

Servant Serves As Witness In Boy Murderers' Case

as the principal in activities described by the state's attorney in his two hour opening presentation as the execution of their carefully laid plans for their crime.

Twice during the day the state's attorney demanded the death penalty for the boys—once in the "name of the parenthood and the childhood of the state," in his opening statement. Again it came late in the day, when the defense tried to shorten the testimony and Mr. Crowe said he needed it to support his request for a death sentence.

The strategy of the defense was not revealed. There was but a brief response to the lengthy statement of Mr. Crowe. It was in conversational pitch, directly to the court and ended with a challenging of the superlatives of the prosecution. There was virtually no cross examination of the state's witnesses.

At one point in a brief exchange between counsel Darrow reiterated that the defense case rested "in the judgment, the wisdom and the mercy of this court," and frequently signified, with the assent of his colleague, Benjamin Bachrach, his willingness to permit direct and leading questions of the state's witnesses. At several points the defense attorneys evinced a disposition to allow the proceedings to go on as speedily as possible. But in reply to every offer of the court or the defense to shorten the proceedings Mr. Crowe repeated his determination to bring every point of evidence into the record.

Asked after the session what would be the action of the defense in the event of a death sentence, Mr. Darrow said:

"Certainly I will never permit any man to hang so long as there is anything in the world I can do to save him."

Nathan Leopold, Sr., surviving parent of one of the boys, was in court all day, his face creased deeply by the lines of grief. Neither parent of Loeb was present, but his uncle, Jacob Loeb, wealthy lawyer, and former president of the Chicago Board of Education, was a close observer.

HARRELL SAYS WAS FORGED TO AID MURDERER

Mihil and in the Argonne.

To newspaper men he gave a detailed account of the killing of the coast artillery officer. He and King, he said, were walking from Rockingham county, N. C., to Camden, because they had heard there was work in Camden. "We had planned nothing," he said. "A lot of cars passed us, and he hailed them, but none stopped until this army car came along."

"He stopped and we got in. I got in front with the major, and King was in the back of the car. I guess we rode sixty or seventy miles, talking about the army."

"All at once King punched the major in the back and when we turned around I saw that he had a gat in the major's back."

"Stop the car," King said.

"Are you serious?" the major said.

"I sure as hell am," King told him.

"Stop the car," said King.

"Are you serious, the major said, and the major stopped the car."

"King made me get out, and he drove me into the woods with the major. The major didn't beg any. He just told King that as a former soldier he ought to respect an army officer. King just told him to go ahead and he made me go, too. I walked just a little behind the major."

"When we had gone a little piece in the woods King stopped. He didn't warn him nor nothing. He just bumped him off and then he turned on me and said 'If you ever cheap anything about this I will bump you off too.'" will take time to make the arrangements.

Harrell declares he is innocent of the killing and will not fight extradition.

Mr. Palmer took occasion to correct some rumors that have been prevalent to the effect that the local field is not of standard measurements and because it is not, would not be acceptable by a big league club. On the contrary, he stated, the field is as good as can be found anywhere outside of major league parks. He branded as false reports that the condition of the field prohibited its use by large teams, saying that it is a much better field than those offered by other cities in the state who have major teams every year.

Proves Great Boon To Pile Sufferers

No man or woman need suffer whether day from any pain, soreness or distress arising from hemorrhoids or piles, now that a modern doctor's prescription, known by druggists as MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES, can be obtained at a moderate price. You'll be amazed to see how quickly they remove the piles. In ordinary cases, the medicine will supply you with the same back if dissolved in water.

Paris, as reported, but intends to remain in London for another ten days, which time it is expected will be needed to wind up the conference work.

Speaking at the lawyers' banquet at the Guild Hall last night, Ambassador Kellogg referred to the inter-allied conference as "a gathering to settle the great economic and social problems of the war."

The British hosts are calmly watching the inter-allied conference proceedings and doing everything possible to lift the negotiations out of the maze of technicalities. They compare the pledges necessary to the guarantee of a German loan to able-bodied workmen pledging themselves to give one shilling annually to a worthy cause.

to a number of the outgoing sections of the city. Mr. Williams said. As fast as the new mains are laid in the ground, the water is turned into them thus giving more and more people the advantage of the city's water supply, he said.

Mr. Williams further stated in regard to the water system that when it is completed Sanford will get the lowest rates possible on fire insurance which will mean quite a saving to local property owners.

When asked how the local waterworks system will compare with those of Orlando and several other of the more progressive small cities of Florida, Mr. Williams stated that Sanford's system will be second to none; that it will excel the plants of those cities in its completeness and in its efficiency. He stated that as an example Orlando did not put in an entire system of new mains when the water plant there became municipal property, but scraped out most of the old mains and kept them in service. Now they are continually having trouble with bursting mains, he said.

World Fliers See All Sorts Weather In Encircling Globe

TOKIO, July 24.—The McLaren party of British round-the-world aviators was winging its way westward through the Kuriles Wednesday.

Forced down a week ago on Iriomote Island, near the southern end of the Kurile chain by fog and for a time feared to have perished, the fliers early today left Tokotan Bay on Uruppu for Murakami Bay on Paramashiru, the most northerly of the larger Kuriles, and their last stop in the Japanese Empire.

Despatches telling of the officers' take-off today brought the first news of an unsuspected reason for their delay in starting on again from Uruppu, the illness of Flying Officer W. N. Penderleith. Previously the delay had been attributed to alternate high winds and heavy fogs, both common occurrences in the Kuriles, but today it developed that these had been only contributory causes.

Production of Gold Shows Big Decrease

NEW YORK, July 24.—Canada by 1920 will displace the United States as second among the gold-producing countries of the world, in the opinion of Louis D. Huntoon, New York mining engineer and a former professor of mining and metallurgy at Yale University. Canada is now third, Africa ranking first.

Summer Hints for Young Mothers

Teething.
"Second Summer"

There is a common old saying among mothers that if the baby survives its second summer, it will be over the most dangerous period.

This is based on the fact that hot weather is hard on a teething child.

One of the most famous children's specialists says that a healthy child in teething may be fretful and sleep poorly for a few nights, may show loss of appetite, and slight fever, and may drool, but such spells should only last three or four days, and most of the symptoms commonly attributed to teething come from indigestion due to wrong food.

For children's indigestion, there's nothing more effective than Livalax, and they like to take it. You can get good sized bottles at the drug store.

In the Forest Fire Zone

Here is a typical scene in the forest fires now raging in California and other western and northwestern states. Scores have died, scores more are missing, livestock is perishing in great numbers and millions of acres of fine old trees are being wiped out. And the "thoughtless fool," the camper who goes away and leaves his fire burning, is blamed for the most of it.

Under such circumstances, buying of wheat was on a tremendous scale. Both here and at Winnipeg, Europeans were credited with purchasing heavily, and despite heavy profit-taking the close was but at relatively slight reaction from the day's top figures, net gains being 6 1/2 to 7 1/2 cents.

BUENOS AIRES, July 24.—A dispatch to La Nacion from Santos this afternoon quotes Admiral Penido, commanding the Santos base, as saying: "The care being taken not to destroy building) and to avoid casualties among the non-combatants is the reason for the slowness of our movement (on Officio Communication.

BUENOS AIRES, July 24.—The official communication issued by the Brazilian war office at noon today, says:

"Our observers have confirmed the efficacy of the artillery work of the federal troops. During last night there was weak firing on our right wing.

"The federal forces continued to make progress on all the fronts."

General Weygand Continues To Rule Syria For France

BEIRUT, Syria, July 24.—The recent return of General Weygand, the French high commissioner for Syria, has had at least the effect of silencing the persistent rumors that he was not returning to his post after going to France on leave.

Reports that he would resign immediately he reached Paris were set aside before General Weygand turned his back to Syria. It was even asserted that on reaching Paris he informed Poincare that he would not return to Syria except at the head of several divisions of troops with which to put down the hordes of Turkish bandits to the north, and maintain order within Syria proper.

Although his plans are not known it is safe to assume that General Weygand will make no drastic changes in the French administration. The French system of governing Syria has been, and will probably continue, one of conferring make-believe independence on the governed. The French have set up a native government with titles of independence for high officials. There is, for instance, a native "President of the Syrian Confederation" and a governor of Damascus. Actually, these officials are without power, all the authority being left in the hands of the French. The "President of the Syrian Confederation" may not sign an administrative order of any kind without approval of the French high commissioner.

Auto Smugglers Are Active on Frontiers

BERLIN, July 24.—Automobile smugglers have been operating in Germany. This fact came to light recently when government agents swooped down upon the Ams road, between Berlin and Potsdam, set up a guard at either end and confiscated a lot of cars of American and other foreign makes, the owners of which could not produce papers to show that they had paid the import duties. Government officials announce that a great many foreign cars were brought into Germany this morning through the occupied territory along the western frontiers, where there are no customs officials. Most of them came from France, and paid no import tax.

German Junkers Are Restless At Repression Role

BRESLAU, Germany, July 24.—The junkers of Germany are sore as can be seen over the political role allotted to them by their own party, the German National People's party. Ever since the revolution they have been told by their party leaders that the nobility, as such, must keep in the background, that the only way for the monarchists to get back into control is by keeping up a semblance of democracy, that the nobility must content itself with having influence in the inner party councils, but must not figure much outwardly.

The worm is turning with the junkers. They are not content with this passive role. It grates on their sensibilities that Count X—should figure eleventh on the list of nominees of the party, with his election quite doubtful, merely because he happens to be of noble birth, while Master Painter Y heads the list because of his popularity and because the party can demonstrate thereby that the socialists and communists do not hold a monopoly of working class votes. The nobility keep in touch with each other through a paper published by the Association of Noblemen. In a recent issue, this organ devotes to columns to its grievances along the lines indicated above. "The nobility must see to it that it secures more parliamentary seats," the organ concludes. "It is sick and tired of submitting to a political expediency resting upon false assumptions and to be forced to the wall as an inconvenient reminder."

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Crop and weather conditions in Florida during the week ending yesterday, was summarized today by the department of agriculture as follows: "Growth and condition of cotton very good except in the west where rains were unfavorable and much grass. Progress made in cultivating soy beans, peanuts, cane, sweet potatoes and cow peas. Citrus fruits in good condition. Preparing land for strawberries. Range improved."

The king had specially informed the guests that it would not be necessary to comply with the palace custom in regard to dress, for he realized that many of them had come to England not expecting to participate in formal social functions.

Nevertheless the Americans attended in style. They bought borrowed or hired London's stock of high silk hats. In all of the democratic company from overseas, there was but one lone straw hat. Threatening weather caused many of the American women to appear in dark gowns, but the queen and Mrs. Hughes were dressed in white. Mrs. Hughes wore a mauve picture hat, but the queen's was a toque of gray metal cloth.
