Sprayfield plan approved

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners approved the 1,868-acre wastewater sprayfield plan for Sanford Tuesday night. Under the plan, the city will pump highly treated sewage to the site east of the State Road 46 bridge over the St. Johns River to irrigate citrus and hay.

The wastewater pumped to the site would be the amount remaining after the city first used it to irrigate the Timocuan golf course in Lake Mary, Sanford City Hall and other public locations in Sanford. The irrigation is part of a city plan to stop pumping wastewater to Lake Monroe.

Clarification

An article in Wednesday's Sanford Herald about Lake Mary Boulevard landscaping indicated a current Seminole County proposal split the cost of the landscaping project with the county paying $230,507 and the city paying $522,701. The figures were based on county documents provided county commissioners Tuesday. The city's share will actually be $307,975 because the city has the ability to waive $214,726 in city water connection fees, says Lake Mary Mayor Randy Morris.

Cops scrapping radar

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — State and local law enforcement in the Sanford area will continue to use traffic radar equipment in spite of possible links to cancer that have led three more police agencies in Florida to shelve their radar.

The St. Petersburg Police Department banned the units about a month ago, becoming the first in the nation to do so, according to department spokesmen.

Sanford police will continue to use radar equipment to monitor traffic until more sound research is done, said Lt. Mike Rotundo of the department.

"We aren't doing anything until they come up with some kind of hard proof," Rotundo said. "Right now it's just hearsay."

Most of Sanford's radar units are mounted on motorcycles, Rotundo said. Only one squad car is equipped with a radar unit, he said, and that unit is only used occasionally. Concern over radar has

Sheriff fires jail captain

SANFORD — Amid another controversy regarding the supervision of the trusty program at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in Sanford, Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger fired Capt. Robert Fischer, the number two man at the jail.

According to George Proechel, the public information officer for the sheriff's department, the Sheriff's decision to fire Fischer was based on "philosophical differences on supervision."

Fischer, who was promoted to the rank of captain when Eslinger took the reins at the sheriff's department in early January was fired yesterday evening following an incident involving another of the jail's work release inmates last week.

Deer receive safe haven in Weirsdale

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Buddy Lee's 49 deer will soon have a safe haven in Weirsdale, Fla.

A citrus shipper, Key Scales III, offered the county $15,152.50 for the 49 deer to keep on his deer farm away from hunters and other dangers. The bid was more than three times the second-highest bidder, said county purchasing director David Gahner. Gahner said Scales can pick up the deer anytime after "we get the check."

The future of the deer raised by Lee was uncertain last month when Buddy and Marjorie Lee agreed to the $530,000 price offered by the county for their 3½-acre homestead at the southern end of Stanley Avenue south of State Road 46. The county needed the property to extend Rinehart Road from County Road 46-A to SR 46. The price included the deer and catch in a

Education officials search for at-risk children

Study: 28 percent of Florida children start life two steps behind peers

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Before their third birthday, more than a quarter of Florida's children are at risk of developing handicaps or learning problems, a new study concludes.

And about half of those babies and toddlers won't get the help they need to overcome their problems, according to a report by Therapeutic Concepts Inc.

The study, released Tuesday, is one of three commissioned by the state's Department of Education through a $2.4 million federal grant. The other two studies, not yet completed, focus on the cost of providing care and models to administer services to children.

The studies will help state education officials teach at-risk children much earlier, instead of spending a lot of money on remedial programs after the children have started school, said Bob Connors, the department's bureau chief for exceptional student education.

"We've got to intervene as early as possible in order to head off any further disabilities," said Connors, whose office oversees the project.

Just over 28 percent of the state's children who are not yet 3 years old have either already been diagnosed with a handicap or have one or more of several risk factors, the study showed.

The chief risk factors for handicaps and learning problems include exposure to drugs before birth, medical complications after birth and abuse and neglect, according to Ray Foster, a

Indictments filed in fraud schemes

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Federal prosecutors in Tampa announced four indictments charging 26 people in schemes operating in this area and elsewhere that promised valuable prizes, but delivered only slick telephone sales pitches and cheap trinkets.

"This type of scheme reflects the old adage — 'If it looks too good to be true, it probably is,'" U.S. Attorney Robert Gensman said Wednesday. "The consumers think they can't lose, when in fact they can't win."

laundry in telemarketing boiler room operations out of Tampa, Fort Myers and Orlando.

According to prosecutors, all the schemes operated similarly.

Companies with names such as National Awards Foundation, American Health Systems and Phenix Marketing mailed postcards offering big prizes — a Chevy Blazer, a genuine fur coat or a $1,000 savings bond.

When customers called, the operators attempted to sell them vitamins or water purifiers. In order to get the prize, the customers had to buy something.

and other trinkets customers received. He noted many customers were not even that lucky — they received nothing.

The indictments alleged the operators encouraged customers to use credit cards, and then deposited their sales drafts into the existing credit card merchant accounts of other businesses. The businesses charged a fee for this service, which is called factoring.

When dissatisfied customers attempted to get a refund through their credit cards, the merchants would eventually be swamped or in some cases disappear, leaving the issuing bank to take the loss, authorities said.

Officials: Tax gap may widen

TALLAHASSEE — Tough economic times make tax collections more difficult and widen the "tax gap" of uncollected revenues, a state official said.

That's when strict enforcement of the state's tax code becomes especially important, according to Tom Herndon, executive director of the state Department of Revenue.

Studies indicate that, generally, about 20 percent of the nation's "tax gap" is due to "intentional fraud and deceit by taxpayers," Herndon said.

Chiles puts Everglades plan on hold

By DAN BEWELL
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Gov. Lawton Chiles put the Everglades clean-up plan on hold and sent his top environmental regulator to Washington in hopes of doing the same to a federal lawsuit.

The South Florida Water Management District's nine-member board arrived here Wednesday ready for final discussion on the Surface Water Improvement and Management (SWIM) plan it's been working on for two years.

Officials: Tax gap may widen

His comments came Tuesday as he unveiled a brochure, "The Florida Taxpayer's Bill of Rights," which compiles 14 basic guarantees taxpayers can rely on.

"We're hopeful that this means of communication will allow us to increase voluntary compliance with Florida tax laws and give people the impression that dealing with the department does not have to be an unpleasant experience," he said.

Board members, some after grubbing, agreed and adjourned.

The water district's plan has been criticized by both ends of the Everglades debate: environmentalists and farmers.

Board members, some after grubbing, agreed and adjourned. The terms of five of the nine members expire next month, meaning Chiles can appoint a new majority to pass a revised SWIM plan.

Jennings seeking 'vindication' in harassment case

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A select House committee shouldn't feel obligated to rehash every circumstance surrounding a former staffer's sexual harassment complaints against a legislator, the panel's chairman said.

Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach, told the lawyer for former aide Kathie Jennings that she didn't necessarily want the committee to sit as judge and jury to hear the complaints against Rep. Fred Lippman.

"She wants vindication," Johnson told the panel. "She wants justice and to let all the other victims of this kind of what nobody will have to suffer what she suffered at the hands of the House of Representatives."

Ms. Jennings, who now lives in Colorado, accepted a $47,000 payment from the House in 1988 and agreed not to pursue her claims against Lippman, D-

Hollywood, and Ken Barvia, her former boss at the House Regulatory Reform Committee. Both have denied her charges.

Ms. Jennings was sworn to secrecy in return for the money, a pact sharply criticized by a Leon County grand jury that compared the payment and cover-up to the Watergate scandal. The jurors issued no indictments but recommended the House investigate the matter.

Stolen tag alleged

David Eugene Newell, 24, of 1711 Roosevelt Ave., in Sanford, was arrested Tuesday and charged with possession of stolen property and with attaching a tag not assigned to his vehicle.

Newell was arrested, the Lake Mary Police Department arrest report said after he was stopped because his vehicle was weaving through traffic. When he ran off the road, officers stopped him and ran a check on his vehicle.

When asked for identification and for the vehicle registration, he allegedly said he had no registration because the tag had come from a junk yard.

A computer check of the license plate information revealed that it had been stolen from a car in Orlando.

Newell was arrested and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was being held on $1,000 bond.

Retail theft charged

Michael Jerome Jackson, 25, of 1312 W. 13th Place in Sanford, was arrested on Tuesday and charged with retail theft.

According to the Sanford Police Department report, Jackson allegedly entered the Winn Dixie supermarket on Airport Boulevard put two Delmonico steaks into his pants and left the store.

Store managers stopped him in the parking lot and allegedly found the two steaks, valued at $22.45 in the front of his pants. He had no money with which to pay for the meat.

He was arrested, transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held in lieu of $100 bond.

Traffic stop brings arrest

James Johnson, of 1502 W. 8th St. in Sanford, was arrested Tuesday following a traffic stop for having faulty brake equipment on his car.

When Johnson was stopped for a routine traffic infraction at the intersection of 17-92 and Airport Boulevard, Seminole County sheriff's officers also cited him for allegedly having an auto tag which had expired more than four months ago.

Johnson allegedly showed officers a Florida ID card instead of a driver's license and a computer check of the information showed that his license had allegedly been suspended four times.

He was arrested and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Charges dropped

Charges of having an open container of alcohol were dropped against Shirlene Mobley, 44, of 4701 Nickelson Dr. in Celina, Ohio.

Mobley, arrested on Jan. 17 at the 7-Eleven at 100 N. French Ave. in Sanford appeared in court on Feb. 4. At that time the charges were dropped.

Threat results in arrest

Stevie Warren, 21, who did not give his address to law enforcement officers upon his arrest Tuesday evening, threatened to give them something else.

He was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, assault on a law enforcement officer and battery on a law enforcement officer.

Warren, who according to the Sanford Police Department arrest report was not under the influence of any drugs or alcohol allegedly wanted to pick a fight with the officer who warned him about loitering and prowling near the corner of 7th Street and Cypress Avenue in Sanford.

The report said that Warren allegedly put his hands up in a "fighting position" when the officer tried to get him to leave the area.

After uttering various obscenities at the officer, he allegedly walked toward a car parked nearby and threatened to get something out of it, which the officer interpreted as a threat.

Warren was then arrested and transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he is being held on $2,000 bond.

Probe finds evidence of eruptions on Venus

By LES SIGGEL
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. — Some volcanoes on Venus erupt explosively and spew ash skyward, unlike the planet's typical volcanoes, which gently produce lava flows, the Magellan spacecraft has found.

Although Magellan hasn't yet caught a volcano in the act of erupting, the spacecraft, mapping the cloudy planet, found signs the landscape in three regions is covered by ash from earlier volcanic blasts.

Those blasts were roughly comparable to ash eruptions from Alaska's Redoubt Volcano or Mount Vesuvius in southern Italy, said John Guest, a geologist from University College London, on Wednesday.

"If an eruption like this occurred on Vesuvius, you'd put a layer of ash all over Naples," said Guest, who is working on the Magellan mission at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Many of Earth's volcanoes erupt with huge blasts because the molten rock inside them is rich in gas, which expands as the molten rock emerges from the volcano.

Other volcanoes, such as those in Hawaii, have much less gas in their molten rock, which cozes outward in lava flows. Magellan's pictures show lava flows that indicate most of the planet's volcanoes erupt non-explosively.

Magellan's pictures of the Guinevere Plains and two other regions show volcanoes surrounded by cracked and faulted landscape, some of which is covered by sand-sized grains of volcanic ash, Guest said. On the leeward side of some volcanoes are areas where Venus' sluggish winds scoured ash off the surface.

Venus lacks water to erode rock and produce sediment. So the ash must have been produced by explosive volcanic eruptions that pulverized rock, Guest said.

Venus' atmospheric pressure is 90 times greater than on Earth. That means the gas content in molten rock must be very high to exceed the atmospheric pressure and cause an explosive eruption. So scientists had thought Venus would be less likely to have explosive eruptions than gentler eruptions, Guest said.

Million-dollar Lotto winner back in jail

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A woman who won $1.4 million in the Lotto was back in jail Wednesday after the latest in a series of legal run-ins.

Lorraine Horansky was charged with violating probation, aggravated assault and malicious mischief after failing to report to a parole officer and allegedly trying to run down three people following a fight with her husband.

"That money has been a curse," said prosecutor Robert Gentile.

In August 1989, Ms. Horansky was fighting bad-check charges when she matched all six Florida Lotto numbers, taking a third of the jackpot, or $75,000 a year for 25 years.

She said she was going to put her life in order — pay off the bad checks she'd written, faithfully report to her probation officer, donate money to the Catholic Church, buy a new car.

But her prize golden-brown Jaguar was repossessed several months ago, and she has been sued for defaulting on the car loan.

In November, police reports say Ms. Horansky tried to run over three people at an apartment complex after a fight with her husband. She failed to hit anyone, so she allegedly rammed the car into the apartment building, causing about $1,000 in damages.

County takes no action against vendors

Critics of the vendors flooded county officials with approximately 700 letters of protest since last fall.

Now you can make heat out of thin air.

A few years back, scientists developed something that could keep you warm in winter without burning a single drop of oil or molecule of gas in your home. And keep you cool in summer without using one kilowatt of electricity more than necessary.

They called it a "heat pump," that innocent-looking thing you see at the right.

But it wasn't until today that anyone developed something to help the average homeowner afford such sophisticated technology.

We call that the "FPL Heat Pump Discount."

You don't have to understand all the technical details of how a heat pump works (and they can get pretty technical) to take advantage of its efficiency.

All you have to know is that there are scores of reliable, hard-working contractors ready to knock up to $584 off the price of qualifying equipment if you just tell them FPL sent you.

You'll save money on the cost of a heat pump system. And the system will save you every month on your energy costs.

For a list of participating contractors, plus a buying guide and discount details, call us at 1-800-DIAL-FPL, Monday-Friday, 7 a.m.-midnight.

We can help make high heating and cooling bills vanish into thin air.

Apartheid's death knell?

Two events signal what may be the death knell for apartheid, the complex and unjust system of racial separation and discrimination that has made South Africa a pariah — provided that the white-ruled government and the country's key black leaders keep the promises they have just made.

Nelson Mandela of the African National Congress and Chief M.G. Buthe of the rival Inkatha Freedom Party met for the first time in 28 years. They promised to reconcile their differences and issued a joint appeal for an end to the fighting among their black supporters that has cost 5,000 lives in five years. So far this belated attempt to rally around common goals has only symbolic value, and it's doubtful that the bloodshed will soon end. Even so, it's an indispensable move in that direction.

A second step was taken the other day by South African President F.W. deKlerk, who proposed legislation to end the remnants of apartheid — segregated housing, restricted land ownership and the classification of all South Africans into four racial groupings under which whites have arrogated to themselves nearly all the privileges. Yet even if those barriers are torn down, as expected, the single most important one will remain: the denial of the right to vote and, by extension, to hold public office.

Creating that right for blacks requires a change in the South African constitution, which is the main objective of political negotiations yet to come between the white-ruled government and black leaders. In large part, the violent struggle among blacks is about who will speak for them in those negotiations. Thus, it's crucial that the joint commitment to dialogue made by Mandela and Buthe be kept.

DeKlerk's National Party controls the Parliament and is committed to dismantling apartheid, despite bitter hostility from far-right white groups. Thus, it's virtually certain that all the apartheid laws will be repealed. Once they are, Pretoria will have met the conditions set by U.S. legislation adopted in the mid-1980s for the removal of economic sanctions, which have been an effective instrument in prodding moves to end apartheid.

Mandela himself advocated easing sanctions some months ago, but under pressure from ANC militants he now says they should be kept in force until all black South Africans have the right to vote. Such a policy would go beyond the original Western demands; moreover, prolonging sanctions after those demands are met would further weaken an economy in which the most disadvantaged are jobless blacks. Barring an unlikely reversal of course in Pretoria, the best thing Americans can do to aid black South Africans is to help assure that the legal and political equality they rightfully seek is accompanied by the economic opportunity to which they are entitled. That means removing sanctions as soon as the law allows.

If the shoe fits...

Italy's Communist Party was the greatest of the communist experiments. Eschewing Stalinism and Leninism, it openly advocated democracy, a multiparty system and private ownership, all strange dogmas for communists. Communism, Italian-style, thrived. Its leaders, from Antonio Gramsci to Enrico Berlinguer, talked more like socialists than communists, and paid the price in permanent estrangement from Moscow.

In the 1980s, even before Euro-communism became the fashion, one of the party's leaders, Giovanni Amendola, suggested that the party change its name. Bolshevism and Leninism from Moscow to Beijing turned Italians off, he argued, and in fashionable Italy, communism needed a fashionable name.

Amendola, now deceased, was a prophet before his time. Taking their cue from the Eastern Europeans, the Italian communists recently changed their name, becoming instead the Democratic Party of the Left. Amendola's thesis, that the communists' main problem was their name, will be tested in the next elections.

VINCENT CARROLL

Anti-war movement can't mobilize

When President Bush promised that war in the Persian Gulf would not be another Vietnam, he meant we would fight to win. But he might have predicted another difference: No matter how bloody the struggle becomes, the anti-war movement hasn't a chance this time to mobilize a majority of Americans.

Part of the blame, of course, goes to the blood-caked Saddam Hussein. Although he is no more ruthless or repressive than the communists who ruled North Vietnam and who've since stamped out every spark of freedom in the South, his sins are recognized by all classes of Americans, whereas those of the Vietnamese communists were not. Twenty years ago, a large fraction of the anti-war movement romanticized Hanoi's stormtroopers. While attending college in the early 1970s, I personally knew many people who openly yearned for an enemy victory.

It is by now impossible for Americans to romanticize Hussein. Even the most anti-Western intellectual finds little to admire in the Iraqi dictator. And it is far easier to dedicate yourself against a war you consider evil than a war that you merely consider unnecessary.

But the anti-war movement has also been crippled by another factor: the flight of its natural allies among liberal politicians and journalists.

Some of these normally steady allies, such as Rep. Stephen Solarz, backed Bush from the start. Others have simply been outmaneuvered and neutralized by the president. They've been muzzled by their own ineptitude (as well as by fear, perhaps, of bucking a now-popular cause).

As far as I'm concerned, there were always two — and only two — coherent positions on the Gulf. One was the president's view that the takeover of Kuwait must not stand and that force would be used to eject the Iraqis if they didn't retreat after a reasonable time. The other was that the takeover, while tragic, did not threaten vital U.S. interests and that we should respond by guaranteeing Saudi Arabian sovereignty and isolating and punishing Iraq economically — and leave matters at that.

Rather than adopt either of these views, many liberal politicians and commentators straddled them, agreeing with Bush that the invasion must not stand but balking at the use of force that would surely be needed to evict the Iraqis. Give sanctions more time, they insisted, while conveniently neglecting to tell us how much more time. After years of being called soft on foreign policy, liberals dearly wanted to sound tough, yet they quailed before the consequences of their newfound militancy. To be blunt, they made no sense.

Even if the public begins to sour on the war (which seems highly unlikely), leading liberals will find it difficult to make political hay from such sentiment. They can't say they opposed the war, after all, because they didn't; they merely preferred a later opening date. And they can't expect anyone to believe that war would have been materially different had it merely started four or six months later.

So, no matter how the fighting goes (and let us pray it proceeds as well as it has begun), the visible anti-war movement is likely to remain on the fringes.

It's impossible to romanticize Hussein.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Controlling offensive Patriot

BOSTON — Pity the poor recidivist, Victor Kiam, patron and owner of the Patriots, a man better known for his electric razor than his razor wit, had been sent to solitary after the Lisa Olson debacle. Now, before he served his time, he's struck again.

Who let this guy out on furlough? Why doesn't his p.r. man have him under electronic surveillance?

At a nearly all-male, all-jock event in Connecticut, the Remington reaper was being roasted about a season in which the losses on the playing field were more than matched by the losers in the locker room. Some of his players were more dangerous out of uniform — and I mean OUT of uniform — than in.

The naked aggression against reporter Olson had produced an unrivaled flap about sexual harassment. Our boy Victor, who called the incident "a flyspeck in the ocean" and called Olson a "classic bitch," had ended up in full-flight, full-page all-network apologies.

But here he was on a weekday pass and he couldn't help himself. He told the crowd a joke: "What do the Iraqis have in common with Lisa Olson? They've both seen Patriot missiles up close."

Gag that man with a jock strap. One thought ran through the minds of even this friendly crowd. "I can't believe he said that!" Now we know why he makes electric razors: He can't trust himself around a blade.

The "jock" itself — which apparently was making the rounds — offers enough material to fuel any number of soporific academic seminars on the subject of humor and society.

How can humor offend you? Let me count the ways.

Joking about war, death, sexual harassment? That's three and we've just begun. Kiam managed to wrap up every lethal analogy between football and combat and women and overlay it with phallic symbolism. Only without the symbolism.

The Missiles, Vic? It's bad enough that we name a weapon and a football team "Patriots," a word that supposedly defines "one who loves and loyally or zealously supports one's own country." The sports metaphors about war are flying as thick as the planes over the desert. It all reduces war to a game.

But the reverse is more appalling. The not-very-subconscious confusion of virility and hostility reads like an entry in the annals of Mecho Madness: Men and their Missiles.

As for the merger of a woman and the Iraqi enemy as targets, well, at least he's got the right idea about sexual assault. Was this a belated admission that the boys in the locker room were using their, uh, weapons in a hostile act?

Kiam has always reminded me of one of those nerdy kids who can't get anyone to play with them unless they have the only ball. He bought the ball, the playing field, the whole team.

After the Olson flap last fall, he and his boys got their knuckles rapped, and swore they had learned their lesson. Now, again, he says his behavior was "insensitive and inappropriate," a word used nowadays to describe everything from wearing white socks with a navy suit to engaging in mass murder.

Is Kiam suffering from multiple personality syndrome? The two faces of Victor: one apologizes, the other insults; one is sensitive, the other a loud.

The only hope for the repeat offender is in The Wade Boggs Defense. When the Red Sox player's sexual infidelity made the headlines he threw himself on the mercy of the court of public opinion, confessing, "I am a sex addict." He couldn't help himself, poor thing. Kiam should be declared a sex addict, or a bad-joke addict, or an offense addict.

Forget the fines, forget the apologies. In the spirit of the times, he should be given an alternative sentence at a 12-step program for people who are compulsively offensive. Repeat after me — Step One: We admit that we are powerless over the urge to offend others, that our lives have become unmanageable. Step Two: We came to believe that a Power greater than ourselves could restore us to sanity.

Before you get to Step 12, Victor, try to remember that bad jokes aren't like missiles. They're more like land mines. When you fall over them, they explode in your face.

Gag that man with a jock strap.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Winter's ice leaves our 'heartland' sore

When the groundhog poked his little snoot out of his hole here in southwest Missouri, it's a darn good thing he didn't see his shadow and forecast six more weeks of winter. If he had, with the mood most of us are in, I don't think we could have guaranteed his safety.

Pardon me if I sound a little teasy, but five weeks spent crawling around on all fours tends to bring that out in me. We just survived the Second Ice Age, a 5-inch-thick blanket of ice that descended on us after Christmas and thawed just enough each midday to refreeze even more treacherously each night.

This was the only time most of us could remember where the once-faithful ground would not only refuse to let us take one step without flinging us to our knees, but would not even stand still for us standing still on it. We are lying around with broken hips, pulled ligaments and wounded pride.

Of all our injuries, the last is perhaps the deepest cut. Businessmen in three-piece suits crawled up their driveways like dogs, and women in designer dresses did somersaults on parking lots. Middle-aged people rode down their lawns on pizza pans to get to their cars, then fell underneath them trying to get in.

And this was equal-opportunity ice, with no more mercy for a rubber-soled boot than a slick leather pump. The only people standing were those of us who finally broke down and put gym socks or women's knee-high hose over our boots, making us look sort of like convenience-store robbers who couldn't remember where to put the sock.

I finally got used to spending more time on my back than on my feet, but I do mourn the chocolate torie I was carrying one evening when the feet went and the desert was launched from its Tupperware carrier and onto the hood of my car. But I got off easy, compared to St. Louis Post-Dispatch columnist Bill McClellan, who went outside the morning after the ice came, to get his paper. Not knowing the seriousness of the situation, he dashed outside barefooted, wearing only his robe. He made it down his slightly sloped lawn, only to discover it would take a Zamboni to get him back up the lawn to the door.

"Desperation led to an idea," he wrote. "If I were to take my robe off, and use it as a carpet, perhaps I could get up the incline. But if I were to take my robe off, I'd really be cold. Furthermore, I'd be opening myself to a criminal charge. After all, I'd be exposing myself. And what if I were to slip, and knock myself out? Without my robe on, I'd be a goner in minutes."

"Then I'd really be in trouble. I know a lot of prosecutors, and I know how they work. In my mind, I heard the closing argument in the case against me. 'He's charged with exposing himself. And what does the death certificate say he died from? Exposure! I'd be charged with the same thing that killed me, and I wouldn't have a chance.'"

The ice wouldn't even let Jeanine Horigan out of her car in Webster Groves, Mo. She stopped at her parents' house and tried to get out, but the car slid across the lawn, toppled a tree and came to rest against a bush. Leaving her three kids in the car, Jean crawled to her parents' door and the three adults made a chain to rescue the kids.

"My daughter put on my golf shoes, and my husband came out, and we got a chain going," Horigan's mother told the Post-Dispatch. "We handed her a rake, my husband had another yard implement, and I held a broom. Then we got a rope."

All we want right now is a little spring. We don't even order ice in our drinks anymore around here. And all we want next Christmas is our two legs, underneath us.

This was equal opportunity ice, with no more mercy for a rubber-soled boot than a slick leather pump.

Air war presses on, angry Iraqis bury those killed in bombing raid

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — The allies pressed on with the air war today but focused on supply lines and troop concentrations after Iraq charged that a U.S. raid on a building in Baghdad killed hundreds of civilians. Iraq fired a Scud missile on the northern Saudi city of Hafr al-Batin today, but the missile was felled by a Patriot missile interceptor. An allied "Scud patrol" also reported possible hits on three more Scud launchers.

Also today, two American airmen were killed in the crash of a U.S. EF-111A electronic jamming and radar-detection jet, the Air Force said. It was the 27th U.S. warplane lost in the war.

In Baghdad, thousands of angry Iraqis marched to a cemetery to bury fellow civilians killed Wednesday in the U.S. bombing of a structure where they had taken shelter.

Baghdad officials say the building was a civilian air raid shelter; the U.S. military says it was a military command and control center.

On Wednesday, Iraqi officials claimed 500 civilians were killed in the raid. Official Baghdad radio said today that 64 bodies had been pulled out from the rubble, but it apparently referred only to those already identified.

The supervisor of the building said that by sundown Wednesday, 235 bodies had been recovered and hundreds more were believed buried beneath piles of concrete and twisted metal.

Reporters escorted to the site of the attack today counted at least 40 corpses, many of them decapitated or missing limbs, pulled out between 10:30 a.m. and noon.

As coffins draped in Iraqi flags were lowered into a mass grave, crowds shouted anti-American slogans. "Bush, Bush, you will pay for all crimes shedding innocent blood every day," the mourners pledged.

The issue of civilian casualties was expected to be raised at a closed-door meeting of the U.N. Security Council today.

A military communique read on Baghdad radio today called the killing of civilians a premeditated crime.

It said more than 130 new allied raids had been carried out against civilian areas, including religious sites.

Officials said Wednesday night's raids were considerably less intense than those of the previous night.

from the Salinas-Watsonville area about 50 miles south of San Francisco, said Dave Vanni, a Watsonville grower and state Farm Bureau director.

Temperatures dropped below freezing for several nights near Christmas, and daytime highs were in the 40s.

Nursery owners said recent sunny weather is all that saved the crop for the most important day of the year. Valentine's Day accounts for up to 15 percent of a nursery's annual sales.

"Panicking isn't the word," Vanni said. "We wouldn't leave the nursery. My brother and I took turns staying ... to make sure there were no power failures or problems with heat."

wedding cake by himself. She said she persuaded him to wait until she gets back so they can enjoy the custom together.

"Of course, that won't be until I've been married a year and a half," said Glaze, who works in the Joint Information Bureau in eastern Saudi Arabia.

The military sold Valentine's cards in its base and post exchanges, and tried to deliver cards to and from home, but the difficulties of getting mail between the United States and units in and around Saudi Arabia means many cards won't make it in time.

One of the most popular cards features "Operation Desert Shield" in a heart on the outside and hearts being dropped by parachute from a plane on the inside. Stuffed animals and traditional cards also were being sold in exchanges set up in tents and trailers in far corners of the country.

The military has tried to make Valentine's cards available to anyone who wants to send them back to the United States.

"We ordered around 600,000 cards, and we distributed them to our 14 direct-sales stores and to their 130 smaller, unit run exchanges we have in Saudi Arabia," said Pat Cleveland, manager of one PX.

Pvt. 1 Lydell Brown, 23, of Flint, Mich., said he expected his card to his fiancée would arrive several weeks late, but that it wouldn't bother her.

"I've been pretty busy fixing trucks and standing guard duty," he said. "This is the first chance I've had to buy a card."

While a number of married couples are assigned to duty in the theater of war, most are in separate units and rarely are able to see each other.

Lucky exceptions are Sgt. Cindy Erickson and Staff Sgt. Allen Hixson, who work side-by-side as crew chiefs loading bombs on Air Force jets at a base in northern Saudi Arabia.

Army Sgt. Simone Sampson, whose fiancée is a Marine combat engineer on a ship in the Persian Gulf, said it takes more than a month for a letter to get through. "It's tough," said Sampson, 24, of Baltimore, Md.

focused on prolonged use of equipment mounted in cars.

Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale was not available for comment this morning.

Florida Highway Patrol, which relies heavily on radar for patrolling interstates and state roads, will not discontinue use of radar units until the state issues a mandate, Trooper Kelly Carrico said from Orlando this morning.

Although FHP has not used the hand-held units that have generated the most concern for 10 years, Carrico said, troopers do use radar equipment mounted on dashboards which send out frequencies away from their vehicles to gauge speed of traffic.

"We haven't had any complaints on it yet," Carrico said. "We won't do anything until we hear something from the state."

Since banning the radar equipment, the St. Petersburg department has been swamped with queries from around the country, including one from the Seattle Mariners. Many baseball teams use the radar units to clock pitches.

On Tuesday, the Tampa Police Department and the Pinellas County Sheriff's Office suspended the use of radar. They joined the police departments of Clearwater and Dunedin and the Hernando County Sheriff's Office, which acted over the weekend.

"This action is necessary due to recent published reports bringing into question the safety by users of such equipment," said Pinellas sheriff's spokesman Sgt. Greg Tita.

On Wednesday, Lakeland police shelved half of their traffic radar units amid concern over the possible link to cancer.

But Polk County Sheriff Lawrence W. Crow Jr. said that he didn't want to immediately ban the units used by his department.

Jail

Neighbor, a trusty who works several hours a week at the Seminole Animal Control facility, was found to have overdosed on some as yet unidentified barbituate.

A small brown glass bottle containing an unidentified liquid and a syringe wrapped in paper were found with Neighbor who was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital for treatment.

Further tests are being conducted to identify the liquid in the bottle as well as the specific nature of the barbituate that was found in his system.

The sheriff's department is investigating where Neighbor got the drugs and why a strip search that must be conducted on all trusties who are returning to the jail did not reveal that he had the contraband.

It is currently the department's position that he obtained the drugs at the animal shelter, located across the street from the jail on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford, while he was working there Sunday morning from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The shelter, however, denies that any drugs or hypodermic needles are missing from their inventory.

"The big question is, of course, how did he get the items past the strip search...or was the strip search ever done," said Proechel.

The latest incident follows five recent escapes by inmates at the jail, leaving authorities with questions about the security at the facility, according to Proechel.

On Jan. 7, an inmate who had been convicted of bank robbery slipped over the jail's fence and made his way to South Carolina where he was finally recaptured, only after allegedly having robbed another bank.

Ten days later, four prisoners slipped through a hole in a shower bulkhead, dropped to a room below where they found a ladder that allowed them to climb to the outside over a roof.

They were recaptured across the street near Flea World within a few hours.

Administration to move on trade if all political prisoners freed

By RUTH BINAI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — If South Africa keeps its promise to release all political prisoners by April 30, the Bush administration will ask Congress to respond by allowing the resumption of some trade with that country, U.S. officials say.

Once the prisoners are freed, the officials said Wednesday, President Bush will certify that South Africa has met most of the conditions imposed by Congress for resuming trade and has also made "substantial progress" toward establishing a non-racial democracy.

If Congress doesn't object within 30 days, the administration can lift the sanctions. The consultation process could begin by early summer, said one official, who like others spoke on condition of anonymity.

The administration wants to reward South African President F.W. de Klerk for his efforts to dismantle apartheid, the system that allows South Africa's white minority to dominate the country's black majority.

But it has also been restrained by activists, including the African National Congress, who warn that sanctions should remain in place until South Africa's black majority is granted complete equality, including the right to vote.

The administration expects resistance from some lawmakers, especially those of the Congressional Black Caucus, the officials said. A key caucus member, Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif., is the new chairman of the House subcommittee on Africa.

Some liberal lawmakers are expected to dispute the administration's interpretation of the sanctions law. Specifically, some have indicated they would challenge the provision in South Africa's security laws that allows indefinite detention of suspects without trial.

"I don't expect we'd lift them (the sanctions) all at once" in an effort to mollify Congress, said one official.

"Congress has set a checklist of criteria" for lifting the sanctions, "and we won't deviate from that," he said.

Judge postpones Mandela's trial

By GREG MYRE
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A judge today postponed the kidnapping and assault trial of Winnie Mandela until March 6 to give police time to find a key witness allegedly abducted earlier this week.

Judge M.S. Stegmann agreed with prosecutors who said they could not proceed after one witness disappeared and two more refused to testify because they feared for their lives.

Mrs. Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, is one of four defendants charged with kidnapping and assaulting four young men at the Mandela's Soweto home outside Johannesburg in December 1988.

Three of the young men are the main state witnesses and the fourth, 14-year-old Stompie Seipel, was found dead in January 1989. The four defendants pleaded innocent Monday.

One witness, Gabriel Mekgwe, disappeared Sunday night hours before he was to take the witness stand. The other witnesses, Kenneth Kgase and Tabiso Mono, refused to give evidence Wednesday. They said Mekgwe's disappearance made them fear their lives would be in danger if they testified.

A man claiming to be Mekgwe telephoned several Johannesburg newspapers and news agencies Wednesday, saying he was in Zimbabwe and was safe. The caller said he refused to return to South Africa to testify and was working with the ANC, the leading black opposition group.

The judge said he sympathized with Kgase and Mono, but he did not consider their fear of reprisals "a just excuse" for declining to give evidence.

"They believe that their lives are at stake," the judge said.

Stegmann ordered Kgase and Mono detained this morning, but they were released after the trial postponement until March 6 was announced. If they again refuse to testify when the trial resumes, they could face up to five years in prison.

Swanepoel said it would be "impossible to continue" without the testimony of the three witnesses. But, the prosecutor added, "if Mr. Mekgwe is found and is well, they (Kgase and Mono) will probably be willing to testify."

In a court appearance Wednesday, Kgase said he would refuse to testify even if it meant going to prison. "I really like my life. I want my life," he said.

We are at war! Day 29 of Desert Storm

GULF BRIEFS

Support group meets tonight

SANFORD — The Sanford Operation Desert Storm Support Group will meet tonight from 6 to 10 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 2874 Sanford Ave., to make yellow ribbons for the downtown area.

The group has twice replaced the 400 plastic ribbons hanging on downtown trees and utility poles in support of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf. The bows were originally placed downtown in October, two months after deployment of U.S. troops in the Middle East.

Now the support group is making bows of more sturdy material it hopes will resist wind and weather. Volunteers are needed to help make 400 of the bows.

For more information, call Judy Osborn at 323-0105.

Legislature, governor honor fallen Marine

SALT LAKE CITY — Marine Lance Cpl. Dion James Stephenson, Utah's first fallen son in Operation Desert Storm, was honored by the Legislature and governor in emotional ceremonies Wednesday.

Stephenson's parents, James and Geri, and 19-year-old brother Shaun, himself a Marine lance corporal, were presented with a resolution memorializing Dion as a fallen hero.

Stephenson, 22, died in a fierce firefight Jan. 29 outside the town of Khafji, near the Saudi Arabia-Kuwait border. He was one of 11 Marines killed in the fighting, the first ground battle in the Persian Gulf War.

Mack money letter angers supporters

ST. PETERSBURG — Sen. Connie Mack is drawing criticism for a letter that asks for re-election campaign contributions as "the perfect vehicle" to show support for the president's policies in the Persian Gulf.

The conservative Republican, whose first term will be up in 1994, defended the letter Wednesday, saying everyone has the freedom to refuse to donate.

"It's sick. What else can you say?" said Pinellas County Commissioner Charles Rainey, a lifelong Republican who contributed to Mack's first campaign. "I think he owes his constituents an apology. He certainly owes the president and the men and women fighting in Operation Desert Storm an apology. He's just using them to supplement his bank account."

Americans want a clean war

Television affecting opinions of viewers

By MIKE PEINSLER
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — American bombers in World War II killed 1 million Germans and 2 million Japanese, and Americans shrugged, knowing that Hitler and Tojo had brought it on themselves.

Dreaden was carpetbombed; Tokyo was firebombed; Hiroshima and Nagasaki were reduced to atomic cinders. That's war, people said.

But the Persian Gulf War is different. Casualties — those inflicted on Americans and those inflicted by Americans — are not to be shrugged away. They are to be bound to be an important factor in the Bush administration's struggle to maintain the support of the American people and the coalition nations for its war policy.

At breakfast, Americans can see on television what damage was caused by their country's bombers while they slept. So can the rest of the world.

Never in the history of warfare was that the case, and it is adding a factor to commanders' calculations.

It helps explain the single-minded administration effort to deal with the consequences of the raid that dropped two bombs onto a bunker in Baghdad on Wednesday. Iraq said 500 civilians were killed.

"What they were concerned about was Arab opinion and, given the fact that (Soviet envoy Yevgeny) Primakov was in Baghdad at the moment, Soviet opinion," said Stanford University political scientist Richard Brody, an analyst of public opinion.

To redirect the world's ire, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney intimated that Iraq's Saddam Hussein, in a cynical effort to score a propaganda victory, deliberately put civilians in harm's way. "I suppose the suggestion that he may have indeed encouraged civilians to occupy what he knew to be a military facility is possible," Cheney said.

And Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, forcefully made the point that Saddam has waged this war by targeting civilians, haphazardly sending Scud missiles against civilian populations in Israel and Saudi Arabia.

At the same time that it proclaims that U.S. planes do not target civilians, the administration must convince this country that it is doing all it can to protect the lives of American troops and that the war can be won with relatively light casualties.

The country wants a clean war. Before the bombing started, the public was divided: those who thought a war would take the lives of fewer than 2,500 or 3,000 American soldiers tended to support moving against Iraq, polls showed. Those who thought the toll would be higher tended to oppose going to war.

U.S. sources: 'We know bombed bunker intimately'

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — American officers said today that U.S. intelligence had long known as a command and control center the Baghdad bunker in which dozens of civilians were killed by allied bombs.

"We know who built it, when and what for, when it was modified," said one of the officers, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said modifications included the installation of coaxial cables and fiber optics cables for use as a major communications link.

Iraqi officials claim as many as 500 civilians were killed early Wednesday when two laser-guided "smart bombs" blasted into the reinforced concrete structure, which Baghdad said was nothing but an air raid shelter.

The U.S. military command says the bunker was relaying messages to Iraqi forces in Kuwait and that it was not aware that civilians were using it as a bomb shelter.

One official said the destroyed bunker had been one of just a few major communications links remaining between Baghdad and Iraqi forces in Kuwait and southern Iraq.

A spokesman, Brig. Gen. Richard Neal, said military traffic and personnel had been observed around the bunker and that it would not have been attacked had U.S. commanders known it was being used to shelter civilians. The shelter was one of five similar structures built during Iraq's 1980-88 war with Iran and designed to hold about 2,000 people.

Iraqi officials said up to 500 people had regularly been spending nights in the facility since allied bombing began Jan. 17.

U.S. officials refused today to comment on a report in The New York Times that the Iraqis have located one major military communications center underneath the al-Rashid Hotel, where foreign journalists are staying.

The Times quoted senior U.S. military officials in Saudi Arabia and Washington as saying the hotel communications center was responsible for relaying the last secure transmissions to Iraqi field commanders.

The newspaper quoted the sources as saying messages were relayed to Kuwait along cable lines hidden in two of the remaining bridges spanning the Tigris River. They said that if the hotel bunker were destroyed or the cables under the bridge severed, Saddam would have to relay messages to field commanders via high-frequency radio signals, which could be intercepted, the Times said.

U.S. as mercenary?

Fighting on others' tab: It makes some Americans queasy

By MIKE PEINSLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Bush Administration has come up with a formula for divvying the costs of the Gulf War: the Saudis and Kuwaitis pay 40 percent; the other allies pay 40 percent; the United States pays 20 percent. It's a tidy arithmetic, but it makes some people queasy.

"They think it casts the United States as the world's hired gun,"

"America cannot be the 911 number for the world," said Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., who, with a number of other liberals, fears that in the Gulf War the United States is about the pay in lives while other nations are paying only in cash.

"Are we the new Hessians?" asks historian Lloyd Gardner of Rutgers University, recalling the German troops hired by Britain to fight the colonists in the American Revolution. "There's a point when that question will become red hot, and that point arrives when the bodies start coming home."

As the prospect grows that the battle will be carried to the Iraqis in ground combat that could be brutal, the argument is bound to intensify.

—Have the millionaire sheikhs hired a foreign army, just as Kuwait, a rich and underpopulated country historically has hired foreigners to build its roads, collect its trash and change its bed linens?

—Or, is the United States doing most of the fighting because it is more able than other countries and has more at stake in restoring stability to the Middle East?

If Americans don't feel good about having their war bankrolled by others, they also don't feel that their allies have coughed up enough.

In a poll taken two weeks after the fighting started, three out of four Americans said the U.S. partners were not paying their fair share.

One reason the public feels uncomfortable about this arrangement is because it is so unfamiliar, said Warren F. Kimball, a Rutgers University diplomatic historian. Historically, while letting others do the fighting, at least initially,

Woodrow Wilson did not commit America to World War I until 1917, after England and France had bled in the trenches for three years and, said Kimball, "you can argue that Franklin Roosevelt tried to let the British fight our war in 1939, 1940 and 1941."

Even in the American Revolution, the Yankees looked to foreign help — from France and Spain — to battle the British and their Hessian hirelings.

That's Kimball's point. "To call us mercenaries is good politics," he said. "But the fact is we're there because our national interests are involved."

And that's the way the world works, argued Walter Russell Mead, a senior fellow at the World Policy Institute. "Other countries might send forces to the gulf, and pay for actions that enhance their own influence in the gulf, but are now and always will be more tightfisted when it comes to paying for activities that enhance American influence there," he wrote recently. "There is no point getting huffy about it; this is how independent countries operate."

Shortwave listeners hear world perspective on war

By SCOTT MAUGER
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa — Shortwave radio listeners say they get from static-filled frequencies what they can't get anywhere else: a sense of what life is like amid war in the Middle East.

Kelly Krueger of Sioux City began tuning into shortwave broadcasts from Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Israel and Great Britain a few days before the Persian Gulf War began.

"It's the next best thing to being there," Krueger said. "The thing I liked about it is, it was the instant it was happening. One of the guys was actually under fire. It was going on right now, it wasn't by the hour."

Sales of shortwave radio receivers have increased dramatically since the Persian Gulf crisis began. Suppliers cannot keep up with the demand, said Larry Magne, editor in chief of the annual Passport to World Band Radio.

He estimated that 200,000 to 500,000 sets have been sold since the end of December. About 1 million were sold in 1990 and about 3.5 million were sold from 1986 to 1990, he said.

Listeners pick up everything from war propaganda to weather forecasts to gasoline prices in the Middle East, as well as reports about how civilians and soldiers are coping with the war.

"Most of the shortwave broadcasters broadcast information about their country, their music, different types of culture and how they live day to day," said Joseph Woodall of Mabelvale, Ark. "That's why shortwave is so nice, you feel like you're in the country."

Woodall said Israeli broadcasts were tense during Iraqi Scud missile attacks.

"They're describing what they're seeing at the scene and you can tell they're talking through a gas mask," he said. "It's been a very intense broadcast."

Woodall also heard Iraqi broadcasts in English aimed at U.S. soldiers in Saudi Arabia.

"When I tuned into Radio Baghdad — this was shortly before the war broke out — they told our troops, 'Do you want to be victims of war? They told our guys to go home to their wives and sweethearts. It's mainly propaganda, trying to break the morale of our troops.'"

Unlike amateur radio, known as "ham radio," people using shortwave radio receivers do not require government licenses and cannot transmit information.

The shortwave bands are used worldwide, most often by government-operated radio stations such as the Voice of America, Radio Moscow, the British Broadcasting Corp. World Service and Iraq's English-language program.

Several veteran listeners said shortwave stations broadcast information more quickly than most commercial outlets, but rarely carry information not offered by the U.S. media because they, too, are subject to military censorship. However, shortwave radio has more in-depth coverage, they said.

"You get more news. You get more detailed news," said M.L. "Gib" Gibson of Renton, Wash. "Most of the shortwave stations...are not dependent on commercial sales and don't have to allocate 'X' number of hours to commercials."

Transportation plan draws fire

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — States, big cities and the environmental and energy conservation lobbies are preparing to fight for major changes in President Bush's proposed $105 billion spending plan for highways and mass transit.

As it was unveiled Wednesday by Bush and Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner, the authorization bill earmarks $87.17 billion for highways and $16.3 billion for mass transit over the next five years. The rest of the money goes for other transportation-related projects.

The bill makes major changes in the structure of the highway program, shifting more of the financial burden to the states — a proposal that sparked much criticism. At the same time, it grants states more flexibility to spend money for their own particular highway and mass transit needs.

The legislation gives priority for federal highway aid to a 150,000-mile National

Our transportation system is in shambles. It's falling apart. Let's invest the money in highways and transit and stop fooling the American people.

-Rep. Robert Roe

Highway System, which would be composed of the 42,000-mile Interstate Highway System and other roads important to the economy and the national defense.

The federal government would pay 75 percent of the cost of repairing existing roads and building new roads in this system.

The only higher priority would go to completing the unbuild 1 percent of the interstate system and to making critical repairs. Such projects would continue to be financed by the federal government on a 90 percent-10 percent basis.

A lower federal priority would be given to 700,000 miles of important roads that would be grouped in an Urban and Rural Program. State governments would have to pay 40 percent of repairs and construction of such roads, a 15 percent increase.

Bush and Skinner said they believed the legislation was properly balanced and that its highway provisions were needed to fix deteriorated roads and bridges "so that America can stay competitive in the global economy of the 21st century."

But state highway authorities objected to the formulas requiring states to pay more to build and maintain needed roads. Some small rural states said they would lose out to large urban areas.

Transit system officials said the nation's subways, buses and commuter systems are being shortchanged.

Environmentalists and energy conservationists said the bill tilts excessively toward highways, encouraging traffic congestion, pollution and the unchecked guzzling of gasoline.

Long-lost original 'Huck Finn' manuscript found

By E. SCOTT RECKARD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — The handwritten original first half of Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn" — differing considerably from published version — has been found in an attic, a discovery hailed as an extraordinary literary find.

The 665-page manuscript, which Twain gave to a Buffalo, N.Y., library, had been lost for more than a century. Twain scholars hope to reunite it eventually with the second half, which has been at the library since the 1880s.

"Finding it is far beyond what anyone believed could have happened," said Robert H. Hirst, general editor of the Mark Twain Project at the University of California, Berkeley, where Twain's letters are kept.

The rough draft was found last fall by the granddaughter of the library curator Twain originally presented it to.

"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," published in 1884, is the tale of an incorrigible boy who escapes from "civilization" in a small Midwestern town and sets off on a series of adventures along the Mississippi River with a runaway slave named Jim.

Ernest Hemmingway called the book the wellspring of the modern American novel.

"If you had to think what would be the greatest American literary manuscript, this would be it," said Paul Needham, head of Sotheby's book and manuscript department in New York. Sotheby's analysts confirmed the text's authenticity.

With wide variations from the published text, and about 20 pages of narration by Jim that later were deleted altogether, the newly found manuscript promises to keep Twain experts busy revising theories and books for years to come.

Twain, whose real name was Samuel Langhorne Clemens, started "Huckleberry Finn" in 1876, worked on it a few years, then put it away, Hirst said. He returned to it in 1883 and published it the following year.

Kirk Douglas, Noel Blanc recovering after air collision

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Actor Kirk Douglas was being treated today for injuries suffered when the helicopter he was riding in collided with an airplane, killing two people and injuring Noel Blanc, who does the voice of Bugs Bunny.

Douglas, Blanc and Beverly Hills police Officer Michael Carra were aboard the helicopter when it collided with an aerobatics plane over Santa Paula Airport on Wednesday afternoon. Both people in the plane were killed.

"I think you'd almost have to call it a miracle that those three men survived," said Dr. Robert Dekkers, an internal medicine specialist at Santa Paula Memorial Hospital where the three were taken.

Douglas, 74, was transferred to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles, where he was listed in fair condition today.

Douglas, who wears a heart pacemaker, was well enough to joke with doctors and paramedics after the crash.

Blanc, 52, was in serious but stable condition at the Santa Paula hospital's intensive care unit.

Study may lead to detection of retardation

By MALCOLM MITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — A genetic study reported today may lead to a simpler and more accurate test for detecting the most common inherited form of mental retardation, scientists say.

Such a test might permit routine screening of fetuses and newborns for fragile-X syndrome, as well as better diagnosis in retarded children, they said.

The new study also provides the strongest evidence yet for explaining what causes the disorder.

Fragile-X syndrome, which experts said often goes undiagnosed, accounts for an estimated 5 percent to 10 percent of the nation's cases of mental retardation. It appears in about one in every 1,250 males.

It generally produces moderate to severe retardation in males, who also tend to be hyperactive. Some females who carry the genetic defect for the disease also show mental impairment.

The disease concentrates on men because it stems from a defect in the X chromosome, one of the tiny stringlike structures that carry genes. Men have only one X chromosome, but women have a second one that can act as a backup.

There is no highly effective treatment for the syndrome, but therapy early in life can improve a patient's ability to function, said Dr. W. Ted Brown of North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, N.Y.

He said the improved diagnostic test might allow routine prenatal testing when doctors check for other defects on chromosomes.

Routine testing of newborns could alert parents to the condition and allow for early therapy, said Charles Lalrel of the University of Washington in Seattle.

Miracle seekers' hopes crushed in stampede, 41 die

By TALLI NAUMAN
Associated Press Writer

CHALMA, Mexico — Hope for miracles at a mountain church turned to horror as the crush of thousands of faithful inside the cathedral killed at least 41 people, including more than a dozen children, officials said.

Some pilgrims called it a miracle in itself that they got out alive from the Ash Wednesday stampede, which sent at least 21 other people to the hospital.

Before the incident, a snaking line of buses and trucks festooned with bright pink flowers brought worshippers to this town 40 miles south of Mexico City. They were making a centuries-old annual pilgrimage to a Christ-like icon believed to work miracles.

Expectant arriving multitudes pushed through the narrow street leading to the Sanctuary of Our Lord of Chalma only to collide with throngs leaving the church.

In the frenzy to get through the doorway, 13 children and 28 adults were suffocated and crushed to death, officials said.

The stampede apparently started partly because street vendors blocked the way.

Peters takes over Buc defense

TAMPA — Floyd Peters, an NFL assistant coach for 17 seasons, was hired Wednesday as defensive coordinator and defensive line coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Peters, 54, was fired last month after five years of coordinating the Minnesota Vikings' defense. The Vikings led the NFL in total defense twice during his tenure, and Peters has coached defensive lines with three different teams (Minnesota, St. Louis, San Francisco) that led the league in sacks. Peters replaces Fred Bruncy, who was released last week after Williamson was named coach. The Bucs ranked 24th among the NFL's 28 teams in total defense last season. Tampa Bay, which was 6-10 in 1990, is also searching for an offensive coordinator. Vikings assistant Marc Tretman turned down the job this week, but Peters is looking forward to the challenge of improving Tampa Bay's defense. "I'm very excited about this opportunity," said Peters. "Playing the Buccaneers twice a year has convinced me they are a fine young team. I've been very impressed with Richard Williamson, he's the kind of coach who can lead a team and get them to prepare."

COLLEGE HOOPS

FSU shoots the lights out

TALLAHASSEE — Five Florida State players scored in double figures Wednesday night as the Seminoles shot 63.8 percent from the floor and eased to a 113-66 victory over Alabama State. The Seminoles (12-9) outscored Alabama State by a 26-8 margin in the first six minutes of the second half to open a 72-45 lead. Alabama State (15-9) was led in scoring by Steve Rogers, the nation's fifth leading scorer, who finished with 34 points. Chuck Graham led Florida State with 14 points. Seniors Aubry Boyd and Michael Polite added 12 points each while reserves Lorenzo Handa and David White chipped in with 10 apiece.

Florida Southern whips Barry

MIAMI SHORES — Derek Flowers scored 21 points to lead Florida Southern past Barry 78-50 in a Sunshine State Conference game Wednesday. Calvetti Pate added 11 points and six assists for the Moccasins (21-2, 6-2), who have won four straight and are tied for second with Florida Tech. Barry (12-10, 1-7) led 12-11 early in the opening half before Florida Southern took control. Tony Newberg hit two 3-pointers during a 25-3 run and the Moccasins led 35-15 at intermission.

FAMU snaps losing streak

TALLAHASSEE — DeLon Turner scored 19 points and had 16 rebounds to help Florida A&M snap a two-game losing streak with an 89-61 win over Florida International Wednesday. Turner got help from Kenneth Davis and Kelvin Daniels, who scored 17 points each for Florida A&M (11-12). Florida International (5-18) was led by Dwight Stewart's 18 points. Grady Thompson added 14 points and Brett Lewis chipped in with 12.

SANFORD — Jason Hamelin scored 21 points and Mike Merthle added 19 points to lead the Lake Mary Rams to a 74-69 victory over the Seminole Fighting Seminoles Wednesday evening in boy's basketball action at Seminole High School's Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. Merthle also contributed eight rebounds and five assists as the Rams improved to 13-9 overall and 7-4 in the Seminole Athletic Conference. The victory gives Lake Mary a 2-1 win over Seminole in the regular season series between the two arch rivals. The Tribe, now 13-10 overall and 7-5 in the SAC, broke out of the starting gate on the dead run, zooming out to a 10-0 lead as Kerry Wiggins scored six of his game-high 23 points during the run. "The last five of six ball games, we've been putting ourselves in a hole to start the game," said Lake Mary Coach Willie Richardson. "We can't get them to come out and play well early." Seminole continued to play well in the first quarter and held an 18-7 lead going into the second quarter.

FCC-J Stars avenge loss to Raiders

From staff reports

JACKSONVILLE — Marcus Cohen and Mark Felton combined to score 56 points as Florida Community College dropped Seminole Community College 105-80 in a Mid-Florida Conference men's basketball game Wednesday night. Cohen hit for 31 and Felton 25 as the Stars avenged an earlier loss to the Raiders. FCC-J is now 14-12 on the season and 6-5 in the MFC. Brian Nason matched Cohen for gam-high scoring honors with 31 points for SCC but it was not enough to offset a 59-point second half explosion by the Stars. Also in double figures for SCC were Craig Radzak (13) and Leslie Cephus (10). Dexter Vanzaant led the Raiders with eight rebounds and five assists, while Earnest Jones and Nason both grabbed six rebounds. The loss was the third straight for SCC as it fell to 14-13 overall and 4-7 in the conference. The Raiders will play Valencia at home Saturday starting at 7:30 p.m. The Raiders fell behind 6-0 to start the game but came back to cut the lead to two, 46-44, by halftime. An 8-0 spurt to start the second half gave the Stars a 54-44 lead which they eventually stretched to 25, 95-70, before SCC made a good run at the end.

Despite playing with a sore back and suffering a sprained ankle during the game, Seminole Community College's Darnard Ford (No. 14) still managed to score nine points on 4-of-5 shooting in just nine minutes of action.

Late rally by SCC women falls short

From staff reports

JACKSONVILLE — Adrian Hillman, an All-American candidate from Sanford, led the way as host Florida Community College held off a furious second half comeback attempt by Seminole Community College, 62-56, in a Mid-Florida Conference women's basketball contest Wednesday. Hillman, a sophomore, scored 19 points, grabbed nine rebounds and dished out eight assists to lead the Stars, ranked 11th nationally, to their 18th win of the season against only three losses. FCC-J used a smothering 1-2-2 press to force several Raider turnovers and take a 37-22 halftime lead. But SCC Coach Heana Gallagher made the necessary adjustments to beat the press and the Raiders started to inch back into the game. With Michelle Kumpf, Brandi Groves and Debbie Olson breaking the press, Pam Williams, Tereasa Martin and Tina Lester were able to score on easy layups and SCC tied the game 49-49 with 7:38 to play. But with Hillman taking over down the stretch, the Stars regained control and held on for the win. Also in double figures for FCC-J were Mimi Jones and Pamela Scott with 17 points each. For the Raiders, who fell to 8-11, Martin led the way with 18 points and 11 rebounds. Also playing well were Williams (13 points) and Lester (10 points, nine rebounds). SCC ends its regular season this Saturday with a game at Central Florida Community College in Ocala.

Ball, Scutero lead Lake Howell to sweep of Evans

From staff reports

WINTER PARK — John Ball stroked a two-run double in the bottom of the first inning to start the Lake Howell Silver Hawks on their way to a 5-4 win over Evans in a high school varsity baseball game played Wednesday afternoon. The victory gives Lake Howell, 2-0, a sweep of the season-opening home-and-home series with Evans, 0-2. Senior starting pitcher Brian Scutero (1-0) made the lead stand up for Lake Howell, scattering six hits over seven innings while striking out nine and walking four. All four runs Evans scored were earned. The Silver Hawks struck in the bottom of the first when Ball drove in Bobby Coleman and Mervyll Melendez with his double. Ball made it 3-0 later in the inning when he scored on a single by Eric Weiner. Jason Rasmussen gave Lake Howell a 4-0 advantage in the bottom of the second inning when he came across on Coleman's RBI sacrifice fly. After Evans cut Lake Howell's lead in half with two runs in the top of the third, the Silver Hawks answered with a single run in the home half of the third. Andre Johnson plating Weiner with an RBI single. Evans added another run in the sixth inning and one in the seventh but couldn't push across the tying run. Ball led Lake Howell's seven-hit attack by going 2 for 3 with a single to go with his double, two RBI and run scored. Coleman was 1 for 2 with a run scored and an RBI while Weiner was 1 for 3 with a run scored and an RBI. Melendez had a single and a run scored. Johnson added a single and an RBI. Jaron Proulx hit a single. For the Evans Trojans, who collected six hits, Chad Hoyt was 3 for 4 with two doubles and a single. Both teams made three errors. Lake Howell will play again Monday in a tournament at Apopka High School.

Rams

Hamelin and Kerry Higgins dued in the opening stages of the final quarter as there were five more lead changes during the fourth quarter with Lake Mary holding a 62-61 lead with 3:15 remaining.

But the Tribe went cold during the next 2:04, hitting only two of seven shots while the Rams hit 10 of 16 foul shots down the stretch to pull away and preserve the victory.

"More than anything else, I'm happy that they didn't lose control or start doing wild and crazy things," said Richardson. "This is a big rivalry and that stuff can happen any time. So we preached to them about staying under control. They didn't get discouraged or frustrated or do crazy things and played well after the first quarter."

Seminole won Wednesday's junior varsity contest, hammering Lake Mary 65-56.

Both teams will be back in action Friday night, Seminole traveling to Eatonville to play Wymore Career while Lake Mary will be at home against Lake Brantley.

Park dedicated in Longwood

IN BRIEF

VFW to host meeting

The winter Springs Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 5405 and its Ladies Auxiliary will be the hosts for the District 18 meeting Sunday, Feb. 17 at the Post Home at 420 N. Edgemon Ave. The meetings will be held under the direction of District Commander Verne Riggall and District President Joan Kopsack. The joint meeting will start at 10:30 a.m. with the afternoon sessions starting at 1 p.m.

State President Elaine Teusch, installed last July, will be present for her official visit with the Ladies Auxiliary. Teusch has held five previous state elective offices working toward her goal as state president this year.

Hailing from Miami and Homestead, she is a member of Naranja Auxiliary 10068.

As president of the State of Florida Ladies Auxiliary, Teusch's theme is "Spirit of Freedom." She is reminding all Americans that we must never forget our veterans who fought and died to preserve the freedoms we hold so dear.

The auxiliary will be serving a chicken dinner at noon for a donation of $4. For information call 327-3151.

Books donated to library

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford will be donating books to the North Branch of the Seminole County Library on Friday, Feb. 15, at 1 p.m.

The club's Education Department annually donates books in the names of the babies born to Junior Woman's Club members. The club's objective in this project is to provide useful, entertaining books designed to educate young people.

Representatives of the library and members of the club along with their children, will be attending this presentation.

The North Branch of the Seminole County Library is located at the corner of Palmetto and Commercial avenues in Downtown Sanford.

Adopt an animal

Looking for the perfect gift for your tiger? How about a boa constrictor for your main squeeze or an elephant for someone who will never forget you?

These and other animals are available through the Adopt an Animal program at the Central Florida Zoological Park.

For a minimum donation of $25, you can adopt for a full year. You or your gift recipient will receive an adoption certificate, photo of the animal, educational information and a gift card. Your donation will support the care and food for your favorite animal.

You may select any one of a number of animals including the hippopotamus, tiger, cougar, howler monkey, spider monkey, otter, sloth, toucan, alligator and rattlesnake.

For more information on adopting a Central Florida Zoological Park animal, contact the zoo at 323-4450 or 843-2341.

LONGWOOD — The children who named them in the 70s probably have children of their own who play in them now.

Three parks in Longwood, the newly refurbished Candyland, Peppermint and It's A Small World, were named by young children when William Kloakey was mayor and was responsible for Parks and Recreation. Building Official Slick Helms said.

City Administrator Don Terry said Longwood has a fourth facility, Ryder Park.

"Mr. Ryder contributed the land, so that park is named after him. It's the only one that was not named by the children participating in the contest. Mr. Kloakey held to let them name the parks," Terry said.

Deputy Mayor Gary Hefter said Candyland, which was renovated to include complete sports and recreation facilities, is the largest of the four parks, which serve Longwood's 14,000 residents. Reopening dedication was held January 26.

"This means people now have access to one of the finest parks in Seminole County," Hefter excitedly said.

Touting the varied facilities, Hefter ticked off what's available: softball, baseball, multi-purpose fields, picnic areas, tennis and volleyball courts, play areas, parking, restrooms and a concession stand.

"There's something for everyone of every age," he said.

Improvements to the 20-acre park were paid for by an assistance grant from the Department of Natural Resources in the amount of $120,000 with a matching contribution of $240,000 from the city.

Terry said he feels the name Candyland is appropriate for this park.

"There are plenty of facilities for small children," he said. "There is plenty for all ages, toddlers to adults."

Hefter said the park is open until 10 p.m. and will be patrolled because some residents had expressed concern about vandalism.

"We will have security patrols at various hours against vandalism," he said.

Hefter said he has been to the site numerous times, but has not slid down the new slide yet.

"But I will use the tennis courts, which, incidentally, are free at present," he said.

Hearts at work

Volunteers pictured help at the Better Living For Seniors congregate meal site which meets at the Congregational Christian Church in Sanford. They were honored this Valentine's week for all the help they give others. From making coffee, serving meals, wrapping silverware, leading arts and crafts, setting up and cleaning up, to helping with Meals-on-Wheels, these special folks put their hearts into doing it all. Ten commandments of love guide to harmony

DEAR READERS: What better day to revive my Ten Commandments of Love? Yes, Dear Readers, I actually had the chutzpah to write my own Ten Commandments — but that was more than 20 years ago when I was younger and knew everything.

Originally, I had written two sets of commandments — one for men and one for women. Then an early feminist from Milwaukee wrote, demanding equality for women. Insisting there should be one set of commandments for both genders. She won. So how is this for a gender bender?

ADVICE

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF LOVE

Thou shalt put thy mate before thy mother, thy father, thy son and thy daughter, for thy mate is thy lifelong companion.

Abuse not thy body with excessive food, tobacco or drink, that thy days may be many and healthful in the presence of thy loved ones.

Permit neither thy business nor thy hobby to make of thee a stranger to thy children, for the most precious gift a parent giveth his or her family is time.

Forget not the virtue of cleanliness.

Make not thy mate a beggar, but willingly share with thy mate thy worldly goods.

Forget not to say, "I love you." For even though thy love may be constant thy mate doth yearn to hear those words.

Remember that the approval of thy mate is worth more than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers, so cleave unto thy mate and forsake all others.

Keep thy home in good repair, for out of it cometh the joys of old age.

Forgive with grace. For who among us does not need to be forgiven?

Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a man for nearly two years. He has never been married, and I am a widow. He came about one and a half times the salary I make. Our financial obligations are about even. I've given him several small gifts for no special reason except I wanted to please him. (Once it was a tin of gourmet cat food for his pet.) I have had him over to my house for nice dinners quite often. He keeps telling me how much he enjoys home cooking. He has taken me to dinner occasionally, but he says he doesn't enjoy eating out much.

As Christmas approached, he told me he didn't enjoy Christmas. I thought he meant because it had become so commercial and had gotten so far away from the original meaning of the holiday. I gave him a $40 sweater. He gave me a $2.98 paperback book because he doesn't enjoy shopping. When my birthday rolled around, I discovered he didn't "enjoy" birthdays, either. I didn't even get a card.

I finally told him I thought he was cheap, and he reminded me that he had installed washers on a leaky spigot in my kitchen.

He doesn't enjoy movies, but he enjoys television. There are so few things this man enjoys I wonder what's wrong with him. What do you think?

ANONYMOUS IN SAN BERNARDINO

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I think he "enjoys" saving a buck.

Stroke victims peak in recovery within year

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 75-year-old brother suffered a stroke in July 1988. He has right-sided weakness and manages with the help of his wife. What is his prognosis, and what can we expect? The doctor mentions seizures and indicates he will never get any better.

DEAR READER: Following a stroke, most patients reach the peak of their recovery within six to 12 months. A stroke causes death and dysfunction of nerve tissue, often leading to speech difficulties and partial (or total) paralysis.

Programs of rehabilitation, including speech training and physical therapy, may help stroke patients achieve more independence by "re-educating" muscles to compensate for the damage caused by the stroke. However, there is a limit to the degree of recovery. Your brother has apparently reached his limit.

Provided he doesn't have another stroke — a definite risk for most stroke patients — your brother will probably remain about as he is now. Of course, you have to take into account the fact that he, like the rest of us, will progressively weaken with age; age-related weakness can cause problems for stroke patients because they're already weaker to begin with.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 75-year-old male about to have prostate surgery. I attended a seminar by a urologist who indicated he preferred to operate by giving spinal anesthesia. I know of two different cases where a patient suffered memory loss after a spinal. How is a spinal given, and what might one expect from it? Why isn't general anesthesia given for prostate surgery?

DEAR READER: Spinal anesthetic is injected into the spinal canal. Once the anesthetic has been administered, the patient is positioned so that the appropriate part of the lower body is adequately numbed before surgery. Spinal anesthesia is as effective as general anesthesia, during which patients are put to sleep — and is safer. The major complications of general anesthesia (respiratory problems and heart irregularities) can be fatal; however, they rarely, if ever, occur during spinal anesthesia. I am not aware that memory loss — indeed, any brain damage — results from spinal anesthesia; such an event would be a highly unlikely consequence, as spinal anesthesia does not affect the brain and patients remain awake and alert. Spinal anesthesia has been safely used for years in women giving birth or having gynecological surgery.

You cannot always rely on instinct. Every now and then the right play goes very much against the grain, but the good player is alert to such instances. North's jump to four spades was a little pushy. Had he contented himself with an invitational three-spade call, South would surely have accepted. Against the game contract, West led the spade king and switched at trick two to the king of hearts. Declarer won the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart, and then played A-K-Q of diamonds. West ruffed, cashed a heart and later took the setting trick with the ace of spades. Winning the ace of hearts was certainly following instinct, but further inspection shows that there is everything to be gained if South simply allows West to win the trick with the king of hearts. The next heart can then be ruffed, and declarer can ruff clubs back to his hand to force out the other high spade and eventually draw trumps. And if West plays another high spade before playing a second heart, South will have control with the ace of hearts. It's an unusual holdup play, but on this deal, absolutely right. YOUR BIRTHDAY

 Feb. 18, 1991

Financial conditions should be better for you in the year ahead than they have been in the past few years. You must be careful, however, not to spend money as fast as you make it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're a bit of a risk-taker today and this could work to your detriment, especially in your financial affairs. Conversely, if you use your ingenuity along conservative lines, a profit is possible. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're not likely to be reluctant when it comes to assisting those you love today. However, you could tarnish your gestures with the strings you'll attach.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to keep your impulsive inclinations under control today or else you might do, or say, something others will find unbecoming. Before responding, take time to digest the circumstances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A commercial endeavor in which you're presently involved has profitable potential, but it also has some hazardous probabilities. Be careful; these influences could overlap.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though you're capable of ingenious tactics today, your timing will be the all-important element. Plans implemented prematurely could lose impact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have to deal with someone you personally dislike today. If you approach this involvement emotionally rather than logically, it could prove to be counterproductive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's not a wise policy at this time to allow yourself to become indebted to people with whom you have only a "social" friendship. Instead of enhancing the relationship, it could lead to its deterioration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

You, as well as those with whom you'll be involved today, might not be good team players. There are indications each will have individualistic objectives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In joint endeavors with peers today, try not to think of yourself as being first among equals. If you do, dissension may arise that could have easily been avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Early in the day, you may have a tendency to take things for granted which you shouldn't. Fortunately, you'll see the error of your ways and correct your thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to avoid being overly attentive today to someone your loyal pal truly dislikes. Your actions might be interpreted as a slap to your friend's face.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a possibility that you may get involved in a project you're really not equipped to handle today. Don't be reluctant to call in the cavalry if you find yourself surrounded by problems. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
