Agony Of Burn Not Eased By Man's Arrest

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

The mother of a 4-year-old Orlando girl burned by an illegal fireworks rocket during a Fourth of July celebration in Altamonte Springs says she's happy the man suspected of firing the rocket has been caught, but that doesn't alter the agony her daughter has suffered and will continue to endure.

"He made a conscious, adult decision to bring illegal fireworks into that area and to use them. Now he has to deal with the consequences," Rose Hunt said of Daniel Joseph Adams, 23, of 2617 Eastbrook Blvd., Winter Park, who Tuesday was issued a summons for allegedly injuring her child.

Altamonte Springs police officer Edna Webb said Adams was tracked down through an investigation by police detectives. Lawmen were assisted by an anonymous informant, Mrs. Webb said.

That person collected a $1,000 reward Mrs. Hunt's employer, Armor Systems, Inc., of Maitland, had offered for "the positive identification" of the person responsible for injuring Rachel Hunt, her mother said. The Seminole State Attorney's office issued the summons ordering Adams to appear in court Aug. 10.

"I hope he will receive the full extent of punishment available under the law, but that won't make my daughter feel any better," Mrs. Hunt said. "It won't change what she has already been through."

Rachel Hunt was sitting on the trunk of her grandfather, Russell Walls' car, waiting for a fireworks display called Skyblast '84 to begin at the Altamonte Mall when the illegally fired rocket landed between her legs and exploded around 9 p.m. on July 4. She was rushed to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she remained until Monday, receiving treatment and skin grafts for second- and third-degree burns on her legs and lower torso, Mrs. Hunt said.

At the time of the incident, police were hindered in their pursuit of a suspect because of the crowd of about 200,000 who were at the scene, Mrs. Webb said.

Mrs. Hunt, a secretary, said she considers the offer of the reward a key factor in locating a suspect in the case.

"I think the money brought more attention to the incident and I am very grateful to my company and employer," she said.

Mrs. Hunt said she hasn't made a decision what to do about her outstanding hospital bills and the medical expenses that can be expected during Rachel's upcoming year of recovery. She said she hasn't decided if she will sue Adams, who if convicted of culpable negligence as charged will face up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Although insurance has covered some of Rachel's medical bills, Mrs. Hunt said all of the bills aren't in yet.

She expects Rachel's expenses to increase, not only for medical care, but Mrs. Hunt said she may have to seek psychological therapy for her daughter.

"She talks about it frequently and never wants to go again," Mrs. Hunt said. "She knows it was wrong, but doesn't know why it happened. I can't have her being afraid when a holiday comes up.

"She has to have continuous care at home. She can't play and do things like other children, because she has to be careful of her grafts."

And that's the way it will be for at least a year as she tries to recover both mentally and physically from her injuries, Mrs. Hunt said.

Roof Collapses

Workers remove a beam from the roof of Carroll's Furniture, 104 E. First St., Sanford, after a heavy rainstorm on Monday caused it to collapse. The water leaked through the roof and collected above the ceiling. Cost of damage to the roof was undetermined today, but store manager Bill Carroll said he could see the cave-in coming and was unable get furniture out of the way in time. The workers, from Hi-Tech Roofing, Inc., are left to right, Brian Lizotte, Billy Boczkus and Robert Shook.

County Utilities Buy:

Call It Off, Kirchhoff Says

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff today called on his commission colleagues to halt the purchase of Greenwood Lakes Utilities and abide by the "spirit and letter" of the new state law to go into effect Oct. 1 by holding public hearings first.

Kirchhoff also demanded sections in the purchase agreement which say the county threatened to condemn the utilities if not sold to the county be deleted. "I can recall no time when this county commission has threatened that utility with condemnation if they refused to sell," he said.

Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather agreed.

To County Attorney Nikki Clayton's explanation that the seller wished those words in the agreement to get a federal tax break, Kirchhoff said: "I do not believe the county or the sellers want to be involved in anything which could be interpreted as defrauding the federal government."

He said the new law requires public bodies, interested in buying utilities, to hold public hearings to "show the public what effect acquisitions will have on customer utility bills, if any; to show the effect if a county does not buy the utility; to show why a buy is necessary and why it is a good move."

Kirchhoff has opposed not only the acquisition of Greenwood Lakes Utilities for $5.5 million, but also the already approved purchase of Sanlando Utilities for $16.7 million.

"I don't think government needs to get into enterprises that could function without government," he says.

But Kirchhoff's greatest opposition goes to the way the county commission majority — Sandra Glenn, Barbara Christensen, and Robert G. "Bud" Feather — plans to handle the sale of the proposed $30.6 million bond issue to acquire the two utility companies — Greenwood Lakes near Lake Mary and Sanlando Utilities in the Longwood area.

Pot Prescription Gets Doc In Hot Water

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford physician, scheduled to appear before a state Board of Medical examiners Saturday for prescribing marijuana allegedly without a justifiable medical reason, said he prescribed the drug because it effectively eased his patient's chronic pain.

Dr. Thomas J. Brodrick, of 801

E. 1st St., Sanford, is scheduled to appear on the marijuana prescription charge at an informal hearing before the board meeting in Tampa Saturday, according to Pat Byrd, of the state Department of Professional Regulation.

According to Ms. Byrd, an informal hearing is held when the doctor in question does not dispute the facts in the case.

Brodrick said Tuesday that he does not deny writing the prescription for James Houston, of Okalahoma, on June 22, 1983, and called the situation embarrassing.

Marijuana is not widely recognized nor extensively researched as a pain-killer, Brodrick said.

He said while writing the See DOCTOR, page 10A

'Ferraro Leading The Ticket'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pollster Louis Harris says the addition of Geraldine Ferraro to the Democratic ticket has turned the November election from a landslide for President Reagan into a horse race.

"Ferraro is leading the ticket," Harris said. "She's not only an event, she's a happening."

President Reagan says his Democratic opponents have written off the South, but Walter Mondale and Ms. Ferraro came to the heart of Dixie today to officially open their campaign and prove that "anything is possible." Harris told reporters at a breakfast Tuesday that his surveys showed no decline in support for the Democratic ticket by men because of Walter Mondale's selection of Ms. Ferraro and there has been an increase in backing from women.

"It's a one-way street," in Ms. Ferraro's bringing support for the ticket, he said. "Women are going to vote. They will be 53 percent of the electorate."

Harris said he could not pre-

U.S. Swimmers, Gymnasts Reap Gold

By Fred McMane
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — U.S. athletes reaped a banner harvest Tuesday, adding seven gold medals to their Olympics-leading total — including all five in swimming and the first victory ever by the men's gymnastics team.

Heading into Day 4, the United States had 24 medals, including 16 golds. China, participating for the first time since 1952, was second with 11, five of them gold. Germany and Canada each had three golds.

America's women gymnasts try tonight to duplicate the men's team championship. Heading into the optionals, they narrowly trail heavily favored Romania.

As the Star Spangled Banner echoed through sold-out Pauley Pavilion Tuesday, the American teammates stood on the winner's platform, alternately smiling and brushing back tears, celebrating the greatest night in U.S. gymnastics history.

Also-rans throughout the annals of the sport, the Americans gained instant worldwide respect by nipping heavily favored China and garnering three perfect scores of 10 in the process.

Proudly wearing the gold medal and tossing flowers to the spectators were Bart Conner, Peter Vidmar, Mitch Gaylord, James Hartung, Tim Duggell and Scott Johnson.

Victory was especially sweet for Conner and Vidmar, 1980 team members who were victims of the U.S. boycott of the Moscow Games.

Another gold medal winner who waited four years was Rowdy Gaines, who almost quit swimming last summer because he thought he was wasting his time. Gaines won the men's 100-meter freestyle.

"Perhaps Gaines summed up the feeling best for all three. "Was it worth all the hell? I'd swim another eight years and go through another boycott for the feeling I have now," he said.

Gaines, of Winter Haven, Fla., became the fourth U.S. swimmer to win a gold after having lost out on their chance in 1980.

Steve Lundquist in the men's 100-meter breaststroke; Tracy Caulkins in the 400 women's individual medley and Nancy Hogshead, in the women's 100-meter freestyle, also have won gold medals.

Other U.S. swimming golds Tuesday went to Tiffany Cohen of Mission Viejo, Calif., in the women's 400-meter freestyle; Rick Carey of Mount Kisco, N.Y., in the men's 200-meter backstroke; Theresa Andrews of Annapolis, Md., in the women's 100-meter backstroke; and the women's 4-X-100 relay team.

The United States also picked up a gold medal in shooting when Pat Spurgin of Hillings, Mont., won the women's air rifle competition.

In other events, both U.S. basketball teams won: the men's volleyball team beat Tunisia, and boxers Steve McCrory and Frank Tate won opening round matches. Cheryl Miller scored 20 points to lead the women's basketball team to an 81-47 triumph over Australia, and Michael Jordan had 20 to pace the men over Canada, 89-68.

Italy beat the U.S. soccer team 1-0 at the Rose Bowl; America beat Chinese Taipei 2-1 in baseball a demonstration sport this year; and West Germany downed the United States in team handball, 21-19.

China won its third gold medal in weightlifting

IN BRIEF

House Reprimands Hansen For False Disclosure Forms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling himself "old lonesome George," Rep. George Hansen complained loudly and bitterly about "this paperwork jungle we live in." The House listened for 35 minutes and then voted overwhelmingly to reprimand him for filing false financial disclosure forms.

The House voted 354-52 Tuesday to reprimand the Idaho Republican who was convicted April 2 of violating the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. Hansen, the fifth House member to be reprimanded, does not lose any of his privileges or powers. The reprimand, which amounts only to a public rebuke, is the weakest form of punishment the House can impose on its members.

A federal jury found Hansen, 53, guilty of not reporting loans to his wife of $50,000 and $61,503 involving Texas oil billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt, an $87,475 silver futures profit for his wife and $135,000 in loans to Hansen from three Virginians.

He was sentenced June 15 to five to 15 months in prison and fined $40,000. He is free pending appeal. He has not voted or participated in House committee action since his conviction.

Frustrated DeVries Moves

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Watching "people die while you're waiting for red tape" prompted pioneer surgeon William DeVries to move from a Utah university hospital to a private Kentucky facility that promised to pay for artificial heart implants and transplants in up to 100 patients.

DeVries, 40, performed the landmark surgery in December 1982 on Seattle-area dentist Barney Clark, who lived for 112 days.

DeVries would not specify when he would perform an artificial heart implant in Louisville, but said the facility could be operable within days and the staff could be trained within weeks.

He first needs approval from the hospital's internal review board and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration before he could perform any implants in Louisville. The FDA granted DeVries exclusive authority to perform implants at the University of Utah.

Postal Unions Ask Court For Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four postal unions have turned to a federal court to intercede in a bargaining dispute and stop the U.S. Postal Service from unilaterally slashing wages and benefits of new employees.

The unions, who walked out of contract talks with the Postal Service July 20, asked the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia Tuesday to issue a permanent injunction against the two-tier wage-benefit system.

The unions plan to decide their next move — including the possibility of an illegal nationwide strike — at simultaneous conventions later this month in Las Vegas.

The Postal Service announced plans for the two-tier wage system, with wage cuts of 23 percent for newly hired employees, last Wednesday in what it called "an effort to close the gap between the Postal Service and private industry."

Greedy Dentist Guilty Of Murder

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — The greed of a dentist convicted of second-degree murder in the deaths of three patients led him to give the victims overdoses of anesthesia rather than do his job properly, prosecutors say.

Dr. Tony Protopappas, 38, was found guilty Tuesday of causing the deaths of three patients who prosecutors said should have been operated on in a hospital rather than the high-volume Orange County clinic where more than 21,000 patients were treated over a decade.

Prosecutors said the dentist used massive amounts of anesthesia so he could run his patients in and out at a high profit rather than treat them over a longer period of time using safe amounts of sedation.

Protopappas faces 15 years to life imprisonment. Sentencing was set for Oct. 1.

Surprise! New Home Sales Up; Average Price Slips To $100,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales of new houses in June rose 0.6 percent despite high interest rates, an unexpected increase apparently supported by the popular adjustable rate mortgages.

The rate of new house sales reached 620,000 units a year in June after seasonal adjustment. The increase, only the second this year, surprised analysts who predicted that higher mortgage interest rates — now approaching 15 percent — would pull house sales down.

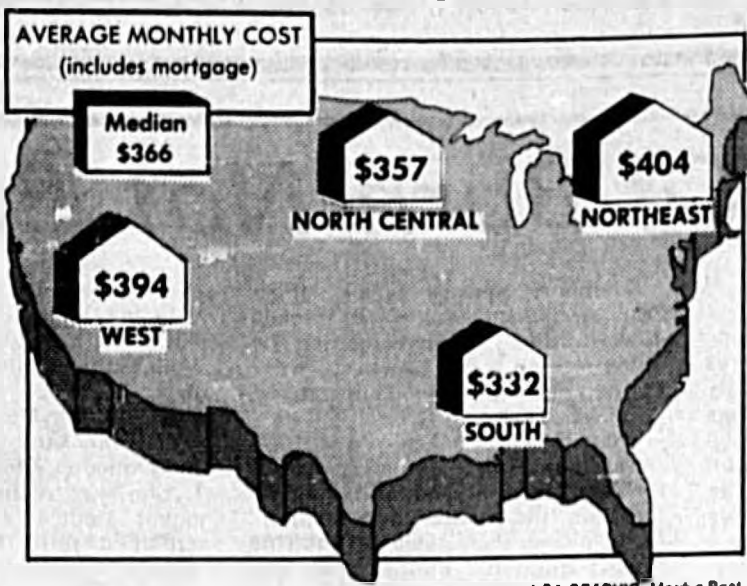

The cost of the average new house eased back from its record $103,600 in May to an even $100,000 in June, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

Despite higher sales in June, the supply of unsold houses grew. There were 341,000 houses on the market last month, a 6.8 months supply — the most since September 1982.

The report suggested that high interest rates are not having the deadly effect on house sales that they once did. Most analysts say the reason is that buyers can get adjustable rate mortgages which have lower initial payments and allow more people to qualify for mortgage loans.

A U.S. League of Savings Institutions survey found a record 76.4 percent of new home loan dollars went into adjustable rate mortgages in June.

"We have given home buyers, builders and realtors the type of mortgage instrument they need to prevent a repeat of the housing recessions," league president William O'Connell said.

Others, particularly House Democratic leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, have labeled the adjustables "an abomination" that can backfire if interest rates continue to climb. Wright fears that homeowners would not be able to make the higher monthly payments required when rates rise.

The Commerce Department report said 59,000 houses were sold during June, down from 60,000 in May. But the decline normally would be even greater in June so the government's seasonal adjustment process turned the figure into a plus.

Michael Sumichraast, an economist with the National Association of Home Builders, said the June increase was not encouraging.

"It's a very weak number," he said. "The whole spectrum of sales has changed considerably since March."

"The unsold inventory of buildings is a very disturbing item," Sumichraast said. "I have been cautioning builders not to build."

Sumichraast said that with rising interest rates, only three out of 10 prospective homebuyers qualify for mortgages. The National Association of Realtors said home mortgage rates in June average 2 percentage points too high for the typical American family to qualify for a loan.

The family earning the national median income, midway between the largest and the smallest, could afford a house with a mortgage at 10.26 percent. Instead the average effective rate for a mortgage, including adjustables was 12.25 percent.

New fixed rate mortgages are being offered at close to 15 percent, up 2 points since the start of the year.

Once a house is bought, homeowners in the Northeast pay more for their home, the Commerce Department report said. The lowest costs were still in the South.

House sales increased in the Northeast, stayed the same in the South and declined everywhere else, the report said.

The annual rate of house sales reached its high point in this recovery in December, at 755,000. So far this year the monthly average has been 659,330 houses, still running above last year's sales level of 623,000.

Jackson Won't Make Run For S.C. Senate

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jesse Jackson announced today that he will not run for the South Carolina Senate seat held by Republican Strom Thurmond, but instead will campaign around the country for Democrats this fall.

"As a former presidential candidate who ran a national campaign, I feel a strong obligation to continue to stimulate voter registration and voter turnout among members of the Rainbow Coalition on a national basis," he said in a written statement issued at the National Urban League's annual convention.

"To have run in South Carolina would have taken too much time away from this duty," he said.

Jackson said he will support black publisher Cecil Williams in the South Carolina election, even though Williams lost the state's July 9 Democratic primary to a white, Melvin Purvis Jr.

Jackson called for a new primary. He said he decided to change his legal residence from Chicago to his native state of South Carolina "because the South is the key to progressive politics nationally and internationally."

Under South Carolina law, Jackson had until noon today to file petitions as an independent

Jesse Jackson

candidate for the Senate seat. Thurmond, 81, has been in the Senate for five terms — since 1964.

Jackson had said he would enter the race if the Justice Department refused to investigate alleged election irregularities in the primary.

However, a Justice Department spokesman said Tuesday that no decision would be made on whether to conduct an investigation until the end of the week.

At his Tuesday news conference, Jackson said he had the 10,000 signatures on petitions that he had to file in South Carolina to run for the Senate. He also called Thurmond "an obstruction to justice" and accused him of holding up the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"The South is still the No. 1 exploiter of workers and others in this country and that's why I have decided to concentrate on the South," he said.

Coast Guard Tries To Corral Oil Spill

LAKE CHARLES, La. (UPI) — The Coast Guard, aided by favorable winds and plastic floats, is working to contain a massive oil slick as it drifted away from shoreline wildlife preserves today.

The winds blew the oil slick — measuring 11 to 14 miles long and about 200 yards wide Tuesday evening — away from the Louisiana and Texas shores, Coast Guard officials said.

Thunderstorms hit the area Tuesday but apparently did not change the direction of the more than 1 million-gallon slick, heading southwest on a course parallel to the shore, officials said.

Emergency crews used a fence-like plastic apparatus to control the slick and pumps to suck some of the crude off the water surface and into barges, officials said.

The 890-foot British tanker Alvenus, bound from Venezuela to Lake Charles, ran aground in the Gulf of Mexico Monday, spilling more than 1 million gallons of crude.

Olympics Officials Forced Name Change

Golden Age Games May Be On 'Crossroads'

Film footage of Sanford's Golden Age Games may be featured tonight in a segment of the CBS News show "Crossroads" dealing with the jealousy with which Olympic officials guard the name of the quadrennial competition.

Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce President Jack Horner said that representatives from CBS News had contacted him recently requesting still photographs and information about a past flap with the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC). He said they also told him they would attempt to obtain film footage of past competitions.

The show, scheduled to air at 8 p.m. on WCPX-TV Channel 6, will contain a report by commentator Bill Moyers called the "Olympic Power Play," according to Marsha Stein of CBS News. In the report, Moyers will cover the USOC's attempts to squelch trademark infringements on the name, logo or "anything to do with the Olympics," Stein said.

The Golden Age Games, co-sponsored by the Chamber and formerly called the Golden Age Olympics, may be included as an example of an organized competition which had to change its name under the threat of a lawsuit by the Olympic Committee, Horner said.

When the popular competition for senior citizens was started in 1975 it was named the "Golden Age Olympics." But Horner decided to change the name to "Golden Age Games" in 1979 after being told by USOC attorney Richard Stein that it was in violation of federal statutes. Horner said Stein came to Sanford and said the USOC would sue the Chamber if it did not change the name.

Horner protested, saying the Special Olympics, a competition for handicapped children, was allowed to use the name and so should the Chamber. Horner said Stein countered that the Special Olympics are an exception because the handicapped children who compete in them are special. Stein could not be reached in Los Angeles for comment.

Horner said he discussed the matter with the sponsors and promoters of the games and decided it was in the best interest of the games to change the name.

Since then, Horner says the games have operated smoothly and continue to enjoy extensive media coverage. He views tonight's possible spot on "Crossroads" as an opportunity to boost the profile of the games even more.

Despite the USOC's intransigence, vestiges of the Olympic image remain with the Golden Age Games. The competition is started with cypress torches and there is a sign in front of the Chamber building which reads, "Headquarters Golden Age Olympics."

Horner says the sign was donated by a deceased friend of the games and if anyone tries to force him to take it down, "I'll tell them to ram it."

This year's games are scheduled to take place Nov. 5-10. —Rick Brunson

Reagan To Ignore House Denunciation Of Burford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has handed President Reagan a second congressional rebuke for his choice of former EPA chief Anne Burford to head an environmental advisory committee.

The House's 363-51 approval of a non-binding resolution denouncing Reagan's decision Tuesday followed Friday's approval, 74-19, of a similar measure in the Senate.

Mrs. Burford, who resigned her Environmental Protection Agency post in March 1983, is due to become chairwoman of the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere Thursday.

She will not get a salary but will get $100 a day in expense money for each day she works with the panel, which advises the government on environmental matters.

Reagan, now vacationing at his California ranch, stands by his decision and will ignore congressional resolutions. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said earlier this week.

The White House had no comment Tuesday but in an interview aired Tuesday by Atlanta's WAGA-TV as part of Reagan's re-election effort, Reagan reaffirmed his commitment to Mrs. Burford.

"I think when someone has been a victim of a lynching, someone should help," he said. "I was going to find a place for her because I wanted her as part of our administration."

The House resolution, which like the Senate measure asks Reagan to withdraw his choice, was backed by 109 Republicans. Two Democrats, Reps. Marvin Leath of Texas and Dan Daniel of Virginia, voted with 49 Republicans in opposing the resolution.

Mrs. Burford's supporters termed the resolution "nothing but a political football ... trying to raise the specter that the Reagan administration is against the environment."

Last week, Mrs. Burford called the advisory panel a "nothingburger" and a "joke," prompting Rep. Guy Molinari, R-N.Y., one of her few House backers, to say, "I think today we're getting political relief to that nothingburger."

Mrs. Burford resigned from the EPA amid a furor over her policies and charges of mismanagement of the agency's toxic waste cleanup program.

Receives Severe Cut On Hand

Woman Escapes Would-Be Rapist

A 28-year-old Sanford woman who struggled with a man who climbed through her bedroom window received cuts to her right hand, but the man fled without raping the woman, which police believe was the motive for the attack.

The victim later identified a suspect and he was arrested and charged with burglary, aggravated battery and attempted sexual battery.

Sanford police detective Tino Fontana reported that the man, who had been seen by the victim earlier that day prowling her

Sanford neighborhood, climbed in her window at about 3:15 a.m. Sunday. The woman was asleep when the man began attempting to sexually assault her. She woke up struggling and received cuts on her hand, which required 15 stitches to close, when she grabbed the blade of a small kitchen knife the man was armed with, Fontana said.

Because she resisted, the woman apparently scared the man away, he said.

The woman reportedly got a good look at the assailant and she picked a suspect out of a photo lineup at the Sanford police station after having her injuries treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

Police contacted the suspect at his home and he came to the police station for an interview Monday. After questioning, the man was charged. The knife believed to be the weapon used in the assault was recovered, Fontana said.

Richard Williams Jr., 25, of 1501 Southwest Road, Sanford, was charged in the case at 1 p.m. Monday. He was being held without bond in the Seminole County jail and was scheduled to appear in court at 1:30 p.m. today.

At the April 10 county commission meeting after Feather, Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Christensen voted to name two local firms as well as a national firm to handle the bond sale as co-managers, ignoring to an extent the advice of a special committee who conducted interviews with representatives of bonding houses for several weeks. Kirchhoff and Commissioner Bob Sturm opposed.

Kirchhoff charges the majority made a deal with one of the firms — Southeastern Municipal Bonds. He said despite agreement that none of the firms would approach the commissioners directly, Southeastern broke that agreement and lobbied some of the commissioners.

The majority selected the national bonding group of Blyth Eastman Paine Webber recommended by the committee, but named as co-managers, the unanimous choice of the 11-member committee, M.G. Lewis & Co., then jumped over second ranked Leedy Corp., to name Southeastern as another co-manager.

At a workshop meeting earlier that day, Kirchhoff said with only two firms involved it would be easier to put the issue to bid and the two firms would "really look at what's the best price (for the sale)."

He said by ratifying the selection of the 11-member committee which not only included County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III, but also former County Administrator Roger Neiswender and other county staff members, the county would "get the politics out of this (the sale of the bond issue)." He added the committee's recommendation would cost less. "You get more in a syndicated deal," Kirchhoff said.

He said the regional bonding company would distribute bonds to other bonding houses for purchase or sale.

The committee interviewed representatives of three national bonding firms and four regional firms before giving its recommendations to the board.

The recommendations, according to the committee's written report, were based upon services offered by the bonding companies, their marketing approaches and the experience of representatives who would be working with Seminole County.

The prospective national managers were ranked by the committee in this order: Blyth Eastman Paine Webber, Merrill Lynch, and Salomon Brothers. The ranking of regional firms as co-managers were: M.G. Lewis & Co., the Leedy Corp., Southeastern Municipal Bonds, and Fischer Johnson Allen & Burke.

Neiswender recommended that the two firms recommended be told to negotiate among themselves to determine a fee.

and if they could not come to agreement the commission could designate a fee.

During the work session Mrs. Christensen said she would feel more comfortable if Southeastern were the co-manager rather than M.G. Lewis. She said she had worked with that bonding company as the county's representative of the North Orange South Seminole Transmission Authority.

Mrs. Glenn asked Kirchhoff if it might be better for the county if two co-managers were named and Kirchhoff said with more than two firms involved — the one national firm and one regional firm, it would be more difficult to track who was selling the bonds.

EPA Gets Around To Gas Fumes

Most people probably don't give much thought to the gasoline fumes that envelop them as they're filling up the car. But the amount of fuel that escapes into the air this way is substantial: 10 pounds for each 10,000 gallons of gas pumped. The wasted fuel poses a real hazard to the gas jockey (laboratory animals exposed to high doses of gasoline fumes developed cancer), but what's more, it makes such a substantial contribution to air pollution that, unless something is done to reduce it, nearly a dozen states are unlikely to meet federal deadlines for reducing smog by 1987.

In 1981, the Environmental Protection Agency turned its back on the issue, as part of the Reagan administration's program of deregulation to help the auto industry. Now, though, the problem is getting more difficult to ignore and the EPA once again discussed ways of cutting back on this source of pollution. Among the proffered solutions it considered is a more tightly fitting collar on gas lines in future car models that will keep escaping fumes to a minimum. Cost of installation, by EPA estimates, will be about $20 a car. The automakers, quite naturally, would prefer that service station operators bear the responsibility for curbing gas fumes. On the face of it, this would seem a much more expensive and impractical approach, requiring fuel pumps to be outfitted with equipment to capture the fumes and a battalion of inspectors to ensure compliance.

The EPA's science advisory board looked at these and other means of curbing this too-long ignored source of pollution. Despite the late hour, the review was a step in the right direction. Quick action by the EPA in adopting regulations to control gasoline is even more welcome.

There She Goes

The Miss America Pageant has survived changes in manners and morals for more than half a century. It will no doubt survive the onslaught of having sexuality explicit photos of its 1984 titleholder, Vanessa Williams, appear in a magazine that fits almost any definition of pornography.

Feminists will argue that the experience that befell Williams only illustrates what they have been saying all along about the exploitation of women as sex objects, whether by photographers and publishers or by the Miss America pageant itself. Leaving that issue aside, the beauty and talent competition that leads to the choice of Miss America means a lot to many American girls and to millions who enjoy all the ballyhoo that goes along with it.

If the pageant is to continue commanding a following, and if Miss America is to continue serving as a role model for ambitious young women, pageant officials must demand strict compliance with the moral code covering past and present conduct of titleholders. They did so in asking Williams to resign.

Williams admits she made a mistake, but she is wise enough to know that her position as Miss America was hopelessly compromised. She has done herself and the pageant a favor by resigning with a minimum of fuss.

BERRY'S WORLD

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., has come up with an idea of how to make more money off of 9,000 ships, boats, vehicles and aircraft that are seized yearly by drug enforcement and immigration officials.

Instead of allowing them to rust and collect barnacles while waiting for the courts to decide their fate and the fate of their owners, Chiles says his proposal will save the government time and money.

What Chiles wants to do is raise the dollar value of seized property to $100,000 so it can come under a faster administrative forfeiture procedure. This will allow the government to sell the air and seacraft faster, thus getting a higher resale value. The current value for forfeiture is set at $10,000.

Chiles, in a press release, quoted a General Accounting Office study which gave the resale values for vehicles, boats and planes at the time of their seizure. The government gets about 58 percent of the original price out of vehicles, 43 percent for boats and 35 percent for aircraft.

When these items sit for 18 months and longer awaiting trial results, Chiles says, they are reduced to less than that.

Also part of the proposal is a stipulation that some of these big-ticket items be transferred to state and local authorities who participated in the seizures. Chiles says this will encourage cooperation between local law enforcement agencies and the feds. Of course he says his proposal would allow for "the innocent owner from whom seized property was stolen," but Chiles says the current "antiquated" process for getting rid of the cars, boats and planes must be changed.

"Under present law the process for disposing of these properties is so slow and tedious, and this is compounded by the inability of our already-overloaded courts to handle the volume of seizures," Chiles says in the release.

Chiles' proposal has been approved by the senate and is tacked on as an amendment to the Department of the Treasury appropriations bill. It will now go to the House for consideration.

Hope For France

President Francois Mitterand of France had a strange and depressing experience on Bastille Day, France's Independence Day, celebrated July 14. His motorcade up the Champs Elysees, surrounded by splendidly arrayed mounted soldiers, was greeted by sullen and sparse crowds who stood and watched instead of applauding.

The French mood reflects the bitterness that is the consequence of Mitterand's socialist economic nightmare. Three years ago, he and his leftwing ministers set about remaking the French economy, and the French nation. Banks and industries were nationalized wholesale. Punitive taxes were aimed at the rich, who promptly invested their wealth in the United States. Employers' welfare contributions were raised, and the maximum tax rate on income tax was hiked to 65 percent. Four communists were elevated to posts in the government.

Mitterand, the first Socialist French President, tried to revolutionize the economy, promoting the goal of preserving jobs above the production of goods. He soon discovered that consumers who are taxed to pay for government cradle-to-grave welfare and other social services that amount to 28 percent of gross national product cannot buy products made by industries that are forced to hire and forbidden to fire. In September 1983, the French prime interest rate was 13 percent, highest in Western Europe, and prices were rising at a 10 percent annual rate. French unemployment fluctuated at 10 percent. Economic growth stagnated at about 1 percent annually.

The cruel consequence for the French came when Mitterand abandoned his leftist economics with a vengeance. Austerity is what the French had so austerity is what Mitterand preached. He slashed subsidies to heavy industries to force them to reduce costs — which meant reducing jobs. Early in 1984, Mitterand imposed tough cutbacks on the French steel industry, which will eliminate 25 percent of all steel jobs. In the past year, French steel production had fallen from 27 million tons to 18 million — without layoffs.

In March, the French inflation rate remained near 10 percent, the same as for that month last year, and twice as high as the rate for France's main trading partners. The government was reduced to pleading for "courage" from its citizens.

France now has a new Prime Minister, Laurent Fabius, a former Socialist hardliner who now says things like: "The private sector is predominant in France, and is going to stay that way."

New-Taxes Need May Be Avoided

WASHINGTON — The presidential rivals have raised an issue that could decide the election: Should the government boost taxes or cut spending to stop the federal deficit from exploding?

Walter Mondale would raise taxes. He wants to reduce the deficit by two-thirds, without giving up social programs so dear to Democrats. This will take more revenue, he admits, with a candor he calls the "new realism."

President Reagan would rather slash government spending. Collecting more taxes, he argues, will simply encourage the bureaucrats to spend more money. Not until he is convinced that no more savings can be squeezed out of the budget will he consider a tax increase, he says.

There has been an ingrained nonchalance about deficits in Washington. Yet clearly, the public debt cannot go on ballooning without causing economic chaos. Already, economists are having nightmares over the crushing interest payments, which have a dismaying habit of compounding.

Just the slight increase in interest rates since last January will cost the taxpayers more than $12 billion during the next fiscal year. And this staggering amount will cover only the increase, not the interest which will run another $110 billion or so.

Yet the interest, after it's all paid, won't reduce the national debt one penny. And the debt is absolutely mind-boggling: $1.5 trillion — and growing. But you haven't heard the worst. By the miracle of government bookkeeping, the official debt figure doesn't include another $3.1 trillion in federal liabilities.

Unlike corporations which must disclose to stockholders all their financial obligations, the federal accountants blithely omit from the public ledger the multi-trillion-dollar social security payments, military and civil service pensions and other liabilities that the government has guaranteed to pay.

"If the general public were fully aware of their liability as taxpayers for extravagant promises made over the years by their elected leaders, they might be very upset," congressional auditors warned last year in a report that their bosses ignored.

The total public indebtedness, if it were calculated the same way that the rest of us must keep books, would be $4.8 trillion, not $1.5 trillion. Half of this monstrous and menacing iceberg is hidden, thus doubling the threat to the ship of state. The Titanic could go down if it doesn't change course.

The good news is that government spending can be drastically yet safely slashed. This has been discovered by the Grace Commission, which spent 18 months prying into the dark corners of government and found 2,478 ways to cut costs.

The White House has reviewed 20 of the commission's 48 reports and has already figured out how to save $103.5 billion over the next three years. The General Accounting Office and Congressional Budget Office, both bipartisan, have con-

BURLINGAME, Calif. (NEA) — The GTE Sprint Communications Corp., headquartered here, has an unusual problem — it has been too successful in signing up customers this year.

"We're building furiously," says Janet L. Beach, marketing director of the company which is a leader in the burgeoning industry challenging the traditional dominance of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in providing long-distance telephone service.

As recently as the mid-1970s, AT&T enjoyed a federally sanctioned monopoly in that field. But a series of Federal Communications Commission rulings and court decisions during the past decade have created an intensely competitive industry with dozens of firms clamoring for a share of the $40 billion per year long-distance market.

AT&T still controls about 92 percent of that market and the quality of its service remains superior to any of its challengers — but its customers pay a very high price for that advantage. Those who use the firm's credit card when away from home, for example, routinely pay twice as much as Sprint charges for its travel service.

Ranked second behind AT&T is the MCI Communications Corp., with about 4 percent of the market, followed by Sprint, with about 2 percent. All other long-distance companies share the remaining 2 percent.

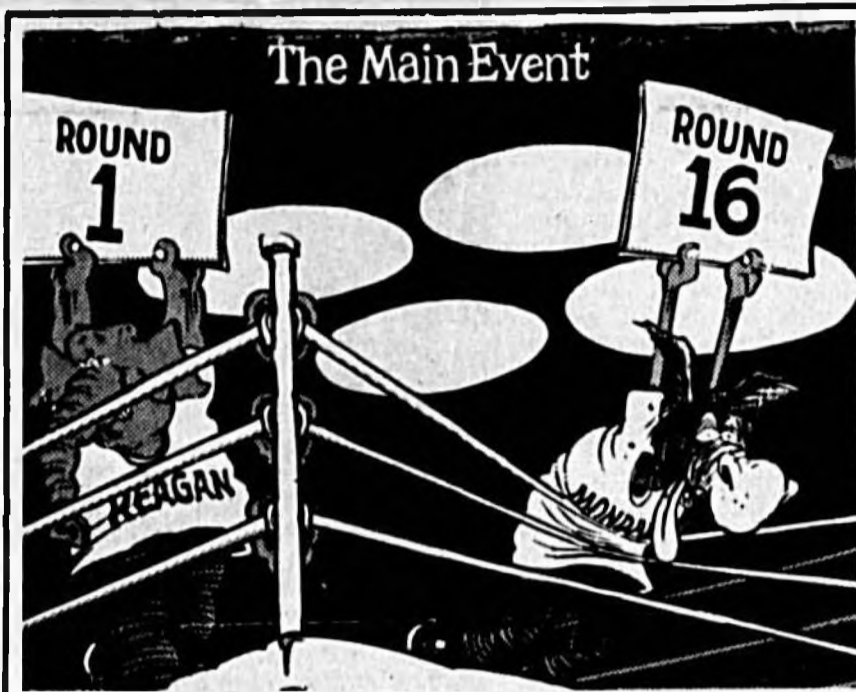

Although AT&T still dominates the field, its share has steadily eroded in recent years — and that trend is almost certain to continue as local telephone companies begin providing equal access to its competitors, opening the market to those with older rotary dials and eliminating the need to dial as many as 30 digits for a single call.

One indication of the market potential came in January of this year when Sprint, in a bold move to attract new customers, restructured its rate to eliminate fixed monthly charges and offer volume discounts.

Within three months, the company's subscriber base soared by 50 percent (from 1 million to 1.5 million) but it lacked the equipment and personnel to adequately serve that flood of new customers.

Callers confronted "dirty" circuits cluttered with hum, buzz, static and crosstalk from other conversations. Customers routinely encountered busy signals when attempting to gain access to the Sprint network.

Subscribers who called with questions about their monthly bills were forced to listen to recorded announcements for as long as 30 minutes before being told the company did not have enough employees to handle their inquiries.

The Leftist Professors

As a college professor, I know that college faculties have been heavily liberal for as long as anyone can remember, but I also have the impression that things are getting worse. Even as the country and the government move to the right, the college campus is hardening as a leftist enclave. These musings receive confirmation in an important new essay by Irving Kristol, a professor at New York University and a leading intellectual, which has been published in the July Commentary magazine.

While writing about other matters, Kristol makes the following observation: "The academic community today, populated by the graduate students of the 1960s, and insulated from worldly experience, is more openly and vigorously left-wing than ever before in American history. The most influential intellectual tendency among academicians today is Marxism, in a dozen or more different versions, some of them so far from the original as to perplex older Marxists, but all of them pointing in the same political direction. Just what that direction is may be inferred from the fact — and it is a fact — that an invitation to Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick to speak on campus will cause intense controversy in faculty councils, with quite a few professors going so far as to encourage student harassment should she appear. Meanwhile, such invitations go out routinely to Third World spokesmen, whose anti-Israel and anti-American remarks are listened to respectfully."

Not at all surprisingly, evidence in support of Kristol's observations are leaped into the waiting hand in the form of some tangential remarks by Professor Harold Bloom of Yale, who, in the course of a long review of Gore Vidal's new novel "Lincoln," could not repress his extravagant hostility to Ronald Reagan. It may take you more than one reading of the sort of prose Professor Bloom writes to divine his meaning, but he seems to be saying that the re-election of Reagan will mean the end of the American republic:

"With the likely, impending re-election of Reagan, the nation confronts what might become the final crisis of Lincoln's presidential creation. If our system is, as Vidal contends, Lincoln's invention, then the American age of Lincoln finally approaches its apocalypse. Should Vidal prove correct, his tragic vision of Lincoln as Orphic dictator may serve also as an elegy for the one hundred and twenty years of Lincoln's invented America." As a literary critic, Professor Bloom is no fool — though no T.S. Eliot or Edmund Wilson either — and I do not suppose that he really "believes," literally, that the re-election of Reagan will bring on the apocalypse. He merely enjoys talking that way, and talking that way is perfectly acceptable in the academic world Professor Bloom inhabits. No one is present who will, figuratively speaking, write "B.S." in the margin of Professor Bloom's essay, let alone "inflated diction," or "irrelevant."

I happened to read the Bloom essay on July 3 — it appeared in the New York Review of Books, a kind of house organ of academia — which was the same day The New York Times covered a Times-CBS poll, the story being on page one. According to The Times, the poll indicated that "President Reagan, meanwhile, remained strong, with his job ratings high and the public confident of his sincerity on such touchstone issues as arms control." Even as Bloom, whether seriously or not, is writing about the coming apocalypse, people outside the academy take overwhelmingly a very different view.

What is going on here? Professor Kristol spoke of academic "Marxism," and there is plenty of that, though Professor Bloom is more certainly some kind of Freudian.

When Business Is Good

BURLINGAME, Calif. (NEA) — The GTE Sprint Communications Corp., headquartered here, has an unusual problem — it has been too successful in signing up customers this year.

Taxes Raised By Mistake

WEST MIAMI (UPI) — Property owners in the city of West Miami paid 15 percent more in taxes than they were supposed to because the wrong rate was used to compute their bills, county officials said.

The anafu cost the average property owner $19 in West Miami, which has a population of 6,500.

"It's very embarrassing," said Martin Yelen, a West Miami councilman for 22 years. "It's hard enough for people to pay one bill. Even though it's very little, it's still money out of pocket."

West Miami was supposed to be taxed at $4.45 per $1,000 assessed value, the rate adopted by the city last August. Instead, they were billed at $5.12 per $1,000.

City Manager Fred Bowen learned of the error a few weeks ago, but could not figure out what went wrong. The Dade County Property Appraiser's office, which collects municipal taxes based on the rates filed by each city, determined the wrong rate had been used.

County records show that in October, instead of filing the final tax rate adopted Aug. 31, former City Clerk Clare Kleiner sent the county a July 20 resolution containing West Miami's tentative tax rate of $5.12.

Joel Robbins, assistant Dade County property appraiser, said the figures were accepted as the city's final rate. He noted that it is not the county's job to verify city paperwork.

Mrs. Kleiner, who resigned last year when her husband retired, has moved to Tennessee and could not be reached for comment.

"This is a completely new situation to me," said Jeff Binkley, revenue economist with the state Department of Revenue in Tallahassee. "This has never been brought to my attention as happening before."

The city will put the extra $60,000 it collected into an escrow account to reduce next year's tax rate. The money will be applied to the 1984-85 budget, allowing the city to adopt a tentative tax rate of $5.12 for 1984-85 — the same as the mistaken rate used in 1983-84. That rate could be lowered after a public budget hearing Aug. 29.

Report: No Point In Sending More Money To Lebanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like a hospital patient too weak to take nourishment, Lebanon is so feeble politically and economically that there is no point in sending further U.S. financial assistance now, according to a private report.

Congress voted to give Lebanon $251 million this year but only about $50 million has been disbursed because fighting between rival militias and government troops has stalled other planned aid projects.

The 174-page report by the U.S. Businessman's Commission on the Reconstruction of Lebanon recommends more U.S. aid be kept on hold, although it says the country will require international help in the long run.

Lebanon will even become an attractive prospect for American business investment, although there will continue to be strong competition from Western European countries.

The report, given to the U.S. Agency for International Development, said the long-range prospects for the country are good, and it could regain its position as the banker to the Arab world and supplier of such services as airlines and shipping.

But, the report said, Lebanon is confronted by overwhelming short-term problems — political chaos, economic instability and war-ravaged physical facilities — that make U.S. aid useless until some national unity is restored.

The task of restoring that unity, the report said, "cannot be tackled until the new political shape of Lebanon emerges and with it a sense of what direction it plans to take.

"In order to achieve real progress there will have to be some sort of understanding reached between the United States, Syria and Israel about the limits of foreign interference in the country," it said.

There are no negotiations now on the withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon nor is there any prospect of any talks in the near future.

In the meantime, the report said: "The country will remain divided and torn by religious-political strife without end. The possibilities for meaningful reconstruction in such an atmosphere will be very, very limited."

Under such conditions, the commission concluded, U.S. aid would be of little practical value.

In flat, unemotional language, the report portrayed a shattered nation.

It pointed to a chaotic bureaucracy with inadequate "coordination among ministries whose responsibilities overlap; a shortage of skilled civil service staff."

The Lebanese government "has been spending beyond its means ... running up a record-breaking internal debt that is dangerously inflationary."

At the beginning of 1983, the report said, a quarter of the country's telephone lines were out. Since then, fighting worsened, and now, no one can estimate how many more circuits have broken down but one assessment says it will take $1.8 billion to rebuild the system.

Parent/Spouse Orientation Slated At UCF For Aug. 19

Parents and spouses of freshmen are invited to attend "Parent/Spouse Orientation" on Sunday, August 19 at the University of Central Florida.

The 1:30 p.m. program in the UCF gymnasium will include an overview of academic and counseling programs. Faculty from every college in the university, students from the President's Leadership Council, and Orientation Team, and Student Peer Advisors will provide information and the opportunity for individual questions.

An informal reception with ample time for informal discussions will follow the main program.

Classes are schedule to begin at UCF on Aug. 20.

For further information, contact Dr. Carol Wilson, 275-2824.

Jimmy Musselwhite muscled up to throw a fastball. The Altamonte 12-year-old right-hander hit the corners brilliantly Tuesday night to hurl the Nationals past Bay Point in the opener of the state tournament. Altamonte can wrap up a trip to the Southern Region with a win Thursday.

'Muss' Has Enough, Altamonte Balance Throttles Bay Point

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Altamonte's National League All-Stars continued to spell T-E-A-M with all capital letters Tuesday night as five different players drove in runs in a 10-4 victory over St. Petersburg Bay Point in the opening round of the Little League State Tournament at the Eastmonte Baseball Complex in Altamonte Springs.

Altamonte can clinch a trip to the Southern Region in St. Petersburg with a victory over tonight's loser's bracket survivor on Thursday. Bay Point will send ace Trevor Mallory against Dade City's Ronnell Mathews tonight. Dade City ousted East Merritt Island, 13-3, in Tuesday's other opening game. Tonight's game starts at 7.

One again, the Altamonte 12-year-olds scored early and often. A six-run, second-inning outburst against loser Robert Jones and reliever Dave Pentz made things easier for Altamonte starter and winner Jimmy Musselwhite.

"Muss" admitted he wasn't at top form, but he had enough to subdue a good-hitting Bay Point club. The pressure-game right-hander allowed six hits while striking out five and walking seven.

"That six-run inning killed us," moaned Bay Point manager Bob Haschke. "The walks really hurt us."

Especially after the first two batters were retired. Jeff Conklin two-out uprising with a single and Jamey Wallace walked. Jerrey Thurston drew another pass to load the bases before Chris Radcliff walked on a 3-2 pitch for a 1-0 lead.

Haschke then pulled Jones in favor of Pentz. Jason Varitek, who drove in three runs, got his first ribble with another walk for a 2-0 lead. Aaron Iarotola found a pitch to his liking, next, and sent a sizzling liner which almost decapitated the shortstop. It went for a single and two runs batted in for a 4-0 lead.

Musselwhite then helped himself with a single to right to chase home Varitek and Iarotola for a 6-0 bulge.

Bay Point threatened the first two innings, but Musselwhite wore out the corners to escape small jams. In the third, an error by the third baseman allowed Tim Ware to reach. Robby Dobbs then walked. Pentz hit a slow roller to Musselwhite, but his throw to first was a tad wide, allowing Ware to score as Dobbs raced to third.

Catcher Thurston then threw Pentz out trying to steal second, but Dobbs alerted raced home on the front end of the double-steal attempt for the second run. Musselwhite retired the final two batters on groundouts.

Varitek gave the Nationals an immediate 8-2 cushion in the top of the fourth. Radcliff walked to open the inning and moved up on a wild pitch. Varitek fell behind 1-2 on the count, but then slugged a long drive to left-center for a two-run homer.

"It was a curve," he said with a sly smile. "I could see him (Pentz) rotating his fingers before he threw it." The homer was his fifth of the play-offs.

"Jason is a 100 percenter," said assistant coach Rudy Callahan. "He played for me for two years. He can make you look good."

Musselwhite, who didn't look as sharp as usual, labored in the middle innings while throwing 130 pitches for the game. He was on the verge of coming out on one occasion, but talked pitching coach Greg Ebbert into staying.

After Musselwhite loaded the bases on two walks and a single in the fourth, Ebbert made his trip, determined to pull his ace right-hander.

Coffey's Homer Perks Up Attack, Seniors Win

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

FORT MYERS — After an uncharacteristic poor showing against Boca Raton on Monday, Altamonte's Senior League All-Stars needed a lift in Tuesday night's losers bracket game against St. Petersburg Northeast.

Altamonte got the lift it needed, first with the arm of Mike Schmit, and second with the bat of Mark Coffey.

Schmit hurled a three-hitter and Coffey got the offense on track with a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Altamonte went on to a 7-1 victory in the Little League Baseball State Senior Tournament at Chuck Ross Field.

"We needed somebody to give us a lift at the plate and Coffey did it with his homer," Altamonte manager Gene Letterio said. "His hit lifted the whole team up and everybody went to the plate with confidence from then on."

Altamonte now advances to tonight's losers bracket final at 6 against Boca Raton. The winner tonight will play Belmont Heights Thursday night at 6 in the tournament championship.

Letterio said he will probably start Anthony Laszalc on the mound tonight.

Belmont Heights upended Boca Raton, 3-0, Tuesday on the strength of Derrick Pedro's three-run homer in the third inning and Derrick Bell's five-hit pitching.

In the first game, St. Petersburg pitcher Greg Savell had Altamonte shutout on two hits in the first three innings and Northeast took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the third. Steve Bardea led off the inning with a check-awing single to right, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a short fly ball by Rob Couture.

Altamonte came back with four runs on five hits in the top of the fourth. With one out, Randy Green drew a walk and Coffey followed with his mammoth home run over the scoreboard in left-center field to give Altamonte a 2-1 lead. Dan Beatty, Laszalc and Ryan Lisie all singled to load the bases and Shane Letterio drove in Beatty and Laszalc as he singled to center past a drawn in

With a 4-1 lead, Schmit did the rest for Altamonte. Starting in the bottom of the fourth, the big right-hander set down the next nine hitters in order and Altamonte built a 5-1 lead with a run in the top of the sixth. Beatty led off the inning with a double to left, moved to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Letterio's sacrifice fly to center.

Altamonte added two more runs in the top of the seventh to take a 7-1 lead. Eddie Taubensee walked and scored the first run as Gib Lundquist unloaded a double to left and Lundquist scored on Laszalc's single to center.

Schmit got into a little trouble with two outs in the bottom of the seventh, but he fanned Ken Lynn for the final out of the game. Schmit threw just 77 pitches in the game, struck out 10 and walked only two.

"He was pitching smart out there tonight," Letterio said of Schmit. "He wasn't trying to overpower everybody and only used his best stuff when he had to. Since he threw so few pitches he will be able to come back on Thursday if we beat Boca Raton."

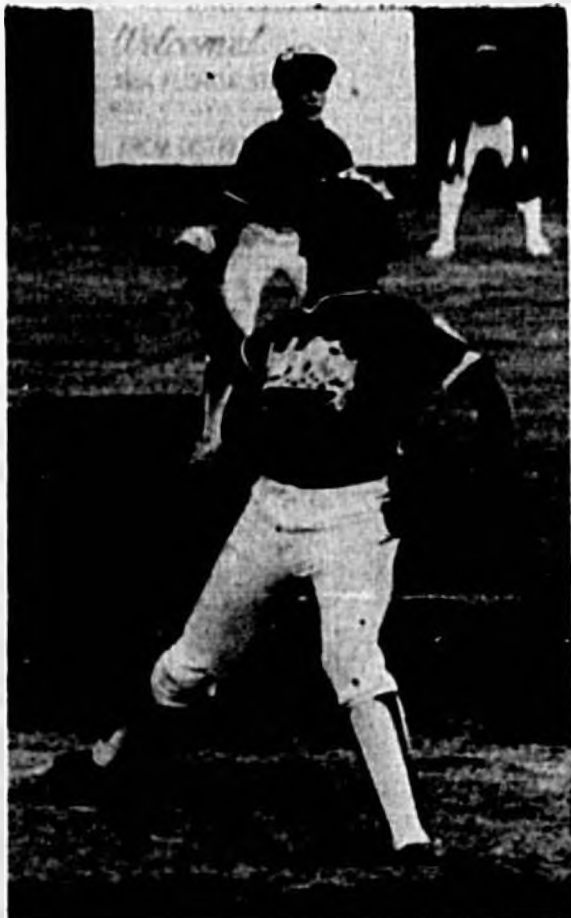

Laszalc continued his hot hitting with three singles to pace the Altamonte attack. The 14-year-old second baseman has five hits in eight trips. He also drove in a run Tuesday. Letterio drove in three runs with a pair of hits while Beatty also had two hits.

Tonight's Schedule

The county sports scene goes full-speed ahead tonight as two Little League Baseball State Tournaments continue. The Altamonte Seniors need a victory over Boca Raton tonight at Fort Myers to set up a Thursday game with arch-rival Tampa Belmont Heights. At Altamonte Springs, the Altamonte Nationals are sitting in a good position. They await the survivor of tonight's Dade City-Bay Point battle.

Darryll Belton had a pretty good night Tuesday. The Dade City right-hander struck out five, while subduing East Merritt Island. He also clubbed a grand slam in the first inning.

Dade City's Merry-Go-Round Drives EMI Dizzy

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Brian Crutcher, Van Wilson and Phillip Wilson would feel right at home on a merry-go-round. The way they circled the bases the first three innings Tuesday night, East Merritt Island probably thought they would never get off.

Dade City's first three hitters each scored the first three times they batted Tuesday night as Dade City did all of its scoring in the first three frames en route to a 13-3 victory over East Merritt Island in the opening round of the Little League State Tournament at the Eastmonte Baseball Complex in Altamonte Springs.

Dade City's victory ousts East Merritt Island from the tournament since both teams entered Tuesday's action with a carry-over loss from the sectional. Dade City will battle St. Petersburg Bay Point tonight at 7. Bay Point lost a 10-4 decision to Altamonte Springs in the other opener. Altamonte will play Wednesday's winner Thursday night. An Altamonte victory will send it to the Southern Region. A loss forces a final game Friday.

Although Crutcher, Wilson and Wilson were taking most of the extended rides during the ballgame, Darryll Belton paid the way for the first round trip in the first inning against EMI starter and loser Ryan Cummings.

After Crutcher dropped a beautiful bunt single, Van Wilson also singled and Phillip Wilson walked to load the bases. Belton then ran the count to 1-1 before he deposited the next pitch way over the center-field fence. The center field took one step and waved it goodbye.

"That's our game plan," said Dade City manager Glenn Weaver about the 4-0 cushion. "We like to get as many runs as possible in the first inning."

He could have added the second...and the third. With the quick 4-0 cushion, East Merritt Island manager John Rodriguez summoned his son, Dacks, to the mound. Despite a touch of wildness, the tall right-hander managed to escape the inning without further damage.

Crutcher, who had two hits and scored three runs, opened the second inning with an infield single and moved to second when Van Wilson walked. Phillip Wilson slapped a single up the middle to score Crutcher. Belton then reached on an error by the first baseman which allowed Van Wilson to score for a 6-0 lead.

Ronnell Mathews followed with a roundball to the right side to chase home Phillip Wilson. Two pitches later, Belton raced home on a passed ball and beat the tag with a quick slide for an 8-0 lead. In the third, it was a carbon copy. Andre Tucker started it with an infield hit before Crutcher was hit by a pitch. Van Wilson, who had four hits and scored three runs, singled home Tucker. Phillip Wilson then walked to load the bases, but Rodriguez struck out Belton for the second out.

Mathews, though, rapped a ringing double to left-center to chase home two runs and push the lead to 12-0. Rodriguez then hit Billy Gilbert with a pitch and when Austin Gude drilled an opposite-field double, Mathews trotted home for a 13-0 advantage.

Rodriguez's mound problems could directly be attributed to his control — or lack of it. During the first three innings, he threw 86 pitches while giving up nine runs. During the last three frames, he was a different pitcher, throwing 58 pitches and retiring nine of the 13 hitters. He struck out eight of those batters with a table-dropping curveball.

Belton, who allowed six hits and struck out 11, kept EMI in check until the final inning when it struck for its three runs. Chris Waggoner singled. Rodriguez walked and Robbie Derfuss singled to center to load the bases.

Belton whiffed the next hitter, but pinch-hitter Danny Neal drilled a base hit to right-center to break up the shutout. When the right fielder had trouble coming up with the ball, Rodriguez also came in. Belton then hit Steve Leonard with a pitch and walked Tres Brown to force in the final run.

"Belton was struggling there at the end," said Weaver. "He got a little tired, but with that kind of cushion, I knew he could finish."

Braves Look To Tepee To Recapture Race Magic

United Press International
Like Dorothy in 'The Wizard of Oz,' the Atlanta Braves are hoping that in the coming days there will be no place like home.

The Braves, coming off a nine-game road trip Friday, trail San Diego by 8 1/2 games in the NL West. They'll open a 14-game home stand and in the process, hope to make up some ground on the Padres. "When we go home, we have to put something together in our own park," said Atlanta first baseman Bob Watson. "We have got to get our offense going. That will be our key. Tonight we got it going and got some key hits."

The Braves defeated the Houston Astros 6-3 Tuesday night at Houston on Claudell Washington's two-run single in the ninth.

Glen Hubbard had opened the inning with a double off losing pitcher Frank DiPino, 4-6, and with Randy Johnson and Rufino Linares on board, Washington delivered his seventh game-winning hit of the year. Chris Chambliss singled home Washington for the third run of the inning.

Reliever Jeff Dedmon, 3-1, pitched 2-3 of an inning for the victory.

Enos Cabell's fifth homer of the year gave Houston a 3-1 lead in the fourth, but back-to-back homers by Murphy and Watson in the sixth pulled the Braves even at 3-3. Murphy leads the league with 25 homers.

Phillies 2, Cubs 1

At Chicago, Rookie Juan Samuel hit a two-out homer in the ninth to send the game into extra innings and scored the winning run on Von Hayes' sacrifice fly with none out in the top of the 12th to lift the Phillies. Reliever Tim Stoddard, 7-3, was the loser. Al Holland, went 2-2-3 innings to even his record at 5-5 and Bill Campbell registered the final three outs for his first save.

Reds 3, Giants 0

At Cincinnati, Jay Tibbs, pitching in only his fourth major league game, fired a three-hit shutout and Dave Parker had two hits to lead the Reds. Tibbs raised his record to 2-0. Jeff Robinson, 6-12, went 5-2-3 innings and took the loss.

Pirates 5, Expos 3

At Pittsburgh, Bill Madlock's two-run double keyed a four-run first inning to enable the Pirates to snap a five-game losing streak. John Tudor went the first six innings to improve to 6-8. Don Robinson pitched one-hit ball over the final three innings for his seventh save. Steve Rogers, 3-11, was the loser. Tim Raines had a single in five trips for Montreal.

Cardinals 6, Mets 3

At St. Louis, George Hendrick and David Green each drove in two runs to lead the Cardinals to their fifth straight win while dealing the Mets their fifth loss in a row. Rookie Kurt Kephart, 3-2, went seven innings and Bruce Sutter earned his league-leading 27th save. Ed Lynch, 8-6, was the loser. Darryl Strawberry belted his 17th homer for New York.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0

At San Diego, Mark Thurmond, 9-5, and Rich Gossage combined to hurl San Diego's fourth straight shutout, running the staff's scoreless inning streak to 39 2-3. Gossage got his 20th save. It was the Padres' fourth win in a row. Rick Honeycutt, 8-6, gave up an RBI single to Kevin Reynolds. The Dodgers have not scored an earned run in the last 51 innings.

Tigers Split With Indians, Baker Bows Out A Winner

United Press International

Dave Rozema may have lost a winning streak Tuesday night, but that's nothing compared to what he and his Tiger teammates may have gained. Rozema's 15-game home winning streak was snapped when he dropped a 6-4 decision to the Cleveland Indians in the second game of a double-header. The loss was Rozema's first at Tiger Stadium since May 23, 1981.

But of more importance to the Tigers, though, was shortstop Alan Trammell's return to the lineup. Trammell was batting .307 when he was placed on the disabled list with tendinitis in his right shoulder July 9, after aggravating the injury while making a throw.

Although he went 0-for-5 as the designated hitter in the nightcap, Detroit manager Sparky Anderson says the team needs Trammell's bat back in the lineup. But it might take a while before the shortstop can play in the field again.

"It wouldn't shock me if he didn't get back out there for a long time," said Anderson, whose Tigers still hold a commanding 1 1/2 game lead over Toronto in the AL East. "This is more serious than people think. We needed his bat. We haven't had any right handed hitting and we're facing six, maybe seven, left-handers in the next 10 games."

To make room for Trammell on the roster, the Tigers sent down infielder Doug Baker to Evansville of the American Association. But before being demoted, Baker helped the Tigers to a 5-1 win in the first game of the double-header with a base-loaded triple.

"I'm not going to say I feel good about going down, but I can understand the move and I expected it," said Baker, who batted under .200 in his stint with the Tigers. "I could have done a lot better. You don't want to hit .150, but we gained four or five games while I was playing shortstop. I'd rather see that than bat .500 and have us lose those games off our lead."

Rangers 7, Orioles 6
At Baltimore, Curtis Wilkerson scored on a wild pitch by Tippy Martinez to snap a 5-5 tie in the eighth, and the Rangers belted four homers to beat the Orioles. Gary Ward, Larry Parrish and Pete O'Brien all connected for Texas in the fourth, while Jeff Kunkel added his first major-league homer.

Blue Jays 6, Royals 5
At Toronto, Rance Mulliniks drove in two runs with a double and a single and George Bell added a solo home to power the Blue Jays. Doyle Alexander, 9-5, got the win and Jim Gott recorded his first major-league save. Frank Wills fell to 1-2. Frank White and Dane Iorg homered for Kansas City.

Yankees 7, Brewers 4
At New York, Omar Moreno collected three hits, including a two-run single in a six-run fourth to lead the Yankees and Ray Fontenot, 4-6. Dave Righetti picked up his 17th save, while Andy Beene was the loser in his first major-league start.

Red Sox 14, White Sox 4
At Chicago, Bill Buckner's bases-loaded double capped a five-run first inning off Richard Dotson, 11-8, to lead the Red Sox. Rookie Roger Clemens, 5-4, went the distance for the victory. Wade Boggs, Rich Gedman and Tony Armas homered for the winners. It was Armas' 28th of season. Carlton Fisk connected for Chicago.

Twins 9, Mariners 2
At Minneapolis, Ken Schrom, 3-5, pitched a five-hitter and Kent Hrbek drove in four runs, including three with his 17th home run to pace the first-place Twins. Tom Brunansky also connected for his 17th homer. Seattle starter Ed Vande Berg dropped to 7-10.

Angels 7, A's 3
At Oakland, Calif., back-to-back home runs by Reggie Jackson and Brian Downing propelled the Angels. It was Jackson's 16th homer of the season and 494th of his career. Downing followed with his 13th homer, off Lary Sorensen, 9-5. Ron Romanick, 10-9, was the winner. Joe Morgan and Mike Heath homered for the A's.

Stephanie Hayes: Determination Nets Success

It's funny how out of the literally thousands of interactions I've had with tennis players, tennis students and really anyone interested in becoming either one, that some experiences stand out so vividly.

I can easily recall that hot September day that I first met Stephanie Hayes. I was teaching a tennis class and this cute, athletic-looking, shy freshman asked if I coached the women's tennis team. I said that I coached the men's team but helped Rick Campy with recruiting, scheduling and other on-campus duties with the women.

Rick was Seminole Community College's first women's coach and worked full time off campus and only was at the courts a couple of hours per day. Anyway, Stephanie wanted to know if she could try out for the girls tennis team.

Well, we were always looking for good players so I asked her a few standard questions concerning her tennis background. I came to find out Stephanie had not even played high school tennis and had only been playing the game a few months.

I told her that in light of her amount of experience, that she should probably just take a couple of tennis classes and forget about trying to make the girls team. She insisted that she was a hard worker, very determined and willing to pay the price to become a good player.

Even though she seemed shy, there was a great deal of confidence in her speech and mannerisms, so I said okay, fine, you can try out. It was either that or I'm sure she would have stayed around all day until I did agree.

That was September, 1975. I guess it goes without saying that Stephanie made the team. Even though SCC had a strong side that year, Stephanie played #5 singles and #2 doubles.

Larry Castle, SCC Tennis Instructor

From the time fall practice started in mid-September she worked very hard at her game and her improvement was dramatic. Of course, she was loaded with athletic skills and is still considered one of the fastest runners on the court that SCC ever had. She was the most improved player on that 1975-76 team and the next year moved up a couple of notches on the singles ladder and had another fine year.

Her winning attitude and all-out enthusiasm for the game made her a coach's dream. During the second year she was at SCC, we depended on her to lead by example and to actually become a sort of right hand man to the coach.

After graduating from SCC, Stephanie enrolled at Lander College in South Carolina on a tennis scholarship.

She just missed Florida too much, however, so after only a few weeks at Lander she was back home and enrolled at the University of Central Florida. Since she was so late in starting school at UCF, she could not play on the team so for a couple of years she just played a little on her own. She had a great love for tennis, though, and was thinking about what she wanted to do as a profession.

Tennis always came to mind as the front-runner. In 1978, she landed a position as a part-time instructor at Red Bug Lake Park. This was the break that she had been looking for. Stephanie worked long and hard to become a good instructor and her drive and enthusiasm did not go unnoticed.

When the head pro position became available in 1980 she applied for it and got it.

Well, during the past four years her expertise in the field has grown and grown. The 27-year-old Winter Park High graduate is considered one of the finest tennis teachers in Central Florida. She is in charge of the 10-court facility at Red Bug Lake; she coaches six women's teams; gives hours of private lessons, and has a very good program for juniors with over 25 participating.

The courts at Red Bug are always busy with around 150 people playing there each day. A great amount of the credit for all of this, of course, has to go to the head pro, Stephanie Hayes.

When asked about the future she simply said that she would like to continue at Red Bug, see the park add six more courts and just see lots and lots of people playing there. She is still an outstanding player and plays every day so she has a personal goal involving her own game. She is going for a state ranking in the 25 and over division.

I think she'll get it, but if she doesn't I'm sure she'll hang around and work at it until she does.

Seeds Seek To Avoid Clay Upsets

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI)—The last of the seeded players were scheduled for first-round action Wednesday in a $255,000 clay court tennis tournament and they hoped to evade the outbreak of upsets which has ripped through the tourney's first two days.

Top-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador, ranked sixth in the world, was to face Frenchman Thierry Tulane, and fourth-seeded Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was scheduled to meet Jay Lapidus of Princeton, N.J., at Mount Cranmore.

Stephanie Hayes, above and left, instructs Martha Smith in one of tennis' finer points. The former SCC tennis player has over 150 players each day at Red Bug Lake Park where she has been the pro since 1980.

Bill James: Red-Carpet Treatment From Foul Line To Foul Line

Bill James, Altamonte Springs' energetic recreation director, was looking at carpet colors the other day. He admired the gold, then passed over the white before finally settling on the red.

The red carpet. That is the only treatment James knows. First class is the only class this efficient rec director travels in. And he doesn't hesitate to bring any company or agency in Altamonte Springs along with him. This guy hands out more freebies than Burger King (which are plentiful, and, of course, a part of this tournament's package).

Before the four Little League teams even arrived for the state tournament, James' southern hospitality was drawing raves far and wide.

Greg Ebbert, Altamonte coach — "We talked about this tournament several months ago. It looked great on paper then, but now with that Circus World trip — it's incredible."

Don Crawford, District 14 administrator — "I have lived and worked in Orlando with this district a long time. We have never gotten any kind of cooperation from them. And then to come to this area and see the response from Billy James is unbelievable."

And the ohs and ahs have continued. Teams from St. Petersburg Bay Point, Dade City and East Merritt Island arrived Monday. For them and the Altamonte players, this will be one of the most unforgettable experiences of their lives. Bill James is not just putting on a state tournament — he's putting on an extravaganza.

The only thing "Little League" about this tournament is the baseball. Everything is first class. The players are staying in a quality motel — the Sundance. They travel to and from the games in Zaffran coaches. They are served great food. They have the trip to Circus World included in the package. The Little League mothers shop at the Altamonte Mall and Park Avenue.

"Credit cards are not included in the package, though," James quipped

Sam Cook
Sports Editor

much to the husbands' dismay Monday.

And from the looks of Monday night's "Get Acquainted Luther's Barbeque Dinner," the players are having the time of their lives. And the first pitch had yet to be thrown.

James, it must be pointed out, is not a board member for the Altamonte Little League, but he does work hand-in-hand with president Jim Hovis, District 14 administrator Crawford and District 14 assistant administrator John Strott. Strott was president of the league last year, and is a major contributor to its success.

For James, who still retains that youthful exuberance of his Orlando playing days, the Little League State Tournament is also a long-time dream. "We've been trying to get this tournament for five or six years," he said Monday night while addressing tournament officials and coaches. "Now that we got it, we don't want to give it up. We're going to put on a great time for these kids, coaches and parents."

"After all, that's what Little League is all about. Three teams have to lose in this tournament, but we're going to show them such a great time, the losing will be secondary."

Thus, the Circus World trip, which was thoroughly endorsed by Crawford. "After a team loses, we don't want him to take that loss home with him," said the area's baseball sage. "The trip to Circus World is one the kids thoroughly enjoy, and we urge them to take advantage of the fun of it after that heart-breaking loss. Take that trip home with you, not the loss."

When most cities host tournaments, a meal allowance is issued to the teams. For example, the Altamonte Seniors received $7 meal money a day. At Fort Myers, the Seniors were given $200 a day to house and feed the 14 players. Pairity sums compared to Altamonte's red carpet.

"I don't know why a city would bid for a tournament, then not be able to support it," said James. "When the Little Leaguers come to Altamonte Springs, we pay for everything. That is the way a tournament should be run."

Red carpet from wall to wall. Make that foul line to foul line.

...Altamonte

"Well, Greg was determined to pull him," laughed Altamonte manager Jerrey Thurston. "I don't know if I was."

"I told him (Musselwhite) that he was so tight that we couldn't get a noodle in his nose with a jackhammer," said Ebbert. "But Jimmy said that he still had it, so we let him go."

Musselwhite said he wasn't too fond of noodles, but two groundballs later he did have two outs. "They (Bay Point) were the best hitters I've faced this year, but I knew I could pitch better than I was doing," said Musselwhite.

He induced Pentz to hit a groundball to shortstop which should have ended the inning, but it rolled through allowing Chris "Sail Away" Cross to score from third and the speedy Ware to boom in from second.

On the play, though, Bay Point got a bit greedy. When Dobbs tried to take an extra base on the throw to the plate, catcher Thurston zipped a perfect throw to Wallace at third for the final out.

Altamonte picked up two more in the sixth when Varitek walked and Iarotola ripped another single. Musselwhite forced Varitek at third, but Danny Albert inside-outed a double down the left-field line to plate both runners for a 10-4 advantage.

Varitek led the way with three RBI while Iarotola, Musselwhite and Albert had two each. Radcliff drove in one.

Radcliff also turned in the defensive gem of the game in the bottom of the sixth. After Ware beat out a Baltimore Chop, Dobbs unloaded a deep drive to left-center. Radcliff, breaking with the crack, reached above the fence to pull in the blast.

The talented lefty then wheeled completely around and gunned a perfect peg to first baseman Albert which appeared to catch Ware by a foot. The umpire, however, ruled him safe, but the crowd still gave Radcliff quite an ovation.

"I think it would have hit the top of the fence," said Radcliff about the long drive. "But I wasn't worried about the fence. When I made the catch, I looked over my shoulder and saw him (Ware) at second."

"I just threw it (to first base). It was close, but I thought he was out."

Two outs later, Bay Point was.

Altamonte's Aaron Iarotola crushes a single to left-center. Iarotola's liner drove in two runs during a six-run second inning which helped Altamonte ease past Bay Point, 10-4.

U.S. Cagers Draw Raves From Donohue

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — One by one the continents fall.

First to go was China in a 97-49 drubbing. Then came Canada in an 89-68 romp Tuesday.

So after taking care of Asia and North America, the U.S. men's Olympic basketball team today goes against Uruguay — a game that has all the makings of an unqualified wipeout. Uruguay is winless after a 107-90 loss to Spain Tuesday night.

Canada coach Jack Donohue doesn't need any convincing.

"I think it's the best (Olympic) basketball team I've ever seen, but I don't study these things" he said. "I don't sit around watching basketball games. A bus driver doesn't ride buses."

On Tuesday, before a flag-waving crowd at the Forum, it was Canada that was taken for a ride.

With Michael Jordan scoring 20 points in an exhilarating performance, the Americans all but bounced Canada across the border in the first half, taking a 43-28 lead.

The second half was more balanced. Canada picked up some easy baskets inside and three times drew within 12 points before Jordan, with his baseline touch, and Steve Alford restored order.

In the other Group B game, China edged France, 85-83, on Li Yaguang's 31 points.

WOMEN'S TEAM ROUTS AUSTRALIA

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — No longer is the U.S. women's basketball squad just considered the class of the Olympics. It's now thought of by one coach as the class of all time.

"The American team, at this moment, is the greatest women's team I've ever seen," Australia coach Brendan Flynn said Tuesday after the United States held his team to 23 percent shooting in an 81-47 rout for its second straight Olympic victory.

"We wanted to keep it to 20, but I looked up and it got to 34. Their extreme pressure defense is hard to stop."

The Americans' relentless pressure reinforced their standing as the favorite for their first gold medal. The United States captured a silver medal at the 1976 Montreal Games in the first Olympic women's basketball competition.

Amazing Rowdy Finally 'Gaines' Gold

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Rowdy Gaines is through swimming. Come Sunday, Nancy Hogshead will join him as a retired Olympic champion.

Gaines, Hogshead, Steve Lundquist, Tracy Caulkins and Cynthia Woodhead are the five American swimmers on this year's Olympic team whose careers were jolied in 1980 when the United States boycotted the Moscow Games.

When Gaines won the 100-meter freestyle Tuesday in the Olympic record time of 1:02.55, that made it four gold medals for the veteran quintet. Hogshead, who won her second gold medal of the games later in the day when she anchored the women's 400-meter relay team to victory, led the cheers.

"I don't know if I'm happier for myself or for Rowdy," she said. "We used to train together back in 1978 and 1979. When we were practicing for the world games, I wondered what is this funny guy doing on the A Team. Then he got a second and I changed my mind about him. He's quite a guy. We have something else in common, too. We both quit swimming and then came back."

Gaines, 25, and the relay team led a sweep of five gold medals in five events for the United States, which now has won 10 golds in swimming.

Woodhead finished second to teammate Mary Wayte in the 200-meter freestyle Monday but she has another chance for a gold in the relays. Even if she misses, four golds and a silver for the graybeards of the team are nothing to be ashamed of.

"It's the older people on our team who have helped keep us together," said 16-year-old Carrie Steinsieffer, who tied with Hogshead for first in the 100 freestyle. "We're all very happy for them. To come back the way they did, that's really something. Rowdy? He's amazing. Imagine winning a gold medal at his age!"

American victories also were scored by Tiffany Cohen in the women's 400 freestyle in the Olympic record time of 4:07.10, Rick Carey in the men's 200 backstroke in 2:00.23 and Theresa Andrews in the women's 100 backstroke in 1:02.55.

"It was an amazing day for us," said U.S. coach Don Gambrell.

The surprising U.S. women have won six of the seven events thus far and the men are three-for-seven. It was expected that the women would take no more than three or

Hijackers Hold 58

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Three young Arab sky pirates who hijacked an Air France jetliner released two hostages today after forcing the plane to fly to Iran but kept 58 other people captive, the official Iranian news agency said.

"The two passengers, a woman and her child who were ill, were led to the medical care unit" of Tehran's Meherabad Airport, the news agency IRNA said in a statement.

IRNA did not identify the released hostages and said only that they would receive the "necessary treatment."

There was no further word on the fate of the other 58 passengers and crew, nor was there any report on the progress of negotiations with the three Arab hijackers. An escaped crewmember said the hijackers were trying to create "a state of panic" among the hostages.

The Boeing 737's dawn landing at Tehran's Meherabad

Airport was the latest of four stops on a 3,000-mile ordeal that began Tuesday during a flight from Frankfurt to Paris.

All 55 passengers and five crewmembers aboard Air France Flight AF-747 were reported in good condition by Iranian and Air France officials as Iranian Foreign Ministry officials tried to conduct negotiations for their release.

The three hijackers demanded food and more fuel, Iranian authorities said.

Officials said food and drinks, apparently the first full meal offered since the hijacking began, were served to those inside the jetliner.

Escorted to Tehran by Iranian fighter planes, the airliner landed at Meherabad at 6:47 a.m. local time and rolled to a stop almost out of sight of the terminal. Its engines were kept running for hours, with the Iranians saying it might fly to "an unknown destination."

...Doctor Must Defend Pot Prescription

prescription may have been poor judgment, he did so because Houston, a long-term patient of his before Houston moved from the Sanford area, said it effectively relieved the pain from his case of osteomyelitis. Inflammation of leg tissue originating in the bone marrow.

Brodrick said he operated several times on Houston, who had the condition as the result of a motorcycle accident, and eventually removed one-inch of bone from Houston's leg.

During the time he knew Houston, Brodrick said they developed a close doctor-patient relationship and at one time, Houston told Brodrick that marijuana eased his pain better than prescribed medication he had taken.

Brodrick said he told Houston that if marijuana eased the pain than use it because he preferred his patients not become involved with the use of strong narcotic drugs.

He said he did not write Houston a prescription for the drug at that time.

Brodrick said that while he did not object to Houston using marijuana for chronic pain, he is very against social uses of the drug and other drugs.

"I have a very negative opinion of the stuff. I am no liberal," said Brodrick who added he learned of the prolonged effects of marijuana through tests on pilots conducted while he served with the Marines during Vietnam.

According to Brodrick, Houston moved from the area after 1978 and he did not hear from him until last year.

He said Houston called from Okalahoma saying he and a neighbor had an argument and she turned him in to the police for having pot plants around his trailer home. Brodrick said Houston said he had been arrested on marijuana related charges, had no marijuana, but was still in pain and asked him if he would write him a prescription for the drug.

Brodrick said he did not write the prescription at first, but after two calls from Houston's lawyer, he sent the prescription.

Ms. Byrd said she did not know how the Department of Professional Regulation became aware of the marijuana prescription.

Among the actions the Board of Medical Examiners can take Saturday, according to Ms. Byrd, is to revoke or suspend Brodrick's license, restrict his practice, impose a fine, issue a reprimand, recommend probation or any other action the board deems appropriate.

...Poll

diet whether the three-term New York congresswoman will continue to bring added support for the ticket.

But he said her image could be tarnished when her husband, real estate developer John Zaccaro, discloses his financial holdings.

Harris said his poll after the Democratic National Convention shows the party's ticket only two points behind Reagan — 50 percent to 48 percent. Before the convention Reagan was ahead 52-44.

"From 8 percent — bordering on a landslide — to 2 percent,"

he said. "From a landslide to a horse race — that's significant."

Harris said his poll showed the Democrats leading in the northeast, neck and neck with Reagan in the Midwest and far behind in the South. He said the Mondale-Ferraro ticket was only five points behind in the West, thought to be strong Reagan territory.

The West could be the real battleground that decides the election, Harris said, with California the key state and not necessarily a sure GOP bet.

"Ferraro should spend 20 percent of her time in California," because she appeals to young, upwardly mobile voters and also what he called the "sleeper factor" in the state — the large Italian-Catholic vote.

Cook Of The Week

Florida Beef Council Offers Free Booklets On Better Nutrition

The Florida Beef Council has several suggestions for better nutrition published in two free booklets.

Light 'n Lean Beef Recipes answers the question of how many calories are in ten different cuts of beef. Herbed Flank Steak with Vegetables, Spanish-Steamed Roast, and Beef Pizza Crisp are a few of the recipes also contained in this booklet. All entrees are under 392 calories per serving.

More Light Cooking With Beef, a companion booklet to Light Cooking With Beef, contains nutrition information on calories, total fat, cholesterol and sodium for each of the recipes: Sesame Beef Strips, Nine-to-Five Meat Loaf and Salt Free Beef Broth plus several more.

Both booklets are available, free of charge, from the Florida Beef Council, P.O. Box 1929, Kissimmee, FL 32742-1929.

The following recipes appear in the two booklets:

SPINACH—STUFFED ROAST

1 1/4-pound beef eye round roast
1 pound small new potatoes
10 ounces spinach*
1/4 cup chopped beef salami (1 ounce)
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup soft whole wheat bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Parboil potatoes (do not pare) in boiling salted water 10 minutes; drain and reserve. Cut roast lengthwise but not quite through. Make another cut on each side of cut so that meat will lay flat. Pound roast to 1/2 inch thickness. Cook spinach, covered, in large frying pan 3 to 5 minutes or until wilted; drain well. Combine spinach, salami, onion, bread crumbs, salt and cayenne pepper. Spread mixture evenly over cut side of roast. Roll up jelly roll fashion to enclose filling. Tie roast securely with string. Place roast on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F) 15 minutes. Place potatoes around roast and continue roasting about 45 minutes (beef will be rare). Remove roast and let "stand" at least 15 minutes before carving. Cut potatoes in half; spoon vinegar and parsley over potatoes, stirring lightly to coat. Carve roast into 8 slices.

*One package frozen, thawed, drained spinach may be substituted.
Calories per serving: entree 336; eye round roast 196.

HERBED FLANK STEAK WITH VEGETABLES

1 Beef flank steak (1 1/4 pounds)
8 ounces Brussels sprouts
8 ounces carrots, cut into 1-inch pieces
Salt
Pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 teaspoons crushed rosemary leaves
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon vegetable oil, divided
Steam Brussels sprouts and carrots over 1 inch boiling water 15 to 20 minutes or until tender crisp. Season with salt and pepper. Meanwhile combine garlic, rosemary and allspice; rub into both sides of meat. Place steak on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Brush with 1/2 teaspoon oil. Broil 5 to 6 minutes; season with salt and pepper. Turn and brush steak with remaining oil. Broil 5 to 6 minutes to desired degree of doneness (rare or medium). Carve steak diagonally across the grain into very thin slices and serve with vegetables.

Calories per serving: entree 268; flank steak 206.

BEEF TABBOULEH SALAD

6 ounces (1 1/4 cups) coarsely chopped cooked lean beef
2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped
2 tablespoons bulgur
1/2 cup chopped parsley
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh mint or 1 teaspoon dried mint
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground black pepper
1 small cucumber
6 medium romaine lettuce leaves
Mint leaves, if desired
Combine tomatoes and bulgur in small bowl; let stand 1 hour or until bulgur is soft. Combine cooked beef, parsley, onion, lemon juice, mint, salt and pepper; cover and refrigerate. Pare cucumber; cut into eight thin sticks, each about 2 inches long. Combine beef and bulgur mixtures. Arrange 3 romaine leaves on each plate; spoon an equal portion of beef salad on each. Garnish with cucumber sticks and mint leaves, if desired.
Calories per serving: entree 279; cooked beef 170.

SAVORY TENDERLOIN STEAKS

4 beef tenderloin steaks, cut 1 inch thick (about 4 ounces each)
4 ounces shallots, divided
1/4 cup dry red wine
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 bay leaf
1 small carrot, cut into julienne strips
1/2 cup beef broth
12 ounces green beans
2 tablespoons butter
4 cherry tomatoes, halved
Chop two of the shallots. Cook chopped shallots, wine, thyme and bay leaf in small saucepan over low heat 10 minutes. Cook; remove bay leaf and discard. Place tenderloin steaks in plastic bag or utility dish. Pour marinade over beef, turning to coat. Tie bag securely or cover dish and marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours (or overnight, if desired). Drain marinade; reserve. Cut remaining shallots into quarters or halves, depending on size. Cook shallots, carrots and beef broth in small saucepan over medium-high heat until vegetables are tender and broth is reduced by half. Stir in reserved marinade and simmer 3 minutes. Meanwhile steam green beans over 1 inch boiling water 15 to 20 minutes or until tender crisp. Quickly brown tenderloin steaks in hot butter in large frying pan 4 to 5 minutes on each side. Add carrot and shallot sauce to steaks and heat through. Spoon sauce over steaks and serve with green beans. Garnish with cherry tomatoes.

Calories per serving: entree 314; tenderloin steak 200.

STEAK AND VEGETABLE STIR FRY

1 pound beef top round steak, cut 3/4 inch thick
3 tablespoons soy sauce, divided
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup pared, halved, seeded cucumber slices
1 cup julienne celery strips
1/4 cup thin red pepper strips
1 tablespoon vegetable oil, divided
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup tablespoons dry sherry
1 teaspoon sugar
1 1/4 cups cooked vermicelli (3 ounces uncooked)
1/4 cup diagonally sliced green onion

Spinach and salami combine for a savory stuffing for beef roast

Partially freeze steak to firm and slice diagonally across the grain into strips 1/4 inch thick. Combine 1 tablespoon soy sauce and cayenne pepper; sprinkle over meat. Stir-fry cucumber, celery and pepper in 1 teaspoon hot oil in large non-stick frying pan 2 minutes or until tender crisp. Remove from pan; reserve. Stir-fry beef strips (1/2 at a time) in remaining oil 3 to 4 minutes. Remove from pan; reserve. Combine cornstarch with water. Add to frying pan with beef broth, sherry, sugar and remaining soy sauce and cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Stir in beef strips, vegetables, vermicelli and green onion and heat through.

Calories per serving: entree 339; top round steak 165.

Mealtime Tactics To Tempt Tots

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two-year-old children who refuse food at mealtime are not balking at their food so much as asserting their individuality, according to a University of Minnesota nutritionist.

Karen A. Owens writes in the current issue of Parents Magazine that these problem eaters are simply using food as a vehicle to express their sense of autonomy.

"By the age of 2 ... they have come to the conclusion that they can — and will — make some decisions for themselves. It's the 2-year-old who takes such terrific pride in saying no, especially at mealtime."

Ms. Owens said children generally prefer the following kinds of foods:

- Mild, not spicy.
- Lukewarm, not too hot or cold.
- Colorful, except anything with a blue or green hue.
- Soft and chewable.
- Foods to avoid:
  - Stringy, like celery.
  - Slimy, like mushrooms.
  - Crunchy, like certain peanut butters.
  - Extra dry, like pumpernickel bread.
  - Extra rich or greasy foods, like bacon.
- Like adults, kids tend to avoid foods they cannot identify.

Johnson Receives Medical Degree

Jesse W. Johnson Jr., formerly of Oviedo, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Medicine at the commencement program of the University of Florida College of Medicine on June 2.

The doctoral hood was presented by Dr. William Deal, Dean of the College of Medicine, Dr. Hugh Hill, Associate Dean for Student Affairs administered the Hippocratic Oath to the 117 members of the graduating class.

Dr. Johnson is a 1971 graduate of Edgewater High School, Orlando. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees in microbiology from the University of Central Florida. During graduate school years he worked as a volunteer with the Oviedo VFD, teaching first aid courses and assisting with emergency rescue calls. He also worked part time in the family owned business, Orangewood Farm and Ranch supply.

Before being admitted to the College of Medicine in 1980, Johnson worked with Dr. Richard S. Panush, noted immunologist, on several immunology research projects, including the possible role of Vitamin C and the study of immune system's dysfunction in patients with rheumatoid arthritis.

In 1983 he received the Madalon-Cohen Clinical Immunology Research Award for research in rheumatoid arthritis. He was also nominated to "Outstanding Young Men in America" in 1983. He is a member of the Christian Medical Foundation.

Dr. Johnson began his internal medicine residency program at Memorial Medical Center, Savannah, Ga. in July.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wayne Johnson, Oviedo, who attended the ceremony and reception given by the faculty. Also attending were Mrs. Ada Reynolds, Geneva, his maternal grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hanson of Orlando, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Jon Johnson of Oviedo, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lipe, Arcadia and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sloan of Orlando.

Dr. Johnson is married to the former Deborah Leigh Hanson of Orlando. They plan to relocate to Florida to enter private practice in the Central Florida area after completion of his specialty training.

Lost Brother Now Is Found, Thanks To Salvation Army

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to thank you for your column in the Ventura (Calif.) Free Press about six months ago. You had recommended writing to the Salvation Army to locate a long lost relative who had dropped out of sight for many years. That gave me an idea, so I contacted the Salvation Army and asked if it could find my brother whom I had not seen or heard from since I left England 30 years ago.

Two nights ago I received a call from the Salvation Army telling me that my brother had been located in Australia! (I am still shaking even as I write this.)

Abby, I have no words to tell you how I feel. I telephoned my brother, who was as thrilled as I was. I am now making plans to visit him and his family in Australia.

God bless you, Abby, for what you did for me.

OLGA KNIGHT, VENTURA, CALIF.

DEAR OLGA: Glad I could help. That's what I'm here for. To others who are interested in locating long lost relatives, the

Dear
Abby

Salvation Army operates a Missing Persons Locator Service in 86 countries. It is available to the public. Some basic guidelines:

1. The inquirer should be searching for a near relative.

2. The inquirer must be able to provide essential information about the missing person.

3. The Salvation Army reserves the right to accept or reject any request for services based upon considerations of reasonableness, feasibility or motive.

4. The inquirer is asked to pay a $5 non-refundable fee.

5. The inquirer may secure information and/or a missing persons inquiry form by contacting the nearest Salvation Army office in his area or by contacting the nearest Territorial Headquarters: 860 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610; 120 W. 14th St., New York, N.Y. 10011; 1424 Northeast Expressway, Atlanta, Ga. 30329; 30840 Hawthorne Blvd., Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif. 90274.

Shirley, I appreciate your loyalty, but I think you're overreacting. If it's not broke, don't fix it.

DEAR ABBY: I found a badly damaged, unlocked suitcase on the highway near Pine Bluff, Ark. Heaven knows where the owner is by now.

I have no way of returning it, since there was no identification either on the outside of the suitcase or inside among the contents.

The suitcase obviously belonged to an elderly man of modest means and will be sorely missed.

Abby, please remind your readers once more to enclose some identification inside their luggage in case it gets lost.

MRS. C. McG.

DEAR MRS. McG.: Thanks for a valuable reminder.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a policeman who works on cars in his spare time. He works the afternoon shift (3 p.m. to 11 p.m.). We never get to bed before midnight, but he's always up at 7 and working in the garage by 8 a.m.

I am furious. A man just called at 9:30 a.m. and said, "Is Ron still asleep?" I am burned up to have someone imply that Ron is lazy because Ron is one of the most industrious people I know. He never wastes a minute.

So what do I say to these people who assume my husband is still in bed in the middle of the morning?

RON'S SHIRLEY

DEAR SHIRLEY: Say, "No, Ron is not asleep. Ron is always up at 7 a.m."

Spicy Scramble

Quick Dish Great For Leisurely Brunch Or Skillet Supper

Zucchini 'N' Sausage Scramble, spiced with Italian sausage and a dash of Italian seasonings is an extra-special entree!

It's one of those quick, but delicious, dishes that can fit many occasions. Let its heady fragrance lure sleepyheads out of bed for a leisurely Sunday brunch. Or, because it's so easy on the cook, rely on it for a quick-to-fix skillet supper any night of the week. It's great, too, for an at-home lunch.

Whether you harvest zucchini from your own back yard or the supermarket, this recipe makes good use of this prolific vegetable. And, if you're concerned about good nutrition, Zucchini 'N' Sausage Scramble supplies over one-third of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for protein along with goodly quantities of a number of vitamins and minerals... all for less than 250 calories a serving.

For good nutrition and convenience at the same time, this super scramble is a natural. Break out the eggs for a harvest of good eating.

ZUCCHINI 'N' SAUSAGE SCRAMBLE

4 ounces Italian-style bulk sausage

2 cups julienne strips of zucchini (about 8 ounces)

one-half to one teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed OR one-fourth to one-half EACH basil leaves and oregano leaves, crushed

8 eggs, beaten

Grated parmesan cheese, optional

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, brown sausage. Drain sausage and pour off all but 1 tablespoon of the sausage drippings. Return sausage to pan. Add zucchini and seasonings. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until zucchini is tender, about 8 to 10 minutes. Uncover. Pour in eggs. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of the pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened but still moist.* Do not stir constantly. Sprinkle with cheese, if desired. Yield: 4 servings.

* It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

Zucchini 'N' Sausage Scramble is an extra-special entree that can fit into many occasions. Whether you harvest zucchini from your own back yard or the supermarket, this recipe makes good use of the prolific vegetable.

Ring-Around-The Royalty

Invitation To Tea With Queen Quite A Thrill

By KATHLEEN CHAIK

LONDON (UPI) — Even though there are 10,000 others on the guest list, it's still a thrill to get a gilt-edged invitation asking one to join Queen Elizabeth and other members of the royal family for tea at Buckingham Palace.

"The Lord Chamberlain is commanded by Her Majesty..." read the precious ticket that waited the lucky ones past the changing guard and into the palace gardens the other day.

The Queen hosts three garden parties each July for anyone nominated by his or her local government — from garbage collectors to foreign diplomats and Very Important People. Few of the chosen skip the opportunity to get a closer look at their monarch.

Yet there were about 2,000 no-shows at the first of the summer garden parties. That left about 8,000 guests.

The Palace gates opened about an hour before Elizabeth, Prince Phillip, Prince Charles and a covey of other royals made their appearance in the hushed 45-acre gardens behind Buckingham Palace.

Just outside the sedate party venue — from Hyde Park Corner down The Mall all the way to Trafalgar Square — London traffic was in a noisy knot. Loudspeakers blared parking instructions to thousands of limousines and taxi cabs dropping off excited passengers. Pedestrian guests made better time, but women in the required day dress and hat and men in rented morning suits lined up around the Victoria Memorial waiting to flourish their invitations.

Inside the front gates, guests were ushered through a red-carpeted entry hall and into the Palace's Bow Room, a gallery whose walls are lined with antique Chelsea porcelain and portraits. Ushers warned people not to dawdle and finally were able to herd everyone onto the Queen's huge back yard.

Once on the camomile lawn no one went very far. Guests lined up 10 deep at what they thought were the best vantage points to see the royals stroll across the grass.

A lucky — and for the most part pre-selected — few are plucked from the crowd by the palace ushers to step forward for a special introduction.

At exactly 4 p.m. the French doors were locked against latecomers and the Royal Family stepped onto the terrace through a hidden side entrance. Those who didn't make it through Bow Room in time mashed against the windows to get a peek.

Elizabeth, Phillip and the others strolled in a sedate line towards the royal tea tent, stopping to chat with the crowd.

Guests jostled one another gently trying to eavesdrop on the conversation. A lot was said about London's fine summer weather.

Like an impromptu ballet, the crowd played a kind of ring-around-the-royalty game, keeping an even distance from the Queen, moving one step backward with every royal step forward.

For those who couldn't or didn't join this dance, chairs were lined up in a semi-circle around the royal tent. People sat there studying the Queen sipping her tea.

There were three ranks of tea tent — two for the regular guests, one for VIPs and one for royalty.

Tea was served in china cups with gold rims. Cakes were presented on matching plates. There was a choice of traditional fare — cucumber sandwiches or scones — or chocolate cake, butter biscuits and ice cream.

Two brass bands took turns playing background music. Many people strolled the gravel walks or sat by the lake for a nice chat. Everybody at least saw the Queen.

Women Should Be Concerned About Calcium Intake

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Preventing rickety bones in old age starts around age 30.

That's when smart females start a calcium intake watch, making sure they get 1 gram of the substance daily — either in pill or dietary form, says Dr. William Arno Peck, expert on osteoporosis, a condition implicated in the 200,000 hip fractures in women over age 65 each year.

The bill for those runs into millions. No price can be put on the suffering.

The National Institutes of Health reports complications from these fractures now constitute the 12th most frequent cause of death in the United States.

Proper calcium intake from the age of 30 on, Peck claims, helps keep bones strong. He said most Americans get less calcium than they need and even the Recommended Daily Allowance falls short of his gram-a-day dose.

Peck, physician-in-chief at the Jewish Hospital of Washington University Medical Center, St. Louis, chaired the recent National Institutes of Health Consensus Development Conference on Osteoporosis.

He also recommends exercise to ward off the possibility that one's bones will cave in as the years roll on. Jogging, walking and biking are best. Such exercise puts stress on bones, making them stronger.

Swimming, while a good exercise generally, does not put the same kind of stress on the skeleton. Doctors say bones under stress undergo less resorption.

Peck said that lifestyle factors that can increase a woman's risk of developing osteoporosis include chain-smoking, heavy drinking, and consuming large quantities of coffee daily.

There was a caveat to his calcium edict: anyone with kidney trouble should ask her physician for guidance about calcium pills.

The expert talked about calcium and exercise during an interview on the risks and benefits of various strategies for treating and preventing osteoporosis, the degenerative bone disorder that causes abnormal bone loss. Other therapies include estrogen and vitamin D.

Peck said no single therapy exists either to treat or prevent osteoporosis. Some therapies have possible untoward effects, and doctors should help patients to be on the lookout for them.

Peck said experience indicates estrogen can help if taken about 5 to 10 years after natural menopause and at once in the case of artificial menopause induced by removal of the ovaries.

"The common view is that if you delay menopause five years, ultimately you reduce to 50 percent the chance of a hip fracture 20 years later," Peck said.

He said women with clotting disorders should not be considered candidates for estrogen treatment. Even for others, the hormone, given in very low doses as directed by a physician, is not without its risks, he said.

One is the possible development of cancer of the lining of the uterus — endometrial cancer.

Peck said this form of cancer is highly treatable when spotted in the very earliest stage. He recommends that physicians who put their patients on low doses of estrogen make certain the women have a gynecological examination every six months.

Peck said there was a concern that women on estrogen therapy may be at higher risk for breast cancer but that reports indicate this is not so.

Men are not so much at risk for osteoporosis, Peck said, because they tend to have greater "peak" bone mass — in the mid-30s. As with women, men start to have bone loss beginning at between ages 35 and 40. But since men have more bone mass to begin with, the bone losses in old age do not leave them in as fragile a condition as women, especially white women with spare skeletons.

But some men do develop osteoporosis. Peck said they usually have a deficiency of male hormone.

The National Institutes of Health Consensus Panel on Osteoporosis said more research is needed to:

—Develop accurate, safe, inexpensive methods for determining the level of risk for osteoporosis in an individual, to establish early diagnosis, and to assess the clinical course of the disease.

—Develop safe, effective, low-cost strategies for maximizing peak bone mass, minimizing bone loss and preventing fractures.

Recently, the NIH awarded major grants for the study of therapeutic approaches to osteoporosis to the University of Pittsburgh, Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, and the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Health authorities note that under normal circumstances, the body produces new bone tissue as old bone is broken down. Estrogen-deficient subjects do not replace the bone as quickly as it is broken down. Eventually the skeleton cannot support the body adequately.

As the skeletal system grows increasingly fragile, bone fractures, "dowager's hump" and loss of height may occur.

Most vulnerable to fracture are the hips, forearms and spinal vertebrae, which may become compressed.

The collapsing spinal vertebrae lose height and may be so tightly bunched together that five of them will fill the space usually occupied by three. This collapsing of the vertebrae is referred to as a crush fracture. Peck and other experts noted that bones are not solid structures but are porous, living tissue.

The marrow in bones manufactures blood cells and acts as a warehouse for calcium, needed in tiny amounts by cells throughout the body.

The component that gives bone its hardness and strength is calcium phosphate. Since bones in the body continuously undergo resorption and formation, the need for calcium is constant.

A Delicious Version Of Red Beans, Rice

Red beans and rice is a favored dish in New Orleans. Its background is Cajun, although black beans and rice are a part of Central American culture and a staple of the Cuban diet.

NEW ORLEANS RED BEANS AND RICE CHICKEN SALAD

- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon olive or vegetable oil
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 1 can (15 1/2 ounces each) kidney beans, drained
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 2 cans (15 ounces each) chunk white chicken

- 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
  - Salt and pepper to taste
  - Salad greens
  - 2 tablespoons chopped parsley (optional)
- In small skillet over medium heat lightly saute onion in oil. Add cooked rice, beans and celery. Cook about 10 minutes over low heat. Remove from heat; add chicken and seasonings. Toss lightly. Chill at least 1 hour. Sprinkle with salad greens. Sprinkle chopped parsley over top, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Food Facts

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Choosing the most healthful form of fats and oils can be confusing," says a report in "National Food Review," a publication of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It provides the following guidelines to help consumers in the selection:

- Fats and oils that are solid at room temperature contain more saturated fat than those that are liquid. Liquid semi-solid fats and oils made from vegetable oils provide the lowest degree of saturated fats.
- Only animal products contain cholesterol. To reduce cholesterol intake, lower consumption of shortenings and margarine that contain animal fats.
- Read labels to determine the oils used in the production of margarine and shortening. Lower priced margarine or shortening is likely to contain animal fats. Soybean, corn, safflower and sunflower oils have a higher ratio of polyunsaturated to saturated fatty acids than do palm, coconut, peanut or cottonseed oils.
- Read the label on processed foods to determine the types of fats and oils used as ingredients. Many brands of cookies, crackers and baked goods contain lard.
- Diet or imitation margarine contains about 80 percent fat compared with 80 percent for regular margarine. The calorie reduction is about 20 percent. Water or nonfat dry milk is used in place of fat in these products.
- Persons attempting to lower total fat consumption should be aware of the invisible fat in their diet. Lean meat, poultry, fish, skim or low fat milk and cheese made from partially skimmed milk are products with lower levels of fat.

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Although cooking may reduce the vitamin and mineral content of some foods, it also can boost fiber, according to a Cornell University nutritionist.

Toasting, broiling, sauteing, and frying foods can increase food fiber by browning them. This happens when vegetables, meat, and bread are cooked.

"The browning of foods is caused by a chemical reaction that destroys carbohydrates and essential amino acids," says Peter Van Soest, professor of nutritional sciences and animal nutrition at Cornell University. "Created in the process, however, are molecules that very closely resemble one of the fibers found naturally in some foods."

As a result, toast and bread crusts have more fiber than the loaf's soft center.

Certain fibers are important components of diet that aid digestion. Others help to grow bacteria that attack toxins and protect against hardening of the arteries, heart disease, and gallstones. Sauteing and steaming vegetables increases the amount of both types of fibers in fresh foods. Boiling, though, does not have the same effect.

Coarse bran and wheat flour are good sources of fiber, although grinding the flour too finely destroys the effect.

Ways to increase fiber in the diet, according to Van Soest:

- Eat whole wheat bread, especially if it has "flakey bran particles".
- Use grains like buckwheat, kasha, brown rice, and bulghur.

ROSE HILL, N.C. (UPI) — A local poultry processing plant is testing a new plan for energy conservation — firing up its boilers by burning turkey and chicken droppings, according to a consumer energy journal.

Managers at the Eastern Byproducts Company have found that mixing sawdust with the poultry droppings produces a fuel that burns efficiently, according to Energy User News. The mixture produces enough steam to cook chicken and turkey parts, which are later powdered and sold as animal feed protein supplements.

Fast Foods For Home Range From Breakfast On

By Gail Collins
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The food industry, courting a nation of fast food junkies, is starting to market products that promise home-cooked meals just like McDonald's used to make.

That's the word from Martin Friedman, the Miami-based editor of "New Product News."

"You'd think the fast food people would try to figure out what people are buying in the supermarket to cook at home," he said. "But it's the other way around."

Swanson is offering Great Start Breakfast Sandwiches that look suspiciously like Egg McMuffins, Friedman said. Another company is doing well marketing "Micro-Magic Fries" that come in single-serving boxes ready for the microwave.

The Swanson breakfasts are designed for microwaves, too, Friedman said, and packaged so people can take them to the office and zap them into shape before their first coffee break.

Smaller-sized packaging and microwave-ready items are two of the stronger trends in new products this year, Friedman said. In yet another sign of the expanding economy, the number of new supermarket and drug store products introduced in the first half of the year were up 13.8 percent to 997.

Friedman, whose monthly newsletter is published by Dancer-Fitzgerald Sample advertising agency, is a former ad man who now spends his time prowling supermarkets and checking out the new arrivals.

In recent months he has noted the debut of Famous Fido's Canine Cookies, poodle-shaped treats that come in a flavor called chocolate liver chip, and a new roll-on antiperspirant called Green Tea Deodorant.

He has observed the passing of Feast For One, a bow by Seagram's to the yuppie market that featured gourmet entrees like duck a la orange and price tags up to $7.

"People are willing to pay more for good quality frozen food, but at that level I guess they figure they might as well go out," he said.

The battle of the low-calorie frozen entrees like continues apace, and Lean Cuisine alone has come up with four variations, he said. The health trend is also going strong, with plenty of new items that are low in sodium or caffeine.

A new line of frozen entrees called Legume combines both trends, offering low-calorie meals made out of the soybean cake known as tofu.

"An interesting product we've just picked up on is called Lite Chef Tofu Mixers," he said. "They're sort of like tofu helper."

Machine Cuts Pineapple

Consumers often shy away from fresh pineapple because of the effort involved in removing the tropical fruit from its tough shell. But a new machine being introduced to retailers is changing that. Pineapple will soon be available in ready-to-eat form. Debbie Morrison of Alpha Beta stores demonstrates the new pineapple cutter: a fresh fruit is inserted, left, and with a pull on the handle, the fruit is cored and peeled. As the scrap falls into a bin, the heart of the fruit remains a juicy, golden pineapple ready for eating.

INTRODUCING

THE HONEY BAKED HAM CO.

ORIGINATORS OF SPIRAL SLICED HAM

NATIONALLY FAMOUS AND NOW IN ORLANDO

THE HONEY BAKED STORY

Over 40 years ago Harry J. Hoenselaar had an idea for a unique machine which would slice a ham in a single continuous "spiral" and leave the meat attached to the flavor preserving bone. He was granted two patents, (#'s 2470078 and 2599328), one covering the machine and the other covering the ham itself as "support" for the slice.

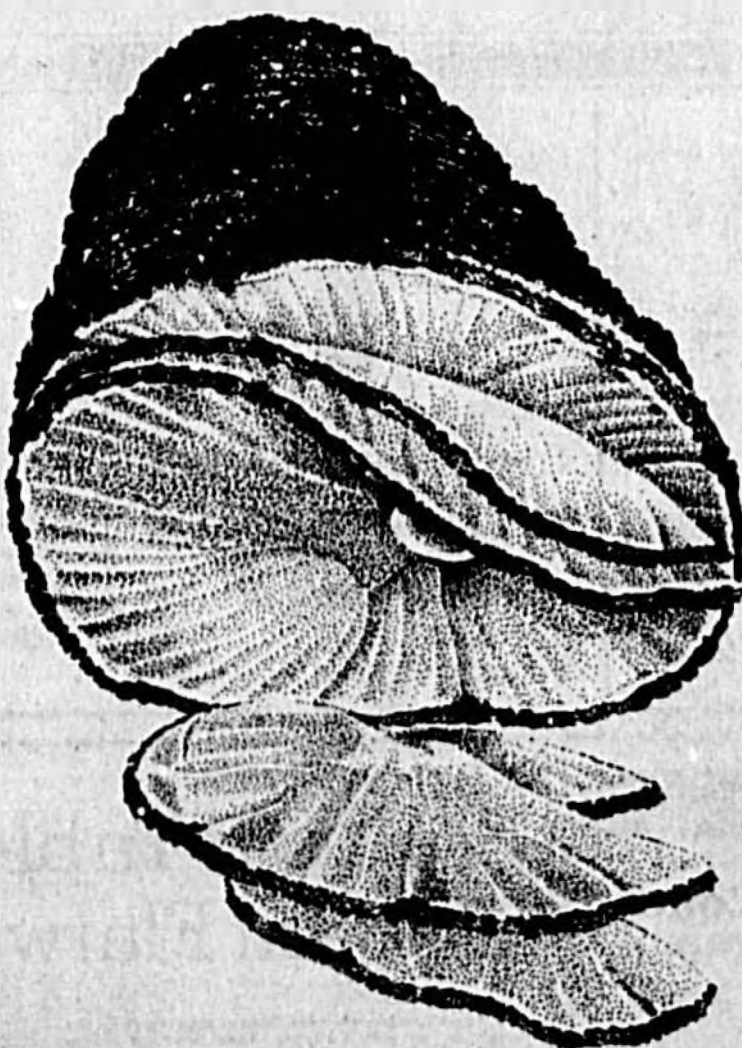

Harry knew to end up with the finest ham you must start with the finest hog; selectively chosen on the basis of outer fat cover; obtained by controlled feeding with grain rich mash. The hams were carefully trimmed of excess fat and cured with a special mild cure then "pickled"

(stored) to allow flavor development.

For tenderness a ham must be cooked slowly. Harry's hams were cooked as long as 30 hours (over three times as long as most hams). This insures tenderness and allows the hickory and applewood smoke to penetrate every fiber with that unforgettable mouth-watering flavor.

Next the ham is "spiral sliced" on Harry's machine to make serving easier than you can imagine. Any radial cut to the bone releases perfect slices of just the right thickness. (Ready to place on your serving tray or your sandwich).

The final step is the glazing, with imported spices to seal in all the tender moist flavor until you are ready to use it. The rest is up to you! Enjoy the ham that Harry made "So good it will haunt you 'til its gone."

Chilled Soup For Warm Days

Ice cold fruit soups are one of the joys of warm weather menus. On sultry nights when no one really feels like eating, the chilled soups of summer come to the fore. Fresh and refreshing, served indoors or out, they provide a delicious, soothing starting point for special meals.

When the season's finest blueberries, strawberries or peaches are at hand, irresistible Summer Fruit Creme Soup provides a showcase for the luscious flavors.

If you have a favorite fruit dessert prepared quickly and easily with marshmallow creme.

or if you'd like to create one, you could be a winner in the 1984 Kraft Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest.

Entries are being accepted now through September 30, 1984. This year there are three new categories from which to choose - "Festive Fruits," "Frozen Favorites," and "Chocolate Challenge." Almost any original marshmallow creme recipe, from appetizer to dessert and from breakfast to late-night snack is a potential winner.

Twilight Zone Marathon On 43

You're traveling through another dimension, a dimension not only of sight and sound, but of mind. Next stop - The Twilight Zone Marathon.

WMOB-TV 43 will broadcast 24 hours of classic Twilight Zones, and a chance to win a Home Entertainment Center, two tickets on Pan Am to anywhere in the continental United States, or a new 1984 Honda ATC.

The excitement starts Saturday at 10 a.m. and doesn't stop until 10 a.m. the next morning. During that 24-hour period, you'll see 48 of your favorite Twilight Zones from the first ever made to one of the earliest of shows, "The Hitchhiker".

When the Twilight Zone first debuted, it was a shining star that stood out against the traditional programming of the earlier days of television. Viewers flocked to the TV each week to see this adventurous, innovative, new show. Today, The Twilight Zone has a dedicated following. Some of it's most devoted viewers know every line from every show by heart, and imitators of host Rod Serling are legion.

Those who wish to test their Twilight Zone knowledge can pick up an entry blank for the Trivia Contest at all participating Central Florida Arby's. (The answers to the first 10 questions will be broadcast Thursday, Friday and Monday between 5 and 8 p.m.)

Television Bingo Hits Dubious Jackpot

By Tom Tiede

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (NEA) — The Twin County Cable TV system has taken some controversial risks in recent years. It has battled over subscription rates and program controls, for example, and it was the earliest service in Pennsylvania to offer X-rated movies ("High School Bunbles") to its audience.

But now the company is really gambling. It's started a television version of bingo.

The game is broadcast five nights a week in the hour preceding prime time. And viewers participate in the privacy of their living rooms. They use cards purchased at area retail outlets, they play numbers drawn on the TV screen, and they compete for jackpots worth a whopping $1,000 apiece.

The cable company thinks the show may be the first of its kind in the nation. And it claims the activity is good, clean fun. The games are sponsored by some of the area's leading charitable organizations, and the playing audience is said to be made up of solid, stable and mostly older people.

Still, there are problems. Most of them legal. The sponsors have paid $100 each to obtain the requisite Pennsylvania bingo license, but that may not be enough. The district attorney of Northampton County, Donald Corriere, says TV bingo may violate some of the state's gambling control laws.

One of the laws states that bingo games must be confined to single locations, such as community halls or fire depots. They cannot be movable or played simultaneously at multiple sites. Since the TV version is necessarily aired in thousands of homes at a time, Corriere says something is amiss.

Then there is the law against underage gambling. Corriere worries that kids are spending their lunch money on TV bingo. The game is officially restricted to adults, but children play if they want. Corriere says they can buy the cards freely and have their parents claim the money if they win.

So the DA believes the games are clearly out of proper step. And he has filed court actions that could, eventually, pull the plug on the show. He has agreed to let TV bingo continue on a temporary basis, but he has instructed the sponsors to put a $100 fine in escrow for each night's program.

Naturally, the sponsors think it's silly. And most of the people in this part of Pennsylvania probably agree. The sponsors include the American Diabetes Association, a local Lions Club, and the Easter Seal Society, and there isn't a whole lot of feeling that the groups would get into anything untoward.

Betty Strosser of the Easter Seal Society says that's absolutely right. The society insists that the bingo games are harmless entertainment. She says they are a refreshing alternative to the run of the mill television fare: "The people who watch it say it's the best hour on TV; they think it's terrific."

Miss Strosser says the people also think it's exciting. Perhaps because TV bingo is a bit different from the ordinary game. Ordinarily, players who cover five numbers on a card, in any of three directions, have a bingo; the television player must cover all of the numbers on a card (25) to win.

Also, the TV version is monitored by a computer. The computer calculates the mathematical possibilities of each game. When the computer determines that enough numbers have been called to produce a winner, the game is stopped for 60 seconds; the winner has that time to call in for the jackpot.

Players say it can be very dramatic. And the winners are usually very pleased. One of them is said to have used the jackpot money to purchase a block of game cards for people in a nursing home; and Miss Strosser says others have shared part of their winnings with the Easter Seal Society.

The sharings are appreciated, naturally. The society is unashamedly out to make money on the games. Miss Strosser says times have been tough in this area of Pennsylvania, i.e., charitable contributions have fallen off, "and that's why we got into TV bingo in the first place — to help raise extra funds."

Alas, it hasn't worked out like that. Not so far, anyway. Miss Strosser says the ongoing legal squabble has hindered the growth of the games, and the $100 a night fine has cut even further into the profits. The Easter Seal Society is just breaking even; some other sponsors are said to be losing money.

But Miss Strosser says there is still hope. She thinks the state legislature may come to the rescue. Pennsylvania is a gambling state. It has parimutuel parlors and a large lottery, hence the lawmakers are presently being lobbied to revise enough state statutes to make room for television bingo.

The odds for success are not known. But a lot of players in Bethlehem are writing regularly to their representatives. "I like everything about the show," says one of them. "I even like the scheduling. It ends at 7 p.m., you know; that gives me time to get to the church for my regular bingo game."

4th Annual Country Battle Of The Bands Holding Trials At Church Street Station

Orlando has been selected as one of the 101 cities nationwide to host the Fourth Annual "Wild Turkey Battle of Country Bands" competition.

Local auditions will be held beginning Sunday at Church Street Station.

Auditions will continue one night a week for five consecutive weeks. At the end of the summer, each of the 101 cities holding auditions will have one winner each to participate in 10 regional finals during the month of October.

On November 2, each of the 10 regional finalists will compete in Nashville at the national finals to be hosted by Johnny Lee and Lane Brody.

Over $100,000 in cash, prizes and recording contracts will be awarded throughout the competition. The winning band will receive $5,000 cash, a one-year booking contract and will record an album in Nashville. Additional cash and recording will be awarded to the nine other finalists.

Rules and regulations for bands interested in auditioning are available by calling Peter Smith at Church Street Station, 422-2434.

Garbage Men Haul Away Refrigerator By Mistake

You usually have to make special arrangements for the trash man to pick up and haul away a hefty item like a refrigerator. Herbert George Stanfield, 35, of Apopka didn't have that problem.

His problem is that the garbage men hauled off his $475 refrigerator ... one he had just repaired and wanted to keep.

Stanfield was astonished by the efficiency of Central Service Corp. of Orlando when his neighbor Jack Nolder, 50, told him two garbage men had taken the appliance Friday morning from the middle of his driveway where it had sat for two days while being repaired, sheriff's deputies report.

When Stanfield heard of the pickup, he called Central Service Corp. and was told he was too late, the refrigerator had been crushed and he was out of luck because the company would not replace it, the report said. Stanfield told deputies that he was not allowed to talk to either of the two employees who took the refrigerator.

Stanfield filed a theft report Tuesday, possibly for insurance purposes.

CAR THEFT ARRESTS

Two men who refused to give

Altamonte Springs police their address were charged Saturday with theft of a 1977 Camaro which had been stolen in Huntington W. Va. on July 21.

Police reported checking on the car, which witnesses reported seeing the suspects leave at the Westmonte Recreation Center, Spring Oaks Boulevard, at about 4 p.m. Saturday.

Police spotted the suspects walking on Wekiva Circle about one-half mile from where the car was parked. When confronted, the pair claimed the car had been given to them in Daytona Beach by a woman they did not know.

Action Reports

- ★ Courts
- ★ Police

Joseph Lester Thomas, 22, and Raymond John Orf, 18, were both being held in lieu of $8,000 bond each.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department responded to the following calls: Monday 12:14 a.m., 1st St. and U.S.

Highway 17-92, rescue. Auto accident with no injuries.

—4:04 p.m., 709 Cypress Ave., fire. A pot left on the stove caught fire. Flames were extinguished with no loss.

—5:23 p.m., 2423 Orange Ave., fire. Power lines were arcing to trees. Firefighters stood by until Florida Power and Light repair crew arrived.

—7:41 p.m., 220 N. Scott Ave., fire. An electrical panel to an air conditioner had a short circuit. There was no fire. Power to the panel was cutoff.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—David Omer Warner, 21, of Ormond Beach, was arrested at 10:20 p.m. Sunday after his car was seen weaving on U.S. Highway 17-92, at county Road 427, Sanford.

—Hildamae Mack Elmore, 55, of P.O. Box 362, Lake Mary, at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, after another motorist complained to Sanford police that she was driving recklessly on U.S. Highway 17-92 at Airport Boulevard, Sanford. She was also charged with reckless driving.

Sanford Brothers Appeal Conviction Of Last Fall's Jewelry Store Hold-Up

Two Sanford brothers who pleaded no contest to robbery have appealed their conviction of robbing a Sanford jewelry store.

Tyree Leroy Nelms, 20, of 2421 Randolph St., and Willie James Nelms, 24, of 112 Hughes Ave., were sentenced to prison terms July 13 by Seminole Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi. Tyree Nelms was sentenced to 4½ years with credit for 254 days served and Willie Nelms received a term of two years with credit for 254 days served. Willie Nelms also was ordered to pay $1,500 restitution to the jewelry store and to serve 30 months probation.

The brothers contended in their appeal to the Fifth District Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach that Salfi allowed items into evidence that were illegally obtained. They also claimed they were illegally stopped and searched.

According to court records, one brother entered Gwaltney Jewelry store, 204 S. Park Ave., on Nov. 12 and looked at a gold bracelet.

After saying the $85 price was too high, he left, according to jeweler Margaret Gwaltney, 61. He returned about 10 minutes later and said he wanted to buy the bracelet.

Shortly thereafter, a second man entered the store and the first man punched Miss Gwaltney in the mouth as the second man came around the counter and placed a large pocket knife to her throat, a police report said.

The man with the knife said, "If you make a noise, I'll cut your throat," the report said. The other man grabbed a number of gold chains. The men also demanded that she hand over cash from her pocket, but Gwaltney refused and scuffled with the brothers.

The man with the knife said, "If you don't give me the money, I'm going to stick you in the gut with this knife," she said.

The men took about $200 in cash from her and ran south on Park Avenue, the report said.

Miss Gwaltney called the police and gave them a description of the men. The brothers were picked up a few minutes later.

The jewelry and cash were recovered.

'Farthest Reaching Decision The CAB Has Ever Made'

Computers Will Be Forced To Offer Best Air Fare Deals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board, to help consumers get "the best available flight at the best available deal," now will require computers used by travel agents to offer air fare bargains more easily.

The panel Monday adopted detailed regulations for airline-owned computer reservations systems — used by travel agencies to sell airline tickets.

"In terms of dollar value, this rule will prove to be the farthest reaching decision the CAB has ever made," Board Chairman Dan McKinnon said.

"It is an attempt to prove all airlines with fair access to the marketplace. The ultimate beneficiary, of course, is the consumer, which now will be able to make more informed travel decisions."

An agency spokesman said consumer savings "over the long haul, could run into the millions and millions of dollars."

The rule bans anti-competitive bias and consumer deception in listings of computerized reservation systems owned by airlines and regulates fees the system operators can charge participating airlines.

But it allows system owners to exclude or provide biased listings for airlines that refuse to pay to be included in the system.

The rule requires airline-owned master reservations systems to have at least one display that will show schedules and fares for all participating airlines.

That will allow travel agents to find immediately the flight that best suits a client's needs and pocketbook.

Present systems provide all that information but frequently use a system in which the owner-airline flights and fares are shown on the computer screen first. Other, better flights and fares must be found in further computer searches.

"What this will do is make sure that the travel agent can find the best available flight and the best available deal without having to go through two or three computer screens," a CAB spokesman said.

Monday's ruling also requires that any "service enhancements" such as issuing boarding passes and tickets that a system provides for one airline must be provided for all participating airlines.

If, for example, a system now makes it possible to make seat selections and issue boarding passes for American Airlines flights, it would have to discontinue that service or offer it for other airlines' flights.

United Airlines and American Airlines and Eastern Airlines operate some of the largest systems. In Dallas, a spokesman for American, which operates the $160 million SABRE reservation system, said the airline "should be able to comply with those rules in a timely fashion."

"As long as those rules are fairly and equitably applied, we have no problem," American spokesman Al Becker said.

Eastern spokeswoman Paula Musto said the decision "is not going to have any effect on the individual traveler."

As for boarding passes, she said Eastern is in the process of getting airlines to sign onto its automated system. She said it already has agreements with TWA, United and American.

"It's just a matter of putting these carriers on line," she said.

A spokesman for United could not be reached for comment.

Bananas

1876 Delicacy Still A Delight Of Summertime

The Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition was the rage in 1876 when everyone wanted to see the new fangled typewriter and Mr. Bell's incredible telephone. Most exciting of all was an exotic new fruit: the banana. It came wrapped in colorful tinfoil and sold for ten cents a finger (equal to about one dollar today). A luxury then, it's one of America's most popular fruits.

The fresh prime fruit you see in supermarkets comes thousands of miles from Central and South America via refrigerated cargo vessels. They are sheltered in special packaging to minimize bruising in transit. "It's the industry's intricate system of controlled transport and ripening that enables Americans to enjoy this golden fruit all year-round at reasonable prices," says Robert Moore, president of the International Banana Association, which represents the banana industry here and abroad.

According to the I.B.A., 50 percent of the bananas consumed, regardless of the time of year, are savored plain. Twenty-five percent are eaten with cereal and the rest are prepared according to a recipe such as the summer salad and dessert which follow. To get the maximum value from the fruit and to relish it at its best, it pays to keep a few tips in mind.

For eating out of hand or use in cold desserts, fruit salads or as a garnish, bananas should be fully ripe. A festive treat that uses ripe fruit is Creamy Banana Cheese Pie. Serve it well chilled for a refreshing conclusion to a light meal.

Bananas used in sauteed dishes such as the Caribbean-Inspired Skillet Bananas, should still be firm and slightly green-tipped. Cooking softens the flesh and brings out the fruit's natural sweetness, making less mature bananas more appropriate.

Whether cooked or fresh out of nature's safety-seal, the banana can be a tasty accompaniment for warm weather dining.

CREAMY BANANA CHEESE PIE

One Graham-Nut Pie Crust*
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, at room temperature
3/4 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 medium bananas, sliced, divided

Prepare Graham-Nut Pie Crust.* In medium saucepan combine gelatin, sugar and salt. Add water. Stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved. In large mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until smooth; add sour cream and vanilla. Gradually beat in gelatin mixture. Chill mixture until slightly thickened. Arrange layer of sliced bananas in bottom of prepared pie shell. Spoon gelatin mixture over bananas. Chill 4 hours until firm. Before serving, garnish with remaining banana slices.

YIELD: 8 servings.

*GRAHAM-NUT PIE CRUST

1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
1/4 cup melted butter or margarine

In small bowl combine all ingredients. Press into bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a 375 degree F. oven 8 minutes. Cool completely.

SKILLET BANANAS

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 teaspoons lime juice
Pinch nutmeg
Pinch salt
4 medium bananas, cut in half crosswise

1/4 cup dark rum
In large skillet, melt butter; stir in lime juice, nutmeg and salt. Add bananas; turn to coat with butter mixture. Cook 2 minutes. Add rum. Saute bananas with butter-rum sauce. Serve immediately.

YIELD: 4 servings.

Creamy Banana Cheese Pie, deliciously combining cream cheese and sour cream, also features perfectly ripe slices of bananas, an exotic novelty when first introduced to the United States in 1876.

Expert Shares Basic Secrets Of Ice Cream

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Making and eating ice cream at home is a popular way to beat the summer heat, and with the right ingredients — and a few precautions — homemade ice cream can rival the best commercial confections.

There are only a few simple steps to follow, say two experts from Pennsylvania State University.

Raymond Binkley, manager of Penn State's milk plant, recommends using finely shaved ice in the ice cream freezer. He said many people make the mistake of using cubes or coarsely cracked ice in their ice cream machines.

"Cubes don't take the heat away from the mix fast enough," Binkley said.

The shaved ice should be mixed with rock salt — not table salt — at about three parts ice to one part salt. The salt helps cool the ice cream faster.

Hundreds of ice cream recipes are available in cookbooks, but Binkley suggests looking for some simple ingredients: milk, cream, condensed skim milk, cane sugar and perhaps a little corn sugar for smoothness. French ice creams include eggs for richness and stability.

Philip Keeney, professor of food science and one of the country's leading ice cream experts, says the secret to good homemade ice cream is basic: use lots of cream. Some home ice cream makers substitute milk for cream, perhaps to cut calories. Cream contains butterfat and that's what separates good ice cream from great ice cream. Supermarket ice cream contains 10 percent butterfat, but superpremium ice cream such as Haagen-Dazs contains 18 percent butterfat.

"Too much butterfat, however, makes the mixture taste thick and greasy."

"The only way to make good ice cream at home is to use lots of cream," Keeney said. "Some also use evaporated milk. Sweetened condensed milk is better."

Sweetened condensed milk also provides sugar for the mix, Keeney said.

His basic recipe: milk, cream, sweetened condensed milk and flavoring. The flavors can be as imaginative as the tastes of the makers.

"That's one of the appealing things about ice cream — just about any flavor seems to blend in well with it," Keeney said.

In the Philippines, a popular dessert is corn ice cream — complete with whole kernels mixed in like chocolate chips.

Manufacturers also have made sweet potato and broccoli ice cream, and a couple of years ago made garlic ice cream for a California garlic festival.

Keeney said a newspaper food editor told him she saw clam chowder ice cream in a small shop on Cape Cod. "She said it tasted just like clam chowder. I assume it was New England style."

Who's Cooking?

The Herald welcomes suggestions for cooks of the week. Do you know someone you would like to see featured in this spot? The Cook of the Week column is published every Wednesday.

Novice cooks and ethnic cooks, as well as experienced cooks and master chefs add a different dimension to dining. Who is your choice? Maybe it's your mother, father, brother, sister or friend.

All Americans Can Be Proud Of Their Rich, But Simple, Culinary Heritage

By Ellie Grossman
NEW YORK (NEA) — So much for all you thumbing your noses at American cuisine. John F. Mariani, a food and wine writer with a Ph.D. from Columbia University (in English romantic literature, of all things) is going to knock the juices out of you with "The Dictionary of American Food & Drink" (Ticknor & Fields, $19.95).

This is an "abalone" to "zwieback" compilation of what Americans once ate and still do; how it all got its name; what, if anything, the government has to say about what we consume; and how to make 500 examples of it. Like good old cranberry sauce or the less-beloved octopus salad ("Have the fish dealer prepare four baby octopuses for cooking...").

Recipes, however, are the least of the book, Mariani says. "I don't like typing teaspoons and tablespoons. It's more the literary and historical aspect of American food, the setting down of the lore and clearing up of misconceptions that interest me."

And the setting right, once and for all, of the notion that you need high-blown or alien words in front of a dish to make it taste good. Says Mariani: "Peach melba is nothing but vanilla ice cream, raspberry sauce, vanilla syrup and peaches, usually canned. What's the difference between that and a chocolate ice-cream sundae? Still, the sundae is considered a dumb American confection — and that's unfair."

It's time, he proclaims, to stop blushing about the delectables we routinely toss into our stomachs but wouldn't dream of serving to a muckamuck ("an Alaskan Chinook Indian word for food... (and) by extension... any powerful person.") What's more, we should be commending ourselves for coming up with taste treats no one else ever did (mind, we're not talking nutrition or weight control here).

For instance, says Mariani, "No one ever thought of putting bits of chocolate into a cookie before Mrs. Ruth Wakefield." In the '30s, she ran an old tollhouse between Boston and New Bedford and her "tollhouse" cookies became so popular, Nestle's chocolate eventually reproduced her recipe on its packaging. Today, Mariani notes, half the cookies baked in America's kitchens are chocolate chip and "Nestle's produces 250 million morsels a day in three factories."

And it wasn't a snooty French chef named Emil who came up with potato chips. Most say it was plain old George Crum of Moon's Lake Lodge in Saratoga, N.Y., who in 1853 fried up some potato chips real thin for a guest who refused to eat the ordinary thick-sliced ones. "People just loved them and called them Saratoga chips," Mariani says. Chances are, though, you couldn't have gotten Emil near them because: "The first Europeans who got potatoes from America were such numbakulla, they even ate the leaves and roots, which are poisonous. So well into the 19th century, potatoes were considered toxic."

Then, too, until the Pennsylvania Dutch knocked holes into doughnuts (the better for dunking, Mariani speculates), the pastry didn't have any. True, some say that in 1847 a Rockport, Maine, sea captain poked out the centers of his wife's doughnuts so he could hang her baking on the spokes of his wheel and nibble while he steered his ship, but Mariani says that's hogwash. "We have records of doughnuts with holes before the captain's time." In any case, the whole point is it was one of us who got the idea.

And while glitz restaurants on the Cote d'Azur are dishing out plates of pasta smothered with fancy cheese today, they can thank Thomas Jefferson for the idea. Sort of.

"Jefferson was the first to order a macaroni machine from Naples, but his emissary made a mistake and brought back a spaghetti machine," Mariani said. Never mind. It was Americans who first combined the pasta with American. Cheddar or Swiss cheese in place of tomato sauce because, he says: "People called the tomato 'the mad apple' and thought it was poisonous. You see instructions to boil tomatoes for three hours to get rid of the poisons, so adding cheese instead was a good way to make use of the pasta."

What's more, if you walked into some posh restaurant overseas tomorrow and asked for a shrimp cocktail, "They wouldn't know what you were talking about," he says. Of course not. A San Francisco miner discovered that classy appetizer in 1850. Actually, he just dropped an oyster into the ketchup, but the idea caught on and, besides, oysters were easier to come by in those days. We were eating them then the way we eat pretzels now, says

Mariani. "Oysters were such a staple that, like caviar, they used to be given away free in 19th century saloons to get you to drink more beer." It was only when coastal oyster beds began to be depleted in the 1880s that the mollusks became a rich tidbit.

Still, it goes to show we never needed Europe to tell us what's good. Even the oldest Americans had taste. Says Mariani. "I was surprised to learn that Chief Massasoit's brother brought popcorn to the first Thanksgiving in 1621. The Indians knew how to make it. They just put some oil in a pot, poured in the corn kernels, put a lid on the pot and soon they had popcorn. The settlers said, 'What's this great stuff?'"

So there, all you snickering food connoisseurs: Put that in your hat — and eat it.

John F. Mariani

Sugared Plums Accompany Ham For Easy Meal

A slice of ham can provide the bases for a really good dinner. The ham slice should be about 1 1/2-inches thick for microwaving. The slice may be fully cooked or not cooked at all and its scidom label. When microwaving the ham slice it is advisable to use a glaze of some kind. This will prevent drying on the ham surface. Slice the fat on ham slice, place in a shallow baking dish; cover with wax paper. Microwave on 100% power for 10 minutes. Drain. Pour glaze over ham. DO NOT cover. Microwave on 50% power 7-10 minutes, or until ham is hot. A simple glaze can be prepared in the microwave also. Combine 1/4 cup honey, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 tablespoon vinegar, and 1 teaspoon cornstarch. In 2-cup measure. Microwave on 100% power 1 1/2 minutes or until slightly thickened. Stir after first minute.

To serve with the ham try these Sugared Plums. Plums of all varieties are plentiful and inexpensive now. Buy fruit that is soft not hard, that has no skin breaks or brown discolorations. I used the red plums when I prepared this recipe and the results were good.

SUGARED PLUMS

1/4 cup butter or margarine

1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
6 large ripe plums, halved and pitted

In a small dish, melt butter on 100% power 50-60 seconds. Combine sugars and cinnamon in a small bowl. Dip plum halves in butter, roll in cinnamon-sugar, coating well. Place in a shallow 8-inch round baking dish. Cover with wax paper. Microwave on 100% power 2-3 minutes, or until fork tender. Rearrange the fruit after half of the cooking time. Do not overcook or the plums will lose their shape. Let stand 1-2 minutes. Sprinkle with any left over sugar before serving with the meat or as meat garnish.

Buttered noodles served with the ham and fruit would provide color contrast, texture and flavor interest. When preparing a pasta (noodles) in the microwave oven follow these directions: cover and heat 6-8 cups hot water to a boil in a 3-quart casserole dish on 100% power. Add 8 oz. pkg. of pasta and 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 tablespoon oil, heat, uncovered on 100% power, stirring twice, test past for doneness, stir and let stand, covered 3 minutes, drain and rinse before serving. Add 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine and 1 tablespoon poppy seeds, salt and pepper to taste.

Succotash, a combination of lima beans and corn will round out the dinner menu except for dessert. Use frozen vegetables for speed and ease of preparation.

SUCCOTASH

1 package (10 ounce) frozen lima beans
1 package (10 ounce) frozen whole kernel corn
1/4 cup milk or light cream
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 teaspoon salt
pepper to taste

In a 2-quart casserole combine lima beans and corn; heat, covered 9-11 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring once. Stir in remaining ingredients; heat covered, 1-2 minutes, or until heated through.

A light dessert would be appropriate for this meal, lemon sherbet would be refreshing, however, if time allows and you want to do something special for your family, Lemon Cheesecake Bars would fill the bill. These can be made earlier in the day to free the microwave oven to use for dinner preparation.

LEMON CHEESECAKE BARS

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 package (8 ounce) cream cheese

1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel

1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons milk

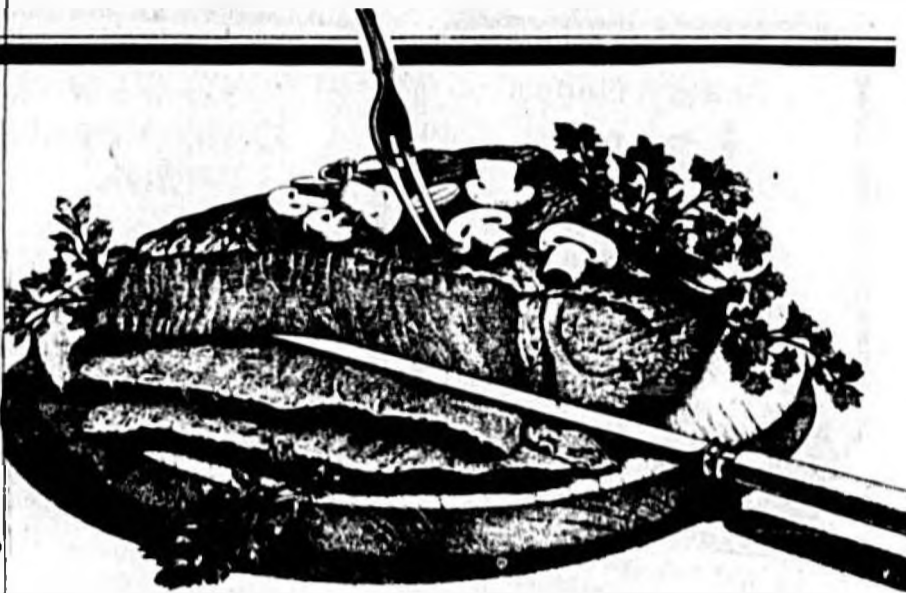

Mix butter, brown sugar, and salt. Add oats and flour. Beat at low speed until particles are fine. Reserve 1 cup. Press remaining crumbly mixture in 8 x 8-inch baking dish. Microwave at 50% power 3-7 1/2 minutes, or just until done.

Microwave cream cheese in small mixing bowl at 50% power for 30 seconds. Add remaining ingredients; blend well. Sprinkle over bars. Sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Microwave on 100% power for 6-10 minutes, or until firm in center. Cool and refrigerate.

Tender.

Sizzling steaks hot off the grill, barbecued chicken, juicy roast beef. No matter how you prepare it, start with the best. Tender, juicy flavorful meats from Publix.

Victorian Nurseries Popular

By PATRICIA McCORMACK United Press International

A Victorian influence has crept into the nation's nurseries, says Delores Lehr, vice president of the Dallas Market Center. That was her impression after touring the Summer Home Furnishings Market at the Dallas World Trade Center, held for buyers from across the country. "They call it 'Grandmother Ball,' those absolutely irreplaceable — and expensive — nursery looks that combine lace, intricately designed metal cribs and enchanting reproduction children's chairs," she said.

"But grandmothers are not the only ones these days willing to order the $1,000 cribs and the $400 chairs. Career mothers who waited to have their children later in life and whose own considerable income can give them the necessary financial cushion realize that this may be their only offspring. "They are frequently willing to pamper both baby and mother with these expensive accoutrements."

Iron Design's solid brass cribs and cradles were shown by Nollner and Associates. Made in El Dorado, Ark., the line replicates elaborate white iron beds popular during America's earlier days, Miss Lehr said in an interview.

These $995 cribs boast removable canopies. There are matching cradles — waist-high and costing $600.

Suitable for decorating the cradle are Country Design linens — matching sheets, dustruffle, comforter, bumper pads and baby pillows in many colors and designs.

Durward Nollner said the crib sets are dubbed "Country Pleasures" and sell well all across the country. Each set is handmade in Abilene, Texas.

Say 'Cheese' For Creativity In Easy Meals For Summer

The following recipes using cheese have been kitchen-tested by the Kraft Kitchens. Take your choice for quality dining during the summer season — from hearty and healthy salads, a quick sandwich, a luscious molded dessert and an elegant entree.

HEARTY ANTIPASTO SALAD TOSTS

1 4-oz. pkg. pepperoni slices
 1/4 cup Italian dressing
 1 qt. torn assorted greens
 1/2 cup red onion rings
 1 medium tomato, cut into wedges
 1/2 cup pitted ripe olive slices
 1/4 cup (1 oz.) grated parmesan cheese
 1 4-oz. pkg. shredded natural low moisture part-skim mozzarella cheese
 Fry pepperoni in skillet drain. Add dressing; heat thoroughly. Add to combined greens, onion, tomato, olives and parmesan cheese; toss lightly. Add mozzarella cheese; toss lightly.
 3 to 4 servings.

CALIFORNIA HAM SANDWICH

1 croissant, split
 Mayonnaise
 Boiled ham slices
 American singles pasteurized process cheese food
 Peeled avocado slices
 Spread croissant with mayonnaise; fill with remaining ingredients.
 1 sandwich

MONTEREY VEGETABLE SALAD

1 1/2 cups 1/2-inch carrot pieces, cooked, chilled
 1 10-oz. pkg. frozen peas, cooked, chilled
 4 ozs. natural monterey jack cheese, cubed
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 1/2 cup halved cucumber slices
 1/4 teaspoon curry powder
 Combine ingredients; mix lightly. Chill.
 6 servings.

Variation: Substitute 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard for curry powder.

GARDEN PRIMAVERA

2 cups broccoli flowerets
 1 cup carrot slices
 1/4 cup margarine
 1/2 lb. pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed
 1 cup mushroom slices
 2 tablespoons milk
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 7 ozs. spaghetti, broken, cooked, drained

In 12-inch skillet, stir-fry broccoli and carrot in margarine until crisp-tender. Add process cheese spread, mushroom, milk and parsley; stir over low heat until process cheese spread is melted. Add spaghetti to vegetable mixture; toss lightly. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Serve immediately.
 4 servings.

Variation: Add 6 1/2 oz. can tuna, drained, flaked, with cooked spaghetti to vegetable mixture.

CREAMY NECTARINE MOLD WITH STRAWBERRY SAUCE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 1/2 cup cold water
 1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup milk
 2 tablespoons orange flavored liqueur
 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
 1 nectarine sliced

1 pt. strawberries, sliced
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon orange flavored liqueur

Soften gelatin in water; stir over low heat until dissolved. Combine cream cheese and sugar, mixing until well blended. Gradually add gelatin, milk and liqueur; mixing until blended. Fold in whipping cream. Spoon 1/4 cup cream cheese mixture into lightly oiled 1-quart mold. Arrange nectarine in cream cheese mixture; top with remaining cream cheese mixture. Chill until firm. Unmold onto serving plate.

Combine strawberries, sugar and liqueur; let stand 10 minutes. Serve with mold.
 6 to 8 servings.

Variation: Substitute orange juice for orange flavored liqueur. Add 1 teaspoon grated orange rind to cream cheese mixture.

CHEDDAR CHICKEN ROLLUPS

2 chicken breasts, split, boned, skinned (approximately 1/2 lb. each)
 2 tablespoons chopped chives
 4 ozs. sharp natural cheddar cheese, cut into 4 sticks
 2 eggs, beaten
 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs

1 tablespoon sesame seed, toasted margarine
 Flatten chicken breasts to 1/4-inch thickness. Sprinkle with chives. Roll each piece around stick of cheese. Secure with wooden picks. Dip in egg; coat with combined crumbs and sesame seed. Repeat for each piece. Brown in margarine. Bake at 375 degrees, 20 minutes.

 4 servings.

Make ahead: Prepare as directed except for baking. Wrap securely; freeze. When ready to serve, bake unwrapped at 400 degrees, 45 minutes.

Potatoes Go International With Variety Of Exotic Dips

Americans love French fries. Over 50% of all frozen vegetables sold are fries, and they represent over 80% of all forms of frozen potatoes consumed in this country. Most are eaten salted or with ketchup. But fries can become an exciting snack when served with exotic international dips.

When choosing frozen fries, it's important to select spuds with the proper texture and taste. The best are firm with a mealy texture that holds up well when dipping. Idaho's famed Russet Burbank potatoes are noted for being dry and mealy.

They also have a distinctively rich taste. It pays to look for the "Grown in Idaho" seal on the package to ensure fries are of the finest quality.

To enhance these premium potatoes, Mexican Guacamole, Turkish Imam Bayildi and Indian Raita Dips make excellent accompaniments. Guacamole is named after two Nahuatl Indian words for "avocado concoction."

Tantalizingly pale green and zesty with the accent of chili peppers and garlic, New Guacamole Dip is a version that includes low-fat cottage cheese.

Since avocado pulp turns brown after exposure to air, Guacamole is best served immediately. To hold it for a short period, cover the dip tightly with plastic wrap.

Imam Bayildi Dip is a rich Middle Eastern mixture featuring eggplant. Legend has it that a Turkish priest (imam) fainted (bayildi) when he discovered that his bride used up the entire dowry of olive oil preparing a few eggplant dishes. To quickly make a batch of fries to indulge in this specialty, heat the spuds in a toaster oven. It saves energy in warm weather, and frozen Idaho spuds make it convenient to vary portion size as needed.

A third tasty seasoning for French fries is Raita Dip. Raita are refreshingly cool dishes that combine yogurt with vegetables or fruit. The dip is like a slimmed-down variation of a creamy cucumber dressing.

Whatever the form of fries — shoestring, crinkle-cut, cottage or home — they can all be enjoyed in a new way with international dips.

NEW GUACAMOLE DIP
(Avocado-Cheese Dip)
1 large ripe avocado, peeled, pit removed
1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese
1 clove garlic
1 large canned or fresh chili pepper
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 medium tomato, finely chopped
In blender container or food processor combine avocado, cheese, garlic, chili pepper, lemon juice, chili powder and salt; process until smooth. Stir in tomato. Serve at room temperature.
YIELD: About 1 1/2 cups.

IMAM BAYILDI DIP
(Mid-Eastern Eggplant-Tomato Dip)
1/4 cup olive oil
1 small eggplant, chopped (about 3 cups)*
3 large ripe tomatoes, peeled, chopped (about 1 1/2 cups)
1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons capers
8 large pimiento stuffed olives
1/4 cup chopped parsley
In large skillet heat oil; stir in eggplant, tomatoes, onion, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring often, until vegetables are soft (about 10 minutes). Spoon vegetables into blender container; add capers and olives. Process until smooth. Stir in parsley. Serve at room temperature.
YIELD: About 3 cups.

*Note: If desired, bitter flavor of older eggplants can be removed by soaking chopped eggplant in a solution of salt water (1 teaspoon per 2 cups of water) for 15 minutes. Drain well before cooking.

RAITA DIP
(Indian Yogurt-Cucumber Dip)
2 cups plain yogurt
1/2 cup pared, finely chopped cucumber, well drained
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 tablespoon chopped fresh mint or 1 teaspoon dried mint
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
In medium bowl combine all ingredients; mix well. Serve at room temperature.
YIELD: About 2 1/4 cups.
