Jury Out In Case Of Man Charged In Wife's Murder

A jury of four men and eight women began deliberations this morning in the case of a Sanford man charged with the first-degree murder of his wife.

Basil Fredrick Green, 28, of 301 E. Fifth St., Sanford, testified Thursday that he does not remember shooting his wife and said he was an abused spouse.

Ruby Beverly Green, 28, of 1200 W. 8th St., Sanford, was shot three times while she worked Feb. 25. Two shots, one in the back and one in the upper chest, were lethal without medical attention. The third bullet ripped through Mrs. Green's aorta causing her to bleed to death, said Dr. G.V. Garay during testimony.

The state is not seeking the death penalty. Prosecuting the case are Tom Hastings and Norm Wolfinger, state attorney for the 18th Judicial District of Seminole and Brevard counties. Green is represented by Assistant Public Defender Paul Arlt. The trial is before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor.

Green could receive life with no parole for 25 years if convicted. He was indicted on the charge by a grand jury March 9. At the time of the shooting, the Greens were separated.

Green testified his wife was mentally and sexually abusive, used alcohol to excess and used cocaine. He said she threatened to have him killed if he did not comply with her sexual demands. They married in 1982.

According to police reports and testimony, Mrs. Green was working at S & H Fabricating and Engineering, 2660 Jewett Lane, Sanford, when a man entered the company at 4:34 p.m. According to witnesses, the man walked over to Mrs. Green and shot her in the back with a .25-caliber handgun. She turned and fell to the floor, whereupon the man leaned over, said something, then shot her twice in the chest. She was pronounced dead at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

After the shooting, the man turned, and carrying the pistol, walked out of the building, reports show.

Green, a laborer for the same company, quit about an hour before the incident because of personal problems. He was arrested by a Sanford officer at the northwest corner of the plant. He was holding a handgun at the time, records show.

Bond Hearing Set For Hypnotist Nabbed In Postal Child Porn Probe

A hypnotist and counselor arrested at his Lake Mary office by U.S. Marshals and charged with two counts of mailing child pornography is scheduled for a bond hearing Monday in Orlando.

Thomas E. Baker, 49, of 240 Maureen Drive, west of Sanford, was arrested at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Driewood Village on Lake Mary Boulevard, following an undercover investigation by U.S. Postal Inspector Daniel Witowski.

Witowski alleges undercover postal agents received from Baker sexually explicit photographs of nude children in June and July.

Sheriff's deputies in Seminole and Orange counties assisted in the investigations, and Seminole deputies assisted in Baker's arrest at his Center for Counseling and Hypnosis.

U.S. Attorney Bruce Hinshelwood said the law under which Baker was nabbed is a new federal anti-child-pornography law passed in October 1984.

"Not a lot of cases have been made under this law. We've only had four or five cases in our district, but things are picking up."

In Witowski's complaint against Baker he alleges postal inspectors in New Jersey received in February a questionnaire describing Baker's sexual preferences.

The unsolicited four-page questionnaire was sent to an undercover operation used by postal agents to identify pedophiles who use the U.S. postal service to deliver pornographic materials, the complaint said.

The questionnaire was signed "T. Gene Baker," and in May, Witowski, using a false name and address, began corresponding with Gene Baker at P.O. Box 219, Lake Mary, the complaint said.

Baker is in the custody of U.S. Marshals and appeared before U.S. Magistrate Donald Dietrich on Thursday in federal court in Orlando. Dietrich set Monday's bail hearing.

If convicted Baker faces up to 10 years in prison and a $100,000 fine on each count.

Seminole Jail Has 2 Of Conspirators

4 Held Without Bond In Aborted Weapons Buy

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A military weapons and technology writer and a Lebanese businessman were being held without bond today at the Seminole County jail following their arrest for plotting to send thousands of black market military weapons and supplies to Iran. The U.S. Attorney asked the men be held without bond because they have international connections and might leave the country.

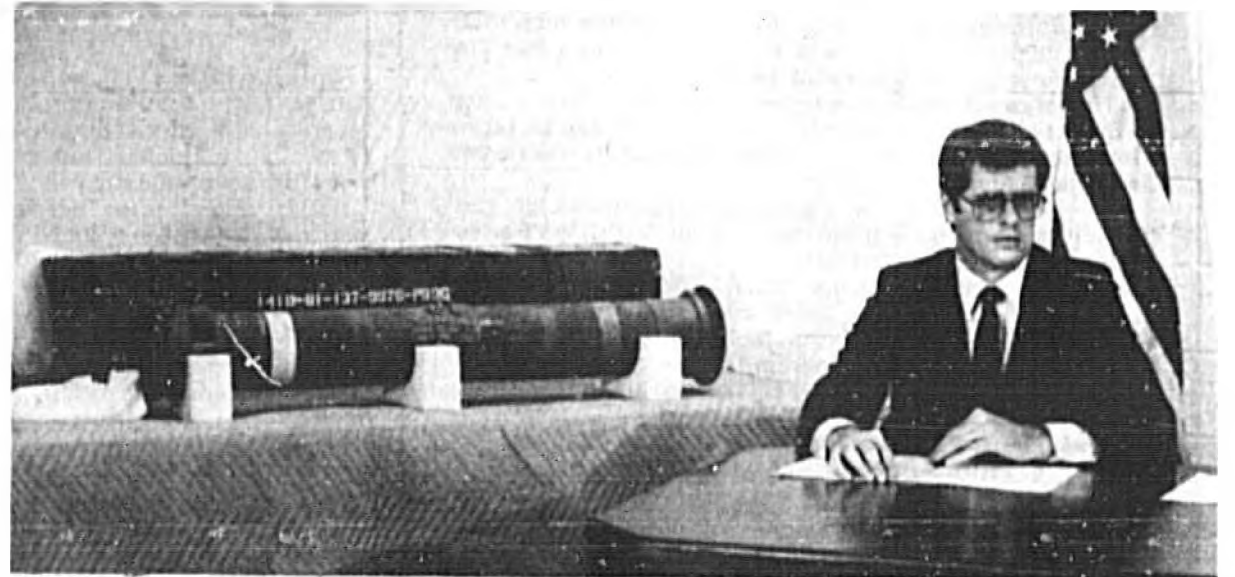

Arrested in Orlando and taken to the Seminole County jail as federal prisoners were Paul Sjeklocha, 47, a writer in San Jose, Calif., and Fadel Fadel, 54, a Lebanese businessman living in Calabasas, Calif. While both men have asked for lawyers as of today no one has agreed to represent them, said Thomas Turner of the U.S. Attorney's Office, Orlando. Turner said the men were being held at the jail in Sanford because the federal government contracts with Seminole County to hold some of its prisoners.

Turner said the men will appear before a U.S. magistrate by Monday for a detention hearing and within 10 days a preliminary hearing on the charges. Turner said he expects the case to be presented before a grand jury within the next 30 days.

Eventually, the other defendants will be brought to Orlando for proceedings.

At other sites in the country, an Army colonel, Fadel's wife, and an Iranian who claims to be a government official were also being held and charged with plotting to send thousands of missiles to Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini for use in that country's war against Iraq. A fourth suspect, reportedly a publishing associate of the writer, was released on $25,000 bond.

The alleged conspiracy stretched from Orlando to the Pentagon weapons command to California. Had it succeeded, Iran would have been able to resupply its aging stockpiles of U.S. arms — obtained when the shah was in power and that nation was a U.S. ally — with more sophisticated missiles, according to the FBI.

Topping the list of suspects in the FBI sting is Lt. Col. Wayne Gillespie, 46, an artillery specialist and West Point graduate working for the Army Materiel Command at the Pentagon. He was arrested Wednesday night at his Alexandria, Va., home and was being held in lieu of $100,000 bond. Fadel's wife, Farhin Sanat, 52, is an Iranian living in the United States on a special visa. She was arrested in their Calabasas, Calif., mansion.

Also charged were George Neranchi, of Los Altos, Calif., who said he was a magazine publisher, and Amir Hossent, 38, of Santa Ana, Calif., who claimed to be an Iranian government official.

Mrs. Fadel and Hossent were also being held without bond because federal prosecutors fear they would skip the country if released.

Failure To Communicate Led To Road Work Problems

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

An apparent mixup in communications that has led to problems for some residents along the entrance road to Seminole Community College — presently under construction — brought Seminole County, Lake Mary city officials and state officials to the site today.

Christine Terwilliger of Weldon Boulevard (formerly East Road, renamed in honor of the college president and now being widened) complained today that construction workers widening the road to four lanes have installed drainage pipes in her front yard without permission and are dumping trash and fill into a pond on her property. Her complaints brought the county and state officials together for an inspection tour this morning in an effort to resolve the problem.

Here is how it all began:

The Seminole County Legislative Delegation at the request of the college decided that the two-lane roadway is a hazard and should be widened and a traffic signal installed at its intersection with U.S. 17-92. The county provided a small part of the funding for the project, while the state contributed the bulk of it. The total cost for construction only was $583,288, with the state paying $520,788, plus the state set aside $100,000 to acquire the needed right-of-way.

Seminole County got involved when the state's share was said to be insufficient and pledged $62,500 in impact fees which normally are used to benefit schools. The school board gave its blessing, said county-Public Works Director Larry Sellers.

The county, also cooperating with the state, had County Attorney Nikki Clayton handle the condemnation of additional rights-of-way along the road, based on right-of-way maps prepared by the state Department of Transportation.

The state let a contract for the road expansion to RKG Construction Co. of Longwood which began its work several months ago.

Meanwhile, Sellers said the state plans included a note that piping could be installed, especially in the front yard of Mrs. Terwilliger's home, if she wished to relieve flooding in a low spot there.

Congress Approves Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress approved a budget for next fiscal year that takes a small bite out of the federal deficit, but nearly everyone — from President Reagan on down — is saying more must be done.

"It's not great, not what many of us wanted, but it's certainly better than nothing," added Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.

The budget that passed Congress Thursday night and sent lawmakers home for a month-long vacation broke a seven-week House-Senate conference stalemate and capped a process that started in January.

By latest estimate the $967.6 billion spending blueprint cuts about $57 billion from the anticipated deficit of $220 billion. Earlier estimates put the deficit-reduction at $55 billion. Some say its cuts could run higher.

But it still leaves a deficit of $172 billion in 1986 and $113 billion in red ink projected by 1988 by the committee, though the politically neutral Congressional Budget

'It's... the biggest budget cut in the history of the Republic.'

Office predicted the deficit for 1988 at $161 billion.

Reagan won a small spending increase for the Pentagon — enough to keep up with inflation, and with Democrats as unlikely allies staved off a Senate GOP effort to curb Social Security payments.

Medicare, agriculture, transportation and other programs were cut.

Final Senate approval came late Thursday, 87-32, with 37 Republicans joining 30 Democrats to pass the plan. Fifteen Republicans and 17 Democrats opposed it.

Senate passage swiftly followed House approval, 309-119, with 182 Democrats joining 127 Republicans to approve the spending plan. Fifty-two GOP members and 67 Democrats opposed the budget.

Reagan does not have to sign the budget. But he does have a say on congressional money bills and immediately vowed to have his "veto pen" ready.

In an official White House statement released when the favorable vote was assured, Reagan said the compromise budget "marks only a beginning, not an end" and pledged to examine "each and every upcoming appropriation bill line by line... and I will not hesitate to use my veto pen."

Some senators, disappointed at defeat in trying to trim Social Security and other programs, criticized the budget for not going far enough. Others complained it contained no taxes — another thing Reagan opposes.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., after listening to the criticism, said: "I can't see how anyone

He's Top Dog, But Speaks No English

KATY, Texas (UPI) — Officer Randy Smotts speaks no German. His German shepherd, Fanto, understands no English.

But police officers say Fanto is a great police dog and they'll train him to understand English commands.

"We want to get him trained in English in the next few months," K-9 Supervisor William Myer said of the 5-year-old dog bred and trained in West Germany. "It's hard for an officer to speak in German when he is excited.

"But we will keep the attack word in German because an officer should have to think about it before using it and we don't want anybody else at the scene to try to command the dog," Myer said.

"Americans train good police dogs, but Germans train the best," Myer said.

Astronauts Still Pestered By Troublesome Telescope

United Press International

Challenger's scientists put on hold today efforts to iron the kinks out of a troublesome shuttle telescope mount and chalked up success with their first full run of dramatic solar observations.

Scientists on the ground said solar observations made with the three working telescopes on the IPS continued to be excellent, although limited by troubleshooting to fix the wavering mount.

To compensate for the pointer's inability to lock onto the sun, the crew has used tracking systems on the mount's instruments to do the job instead. More troubleshooting was scheduled for later today.

Despite repeated attempts, an instrument on the IPS designed to study the sun's magnetic field has refused to turn on, a bitter disappointment to scientists who have been planning for Challenger's Spacelab mission for nearly 10 years.

Since Challenger's rocky "abort to orbit" launch Monday, the shuttle scientists have been gathering a bounty of science data from the $72 million array of instruments in Challenger's payload bay.

A pair of X-ray telescopes, an infrared telescope and a giant cosmic ray detector have worked well. On Wednesday, the crew succeeded in transmitting the first amateur television signal from space, a view of ham radio operator England.

Court Kills Nerve Gas Testing

BOSTON (UPI) — A defense contractor in Cambridge stopped testing five chemical-warfare agents after the state's highest court upheld the college town's ban on testing, storage and disposal of the weapons.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court, in a 4-1 ruling Thursday, rejected a challenge brought by Arthur D. Little Inc., which conducted tests on nerve gas under a contract with the Defense Department.

The justices said the Cambridge regulations do not unduly burden the Defense Department, which is "free to conduct its research elsewhere."

ADL spokeswoman Alma Triner said research, which had continued under a lower court injunction, ceased Thursday. She said no decision had been made on whether to appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court.

Cambridge City Manager Robert Healy hailed the ruling for upholding a city's power "to protect its citizens from the potential hazard that could result from the testing of super toxic chemicals."

Testing began in the fall of 1983 at the firm's laboratory within several hundred feet of a busy commercial area and a neighborhood.

Schroeder Going Home

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artificial heart recipient William Schroeder will return for the first time since his historic operation to his hometown of Jasper, Ind., to ride through town in a German festival parade.

Dr. William C. DeVries, the only surgeon federally approved to implant mechanical hearts, decided Thursday Schroeder is strong enough to make the long-awaited journey home, barring medical complications, a spokesman at Humana Hospital Audubon said.

Schroeder will return to the hospital after the parade.

Police Accused Of Complicity In Murder Of Civil Rights Lawyer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Black activists today accused police of complicity in the murder of a leading civil rights lawyer as police exercising emergency powers arrested 52 more people.

Victoria Mxenge, who was representing 16 members of the United Democratic Front charged with treason, was ambushed and shot to death outside her home Thursday. Police said four gunmen took part in the attack. All escaped.

Investigators said they had not determined the motive for the attack.

But the Azanian Students Organization said "enemy agents" were responsible.

"We have come to be clearly convinced that these murderers enjoy too much leniency, if not the full support of the sophisticated police machinery," the opposition student group said.

Mxenge's husband, Griffiths, also a leading oppositionist attorney, was stabbed to death in 1981. His murder has never been solved.

Israelis Bomb Lebanese Base

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes flattened a pro-Syrian Lebanese militia base today, killing more than 10 people in apparent retaliation for recent suicide bomb attacks against Israeli troops in southern Lebanon.

A spokesman for Lebanon's civil defense corps said "more than 10 bodies" were removed from the rubble of a villa in the heart of the Bekaa Valley town of Chitaura, 22 miles east of Beirut. He declined to give further details.

Christian Voice of Lebanon radio quoted civil defense sources saying 23 dead were taken from the building and they feared that the final death toll might be as high as 40. At least 10 people were reported wounded in the air strike.

Police said the two-story building was the regional headquarters of the National Syrian Social Party.

Only 15 minutes before the raid, all the pro-Syrian militia's leaders in the Bekaa Valley fled into the building for a meeting. Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said one of the dead was the NSSP defense chief but the report could not be immediately confirmed.

Unemployment: Same Old Story

More Construction, Restaurant Jobs Keep Rate At 7.3%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate in July remained at 7.3 percent for the sixth consecutive month, thanks to a surge in construction and restaurant jobs, the Labor Department said today.

Despite the addition of about 500,000 new jobs in July, unemployment among black workers and teenagers increased sharply and factory workers recovered none of the more than 200,000 jobs they have lost so far this year.

The unemployment rate has actually changed very little for a year and not at all after January, as industrial employment has been steadily eroded by import competition but jobs in retailing, finance, insurance and construction have improved.

The unemployment rate for black workers rose a full point to 15 percent, wiping out what appeared to have been a sharp improvement in June.

The unemployment rate for teenagers rose slightly more than a point to 19.5 percent as summer jobs were harder to find than usual. The rate for black teenagers climbed to 41.3 percent, the highest since March.

The total number of unemployed workers, at 8.451 million, is just 40,000 people less than it was a year ago.

A particularly negative trend in the latest report was an increase of 200,000 in the number of the unemployed who were laid off or fired. This was balanced somewhat, however, by the fact that fewer people voluntarily chose to leave their jobs.

Another negative was a 12-minute shortening of the average work week, which translates into billions of dollars in payroll income no longer available to the economy. The length of the factory work week did not change, remaining at 40 1/2 hours.

An accompanying unemployment rate, that includes the military as employed workers, remained at 7.2 percent and like the overall rate, was unchanged from February on.

The increase in employment by 490,000 jobs, to 106.86 million, almost made up the similar-sized drop that surprised analysts in June — a switch that now appears to have been a statistical problem more than an actual decision by people to remain unemployed.

The figures have also benefited in recent months by a slowdown in the growth of the working age population so that the labor force expanded by only 1.3 million in the 12 months from July of last year compared to 2.1 million from January to December 1984.

The jobless rate for adult men improved slightly, moving from 6.5 percent to 6.3 percent, and the rate for adult women also changed very little, down to 6.6 percent from 6.7 percent.

The unemployment rate for black workers, at 15 percent, was more than twice the 6.4 percent for white workers. The rate for Hispanic workers jumped to 11.2 percent in July from June's 10.6 percent.

The continuous cuts in factory employment took the unemployment rate in heavily industrialized Ohio to 9.9 percent in July from 8.6 percent in June. Higher than it was a year ago, Michigan's rate went to 10.9 percent from 10.3 percent.

Health Spending Up 9.1%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks in large part to fewer and shorter hospital stays, America's health spending rose 9.1 percent in 1984 — its slowest rate of climb in 20 years, the government says.

Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler announced the "dramatic decrease in health-care inflation" in a statement Thursday. Heckler remains hospitalized after undergoing a surgery Tuesday to remove her uterus.

In 1984, federal figures showed that $387 billion was spent on health care, ranging from hospital construction and prescription drugs to laboratory research and doctor's care.

That represents an increase of 9.1 percent from the year before, the smallest rise since an 8 percent increase in 1965. The biggest rise ever was registered in 1980 — 15.3 percent. In 1983, it rose 10.6 percent.

Still, the relatively small increase in health inflation was more than double the nation's overall inflation rate last year — 4.3 percent.

"Lower overall inflation accounted for a large measure of the reduced growth in health care spending, but the most important development was the drop in use of hospital inpatient services," Heckler said.

HHS said a survey by the American Hospital Association found that community

Most health care dollars are spent on patient care, but the largest percentage increase has been in research, building and management.

hospital admissions dropped 3.7 percent last year and in-patient days fell 8.6 percent.

The American Association of Retired Persons complain that patients, particularly those covered by Medicare and Medicaid, the national health insurance programs for the old and poor, are being released "quicker and sicker."

In a study issued Tuesday, the 20th anniversary of Medicare and Medicaid, the association also said a growing portion of these people's money is going to medical costs, pushing some toward financial ruin and putting some care out of reach.

Government figures show that an average of $1,580 was spent per person for health in 1984, with 41 percent of it financed by the government and most of that through Medicare and Medicaid.

Sea Chases Net Two Big Drug Hauls

MIAMI (UPI) — Two sea chases, one punctuated by gunfire, have netted the government's drug smuggling fighters two big hauls — 2,000 pounds of cocaine and eight tons of marijuana.

Before dawn Thursday, a U.S. Customs patrol boat ran down a 32-foot ocean racing boat off the upper Florida Keys. Three men aboard the speed boat heaved at least 34 duffel bags of cocaine overboard and then tried to ram the patrol boat. The crew of the patrol boat opened fire on the speed boat, disabling it.

Coast Guardsmen aboard the Navy hydrofoil Hercules boarded the 60-foot vessel Sally Ann in the Gulf of Mexico, north of Dry Tortugas, about 11 a.m. Thursday and found it was carrying about 16,000 pounds of marijuana. Three Cuban U.S. residents and one Cuban alien were arrested. Miami Coast Guard spokesman, Petty Officer Joe Dye, said the eight tons of marijuana was worth $6.4 million.

The cocaine seizure by Customs Thursday could be worth as much as $25 million wholesale to the smugglers or $250 million when cut for street sales. It was the largest cocaine seizure at sea and one of the largest hauls of the year.

The largest seizure of illegal cocaine in the United States was 3,906 pounds. It occurred when U.S. Customs at Miami seized an air cargo shipment from Colombia March 9, 1982.

The cocaine, marijuana, boats and the seven men arrested in the two drug hauls were turned over to agents of the vice presidential task force.

Reagan By A Nose: 'Blemish' Surgically Removed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House doctors removed a bit of irritated skin from President Reagan's nose after the July 13 operation.

The first lady said the president is "allergic to tape" and, "when the tube was removed during his recovery from cancer surgery."

Jenneter Hirshberg, Nancy Reagan's press secretary, quoted the first lady as saying Thursday the president had a "blemish on his nose" when he went into Bethesda Naval Hospital July 12 for the removal of a cancerous intestinal growth.

Hirshberg said the "blemish" was irritated when doctors inserted a nasogastric tube and taped it to Reagan's nose after the July 13 operation.

The first lady said the president is "allergic to tape" and, "when the tube was removed during his recovery from cancer surgery."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the spot on the right side of his nose was removed Tuesday in a procedure performed without anesthesia in the office of White House physician T. Burton Smith.

Hirshberg said Reagan's doctors "wanted to look for infection. There was no biopsy."

Reagan is in "superb" condition. Reporters and cameramen noticed a scab near the bridge of the president's nose Thursday when he addressed the evangelical broadcasters and writers in the East Room.

Wednesday, during a picture-taking session in the Oval Office with his daughter Maureen, Reagan was positioned so that the right side of his nose was turned away from photographers.

The decision to have the small patch of skin removed was made by Reagan in consultation with Smith.

'Tax Hike Inevitable' If Deficit Is To Be Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, says a tax increase is unavoidable if the deficit is to be cut, and a revised tax code would help make sure it is fair.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose committee plans to begin writing a tax reform bill in September, said that moves to change the tax system and slash the more than $200 billion deficit should not "paralyze" each other, but that new revenues are inevitable.

"One day soon we're going to raise taxes," he said. "The president has no other practical alternative. We've about hit bottom on the spending side — both politically and as a matter of practical economics.

"But when we decide to raise large amounts of revenue to draw down the debt, let's have ready a new tax code that gives us the revenue base to do it without hitting anyone or any business unfairly."

Rostenkowski added, "If the tax base is broad, a 1 or 2 percent hike in the rates can raise a lot of revenue without distorting the marketplace."

Reagan has repeatedly said he would veto any tax increase — a position Rostenkowski tied to the president's campaign promise not to raise levies.

"I think that's wrong," the lawmaker said.

He also declared "the quest for tax reform is very much alive," but hinted his panel may change several key parts of Reagan's plan, including the number of tax brackets and the proposal to eliminate the state and local tax deduction.

He expressed doubts, however, that the Senate would act on a measure this year even if the House did.

"I don't know whether (Senate Republican leader) Bob Dole wants the ball," he said.

Rostenkowski mixed praise for Reagan's plan with questions about why the administration changed parts of the Treasury Department's original blueprint.

"A number of my colleagues are privately suggesting a return to some of the options contained in the first Treasury proposal," he noted.

Rostenkowski said whatever bill comes out of his committee, it should "stay true to the spirit and the large pieces" of Reagan's plan or Congress would risk losing the president's support.

However, he also raised the possibility of change, especially as a way to provide more relief to the middle class and to revise some tax breaks for the wealthy.

Although stressing nothing was certain, he hinted at the possibility of changing the number of tax brackets — which in Reagan's plan are 15 percent, 25 percent and 35 percent.

Dan Rostenkowski

He also alluded to possible changes in the president's suggestion to drop the deduction for state and local taxes — a provision worth about $34 billion a year.

He added that in a recent discussion with Reagan, the president "protected that area very strongly" but did not display the same type of strong commitment he had in the past on other items.

Will Tax Reform Mean The End Of Christmas Tree?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's tax reform plan, attacked and vilified by special interests across the country, is now accused of threatening the American Christmas tree.

"This proposal will, if enacted, severely limit, if not abolish, the production of Christmas trees in the United States," Keith Jacob, a grower from Minneapolis told the House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday.

Jacob, testifying on behalf of the National Christmas Tree Association, added that by dropping tax breaks used by the industry, the United States would not only have to return to looking outside its borders for real Christmas trees, but would be giving a boost to overseas manufacturers of artificial trees.

Reagan's plan, Jacob charged, would hurt an industry that "is entirely a family-oriented enterprise."

The victims, he said, would be the youths who fill the estimated 30,000 summer jobs created by the industry, which employs about 100,000 people a year.

The president's proposal would eliminate numerous tax breaks, including ones used widely by the timber industry. The domestic Christmas tree business, Jacob contended, would be especially hurt because of its intensive forestry efforts.

The Ways and Means Committee plans to begin writing a tax reform bill in September. But in two months of hearings, labeled recently by Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., a "painful ritual," witness after witness has complained that lawmakers should keep tax items Reagan has earmarked for extinction.

Tax breaks for Christmas tree growers were first added in 1954. The move turned the country from one that imported 90 percent of its Christmas trees to one that produced 80-90 percent of the yuletide trees used in the 50 states, Jacob said.

In a detailed four-page statement, Jacob contended that "changes in American tax law without corresponding changes for the Canadian competitors will, of course, put our northern neighbors at a competitive advantage."

"Another beneficiary of the proposals of the Treasury Department is the Oriental manufacturer of plastic trees which utilize non-renewable petroleum resources and compete directly with our industry," he said.

In a parting shot, Jacob charged that the president's plan also could not be considered revenue neutral "because Christmas tree growers now pay taxes and under the proposed rules there will not be any Christmas tree growers."

Air Force May Be Preparing To Fire Whistle-Blower

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A. Ernest Fitzgerald, an Air Force "whistle-blower" who won a 13-year reinstatement fight over his 1969 firing as a systems analyst, got less than glowing marks in his first job performance rating in 18 years.

Richard Carver, the assistant Air Force secretary who evaluated Fitzgerald and gave him three sub-par marks for work behavior, said the report "is not an attempt to impair Mr. Fitzgerald's career in any way. It is not an attempt to fire him."

But Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who recently elicited testimony from Fitzgerald in an investigation of mischarges by defense contractors, promptly announced he would hold hearings to determine whether the Air Force was preparing to do just that, as well as harassing a witness, an aide said.

"We're going to look at it in terms of possible intimidation of a witness," said Michael Barrett, staff director of Dingell's Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations. "The chairman does not countenance actions taken against our witnesses."

Barrett and another Dingell aide, noting that such low marks could give the Air Force the flexibility to fire Fitzgerald again, said Dingell would summon Air Force Secretary Verne Orr to testify on the matter in September.

Both Fitzgerald, deputy assistant secetary of the Air Force for management systems, and his lawyer declined comment.

Fitzgerald was evaluated July 26 by Carver, assistant secretary for financial management and the former Republican mayor of Peoria, Ill.

In the evaluation for the period from March 20 to June 30, Carver gave Fitzgerald only one mark of "above fully successful," and gave him "below fully successful" for his performances in problem solving, working relationships and work management.

"I am convinced that Mr. Fitzgerald is a competent and skilled employee who has lacked overall direction in his effort to manage and reduce costs, which has substantially inhibited our ability to address these very important problems," Carver wrote.

Noting it took four months to negotiate a work plan with Fitzgerald, Carver said he could not fully evaluate Fitzgerald's performance over such a short period and that he was optimistic Fitzgerald would perform well in the future.

The rating was in sharp contrast with a 1984 Air Force report to a federal court, which praised Fitzgerald's numerous accomplishments in rooting out waste and fraud among defense contractors.

"Mr. Fitzgerald has been in the forefront of Air Force efforts to reduce and control the cost of weapons and spare parts and to improve the productivity of in-house overhaul of weapons systems," the report concluded.

Fitzgerald has spent part of the last year on detail to Dingell's subcommittee, assisting in its investigation of the General Dynamics Corp. and other defense contractors.

Fitzgerald was instrumental in helping expose a military spare parts controversy, raised questions about the performance of the Maverick missile and challenged numerous other Air Force systems.

Fitzgerald, 59, was fired from the Air Force in 1969 but regained an Air Force job in 1973, winning about $80,000 in back pay in a court settlement. He took him until 1982, however, to win reinstatement to a position involving procurement through a second lawsuit.

Trial Set For Man Accused Of Selling Phony Cocaine

A September trial date has been set for a Sanford man accused of selling fake cocaine, a third-degree felony.

Darron Leroy Comer, 21, of 1809 W. 18th St., has been charged with the fraudulent sale of a controlled substance to a police informant. Comer claimed the material was cocaine, but court records do not indicate with the substance actually was.

If convicted, Comer could get up to five years in prison.

According to court records, a man met an informant at a

Sanford bar April 16 and for $10 sold him a small foil packet which was alleged to contain cocaine. Police, however, tested the substance and determined it was not the illegal drug, records said.

Comer was arrested May 10 and is set for trial September 27 before Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Lefler.

Comer has been released from the Seminole County jail on a $500 bond, according to jail records.

Wasted Charity?

The Live Aid concerts in London and Philadelphia were smashing successes, raising a reported $70 million for African famine relief. This amount, added to the estimated $1 billion in aid already donated or pledged by private agencies and governments around the world, should help save many thousands of lives.

But, as the respected London Economist notes in its current survey of Africa's food crisis, aid efforts are still being hampered by mismanagement and frustrated by political interference. Then too, free food may no longer be the best response to hunger in some of Africa's 20 poorest countries.

Start with mismanagement. So much donated food is rotting on the decks of Ethiopia's three ports that United Nations officials have suspended additional deliveries until the backlog is cleared. Some of the donated trucks and four-wheel-drive vehicles that could be hauling this food out to the feeding camps are sitting on the docks as well, awaiting some customs bureaucrat's signature or stamp of acceptance.

Less flagrant but still disheartening examples of inefficiency and mismanagement also afflict many of the aid efforts elsewhere in Africa. Typically, this mismanagement is less the fault of those giving aid than of the governments receiving it. In any event, the all-too-frequent result is that aid is wasted and many who need it nevertheless go without.

But at least three administrative shortcomings are usually not deliberate. Political interference is, which is one reason it is so unforgivable. The Marxist government of Ethiopia still gives Soviet ships delivering arms priority for unloading over Western ships delivering grain. Worse, the Ethiopian regime continues to deny food to Eritrea and Tigre, rebellious provinces where several million people are starving.

Donated trucks that could be delivering food in Ethiopia are instead being used by the regime in the forced relocation of civilians suspected of sympathizing with insurgents. In Sudan, the new government seems decidedly apathetic about arranging the delivery of food to areas in the south where guerrillas are active. In all, civil conflicts are disrupting food distribution in Mozambique, Chad and Angola in addition to Ethiopia and the Sudan. And in almost every case, the villain is a government that would rather see innocent civilians starve than risk feeding insurgents.

By the best estimates, Africa needed 7 million tons of food aid during the last 12 months. Two-thirds of that has been delivered or promised, and more will no doubt soon be on the way. There is no substitute for this aid where people are actually starving. But where they are merely malnourished and local agriculture is still functioning, the widespread distribution of free food can depress farm incomes and diminish future food production; in effect, helping to create the next famine.

This hardly adds up, of course, to a case for withholding aid. It does suggest the need for better, more farsighted planning plus more pressure on some African governments to stop using food as a weapon. These are ways to assure that aid dollars are not wasted and that such outpourings of generosity as the response to the Live Aid concerts actually accomplish as much good as possible.

One Taxpayer's Loophole Is Another's Shelter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An organization calling itself the Fair Tax Education Fund says the minimum tax proposed by some would-be tax reformers is "a problem, not a solution."

That is more or less what President Reagan has been saying about Congress. You can decide for yourself whether they mean the same thing. On the surface, the Fair Tax Education Fund says, the proposal that all profitable corporations be required to pay at least a minimal tax "sounds like a good idea."

Did you ever hear Reagan characterize any congressional alternative, particularly a Democratic proposal, as sounding like a good idea?

I didn't either. He talks a lot about surface noise but that is about as far as he goes.

"Closer examination shows the minimum tax neither remedies inequities in the tax code nor raises significant revenues," the fund adds.

That sounds more like the president we all know.

Closer examination almost always reveals that what may sound like a tax loophole is someone's way of life.

For instance, I dare say that contributions to the Fair Tax Education Fund are deductible. Which would mean the organization itself is part of the problem it is attacking.

Spokesmen for universities, museums, foundations and other groups that rely heavily on contributions recently urged that Congress allow all taxpayers to claim deductions if they fork over any cash regardless of whether they itemize their returns.

Sounds fair enough. But what of the so-called three martini lunches?

Certain expense account lunches may be written off, leading to complaints that other taxpayers are subsidizing martinis without imbibing themselves.

Why, it is asked, can't the lunch bunch make do with one or two martinis instead of three? Or simply have a cup of coffee?

That also sounds fair. Yet, argue a certain number of midday cocktails are needed to keep restaurant up to standard.

With all due respect to the tax fund, Congress, President Reagan and other reformers, I would like to complain that their suggestions don't get anywhere near where the real trouble lies.

The main problem is not one of fairness and whether a proposed reform would favor one income bracket over another. It's paperwork.

Why should taxpayers be obliged to keep a small mountain of records in order to prove are entitled to all the deductions permitted by the tax code?

Why, for that matter, should one type of income be treated any differently from another? Are not dividends as spendable as salaries? And are not long term and short term gains equal in the eyes of a department store cashier?

If credit card companies don't ask where the money comes from, I don't know why the IRS should either. Yet, reams of paper must be squirreled away in case returns are audited.

Rather than save all that paper, it might be better to save martini olives. Then we could

EDWARD J. WALSH

TVA: Less Than It Once Was

In the spring of 1933, the nation was struggling to survive the deepest trough of the Great Depression. The Southeastern states suffered particularly, having never recovered from the ravages of the farm depression of the twenties, during which farm bankruptcies increased some 600 percent. The Southeast, gifted with fertile soil, was at the same time handicapped by its dependence on agriculture. Distances between cities were vast, roads were poor, and electricity was practically unknown outside urban areas. Frequent flooding throughout the Tennessee River basin made navigation by the barge traffic from eastern coal fields difficult on the region's important waterways. Prospects for real economic growth in the Tennessee Valley were not auspicious.

In May of that year, Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority Corporation, a government-owned company empowered to engage in a broad range of activities aimed at developing the economy of the region drained by the Tennessee River and its tributaries, an area that included all of Tennessee and parts of six other states. The TVA Act authorized the corporation to acquire real estate for the purpose of building dams and reservoirs, and other means of flood control, to make contracts to produce nitrogen and other fertilizers, to conduct agricultural research, and to produce explosives for sale at cost to the U.S. government.

The production, distribution, and sale of electric power was but one of TVA's major responsibilities, all of which had one aim: to create jobs.

For more than 50 years, the TVA has been the most important economic institution in the Tennessee Valley. It sells power, but it also involved in research in agricultural and industrial development, provides engineering assistance to communities, encourages tourism, maintains historical documents, and does a vast array of other things. TVA management claims to have provided thousands of jobs in its first 50 years, and served as a "catalyst" in creating hundreds of thousands more.

The Tennessee Valley Authority, unfortunately for all of us, has become a creature of its own history and its own public relations. Its subsidized construction and power projects created jobs, and provided cheap power to the Valley in the long lean years. But the problems that remain don't justify a $550 million budget mostly to support the Corporation's grab bag of non-power development programs.

End Of Volcker Era Won't Bother Reagan

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — With a minimum of fanfare and folderol, the second most powerful man in Washington will walk off into the sunset early next year. And the White House crowd can't wait to see him go.

He's Paul Volcker, the rumpiled, oversized Federal Reserve Board chairman.

He spends most of his time, head in a cloud of cigar smoke, talking largely to himself. Few people can follow his rambling discourse. Behind his back, some associates call him "Mumbles." What makes it worse is that few can even decipher his hand-scrawled notes and memos.

Yet there is something intimidating about this 6-foot-7 banker with the condescending manner. Who else could send several Fed officials scrambling underneath the table at a board of governors' meeting, crawling on their hands and knees

WILLIAM RUSHER

Terror In South Africa

Two nations declared states of emergency in southern Africa last week. In one case, France withdrew its ambassador, banned all future investment there, and brought the matter before the U.N. Security Council, where the offending nation was denounced on all sides. Demonstrators engaged in a mass protest in front of its Washington embassy, while angry speeches were made in the House of Representatives. In the other case, nothing happened at all.

The first nation was South Africa. The second was its neighbor to the north, Zimbabwe.

And yet the case for emergency police powers would seem, if anything, to be far stronger in South Africa than in Zimbabwe. Just the other day Joe Slovo, the white communist who heads the military arm of the outlawed African National Congress, boasted to a Washington Post interviewer that he was behind the bomb attacks on targets in South Africa that have taken more than two dozen lives in the past five years.

And listen to this directive to South African blacks, broadcast in English by the ANC's National Executive Committee from communist-controlled Ethiopia on May 6:

"Ambushes must be prepared for policemen and soldiers... with the aim of capturing weapons from them. Our people must also manufacture homemade bombs and petrol bombs with material that can be locally obtained. In addition, our people must also buy weapons where possible.

"After arming themselves in this manner, our people must begin to identify collaborators and enemy agents and deal with them. Those collaborators who are serving in the community councils must be dealt with..."

Those are the orders whose consequences you saw on television: the picture of a black man, "suspected of being a police informer," cowering on the ground while Bishop Tutu pleaded with a white mob for his life; the picture of a black woman, similarly "suspected," soaked with gasoline by other blacks and set afire. The good bishop was so shaken by these events that he warned: "If that happens again, I am going to collect my family and leave this country that I love. Millions of people worldwide support our struggle, but when they saw that on TV many said, 'Uh, oh, if these people can do things like that, they are not ready for freedom'."

The fact is that the South African government would have been far more open to legitimate criticism if it had not declared a state of emergency and moved briskly to protect the country's 20 million blacks from the hotheads eager to carry out the ANC's murderous orders.

And the irony is that all this is happening, not when the condition and prospects of South Africa's blacks are getting worse, but when they are brighter than ever before. To hear South Africa's critics, in the United Nations, on America's campuses, on Capitol Hill, and in front of its embassy on Massachusetts Avenue, one would suppose that the South African government has slammed the door on black political participation forever. On the contrary, it is moving with impressive speed to devise ways of bringing blacks into the political life of the country.

SCIENCE WORLD

Country Lifestyle Valuable

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists are finding that city people would be better off if they brought a little country into their lives and put greater emphasis on social networks, quiet and beauty.

A new study from Duke University in North Carolina, part of a growing body of research in this area, showed that urban dwellers were twice as likely to suffer depression as those in rural areas.

"In lay and scientific literature, the stress of modern life, which really means urban life, is strongly associated with the onset of psychiatric disorders," said Dr. Linda George, an associate professor of psychiatry and co-author of the study in the Archives of General Psychiatry.

"Clearly depression is much more prevalent in urban areas."

The study should be taken to mean not that people are at the mercy of where they live, but that they can change their lives where they are to include more emphasis on relationships.

"The implication is, the country lifestyle offers things that are valuable to people, and we can recreate that," she said. "The cities don't have to be anonymous places. We can develop relationships. We can divide cities into meaningful neighborhoods."

"Believe me rural areas have their problems. There is lower income, lower education, fewer services. All is not idyllic, but there is greater emphasis on close social relationships, people you can confide in and trust."

There are also ways to control crowding, noise and occasional ugliness of urban life "if we as a society choose to," she said.

Some researchers have contended that city life is healthy for those who choose it, but George said that selection may not be voluntary.

"If you do a certain type of work, you have to go to where the jobs are," she said. "All you have to do is look at all the people dreaming of moving from the city to the country to know what their choice would be."

The researchers studied 3,921 adults in the Piedmont region of North Carolina. One county in the study was considered urban because it contains the city of Durham, with more than 50,000 inhabitants. Four other counties included in the study were described as rural.

Several other studies have indicated higher levels of psychiatric disorders among migrants to cities than among native residents.

Now he has told intimates, whom he invites to his Washington apartment for spaghetti dinners, that government service has drained him personally and financially. His wife has a serious form of arthritis, which keeps her in New York City, and Volcker commutes constantly between Washington and New York.

When he walks out of his Fed offices for the last time, he will leave behind some nettlesome problems. The most serious will be a monetary system that he's been holding together with string and glue. He has used the power of the Fed and the force of his personality to coerce bankers into extending loans to governments that probably will never be able to repay them.

If these governments form a debtors' cartel, as Cuba's Fidel Castro is urging them to do, or if a major government defaults, the monetary system could collapse, with frightening consequences.

Yet Volcker has never wavered in his support of the debt-ridden countries. In August 1982, for example, he worked an entire weekend putting together a bailout for the Mexican government, which could no longer pay the interest on its $90 billion debt.

He warned his free-market adversaries at the Treasury Department that there would be a global economic crisis if they didn't approve the bailout. Wagging his finger at one opponent, he said it would be his fault.

Footnote: The recent rash of terrorist incidents caused the Federal Reserve Board to take extra security precautions. Two security guards, with ear-plug walkie-talkies and all, were stationed outside the chairman's office door to protect him from possible kidnapping. But kidnapping Volcker strikes his critics as a bit like O. Henry's "The Ransom of Red Chief." How much would Reagan demand that the kidnapers pay him to take Volcker back?

Morse, Harrell Lead West Seminole Upset

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

FOREST CITY — Because it is the host team of the tournament, West Seminole got an automatic bye into the Pony Baseball Southeast Regional Tournament. It wasn't given much of a chance since the team's coming in were the best in the South, but, Thursday night, West Seminole proved it belonged.

Jim Morse, a big 14-year-old, drove in four runs and pitched three innings of hitless ball while Todd Harrell, who just turned 13, turned in a gutsy performance in relief as West Seminole downed Gadsden, Ala. 4-3, in a game delayed two hours by rain at Richard Coffey Field on the West Seminole Pony Baseball complex.

West Seminole advances to the winners' bracket final which got underway today at 1 p.m. West Seminole faces a powerful Marietta, Ga., team which won going away in Thursday's opener.

In a losers' bracket game at 10 a.m., Gadsden went up against Lake Worth. The losers' bracket final will be played tonight at 6.

Baseball

"Not having played for six weeks didn't help us," West Seminole manager George Morse said. "I thought we might be a little stale but the boys were really up for the game."

Jim Morse got the ball rolling in the top of the first inning when he nailed leadoff man Derrick Griffie with a fastball on the first pitch. Gadsden's hitters were a little wary of Morse after that and the big righthander mowed down the Alabama champs the first three frames.

After hitting Griffie to lead off, Morse struck out the next two hitters and got cleanup man Shane Smith on a grounder to shortstop Kyle Scott to end the inning.

Gadsden starter Jason Oden struck out the first two West Seminole hitters but issued a walk to Scott. That brought up Morse who, during the regular season, pounded out 20 home runs. Oden got Morse to bounce back to the mound though on a half swing to end the inning. It was the last time Morse would be fooled.

After Morse struck out the side in the top of the second, West Seminole put runners on second and third with two out in the bottom half but couldn't break the scoreless tie.

Morse then retired the side in order in the third and West Seminole broke the tie in the bottom half. Jeff Mesojedic ripped a single to left to lead off and Jayme Burke then dropped a perfect bunt single down the third base line. Gadsden then lifted Oden and went with Dale Simmons in relief.

Simmons walked Scott to load the bases, bringing up Morse. Simmons had Morse looking bad on a pair of curve balls for a quick 0-2 count. The new pitcher then made a big mistake when he threw an 0-2 fastball right down the pipe.

Morse muscled the pitch into centerfield for a single that scored Mesojedic and Burke for a 2-0 lead.

"I didn't expect him to throw a fastball," Morse said. "But, when he did, I saw some RBIs."

Since a pitcher is allowed to throw three innings and still pitch in the next game, Morse was relieved in the top of the fourth by Mark Brackett. Gadsden pulled within 2-1 in the inning with the help of two West Seminole errors.

With one out, Mark Hamilton drew a walk and took second on Smith's grounder to second baseman Burke. Chris Simmons then stepped up and drilled a single to left for Gadsden's first hit of the game.

When the left fielder bobbled the ball, Hamilton was waved around third. He scored when the throw ticked off the cutoff man's glove. Simmons went all the way to third on the play but Brackett got out of the inning when he got Jimmy Staton on a fly ball to left.

Ueberroth: 'There Is No Substitute For Baseball'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Using some deft strokes with a public relations brush, Peter Ueberroth may have painted baseball's negotiators into a corner.

Ueberroth commandeered the attention of baseball fans Thursday, pleading eloquently against a strike and offering some proposals he hopes will produce a settlement before Tuesday's deadline.

"There is no substitute for baseball," he said.

Even those who muttered about a grandstand play agreed the performance was good. Remaining unimpressed, however, were owners' negotiator Lee MacPhail and union head Don Fehr. They may settle this thing just to keep Ueberroth out of it.

"I think it's better if you can work things out between the two parties," said MacPhail. "If you can't, then that's something else. I was hopeful we could. I agree we had been having trouble."

Fehr repeated earlier remarks that Ueberroth was elected and is paid by the owners. He also warned that the owners against modifying arbitration procedures or imposing salary caps.

"If the clubs believe, and accept the proposition that it's inappropriate for the players to take artificially lower salaries ... then it would seem to me that we could see how quickly we could get this thing settled," he said.

No talks are scheduled today, though MacPhail said he hoped to meet with the players. In fact, the owners' negotiating arm scheduled a meeting for tonight, and MacPhail said he would not respond to Ueberroth's proposal until that body met.

Ueberroth, who had not been active in the 9-month-long negotiation process, said he decided to intervene because only four days remained before the players' strike deadline with no solution in sight.

In a move that appeared to put even more distance between the commissioner and the owners, Ueberroth also said he would not seek a second term as baseball commissioner unless the owners agree to let players and umpires participate in the election process.

"As far as I am concerned, five years from now I will not be seeking a second term unless other sectors are allowed to participate in the election," he said.

Ueberroth issued no threats to either the players or owners and shied away from saying he would invoke his power, under the basic agreement between players and owners, "to act in the best interests of baseball."

Ueberroth said he would present his plans Friday morning to negotiators for the major league baseball owners and players.

"By 8 o'clock tomorrow (Friday) morning, I'm going to submit a series of solutions and proposals to both sides," he said. "I am, in effect, going to put bread on the table and hope they break bread."

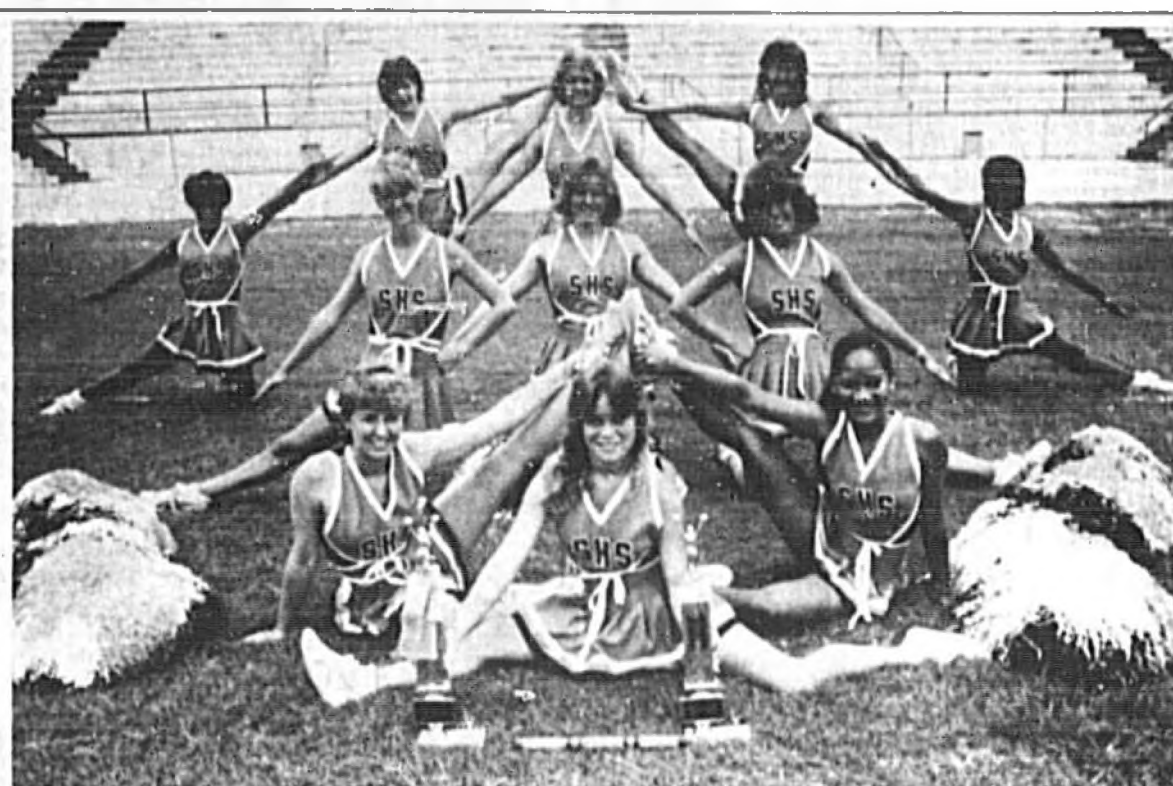

Ueberroth outlined two of the potential solutions:

First, he suggested that $45 million — representing the difference between the players' pension fund demand and the owners' previous pension contributions — be put in escrow.

The owners' and players' negotiators would be given 45 days to reach an agreement on a contribution amount or, as each day passed, a million dollars would be removed from the escrow account and be given to amateur baseball to help youngsters who love to play the game "or another charity."

The second proposal, one Ueberroth called the "plain and simple solution," would require the owners to offer the players a 50 to 100 percent increase over their present $15.5 million annual contribution over a five-year period — about $23 million to $31 million. The players have asked for $60 million, one-third of the owners' national television revenues.

In exchange, the players would give the owners the salary arbitration extension they want from two years to three and limit the awards made by arbitrators to double a player's current salary.

Seminole High's cheerleading squad excelled at UCF camp.

SHS Cheerleaders Superior Squad Takes Two Firsts At UCF Camp

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

When the 1985 prep football season opens, take a long look at the Seminole High cheerleaders. You'll be looking at one of the best squads in the state.

Seminole High's varsity cheerleaders took home a pair of first place trophies in the Universal Cheerleaders Association Cheerleading Competition at the University of Central Florida.

Competing against six other squads from around the state, Seminole won first place in the Cheer Division and the Sideline Division. During the four-day camp, the varsity cheerleaders also received three superior ribbons and three spirit sticks.

"I think it's going to be an excellent group of girls," varsity sponsor Gayle Tipton said. "They're all unique and have their own special talent to add to the squad. And they all get along beautifully. They won the respect of everyone at camp, everyone liked them."

The 1985 Seminole High varsity cheerleading squad includes seniors Linda Cushing (captain), Debra Sesaakovic (co-captain), Sharon Gaines, Kayla Givens, Margaret Hall, Jodi Jones, Rebecca Martinez and Kristin Merrifield along with juniors Kelli Castle, Nancy McQuatters, Lori Swain, Revonda Wallace and Rene Workman.

The cheerleading squads took the cheers that they learned at camp and then incorporated their own ideas for the competition. They were judged on originality, crowd appeal, gymnastics, pyramid building and spirit by 12 judges from all over the United States.

Seminole's pair of first places in the competition was quite an accomplishment considering the Tribe's squad didn't even place at the camp last year. "In fact, I can't remember us ever placing and that's going back 10 years," Tipton said.

"We practiced for about a month before camp to build up strength and gymnastics skills," added Tipton. "You have to have good strength. You can't just jump right into it."

The Seminole junior varsity and freshman squads also performed well in the competition at UCF.

The junior varsity received one superior, one excellent, one outstanding and one honorable mention ribbon.

Seminole's junior varsity squad, which is sponsored by Paulette Thomas, includes Leslie Crabtree, Connie Davis, Cheryl Lykens, Jennifer

Trump Shops For Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — For two years, Donald Trump tried and failed to buy a U.S. Football League championship. Now he wants to merge his way to the title.

Trump's New Jersey Generals Thursday announced a merger with the Houston Gamblers, who were purchased last week by Trump's friend and fellow real estate developer Steve Ross.

Trump said the club will continue to be called the Generals and he plans to stay in New Jersey.

The merger brings together the USFL's best runner in Herschel Walker and its leading passer in Jim Kelly.

"It's probably the best team in football," Trump said. "With a backfield of Herschel Walker and Jim Kelly, and all those (Gamblers) receivers and our defense ... I don't just want the best team in the USFL. I want the best team in football."

Trump, who inherited Walker in his backfield when he bought the Generals after their inaugural 1983 season, went out and signed Brian Sipe from the NFL in 1984 and Doug Flutie out of Boston College in January as quarterbacks. Both took the Generals into the playoffs but New Jersey failed to get past the first round in postseason play both years.

New Jersey finished 11-7 last year and Houston was 10-8. Both made the playoffs.

Kelly's arrival in New Jersey means 1984 Heisman Trophy Flutie will be dealt by the Generals to another USFL team. Although a coach won't be officially named for several weeks, a club source said Gamblers coach Jack Pardee and his staff will be retained and New Jersey's Walt Michaels set free.

"We're looking for exciting offense, if Walt can provide exciting offense we'll keep him," Trump said of the conservative Michaels.

Jerry Argovitz, one of the former Gamblers' owners, will be Generals' Director of Football Operations and Houston general manager Gene Burrough will hold the same position with New Jersey.

Argovitz said 22 Houston players and 15 Generals — including Flutie — will be retained on the roster that must be submitted to the league Saturday.

Most of the Generals' office and public relations staff will probably be retained.

Trump now has the quarterback he's wanted ever since he bought the Generals. He briefly looked into a merger with Houston last year to acquire Kelly, before signing Flutie to a $7 million contract out of Boston College.

After Flutie arrived, Sipe was quickly traded to Jacksonville. Now Flutie is on the block, and he'll probably end up with a new USFL franchise in either Chicago or Boston.

Ross, who paid over $5 million for the Gamblers, said he originally intended to move them to Shea Stadium in New York, but Trump approached him about a merger and they worked out the deal. Trump and Ross will be co-owners and have equal say in running the team.

Ross said the Generals would only leave Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., if there is a problem getting playing dates.

"Neither the Giants nor the Jets can beat us now," said Trump, who repeated an old challenge to meet one or both in a charity game.

Big Leaguers

Oviedo's Mark Merchant (left) takes a hefty cut while Lyman's Clint Baker awaits a throw on a pick off attempt. The two Seminole County ballplayers will be suiting up for the District 14 Big League all-stars. District 14 opens play in the Big League Southern Region Tournament Monday night at 5 at the University of Central Florida. District 14 has enjoyed tremendous success the past few years including three trips to the Big League World Series in Fort Lauderdale. The Southern Region Tournament opens Sunday with a pair of games. See Sunday's Evening Herald for a look at this year's District 14 team.

Bowa's Perfect Squeeze Lifts Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — In this age of the long ball hitter and power pitcher, Larry Bowa and Andy McGaffigan proved once again that the element of surprise is still a most efficient weapon. Bowa, the Chicago Cubs' wily old shortstop, used one of baseball's oldest tricks — the squeeze bunt — to end the longest game in Wrigley Field this season Thursday.

N.L. Baseball

"I just wanted to get the bat on the ball. I couldn't see anything past the ninth inning," Bowa tried to bunt unsuccessfully before laying down the bunt single on the 2-2 count. Moreland, who had four hits, credited Bowa with making the play work.

SPORTS

IN BRIEF

Unknown Verplank Plunks Way To Western Open Lead

OAKBROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Tradition was upheld Thursday when the 17th hole at Butler National golf course produced more bogeys than pars during the Western Open.

With the wind blowing uncustomarily out of the northeast instead of the southwest, the pros Thursday were playing the 459-yard par-4 straight into the wind, and it had its effect.

"You can hardly reach the green in two," said Lance Ten Broeck, who finished with a 2-under-par 70 and was one of only 13 players to beat par. "Usually the wind is the exact opposite."

"Everybody in my group had good drives, and we all had 210 yards into the wind (for second shots)," said Larry Rinker, one of four golfers tied for second place at 3-under par 69.

Leading the tournament after the first day was 21-year-old amateur Scott Verplank of Dallas, who shot a 4-under-par 68 with five birdies and one bogey.

The 17th green was the only one he missed on the back side. On the front nine, he missed six greens in regulation but used only 10 putts.

Peterson Wary Of Lopez

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Lauri Peterson finds herself playing with one eye on the course and the other on Nancy Lopez these days.

"Actually I thought it was kind of tough today, teeing off in the afternoon because Lopez," said Peterson.

The defending champion of the Jamie Farr LPGA Toledo Classic, Peterson Thursday shot a one-under par 71, trailing Lopez, Colleen Walker and Lauren Howe, who carded 70s after the first round.

"You kind of wonder what she's doing," said Peterson, who beat Lopez by two strokes in last year's tournament.

"You come to the golf course and she's one under after nine," she said.

Peterson, Dianne Dailey and Deedee Lasker are tied at 71 on the 6,220-yard, par 72 course.

Lopez and 16 other golfers shot par or better in the first round. The field of 105 players and two amateurs chasing the $175,000 purse will be cut to 72 pros and one amateur after today's round.

Walker nearly had the lead to herself until the final hole when she let a four-under edge slip with a double-bogey.

500 Say Boycott

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — More than 500 angry baseball fans have a few words for major league baseball players and owners: "Play ball — or else."

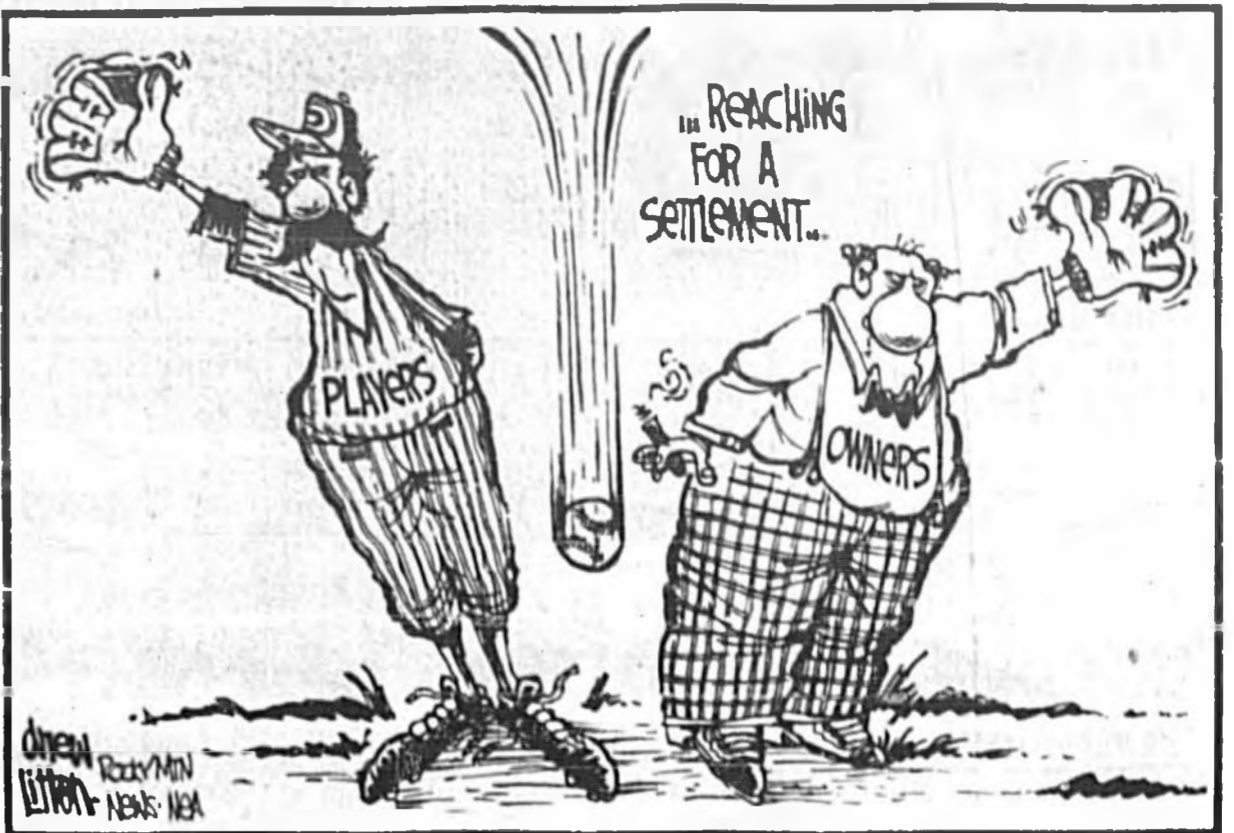

The fans, upset over the prospect of another major league strike next week, are pledging to boycott any games played this season after the strike is settled, a newspaper sports columnist said Thursday.

The fans also endorsed a proposed boycott of all products advertised on major league radio and television broadcasts, said Bill Gleason, who covers Chicago sports for the South Bend Tribune.

"It was unanimous," Gleason said. "I have yet to read anything from a single reader who opposes the boycott."

The "double-barrelled" boycott was first proposed by Greg Novak, a suburban Chicago subscriber to the Tribune.

Fans Urge Ueberroth: 'No Strike'

United Press International

Several baseball fans found that the pen is mightier than nine months of Donald Fehr and Lee MacPhail.

Baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth said at a Thursday press conference that he would offer several proposals today to help break stalled negotiations between major league owners and players over a new basic agreement.

Ueberroth said his proposals, which come as the players' deadline for a strike Aug. 6 nears, were, in part, drawn from suggestions fans mailed him. He singled out three by name at his news conference. UPI reached all three by phone.

B. Davis Jackson, 30, a certified public accountant from New Braunfels, Texas, sent his letter to Ueberroth July 18.

"I mailed the commissioner a letter that suggests the players and owners (should) quit acting as adversaries and instead (work together) as they have a common interest in serving the customer," Jackson said.

Baseball

"There are two untapped sources of revenue — unused seating capacity and the potential for new broadcast contracts. By filling the stadiums you'd make the broadcast contracts more lucrative."

"The owners could increase attendance by cutting (admission) prices ... filled stadiums would lead to bigger broadcast revenues ... The players would then agree to take a fixed amount of the broadcast revenue. So if one side does well, the other side does well."

Ueberroth's office called Jackson about his letter about 2 p.m. EDT Thursday.

"I was elated that the letter had an impact," he said. "I thought it was a good idea when I wrote it, but I didn't think the commissioner would do anything about it."

Ueberroth outlined two potential solutions Thursday. One would place $45 million — the difference between the players' pension fund demand and the owners' previous contribution — in escrow. The sides would be given 45 days to agree on a contribution amount or, as each day passed, a million dollars would be removed from the account and be given to charity.

The second proposal would require the owners offer a 50 to 100 percent increase to their current annual contribution. In exchange, the players would give the owners the salary arbitration extension they want from two years to three and limit the awards made by arbitrators to double a player's current salary.

Another fan, Dennis McKay, 42, a lawyer from Victoria,

British Columbia, believes he might have planted the seed for the escrow proposal.

"What I suggested was that all the players' salaries and all the owners' gate receipts be placed into a trust fund," McKay said. "That fund would grow as negotiations continued and while everybody kept playing ball. They'd even get a fair amount of interest. Eventually the negotiators would come up with a way to divide that fund."

Phil Sampson, 28, a senior financial consultant in Pittsburgh, said he wrote the commissioner out of frustration.

"My basic idea is as follows: each side wants to deny the other side something financial in order to have leverage. The players want to deny owners their profits, while the owners want to deny players their salaries so they are financially hurting each other having a strike."

McKibbin, Katie Moncrief, Melissa Stafford and Tammy Tipton.

The freshman squad made it to the semi-finals in the Cheer Division and received two superior, one excellent, one outstanding and a gold ribbon for making it to the semi-finals.

"The freshmen did an exceptional job," Tipton said. "Especially since half of the squad came from Sanford Middle School and the other half from Lakeview."

The Seminole freshman squad, sponsored by Bonnie Zawacki, includes Ginger Albers, Cathy Boyer, Debbie Bronson, Tracey Claypool, Lavonia Hooks, Jennifer Lindamood, Julie Nye, Christy Pate, Bonnie Smith, Nancy Terwilliger and Jennifer Vernon.

Seminole also brought a new dimension to the squad to the cheerleading camp. The Tribe will have a mascot roaming the sidelines in 1985. The outfit has already been ordered and it will be called "Sammy Seminole."

"We took the girl who is going to do that to camp with us to learn how to work with her and the crowd and get ideas for skirts," Tipton said.

The identity of "Sammy Seminole" will not be revealed.

Rene Workman, bottom, gives Kristin Merfield a lift up. The two Seminole High cheerleaders are part of the varsity squad that captured two first places in the Universal Cheerleaders Association Cheerleading Competition at the University of Central Florida. Workman will be a junior at SHS this school year while Merfield will be a senior.

John Henry Goes Home

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — John Henry, the richest thoroughbred race horse in history forced to quit the circuit two weeks ago because of an injury, will retire to the Kentucky Horse Park only a few miles from where he was foaled.

"I'm excited to announce that John Henry is coming home," Gov. Martha Layne Collins said at a news conference outside the pastoral park's Hall of Champions.

John Henry, who collected $6,597,947 and seven Eclipse awards and twice was voted Horse of the Year, was forced to retire at age 10 when he injured a tendon during a workout at Hollywood Park July 19.

The horse did not start out a star. He was sold at Keeneland Race Course yearling sales in 1976 for $1,100, a paltry sum compared with the $13.1 million paid for a yearling just one week ago.

Owner Sam Rubin, who purchased John Henry as a 3-year-old for $25,000, had promised to retire the famous horse to friend Joseph Taub's 100-acre horse farm in New Jersey.

"He said that this would give the public a greater chance to see him," Bassett said. "It was a generous gesture."

West Seminole went down quietly in the fourth and Brackett got through the fifth after giving up a two-out single.

West Seminole then increased its lead to 4-1 in the bottom of the fifth. Scott reached on an error to lead off the inning and Simmons then got a pitch up to Morse who promptly deposited it over the fence in center field for a two-run homer.

"He (Simmons) made a mistake throwing Jim (Morse) up high," manager Morse said. "That's his wheelhouse."

In the top of the sixth, Brackett retired the first hitter and walked Hamilton. Then came the rains and the game was delayed for two hours (5 p.m. to 7).

After the ground crew worked over the field, Gadsden came back with a run in the sixth to cut West Seminole's lead to 4-2. The first hitter after the delay, Smith, crushed a single to right and Harrell then went on in relief of Brackett.

Harrell, who turned 13 last week, seemed a bit nervous at first as he walked Chris Simmons to lead the bases. Harrell then got pinch-hitter Tommy White to hit into a force play with Hamilton out at the plate.

Oden then reentered the game and coaxed a walk out of Harrell to force in Smith. Harrell then came back to strike out Dale Simmons on a curveball to end the inning.

Gadsden made it close in the top of the seventh but Harrell bore down and pulled West Seminole through. Harrell fanned Efrain Macon for the first out and then caught Griffie looking at a third strike for the second.

Harrell then ran the count to 2-2 on Todd Farmer but hung a curveball on the next pitch and Farmer launched it over the fence in left center to trim the lead to 4-3.

Hamilton followed with a walk and took second on a wild pitch but Harrell got Smith to hit a grounder to Morse at first. Morse bobbled the ball, but Harrell got to the bag to cover and Morse just nipped Smith for the final out.

"I was thinking, 'That's the game,'" Morse said of the bobbler. "I didn't think I could get him but I took a chance."

MARIETTA RIPS WORTH

Rusty Umphenor hammered a pair of home runs and Eric Smith belted a grand slam as the East Cobb Astros out of Marietta, Ga., rolled to a 14-1 victory over Lake Worth in Thursday's first game.

Marc Pisciotta, a big (6-5) righthander, pitched the first three frames for Marietta and allowed just one hit, a third-inning single by Carl Grinstead. Mike Hilton went the next two frames for Marietta and Smith pitched the last inning. Neither reliever allowed a hit.

Diabetes Can Block Blood Flow; Lead To Gangrene

DEAR DR. GOTT — An older woman I know who has diabetes had to have her foot removed because of gangrene. I don't understand the connection, but I've heard it's not uncommon.

DEAR READER — Diabetes causes accelerated arteriosclerosis, a more rapid development of arterial blockage. All arteries are affected by this process, those to the feet as well. If the blockage causes a profound reduction in blood flow, the tissues will not receive enough oxygen. Over time, the tissues may die and gangrene will result. Once tissue death is evident, the destroyed portions must be surgically removed, since preventive measures are then of no use.

Your acquaintance's foot was virtually lost by the time she had surgery; the operation only served to prevent the dead tissue from making her dangerously ill. Of course, she and her doctor are undoubtedly concerned about her remaining foot. If gangrene affected one, it may soon affect the other.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For the last few months I have had a small bump on the roof of my mouth. It varies in size and sometimes is hardly perceptible. It doesn't hurt at all. What could cause it? Should I be concerned about it?

DEAR READER — The lining of the mouth may often swell unexpectedly in a patchy distribution. Your waxing and waning bump probably is due to a low-grade inflammation or irritation on the roof of your mouth. However, I suggest you check it out with your dentist because the bump is new and unusual reactions sometimes can occur in that portion of the mouth.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 16, and for the past few months I've been feeling very run-down and tired all the time, even though I've made efforts to improve my sleeping habits and diet. I've also been nauseated and have had pains in my upper abdomen. Could I have a slight case of mono?

DEAR READER — Your

symptoms are very non-specific and suggest a variety of possibilities. My first thought was that you might be pregnant.

It is true that mononucleosis is associated with being run-down, but most 16-year-olds with the disease complain bitterly of sore throats and swollen glands, neither of which you mention.

Fatigue, nausea and abdominal pain may be due to anything from anemia to infection. You should see your family doctor. By talking with you and performing a simple examination, he may be able to find the answer to your difficulties.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

"My cup runneth over," exclaimed South after the opening lead of the club nine. South was not really that much of an expert on biblical expressions, but he was right in that there were two ways to guarantee his contract after that lead. He won the club king in hand, won dummy's queen and jack of hearts, then played the club ace and ruffed a spade. Next he took the king and ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Now he led dummy's last club. He could now make the contract by throwing a diamond on that club, end playing East — a simple exercise.

East was wrong to double four clubs. Sure, he might be able to beat that contract, but does he really want a club lead if the opponents bid a slam? Certainly a diamond lead might be better.

What about West? He had heard the opponents cue-bid first- and second-round controls in both clubs and spades. If he believed them, he should have led a diamond on the go. Then poor South would have had to search his memory of sacred writings for a quip about an empty water jar during a drought.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 3, 1985

In the past, you have frequently shown a consideration toward others without thought of reward or favor. In the year ahead, your unselfish gestures will be repaid in full.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general tend to favor you today. Even though the beginnings may be questionable, the ending will be all for which you hoped. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even if there is someone else at a party you attend today who you'd like to get to know better, be more attentive and considerate to the person you came with.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In competition today, Lady Luck may deal you more aces than she does others. Use your advantages. Instead of taking them for granted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things that affect your self-interests should go smoothly today. This is because you'll benefit from past experiences and won't repeat mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Joint ventures look promising today, not so much from your efforts but from actions taken by one with whom you're involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Partnership arrangements are favored today, provided you're teamed up with a cohort whose aims and ideas are in complete harmony with yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Opportunities to advance your ambitious interests will prevail today. Once you spot the "go" signal, swing promptly into action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 19)

Today your influence over your peer group will be quite strong. Even those who usually try to run the show will look to you for leadership.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you have special needs today, go to family members or relatives instead of outsiders. State your case without holding back any facts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Mixing with a large group isn't apt to bring you the happiness you require today. Instead, you'll be happy being alone with one who enjoys you as much as you do him or her.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your attention focused on financial or career matters today. Where others enjoy levity, you'll get a bigger charge out of adding to your resources.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Today you're likely to be attracted to where the action is, so if you're not invited to a social gathering, go out to someplace fun with a companion you admire.

Lake Mary Names Election Boards

The Lake Mary City Commission appointed an Election Board and a Canvassing Board Thursday night for the Sept. 3 city commission election.

Commissioners Russ Megonegal and Paul Tremel along with City Clerk Carol Edwards were named to the Canvassing Board, which is responsible for counting election returns and verifying signatures on absentee ballots.

City residents Ethel Carlson, Pat Thompson, Virginia Nelson, Betty Day, and Betty Deadman were named to the Election Board, which is responsible for handing out ballots and signing in voters.

A.R. "Doc" Jore, 54, of 589 S. Country Club Road, is challenging Charlie Webster, 63, of 530 Webster Ave., for seat 1 on the commission.

Buzz Petros and Ken King are to be appointed to seats 3 and 5 respectively because they had no opposition.

Seats 1, 3 and 5, held by Colin Keogh, Harry Terry and Burt Perincheff respectively are up for election this year. Seats 2 and 4, held by Megonegal and Tremel, will be up for election in 1986.

Keogh, Terry and Perincheff all declined to run for another term because they said the commission was taking up too much of their time. They said they needed more time for their businesses and families.

Mrs. Edwards said the election will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 3 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Lake Mary City Hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

City residents have until 4:30 p.m. today to register to vote in the election. Voters can register at city hall, or offices of the Supervisor of Elections at the County Services Building in Sanford or at the Sandlake Plaza on State Road 434.

 A seventh member of the alleged conspiracy, Charles St. Clair, 50, of Granada Hills, Calif., was believed to be in London and was expected to fly to Orlando to turn himself in, authorities said.

The colonel's role in the deal was to assure the buyers of the weapons' quality. Gillespie, who has been in the Army since he was 17, told the FBI he planned to retire this year and go into international arms sales. Co-conspirator Sjeklocha said he used Gillespie before to check out weapons in Europe.

All seven were charged with conspiracy to ship arms without a license from the State Department. If convicted, they face up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

According to the FBI, the group did not get any weapons, and their arrest is unrelated to arrests with another weapon-smuggling ring in San Diego last week. The aborted arms deal was an effort by the Khomeini government to beef up its supply of anti-tank and anti-aircraft missiles, as well as get spare parts and other military hardware needed for its bloody, 5-year border war with Iraq, the FBI said.

Crucial to cracking the ring was a undercover agent Richard Witkowski who said he could supply the weaponry, the FBI said. An affidavit said Hosseini told the agent, "The price was not important. His country needed weapons that would work as a result of the war they were presently engaged in."

The affidavit also said Sjeklocha told the agent he has been dealing in arms with Iran for the past two years and has made a $6 million to $8 million profit. He said his involvement had nothing to do with politics. He said he was after money.

"Sjeklocha told (the agent) he deals directly with Hussein Zohreh, the Iranian minister of procurement," the affidavit said.

The FBI, in a complaint filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Orlando, said the "conspirators intended to purchase 1,140 TOW missiles at a total cost of $9.12 million and that they would provide an aircraft to fly the weapons and parts to Iran."

The United States cut off military sales to Iran during the 444-day hostage crisis that began in November 1979. The bulk of Iran's military equipment is of American origin, a hangover from the years of U.S. support of the shah.

The group's multi-million dollar "shopping list" included 5,000 TOW Missiles, 10 F-4 jet engines, 50 diesel engines, a mobil hospital, 20 French Exocet Missiles, F-4 jet parts, 100 Harpoon Missiles, 300 Sidewinder Missiles, 600 Sparrow Missiles, 30 Phoenix Missiles.

The weaponry was to be flown out of Orlando on a rented 747 airliner.

 communications occurred, Sellers says. Mrs. Terwilliger says she wasn't asked whether she wanted any pipes in her front yard. "They were just installed."

At the same time she says the contractor has allowed erosion from the road to fall into a pond, also on her property, "ruining the pond, and to make matters worse, the workers have been dumping dirt and other trash from the construction site into the pond."

Sellers says the pond is not a true pond, but rather is a low lying area which fills with water during rainy periods, and at other times it may be dry.

Mrs. Terwilliger said she is concerned that not only is her pond being destroyed, but that a nearby lake is also being polluted with water runoff from the construction.

Sellers says the problem is not only one of communication — "Mrs. Terwilliger should have been told what was going on" — but also one of a lack of proper construction management. With no plant life on the shoulders of the road to hold back drainage or to direct it, the water and erosion could go in any direction, Sellers said.

The fact is, Sellers says, this is an unusual job with so many players involved — the state Department of Transportation, the county, the city of Lake Mary, the contractor and the property owners — there was a great deal of chance for communication breakdown "and that's apparently what has happened."

Sellers said he has no doubt the contractor will solve all these problems Mrs. Terwilliger is complaining about.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Terwilliger is also contending that the four-lane road with a median is not necessary and was not a hazard until the road construction began.

Senators moves to eliminate about a dozen programs failed, and the only major program eliminated by the budget was federal revenue sharing, and that not until 1987. The House was forced to agree to the Senate's higher military spending figure of $302.5 billion in fiscal 1986.

Both House and Senate noted the budget was non-binding and called for further spending cuts.

"If we don't (pass this) the people are going to say the people up there (in Congress) can't do anything," said Chiles. "They might well be right..."

The budget:
 • Allows Pentagon spending to rise with inflation in fiscal 1986 and grants a 3 percent increase in the next two years. However, due to military budget accounting, budget officials said $27.5 billion would be saved from the original estimates of military spending for fiscal 1986.
 • Grants a cost-of-living increase for Social Security and other government benefit programs.
 • Cuts $11 billion from Medicare in 1986. The House Ways and Means Committee already has approved $10 billion in Medicare cuts, and budget officials recommended the panel seek more.
 • Cuts $7.9 billion from agriculture programs, less than the Senate originally wanted.
 • Freezes federal civilian pay for a year, saving $5 billion.

 around here can say it's the greatest. But I also can't see how $277 billion (in cuts over 1986-88) off the president's budget is an insignificant job. It's only the biggest budget cut in history."

House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray, D-Pa., called the budget a "major deposit on a sea of red ink."

Gardening

It's Time To Start Planning For Fall Vegetable Garden

Alfred Bessesen
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

You may not realize it by looking at your thermometer, but fall is not too far away. And, it's time to start thinking about planting your fall vegetable garden. Start planning and taking care of some of the preliminary work right now. Whether or not you're a first time gardener, there are some procedures to follow.

First, select your site for the garden. Start small, you don't want it to overwhelm you later on. Pick a spot that is close to the house, so it's handy to work in. And, you want it close to an outside water faucet for ease of irrigation.

The most important thing you really want to be sure about is proper light. The best gardens are located in full sun, those receiving sun all day long. Sometimes this is impossible, particularly on a small lot. You may have to choose between morning sun or afternoon sun. Plan to plant your fruiting crops, such as tomatoes, corn, cucumbers, and melons where they will get the most sun. Leaf and root crops generally can stand a little shade.

You may want to fence the area to keep out dogs and kids. In some areas, wild animals, such as rabbits, can be a problem. A fence can serve as a trellis for pole beans, tomatoes, and other crops that need support, too.

Tree and shrub roots will compete with vegetables for nutrients and water. You may have to protect your crops from this competition. To give your crops the edge, you can dig a trench about one and one-half feet deep all around the garden. Line one side of the trench with roofing paper or plastic film, then backfill the trench. This will form a barrier against the roots of nearby plants.

Of course, good soil is important. Unfortunately, most of us will have to do the best we can with the kind of soil we have. You can give poor, sandy soil a boost by mixing in generous quantities of organic materials such as manure and compost. Adding such amendments will greatly improve the texture and moisture holding capacity of your soil — even if it is nothing but sand.

Have your soil tested for pH or acidity, to be sure it is in the proper range for best vegetable gardening. The folks at the Agricultural Center in Sanford will test soil samples for a small fee — well worth it — if you seriously want to be successful. Bring in about a pint of your soil. Select the sample from several spots in your garden, dug from the two- to six-inch level deep. Thoroughly mix them together on a newspaper or plastic sheet. Then, select your final sample from this mixture. You may or may not need to apply dolomitic lime. But, don't lime your soil without prior testing and recommendations. You may create more problems than you really need.

Before you ever plant the first seeds or set transplants, you need to think about the vegetable varieties you want to grow. You could walk into a garden center and buy whatever you see. But, remember the vegetable varieties differ in quality, and both disease resistance and climatic adaptability. These can be vitally important. Some of the varieties that you grew up north simply will not perform here. Yes, help is available! You can check with your favorite garden center or pick up a copy of Circular 104 — "The Vegetable Gardening Guide," at the Agricultural Center.

You find that the most physical part of vegetable gardening will be in getting the soil ready for planting. Whatever you do, don't give in to the temptation to cut corners in this phase of gardening. If you do a poor job of preparing the soil, you can expect poor results from your garden. If you're planning a large garden, you may want to rent a rototiller, or even a small tractor and plow, to use in preparing the soil. But, for a small backyard garden, the work can be done with a spade or shovel.

The time to begin soil preparation is now. If it is a new garden. Heavy work in building a new garden should be done at least a month before planting. This is the time to add the soil amendments, and lime if a soil test indicates the need. Dig down at least six to eight inches, and turn each shovelful completely over. If you're turning in weeds, or a cover crop, remove all woody plant material because it won't decompose very well.

After the soil is turned, break up all clods and level with a rake. Do this as soon as you can after turning the soil to prevent excess drying of the soil, and to maintain the soil texture. This is important as a finely pulverized soil surface will make planting easier, give you better seed germination, and help insure a more even stand of vegetables.

If you plan to have a fall vegetable garden, start now with your planning, soil preparation, and selection of varieties. Before you know it, September will be here — the time to set out your fall vegetable garden.

Woman Can't Get Drinking Friend 'Out Of My System'

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and head over heels in love with a man who is 35. We've been dating for four months and I can't get him off my mind. I wish I could because he told me right from the start that he didn't want any commitments. He was married to his ex-wife twice and says he is still in love with her and probably always will be.

Lately when we go to a nightclub, he drinks too much and I end up driving him home and putting him to bed. When he's drunk he says he's falling in love with me. Once he asked me to move in with him. I told him to ask me again when he was sober. He never did.

I really care a lot for this guy, Abby. How can I either get him to love me enough (when he's sober) to marry me, or get him out of my system?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If you really care about him, try to get him into an alcohol rehabilitation facility where he will be treated for alcoholism and taught how to stay sober a day at a time — which is all any recovering alcoholic can do.

You can't make anybody "love" you, or marry you, but with counseling you can get a person out of your system if you're determined to do so.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty five years ago we lived across the street from a prominent attorney (a widower) who died suddenly. His relatives were cleaning out his home and they gave my husband a drawer filled with socks — old and new. He was told, "Take what you want and toss the rest."

As he was sorting through them, he found $2,000 in bills

Dear Abby

stashed in the socks.

We immediately contacted the executor and returned the money. And would you believe, the deceased's only child (a married daughter, living in another state) never as much said, "Thank you."

More surprising, nearly everyone we told said, "You should have kept the money. It was yours."

What do you think?

R.M., BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

DEAR R.M.: Your first impulse was right. For you to have kept the money the old gentleman had been literally socking away would have been dishonest.

DEAR ABBY: Recently one of your readers wrote, "America is the only country in the world where mothers will drive their kids to the YMCA so they can get some exercise."

Well, I want to tell you that America is the only civilized country where parents let their kids get up before dawn to deliver newspapers.

I was born in Europe, and when I went back there and told people this, they couldn't believe it!

JEANNE DUPREY, SEATTLE

DEAR JEANNE: Why is that so hard to believe? Many of America's most successful businessmen started out as young boys with a paper route. What better way to learn responsibility, the value of a dollar and the importance of sticking with the job come rain or shine?

DEAR ABBY: I honestly don't know how many denture wearers there are in this country, but I would guess that about 10 to 15 percent of the population wears dentures.

I know that all dentures should fit perfectly, but I'll wager that millions don't.

Now, when that ever-present sesame seed creeps under a denture while the victim is eating in a fast food place, the poor sucker has to interrupt his meal, go straight to the washroom, remove his denture and get rid of the seed. If he doesn't it feels like he's chewing on a sewing needle!

Abby, why sesame seeds in the first place? They have no taste and are an absolute nuisance.

Solution: Order two burger bun bottoms? The two fast food places in my town (McDonald's and Burger King) charge extra for the switch.

I think that's discrimination against denture wearers. What do you think and can you help us?

DISCOURAGED IN JAY, MAINE

DEAR DISCOURAGED: You have a valid point. So this is an open (sesame) letter to all fast food restaurants. Please offer your customers a choice of buns with or without sesame seeds at no extra charge.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Rapunzel Legs." Yes, it is sex discrimination to demand that women shave their legs while men walk around like gorillas.

And if "Rapunzel" wants to go topless—like a man—she won't get any complaints from me. RED IN PARIS, TEXAS

Sanford, Florida — Friday, Aug. 2, 1985

C By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Central Florida is considered by many the choicest vacation spot in the land. What with its multitude of glittery attractions, shopping malls, and lush outdoor activities, the adventurous soul should never want for something to do. But if you're tired of doing things, take a break, grab a book and relax.

Reading is a popular summertime activity for Seminole Countians of all ages. People are reading more than ever, according to Sandra M. Gallagher, libraries branch coordinator for the Seminole County Public Library System, who expects the system's circulation to reach one million this year.

"Last year we had a circulation of 823,685, but we have more now," she said. "People are using the library more and are interested in everything." And if the library doesn't have a book on whatever esoteric subject you might name, Ms. Gallagher can get it for you.

TeeVee Toons Immortalizes 25 Years Of TV Theme Songs

By Iris Krasnow
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Gottlieb hopes that Green Acres is where you'd rather be. That you'll listen to a story about a man named Jed. That you're hot to meet George Jetson, his dog Elroy, and Jane, his wife ... again.

The New York entrepreneur-producer has put together an album of 65 television theme songs from the '50s and '60s starting with "The Lone Ranger" series and ending with the "Tonight Show".

"When I first got involved, I did it because I thought 'This will sell — people love television,'" remembers Gottlieb. "But as I got into the songs, I realized 'this is great music.' I mean, 'I Love Lucy' is a swinging number."

This is no appendage to the trivia craze, he insists of the $15.98 "Television's Greatest Hits" album marketed by mail-order through his Manhattan-based company, TeeVee Toons Inc.

"I don't look at this as just some quirk that people are going to listen to once at a party. It is history. It is the last 25 years of television," says Gottlieb, 28, a Harvard Law School graduate.

Featured on the record, which took one year from start to finish, are such diverse blasts from the past as the melodies from "Leave It to Beaver," "Bonanza," "Mr. Ed," "Get Smart" and "The Donna Reed Show." Others like "Secret Agent Man" and "Dragnet" were top hits during their heyday.

His favorites are "Dobie Gillis" and

"Surf Side Six."

"You walk down the street and you'll find this music is better known to most people than Elvis," Gottlieb says with a shake of thick black shoulder-length hair.

"You ask people to sing 'Jailhouse Rock' or sing 'Gilligan's Island,' and I'm telling you more people will know 'Gilligan's Island.' Put these things on 'Name That Tune,' and all you need are (he snaps his fingers) three notes of any of these titles and people know what they are."

The album was mastered by Bernie Grundman, who also did Michael Jackson's "Thriller" and Prince's "Purple Rain."

Although he is not a practicing attorney, Gottlieb's legal background was a valuable resource in piecing together the album.

"I had to negotiate with every major entertainment company in the country to get the copyrights to this music," he recalls. "Most of it was done over the phone right here, which is how I got away with my long hair."

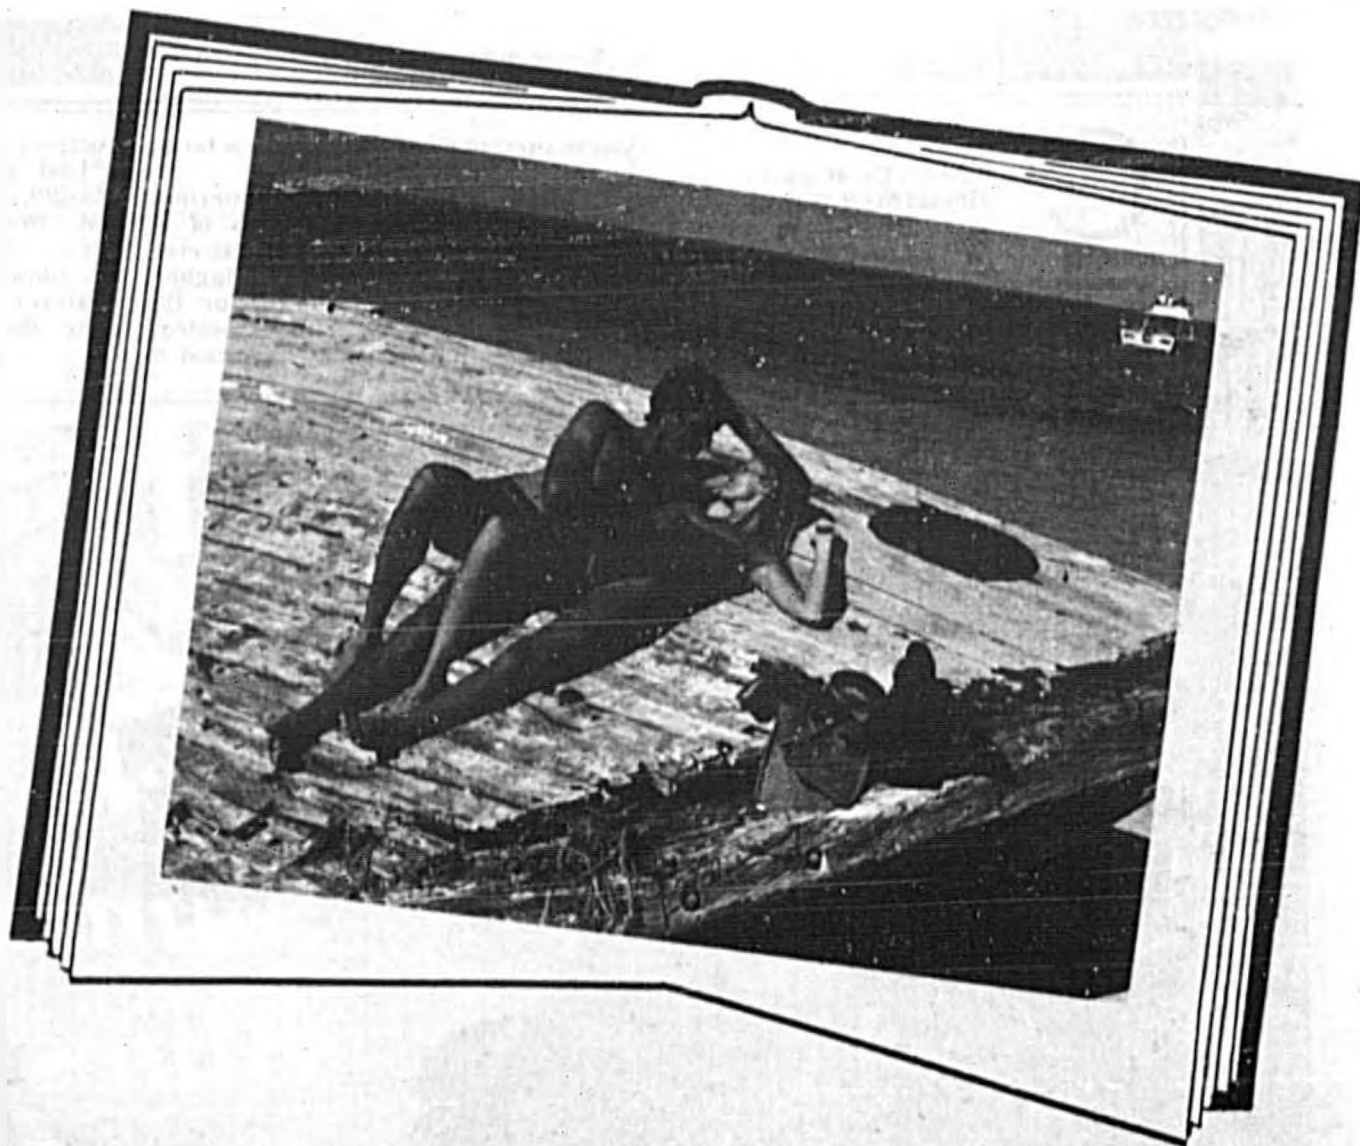

He looks around his Central Park South apartment office, decorated with '60s-style kitsch reminiscent of "The Dick Van Dyke Show" set. Ironically, Gottlieb grew up in New Rochelle, N.Y., "a stone's throw away" from the Bonnie Meadow Road address that Rob, Laura and Richie Petrie immortalized on the tube.

"The deal fell apart from top to bottom at least 20 times," Gottlieb continues. "No entertainment

"We have the means to obtain any book that we don't have through the interlibrary loan computer network. Books can be borrowed from other libraries in the state or nation that are part of the system in shorter time now."

What books are hot with the readers this summer? Ms. Gallagher said there is a long waiting list for Hold the Dream, part of a continuing family saga by Barbara Taylor Bradford. First of the series, Woman of Substance, was dramatized recently for television.

Also popular this summer is Sidney Shelton's latest fiction, If Tomorrow Comes, she said. The plot deals with a young woman intent on the destruction of the crime lords who caused her to be sent to jail for a crime she didn't commit.

B.D. Hyman, daughter of film star Bette Davis, is the latest Hollywood offspring to write an expose on a famous parent. Her book, My Mother's Keeper, is popular in the non-fiction category.

After 33 weeks on the best seller list, Jacocca, a story of the life and times of Chrysler's fiery chief executive, is still popular among local readers.

Other favorites with readers this summer:

● The Lonely Silver Rain, a mystery-adventure by John McDonald, author of the Travis McGee series.

● The Cider House Rules by John Irving, a story of life in a Maine orphanage earlier in the century.

● Inside, Outside by Herman Wouk, a traditionalist Jew's quest for identity in contemporary America.

● A Creed for the Third Millennium is a novel by Colleen McCullough, author of The Thornbirds which was made into a successful television miniseries.

● In The Class, author Erich Segal traces the lives of five fictional members of the Harvard University class of 1958.

● If horror stories are your thing, there is Stephen King's Skeleton Crew, a collection of short stories now on the Best Seller list.

The swimsuit season always brings thoughts of dieting and the latest entry in the diet derby is Dr. Berger's Immune Power Diet by Stuart Berger. The eating plan is designed to help the dieter lose weight while at the same time improving his or her health and increasing energy.

Looking for business success? A Passion for Excellence, by Tom Peters, offers ways to achieve distinction in management, while Robert Allen has updated his 1982 Nothing Down real estate investment guide.

Then there are the faithful fans of romance novels and westerns. "Some readers of romance novels take home 10 or 20 paperbacks at a time," said Ms. Gallagher. Then, of course, there are the perennial favorites — spring and summer gardening books.

The most avid summer readers are the children and the library offers a special program for them during their vacation from the classroom.

This year the summer reading program (seven weeks long at the Sanford branch and eight weeks at the Casselberry branch) had as a theme "Footloose in Florida." The kids aren't spending all their time with their nose in a book, however. The program provides plenty of fun. They also receive freebies, listen to folk tales, play "footloose games" for prizes, view puppets, films and slides, make crafts, get acquainted with animals from the zoo, watch square dancers and cloggers and even met a real live Seminole Indian. The library was able to get two classic films, Dumbo and The Yearling, to show for the whole family.

"We've had a real good turnout," said Barbara McIntyre, who is in charge of the children's program at the Casselberry branch. "I expect to have seen 3,000 children at the various activities during summer.

"Our daily circulation is between 2,000 and 3,000 and a good half of those are checked out by children," she said. "My shelves were stocked, but I've seen tons of books go out of here in the past few weeks and now they're nearly empty. Grades 1-4 are really doing the reading!"

Although children still read the things their grandparents enjoyed — Nancy Drew and The Hardy Boys — they also like books by currently popular authors of juvenile fiction such as Judy Blume, Beverly Clary, Ellen Conford, and Paula Danziger, Mrs. McIntyre said.

A new type of do-it-yourself book, the Choose Your Own Adventure series, has caught the imagination of the kids who by their own choices can change the course of the plot.

In case you've forgotten the pleasure of reading on a lazy summer day, jog your memory by getting yourself a good book and turning off those summer reruns on the tube.

company said "yes" the first time around. I have a drawer full of 'no' letters and angry responses.

"But in the end, there was only one title we really wanted that we didn't get — 'The Mickey Mouse Club.' Walt Disney pulled out over a couple of thousand dollars they weren't giving advances."

Rather, TeeVee Toons will pay royalties as the records move on the market. Since the album's release via mail-order a month ago, the product is approaching $100,000 in sales. By September, Gottlieb is going for "blockbuster" retail distribution.

With no formal musical training, his role as executive producer served as a high-powered Berlitz course. When many of the original tracks were no longer in existence, soundalikes had to be created by studio musicians in Los Angeles.

Remixing was orchestrated by composer Dave Erlanger, 25, a "Julliard whiz kid," and Gottlieb was in on "all of it."

"We had to recreate the way a '50s guitar sounded, the whole '60s style of drum or trumpet," Gottlieb says. "For example, the whistle on the Andy Griffith song is a synthesizer. I listened to these songs hundreds and hundreds of times to make sure we got the exact sound."

Nearly half of the tunes on "Television's Greatest Hits" are re-makes done by studio musicians. "I'd return the purchase price to anybody who could identify which songs are authentic and which are re-mixed."

Is pillaging the treasure chests of oldtime TV tracks going to get Gottlieb rich?

"That's not my goal," he says without skipping a beat. "My goal was to prove myself as a producer. First and foremost, I wanted it to be a good product, true to the originals. But I'd also like to give my investors a big return."

A group of investors, all under age 30, came up with $250,000 for the project.

TeeVee Toons has already licensed a volume II and volume III to bring television buffs up to current times. But Gottlieb is aware there is nothing like the vintage stuff.

"In the old days, television wasn't considered a vast wasteland; it was treated as more of an art form," he says. "These songs are like the ocean surf; it's a sound you know. You put on the music and you remember sitting around with your family or friends enjoying being a kid."

Where The Action Isn't: 'Rock 'n Roll Summer Action'

By David Handler
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
"Rock 'n' Roll Summer Action" is a perfectly normal 1965 teen dance show. There's music and sun and a lot of shapely kids twistin' and shakin' on the sands of Malibu beach.
There are kids on surfboards and skateboards. There are Frisbees and beauty contests and tug-of-war battles. The musical guests plug their electric guitars into the sand and lip-sync along with their current hit.
Our host has plenty of blond hair and white teeth and says things to us like, "Well, hi? What kept ya?"
The only thing that's odd about "Rock 'n' Roll Summer Action" is that this is the summer of 1985, and our host, 24-year-old Chris Atkins, was sucking his thumb back when Jan and Dean were singing about Dead Man's Curve and the California beach life. Most of the kids who will watch this show weren't even born.
All of which says that the more things change in pop music television, the more they stay the same - especially if the shows are produced by Dick Clark, who threw together this eight-week ABC summer series on extremely short notice.
He hasn't exactly gone out of his way to be original. In fact, Clark did this very same show for ABC 20 years ago. It was called "Where the Action Is."
The crowd loved it.

The only real difference was that he hosted that one himself.
Nothing else has changed. It's positively creepy. There are Woodies and '57 Chevies lined up in the parking lot. There are vintage musical guests like Paul Revere and the Raiders.
At one point, I said to myself the only thing that's missing is some kid playing the bongo drums - and, sure enough, there one was I mean, this show is in a time warp.
"The kinds of things that go on down here haven't changed much in the past 20 years," acknowledges Atkins.
The main thing is sun and fun and good times. Nothing stands still - not the bodies, not the music, not the camera. The only time the kids slow down is to answer questions like "What's hot this summer?" Answer: "The beach and the guys, definitely."
There's a square, middle-aged comic named Thom Sharp who offers beach tips for the overweight. There are current music groups, like X.
Mostly, there is the California youth culture of the early '60s in all its glory. We '60s teens have grown up in the years that followed. We have, but Dick Clark hasn't.
Twenty years from now, when he's in his 70s, he'll be doing the same show for a whole new generation of teenagers who, like the current crop, have no way of knowing it's all been done before.
OMNI's SPACE Really Far Out
OMNI Visions of Tomorrow launches SPACE, the second in a four-part series of syndicated television specials on future life.
SPACE, an entertaining and informative look at the wonders of our galaxy, hosted by Keir Dullea, will air Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. on WOFL TV-35.
Dullea, star of Stanley Kubrick's "2001: A Space Odyssey," and most recently seen in MGM/UA's, "2010: The Year We Make Contact," is well known for his portrayal of David Bowman. Space is a subject with which Dullea is very familiar.
OMNI Visions of Tomorrow's SPACE reveals a wide-range of the most dramatic developments in space science and technology. From neutral buoyancy at NASA's Goddard Space Training Center, to "flying telescopes," to terraforming on Mars and communicating with dolphins, to drilling for oil using space-based cameras; SPACE brings you closer to man's future exploring the solar system.
And because no developments materialize unless they are first a part of someone's dreams, SPACE takes a look at some of the fantasies, the dreams and hopes of man's life in space. You'll hear from Ray Bradbury and Isaac Asimov, prodigious minds who inspire and challenge men of science to turn dreams into reality. And you'll take a fantasy tour of the solar system from the interplanetary space port on Alpha Four. It's the vacation of the next century.
OMNI, the world's leading consumer science magazine, serves as inspiration and source material for OMNI Visions of Tomorrow. OMNI has always been an avid proponent of space research and development.
OMNI has also been a consistent sponsor of Spaceweek held July 16-24 of each year to commemorate America's first flight to the moon.
The remaining specials in the OMNI quartet will focus on pioneering efforts and breakthroughs as they relate to medical miracles and lifestyles in the 21st Century. These specials will air in September, October, November and December. FUTUREBODY, the first in the Visions of Tomorrow series, premiered in April.

The Boss & The Queen

When it comes to Bruce Springsteen, Tina Turner says what's marriage got to do with it?
At her East Rutherford, N.J., concert during the weekend she sang his "Dancing in the Dark" and mixed lust and levity, admitting she "was after" Springsteen. "But he got married," Turner said. "It's not too late, though. I haven't given up."
The crowd loved it.

Doctor Says Contraceptive Ad Too Controversial For Networks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The three big networks are reluctant to run a public-service television ad aimed at preventing unwanted pregnancies because it promotes contraception, an official of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists says.

At least one network — CBS — has turned down the ad and NBC is still deciding what to do with it.

Dr. Luella Klein, immediate past president of ACOG and a member of its board, said she has been told the spot, designed to reduce the 3.3 million unintended pregnancies in America annually, was rejected because of the use of the word "contraceptive."

She said one network official, who she did not name, turned down the spot, which was prepared as a centerpiece in an ACOG campaign against teenage pregnancy, wrote:

"The birth control theme of the proposed message presents an issue that the networks regard as controversial and not an acceptable subject for public service messages."

"We do not run public services announcements of a controversial nature," said CBS spokesman Jim Sirmans. "This is one of them."

Allen Baker, vice president of NBC Press, said his network has not accepted or rejected the spot.

"At this point it has not been turned down," he said. "It is under review and a decision will be reached by the middle of next week."

The spot shows three girls — two of whom are studying and not pregnant. The third is pregnant. One girl says, "I intend to be president." Girl No. 2 says, "I intend to go back to school." The pregnant girl says, "I intended to have a family — but not this soon."

The announcer says: "Nothing changes any intentions faster than an unintended pregnancy. Unintended pregnancies have risks. Greater risks than any of today's contraceptives. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists wants you to have the facts. For your free booklet, call 1-800-INTENDS."

A girl at the end of the spot says: "I intend to call now."

Klein said she is disappointed that "these powerful organizations (TV networks), which can contribute so well to the national good, define as 'controversial' an issue that, according to a recent Gallup Poll, more than 90 percent of the population feel should be taught in schools."

She said she has written to the presidents of each television network asking them to reconsider their decisions denying public service time to this issue.

Klein said ACOG wants the networks and other interested parties and organizations to work with producers of soap operas, situation comedies and prime-time dramatic shows to introduce responsible attitudes towards sex and contraception in their programming.

The ACOG public information program, also featuring radio and print public service ads, all emphasize the toll-free number through which young people can obtain a pamphlet about sexual responsibility and contraception. It is titled "The Facts."

Reagans To Head Fund-Raiser For Movie, TV Home-Hospital

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan have agreed to serve as honorary chairmen of a fund-raising campaign for the Motion Picture and Television Fund Country House and Hospital.

The $50 million that organizers hope to raise in the drive will double the capacity of the facility for movie and television workers from its present 300 retirees and patients to a total of 600.

In accepting the position, the White House said it was highly unusual for the president and first lady to lend their names to a particular fund-raising project, but that Reagan wished to make an exception in the case of the fund.

Reagan was active in the formative years of the facility and was present along with Mary Pickford, Samuel Goldwyn, Shirley Temple and other celebrities at the ground-breaking ceremonies in 1941.

The Country Home and Hospital cares for TV and film workers from stagehands to superstars in their old age. Among well-known current residents are Mae Clarke, Regis Toomey and Stepin Fetchit. Past residents included Johnny Weismuller, Bruce Cabot, Mary Astor, Norma Shearer, Chill Wills, Francis X. Bushman and Herbert Marshall.

Television's Latest Improvement: Stereo

By Joan Hanauer
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stereo television will finally get under way this year, but don't expect to be blasted out of your socks by the speed in which it becomes available.

There are two problems — one is buying the hardware; the other is the paucity of stereo programming.

"Stereo TV is really the best-kept secret of the year in electronics," said James H. Meigs, senior editor of Video Review magazine. "Fewer than 40 stations are now broadcasting stereo TV."

The networks are just moving into stereo broadcasting, but it won't do the viewer-listener any good unless his local affiliate has converted to stereo. PBS has been distributing in stereo around the country for several years so that its member stations can broadcast the shows as FM radio simulcasts.

Meigs, who has studied the field in depth, had some predictions about what the network plans might entail.

NBC has a lot of music-oriented programming and is into stereo with Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show and Friday night videos," he said. "I think probably in the fall they will go with 'Miami Vice.' They also have talked about going stereo with 'Saturday Night Live.'"

"All these shows have some emphasis on music and NBC shows a certain amount of foresight to exploit that access to the young, upwardly mobile audience that would be interested in a feature like stereo video."

He predicted ABC's first stereo video broadcasts probably would be one-shot specials, particularly around Christmas — they are relatively easy to produce in stereo — and possibly sports events.

CBS programming, including the prime time soaps, are not the kinds of shows to exploit the stereo format.

Those upwardly mobile would-be stereo TV fans must buy equipment before they can turn on to their new tuned-in sound.

Stereo television sets vary from a high of $1,200-$1,300, Meigs said, to the $600 range.

"The electronics industry has moved fast," he said, "and most of the sets at the high price end on the market today can handle stereo."

Some television sets are

Miss America: Here She Comes In Stereo

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 32nd live telecast of the Miss America Pageant will air on NBC Sept. 14 and this year something new has been added — it will be broadcast in stereo.

Gary Collins will host the show for the fourth consecutive year and the theme will be "The Spirit of America." The pageant will distribute almost $5 million in scholarships to winners on the local, state and national levels. Whoever succeeds Sharlene Wells as the new Miss America will receive $30,000 in scholarship money.

What happens to Miss America after her year-long reign? Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1945, wound up in politics. Marilyn VanDerbur, Miss A of 1958, founded the Motivational Institute in Denver. The 1959 winner, Mary Ann Mobley, became an actress and married Gary Collins.

Jacquelyn Mayer, 1963 Miss America, suffered a stroke at the age of 27. She made a remarkable recovery and has become national spokesperson for the American Heart and Stroke Association. She spends half her time speaking to groups about stroke prevention and working with stroke patients.

Show biz claims a number of former Miss Americas. Terry McEwens, 1973, has her own TV show in Milwaukee. She also has a 2-year-old son, an adopted 4-year-old Korean son and is expecting a third child. Tawny Goden (1976) was a Los Angeles anchorwoman who married John Schneider. Susan Powell (1981) lives in New York City and sings with regional opera companies and symphonies. Debby Maffett (1983) is a host on TV's "PM Magazine" in Los Angeles.

And Kylene Barker (1979) owns a boutique in Palm Beach and has published a book on fitness and exercise.

"stereo-ready." That means they can play stereo, but not necessarily receive it. For them you need a decoder that can be attached to TV sets equipped with a multiplex (MPX) output jack. Decoders also can be used to hook up an MPX-equipped television set to your own stereo speakers. Stereo VCRs also are available.

Cable poses a big stumbling block to stereo-video because it transmits stereo differently than MTS — multichannel TV sound — which is the signal used by over-the-air broadcasters.

Meigs said the MTS signal "takes up a little more space or bandwidth than regular audio."

"If you are hooked up to a cable system," he said, "what you will get depends on your cable company. Some cable systems tend to lop off the outer edges of the band. That won't hurt anything if you have a mono receiver, but you will lose some stereo quality. Some cable companies will pass MTS along without even knowing it, along with their regular signal. Others will shear off some or all of the stereo signal."

The advantage of stereo TV is obvious for music-oriented shows, but another prime target is sports.

"Japan has had stereo for a few years," Meigs said, "and sports programs are the most popular stereo shows. Put a mike near the field and you get a lot of ambient crowd noise. Just the sound of being in the stadium can be very exciting to the viewer at home. In hockey, for instance, the sound of that puck ricocheting around the rink can add a whole new dimension."
