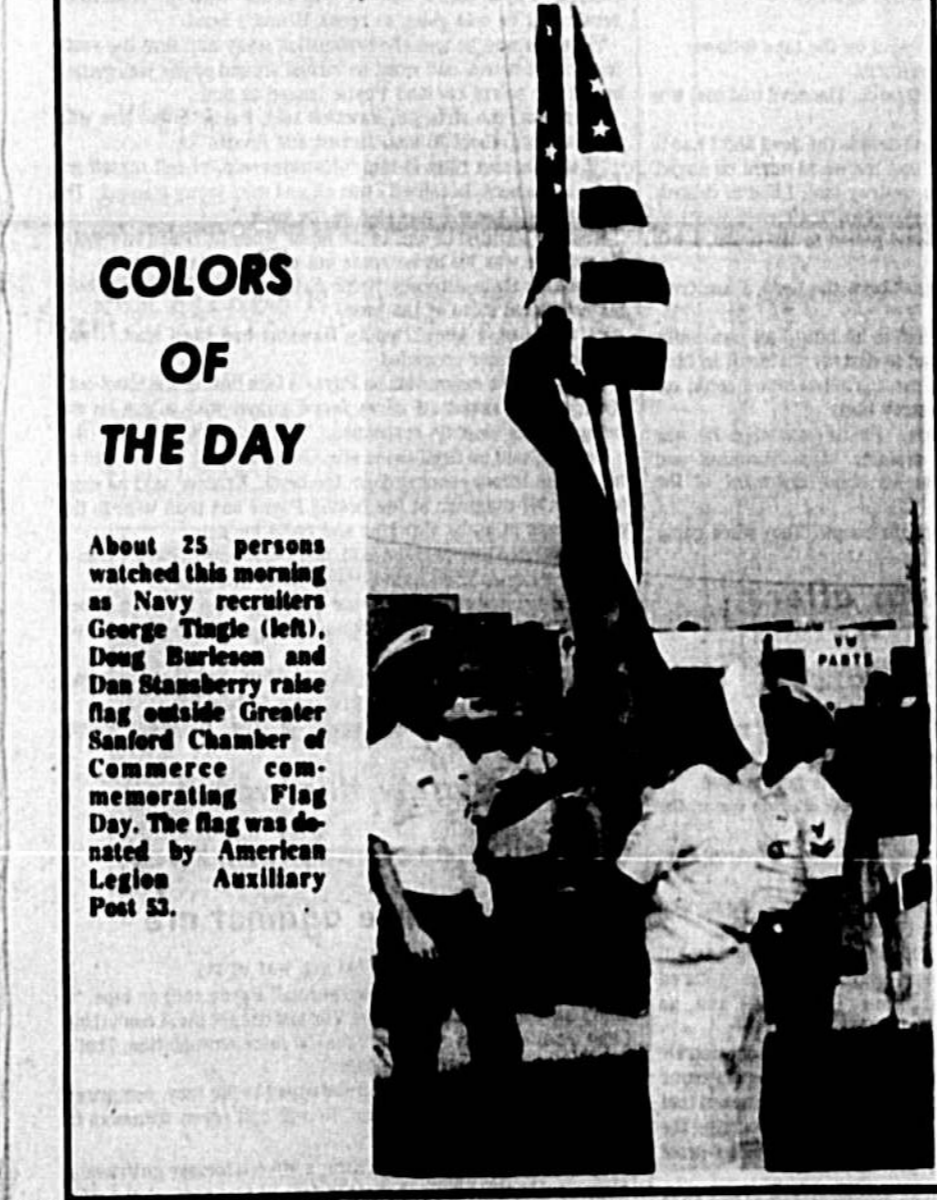

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you think you have something worth saying, talk to the proper people now. They'll be receptive.

WIN AT BRIDGE. A Texas reader asks about bridge. The bidding has proceeded one diamond-double-pass. We would bid two diamonds. Then we would raise either major suit that partner would bid in response to our bid.

FLAG DAY

Mom In Murder Trial: Son 'Looked So Wild'

By DENNIS FEOLA Herald Staff Writer

Rosa Mae Payne, testifying today for the defense, said her son, Ernest, beat her husband to death because her son was insane.

At the close of Tuesday's proceedings the jury heard Payne say on tape he murdered his father because his father was the devil and he is Jesus Christ.

"He was insane, I know," Mrs. Payne said, "because he wouldn't have done that. Ernest loved his father, he wouldn't have done that," she said.

On the night of the murder, Mrs. Payne said, she was sleeping when she heard her husband of 46 years call out for her. She said she went to his bedroom and saw Ernest standing over him.

"He was looking so wild," she said of her son, "the just looked so wild, he frightened me."

She said her son didn't hit her. "But he looked like he was going to get me though," she said.

She testified her son was "different" when he came back from four years in Vietnam.

She said some days her son would rant about his enemies outside the house. He would pin the curtains closed in his bedroom, she said.

"I can see them, they're coming after me," she quoted her son as saying. "He looked wild, he looked frightened," she said.

On the day of the murder, Mrs. Payne said her son stayed in the house. "He walked all bent over, like he was weak, he was nervous. He walked like a man 60 or 70," she said.

Mrs. Payne was first witness for the defense after the prosecution rested its case after calling medical examiner Dr. C. V. Gray. He testified Thomas Payne died when he stopped breathing after being beaten in the face. The medical examiner said several of the facial bones had been broken by a blunt instrument consistent with a fist.

A motion to reduce the second degree murder charge to manslaughter was denied by Circuit Court Judge Robert McGregor.

The tape recording, played at the close of Tuesday's proceedings, was made at Seminole Memorial Hospital about 14 hours after Payne beat his 65-year-old father, Thomas, to death.

Payne was shot three times in an ensuing gun-battle with police, and he sounded groggy or heavily sedated as he told sheriff's department investigators about beating the father and shooting two doctors after they arrived at the Payne residence in rural Lee County, Page 1A

Zoning Study Urged, Suit Pends County Vs. Boys Center

By MAX ERILEKIAN Herald Staff Writer

County Attorney Harry Stewart wants the Seminole County Commission to interpret its zoning regulations before a group treatment home is located in the Longwood area.

The center would be located on Dixon Road and would house a maximum of seven boys aged 13 to 15.

Stewart has met with Doug Whitely, legal counsel for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS). The two disagree over the interpretation of county zoning regulations and have an effect on the plan to move the home to Longwood.

"His (Whitely's) interpretation seems to be that they can go ahead and do what they want with that program," said Stewart. "I told him the zoning regulations could be interpreted that way."

"All the residents agree with the program..."

A late July or early August start date has been set for the start of the research program aimed at controlling the blind mosquito-borne disease.

The program to control the insect will be operating on a budget of $60,000 which was allocated in the final days of the state legislative session. A separate allocation of $5,000 has been appropriated by the county commission which will go toward paying three CETA employees in lab technician.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets Willing To Shed $5 Deals For Cold War?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American officials believe the latest message from the Kremlin is that the Soviets are ready to sacrifice whatever is necessary — including Western business deals — in the current Cold War skirmishing.

The officials consider the arrest of American businessman F. Jay Crawford a deliberate act of Soviet policy directly related to the arrest of two Soviet diplomats in the United States on espionage charges, and to the American decision to confront Soviet and Cuban intervention in Africa.

Crawford, Moscow representative of International Harvester, was forcibly arrested as he drove his car in a downtown area of the city. He later was charged with violations of Soviet currency laws, a complex and rigid series of regulations that are frequently broken unintentionally by Westerners.

Carter Coveting Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will speed up the process of seeking full diplomatic relations with Communist China, but is insisting on three conditions to safeguard Taiwan's future, administration officials say.

Israeli: U.N. Aiding Rebels

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel has accused U.N. peacekeeping troops of cooperating with Palestinian guerrillas and warns it will intervene militarily if its Lebanese Christian allies are attacked. Israel withdrew from Lebanon Tuesday after 91 days.

Lebanon Killers Hunted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A tank-supported Syrian contingent of the Arab peace-keeping force stormed a northern Lebanese village today and blew up homes in a search for the killers of the son of Lebanon's former president, Suleiman Franjeh. Tony Franjeh, his wife and 3-year-old daughter, were killed by invading right-wing Phalangist militiamen in an attack on the Franjeh's villa in the northern mountain resort of Ehden, 15 miles southeast of Tripoli.

Vance: 'Sustained' Growth

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said today the United States is ready to support a strategy of "sustained" economic growth aimed at pulling the industrial world out of an economic slump. Vance told the opening session of an annual two-day, cabinet-level meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development that only joint action by all members can assure economic expansion.

India, U.S. Near Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Morarji Desai says he and President Carter are resolving problems concerning the export of more U.S. enriched uranium to India — the only dispute existing in their talks.

Canal Pact Foes Await Carter

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Nationalist groups opposed to new Panama Canal pacts they consider humiliating and unconstitutional are gearing up for President Carter's visit for a formal "treaty exchange" ceremony Friday.

Another Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — A moderate earthquake shook central and northern Honshu, Japan's main island, tonight, two days after a powerful tremor jolted the same areas, the Meteorological Agency reported.

Gunman: 'This Is Not A Toy; I'll Kill You'

The 1 1/2 Champ convenience store at State Road 46 and Upsala Road in rural Sanford was robbed of an undetermined amount of cash by a lone gunman Tuesday night.

A Sanford woman was working in the store at the time of the robbery, 10:45 p.m.

She said the man came to the counter and pulled a large silver-barrel revolver and said, "Put all the money in a grocery bag. This is not a toy, I'll kill you."

The store's safe was open at the time, according to records, and the man gave the man the money from the safe, from the cash register and rolls of pennies from a cigar box, as well as two deposit envelopes from a local bank.

The man tucked the grocery bag with the money under his arm and ordered the woman to "get down there and stay down," pointing to the area behind the counter.

The woman did what he said and after waiting a few minutes the woman pulled the store alarm because she told sheriff's deputies, she couldn't find a quarter to use the telephone.

BATTLE IN JAIL
Robert Anthony Preston, 29, of Apopka, being held at the Seminole County jail for first degree murder and kidnapping, battled five jailers who were trying to subdue him.

Preston is being held in connection with the Jan. 9, 1978 stabbing murder of convenience store clerk Earline Walker, 46, of Winter Park. Mrs. Walker was working at an Altamonte Springs convenience store when she was abducted.

Preston, according to records, was yelling and cursing at the top of his lungs when jailers tried to move him to a holding cell.

He had to be handcuffed and his legs chained with irons before the five jailers and deputies could get him to the cell. Preston allegedly screamed he would kill anyone who tried to touch or come into his cell, records indicate.

He has been charged with resisting an officer with violence and disorderly conduct in the incident. — DENNIS FROELA

CITY TRUCK, CAR COLLIDE
Lisa Jackson, 18, (right), is comforted by rescue personnel after a car in which she was a passenger collided with a city truck at 25th Street and South Marshall Avenue this morning. Miss Jackson was admitted to Seminole Memorial Hospital. Driver of the car (above), Kim Dickey, 18, also was taken to the hospital, but released after treatment for minor injuries. Also released were the three city workers on the truck, LeRoy Tucker, Ernest Woodard and Tommy Robinson. David Jerome Arnold, driver of the truck, was charged with violation of right-of-way. Police said presence of mosquito-fogging truck may have contributed to the accident.

Judge Won't Wait On Decision For Accused 'Nazi'

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roetiger says he no longer intends to wait a year and a half before deciding whether to extradite former Nazi death camp guard Fredo Fedorenko.

Roetiger had said last week it might be 18 to 18 months before he could reach a decision on whether Fedorenko lied about his activities at the infamous Treblinka concentration camp when he applied for immigration to the United States.

Roetiger said there is "always the possibility" he will be able to rule without the Russians.

Prosecuting attorney Jon Sale said "we've done everything humanly possible through diplomatic channels" to find the six men who live in the Soviet Union.

At the trial moved toward a probable end on Thursday, Fedorenko testified he was a private and considered himself a prisoner of the Germans. He had been captured by the Soviet Army.

"Actually, my father was God and he was the devil and I had to kill to get the devil out of him, so that the world might be saved. "The devil was in him, I had to destroy him, I had to destroy him. "I knew I would be prosecuted and nailed to the cross, I will return again. "I am the son, I am Christ, I am Christ the Lord, I am truly Christ, the son of God. "He was the devil, I know it. I had to hit him. I hit him many times, many times. I thought I had to destroy the devil in him. "He stood up and came towards me. I grabbed him, I could see the devil in his eyes. I had to destroy him. "They were going to kill me, too," Payne said when he was asked about the two sheriff's deputies, John Hawkins and Rudolph Kramer, who arrived at his home the night of the murder. "They were the power, they were the people. They were going to crucify me," he said. "They were going to kill me. They were going to shoot me. They were going to crucify me." Payne was asked by investigators where he got the gun. "I took one of the guy's weapons as he was shooting me in the car," he said. "Then I shot him, I had to. "The other one came out shooting at me. I had to destroy him, too. "I shot at another one who came as I was escaping," Payne said referring to Lt. Detective William Hogan.

"I knew they must kill me, I could not suffer, they had to kill me," he said. Earlier in the day Hogan testified when he captured Payne the Vietnam veteran said to him, "I give up, I quit, go ahead and kill me."

On tape, Payne offered a rambling scenario of the shoot-out. He said he found himself on the ground and Payne had his gun. He testified on a direct examination that, after arriving at the Payne residence at 1111 Second Drive, east of Sanford, he took Hawkins inside the house and asked him why he had fought with his father.

"He was messing with me," Hawkins quoted Payne as saying. Hawkins said after searching Payne for a weapon he asked him to sit in the back of the patrol car. At that point, Hawkins said,

"The devil was after me, the devil force"

"I knew this was it, all those people. I knew they were against me" acknowledged he was aware his gun was empty. "The other one (Hogan) came at me," Payne said on tape. "I didn't have a bullet the last time. The last one got me. I don't think I had a bullet, I had given up. I had no more ammunition. That's why I didn't get away," he said.

Carpenter said in his opening statement to the jury, comprised of three men and three women, he will call seven witnesses to establish Payne's insanity.

Carpenter said he will call Patricia Mike, a former girlfriend of Payne's who will testify that some days he was normal and other days irrational.

Payne's sister, Lily Pearl Whitehead of Newark, N.Y., is also expected to testify, Carpenter said. Whitehead is experienced in the mental health field and has known for a long time her brother was ill.

Two psychiatrists, one of them court-appointed, will testify as expert witnesses, Carpenter told the jury. The two doctors and a psychologist, who will also be called to testify, have had an opportunity to examine Payne at length, he said.

The last witness mentioned by Carpenter is Ron Dennis of Seminole County Mental Health Center, who was visited by Payne in May 1977, Carpenter said. Payne was seeking help for his problems but failed to return after his first visit, according to Carpenter.

Fingers Sliced, Burned In Tragic Tug-Of-War

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A lighthearted attempt by the Harrisburg Middle School to set a world tug of war record began with the drop of a yellow flag.

It ended tragically about three minutes later with 70 students injured, four of them with parts of their fingers sliced off.

Besides the four students who lost parts of their fingers, another 66 were treated at local hospitals for burned, blistered hands and possible fractures. And 150 to 200 more were treated by school nurses for hand burns.

County Bumps Rock Concert From Site

By MAX ERKLETTIAN Herald Staff Writer
Rock 'n Roll is not here to stay. At least it will not be heard at the B-Bar-B Ranch on Red Bug Road Sunday as had been planned.

The Seminole County Commission Tuesday to issue promoters a permit for the concert to raise funds for the Orlando Humane Society.

A new location is being sought for the festival today, according to Mike Myers, promoter of the event. Myers and Robert Gainer, who is aiding in promotion of the concert, are scheduled to talk with representatives of Seminole Harness Raceway and the Orlando Sports Stadium about holding the festival at one of those sites.

If the festival is held at the raceway, no permit will be needed.

Myers and Gainer gave up holding the concert at the ranch Tuesday when they learned the land was not owned by the man who had given them permission to hold the festival.

Robert Palmer, owner of the ranch, had given permission for the festival to be held on 200 acres of land surrounding the ranch, according to Myers. However, county property records showed the ranch occupied only about 15 acres of the land.

The remaining acreage is owned by SkyLake Development, Orlando.

When Gainer called the development company Tuesday afternoon, he said a county official had called about 15 minutes before to ask if the firm had been contacted.

Myers said there was no effort to influence SkyLake in its decision about allowing the concert to take place on its land.

Myers said he understood the reluctance of county officials to endorse the festival in light of the reputation of some festivals.

"We're going out of our way to put ourselves apart from the bad image of rock concerts," Myers told the commission Tuesday afternoon. "We're doing a good show for a good cause."

The festival has been advertised on WJLZ Radio for several weeks. Those advertisements included the date and the proposed location at the B-Bar-B Ranch. The Winter Park rock station was aiding Myers with promotion of the event.

About 5,000 people had been expected to attend the event which would have run from noon to 7 p.m.

Myers had been involved in a whirlwind effort to meet all the requirements of a county ordinance covering outdoor rock festivals. He was informed of the ordinance and its provisions last week in a meeting with County Commissioner Robert French, in whose district the festival would have been held.

Quibbling Over Cubans' Role

The quibbling in Washington about proof of Cuba's involvement in the invasion of Zaire is a pointless distraction from reality. The reality is that trained troops carrying modern weapons invaded Zaire's mineral-rich Shaba province from Angola, which the whole world recognizes as the Marxist vassal and military base of Cuba and the Soviet Union. There is no niggling about Soviet-Cuban complicity in Paris—or in Peking for that matter. In the face of a still-formative, not to say faltering, U.S.-African policy, France is providing leadership for a Western coalition of nations to counter the Soviet Union.

Representatives from France, the United States, Britain, Belgium and West Germany convened in Paris June 5 for a two-day conference to organize for a Pan-African defense of Zaire.

Such a force, in fact, was being deployed even as the talks were held. On June 5, giant American transport planes began ferrying a 1,500-man Moroccan expeditionary unit and troops from Tunisia, Senegal, and Togo to replace 750 French Foreign Legionnaires and 600 Belgian paratroopers in Shaba as a permanent security army.

It is worth remembering that a similar Moroccan force was flown to Shaba last year by French transports to repel an Angolan-based invasion of Zaire.

A significant sign of the toughening U.S. stance is the Carter administration's commitment of the transports and communications teams to coordinate the flights.

This is not an emergency effort to rescue Europeans threatened with slaughter, as was the case last month, but a calculated American involvement in the European effort to stabilize Africa against further Soviet-Cuban inroads.

French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing also called for the creation of a $1 billion development plan to boost Africa's stability through faster economic growth. This should prevent the therapeutic military measures that are being prescribed from being sterile, if it is accepted.

Meanwhile, the arrival of Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua in Kinshasa, Zaire's capital, for talks with President Mobutu Sese Seko, proclaimed China's unusual interest in the Shaba province situation and amplified its importance by several decibels for Washington, Paris and Moscow.

Huang minced no words: he described Zaire as the key to Africa and denounced "Soviet socialist imperialism and its agents" for coveting it. Huang did not disclose what China intends to do, but it seems unlikely that he journeyed empty-handed all the way to Zaire.

It must be clear to Moscow by now that the invasion of Zaire was a serious miscalculation born of its too-easy successes in Angola and elsewhere in Africa.

Besides the rout of the invaders by the spirited military intervention of France and Belgium with the assistance of U.S. transport planes, the invasion proved to be a toxin that aroused Washington from its lethargy and led to collective Western action in Africa.

And China's renewed interest in Africa may be even more bothersome to the Russians.

Most important is the realization in Moscow and Havana that Zaire serves notice to Africa and the world that there is no inevitability about the success of Soviet-Cuban imperialism.

That Georgia Connection

WASHINGTON — It's called the "Georgia connection" or the "Carter connection." That impressive credential can't be borrowed or bought, and its holders are a very select group of people who have one experience in common. They knew President Carter "back when" — back when he was attending the Naval Academy, back when he was a Georgia state senator from Sumter County, back when he was governor of the Peach State.

Even without the "Carter connection," Joel B. Paris III is clearly a man of considerable accomplishment. A highly decorated World War II fighter pilot, he attained the rank of general before retiring from the Air Force.

But perhaps most important to Paris these days is a sequence of events that occurred in early 1971, shortly after Carter was inaugurated as Georgia's governor. Among the state posts he was authorized to fill was that of assistant adjutant general of the Georgia Air National Guard.

A state statute in force at the time prohibited retired military officers from holding national guard leadership positions. But Carter was so committed to Paris' selection that he convinced the legislature to change the law. Paris got the job, and later moved up to adjutant general.

The British Aerospace Dynamics Group needs someone with a "Carter connection." One of its products, the Rapier missile, should have — but didn't — win a three-way procurement competition conducted by the U.S. Army several years ago.

A low-altitude weapon designed to provide airfield defense against invading enemy planes, the Rapier is probably the superior product in its field. But sophisticated marketing gave a competitive edge — and the Army contract — to another missile.

Determined not to lose a future procurement competition because of a lack of promotional or sales savvy, British Aerospace has just hired Paris as a $1,500-per-month consultant.

The contract, retroactive to last December, also calls for full reimbursement of Paris' expenses. Operating out of Atlanta as president of Georgia International Services, Inc., his job is to "promote an interest" in the Rapier among "appropriate personnel" of the federal government.

The president has little use for government-by-cronism. As a result, it's not easy for old friends and associates to cash in on their "Carter connection."

But power, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. Interest groups anxious to make the most favorable impression on the Carter administration are always searching for Washington representatives with the best political pedigree.

Two major Atlanta law firms — Aldon, Miller & Gaines and Sutherland, Ashb & Brennan — maintained Washington offices long before Carter was elected. But their operations here reportedly have grown considerably during the past one and one-half years.

Georgia-connected lobbyists, public relations practitioners and consultants also are enjoying substantial increases in their business.

The Dawning Age Of DNA Research

WASHINGTON — Through the ages, man has conjured visions of creating new forms of life. Folklore is peopled with hybrid beings such as mermaids and unicorns combining the features of widely diverse species. Greek myth told of a horrifying tale of Cadmus sowing dragon teeth which sprang up as armed warriors who slaughtered themselves. Robert Louis Stevenson wrote of an elixir which transformed a donkey into a beautiful Mr. Hyde.

Today, fantasy is becoming reality in science laboratories throughout the world as biologists are transferring the genetic material of life, known as DNA, from one living species to another. The recipient organisms then reproduce exactly the inherited traits of the DNA implanter.

Nonetheless, the pioneer geneticists in this dawning age of DNA research find themselves restricted by government controls of their own devising. They have discovered how to isolate DNA and transfer its genetic characteristics from one living species into another. This has aroused apprehensions that they may unleash from their test tubes strains of new killer viruses impossible to combat.

To bring this wild field of research into proper focus, we asked our associate Herb Kistler to seek out the facts and place them in perspective. After a series of intensive interviews with authorities at the top, this is what he found:

In public school education high school is the top of the line. There's all the publicity about the sports, there's the school prom and the yearbook.

And, while much attention is paid to these later years, two recent news stories indicate that in Seminole County at least, lower grade levels also are receiving attention.

The first item is the new summer program being offered to provide help to certain kindergarten and first-graders who need additional instruction in certain skills before they are passed.

As part of the federal government's Title I program, this costly program is aiming to benefit about 250 children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

Director of the program May Ostrow noted the federal government does not specify in what grades the money is spent, but the county chose the lower grades.

This in itself shows the concern for the children that will hopefully enable them to grow up and be an even par with their fellow students who have had more of an opportunity to learn these skills.

While there is no opposition to this program, another proposal which would increase the school day for kindergarten and first graders is meeting with strong opposition.

On one side is School Superintendent William Laver, who in his recent notes that longer days is not really educational but it could save $80,000 in transportation costs. Opponents of the money savings are secondary to the educational deficiencies.

The issue will not be decided until budget hearings in July and August, but the battle lines are drawn. The final decision will be made by school board members who publicly say they are undecided, but in the next couple of months will be hearing from both sides.

It is encouraging to see this concern and we can only hope that the future generations of school kids growing up will someday appreciate the vital concern and attention they are now receiving.

GOP's Big Chance

Though a few weeks ago no one linked the California property tax revolt with the Kemp-Roth bill to cut federal income taxes or the Steiger amendment, which would roll back capital gains tax rates, today a feature common to all three — economic growth — has virtually every Republican politician in the United States jumping with excitement.

If they act quickly, Republicans can seize the political high ground that the message of economic-growth-through-tax-cuts promises. It may be too late for them to set their pro-growth proposals sharply enough with the voters to capture many Democrat seats in Congress this November, but there are some excellent opportunities in state legislatures. This is especially important with the 1980 reapportionment around the corner.

The Jarvis amendment victory in California has fanned tax revolt fires in more than 20 other states already, and legislative candidates will be especially sensitive to the direction of the political wind on the issue.

California's free spenders — from Governor Brown to the more liberal mayors and city councils — are rapidly coming out of their shells to accommodate to life under Proposition 13.

Brown, whose philosophy is best summed up in the phrase, "Whatever works," was the strongest opponent of Howard Jarvis' proposal till he saw that it was going to win. By the day after the election, he was declaring a state hiring freeze, calling for a limit on spending and insisting that would be the way to pay for the new taxes.

Similar winds are blowing on Capitol Hill. Republican Congressman Bill Steiger's proposal to roll back capital gains taxes to pre-1970 levels may end up in compromise, but its sudden and strong popularity suggests that Americans understand better than the Democratic leadership thought they did just how important new investments are to creating jobs.

The Carter administration is still hung up on the notion that lower capital gains taxes benefit only "the rich" and are in danger of being trumped by the issue of the surge of popularity. Jeff Bell's upset victory over Senator Clifford Case in New Jersey focused fresh national attention on the Kemp-Roth bill, which gets a little closer to passage each month. Under it, income taxes would be cut — on the average by one-third over a three-year period. As evidence that it would lead to sustained growth and even increased federal revenues, Congressman Jack Kemp cites the experience of this century's three major cuts, the most recent under President John F. Kennedy.

Kemp and Steiger have talked up economic growth strongly in support of their proposals, but the administration is still locked into what economists call "static" analysis of the economy.

Prophely, this amounts to saying that if your family gets a tax cut you will be getting extra money in the backyard; that government revenues will thus drop; and that services will have to be cut or other taxes raised.

The world doesn't work that way, of course. People who get tax cuts invest the money in such things as savings accounts, stocks and property. Or they put it into home improvements or product purchases.

POLITICS IN BRIEF

Ravenel, Pryor Win Governor Primaries

By United Press International

The results of Tuesday's primary elections at a glance:

South Carolina — Charles "Pug" Ravenel won the Democratic primary to challenge conservative Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, unopposed for renomination. Lt. Gov. Brantley Harvey and former state Sen. Dick Riley won spots in the June 27 runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor, with former Rep. W.J. Bryan Dorn III out of the money. Former Rep. Ed Young beat fellow millionaire Raymon Finch for the GOP nomination.

Maine — Democratic Attorney General Joseph Brennan and state House GOP Leader Linwood Palmer Jr. won nominations for governor. Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, was unopposed for renomination, as was his November opponent, Rep. William Cohen. Arkansas — Gov. David Pryor beat first-term Rep. Jim Guy Tucker in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for Senate. Pryor was favored to win handily in November.

Raleigh Greene, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, has pledged to make enactment of a constitutional spending ceiling "the top priority" of his administration.

Ford: Carter Falling All

BALTIMORE (UPI) — In one of his toughest attacks on President Carter since leaving office, former President Ford said Carter is failing at just about everything — the economy, energy, defense and controlling the growth of government. Ford said Tuesday night Carter's proposed budget in excess of $90 billion fails to halt the expansion of the federal government and gives no relief to the "over-regulated and over-taxed" American voter.

Your electric bill goes up, too. Because you use more electricity in the summer to keep cool, air conditioning costs actually could account for half of your bill.

With higher consumption, the cost per kwh of electricity increases.

So here are some tips on how to keep your cool (and your bill down). First, don't overcool. Set your thermostat as close to 78 as is comfortable. Take advantage of the most effective insulation. FPL's Watt-Wise Living!

program recommends the R-19 level of insulation in your ceiling. Properly installed, it could save up to 30% on cooling costs if your house is fully air-conditioned. Weather strip doors and windows. Use light colors on walls and roof to reflect the sun. Shade your windows. Also shade air conditioning units with shrubbery, but don't block the air flow. Folders on insulation and ways to save on electricity are available at your local FPL office.

Jackson: '13 Vote Had Racist Germ

ATLANTA (UPI) — Rev. Jesse L. Jackson has told delegates to a national PTA convention the "germ of racism" was behind the passage of Proposition 13 in California because only a handful of non-whites will benefit from the property tax rollback.

The 36-year-old civil rights activist also praised the PTA's stand against violence and sex exploitation on television.

Jackson, who called parents to lead the struggle against a new wave of racism and discrimination in public education, said the overwhelming vote in favor of the massive tax cut was "a covert way of fighting affirmative action."

It is racist to the extent that, having abandoned the in-city and taken their tax money with them, white homeowners are willing to allow blacks and browns to suffer disproportionately because of a situation largely beyond their control," Jackson said Tuesday night.

"Make no mistake about it, massive tax reform is needed. The diagnosis is sound, but the prognosis reflects a national suicide complex. In the face of a crisis, California voters panicked and seem willing to throw out the baby with the bathwater."

There was an "anti-black feeling mixed in to the Proposition 13" vote, he said, because only a small percentage of blacks would benefit from a slash in California's property taxes.

Jackson said racism had spawned a resistance to funding public education across the country, a trend he warned eventually will lead to renewed segregation.

Jackson said the reluctance of Americans to support education — reflected in Proposition 13, the rejection of tax referendums for education in Ohio and the tuition tax credit bill for private schools — could lead to a national educational system that segregates students by economic class and race.

He said previous court victories by blacks have been partly negated by a "cold war of race relations in the South" that has led to a decreasing number of black teachers, administrators and the continued busing of black children from depressed urban areas to the affluent suburbs.

"We have found that the same forces that controlled segregation control desegregation," he said. "Their hearts have not changed."

Jackson said he would call on PTA delegates to assume the leadership in demanding quality education because they are the only ones with anything at stake.

"Parents represent the only element whose only interest is children. By and large, teachers owe their loyalty to unions. That represents their economic security. Administrators have as their first loyalty boards of education. That is where they get their promotions from. No one has as their primary agenda item the protection of children except parents," he said.

Bid To Extend Cul-De-Sac Greeted Coolly By Council

A proposal presented by former Casselberry councilman Sal Orlando to extend the cul-de-sac at the Rolling Lane subdivision 130 feet has been sharply criticized by the city's fire chief and two councilmen as a potential safety hazard.

Orlando's request for a change in the preliminary plat was only on this week's council agenda so a public hearing on the matter could be set.

However, Councilman John Lighty and Frank Shutte voted to kill the proposal without a public hearing on the basis of Chief Fred McGowan's objection.

McGowan objected to a single entrance to the 25-unit cul-de-sac located in the central section of the city bordered on the north by Park Drive and on the south by the Camelot subdivision.

The fire chief said in the event of a fire it would be difficult for two fire engines, police and ambulances to get to and maneuver in the cul-de-sac. He recommended, "for the safety of the homeowners," a second entrance.

Orlando, representing Land Engineering Co., which is doing the engineering for the ignominious Casselberry Land Co., said the arguments would be valid if the council was discussing outlawing cul-de-sacs, but the issue he said, was extending the cul-de-sac from 800 to 930 feet.

The council, by a 3-2 vote, instructed the city administration to place the issue on a future agenda for a public hearing.

In other action, the council unanimously agreed to annex on first reading a Sambo's restaurant at State Road 17-92 and Dog Track Road.

Indicated it would accept a bid of $900 at next week's council meeting for a concession trailer. Mayor Bill Griser said the trailer is deteriorating from lack of use. It was to be used at city sponsored sporting and civic events.

Who'll Pay For Upkeep Of Hydrants?

The question of what to do with 18 fire hydrants outside the city limits, a new ordinance against bicycle riding in commercial areas and lighting for Centennial Park are among the issues pondered by the Sanford City Commission.

The issue of the 18 fire hydrants was brought up Monday evening by City Manager Warren E. Knowles. Knowles noted that the city pays about $800 a year for the upkeep of the fire hydrants, even though they are outside the city limits.

Because of their location, earlier this year at the request of the City Commission, Knowles had contacted the county commission to see if they were interested in taking over the upkeep fee.

At Monday's meeting Knowles noted it appeared the county "had no interest" and Knowles was recommending removal.

Commissioner John Morris opposed the recommendation saying the $900 rental was not that much considering the lives that could be saved. Morris also suggested that if a hydrant is damaged then it should be capped and not repaired.

Commissioner A. A. McClanahan differed with Morris. McClanahan said he objected to having Sanford taxpayers pay $900 to protect the citizens in the unincorporated areas.

Two of the hydrants are in the district of County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff. Kirchhoff was present at the Monday meeting and said he had looked at the two hydrants and found one to be already capped and he was not sure about the other one.

He also suggested that the city commission look into any possible liability the city may have toward the residents in the unincorporated areas.

The commission instructed City Attorney Vernon Milan to check into any legal problems and on a 3-1 motion tabled the issue. Morris voted against the motion while McClanahan, and Commissioners Julian Stenstrom and Eddie Keith voted for the motion.

The commission also gave unanimous approval to allocating $1,151 to install lights at Centennial Park. The lights will be served by underground lines, Knowles noted.

In the same motion the commissioners agreed to install light fixtures in the gazebo.

The commissioners heard the title only of a new ordinance which would prohibit bicycle riding in a commercial area. Anyone caught would be charged with a misdemeanor and be subject to a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail. The full

Casselberry Loses Bid To County For Hydrant $

In keeping with past refusals to pay a rental on fire hydrants in rural areas owned by cities, the Seminole County Commission has turned thumbs down on the City of Casselberry's bid for $30,075 in rentals on fire hydrants. The bid was for 141 fire hydrants owned by the city that are located in rural areas that were formerly part of developments. The commission denied similar requests for fiscal years 1975-76 and 1976-77 for payment of the rental fees. The bill submitted Tuesday covered those two years and fiscal year 1977-78. The payment is to cover the cost of running water lines to the areas where the hydrants are located. However, Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff noted customers in those areas pay 20 percent more on their water bills for that cost. In other action, the commission voted to coordinate clean-up efforts at the Boardman and Sanford Library buildings with a clean-up program sponsored by the Greater Sanford Development Corporation (GSDC).

Cook Of The Week Her Baked Goodies Took Blue Ribbons In Contest

By ELDA NICHOLS Herald Correspondent

Although she's only lived in this area since last fall, Nina Wolford of Altamonte Springs, entered her baked goodies in the Central Florida Fair and came out a top winner! Nina, formerly of Virginia, enjoys cooking but likes baking best of all. Her cookies and pumpkin bread were blue ribbon winners and her fudge won a third place at the Fair. Collecting cookbooks is one of her hobbies. Scrolling, she said, "The first cookbook I had was the 'Joy of Cooking.' It was given to me as a shower gift and I've used it religiously." Continuing, she said, "I'd like to suggest that people should buy quality food, since it's cheaper in the long run. Also, clip coupons! A lot of people laugh at that, but you can save money by using them."

Nina's house is surrounded by a blaze of color from beautiful flower beds, planted by her husband, Keith, who seems to have an exceptional green thumb. A greenhouse, in the back yard, is full of plants in various stages of growth. A lush vegetable garden is producing potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, parsley, radishes and corn. "These were all planted from seed, and we really enjoy having our own garden," said Nina.

She is also involved in Creative Circle, a needlecraft party plan. "I love to sew and do needlework. Right now, I'm working on five quilts. I don't have a quilting frame, but have made most of the squares that are ready to be sewn together. Instead of cotton batting, I use a sheet blanket. It's easier to work with," she said. "Admittedly that she just can't do it. I've made a quilt without working on something, she said. 'I think there are a lot of women who enjoy handcrafts as much as I do. That's why the Creative Circle is so fun. I show the kits of macramé, crewel, needlepoint and embroidery. We show the people how to do the different steps in each procedure.'"

Christmas time is very special at the Wolford's. "That's when I have a ball! I love the house when you can smell the goodies baking." I believe you have to keep a few of the old traditions going," she said. Nina enjoys giving handmade gifts and has quilted quilted door wreaths and quilted decorated and scented hearts to hang as decorations. "Even when I sew, I try to do something of my own to sort of put my name on it, and I do this with recipes, also," she said.

One way she does this, is by decorating cake plates or trays with the goodies baking. "If new neighbors move in, it's fun to take over some baked goods to welcome them. Half the fun of baking is in decorating the plate or trays with each. So together flour, sugar and cinnamon, nutmeg, and allspice. Add dry mixture to creamed mixture alternately with applesauce. Fold in raisins and nuts. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake about 30 min. Cool in pan. While cake is still warm, spread Hot Milk icing over the top. Hot Milk Icing: 2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 1/4 cup hot milk, 2 tbs. melted butter, 1/4 tsp. vanilla or rum extract. Combine all ingredients and mix.

BANANA-PRUNE BREAD
3 medium ripe bananas, mashed
1/2 cup shortening or margarine
1 egg
1 cup sugar
2 cups plain flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. orange extract or vanilla
1/4 cup prunes, cut up
Allspice
Cream shortening into bananas with sugar, beat in egg. Add dry ingredients and vanilla. Pour into greased paper-lined pan, or into 2 small loaf pans, greased and floured. Put into cold oven at 350 degrees, and bake for 1 hour without opening oven. CHICKEN CORN DRESSING
1 can cream style corn, 8 1/2 oz. size

spread over warm cake. LEMON CHEF PIE
14 or 9-in. graham cracker crust
1 can sweetened condensed milk
one-third cup lemon juice few drops yellow food coloring
3-1/2 tsp. grated lemon rind
3 egg whites
Whipped topping optional
In medium bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, food coloring and 1 tsp. grated lemon rind. Mix well. In small bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff, not dry. Gently fold into sweetened condensed milk mixture. Pour into prepared crust. Chill 3 hours. If desired, garnish with whipped topping. (Some remaining lemon rind before serving. Refrigerate until leftovers.)

Say 'Cheese' For Carrot Casserole

CARROT CHEESE CASSEROLE
(8 Servings)
2 tbs. chopped onion
2 tbs. butter
2 tbs. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 tsp. white pepper
1/2 cup celery salt
1 cup milk
2 jars (1 lb. ea.) whole carrots, drained
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup coarse bread crumbs
1 tbs. butter, melted
Cook onion in butter until just tender. Stir in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk; cook over medium heat until slightly thickened, stirring constantly in buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole, alternate layers of carrots, cheese and sauce. Mix crumbs with melted butter. Sprinkle on casserole. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 25 minutes or until golden on top.

Cross-Eyed Is Handicap

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old, fairly attractive woman who was born cross-eyed. I had surgery at a young age, but I still corrected the problem somewhat, but it's still quite noticeable.

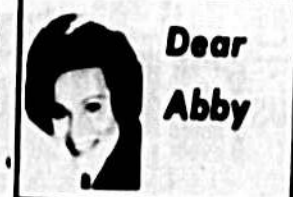

Abby, my reason for writing is to ask why comedians and cartoonists think that portraying a person with cross-eyes is considered either funny or a sign of stupidity.

I have lived with this defect all my life and have developed a severe complex about it. I find it difficult to look someone in the eyes or even have my picture taken. I try my best to conceal my defect because I have been humiliated and embarrassed to the point of tears when inconsiderate people make fun of me.

Being cross-eyed is a handicap. Why do so many people think it's funny? And what can I do about it?

HURTING IN OHIO
DEAR HURTING: Intelligent, sensitive people do NOT think any kind of handicap is "funny." And comedians and cartoonists who use cross-eyed characters to get laughs do so more out of thoughtlessness than malice.

Much is being done today in modern surgery. Don't give up until you've explored every possibility of further corrective surgery. (P.S. Try to develop a

On Prescribed Potassium Doses

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has prescribed potassium in a liquid form on a daily basis. I take a diuretic and he said my potassium level was dangerously low.

I find this hard to believe. For one thing, I voluntarily cut back on my dosage because I felt that I was getting too much.

There isn't any good way to know how you're doing in terms of potassium. That's fortunate because many of the foods we eat do contain quite a bit of potassium.

DEAR READER — The kidneys normally eliminate a reasonable amount of excess potassium. That's fortunate because many of the foods we eat do contain quite a bit of potassium.

Was Payne Insane When He Killed Dad? It's Up To Jury

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

The case of the state of Florida versus Ernest Lee Payne went to the jury this afternoon. Payne faces charges of second-degree murder, two counts of attempted second-degree murder, two counts of aggravated battery and a myriad of lesser included offenses.

The prosecution rested its rebuttal case this morning after calling two sheriff's investigators. One of the investigators, Taylor Rountree, testified he had a discussion with Payne two weeks before the Oct. 26, 1977 murder about how easy it is to commit a crime and fool the police. Taylor testified he was mowing his lawn at his Sanford home when Payne drove up with former correctional officer Sam Black. After some conversation about Taylor's position at the sheriff's department, the conversation turned to crime. There's a lot of dumb cops," Taylor quoted Payne as saying. "If the investigation was handled properly a person could commit a crime and get away with it," Taylor also quoted Payne as saying. On cross-examination, Taylor said he didn't find the conversation unusual; in fact, he said, he has had similar conversations with several persons. Public defender Bill Carpenter motioned for acquittal on the second-degree murder charge. He told the judge not a single witness, including the prosecution's psychiatrist, disputed the fact Payne was insane when he beat his father to death.

'The issue of whether he was insane was unrefuted'
—Defense Attorney Carpenter

"The issue of whether or not he was insane at the time was unrefuted by lay or expert witness as to the fact he was insane," Carpenter told Circuit Court Judge Robert McGregor. "We have met and overcome the assumption he was sane," he said. However, Assistant State Attorney Ralph Erikson argued the jury could ignore the witnesses who testified as to Payne's sanity at the time. McGregor agreed the insanity question was for the jury to decide and denied the motion.

Three psychiatrists and a psychologist testified Wednesday afternoon. The two psychiatrists and a psychologist called by the defense agreed Payne was insane when he beat his 65-year-old father, Thomas, to death and shot the two sheriff's deputies, John Hawkins, 27, and Rudolph Kramer, 25.

The prosecution, after the defense rested, called Dr. J. Lloyd Wilder a psychiatrist who testified Payne was legally insane when he began beating his father, but he may have known right from wrong when he engaged in a gunbattle with the deputies. All of the psychiatrists testified Payne's condition had improved since his court-ordered two-month stay at the North Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center in Gainesville. Wilder said the improvement was "transient." Wilder was questioned on cross-examination about Payne beating his father. "I think when he began to beat his father he thought he was beating the devil," the Orlando psychiatrist said. "I think there's some real doubt he would know it's wrong to beat the devil. I think the court should find him insane," Wilder said. However, on the shoot-out with deputies, Wilder said: "I believe he had some knowledge he was involved in a gunfight and that it was illegal."

He also said at the point Payne ran away during the battle only

Owner Routs Robbers

An armed robbery attempted at an Altamonte Springs gas station was thwarted early this morning when the intended victim used his experience in the martial arts to chase the two would-be holdup men.

According to Altamonte Springs Lt. Steve Garver, two men in their mid-30's drove into the self-service bay at the Mobil gas station at 301 E. Hwy 68. After paying for 20 worth of gas one of the men asked station operator Paul Burafsky if a cigarette machine was available.

When told the machine was inside the station, the man entered the station and attempted to open a locked cash drawer. Meanwhile the other man had apparently attached Burafsky with a tire iron.

Beating up Burafsky proved to be difficult as the station operator was experienced in martial art techniques. Unable to open the cash box, the first man came out and attempted to help his friend beat up Burafsky.

According to Lt. Garver, Burafsky managed to handle both men effectively enough that they ran to their truck and drove off.

Burafsky told police officers that he heard bones crack and believes he bruise the nose of one of the men and cracked the ribs of another.

The station operator suffered minor cuts.

From Cattle To Capture For Lawmen

Two Daytona Beach men, who began Wednesday evening walking their cattle from a pasture on one side of State Road 44 to one on the other side, ended the day capturing a man who had stolen a highway patrol car.

Leonard Durrance and Stubby McDonald, both Volusia County special deputies, became curious when several Volusia County Sheriff's cars passed them about 5:15 p.m.

"We asked if they needed any help, they said yes, so we left our cows and went along," said McDonald.

About one hour later, the pair along with highway patrol Sgt. J. A. Brown III, came on Robert Allen Estep, 18, Geneva, laying on the ground in a wooded area a few hundred yards east of State Road 44.

Durrance, McDonald and Brown were armed with 12-gauge shotguns. However, Estep was unarmed. Estep, faced with the shotgun wielding trio, did not resist being placed under arrest and handcuffed.

"He wasn't really interested in going anywhere," said Durrance.

Estep had been free on $5,250 bond on three counts of grand theft from Seminole County at the time of the incident.

A series of events that led to Estep's arrest, began about 1:15 p.m. Wednesday when the stolen late model Chevrolet he was driving went out of control and left the southbound lane of State Road 44 about a half mile north of the Douglas Street Bridge.

The car struck a palm tree and was demolished. However, Estep sustained only minor injuries.

Highway patrol trooper C. L. Tomlinson arrived a few minutes later to investigate the accident. In the meantime, Estep had run into an open field and laid in tall grass, where he was found by Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission agents.

Soviets Trying To Compromise U.S. Businessmen?

MOSCOW (UPI)—Reliable Moscow sources said today Soviet authorities, including the KGB secret police, have made at least three attempts to compromise or threaten members of the American business community in as many years.

The report coincided with a disclosure that American businessmen in the Soviet capital, shocked by this week's arrest of one of their colleagues, have been told to watch their step by U.S. Embassy officials.

The sources said that in one incident, which they said occurred in January 1977, a business representative was approached by KGB agents who had a thick file on his previous activities several years earlier in the Soviet Union.

The sources agreed to discuss the incidents only under a promise of anonymity because they feared both the reaction of the Soviet government and unfavorable responses from their American corporate headquarters.

In the case of the KGB attempt, the information was independently confirmed with several outside of the business community. They also demanded anonymity.

The various sources said their remarks were prompted by the arrest of F. Jay Crawford, 37, an international Harvester Corp. representative who was seized by midstation Monday on a Moscow street.

Crawford faces currency and customs charges in connection with a section of the Russian Federation Criminal Code that covers smuggling and contraband. The sentence for conviction is three to 18 years.

The sources said they feared Crawford's arrest may be only the first, arguing the Soviet authorities believe they can "lean on" businessmen because earlier incidents have been hushed up.

"We believe that by making these earlier incidents public, people will know what the atmosphere in Moscow really is," one of the sources said.

They said two of the incidents involved members of the
