L.A. schools gear up for strike

LOS ANGELES — With an estimated 20,000 union teachers headed for the first strike in the nation's second largest school district in 19 years, police in gang-plagued areas worried about public safety with "all these little predators out on the street."

Wayne Johnson, president of United Teachers-Los Angeles, which represents 22,000 teachers, said late Sunday it would "take a miracle" to prevent Monday's scheduled strike — the union's first since 1970.

Several hours of talks among all seven members of the Board of Education with district lawyers Saturday produced no changes in their offer of a three-year, 21.5 percent salary increase for teachers.

Students end hunger strike

AMHERST, Mass. — University of Massachusetts students ended a weeklong hunger strike against military-funded research on campus and agreed not to hold further protests in exchange for amnesty for themselves and scores of other students arrested in similar demonstrations, officials said Sunday.

Both the hunger strikers and other protesters also agreed to perform some community service as restitution for disrupting the campus and the $100,000 which officials estimated the take-overs cost in extra police pay.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson said arrested students would not be reinstated until the community service had been completed.

Gorbachev arrives in China

BEIJING — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev came to China Monday for the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years, but pro-democracy student protests forced the government to move the official welcoming ceremony and delay the opening of the talks for several hours.

Gorbachev was greeted warmly by his official host, President Yang Shangkun, in the Great Hall of the People as tens of thousands of students and supporters gathered outside in Tiananmen Square demanding greater political freedom from the Chinese government.

The talks began shortly after 6 p.m. — almost two hours later than originally scheduled because of the 3-day-old student takeover of the square opposite the Great Hall.

Flames win Cup opener

CALGARY, Alberta — The Calgary Flames accomplished in one shot Sunday night what the Philadelphia Flyers could not do in six games against the Montreal Canadiens — score a power play goal.

The first of two goals by defenseman Al MacInnis came on Calgary's first power play of the Stanley Cup final, and immediately demonstrated that the Canadiens — like every other NHL team — are vulnerable when playing a man short.

"Montreal is a very good power play killing team," Flames Coach Terry Crisp said after his club posted a 3-2 victory in Game 1 of the NHL championship series. "It was nice to get one early so we can say the odd time we get a man advantage we can put it in the net."

The Flames scored once in four power play tries. Philadelphia was blanked in 24 attempts the previous round, and Montreal had surrendered just two man-advantage goals in 54 postseason chances entering the game.

Boy Guess' nickname, '31,' has been with him for years

106-year-old man recalls life as a Georgia farmer

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — They call him "31," but his real name is Boy Guess and he turned 106 years old last month.

Guess relaxes on the screened porch of a Midway home behind the Midway Elementary School. It's the home of his friend, Christine Bryant, with whom he has lived for the past 20 years.

Guess is a friendly man who enjoys talking about himself. Worlds of memories stream from his eyes.

With Guess, everything in his long life seems to have happened 12 miles from Albany, Ga., in Worth County. It's where he was born and where he married. Georgia is where he worked on the plantation with his father.

His stories revolve around Georgian farm life: raising hogs and cows, picking, barre and playing cards or skin games, with his buddies. His nickname of "31" has followed him since those gambling days as a boy.

"You ain't never seen a Georgia skin game? That's all over the world — Georgia skin games," he says.

Guess says in Georgia he lived in a very big frame house with his parents and six other siblings. Guess

NASA unveils new order for 1989 shuttle launches

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA apparently plans to close out 1989 with a flurry of launch activity, including three flights between Oct. 12 and the end of the year, and pushing the launch of the Hubble Space Telescope into 1990.

In a three-paragraph statement, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced a new order for the next seven Shuttle missions, which has been under debate for several weeks.

While NASA declined to release any launch dates, sources said recent internal planning documents listed the following dates for the mission order announced by the space agency.

- July 31: The flagship Shuttle Columbia takes off on a classified military mission, its last flight since January, 1986, and its second in more than six years. Columbia must make it off the ground by Aug. 24 at the latest to avoid delaying the next Shuttle flight.
- Oct. 12: The shuttle Atlantis carries the Galileo Jupiter probe into space.
- Nov. 19: Another military payload is carried into orbit by the Shuttle Discovery.
- December: Columbia returns to space to launch a military communications satellite and to retrace the long-duration Exposure Facility, or LDEF, a science satellite left in orbit in 1984. Because LDEF is rapidly losing altitude, this mission could be postponed as early as Dec. 1.
- Feb. 19: Atlantis blasts off on a military mission.
- March 26: Discovery carries the Hubble Space Telescope into orbit, three months later than had been planned.
- April 26: Columbia returns to orbit for a scientific astronomy mission.

The two missions that have the most impact on the Shuttle are the launch of Galileo and the LDEF mission. Galileo, a $1.4-billion probe probe, bound for Jupiter, must be launched within a specific period starting Oct. 12 on the probe to reach its distant target. If Atlantis misses this launch window, for any reason, Galileo will be grounded indefinitely.

LDEF was dropped off in space in 1984 to expose a variety of materials to the harsh environment of space. The 8-halftone exposure in 1986 delayed the Shuttle's return and now it is quickly losing altitude, the victim of atmospheric friction of orbit.

City plans to preserve bird feeding

Outdated codes eliminated; plastic-bag trash targeted

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — "We're not bounty hunters," city building official Gary Winn said about his recommended amendments to city code. "We just want to have something so we have a way to address legitimate complaints."

The city commission last week approved on first reading revisions to the code that Winn called either archaic or difficult to enforce.

One code revision eliminates a clause requiring police to shoot pigeons within the city. He said the code was probably written to address a pigeon problem downtown when the zoo and jail were there.

"I've been here 19 years and I don't ever recall anyone getting out and shooting pigeons," Winn said.

The revision would regulate pigeon feeding in the city. Winn added a clause making it illegal "to create a nuisance by feeding wild pigeons."

Winn said the code will not prohibit "innocent feeding" of a few pigeons. The revision was needed "when it creates a nuisance for the neighborhood," he said.

Backyard feeders and feeding of gulls at the lakefront would not be prohibited under the revised code, Winn said.

Another code revision includes rabbits in the category of "grazing animals." The existing code makes it illegal to keep horses, mules, cows or other grazing animals in the city without a permit.

Angry players call for new Lotto drawing

United Press International

FALLAHASSEE — Angry Lotto players, surprised by an apparent mechanical snafu that disrupted the weekly televised drawing, called on lottery officials Sunday to scrap the results and pick six new numbers.

"My faith is busted," said Marilyn Cochran in Miami. "They didn't actually show the numbers come out of the machine. It is upsetting, because it could be any old numbers that they picked."

Meanwhile, lottery officials said no one correctly picked the six winning numbers, so the grand prize was rolled over. Next week's jackpot is estimated at $16 million.

Lottery officials said the televised drawing Saturday night was disrupted when one of 49 balls became lodged in a loading chute.

Auditors declared a mishap, and the drawing was restarted according to the lottery's established back-up procedures, lottery officials said.

The six winning numbers — 2, 11, 12, 14, 28 and 46 — were certified by the auditors, officials said.

But Cochran, who said she spends $20 a week on Lotto tickets, said lottery officials should hold another drawing.

"I'm not going to buy any more lottery tickets in Florida," she said. "I think they owe us an explanation. They should do it again."

Carol Odom discusses special election

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

Editor's note: Jeffrey R. Morton won a special election last Tuesday for Carol Odom's District 3 commission seat, receiving 408 votes, or about 90.5 percent, compared to his opponent Perry E. Faulkner's 43 votes. Odom supporters say she received write-in votes.

Three of the four commissioners voted to remove Odom on Feb. 27, saying she had violated the city charter when she interfered with day-to-day city business.

Odom is suing the city to regain her seat. In this tape-recorded interview conducted after the special election, Odom talks about her removal from office and the election.

Q: You have stated you felt the special election was not valid. Why?

A: Because the removal was not valid.

Carol Odom

Q: Did you know your backers would write in votes for you? What statement were they trying to make?

A: They felt that I was still the commissioner. I think everybody knew that the vote wouldn't count you know, that I wouldn't win the election as such, but that they were saying in their mind I was still the commissioner. I got a call Monday night. He [the person on the line] said, "Hey, Carol, are you going to vote?" and I said no. He said, "Tell you what we're going to do. We're going to write in your name." He said, "There was a group of us together and we're having a write-in to show support for you and we want you to

New bidder surfaces for Eastern

MIAMI — Another bidder for strikebound Eastern Airlines stepped forward over the weekend, at a time when Eastern's own plans for rebuilding the carrier as a smaller, more viable airline appeared to be gaining momentum.

Joseph Ritchie, a Chicago options trader, and an investor group submitted a proposal to buy Eastern on Saturday. The Ritchie offer followed an earlier bid by another group led by former Piedmont Airlines Chairman William Howard.

Both bids are expected to be considered Wednesday along with Eastern's own plans for reorganization, during a bankruptcy court hearing in New York.

On Sunday, Eastern again placed advertisements in major newspapers for pilots and mechanics to replace its striking workers.

Eastern, formerly the nation's seventh largest airline, has flown only about 10 percent of its pre-strike flight schedule since ground workers and pilots walked off the job March 4.

The ads recruiting mechanics appeared Sunday in newspapers in Miami, Tampa, Atlanta, New Orleans, New York, Houston and Denver, said Eastern spokesman Robin Matell.

Eastern's parent company, Texas Air Corp. of Houston, says it intends to rebuild Eastern as a smaller, profitable airline after selling off assets worth about $1.8 billion. The company has insisted the airline itself is not for sale since an earlier, $464 million deal with Peter Ueberroth collapsed.

Teacher's name oredred off abusers list

MIAMI — An appeals court has scolded the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services for refusing to remove the name of a teacher from its list of child abusers, even though the teacher was cleared of any wrongdoing.

The Third District Court of Appeal ordered the state agency to remove the teacher's name from the list, and it rebuked the agency for failing to do so earlier. The court said it was troubled by the incident.

The teacher's name had been added to the list after she injured a student while trying to stop a shoving match between the child and another student at Douglas Elementary School in 1987.

The teacher's action caused one of the children to lose a patch of hair in the scuffle, but a state hearing officer concluded last year that the injury was accidental. The teacher's action was neither intentional nor negligent, the hearing officer found.

But HRS refused to take the teacher's name off its child abuse registry. The agency claimed the teacher had used excessive force.

A three-judge panel ruled that HRS's action was improper, in a ruling released last week.

Biography of Jackie O. criticized

MIAMI — The author of a bestselling biography of Jackie Kennedy Onassis is being criticized by other authors and his own sources, some of whom question the accuracy and originality of his book.

C. David Heymann defended his book, "A Woman Named Jackie," in a 45-minute telephone interview with The Miami Herald, saying he made tapes of most of the interviews he conducted while researching the book.

But Heymann's publicist said those tapes won't be released, unless someone files a lawsuit against the author.

The Miami Herald Sunday published excerpts of Heymann's book side by side with similar passages from other, earlier biographies of Jackie.

The Herald said portions of Heymann's book closely resemble passages from Kitty Kelley's 1978 biography, "Jackie Oh," Ralph Martin's "A Hero for Our Time," and "The Kennedys: An American Drama" by Peter Collier and David Harowitz.

The Herald said Heymann, 44, ended his interview with the newspaper without answering questions about Kelley's book.

Some authors told the Herald they doubt Heymann ever spoke to sources he claims to have interviewed for the book, Heymann denies the accusation.

Sea turtle law said jeopardized

St. Petersburg — A lack of manpower, coupled with the need for enforcement officers to hitch rides with the Coast Guard, may render the new sea turtle protection law useless, officials said Sunday.

A law went into effect last week requiring shrimpers to install a device that allows the endangered sea turtle to escape from their nets. The problem now is finding a way to enforce the law throughout the southeast with only 18 federal agents.

"I think we are the smallest law enforcement agency that exists in the federal government except for the Smithsonian police," said Gene Prouty, assistant agent in charge of the National Marine Fisheries Service, Southeast region. "Even the Supreme Court has more cops than we do."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

State's tourism record falling

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida will pass a statistical milestone by hosting 40 million visitors this year, according to an updated forecast of the state's tourism industry prepared by the Florida Department of Commerce in conjunction with the state's revenue economists.

The new forecast reflects data compiled during the Florida Economic and Revenue Estimating Conference in March and indicates an 8.2 percent increase over last year's estimated visitor total of 37 million. Over 42 million travelers will visit the state in 1990, a 5.7 percent increase over the new 1989 estimate.

The first ever forecast on tourism statistics prepared by Commerce was released in February and predicted that 38.7 million visitors would come to Florida by the end of 1989, a 6.2 percent increase over the 1988 total. During the first months of the year, however, the figures have been much higher than anticipated. There was an 18.6 percent increase in visitors during January and 8.4 percent in February.

The forecast does not take into account such unpredictable variables as the dramatic rise in gasoline prices after the disaster in Valdez, Alaska, or the rise in basic air fares that followed the strike against Eastern Air Lines.

The Commerce Department took several steps to develop its visitor forecast. The first was to develop a historical data series going back to 1980 for all air and auto visitors in Florida. Using those statistics, preliminary forecasts were prepared considering such factors as real disposable income, currency exchange rates, transportation costs, fuel prices and unemployment rates.

The Department then surveyed industry experts as to their future expectations in particular industry segments. These included restaurants, attractions, hotels and motels, and campgrounds. This information has then been considered by the State's revenue economists in deciding on a consensus economic forecast for the state.

Oh, what a life

Highway Patrol warns of speed crackdown

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Highway Patrol says that intensive speed limit enforcement efforts are beginning in high non-compliance areas throughout the state. This comes as a result of information that speeding violations in certain areas are on the increase.

"We will be targeting our enforcement efforts in those areas that have historically been identified as high non-compliance highways," stated Director Bobby R. Burkett.

"All of the hot spots where speeding violation are increasing will not immediately be disclosed, however, they will become self-evident when our patrol force moves in for the crackdown," Burkett added.

All of FHP's 10 aircraft statewide will be devoted to speed enforcement coupled with stepped-up applications of radar, visor, and use of unmarked patrol cars.

"Motorists have become complacent toward the changing speed zones in areas where 45 mph is permitted. It seems once a driver enters a 65 mph zone, he or she will maintain that speed through highly populated and traffic congested areas where limits have been reduced. To allow this repeated trend of excessive speeds is not acceptable and will be met with active and sustained enforcement countermeasures," Burkett concluded.

Attorney predicts abortion will withstand challenge

United Press International

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH — A prominent pro-choice lawyer predicts the U.S. Supreme Court will not use a current Missouri case to overturn its 16-year-old landmark decision legalizing abortion.

The justices may, however, use other cases to overturn Roe vs. Wade, which legalized most abortions in 1973, said Dana Klassel, a lawyer for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

"The real rocky road is yet to come. I think this is just a warning," Klassel said Saturday at a "Women, Children and the Law" conference.

Klassel, 41, helped write the pro-choice legal brief for the current case, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services, which centers on a Missouri law restricting abortions. The court is expected to rule on the Missouri case by July 4.

Klassel said she does not expect the court to return regulation of abortion to the states, which "would be a disaster."

But there are three other cases scheduled this fall that could be used to chip away at Roe, said Klassel, who said the greatest threat to the statute is that three of the pro-choice justices are in their 80s.

If one of those justices is lost, anti-abortionists probably will become the majority in the court, she said.

Activists on both sides have increased efforts to sway the Supreme Court.

About 300,000 pro-choice demonstrators marched in Washington, D.C., last month.

Members of the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue and others have been arrested around the country for trying to close clinics that do abortions.

Police find contraband in car

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly threw an open beer bottle from his car when being confronted by Casselberry police was charged with possession of an open container of alcohol, possession of alcohol by someone under 21, and littering.

David John Catalano, 30, of Winter Park, is also charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, reportedly found in his car. He was arrested behind the Freedom Bank, State Road 436, Casselberry, at about 7:12 a.m. Wednesday. Bond is $500.

Two arrested after search

APOPKA — A rural Apoka couple was arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and possession with intent to distribute after City County Investigative Bureau agents found contraband in their house Wednesday night.

A narcotics bust in Orange County led agents to the Apopka house at 7078 Rock Garden Circle, as the reputed source of the marijuana sold in the Orange County case, agents reported.

Arrested there at 12:21 a.m. Thursday were Mary J. Adkins, 34, and Avis Adkins, 28. Bond is $3,000 each.

Burglary and theft charged

SANFORD — Scott Eugene Dunn, 25, of 2018 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, was arrested Friday in connection with a burglary Thursday or Friday to a business at 11 Magnolia Ave. Witnesses helped lead police to a suspect like burglary Sanford.

Dunn was arrested at the Jacobs' Building Apt. Sunglasses and two watches were among the items stolen. Dunn is charged with burglary and grand theft. Bond is $5,000.

Man charged with buying cocaine

SANFORD — Sanford police charged Agustin Lopez, 41, of 3530 E. Celery Ave., Sanford, with possession of cocaine, after they reportedly saw him buy cocaine from a street dealer at about 7:25 a.m. Friday.

The arrest was made on West Fifth Street. The reputed dealer got away. Bond is $3,000.

Two arrested for DUI

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• Harold Jeffrey Lilly, 31, of Deltona, was arrested at 8:20 p.m. Friday after his car was in an accident on Interstate 4, Lake Mary.

• Erik Hamm, 46, of 173 Sheridan Ave., Longwood, was arrested at 1:42 a.m. Saturday on Interstate 4, Lake Mary, after his car was seen weaving.

Motorcycle riders arrested

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A passenger on the back of a motorcycle grabbed a woman's purse at the Altamonte Mall at about 12:57 p.m. Thursday and set off a police chase that ended in capture after about five minutes.

Altamonte Springs police pursued the fleeing cycle at speeds of about 70 mph from Palm Springs Boulevard to Rock Lake Elementary School on Slade Drive, Longwood. The riders abandoned the bike and fled on foot at the school. Longwood police and sheriff's deputies joined the pursuit. Police chased the men on foot and caught them in a yard at 643 Sweet Briar Branch.

The driver of the bike, Ronald Joseph Wallace, 19, of Orlando, is charged with reckless driving, culpable negligence, and resisting arrest without violence. Both he and Earl William Dease, 19, of Orlando, are charged with strong arm robbery, grand theft and fleeing to elude police. Bond is $3,000 each.

Accused crack cocaine dealer arrested

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — An 18-year-old Altamonte Springs man accused of selling $20 worth of crack cocaine to an undercover City County Investigative Bureau agent outside the Joy gas station, State Road 436, rural Altamonte Springs, ran as agents moved to arrest him.

Anton Fitzgerald Weems, of 1212 North St., was caught about 200 yards from the scene and charged with selling cocaine and resisting arrest without violence. The arrest was made at 9:26 p.m. Thursday. Bond is $5,000.

Woman hit, man jailed

SANFORD — A Sanford woman told police she was trying to break up an argument between her husband and another man when the other man hit her in the face as police arrived on the scene.

That brought a charge of battery against Tyrone Eugene Taylor, of 21 Cowan Moughton Terrace, who is accused of hitting Arletha Games outside 21 Higgins Terrace, at about 10:10 p.m. Thursday. Bond is $500.

Woman reports rape

FERN PARK — A 24-year-old Fern Park woman who was sunbathing went into her house at about 1:30 p.m. Thursday to answer her phone. Inside the house on Carrolwood Boulevard, she was confronted and raped by a stranger.

Seminole County sheriff's investigator Janice Walthers said the woman fought the man and suffered some relative minor injuries during the attack. The rapist did not brandish a weapon, Walthers said.

The rapist is white and about 35 years old, a sheriff's report said.

Plantation's parent seeks protection

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Directors for Lincoln Savings and Loan have filed suit against the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in U.S. District Court, contesting the April 14 takeover of the thrift by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Lincoln Savings is the parent company of AMCOR Investment Corp., developers of the controversial 420-home Plantation project adjacent to the Wekiva River. Lincoln's parent corporation is American Continental Corp. of Phoenix, Ariz.

An American Continental spokesman said the Phoenix-based company hopes to have the conservatorship management of the FSLIC removed from Lincoln Savings in hopes of protecting its subsidiaries, including AMCOR, from liquidation at values far less than their potential value.

American Continental officials said the FSLIC takeover amounted to a taking without compensation, a corporate spokesman said. The spokesman said the suit, filed Friday, alleges the bank board had no justification to order the takeover by the FSLIC because the bank was operated in a satisfactory manner.

A spokesman for the bank board in Washington, D.C., was unaware of the action and had no comment. The bank board oversees the FSLIC and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The move by American Continental is the latest effort by company officials to protect their assets, including AMCOR's Plantation, from federal regulators. American Continental and 11 Lincoln subsidiaries filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on April 13, anticipating a takeover of Lincoln Savings by federal bank regulators.

American Continental spokesman Mark Connally said the Chapter 11 filing helped assure consideration of a federal bankruptcy judge before bank regulators tried to sell assets of the subsidiaries, such as the Plantation project. On May 4, a Phoenix bankruptcy judge prohibited any asset sale by federal regulators without his consent, Connally said.

Officials from the FDIC, appointed as Lincoln's managing agent by the FSLIC, took over management of the thrift and its 29 branches April 14. The takeover followed an order from the bank board who found the thrift had violated federal banking laws, especially regarding its transactions with its affiliates.

In response to the takeover, American Continental filed a $150 million lawsuit against the bank board on April 17, seeking to stop the takeover.

On May 31, a hearing in U.S. District Court in Phoenix will consider whether the FDIC should manage the subsidiaries. Connally said American Continental hopes the Phoenix federal judge will find AMCOR and other Lincoln Savings subsidiaries should continue to develop the construction projects, not federal regulators.

The decision could decide the fate of Plantation, located on 473 acres west of Longwood-Markham Road. The plans are currently under review by state agencies. Seminole County commissioners gave their initial approval for the development March 28.

Environmentalists opposed AMCOR's 1986 plans to build 1,240 homes on the site. When county commissioners voted to deny that plan, AMCOR challenged the county decision to the governor and Cabinet, who upheld the county decision last year.

The revised 420-home plan has met with more favor by environmentalists, who said the "clustering" of homes away from the river offer more protection for the river and its sensitive habitat surrounding it. Homeowners in the Markham Road area still oppose the project, favoring a simple one-acre lot approach to the clustering plan.

2 teens who shot at cops get probation

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Two teenagers who were accused of firing several shots at a Sanford police lieutenant last October were sentenced to a year's probation by Seminole Circuit Judge O.H. Easton Jr.

Ned Acree Jr., 17, and William Bradley, 16, were originally charged with attempted murder but were allowed to plead no contest to assaulting a law enforcement officer, improper exhibition of a firearm and firing a gun in public.

Besides the probation, Judge Eaton sentenced each to 151 days in jail, which they had already served awaiting sentencing.

He also sentenced them to perform 40 hours of community service, abide by a curfew, and avoid seeing or talking to each other while on probation.

The judge also told the boys to get part-time jobs and go to school.

They were accused of firing at Lt. Ralph Russell as he was on night patrol near Fifth Street and Oleander Avenue last October. Russell's patrol car ran into a hail of gunfire as he drove down the street.

Authorities suspected the boys of trying to kill Lt. Russell because he and the officer he commanded were cracking down on drug sales and use in the area.

County weighs demolitions

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners must decide whether to condemn 12 dilapidated, vacant houses on July 11.

Eight of the houses are located in Midway or in nearby Canaan.

County condemnation inspector Sid Nabavi reported to commissioners last week that the roofs and walls of many of the homes were damaged beyond what could be reasonably repaired. Electrical wiring in most of the homes were either damaged or decayed to the point where their use would be dangerous, Nabavi found.

None of the Midway homes had evidence of septic tanks or drainfields, Nabavi reported. All of them are considered fire hazards, he said.

If commissioners condemn the homes on July 11, the owners will have up to 15 days to demolish them. Nabavi said. If the owners fail to demolish the homes within that time, the county will hire wrecking crews to tear down the houses and liens will be placed against the owner's property to assure payment of county expenses.

County commissioners approve phone additions

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously have approved a $169,074 addition to their new $1.3 million telephone system last week to include a microwave link-up with the environmental services building, the health department and the juvenile justice building.

Originally, the telephone system in the county services building was designed to connect with environmental services and the health department by lines, but subsequent review determined the microwave link-up would be substantially cheaper because of the on-going line lease costs.

The system, designed by Vista United Telecommunications of Lake Buena Vista, uses microwave connections to the courthouse, state's attorney's offices and Five Points complex from the county services building. The system is expected to be installed by October.

Your Doctor's Why

Doctors' Reports "Overweight Patients Lose Too Much Weight!"

ORANGE, CA — A significant weight loss breakthrough of unprecedented magnitude has just been made. A new bioactive diet pill program containing amazing "E.A.B. Plus" has been perfected and is being marketed under the tradename Anorex 2000.

Researchers are calling it the "diet miracle of the '90s." Anorex 2000 with "E.A.B. Plus" actually turns the body into a "fat burning machine" which consumes its own stored fat, flab and cellulite thus shedding pounds and inches like magic. A panel of leading U.S. doctors and health experts found Anorex 2000 "safe for effective weight loss." However it is an extremely powerful anorectic - instructions should be followed carefully.

Expense Delays Marketing
Anorex 2000 was developed after years of expensive research. Consequently it is not cheap - but it works! As one doctor commented, "My patients would pay many times the cost of Anorex 2000 to finally lose all the weight they want and need to lose - to finally realize their dreams of a thin, beautiful, healthy body. Some of my overweight patients actually lost too much weight with Anorex 2000."

Free 30 Day Trial Offer
Anorex 2000 is so effective and the results are so astonishing that the manufacturer is offering a 30 day free trial. If you postdate your check a full 30 days, it will be held to let you prove to yourself that you can safely lose all the weight you want. If you are not 100% satisfied with the remarkable change you see in the mirror, just return your Anorex 2000 and your check will be destroyed uncashed. You have no risk - you can't lose money, only years of unwanted fat and years off your appearance.

Send check or money order for $36.45 ($35.00 for shipping and handling for a 30 day supply) or $64.00 ($23.50 for a 60 day supply) to Anorex 2000, 4642 E. Chapman Ave., Dept. A53, Orange, CA 92669. For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY simply call Anorex 2000 - 24 hours a day, 7 days a week TOLL FREE: 1-800-611-2222, Dept. A53, and use your VISA, MasterCard or American Express. Sorry, no C.O.D.s.

(Note: Because Anorex 2000 is such a powerful weight loss compound, doctors have advised the manufacturer to sell no more than one 60 day supply per customer. ©1989 - 1-800-611-2222 Dept. A53)

Belated actions

It is instructive to note, in reading the memoirs of veteran U.S. diplomat George Kennan, that virtually all of the public figures with whom Kennan came in contact during his distinguished 27-year professional career were men. The dearth of women in the diplomatic corps, during Kennan's tenure and today, is at least partly explained by a history of sex discrimination at the State Department. It is a history that the department must work hard to reverse.

The department recently acknowledged that between 1976 and 1985 it discriminated against its female foreign service officers in hiring, assignments and honors. Today in the foreign service, there are 135 deputy chiefs of mission — that's the No. 2 position in an embassy — and only nine of them are women.

That's an appalling record. The discrimination harms those dedicated women who seek to serve their country in the diplomatic corps, and it discourages other women from seeking diplomatic careers. In the process, it deprives the diplomatic service of numerous talented people.

The department is taking steps to correct its history of sexism: It is revamping entrance exams, for example, and informing about 600 female foreign service officers that they may be entitled to new jobs. Secretary of State James Baker is also said by a spokesman to be "firmly committed to insuring that there be no discrimination in the Department of State at any time."

These actions are both welcome and belated. The department should not rest easy until the expression "Madame Ambassador" is no longer a novelty. Sexism may be a tradition in the foreign service, but it's one that is obsolete, unjust and harmful.

Is dove's demise a signal?

Could this be an omen?
Recently in Hungary, the Soviet Union began to carry out Mikhail Gorbachev's promise to withdraw some of its military forces from rations of the Warsaw Pact. At Kiskunhalas, 90 miles south of Budapest, 31 tanks of the 13th Armored Division were loaded onto flatbed railroad cars headed toward the Soviet Ukraine.

On hand to mark the departure, The New York Times reported, were foreign reporters and TV crews, Soviet and Hungarian officials, English-speaking Soviet officers — and Iona Staller.

Iona Staller is not particularly well-known in this country, but she certainly is known in Europe. Of Hungarian birth, she is a member of the Italian Parliament. Before she was elected last year, she was a strip-tease artist and pornographic movie actress. According to The Times, she has been known to show up at public occasions and revert to her former professions.

Ms. Staller did no such thing in Hungary this week, but she did release a white dove of peace beside the train. The poor creature was so frightened — the bird, we mean, not Ms. Staller — that it tumbled into the treads of a Soviet tank. The fatal treads were turning.

Bennett worries some in Congress

WASHINGTON — William Bennett has been in his new job as Director of Drug Policy for only two months, but already some of his actions — particularly his "emergency plan" for the District of Columbia — are worrying key congressmen.

During the Reagan administration Congress established a single cabinet-level office to coordinate all anti-drug efforts, both enforcement and treatment. Many wanted its head to be more than a so-called "drug czar." They wanted him to be a drug dictator, able to command the resources of any federal agency. However, this concept was bitterly opposed by the Reagan administration.

Finally, after years of debate, the drug policy office was established under a single director, Bennett, the former secretary of education. But this new drug czar was hardly given absolute power. His primary mission was to formulate a unified national enforcement and treatment policy, and then to coordinate that policy with numerous federal agencies.

The czar was effectively a general without troops, with no direct authority over the DEA, FBI, Customs Service, Coast Guard or any of the myriad federal agencies involved in the drug war. Rather than giving orders, his job would be to persuade these agencies to cooperate in fulfilling his plans.

Congress also mandated that the new czar operate with two high-level deputies — one involved on the "supply" side (enforcement), and one on the "demand" side (treatment and prevention).

For many congressmen, both Democrats and Republicans, the biggest concern was that the new czar would be a law-enforcement type who would focus solely on enforcement and ignore treatment and prevention.

Under law, Bennett has six months to come up with his initial program. But long before completing this review of past actions and formulating his own national plan, Bennett has chosen to attack the out-of-control drug problem here in Washington. The way he's gone about it has made some in Congress wonder if their worst fears about the drug czar are coming true.

Bennett's "emergency plan" for the District — carrying a price tag of about $80 million — calls for building more prison space, beefing up the court and prosecutor systems, and expanding a federally coordinated Washington-area task force.

As some in Congress see it, the problem with Bennett's program is that it is completely enforcement-orientated and seeks only very short-term solutions. Less than 5 percent of the money involved would go for treatment and prevention programs.

Most anti-drug experts agree that the District of Columbia's drug treatment program is a shambles. Originally designed to treat heroin addicts in the 1970s, it has been overwhelmed with thousands of new crack addicts seeking help. Heroin addiction is treated slowly over a long period with substitute drugs like methadone, crack addicts need quick and sharp intervention through detoxification, often many times.

Misgivings about the country

WASHINGTON — The Washington I am leaving behind for a two-month assignment in the Washington Post's London bureau is a notably different place from what it was in January, when George Bush took over the presidency and the 101st Congress began work.

The partisan, polarizing forces which had surged to tidal proportions late in the Reagan years have subsided. While there have been a few battles, notably the confirmation fight over John Tower, nothing has reached the level of bitterness produced by Robert Bork's appointment to the Supreme Court, or the Iran-contra affair, or the 1988 election campaign.

When Bush said on the Inaugural stand that "the American people...didn't send us here to bicker," he found a ready response from George Mitchell, the Democratic senator from Maine who was beginning his own tenure as Senate majority leader. And House Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas), who might have proved a harder case for Bush to woo, has been so preoccupied with defending himself against ethics charges that he has been out of commission.

The simple gestures that come easily to a couple as hospitable as George and Barbara Bush — the invitations to informal visits in the White House living quarters — have won him incalculable goodwill on Capitol Hill. Reporters are purring because Bush has restored frequent, businesslike and often informative news conferences to the White House agenda.

With all these healthy signs, it would be easy to leave with a feeling of confidence about the capital and the nation to which I will return come July. But there are three things which cause serious misgivings about the long-term direction of events.

The first is the tendency to postpone hard choices on issues that cry out for action. The obvious example is the federal budget deficit. The "bipartisan agreement" between leaders of Congress and the Bush administration, hatched at a Rose Garden ceremony a couple of weeks ago, is a fraud. Cooked numbers, fairy-tale economic assumptions and blatant evasions (such as the scheme to keep the costs of the savings-and-loan bailout "off-budget") permit the President and Congress to claim they are meeting the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction target.

But the tidal wave of borrowing goes on. And the day when the United States starts paying its bills is once again delayed.

Were this the only example, it would be bad enough. But procrastination is also the order of the day on the choice of weapons systems, on the formulation of a diplomatic response to Soviet president Mikhail Gorbachev's initiatives — and even on facing up to the cost of retaining capable men and women in key government jobs. Ducking decisions is becoming a way of life.

The second worrisome trend is the weakening of the office at the center of government: the presidency. Bush suffered the indignity of being the first newly elected President to have a Cabinet choice rejected by the Senate. After the Tower fiasco, he acquiesced in an agreement on aid to the Contras. It allows four separate congressional committees — by their own action — to override the President's policy and suspend payments authorized by a statute passed by Congress and signed into law by the chief executive.

This evasion of the Constitution was so smelly it had to be accomplished through a wide agreement, embodied in a letter from the Secretary of State. But the subterfuge does not lessen the corrosive quality of Bush's capitulation.

A further source of weakness in this presidency is Bush's striking inability to capture the attention of the country and rally public support for his policies. Press conferences are very important accountability devices, but in themselves they do not constitute an adequate communications strategy for a President.

Bush has not given an effective substantive speech that really shaped public opinion since his acceptance speech at the New Orleans convention last August. The reason may lie not in the shortcomings of the speech-writing staff since Peggy Noonan left, but in the fact that Bush doesn't have much to say.

For all of the period leading up to the 1988 election, Bush maintained that Ronald Reagan had set the nation on a new and good path and that no major initiatives were needed. Just make minor course corrections to adapt to changing conditions and find ad hoc solutions to problems — like the savings-and-loan crisis — which surfaced too late for Reagan to solve, and everything will be hunky-dory, Bush said.

Washington in general, and this President in particular, are not addressing those questions. And that is why I head overseas with many misgivings.

It would be easy to leave with a feeling of confidence about the capital

Air Force auditors hide bad findings

WASHINGTON — Nothing irks an Air Force flyboy more than some pencil pushing accountant who whines about wasteful spending. So it comes as no surprise that the Air Force tried to keep the lid on embarrassing findings by its own auditors. What is a surprise is that the pencil pushers apparently went along with the cover-up.

The Defense Department Inspector general, in an investigation of the Air Force Audit Agency, found plenty of evidence that the auditors don't play by the rules.

For example: The audit agency looked at an Air Force program that hands out salary advances to personnel who need cash to help defray the costs of moving to a new base. The advance, the equivalent of an interest-free loan, is frequently used to buy snowmobiles, new furniture and vacations. The audit agency polled 92 people and found that 68 of them had used the advance to buy a luxury item, and then took the maximum of two years to pay the money back.

Rather than embarrass the Air Force, the audit agency reported that the abuses were few and far between and that no new rules were needed.

The conclusions were milquetoast, but at least that audit was finished. The same cannot be said for others. Civilian auditors in the Air Force Audit Agency complained about monkey business at the agency last year in anonymous letters to the Defense Department Inspector general. Our associate Stewart Harris obtained one of those letters that accuses military auditors at the agency of throwing out the critical work of their civilian counterparts.

The inspector general found no "conclusive" evidence that reports were deliberately spiked, but plenty of evidence that Air Force audits often failed to meet professional standards and that some audits were never finished.

The official Air Force reason for stopping audits varied, but the result was always the same — the information was never released to the public or Congress.

Some audits were stopped after the Air Force brass complained about them. The early draft of one audit concluded that the Air Force could incur a $100 million liability on a contract for the Host Surveillance Tracking System because of "inappropriate actions" by the Air Force. Officials at the Air Force Space Division complained about the draft audit and it was ash canned.

Another audit that never saw the light of day uncovered unauthorized construction of an administrative building at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida. Instead of issuing the standard audit report, the Air Force Audit Agency wrote a letter to the base.

In some cases, the Air Force auditors failed to spell out how problems should be corrected. One nationwide audit found numerous violations of environmental regulations at 13 bases, but it made no specific recommendations for the bases. That left base officials unsure about what was expected of them.

The Air Force distributed draft audit reports to some of the offending bases and recalled the reports. According to the inspector general, the Air Force brass at the Pentagon was worried that the reports might become fodder for lawsuits by environmentalists. The result is that the Air Force may never get around to correcting the problems that it is too embarrassed to acknowledge.

The conclusions were milquetoast, but at least that audit was finished

USS America continues after explosion

NORFOLK, Va. — The aircraft carrier USS America, jarred by a fiery explosion that killed two crewmen, continued to sail Monday in the Atlantic Ocean toward deployment in the Mediterranean Sea and the Indian Ocean.

"The USS America is capable of continuing her assigned mission," Lt. Cmdr. Steve Burnett, a Navy spokesman, said Sunday. "Aircraft carriers have multiple systems and duplicate capabilities in order to be able to sustain damage and still perform assigned missions."

The explosion and fire Saturday aboard the 1,047-foot, 77,000-ton ship about 500 miles off North Carolina was the third major accident aboard a Navy vessel in a month.

Shipboard firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze, which broke out in the No. 2 fuel pump room at about 7 p.m. EDT, Burnett said at the Navy's Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk.

The Navy said the oil-fired carrier remained under its own power and was continuing on its previously scheduled mission, which had begun Thursday.

The two crewmen who died in the blaze were identified as Petty Officer 3rd Class Richard E. Childress, 22, of HamLake, Minn., and Airman Recruit Larry J. Brunson, 19, of Akron, Ohio.

Tourists: Alaska still beautiful

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Alaska tourism officials plan to use $4 million from Exxon to launch a national advertising campaign aimed at convincing vacationers that only a small portion of the state has been fouled by the nation's worst oil spill.

State officials ended a three-day conference Sunday by vowing to get out the message that tourists can still find the unspoiled Alaska they want to see, despite the 10.9-million gallon spill.

The Alaska Visitors Association wants to avoid the kind of panic that damaged European tourism when terrorist attacks frightened away untold thousands of travelers a few years ago.

To get out the word, they plan to use $4 million given by Exxon — the tourism group had asked Exxon for $14 million — to launch a four-week drive starting this week to convince Americans that Alaska remains a great vacation destination despite the spill.

Tourism is Alaska's third largest industry, after oil and fishing, and last year the 745,000 visitors left $500 million in Alaska at hundreds of businesses that generate 20,000 jobs, said State Director of Tourism Hugh Gellert.

Even more visitors were expected this year until the supertanker Exxon Valdez ran aground March 24, spilling millions of gallons of gooey oil into Prince William Sound, the Gulf of Alaska and onto the shores of southern Alaska.

Fast-food employees admit to stealing

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — A "startling" 62 percent of the employees of two national fast-food organizations admitted stealing cash or property from their employers, an industry study said.

Fifty-two percent said the average employee stole between $10 and $400 per week, and 7 percent said they took $10 to $100 a week, but London House Inc., which published the study Sunday, said the amount actually stolen "probably falls between these extremes."

The study did not compare the theft rate to other industries.

"A startling 62 percent of the respondents admitted to some type of cash or property theft, such as taking supplies or merchandise or eating food without paying for it," said Dr. Karen Slora, a research psychologist for the Park Ridge-based organization, which develops and implements psychological testing and evaluation systems for business and industry.

"And 53 percent admitted to some type of theft support, such as watching others steal or not reporting theft," the study said.

Gorbachev arrives in China

Soviet's trip marks first summit in 30 years, students demonstrate

United Press International

BEIJING — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev came to China Monday for the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years, but pro-democracy student protests forced the government to move the official welcoming ceremony and delay the opening of the talks for several hours.

Gorbachev was greeted warmly by his official host, President Yang Shangkun, in the Great Hall of the People as tens of thousands of students and supporters gathered outside in Tiananmen Square demanding greater political freedom from the Chinese government.

The talks began shortly after 6 p.m. — almost two hours later than originally scheduled because of the 3-day-old student takeover of the square opposite the Great Hall.

The meeting with Yang was considered more of a protocol visit and was not expected to include substantive talks on bilateral issues. The heart of the visit comes Tuesday when Gorbachev meets with China's paramount leader Deng Xiaoping, who formally holds the title of Chairman of the Military Commission of the Communist Party.

U.S. and foreign television networks, including NBC, CNN, CBS and the Japanese NHK, were ordered to take down their camera positions overlooking the square. Several networks had planned to use positions overlooking the square for live broadcasts of the Gorbachev visit but were told by city officials such shots were now banned even though arrangements had been made in advance.

"In effect we have had the plug pulled," one U.S. network cameraman said.

The ban sent television producers scrambling for alternative sites from which to do their live feeds to the United States.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said the Soviets were not consulted about the schedule changes but added that student protests against the Chinese government should not overshadow such a historic event.

"Each country has its internal problems," Gerasimov said. "We also have a share of such problems ourselves."

"Of course it could cast a shadow ... but a summit, after an interval of 30 years, this is insuperable."

SINO-SOVIET CHRONOLOGY

Here is a summary of major events in relations between the Soviet Union and China since 1949:

• October 1949 — Chairman Mao Tse-tung proclaims the founding of the People's Republic of China. The Soviet Union is the first foreign country to recognize the new government.

February 1950 — Mao and Stalin sign a friendship treaty, but only after tortuous negotiations. Stalin attends a Chinese reception and has his interpreter taste his food, fearing poison.

October 1959 — Khrushchev visits Beijing on the 10th anniversary of the communist revolution for what will be the last Sino-Soviet summit for almost 30 years. He lectures Mao not to underestimate the power of the United States. Mao sees him as weak. The talks go poorly.

• 1962-1963 — In 1962, Moscow refuses to help China during its border war with India. The following year, Mao claims back some 1 million square miles of Soviet territory he says was wrested away by the Kremlin.

• March 1969 — Soviet and Chinese soldiers fight border clashes.

• October 1979-January 1980 — Sino-Soviet border talks begin in October, but the Soviets invade Afghanistan in December and the talks break off in January. Later in 1980, China joins the boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

October 1982 — Chinese and Soviet envoys begin negotiations toward normalizing relations. The Chinese specify "three obstacles" — Cambodia, Afghanistan and Soviet troops along the Chinese border.

• September 1984 — Chinese and Soviet foreign ministers meet at the United Nations for the first time in years.

September 1986 — Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, in a U.S. television interview, offers a summit with Mikhail Gorbachev providing the Soviets clear away obstacles to better ties.

• December 1988 — Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen visits Moscow, the first such visit since 1957. A few days later, Gorbachev announces a sharp reduction of troop strength in Asia and says most Soviet troops will be withdrawn from Mongolia.

Panama opposition joined by church protest

United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Anti-Noriega demonstrators waved white handkerchiefs and shouted "Justice, Justice" in churches across Panama to protest the voiding of national elections and the beating of opposition leaders.

The protests Sunday led by the Civil Democratic Opposition Alliance appeared to indicate further distancing of Panama's powerful Catholic Church hierarchy from military leader and de facto ruler Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Opposition vice presidential candidates Guillermo Ford and Ricardo Arias Calderon attended mass at four churches across the capital, promising to press their struggle and receiving loud cheers from hundreds at each church they visited.

Ford, beaten Wednesday in an attack by a pro-Noriega paramilitary squad during an opposition rally, made his first public appearance since the incident with stitches visible on his face.

"We are going to continue to fight," Ford said as he was mobbed by supporters at the Santuario (National Sanctuary). "Do not have any doubts — democracy is going to come to Panama."

Most independent observers believe opposition presidential candidate Guillermo Endara, also wounded during the same rally by pipe-swinging Noriega supporters, won the May 7 elections, which were annulled by the government.

The opposition claims Endara defeated pro-Noriega candidate Carlos Duque by a 3-to-1 ratio. The annulled official vote tally had Duque leading Endara by a 2-1 ratio.

The elections, which according to international observers were riddled with fraud and violence by government supporters, were annulled by the government Electoral Tribunal, which blamed "foreign interference" for the massive abnormalities.

The Panamanian Conference of Bishops headed by Archbishop Marcos McGrath, issued a statement that was read in every Catholic church Sunday calling on the government to "respect the will of the people freely expressed at the polls in the name of God, dignity of the people and the national conscience."

At the Don Bosco Church, Arias Calderon stood in the front pew and shook hands with a long line of well-wishers who had just taken communion at the altar a few feet away.

Bush to ask for $1 billion crime package

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush is seeking $1 billion from Congress in new prison construction as part of his long-awaited, comprehensive crime-fighting package.

Administration officials said the measure, to be unveiled in a speech to police officers on the steps of the Capitol, also would request funds to hire more prosecutors and policemen.

One official said Bush's program will seek to send a message to criminals: "If you do a crime — you're chances of doing time will increase. We'll have more policemen to catch you, more prosecutors to prosecute you and more jails to hold you."

Administration officials said Bush was not ready to announce a final decision on semiautomatic weapons but will maintain a temporary ban on them until a federal review is completed next month.

The review by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is trying to determine if the rapid-fire guns, as required by law, have a legitimate sporting use.

Officials said after the ATF review is completed, the administration would make a case-by-case decision on the more than four dozen different types of foreign-made semiautomatics.

One official said, "It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that a lot of them don't" have a legitimate use, but that a final decision wouldn't be made until the review is completed.

The National Rifle Association has lobbied hard against restrictions on semiautomatic assault weapons, saying they are basically no different than the rapid-fire guns owned by legitimate sportsmen.

The semiautomatics used by hunters generally carry magazines of four rounds. The so-called semiautomatic assault weapons are equipped with magazines that carry upwards of 20 rounds.

Despite oral definition for assault weapons, which has been a central point of argument in what is ultimately to go with them.

Bush imposed the temporary ban March 14 at the urging of the federal anti-drug chief William Bennett.

Argentina may have peaceful power shift

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Peronist Carlos Menem's decisive victory in national balloting gives Argentina the opportunity to break a drought of more than 60 years and transfer the presidency from one elected leader to the next.

Menem's chief opponent, Cordoba provincial governor Eduardo Angeloz, a member of President Raul Alfonsin's Radical Civic Union Party, conceded defeat Sunday at 10:40 p.m. Angeloz said voters gave "an ample triumph to Dr. Menem. I take advantage of this occasion to congratulate him."

Alfonso later sent a telegram to the 56-year-old Menem, who stayed election night in the province of La Rioja in the Argentine interior, where Menem has been elected governor three times.

Alfonso, whose popularity has reached a record low because of an economic crisis resulting in hyperinflation, unemployment and business closings, offered Menem "the disposition of me and my government for a transition that will be within the same framework of peace as the elections."

If Alfonso, who has beaten back three military rebellions during his 5 1/2 years in office, is able to give Menem the presidential sash Dec. 10, it would mark the first time a constitutionally elected Argentine president had handed over the office to an elected successor since 1928.

Other civilian presidents were toppled by coups before they had the chance to hand over power to an elected successor.

Cabinet approves peace initiative

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Cabinet has approved Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's plan for Palestinians to hold elections in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, but avoided action on several central issues.

After meeting Sunday for seven hours, the Cabinet sidestepped deep divisions within the government and voted 20-8 in favor of the 20-point plan outlining "regional elections." The plan called for a calming of the Palestinian uprising against the Israeli occupation during preparation for the elections.

Palestinians in the territories said they would not participate in elections without PLO approval.

The Palestine Liberation Organization has said it would not agree to elections unless Israel withdrew its forces from the occupied territories and an international force supervised the balloting — issues the Cabinet did not address.

The Cabinet also left unanswered the question of whether Palestinians in East Jerusalem and outside the territories could vote.

The United States has pressed Israel to give detailed proposals on those points as well as the question of how the transition period would lead to the permanent arrangement for the occupied territories.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Twins starting to support Viola

In April, people asked the question "What's wrong with Frank Viola?" After the left-hander posted his second straight victory in the Minnesota Twins' 13-1 rout of the Toronto Blue Jays, the answer seems clear: The Minnesota Twins.

The 24-game winner and 1988 American League Cy Young award winner opened the season with five consecutive losses in his first six starts.

A closer look reveals that much of Viola's early-season misery stems from Minnesota's poor run production. In four of Viola's five losses the Twins provided their ace two runs or less.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland drubbed Detroit 8-3, Chicago defeated Baltimore 8-5, Kansas City edged Texas 3-2 in 10 innings, Milwaukee nipped Oakland 2-1, California blanked New York 5-0 and Seattle dropped Boston 4-3.

NBA PLAYOFFS

Lakers wrap up Sonic sweep

The Los Angeles Lakers withstood the best the Seattle SuperSonics could offer Sunday and moved one step closer in defense of their NBA championship.

The Lakers overcame a 28-point, second-period deficit and defeated the SuperSonics 97-95 in Seattle to sweep their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal.

Los Angeles, in search of a third consecutive NBA championship, will face the winner of the Golden State-Phoenix series. The Suns lead the semifinal 3-1 and can advance with a victory in Game 5 Tuesday in Phoenix.

The Lakers, attempting to become the first team to win three straight NBA titles since the Boston Celtics won eight championships in a row from 1959-66, looked like they might be playing a Game 5 against Seattle.

The Sonics burst to a 9-0 lead behind Dale Ellis and Derrick McKey, who combined to score the team's first 13 points. The Lakers made only 4 of 20 shots in the first quarter and trailed 32-12 entering the second period.

In other semifinal games, Chicago clipped New York 106-93 and Detroit dumped Milwaukee 110-80.

Under-19 select girls to tryout

The Seminole Soccer Club has scheduled a series of tryouts for an Under-19 girls select soccer team for May 16 and 17 and again on May 23 and 25 at the Seminole Soccer Complex in Lake Mary.

Tryouts on all four days will last from 8 p.m. to 8 p.m.

According to a spokeswoman, girls must attend both days this week or next both days week. For more information, call 834-GOAL.

Mets pick up win on an error

NEW YORK — Fittingly, in a game of blown opportunities, the winning run scored on an error.

When the New York Mets finally were able to scratch out the decisive run en route to leaving 15 men on base Sunday in a 2-1 triumph over the San Diego Padres, they needed help to do so.

The Mets prevailed when Padres shortstop Luis Salazar bobbled Mark Carreon's potential double-play ball for an error with one out in the bottom of the ninth, allowing pinch runner Lenny Dykstra to score from third.

"We had lots and lots of opportunities; we're just taking our wins — we're going to hit eventually," said Keith Hernandez, who had the key hit in the decisive inning before coming out for Dykstra.

In other games around the National League, it was: Montreal 4, San Francisco 3; Los Angeles 9, Philadelphia 0; Atlanta 5, Pittsburgh 2; Cincinnati 5, St. Louis 2; and Houston 5, Chicago 1.

Flames use power play to win Cup opener

United Press International

CALGARY, Alberta — The Calgary Flames accomplished in one shot Sunday night what the Philadelphia Flyers could not do in six games against the Montreal Canadiens — score a power-play goal.

The first of two goals by defenseman Al MacInnis came on Calgary's first power play of the Stanley Cup final, and immediately demonstrated that the Canadiens — like every other NHL team — are vulnerable when playing a man short.

"Montreal is a very good power-play killing team," Flames Coach Terry Crisp said after his club posted a 3-2 victory in Game 1 of the NHL championship series. "It was nice to get one early so we can say the odd time (we get a man advantage) we can put it in the net."

The Flames scored once in four power-play tries. Philadelphia was blanked in 24 attempts the previous round, and Montreal had surrendered just two man-advantage goals in 54 postseason chances entering the game.

MacInnis, second in the NHL in playoff scoring with five goals and 19 assists, beat Montreal goaltender Patrick Roy twice in the first period in extending his point-producing streak to 12 postseason games.

Buoyed by a splendid effort by goaltender Mike Vernon, who made 29 saves, Calgary won for the 10th time in 11 games and took the first step in gaining revenge for a five-game loss to the Canadiens in the 1988 Cup final.

The Flames took the opener three years ago as well, but they were only one of nine teams since 1939 to capture the opener and lose the championship series.

Rookie Theodore Fleury got the game-winning goal, snapping a 2-2 tie with 9:15 left in the second period. Sent in by Jamie Macoun, the speedy center pushed a shot from the left faceoff circle that trickled between Roy's pads.

It was Fleury's fifth goal of the playoffs and it gave Calgary its first victory over Montreal in three tries at the Saddledome this season.

Vernon then made the lead stand up. He stopped Stephane Richer midway through the third period with an excellent pad save, then glove a point-blank blast by Ryan Walter with See Cup, Page 5B

Mitchell and Kuvach star at state meet

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

WINTER PARK — Seminole County had a pair of teams place in the top 10 Saturday night in the Class 4A state track meet before 8,501 fans at Showalter Field in Winter Park.

Lyman's boys team had a strong meet and placed sixth overall, just three points out of second place. Vero Beach won the meet with 33 points followed by Palm Beach Lakes with 25, Winter Haven with 24, Northwestern and West Orange with 23 and Lyman with 22.

Teddy Mitchell had another outstanding performance for the Greyhounds as he won the mile and the two mile to lead his team's scoring. Mitchell ran a personal best in the mile with a 4:15.3 clocking before cruising to the two mile championship.

Darren Marshall placed third in the 330 intermediate hurdles with a 38.3 clocking as Nick Radkewich took fourth in the two mile posting a time of 9:46.0. James Flint closed out the scoring as he ran a time of 50.0 to finish sixth in the 440 yard dash.

The Greyhounds were not as sharp as they had been in the regional meet. Had they come up with the same kind of performance, they would have brought home the runner-up trophy and could have challenged for the lead.

Lake Howell was the only other boys' team from the county to score in the meet as Marquette Smith took fifth in the long jump with a leap of 22-9/4. Smith, who is just a sophomore, made his presence known despite jumping in a tough field and should be back again next year.

Lake Mary's girls used a state championship and a mistake to break into the top 10 in its meet. Amy Kuvach, who won the discus, also threw the shot, where a problem occurred in transposed numbers that allowed another girl to pick up the sixth place medal and the team point.

"We started by discussing it to the man running the event," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said. "There was a number transposed somewhere and that moved a Southridge girl in front of Amy. I knew that couldn't be true because the two had thrown the same distance. I'm not sure where the wrong number go in there."

Kuvach set a school standard in the discus and won the first girls' individual state and track title in school history. Kuvach closed out her career with a sixth place in the

Tribe triplejumpers a triple threat

By TONY BOGGERMAN
 Herald sports editor

WINTER PARK — You could see in his eyes that he was going for it.

When Seminole High School's Lewis Butler lined up for his final attempt in the triple jump at the Class 3A state track meet on Friday night at Showalter Field, he already had first place locked up. So he decided to give an all-out effort and shoot for the state record.

It didn't happen. Butler went down the runway so fast, he lost his balance in the middle of the attempt and had to run through the pit, scratching on his last effort.

But don't pity him. The state champion in the triple jump this year and last year, Butler is only a junior and will go after a very rare third consecutive individual state championship next year. All he has to do is get by teammates Robert Moore and Henry Williams, who finished second and fourth in the triple jump on Friday.

"Next year, it's going to be either Robert or Henry."

said Butler with a smile. "I'm getting too old for this."

Regardless of who wins it, all three say that they will sweep the top three spots in the event next year. While Seminole coach Ken Brauman would like to see it happen, he was very satisfied with the trio's efforts on Friday and probably would settle for a replay next year.

"They're doing a tremendous job," said Brauman. "Henry was seeded sixth while Robert and Lewis were seeded third and fourth based on their results in the regionals. To finish 1, 2 and 4, they're doing an outstanding job."

Watching the three compete, you get the feeling that none of them would be as good without the other two there to push and challenge the other. And while the competition between the three is very intense, it doesn't get in the way of their support of each other.

On Friday night, for example, Moore needed a personal record on his final jump to secure second place. After talking over the situation with Butler and Williams, Moore went out and jumped 48-4, good for a personal record and second place.

Lions keep win, shutout streaks intact

By TONY BOGGERMAN
 Herald sports editor

WINTER PARK — Dorothy said it best. There's no place like home.

At least that's what the Orlando Lions are finding out. On Sunday night before 3,872 rain-soaked Mother's Day fans at Showalter Field, the Lions extended their winning and shutout streaks with a 2-0 win over the Tampa Bay Rowdies.

The win keeps the Lions perfect with a 5-0 mark, best in the American Soccer League. Lion goalkeeper Frank Arlasky, who was a little-used reserve for the Rowdies last season, extended his shutout string to 360 minutes (four consecutive games). Counting the shutout Lou Clouff posted in the season-opener, the Lions have gone 450 minutes without allowing a goal.

While Arlasky and the Lion defense deserves most of the credit, some should go to the narrow surface of Showalter Field, where the Lions have played four of their first five games.

"The field's been good to us," acknowledged Lion coach Gary Hindley, who has continually said his team must improve despite its perfect record. "We play our next three on the road. Someone remarked earlier that we could be 4-4 at the end of this month."

As it is now, the worse the Lions could finish May is 5-3. This Saturday, the Lions travel to Tampa for another game with the Rowdies before traveling to Washington for a game with the Diplomats (currently second in the ASL Southern Division behind the Lions) on May 27 and at the Maryland Bays on May 28.

Orlando doesn't return to Showalter Field until June 2, when the Lions will host the Miami Sharks.

Against the Rowdies (3-4) on Sunday night, the teams exchanged turns taking control of the contest. Both clubs managed four shots on goal in the first half and six in the second half, but each team's shots seemed to come in clusters.

With the momentum swinging back and forth, emotions started to run high. Before the game's first goal was scored, Tampa Bay's Alan Anderson and Martin Hill and Orlando's Ben Collins and Lou See Lions, Page 5B

Patient's spleen may be causing anemia

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was diagnosed as having autoimmune hemolytic anemia last summer. I've been on prednisone since then to control hemolytic anemia. Its removal often cures this affliction. Therefore, in patients who do not respond to chronic prednisone, splenectomy (removal of the spleen) should be considered.

degrees of strength and still have side effects from it. My doctor now thinks the problem may be my spleen. I don't want to stay on the prednisone but can't afford a splenectomy. Is surgery the only answer for me?

DEAR READER: Anemia is caused by four factors: insufficient production of red blood cells (from vitamin or iron deficiency), rapid blood loss (hemorrhage), improper formation of red corpuscles (as in thalassemia and sickle cell disease) or destruction of adult red blood cells.

You evidently have this last type of anemia, in which your body has mistakenly instructed your immune system to destroy the blood cells. Autoimmune means "self-allergy"; hemolytic refers to bursting of your normal red corpuscles from this allergy. Anemia (too few red blood cells) results. Many medicines, including antibiotics, can trigger hemolytic anemia. The condition can result from incompatible blood transfusions.

Also, certain diseases, such as infections and cancer, are associated with hemolytic anemia. In some patients, no obvious cause can be discovered.

In treating autoimmune hemolytic anemia, doctors attempt to interfere with the immune system's aggressive destruction of red corpuscles. Prednisone, a type of cortisone, is useful for this purpose and will often "turn off" the body's immune response and prevent anemia.

However, as you've discovered, there is a trade-off. Prednisone has unpleasant side effects, including osteoporosis, cataracts, diabetes, changes in facial characteristics and susceptibility to infection.

Since the spleen is usually an important factor in aggravating

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When you fear that a suit will be ruffed, best declarer technique is to lead up to the key high card at the crucial moment, rather than just dropping it on the table and hoping for the best. In a recent North American Championship, Mexican expert George Rosenkranz found an opportunity to demonstrate this technique. It's reasonable to reach six clubs as in the diagram, although George and his partner used their own special methods in a more complex bidding sequence.

Declarer Rosenkranz won dummy's king of hearts, played a club back to his jack and then a diamond to the jack in dummy. He returned to his hand with a second high club and then played a diamond to the ace. Next came the remaining diamond in dummy played toward his hand. Note East's dilemma. If he ruffed, declarer would simply play low. Later a low heart from dummy would be discarded on the diamond king, allowing declarer to ruff his losing heart with the queen of clubs. In the actual play, East discarded on the third diamond. Declarer took the king and ruffed his last diamond with the trump queen. Although a heart was eventually lost, South had 12 tricks and his contract.

If declarer first plays the diamond king before leading to the jack in dummy, the contract fails. East will be able to use his trump to ruff a winning diamond honor, and the quest for 12 tricks will fall short.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osof

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 May 16, 1989

You could be fortunate in the year ahead in having others look out for your interests and in helping you to achieve important objectives. Your strengths will come from the strong relationships you establish.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're a reasonably well-organized person who is capable of dedicating full focus to the task you perform. However, your attention span might be limited today, so be careful. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely cautious and prudent regarding side ventures or investments today. This is a critical area and, if you act without thinking, it could lead to regrets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your mate might bring up some issues today that conflict with your views and opinions. Try to evade the thrust so that it doesn't turn into a serious argument.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep a light foot on your gas pedal today if you're cruising around town. Also, remind any with whom you may be riding to do the same.

VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions are still a trifle touchy for you where your finances are concerned. Try to limit your expenditures today to real needs instead of frivolous fancies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is one of those days when you might have too many frogs in the fire at one time. Quality effort produces the payoff, quantity effort might count for little.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might be too easily angered for your own good today, not so much by the immediate event, but by past misunderstandings evoked from unrequited memories.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Forget about trying to keep up with the Joneses at this time. If you can't afford to participate in certain things a friend can, don't be bashful in saying so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you fail to make an extra effort today to appreciate the other guys' points of view, you may find yourself in an unpleasant development where you are without allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your attitude may be such today that you might make things much harder for yourself than they actually are. If this is true, it could affect you both businesswise and socially.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be on guard today or else there's a chance you might be drawn into something complicated that is not of your own making. It does, however, already affect several close friends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today it might seem like the only two choices available to you are bad or worse. This assumption could inhibit you from making decisions and severely affect your productivity.
