Rickard Faces Big Loss On Title Bout

NEW YORK, July 26.—(INS)—The Evening Journal today declared that Tex Rickard is facing a deficit ranging from $250,000 to $300,000 in the Tunney-Heeney heavy-weight championship fight, which it characterizes as the battle of the fallen bankroll. It declares that "man thoroughly with the financial aspect of the fight" has estimated that gross receipts of $700,000 "would be a miracle" while other estimates were that the total gate would be $500,000 or even less. The advance sale is far under Rickard's statement made last week. At the time, the promoter declared that he had more than $600,000 in advance orders.

Budget Bureau To Place Restrictions On Foreign Supplies For Government

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(INS)—Taking a direct step to encourage domestic industry and commerce, the Budget Bureau today placed restrictions upon the purchase of foreign materials and supplies for use of the government. Action was taken through adoption of a proposal of the official inter-departmental board of contracts and adjustments, which recommended instructions to holders for government contracts providing that only in exceptional circumstances would foreign materials be purchased. In view of the large building program the government has under way and other extraordinary projects, in addition to the millions of dollars worth of materials purchased annually for routine purposes, the new ruling is of exceptional importance to the business of the country. The new requirements follow the sentiment contained in a resolution introduced at the last congress by Representative Will R. Wood (R) of Indiana. While the limitation does not restrict the use of foreign articles to the extent provided in the Wood resolution, Budget Bureau officials said the restrictions were as severe as advisable under the law. For sometimes there has been considerable agitation on the part of domestic concerns, which bid for the enormous government business, on the grounds that Uncle Sam was making extensive purchases of materials originating abroad. The complaints led to an investigation.

SMITH TO LOOK FOR CITY VOTE TO WIN IN FALL

Urban Vote Represents More Than Half Of Population; Wet Views Are Expected To Attract City Voter Support

Rural Communities Not To Be Neglected

Raskob To Follow Campaign Very Closely By Means Of Huge Map In His Office

NEW YORK, July 26.—(INS)—Convinced that the cities alone can elect Gov. Alfred E. Smith to the presidency, the Democratic national campaign plan to center their heavy fire upon the urban population from coast to coast. The cities are "wet," they contain more than half the population of the nation, in many states they dominate the final result in the electoral college—these were the determining factors in the decision of the executive committee, a member of the committee revealed today. In addition, it was explained, Governor Smith as product, exponent and champion of the greatest city of them all, can carry a more powerful and effective appeal to the urban citizen than to the rural voter. The country precincts are not to be ignored, as it evidenced by Smith's promise to call a national conference on agriculture policy prior to inauguration, in the event of his election, but the fight for the cities is certain to be more intensive than the contest for the countryside. Full another factor in the decision was the consideration that the bulk of the Democratic vote and virtually all of the Democratic organization in the contest of the east, middle-west and the west are centered in the larger cities. Pursuant to the plan for a "big city" campaign, a campaign headquarters has set up in his private office at national headquarters a huge wall map embellished by a confusion of multi-colored tacks. Every tack indicates the percentage of total vote contained in the larger cities of the state, the normal efficiency of the Democratic city organizations, and the past record of the city in straight-out wet and dry contests. From these tacks, the day-to-day strategy of the campaign will to a large measure be formulated. Never before in history has a direct appeal to the cities been made a major aspect of presidential campaign strategy. The move is consonant, according to members of the executive committee, with the bold and aggressive spirit of the new party leadership. The ascendancy of the cities in wealth, political power and general social influence has been one of the most striking phenomena of American development during the last quarter century, but never before has a great political party ventured a major appeal to the strap-hanger as against the man with the hoe.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, will meet Tom Heeney tonight in a 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium. The titleholder in the finest physical trim, arrived in New York this morning in an airplane from Speculator, where his training camp was located.

Tunney Is Favorite In Battle Tonight With Tom Heeney

GENE ARRIVES BY AIRPLANE AFTER UNEVENTFUL TRIP

Champ Lands Shortly After Noon After Leaving Camp At Speculator 10 O'Clock; Trip Was Perfect, He Says

NEW YORK, July 26.—(INS)—After an overland flight lasting a trifle more than two hours, Gene Tunney landed in the Hudson River this afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the big amphibian plane that carried him here from Speculator, N. Y., for his world's heavyweight championship fight with Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium tonight. The plane, bearing the champion, his friends, W. O. McGeehan, and C. V. Bobb, his owner, sonned down the river from the north, arrived opposite the Columbus Yacht Club, then circled and landed, going upstream. It came to rest opposite 90th Street and launched from the club put out to bring the champion and his party to shore. The pilot of the plane was Billy Winston, who was at the controls with Bernard Gimbel when his party crashed at Speculator last week. It was planned to take Tunney to a private house in the vicinity where he might rest while awaiting the official weighing in ceremony at the Yankee Stadium at 3 o'clock. Billy Gibson, the champion's manager was the first to sight the Tunney plane from the float. He sighted with obvious relief as it made a clean landing in the river. For Gibson was frankly worried by the hop. Tunney and his friends were ferried to the yacht club float shortly before 12:30, the champion stepping ashore to the cheers of several hundred spectators grouped on the club veranda and perched upon points of vantage along Riverside Drive. "The trip was perfect," he said with a smile, "I couldn't feel better." His looks supported his words, for he appeared the picture of glowing health as he idled a moment on the float before leaving the club. The champion's demeanor was composure itself. Before he departed, he was approached by two detectives who placed themselves at his disposal for the remainder of the day.

Fair And Cool Weather Is Forecast But Crowd Is Expected To Be Under 50,000

Fight Is Rickard's 1st Promotion Flop

Champ's Chances To Win By Knockout Discussed By Experts

By Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK, July 26.—(INS)—Just as they did the first and the last time some struggling soul committed this monumental bromide, all roads will lead tonight to the Yankee Stadium where Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney are to engage in earnest combat for fifteen rounds for the heavy weight championship of the world. The roads will lead, indeed, but the pedestrian, the equestrian and the cyclist have indicated that they will suit themselves about following. New York was calm, sane and a model of polite interest this morning, as it awaited the coming of this event, which in the passage of a twelve-month seems to have lost some of its strident significance. Even the fact that Tunney the champion, meant to take his life in his hands by flying to the scene from his training camp failed to arouse the populace to the point where it stormed the citadels for tickets of admission. There probably were 40,000 seats unsold this morning and indications were that if the crowd reached 50,000 and the total gate more than a million, Tex Rickard would be doing as well as any man could expect. However, fair and cooler was the weather forecast for the evening and this was no more favorable to the success of the occasion than was the possibility that the irresistible Dempsey might yet be induced to enter the challenger's corner as a second. These alone remained as last minute stimulants of a sale that only in recent days has savored of championship volume and Rickard was prepared to make the most of them. A millionaire now in white flannels and yachting cap, he once dealt Faro back along the Yukon and so he wove the gambler's mask of inscrutability, this morning, as he sat alone and traced the prospect of a financial impasse for the first time since 20 years ago at Reno, he launched into the business of heavyweight championship promotion. All of his previous extravaganzas made thousands upon thousands in profits for his backers; this time, he will make little or nothing. They have dubbed Heeney, the New Zealand challenger, the "man from down under," but they selected the wrong party. The man from down under today is Tex Rickard as he contemplates his cash on hand and compares it with the fact that he has contracted to pay Tunney $325,000, Heeney $100,000 and the government some 30 per cent of his receipts, in addition to underwriting. ITALIA REFUGEES REACH NARVIK ON WAY BACK HOME

Norwegian Villagers Show Keen Resentment By Not Offering Assistance In Landing Noble And Party

LONDON, July 26.—(INS)—With its flag at half mast, the supply ship Citta di Milano with Gen. Umberto Nobile and the survivors of the Italia disaster on board, arrived at Narvik, Norway, today said a Central News dispatch from that city. The arrival added the dispatch was watched with sullen interest by the harbor workers who refused to handle the ropes thrown from the ship to the docks. As soon as the steamer had been moored an Italian soldier with rifle and fixed bayonet was stationed in the middle gangway. It was announced that Gen. Nobile and his companions would go ashore until darkness when they will go direct to the special train provided for them. A representative from the Italian legation at Stockholm, went to Narvik to greet the noble survivors and help them hasten their homeward journey. They are expected to begin their train journey tonight or early tomorrow morning. Resentment of the Norwegian people over the expedition and subsequent loss of Capt. Raold Amundsen led to precautionary measures to prevent any untoward incident.

OWEN'S BOLT TO HOOVER RECEIVES SMITH'S REBUKE

Governor Says Oklahoma Attempted To Persuade Him To Have Tammany Support Owen In 1924 Convention

ALBANY, N. Y., July 26.—(INS)—Governor Al Smith today challenged the sincerity of former U. S. Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, in bolting the Democratic ticket to support Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential candidate. Indirectly the Governor charged Owen with a "sour grapes" frame of mind. Senator Owen announced in New York yesterday that he could not support Smith because of his Tammany affiliations and because of his weakness. In a brief formal statement, the Governor today called attention to the fact that during the historic Democratic convention of 1924, Senator Owen came to him and pleaded with him to have the Tammany delegation support him as the party's presidential nominee. "His hostility to Tammany Hall must have grown up in his heart in the last four years," the Governor wrote in his statement after declaring that Owen once pleaded for the support of Tammany. The Governor's statement follows: "Naturally I am sorry to see Senator Owen leave the Democratic party because of my nomination." (Continued on page 3.)

POLICE BELIEVE HAMMER SLAYERS HAVE FLED STATE

Eye Witness Tells Story Of Seeing Man and Wife Beating Grandfather Over Head While He Screamed For Aid

LAKE CITY, Fla., July 26.—(INS)—Florida police today believed that F. L. Booth and his wife, wanted here in connection with the hammer murder of G. W. Simmons, wealthy Steubenville, Ohio man; have fled the state. Mrs. Booth was a granddaughter of Simmons. Police intensified their search, however, following an alleged eyewitness account of the aged man's death. Walter Hall and Ed Buck, mechanics at a filling station near a tourist camp where Simmons and the Booths put up Monday. The police they witnessed the killing. They are reported to have told police that they saw Booth standing on the running board of the car and beating Simmons, inside of the machine, over the head with a hammer. Simmons, they said, was shouting for help. Mrs. Booth, they claimed, was driving the car. The machine disappeared in the darkness Monday night, but C. B. Messer, owner of the filling station, made a search along the road after his employees, Hall and Buck, reported what they saw. Messer found the body the next morning, skull fractured, and not-fled police. A search of the cottage, where Simmons and the Booths remained overnight, revealed confidential papers which Messer turned over to police. Simmons was said to have had a large sum of money when he left Steubenville on the trip to Florida. The pockets of his clothes were turned out. Messer also told police that Simmons and Booth quarreled frequently during their brief stay at the cottage. He said Simmons threatened to take his granddaughter away from Booth unless the latter found employment. County Judge Guy Gillen, who (Continued on page 3.)

HOOVER FOREIGN POLICY TO COME IN FOR BIG PLAY

Republican Nominee To Rid Self Of "Wilsonian Tag" By Announcing Himself As A "Rooseveltian American"

PALO ALTO, CAL., July 26.—Herbert Hoover will announce a foreign policy during the coming campaign so definitely pro-American as to stamp him a Rooseveltian American, with only the interest of his country at heart, it was learned today on excellent authority. Accused of being an internationalist, an Anglophile and an American who knew his country only from car windows, Hoover will declare himself forcibly for a foreign policy supporting and protecting American sovereignty in international affairs. The Republican nominee, it was said, will rid himself, conclusively of the Wilsonian "tag" attached to him because of his association with the way time president as food administrator. Hoover will announce a bold foreign policy in his speech of acceptance here August 11. During the campaign, he will take occasion to amplify his statements, so that his position will be clear to all the voters by election time. Whether the nominee speaks specifically on each point or not, in his acceptance speech, his views on international affairs were reported reliably to be as follows: National defense: Hoover stands for a strong national defense, powerful enough to protect, but against any and all enemies. In time of actual war, he believes in the drafting of all resources, as well as manhood and the regulation of prices essential commodities to prevent profiteering. Foreign debts: Hoover stands opposed to the cancellation of America's foreign debts. He believes the terms laid down by America were fair to the debtor nations and that the debts should be paid as a matter of national honor. He feels that American government has no power to cancel the debts, thus transferring to the American people the debts of a foreign land. World court: Hoover believes the world court is a useful international tribunal and he feels there is no danger to American sovereignty in the terms of American adherence laid down by the United States Senate which the (Continued on page 3.)

Bodenheim Quizzed But Later Released

NEW YORK, July 26.—(INS)—Maxwell Bodenheim, poet and novelist, who had been leading reporters a merry chase since his disappearance following the recent suicide of Miss Virginia Drew, his protegee, was released after being found by detectives in a Harlem dance hall early today. Although no charge has been made against him, he was taken to a police station "on general principles" and questioned. The detectives had read so much in the newspapers about Miss Drew's suicide and the visit of Dr. Martin J. Lusk of this city, to Bodenheim's cottage in a colony at Provincetown, Mass., to bring home his 18-year-old daughter, Gladys, that they hustled the novelist to a police station on sight. Bodenheim was surrounded by a laughing group of girls. After being released he went home.

Deputy's House Is Destroyed By Fire Of Unknown Origin

A fire of unknown origin early yesterday morning destroyed the home of Deputy Sheriff Chris Stephenson in Floral Heights. Efforts by the fire department to check the blaze were hampered by lack of water connections in the vicinity of the house which was a short distance outside the city limits. The house was unoccupied at the time of the fire. Deputy Stephenson was spending the night at the county jail in the absence of his wife and family who were visiting in St. Petersburg. When the fire was discovered at about 3:20 A. M., Deputy Stephenson and fire Chief Mack Cleveland rushed to the house, but the blaze had progressed too far for the effective use of chemicals. House, furniture and clothing belonging to the family was a total loss, according to the deputy. He said the building was partially covered by fire insurance.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(INS)—Walker P. Powers, millionaire restaurant man and former liquor dealer, was shot and seriously wounded today by occupants of an automobile as he entered the hotel in which he lives. The automobile came within a half block of the hotel entrance and without warning the man in the seat next to the driver opened fire. Powers dropped to the pavement, a revolver bullet through his back and another in his arm. Police launched an immediate investigation into his past activities for a motive for the shooting. Hardly had the smoke of the first shooting cleared away when a detective bureau squad came across the body of a man, apparently murdered, in front of a west side garage. The body was later identified as that of Salvatore Canale, reputed Alito gunman.

Georgian Says AF's Election Will Not Endanger Dry Law

ROME, Ga., July 26.—(INS)—The election of Governor Al Smith will not endanger the prohibition amendment, G. Ed Maddox, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee of Georgia declared today in a letter to Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Maddox's letter was in reply to an open letter, addressed by Bishop Ainsworth to Maddox, John J. Chan, Democratic national committeeman from Georgia, and the editor of the Mason Telegraph, in which the Bishop attacked Smith's stand on prohibition. "Very cordially," said Maddox in his letter, "I do not think the election of Governor Smith will bring about any danger whatever to the prohibition amendment, or to the enforcement laws adopted in accordance therewith. It has been demonstrated repeatedly by their votes that a large majority of our senators and congressmen, representing constituencies believing in prohibition, do not favor any repeal or modification of existing laws."

THURSDAY, JULY 26.

GIVE ME A LITTLE IN THE WORLD TO COME

If in the world to come I find No work to do of any kind, No little tasks to fill the day, But ever the dull routine of play, I'll ask the Lord to give me birth And send me back again to earth.

If in the world to come I find No question to perplex my mind, No problems shaded dark with doubt, No mysteries still to be worked out, But all things done, and all things clear, I shall not like it there, I fear.

If life eternal means that I Shall not be needed when I die, That none shall wish me for a friend, Or ask the aid which I can lend, That all is right and nothing's wrong, I shall not like it very long.

If in that broader, ampler sphere I cannot work as I've done here, Think, dream and serve and strive to make Some progress for my spirit's sake, I'll risk the heartache and the pain And ask to come to earth again.

Before the day is over, Tunney will know whether he is supreme in the heavyweight field and Heeneey will learn whether he is champion or just another fighter. Incidentally, before the day is ended Gene will be $550,000 richer and Tom will have $100,000 more than when he started.

We note that Amelia Earhart has joined the ever-increasing list of public figures endorsing certain brands of cigarettes. It recalls that Gene Tunney refused ten thousand dollars to put his name to an endorsement of a particular cigarette because of its possible effect upon the youth of this country.

Keep Politics Out Of It

One of the candidates for governor in the recent primary had a good deal to say against the Florida State College For Women in connection with charges that obscene books were given circulation by the institution and that "free love" and subjects tending to destroy religious faith were being taught by the instructors. The ridiculous and absurd charges had their inception in the minds of a few "busy-bodies" and they were promptly branded as false not only by the heads of the institution but by many prominent Florida citizens, who had the interests of the school at heart and who made personal investigations to ascertain the truth.

It is regrettable now that this controversy should come in for another airing. As the Tampa Times rightly declares "this agitation cannot possibly do the state any good, and under all circumstances, it is a splendid thing to have at an end." We join with the Times in expressing our faith in Dr. Conradi, whom we know personally and whom we respect as a man of integrity and profound religious conviction. Dr. Conradi has given his answer in no uncertain terms, declaring that "the charge that the Florida State College For Women is teaching literature that lowers the moral standards of its students is a gross falsehood."

Commenting further upon the question, The Times has this to say in defense of the state institution for young women:

"There are, also, many Floridians—fathers and mothers—who have daughters that were last year at Florida State, some of whom will be there the coming year, who are very much concerned about this matter and who have inquired very closely and painstakingly of those daughters as to the books in question. Without exception, so far as is known, each such inquiry has shown that nothing wrong or hurtful is being taught at the institution.

"There are grounds for suspicion that this entire agitation has been more political than otherwise—no matter how much or how little its leaders may have realized such to be the case. The occasion of its raising last year and the circumstances of its revival this year strongly indicate as much. Surely if there is one of our possessions with which politics ought not to be played it is this institution, of which Floridians are and have right to be so proud."

The Drums Of War

France's statesmen viewed with misgiving the parade of 400,000 Germans, Austrians, Czechoslovaks, Rumanians, Poles and Scandinavians in Vienna, capital of Austria, last Sunday to celebrate the memory of Franz Schubert, Austrian composer of sweet and peaceful music. The Quai d'Orsay, center of French political brains, instructed its minister to Austria to absent himself from the demonstration, which was regarded as a move toward the absorption of Austria by Germany. The American ambassador, Albert H. Washburn, however, was a prominent figure in the reviewing stand.

Dispatches from Vienna, describing the mammoth parade which ambled past the reviewing stand for seven solid hours, appear to confirm in several respects the French suspicion of an underlying political motive. A New York Herald-Tribune story says in part: "From the beginning to the end of the parade, which was the greatest in Viennese history, there were marked manifestations in favor of union between Germany and Austria. Not once so far as could be learned, was the Austrian national hymn sung, the marchers confining themselves to 'Deutschland Uber Alles,' 'Die Wacht am Rhein' and 'Vaterland' in which 500,000 Austrian spectators joined with vigor." This was the music, and apparently the only music, in this mammoth party for an Austrian composer, whose scores the multitude seemed to forget in a peculiar frenzy for German patriotic anthems.

There is little at which to wonder in the French withdrawal of that nation's embassy from any part in such a celebration. By watching Europe's pulse, French statesmen obviously knew what the demonstration would be. Behind what they would consider simply the veil of a sentimental gathering, France saw the threat of an Austro-German union, a combination tinged that sinister and bloody scale, the balance of power in Europe. They heard, behind the music, the distant beating of the drums of war. So long as the eyes of Europe's diplomats watch increasingly that wavering balance, no League of Nations nor paper peace pacts will bring reductions in their machines of war.

FLORIDA'S PRESIDENTIAL VOTE
TAMPA TRIBUNE

The total vote in Florida in the presidential election of 1924 was 109,154. The total vote in the June primary, supposedly limited to Democrats, was, in the race for Governor, 234,977. Compare this with the Democratic vote, that for Davis, in the general election in 1924, which was 62,983.

This does not mean that there were 192,000 more Democrats in Florida in June, 1924, than in November, 1924. It means that many more Democrats took the opportunity to vote in the primary than in the preceding general election; and, besides, that thousands voted in the primary who had not previously claimed to be Democrats.

It is difficult to arrive at the approximate number of the latter. We may hazard a guess, making it 40,000. That leaves us 214,000 bona fide Democrats who voted in June. Will they vote in November, and how?

The Republican vote in November, 1924, was 36,633, the LaFollette vote 8,625, the Faris vote 5,498, the Nations vote 2,315—a total anti-Democratic vote of 47,071. Will this vote increase this year in the same proportion as the Democratic vote? It isn't likely, because there is no non-Democratic primary to bring out. Probably many of these 47,000 voted in the Democratic primary, thus swelling the supposed Democratic vote increase.

There is and will continue to be much more interest in this year's general election than in any previous presidential year, for obvious reasons. The issues which are coming to the front in this campaign naturally will provoke active participation and concern and bring out a much larger vote. If we make a very liberal allowance for those primary voters who will not vote in November, we may deduct the 24,977 from the 234,977 total primary vote, leaving 209,999

PRESIDENTS WHO WERE GOVERNORS
JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL

Light on whether it will be Hoover or Smith which is furnished by a survey of the positions Presidents for the past few decades have held prior to elections, shines on Governor Smith the more luminously. For the most part Governors have been selected for the highest executive post. This is of particular interest in view of the argument made against Governor Smith that he is lacking in national experience. Capacity developed in executive offices at the head of state governments has brought early to the occupants to serve in the White House in all but five instances since 1876. If we were to stretch a point we could reduce the number to four.

in 1876 Rutherford B. Hayes, Governor of Ohio, was elected President. Hayes re-elected in 1880. Assassinated before completing his term, he was succeeded by another former Governor of New York, Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt was elected in 1904. In 1908 William H. Taft was elected. He had not been a Governor of his state, but he had been Governor of the Philippines. Four years later another Governor, Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, was elected. He was re-elected in 1916, defeating Charles E. Hughes, who had been Governor of New York. Warren G. Harding, a Senator, who had been an unsuccessful candidate for Governor of Ohio, defeated the Governor of his own state, James M. Cox. Mr. Harding, dying in office, was succeeded by another Governor, Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts. He was elected for a full term in 1924.

in recent years two governors of New York, Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Roosevelt, have been President and another, Mr. Hughes, was defeated. Of the Presidents enumerated here who were not Governors, two were compromise choices. Neither of them, Mr. Garfield or Mr. Harding, was able to serve his full term. Two others did not serve more than one term. Mr. Arthur was not nominated and Mr. Harrison was defeated for re-election. The other President who had not been Governor of his state, Mr. Taft, also failed of re-election. It will be seen that Governors have not only been most frequently elected President since 1876, but have made the most successful Presidents. History may add an-

the rental of the field and the usual expenses contiguous with the staging of an event of this kind.

One of his last, despairing gestures will be to throw 7,000 general admissions on the market at 4 o'clock this afternoon at $3 each, a cut rate scheme he would have scorned in those fabled days at Philadelphia and Chicago when he was making in his millions from the avid throngs who gathered for the Dempsey-Tunney meetings. It was Dempsey's hold on the public that made these gates possible and so it must be conceded that it is Dempsey's absence from the present equation that leaves Rickard struggling for an even break at the pay off.

With this impending figure as a spectator, or at the most, a corner handler, there was nothing about this fight with which to intrigue the popular fancy. There has been a studied attempt to picture Tunney as a man in which the "killer" has been born overnight but, to the sane students of form, the lack of a single knock-down over the entire 15 rounds would come as no great surprise.

Tunney has given some indication in training that he is disposed to sacrifice some speed in a desire to punch it out with the challenger. This undoubtedly would produce a better fight than many believe they are due to see. But it isn't likely to lead to a knockout. Both men are tough; neither can punch in the accepted sense of the term. A knockout, with that combination, is hardly probable.

Tunney remained the favorite in the rather sporadic betting today and well he might. If there is any form on this fight, Tunney figures to have it with his superior speed, his cleaner punching sense, greater experience and the knowledge that a defeat would make him appear almost ludicrous. They are said to have made him a favorite-at-odds-as-high as 2-1-2 to 1, which, in the light of subsequent development, may prove to be quite out of line.

Heeney, the uninspired, the mugg fighter without personal illusions even to this day, will make his usual fight, a regulation button-hole maker's job of it, which means that he will have a fairly good chance to win. The writers' guess would be that he is worth about two dollars against Tunney's three in the betting.

This is not due to the fact that Heeney really is a first class fighter. He isn't and never will be. But he will give an average, a representative performance and it may be that Tunney will not or can not. Depreciation in form because of non-activity has been discounted in some quarters but there is little doubt that Tunney isn't as good as he was in Philadelphia. The sudden change in altitude and temperature from Speculator to New York may affect him somewhat adversely, too, and the fact that he has arrogated unto himself the prerogatives of camp star is also a bit ominous. It recalls Dempsey and his feeble attempt to run everything at the Philadelphia fight.

DIAGONAL STYLE POINTS

Irregularity, achieved by means of diagonal lines, is the outstanding theme of the mode. Such frocks as the one above have the distinct advantage from the home dressmaker's viewpoint; they are simple to make yet they give an appearance of smart complexity of cut. This frock which made itself by development in lines or any of the silk crepes is unaccounted for by the zig-zag line that marks the blouse collar and which extends into a point just over the breast of the skirt.

Keep An Orchard On Your Pantry Shelf

KEEP an orchard on your pantry shelf! is the advice which an experienced housewife gave a June bride. Answering her look of amazement, she continued:

"Yes, it really is an orchard—peaches, pears, pineapples, cherries, berries—anything you can think of in the way of fruit. Fruits which can't grow outdoors in your neighborhood will thrive in your pantry orchard and they are all ready to use at a moment's notice. And there are so many good things you can make from your canned fruit 'orchard' too."

And here are some of the recipes which the little bride received with thanks:

Pantry Orchard Recipes

Apple Cup Custards: Beat three egg yolks slightly and add one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, one number two can of apple sauce, three-fourths cup milk and one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and sprinkle nutmeg over top, after pouring into custard cups. Set in hot water and bake in slow oven, 325° F., for about forty minutes or until set. Serve cold.

Fruity Fruit Mayonnaise: Beat one cup heavy cream, add two-thirds cup mayonnaise and one cup sugar. Add one cup crushed pineapple, one-half cup canned strawberries, two tablespoons lemon juice and two mashed bananas. Pack in air-tight can, and immerse in salt and ice for several hours.

Break Bananas Tarts: Break two cups stale sponge cake into pieces. Add one cup sliced peaches, one-half cup peach syrup from the can, two sliced bananas. Beat one egg cream and fold in slightly. Put in glasses and chill.

If Old Mother Hubbard Owned a Refrigerator

By EMILY ALLEN SAYRES, Director, Electro-Home Institute

"OLD MOTHER HUBBARD," the familiar old rhyme says, faced nothing but empty shelves when she went to her cupboard, but had she gone to her refrigerator, and if that refrigerator had been one of the efficient, silent, automatic machines of the present day, the story no doubt would have had an entirely different ending. At all events, no modern housewife who owns an up-to-date gas or electric refrigerator need ever find herself in Mother Hubbard's dilemma.

It is not only an easy, but an economical matter to keep the shelves of the refrigerator well stocked, for food purchased in quantities may be purchased far more cheaply, and the housewife who buys in this way may go to a larger market and secure a wider choice. Having faith in her refrigerator she knows she may purchase largely even of delicate products, for it is quite possible to keep safely lettuce and other salad plants, also fragile berries, from three days to a week, within its cold depths. It is a relief, too, to do a week's hot-weather marketing in one trip and employ the time saved for recreation or entertaining.

Refrigeration Improves Meat.

Meat really improves if kept chops for several days may be purchased at one time. Milk, butter, eggs, all these very necessary adjuncts to good living retain their freshness perfectly in the cold, dry air, and the housewife who is wise will invariably have an extra jar of heavy cream at hand; there is nothing that adds such a festive touch to a salad or a dessert as a topping of whipped cream.

When Company Comes

As to desserts, salad dressings, delicious soups, and broths and beverages, an efficient refrigerator will store for you in silent safety an endless variety of these inviting good things until you have need for them. It will even supply fresh, hot shortcake waffles in the twinkling of an eye, for the batter may be prepared at one's leisure and kept in the refrigerator for a week or more. Try it—they are easily made.

Short Cake Waffles: Beat three eggs to a light froth, add a cupful of granulated sugar and beat till thick and light, pour in four tablespoons of cold water, then whip in one and one-quarter cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, and one-quarter teaspoonful of salt. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla and fold in four tablespoonsful of melted butter. Bake in a hot waffle mold, cover the finished waffle with crushed sweetened berries or sliced peaches, top with another waffle
